ROOSEVELT DISRESPECTFUL, AVERS HOUSE COMMITTEE; ADVISES LAYING SECRET SERVICE WORDS ON TABLE

Perkins Reports, Declaring President Made Insufficient Reply.

Packed House Punctuates His Address With Applause.

Tawney and Three Others Bristling With Defense.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Having given consideration to the president's further views regarding the secret service, contained in his message to the house of representatives last Monday, the special committee appointed to deal with the subject today brought in its final report.

Accompanying it is a resolution which declares it to be the sense of the house that it shall decline to consider any communication from any source which is not respectful, recommending that the original portion of the annual message be laid on the table and that similar action be taken with respect to the message of last Monday, because of its being "unresponsive to the inquiry of the house," as to what the president meant when he said, referring to the limitation placed upon the field of operations of the secret service, that the "chief argument in favor of the provision was that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated."

When Chairman Perkins of New York, of the special committee, arose to make his report, he faced an almost full membership, while the galleries were packed with interested spectators. Messrs. Tawney, Smith of Iowa, Sherman and Fitzgerald, were on the floor, prepared with speeches to resent what they deemed to be the insinuations of the president upon them, as members of the committee on appropriations. They were not alone in their indignation. Indeed, for some time past the feelings of the members had been growing more and more intense, and some of them have been giving way to their sentiments in language which fully testified to their wounded pride.

Report by Perkins.

Mr. Perkins addressed the house as follows:

"To your committee were referred certain passages contained in the annual message of the president. We were to decide whether, in our opinion, those portions of the message were couched in such form that a proper regard for the dignity of a great executive body should forbid their reception. We are of the opinion that the portions of the message do constitute a breach of the privileges of this house, and that therefore, following the precedent set in similar cases, the house should decline to consider them.

"With the merits of the question

EMBASSY HOMES PURCHASE FAILS

Efforts to Induce House to Authorize Expenditure, Futile.

Washington, Jan. 8.—All efforts to induce the house to authorize the purchase or erection of an embassy building at Paris, London or Berlin seem doomed to failure at this session. Members of the foreign affairs committee appreciate that the Longworth bill, authorizing the purchase or construction of buildings for legations, embassies and consulates, is certain to fail, and they regard it as utterly impossible to get an authorization of this character on the diplomatic appropriation bill.

The subcommittee of the foreign affairs committee has not even included in the forthcoming bill an item to that effect realizing that the objection of a single member of the house would knock it out.

The suggestion of Secretary Root that ten student interpreters be sent to the embassy at Constantinople, has been approved by the subcommittee and will be included in the bill. So far no item has been included in the bill to raise the American legation at Pekin to an embassy.

WILL REBUILD MESSINA; SICILIANS BID DEFIANCE TO FUTURE EARTHQUAKES

Survivors Decide on Immediate Reconstruction of Ruined City.

Battleships Are Delayed by Poor Coaling Facilities.

Messina, Jan. 8.—A meeting of the survivors of the earthquake, presided over by Senator Fulcio, was held here and resolutions were adopted that the city be re-built and that the civic administration be re-established as soon as possible.

The American vice consul and the other United States government officials here, in conjunction with British Consul Haines, have established a relief station at the water front, where milk and clothing are being distributed. The Scorpion brought the stores at Messina and the sterilized milk was extremely valuable in the case of a woman and two children who were taken out alive yesterday.

Orders have been issued that all who have not received a permit to remain must depart from the city.

It is believed that 40,000 men will be required to isolate the city, as the peasants from the interior are crowding in much faster than the others are leaving. The relief work on the Calabrian side is more systematically organized than here. The men on the United States gunboat Scorpion are anxious to participate, but the admiral has not yet assigned them to work on land. It will be several days before the Cheney apartments can be reached.

Relief Fleet Delayed.

CENSUS BILL TO PROVOKE DEBATE

Plan to Put Employes Under Civil Service, Opposed.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The bill providing for the next and the subsequent decennial census was on the senate's calendar for today. It is in charge of Senator Long, chairman of the committee on the census, who will press its consideration until final action is taken.

Two amendments to be offered are calculated to provoke debate, one classing the 3,000 employes of the census bureau here under the civil service commission and the other authorizing the director of the census to contract with private firms for printing the reports.

Senator Lodge will offer the civil service amendment while an amendment reported by the census committee will favor printing outside of the government if the director finds that such a course will be advantageous to the government.

BODY OF BALLOONIST WHO FELL INTO SEA, IS FOUND.

Hamburg, Jan. 8.—The body of Lieutenant Foertsch, the German aeronaut, who lost his life at sea last October, has been picked up in the North sea by the fishing steamer Orion. The corpse was identified by papers in the pockets of the clothing. Lieutenant Foertsch was a participant in the international balloon contest that was started from Berlin, Oct. 12. He were aloft in the German balloon Hergesell. The balloon was picked up Oct. 17, 140 miles northwest of Heligoland, but there was no sign of the occupant. All the other aeronauts were accounted for.

CHINA RECALLS DIPLOMAT SENT TO THANK THE UNITED STATES

Pekin, Jan. 8.—Tang Shao Yi, who is in Washington on a special diplomatic mission from the Chinese government to thank the United States for returning the Boxer indemnity to China, has been recalled to Pekin. He will come back via Europe, leaving Washington immediately.

The American and British ministers have abandoned their project to unite the various powers in a protest against the disturbing of the present policy of the Chinese government, which is thought to be initiated in the dismissal from office last week of Yuan Shi Kai, a member of the grand council, and this phase of the question is now regarded as at an end.

The mission of Tang Shao Yi has been enormously expensive, and in some quarters here his summary recall is regarded as giving color to the report that charges of extravagance have been lodged against Yuan Shi Kai. Tang Shao Yi started on his mission last fall under the auspices and with the approval of Yuan Shi Kai.

Implicated in Death.

Penang, Straits Settlement, Jan. 8.—In an interview here today Kang Yu Wei, the Chinese reformer, who was expelled from Pekin after the coup d'etat of 1898, declared that Yuan Shi Kai had been dismissed from his high position as member of the grand council of the Chinese empire because he was instrumental in the death of the late emperor and that he probably would be placed on trial for his connection in this matter.

"The result of this trial will convince foreigners that Yuan Shi Kai instigated the murder of the late emperor," Kank Yu Wei declared. "His dismissal will work for the good of the constitutional party; the constitution will no longer be delayed.

"I opposed foreign intervention in favor of Yuan Shi Kai; the matter is one for China to settle alone. The regent, Prince Chun, controls the army and is introducing reforms."

Since his expulsion from Pekin ten years ago, Kang Yu Wei has been instrumental in directing the reform movement in the empire from various places outside the country. He is at present living in concealment in Penang, and very few people are able to see him. It is necessary to be vouched for by friends before access to him can be obtained.

While it is impossible to obtain information of the expectation that Kang Yu Wei will now return to Pekin, it was intimated in certain quarters today that such a course was within the range of possibilities.

PAIR DEAD; CHLOROFORM

Bodies of St. Louis Man and Second Wife Found.

Murder-Suicide, Say the Police; Friends Think Foul Play.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 8.—Mystery surrounds the deaths of W. G. Brault, a salesman of St. Louis, and his wife, who were found dead in bed in their room.

There was an odor of chloroform when the police entered, but no other evidence that the drug had been used was found.

The coroner found that Mrs. Brault killed her husband and then committed suicide.

Friends of the couple, on the other hand, believe they met with foul play.

Brault was 45 years old and Mrs. Brault was five years his junior, and was his second wife.

CHINESE AGREE TO KEEP PEACE

Warring Factions in San Francisco Come to Terms.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 8.—Twelve Chinese factions, including the On Yicks and the Suey Dons, which have been engaged in bitter warfare for some weeks past, have affixed their seals and signatures to a peace pact which binds them to keep the peace in the Chinese quarter or to suffer dire consequences.

ANGELL, 80, SAYS: "SORROW DISTANT"

JAMES B. ANGELL.

Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 8.—"I suppose there are many who believe that when a man like myself reaches the four-score mark he should be quoting from the scriptures 'yet is there strength, labor and sorrow.' However, I am today of another frame of mind, and nothing is farther distant from me than sorrow." Thus spoke Prof. James B. Angell, venerable head of the University of Michigan, who yesterday reached his eightieth anniversary.

President Angell is at Cornell attending the annual convention of the Association of American Universities, of which he is head.

"How do I feel? Why take a look at me. Never in better health, and feeling in tip-top condition."

President Angell certainly looked his words. His face was ruddy with health and his voice was strong, his step firm and his every action showed that there was little of physical weakness about him.

MINISTER DIES IN POORHOUSE

Had Property and Relatives Anxious to Succor Him.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 8.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Chippewa Falls, Wis., says:

Rev. Reuben Powell, 78 years old, and for forty years minister in the United Presbyterian church in various cities of Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa, died in a poorhouse today. There was no need of his becoming a pauper, because he had property and relatives who were anxious to take care of him.

TAX AMENDMENT UPHELD BY STATE SUPREME COURT, JUDGE BROWN DISSENTING

Held That District Court Erred in Conclusions of Law.

Whole Number of Precincts Should Have Been Recounted.

Courts Have Power to Decide If Amendments Are Adopted.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The supreme court this morning handed down a decision on the contest instituted in Duluth against the tax amendment, which was declared carried by the state canvassing board two years ago at the same time that the good roads amendment was declared lost, on the face of the returns. It was asserted by the contestants that this result was due to the switching of the two propositions on the tally sheets, and a partial recount of the state showed this to be true, turning the majority for the tax amendment into a minority, and showing not only that the tax amendment was lost, but that the good roads amendment was carried. The state did not attack the findings of the canvassers, but asserted that the recount was insufficient.

The supreme court holds with the state, and declares the tax amendment to have been carried. Justice Brown dissents sharply in a clear, logical opinion. The state will dismiss its contest as to the good roads amendment, so the anomalous situation will present itself of an amendment going into the constitution that was lost on the face of the returns, and of another one going in that was found, upon analysis of the returns, to have actually been defeated. The syllabus follows:

The Syllabus.

The legislature of 1905 proposed to the people of the state for their approval or rejection two amendments to the constitution, one commonly known as the tax amendment and the other as the good roads amendment. The two amendments were voted on at the general election held Nov. 6, 1906. On Dec. 21, the state canvassing board found from the returns submitted to it and certified that the tax amendment had been adopted and the good roads

ALIENISTS HAVE SWAY

Theory Exploited That Hains Had an "Acute Mania."

Cross-Examination to be Under Dr. Flint's Guidance.

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Prospects loomed large for a field day for the alienists in the trial of Thornton Jenkins Hains today when Dr. L. Samuel Manson, an alienist, for the defense, took the stand for cross-examination, and, under the direction of Prosecutor Darrin, delved into the mysteries of mental diseases and told of reasons for his belief that Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr. suffered an attack of "impulsive insanity" when he shot William E. Annis.

The declaration of the defense alienist that Capt. Hains had an acute mania prior to the shooting, and that after the tragedy he suffered from melancholia, from which he slowly recovered, opened the way for exhaustive medical cross-examination.

The cross-examination of the defense's alienists will determine whether Prosecutor Darrin will call any medical

PAPER PULP IS OF SUGAR CANE

Secret Process May Produce a Very Good Grade.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 8.—An experiment in making paper pulp from sugar cane is being tried at a paper mill in Newington Center, by a secret process. It is believed a very good grade of paper can be produced.

Fight for Sixth Normal School Resumed by Cass Lake.

First Attack is Made Upon the Primary Election Law.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 8.—The business before the legislature will go ahead at a brisk rate next week. The first week is always devoted entirely to getting acquainted and to organization, and of the latter, there is nothing lacking but the announcements of committee appointments, which will be made probably Monday night, or Tuesday morning at the latest. Not much will be gained by announcing them Monday night, as the session will be brief, and certainly no committee meetings will be held after it. About Tuesday afternoon the committees will begin getting together and from the present outlook they are going to have plenty of bills to get to work upon.

SENATE PUSHES STEEL INQUIRY

Will Ascertain If Roosevelt Had Right to Permit.

Washington, Jan. 8.—By a viva voce vote the senate today passed Senator Culberson's resolution instructing the committee on judiciary to report to the senate whether the president was authorized to permit the absorption of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company by the United States Steel corporation.

ITALIAN SOLONS ACT FOR RELIEF

Premier Giolitti Tells What Has Been Done Already.

Rome, Jan. 8.—The chamber of deputies was opened in special session today to consider the adoption of measures to bring relief to the devastated provinces of Southern Italy.

When President Marcoa arose to address the chamber, deep silence ensued. With trembling voice and visible emotion, Signor Marcoa delivered a speech expressing the grief of the representatives of the nation and the country at large in the catastrophe that has befallen Eastern Sicily.

Premier Giolitti followed with a precise statement of what had occurred, and a recital of the relief measures adopted.

PEDDLER SLAIN; FIVE BOYS HELD

School Youngsters of Tender Ages Charged With Murder.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 8.—Five boys ranging from 8 to 13 years were arrested in the classrooms in the Shaw school today and charged with the murder of William Wachter, a peddler, who was found with his skull crushed.

The arrests followed information given to the police by Mrs. Mary Goebehardt, No. 3232 Wilson avenue, mother of two of the prisoners.

Washington, Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Lou E. Parish has been appointed postmaster at Sartell, Stearns county vice A. S. Mudde, removed.

LILLEY HAS TWO JOBS

House of Representatives Nonplused by Peculiar Situation.

Governor of Connecticut Is Also a Congressman.

Washington, Jan. 8.—One of the most prominent figures in the first session of the present congress because of his demand for an investigation of submarine legislation, George L. Lilley, now governor of Connecticut, promises to be a center of interest in the concluding session. It all arises over his failure to resign as representative at large from the state of Connecticut, or at least the failure of the speaker of the house to receive notice of that resignation. Mr. Lilley was inaugurated governor of Connecticut and the house records still show him a member of that body.

In the entire history of the house there has not been a similar case. Years ago, when a member of the house presented himself to fill a vacancy, the house sent a committee to his state, Ohio, to ascertain what had become of his reported predecessor, no notice of whose resignation had been received. The retiring congressman had been elected secretary of state in Ohio. It is understood that the house will hesitate to seat another man to succeed Mr. Lilley unless notice of his resignation is on record in the house.

There is understood to be no provision of law to prevent his serving in the house while governor of his state and drawing salary for both positions, though he would be liable at any time to be pulled out of the gubernatorial seat at Hartford and brought to Washington to make a quorum in the house.

As the resignation of Representative Lilley must now be presented if made at all, to himself as Governor Lilley, many believe that the first news of what promises to be a quiet resignation will be the formal notice of the speaker that Mr. Lilley has resigned to himself.

ANOTHER PARTY THAT SHOULD BE PUNISHED FOR RECKLESS COASTING

STATE LINE IS DRY NOW; OHIO AND WEST VIRGINIA TOWNS GLAD

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 8.—Reports received here today from eighteen small municipalities, where yesterday an election was held to decide on the licensed sale of liquor, show that ten went "dry" and eight "wet."

The prevalence of keg parties in the eight "wet" towns, it is said, decided the voters in favor of the licensed saloons.

At Williamstown, W. Va., opposite Marietta Ohio, the "drys" were victorious, and Marietta people joined with the Williamstown people in celebrating with a street parade, and the ringing of church bells.

It had been feared Williamstown would be a wet back yard for Marietta, which recently went dry.

THE OAK HALL'S SEMI-ANNUAL

—is the best sale of the winter season and pretty nearly everybody knows it. That is the reason why men who buy clothes late wait for it.

They know that it is a legitimate sale—that prices are actually reduced—that the former prices are not inflated to make the reductions appear big.

They know that it is our regular stock of distinctive Oak Hall clothes—that it is not the practice of this concern to buy up clothes of mediocre character and offer them at seemingly reduced prices.

The knowledge of these facts is the cause of the enormous selling done here this week, and which will unquestionably continue tomorrow and as long as these extraordinary values can be had.

ROOSEVELT DISRESPECTFUL, AVERS HOUSE COMMITTEE

with reference to the use of the secret service men, this committee has nothing to do. We fully recognize the right of the president to express his disapproval of legislation adopted by the congress, to point out its defects, and to ask that they be remedied. The question will doubtless be considered by congress and such action taken as may seem to be in the public interest.

"But your committee has to consider the criticisms made by the president upon the motives of congress in its action last session, to consider his suggestions as to future legislation, and report whether congress, with proper self-respect, can conceive them. It is stated in the message that the chief argument in favor of the provision was 'that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated by secret service men,' and this is repeated in the additional message. If this was the chief argument, it must have been by this argument that the majority of members were lead to vote in favor of the offending provision.

"Your committee is unable to share this belief. In the arguments of the house the gentleman from Kentucky, speaking in favor of the amendment, asked if it was intended that if a member of congress was guilty of unbecoming conduct, the department would be warranted in investigating his conduct by secret service men. And the gentleman from New York, opposing the amendment, stated that we all knew, as lawyers, that we were not federal officers; that we were component members of the government, and there was no one over us. Then the gentleman from Kentucky said, notwithstanding the views of the gentleman from New York, that the private conduct of a member of congress had once been investigated by secret service men, but the gentleman from New York denied even this one and solitary instance, and stated the investigation in the case cited had not been made by a member of the secret service, but by a police officer of Washington.

Not Convincing Evidence.

"We don't think that the most timorous of congressmen could have been induced by these arguments to vote in favor of the amendments for fear that if he voted 'no' the secret service might ferret out his secret sins.

"Nor does it seem that statements made in 1904, even by a newspaper reporter, are convincing evidence of the motive which actuated congressmen in their votes in 1906. The statements made in newspapers are sometimes questioned even at the White House.

"The statement containd in the message that the "chief argument in favor of the provision was that the congressmen did not themselves wish to be investigated," can have but one meaning. It means that congress voted for the measure from an improper motive. Any congressman whose vote can be determined by unwillingness to have his own conduct investigated by secret service men or by any other men, must surely be in favor of law. If it was believed that a majority of this body were in fear that their acts might be investigated and their crimes discovered, the respect of the people, which it is important for the republic that congress should possess, would be impaired, if not destroyed.

"It is dangerous to the republic that a large portion of our people should have their confidence shaken in the judges who interpret the law; it is equally dangerous that their confidence should be impaired in those who enact the laws, and it is for this reason that the duty devolves upon the lawmakers not to allow the integrity of their motives to be lightly questioned. We may be sure that no executive body will be respected by the people, unless it respects itself. We are jealous of the honor of the nation; we should be equally jealous of the honor of our institutions.

"Doubtless in congress there are some times found unfit and dishonest men, but I believe that with few exceptions the body is composed of men of integrity, whose vote is determined not by fear of the police, but by an honest regard for the public service. If the time should ever come when a majority of the chosen representatives of the American people were so unfit for their trust, that their votes were controlled by a craven fear of the detection of their crimes, then surely the republic will have come on evil days and the feature of popular government will be demonstrated.

Impeachment of the Voters.

"The people of this country have sent their representatives to congress. Many of them have for long years been re-elected at the polls or by the legislature. We do not believe that popular government and universal suffrage are such lamentable failures that dishonest, cowardly or unfit men are chosen to continue in office. In this matter we stand not only for ourselves, but for those who sent us here. The impeachment of those who are chosen is the impeachment of those who choose.

"The president says that no one holds the dignity of congress of the United States in higher regard than he. It would, therefore, be a thing to be deplored if, as a result of any unfortunate inadvertence of language, any untoward combination of words, expressions should remain in his message which might be interpreted by the people are lessening the dignity and thereby weakening the authority of congress.

"It is said in the message that criminals should be prosecuted if found in the executive branch of the government, and with this we wholly agree. But the president adds, 'If this is not considered desirable, a special exception could be made in the law prohibiting the use of secret service officers in investigating the members of congress.'

"In other words, it is suggested that we pass a law which will facilitate the exposure of other criminals, but will protect ourselves. If a majority of congress stands in favor of the exposure of its own misdeeds, it would be ready to vote for such a law, but such is not the case, and again we must protest. If congress listens tamely and timidly to reflections upon the character of its members and its honesty of purpose, it will deserve and it will certainly receive the contempt of the public. We feel that the suggestions in President Roosevelt's messages, the congress must refuse to meekly receive and mildly consider.

Struggled and Bled.

"During long centuries our English-speaking ancestors struggled and bled that a representative government might be established among English people. Our Revolutionary forefathers, more than a century ago, struggled and bled that our government should be a representative government; that the laws of the American people should be passed by the representatives chosen by the American people. The congress of the United States today exists as a result of centuries of struggle for popular government. Let every man who is a member of it, vote on this question in the manner which seems to him most worthy of the traditions of which we are the heirs, of the institutions of which we are the protectors, and of the people of whom we are the representatives."

As was the case when he first spoke on the question, before the holidays, Mr. Perkins was frequently interrupted by applause. Upon the conclusion of his remarks he submitted the committee's report, which after quoting from the president's message is as follows:

"Understanding this language to be a reflection on the integrity of its members, the house in respectful terms called on the president for any information that would justify the language of the message or assist in its constitutionality to purge itself of corruption.

"The president in his message of Jan. 4 denies that the paragraph of the annual message casts reflections on the integrity of the house; attributes to the house 'an entire failure to understand my message;' declares that he has made no charge of corruption against any members of the house and by implication states that he has no proof of corruption on the part of any member of this house.

"Whether the house in its resolution of Dec. 17, 1908, correctly interpreted the meaning of the words used by the president in his annual message, or whether it misunderstood that language as the president implies, will be judged now and in the future according to the accepted interpretations of the English language.

"This house, charged only with its responsibility to the people of the United States and its obligation to transmit unimpaired to the future the representative institutions inherited from the past and to preserve its own dignity, must insist on its own capacity to understand the import of the president's language. We consider the language of the president in his message of Dec. 8, 1908, unjustified and without basis on fact, and that constitutes a breach of the privileges of the house; therefore, be it resolved, that the house in the exercise of its constitutional prerogatives decline to consider any communication from any source which is not in its judgment respectful, and be it further,

"Resolved, that the special committee and the committee of the whole house on the state of the union be discharged from any consideration of so much of the president's annual message as relates to the secret service, and is above set forth, and that the said portion of the message be laid on the table; and be it further,

"Resolved, that the message of the president, sent to the house on Jan. 4, 1909, being unresponsive to the inquiry of the house, and constituting an invasion of the privileges of this house, by questioning the motives and intelligence of members in the exercise of their constitutional rights and functions, he laid on the table.

Athens. Later in the day the Kentucky left for Tripoli.

Nine vessels of the American fleet under Rear Admiral Sperry are still at Port Said, being delayed by the poor facilities for coaling such a number of vessels at once and the scarcity of lighters. Every train coming from Cairo is crowded with officers and men returning from the capital to rejoin their ships. Port Said presents a gay appearance, and the streets are filled with men in uniform.

Grim Statistics.

Rome, Jan. 8.—A correspondent who has traveled over much of the earthquake zone sends the following statistics:

Seminara, 2,000 inhabitants, 700 dead, 500 houses destroyed; a church which stood for 1,300 years now in fragments.

Santana, 700 inhabitants, 15 dead, 150 houses destroyed.

Melinolia, 5,000 inhabitants, 3 dead, 25 seriously injured, 50 houses destroyed.

Sant Eufemia and Aspromonte, 50 per cent of the inhabitants dead or injured, all the houses completely destroyed.

In addition to his former donations, besides putting the royal palace at the disposal of the injured refugees, the king has given $200,000 to the relief fund, designating half of this amount to the Red Cross society and half to the national relief committee instituted by himself.

BOOTH COMPANY PAYMENT PROBED

Investigation Begun to Ascertain Why Attorneys Got $692,000.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 8.—The creditor's investigation before a court of chancery to ascertain why $692,000 of the funds of A. Booth & Co. were paid to attorneys before the firm went into a receivership was begun yesterday.

Most of the examination was taken up with questions concerning purchases by the company several years ago of competing fish firms in Cleveland, Detroit, Buffalo and New York. This was done to ascertain whether the money was paid to the lawyers in connection with these deals.

It is said the present proceeding will be followed by others about other sums of money paid out by the Booth company during the eight years previous to its going into receivership.

COUNTY OPTION IS GIVEN FIRST DEFEAT IN HOUSE

any subject, except the elections of officers, came yesterday on the proposition of J. O. Hangland of Montevideo, to fix the rules so that it would be impossible for the committees to hold up pending measures unduly. The plan was to require each committee to report back all bills within fifteen days of their receipt, unless the house extended the time by formal vote. The measure was defeated by a vote of 62 to 42. This is recognized as a first defeat for county option, for it is understood that the proposal was made in the interests of that bill, which has not yet come in, but which is expected to arrive at an early date. While the proposed amendment to the rules seems plausible enough on its face, it is unquestionably true that if it were adopted the house would have to spend considerable time debating over the extension of committee consideration of bills. If any author of a bill now deems that it is being unduly delayed by the committee to which it has been sent, he can move to have it recalled from the committee and placed upon general orders.

The fight for a sixth normal school, to be located in Northern Minnesota, was resumed yesterday by the introduction of a bill by Representative McCarry of Walker, providing for the location of a new school at Cass Lake. Cass Lake was also the leader in the fight two years ago, but Bemidji, Thief River Falls and other towns got into the game later, with the result that nothing was done. The needs of the new normal school is not to be doubted, and it is entirely probable that if the fight can be centered first upon the establishment of the school, leaving the question to be fought over later, the legislature will concede the school, especially as the present proposal merely involves the selection of a site, and carries no appropriation for a school.

The bill by which it is proposed to have the state declare its ownership of all ore deposits underlying meandered lakes, was introduced in the house by Representative Bendixen, and in the senate by Senator Bedford. As the matter stands now, whatever ore there is under lake beds—and there is said to be an enormous quantity of it—is available to nobody. Owners of land along the shore have a right in expectancy, of course, if the lakes ever dry up; but in the meantime nobody, apparently, has a right to touch it. The proposal is merely to declare officially that the state owns this ore, and can sell or lease it if it sees fit. The measure is recommended by State Auditor Iverson. It was introduced two years ago, but failed to receive due consideration in the hurry of a session much occupied with important matters of legislation.

The fight to regulate freight rates in Minnesota was renewed yesterday by the introduction of a bill by Senator Cashman, a Democrat, re-enacting the commodity freight rate law of two years ago, which has involved the state in a controversy with the federal courts, which have held the penalty provided for its violation to be excessive. The Cashman bill eliminates the penalty entirely, thereby removing the objection of the United States courts. Without a penalty, a law is apt to be ineffective, but another measure will be introduced later to cover this point. Senator Cashman has in mind the passage of a bill providing that shippers who are charged more than the law prescribes may go into court and recover the excess, with 10 per cent interest added, as a sort of penalty. In this way it is hoped that the legal objections may be removed.

Senator Cashman has also introduced a distance tariff bill. This measure was defeated by the senate two years ago.

The first attack upon the primary law was made yesterday by Representative A. K. Ware of Northfield, whose measure was briefly described by The Herald last evening. It abolishes the primary election system altogether, except as to town, village and city elections, and puts in place of it a sort of guarded convention system, under which delegates are to be elected at a primary election, which will differ from the old-fashioned caucuses only in that it will be under the Australian ballot system. The provision that no political party shall receive the recognition of the state unless it casts at its primaries 25 per cent of its normal vote at the general election, is obviously an attempt to ire that Republicans will not ent. mocratic primaries, and vice versa. nless the matter of electing delegates to county conventions is more attractive to the average voter than it used to be under the old caucus and convention system, it is doubtful whether there would be any legally recognized parties left in the state after the first trial of the measure.

Other primary election bills will be forthcoming soon. Indeed, it is said that a swarm of them is ready to descend upon the legislature.

To follow the recent action of the state university authorities retiring professors at the age of 65, Senator Elwell of Minneapolis yesterday offered a resolution officially approving the Carnegie pension system, so as to enable retired professors from the Minnesota university to avail themselves of its provisions. Senator Elwell wanted the resolution considered immediately, but Senator Seward of Marshall said he wasn't quite sure that he approved putting the state's professors under an outside charity, and at his request the bill was referred to the university committee.

One of the first bills in the interest of railroad men was introduced yesterday by Senator Clague of Lamberton, providing that no railroad shall send a train out without a full crew, and that switching crews must be kept full. Another new railroad bill require railroads to transfer loaded freight cars from one road to another without transfer of goods.

Senator Anderson yesterday introduced a bill providing that 15 per cent of the receipts from liquor license fees, all of which now go to the municipalities, shall be turned over to the county road and bridge fund. This applies only to communities of less than 50,000.

The two bills introduced yesterday in the house changing the rate of railroad gross earnings taxation, are substantially the same as those considered two years ago. Mr. Spooner of Morris reintroduced his bill of 1907 increasing the rate from 4 to 6 per cent, and Representative Robertson of Argyle introduced a bill very much like that put through the house two years ago by Representative Miller of Duluth, increasing the rate to 5 per cent and requiring the railroads, in addition, to pay all local assessments, including assessments for drainage. This later bill would afford more general relief, and at the same time would probably be more objectionable to the railroads, because local assessments would probably amount to more than 1 per cent difference between the gross earnings rates proposed in the two bills.

Senator J. W. Pauly of Minneapolis, as reported yesterday, has renewed his campaign for a state printing plant in the basement of the old capitol building, to be in the hands of a printing commission composed of state officers with expert assistance. One bill appropriates $7,000 for putting the basement of the old capitol in shape for starting up the plant, and the other creates the printing commission. It is said that the state generally pays pretty good prices for its printing, and Senator Pauly believes that his plan would prove a good investment for the state, and would save money in printing bills.

A determined effort to provide for new buildings at the state prison will be made this session by Senator Sullivan of Stillwater in the senate and Representatives Spooner, Zeich and Anderson in the house. There are several plans, one of which provides for paying the expense out of the state prison earnings—the prison is a paying institution—and another provides for a state levy of $200,000 yearly for ten years. Not only is it proposed to increase the capacity of the prison—which is needed, it is said—but it is planned to enlarge the manufacturing industries of the prison. The penitentiary now makes binding twine and shoes, and last year, in accord with measures adopted by the legislature of 1907, it turned out a dozen binders which are said to be by those who have tried them at least as good as anything on the market. It is proposed to enlarge the binder business, and also to make hayrakes, hay-loaders, manure spreaders, reapers and other agricultural implements. There are no factories in Minnesota making farm machinery, and it is said that for this use of prison labor that it would not come in competition with Minnesota free labor—which is not true of the shoes made at the prison.

The bill introduced in the house yesterday requiring corporations to pay their men twice a month instead of monthly applies to all corporations employing more than ten men.

O. N. Thundale of Harmony, a member of the last legislature, was appointed speaker's clerk by Speaker Rockne yesterday, and John T. Jones of Minneapolis returned to his old place of reading clerk. Mr. Thundale was active in the management of the Rockne speakership campaign, and he also had a good deal to do with the good showing made in his former district and county by J. F. Jacobson, the Republican candidate for governor at the recent election.

The fatal attraction that lies in the legislative atmosphere is clearly exhibited by the fact that at least fifteen former house members are applicants for positions, and that some of them have gone so far as to declare that they will take any kind of a job so it is around the legislature.

Nearly seventy bills are in the legislature, including a number of large importance, which is doing pretty well for the first week.

John Zelch of Cottage Grove put into the house yesterday a bill requiring owners of automobiles to register with the secretary of state. The bill also makes more stringent rules for the regulation of automobile operation in the interests of the autoless public, and requires all operators to be licensed by the state.

The good looks of the St. Louis county members come in for frequent comment such as this from last evening's St. Paul Dispatch: "The handsomest group in the house is the St. Louis county delegation. They occupy seats on the right of the chamber and are in full view of the galleries. This invitation to curious feminine gallery spectators is evidently designed to draw attention to Representatives Grant, Graham and Austin, who are on the right side of the chamber."

Most of the St. Louis county members have gone home for the week-end recess, and will be back Monday, when the sessions will be resumed in the evening.

County Option Law a Live Wire, Warns Governor Hanly.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 8.—"I am aware there are some who have already celebrated the county option law's repeal, but I beg to remind all those who contemplate its repeal that it is the livest wire in the political machinery of this commonwealth and is charged with enough electricity to electrocute the party that repeals it."

In these words, Governor J. Frank Hanly, in his final message to the legislature of Indiana, delivered today, closed his speech in behalf of temperance after seeking to demonstrate by figures that a majority of the crime, pauperism, epilepsy and poverty is due to alcohol.

REAL MUSIC.

Chicago News: "It was a swell show, all right," said the young man in the olive-green suit. "There wasn't a poor number in it."

"I wasn't stuck on that mind-readin' stunt myself, but you take it all around and a man didn't have no kick comin'," agreed his broad-shouldered friend with the bullet head. "Them acerbats got me. That kid was a wonder."

"Me for the Perpignans," said the young man in the olive-green suit. "That fairy can have me. An' did you ever see a guy play the p'yanner like he does?"

"Dance, too," said the bullet-headed person.

"Sure. But that p'yanner stunt was great. Say, he's got Paderewski beat a mile. That's right. I've heard 'em both an' Paderewski ain't anywhere near him. Paderewski's all right for plain, straightaway playin', but he ain't got none o' the frills. He's got to have his p'yanner just so an' everythin' else just so an' then he can make things hum, but I'll bet if you put a sheet over the keyboard you'd have him stumped."

"I never seen him myself," said the bullet-headed person.

"I seen him just the one time," said the young man in the olive-green suit. "That was enough for me. There wasn't no more tune to what he played than there is to one of these compressed air hammers rattlin' on a red-hot rivet. That's what it sounded like to me. I gave up three bucks—six, with the girl—to hear him. I could stand around the corner of Madison and LaSalle an' hear all I wanted to of that rattlety-clack an' it wouldn't cost me a cent."

"What did you go for?" asked the bullet-headed person.

"The girl," explained the young man in the olive-green suit. "She was daffy about music an' she made me take her to see all of them nutty geezers that's top-linin' in the concert circuits. She told me I'd get to like 'em after a while, but I couldn't stand for it. The girl was all right, but she'd got that craze and it was too fierce for me."

"You ought to be pretty well posted, then," said the person with the bullet head.

"You bet your life I am," said the young man in the olive-green suit, "and that's why I say that the Perpignans have got the most of 'em skinned forty ways. I'd like to see Paderewski come in an' do a little buck and wing an' fall over a chair and land right on the keys in the place where the orchestra was playin' an' then keep right on with 'em, tryin' to let his balance and not missin' a note when he was doin' it."

"Say, that was great, wasn't it?" said his bullet-headed friend, admiringly.

"Then you take the vi'lan," said the young man in the olive-green suit. "That little guy that did the vi'lan stunt has got Kubelik's goat, if you ask me. Kubelik's no slouch, at that, but I'd risk five to one that he couldn't take a playin' card or a whisky flask instead of a bow and make it work the way that little guy done. It ain't the feller that does the best work that gets the most money."

"You bet it ain't," said his bullet-hkeaded friend.

"Well, it was a good show, all right," said the young man in the olive-green suit. "I wish the girl that I was tellin' you about could have seen it. If that show had been in town when I was goin' with her an' I'd taken her to see it, I bet we wouldn't have had no trouble."

"It was a good show," said the bullet-headed person.

THE ARM SWING.

New York Press: Why shoud a man swing his arms when he walks? Does he walk with his arms? Does the swing aid locomotion? The West Point cadets are trained to hold the little finger against the stripe of the trousers, palm to the front. This situation throws the shoulders back and makes the youth walk erect. Men who never had milleary training carry their fists any old way, most of them with thumbs to the gfingers half clinched, a la pugilistique! They are eager for a fight or a frolic. They are ready to do you. Others carry their palms inward, that is, facing the leg, every nail of the half-closed hand scraping the seam as the ar mswings. Some men walk with their hands open, some with them closed. I'm willing to bet a billion I can tell much of a man's character by the way he totes his "dukes."

There are men whose arms when they walk are like couple of excited pendulums, trying to emulate the stride of the leg, the right arm swinging in unison with the movement of the left leg, and the left arm keeping time with the right leg. The military man is taught not to swing his arms; the civilian swings expansively, often covering a bigger radius than that covered by his legs. When a man swings his arms excessively he appears to be paddling along. When a man doesn't swing his arms at all he seems to be advancing automatically. He is altogether uncanny.

FOR THE PROLIFIC.

Cardinal Logue, during his visit to Pocantico Hills, was asked how many sermons a preacher could prepare in a week.

Smiling, Cardinal Logue answered: "If the preacher is a man of extraordinary ability, he can prepare one sermon; if a man of average ability, two; if an ass, ten or twelve."

PARISIANS AND CRIME

Steinheil Case Topic of All Conversation on the Boulevards.

Woman Loses Love of Elderly Beau and Tries Suicide.

Paris, Jan. 8.—The only thing that interests anybody in Paris at all this week is crime. A little while ago, if you met a friend with the invariable boulevard greeting, "Quoi de neuf?" ("What news?") you exclaimed the state of your health; then came the possibility of trouble in the Balkans; afterwards the kaiser's speech, and now nothing but Steinheil.

"You will find," said an astute detective a day of two ago, putting a finger to his nose and nodding wisely: "You will see that this case is one of suicide. Yes, Adolph Steinheil strangled himself with the cord of a window curtain. Mme. Japy heard his death struggle and died of heart disease on the spot."

"And Mme. Steinheil?" queried the writer, "she was tied up on her bed.

"Ah! Voila!" he said, "that is the one thing that needs explanation. But the beauty of my theory is that it can get nobody into trouble." And a theory of this kind has been so much the official aim throughout the case that monsieur the detective's view is worthy repeating.

Interviews Are Costly.

The examination of Mme. Steinheil may be painful to her, but it is certainly amusing to the rest of the world. It seems now that she had a villa called "Vert Logis," or as one should say, "The Bosky Bower," where, under the name of Mme. Prevost, she was in the habit of spending her days, and sometimes weeks, with her lovers. The police have searched the place and found papers, letters and photographs which will no doubt furnish material for future examinations. It is stated that one of Mme. Steinheil's lovers spent $60,000 on her in the course of the last few years.

Meanwhile, every one connected with the tragedy, however remotely, is being interviewed, and the price of these interviews has gone up by leaps and bounds. Alexandre Wolff, the son of the cook, who was accused of the murder of Mme. Steinheil, was at first content to talk for a simple louis ($4); he now wants $20 before he will open his mouth. His mother, Mariette, declares that she "will not make any more sensational revelations" under $100.

French Female Criminals.

It is a curious thing that so many of the criminals whose cases have aroused widespread excitement in France have been women. Recent instances are Mme. Humbert, Mrs. Goold, Gabrielle Bompard, Jeanne Faure and the widow, Gras. Fair, but frail damsels have been lately displaying a good deal of undesirable activity in certain Riviera trains, and now the police authorities are exhibiting equal energy in the effort to put a stop to their practices.

It was an adventure which befell a prelate a couple of days ago which brought matters to a head. A bishop was seated with his vicar general in a compartment of a corridor car in a train running between Montone and Nice, when a young woman entered it and behaved in so improper a manner that she was evicted by the ecclesiastics, who, on their arrival at Nice, complained to the station master, and gave a description of the woman, with the result that she was watched, and, having been again caught boarding a train, was arrested. It is added that other women of the same description were similarly detected while traveling between Nice and Monte Carlo, and are also in custody.

Skin Massage, $1,537.

Mme. la Vicomtesse de V. some time ago employed a beauty doctress, who treated her skin by massage. After a few months the bill came in, and it amounted to $1,537. The viscountess thought this too high a price to pay, even for beauty's sake, and allowed herself to be sued. Her counsel in court derided the beauty doctress' methods. Her massage consisted in "smearing the face with cold cream and then rolling it with small wooden rolling pins." Counsel for the masseuse was indignant at this description of his client's treatment. He pointed out that she is medically certificated, and that her husband is a professor at the high school of commerce and a knight of the Legion of Honor. Her treatment consisted of massage, not with rolling pins, but with the fingers, and each seance lasted an hour, during which "nerve after nerve and muscle were manipulated," and after which she was so worn out that she had to take a long rest." Whether the viscountess, after the hour's kneading, also required rest was not stated. The masseuse's counsel added that the cold cream she used was expensive, because, "without disclosing the secret of its preparation," he could say that it contained essences of bitter almonds, which cost $6 a gram. The court, however, was not convinced, and reduced the beauty doctress' bill to $240.

Pretty Woman Tries Suicide.

Madame Helene Steiser, known as Comtesse Steiser, a very pretty young woman, who had some very pleasant adventures in the past, has just attempted suicide in consequence of another disagreeable incident, having been abandoned by her sexagenarian lover. Her troubles began before she was 20 years of age, when she learned that the man with whom she had gone through a wedding ceremony and whom she quite naturally considered her husband, was already married, and had a wife and children living. There was a trial and a separation, after which the countesse resided quietly for some ten years in Paris.

About two years ago she met a very kind, elderly man, with whom she fell in love. At first she thought that she was about to have a lawful husband, but she learned that he also was married. Her hopes again vanished, she nevertheless maintained an affectionate admiration for her elderly lover, when two adventurers got into the secret, and eventually blackmailed her out of nearly everything she possessed. One of them was recently convicted and given long terms in jail, but this did not help her to recover her lost means.

As a climax, her lover also withdrew when the trial was over. In consequence of a letter sent by one of the blackmailers. After this the countess thought that she had nothing more to live for, and proceeded to attempt suicide in a hotel at Fointainebleau by swallowing laudanum. Before making the attempt she sent a letter to a friend in Paris, who rushed to the station, caught a train in time, and just got to Fontainebleau as the countess was about to breathe her last. The vigorous intervention of her friend, a doctor, and a gendarme saved her, though it took twenty-four hours for her to recover consciousness. As soon as she did so she reached out for a revolver which she had hidden under her pillow, but her friend had been beforehand and taken out the six cartridges with which she had loaded it.

A priest has been discovered at Perigneaux who is reduced to keeping a public house. He says that after having been given a living in Mexico he was recalled, and for nearly three years had to subsist on pension of $5 a month. His old father and mother keep a tobacco shop and he has added thereto a retail wine business. He wears his cassock, tucks his sleeves up, and serves "genuine pure wine" of the South over the counter at a penny a glass. His customers all respect his cloth. They include many troopers, and these he knows how to manage, because this versatile priest is also, it seems, a lieutenant of reserves in a regiment of the line.

Free Concert Program.

The program for the eleventh Masonic free concert Sunday, Jan. 10, at 3:30 p. m., will be as follows:

Organ .....
(a) Grande Offertoire de St. Cecile, No. 2 ..... Batiste
(b) Reminiscences of Wales.... ..... Godfrey
Song—"The Ash Grove".....Welsh Air
Miss Alice Sjoselius.

Organ .....
(a) Siegfried, selections.....Wagner
(b) "Red Tremendae"..... Verdi
Song—"Clychau Aberdyfi"..Welsh Air
Sung in Welsh by Miss Alice Sjoselius.

Organ .....
(a) Faust, Faitaise Brilliante; arranged by S. Smith .....
(b) Masaniello, overture.....Auber

The above is an especially strong program, and covers the field from the solemn and imposing "Rex Tremendae" to the Welsh folk music, both vocal and instrumental.

The fourth number, sung in Welsh, should be a treat to all, as very few persons have heard a song in that musical, liquid, language.

Dr. John Quigley Dies.

New York, Jan. 8.—Dr. John J. Quigley, chief surgeon in the police department, died today of apoplexy. Besides being chief surgeon of the police department, Dr. Quigley was professor of clinical surgery in Fordham college, visiting surgeon in the Fordham hospital and a member of the council and other medical societies and other associations.

BISHOP HEADS SOCIETY.

James McGolrick Elected President of Duluth Art Association.

At a meeting of the Duluth Art association directors held yesterday in the rooms of the Commercial club, Bishop James McGolrick was elected president; Chester A. Congdon, vice president; Edward Silberstein, secretary; Mrs. A. B. Siewert, treasurer. The new officers will assume the management of the association at once.

Plans for the present year were considered, and the trustees and officers of the society feel that some of the ambitious plans discussed at the annual meeting of the society can be successfully carried out during the year.

Perkins Succeeds Himself.

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 8.—George C. Perkins was selected by the Republican joint caucus as its candidate for United States senator to succeed himself.

A HORSE STORY.

Mayor Reyburn of Philadelphia, the owner of the record-breaking trotter Ed Bryan, told at a dinner a horse story.

"A farmer visited a phrenologist," he said. "He had heard that the phrenologist thought of buying a horse. He had his head examined, and his bumps revealed surprising things.

"'Your tastes are the simple, homely and pure tastes of a farmer,' said the phrenologist, "and a farmer I take you to be. Am I not right? Aha, I thought so. You are unready and faltering in speech; you find it difficult to express the simplest ideas. You are sadly deficient in judgment, and have no knowledge of human nature. Your innocent and trustful disposition renders you an easy dupe to designing men, and your own perfect honesty prevents you from either suspecting of defrauding any one.'

"The phrenologist, the following week, bought a horse from the farmer. The horse was knock-kneed, it was twenty-five years old, it had a had temper, and it balked. Though the farmer had paid only $15 for the animal, he secured without difficulty $150 from the phrenologist for it.

"'It's wonderful,' said the farmer to himself, as he hastened toward the bank to deposit the money—'it's jest wonderful that a man should know so much about men, and not know a thing about hosses!'"

BY WAY OF CHICAGO

Waverly Magazine: A pupil of one of the public schools in Chicago sends this communication:

Dear Sir: In our school this morning an amusing dialogue took place.

A primary teacher of Chicago, wishing to impress on her pupils the necessity of greater quiet, said:

"I am a great deal larger than any of you, yet I don't make any noise when I walk around the room.'

"Perhaps," remarked little 7-year-old Kenneth, "you don't wear shoes."

"Oh, yes, I do," quickly replied the teacher; "just look. Did you ever see any larger than mine?"

Kenneth surveyed them carefully.

"Yes," he replied slowly, "once in a show."

AMENDING CHARTER

Reply to Mr. Phelps' Objections to Three Proposed Amendments.

Chan Smith Claims They Would Not Cause More Taxation.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The large part of the city already improved as to intersections will have to be renewed a long time before the remaining part at present unimproved. It was never right to make the owners of abutting blocks pay the cost of intersections, and the way to correct a wrong is not to continue it. The whole assessed valuation of the city should pay for the intersections, because it is public frontage.

The charter commission refused to permit the voters to vote on the proposition to increase the present limit of taxation in excess of about at present 9 mills for funds Nos. 4 to 16. A general tax of about 2 mills will take care of a reasonable amount of public improvements, called for by the adoption of the amendments petitioned to be submitted for twice by over 5 per cent of the voters of the city. These voters were not children or idiots, and no one has claimed that the charter commission proposed the amendments.

The real estate exchange asked the charter commission to submit a certain amendment, and were turned down. The mayor of the city asked for the submission of three amendments, one to give the park board authority to entertain the people, one to increase the limit of taxation to 11 mills of the assessed valuation of all property for funds Nos. 4 to 16, also to provide for a wheelage tax, and was turned down. The city council asked that a certain amendment be submitted and were turned down. The mayor of the city asked for the submission of three amendments, one to give the park board authority to entertain the people, one to increase the limit of taxation to 11 mills of the assessed valuation of all property for funds Nos. 4 to 16, also to provide for a wheelage tax, and was turned down.

The wheelage tax and 2 mills taxation would have produced a fund which would have easily taken care of all reasonable costs of intersections and renewals of improvements, as well as a good share of maintenance.

Mr. Phelps says it would be a hardship "for the man with the cow" if the amendments were adopted. The "man with the cow" would have paid about 3 cents more taxation than now on account of the cow. The "farmer over the hill in the city limits" that is now paying $20 would have paid about $21.20 and this would have paid not only his share of the cost of the paving on Superior street, but of every street and avenue from Lakeside to Fond du Lac. He does not pay a cent of the cost now and uses, in one case I know of, probably twenty-five miles of streets and avenues every day. He is in favor of the amendments.

The poor street car company would have paid about $1,400 more. The personal property of the richest man in the city would have been taxed about $138 more. The stock of goods of the largest wholesalers, using the heaviest drays and having a large benefit of the streets and avenues, would have been increased about $490. The average taxpayer would have paid about $1 more. But the charter commission saved the day. If the amendments are adopted taxes will be no higher than at present. A different use of the available funds to expend will have to be arranged if the amendments are adopted by three-fifths of the voters voting for them at the election. Everybody will have to help repave Superior street, but owners of lots, buildings and goods on Superior street will have to help pay the cost of intersections and repaving of streets of all the rest of the city from Lakeside to Fond du Lac. This means a larger contribution from that territory and a less amount from the residence districts to provide the system of streets and avenues.

The cost of renewal of public improvements four times in the average wage earner's block will equal the total actual value of lots, buildings and goods in the block. The cost of renewal of public improvements in the best business block four times would not exceed 5 per cent of the actual value of lots, buildings and goods in the blocks.

The system of streets and avenues and drainage of the city is one construction, the most expensive and important structure of the city, built for the use and benefit of all, not simply to ornament the abutting or nearby lots. The system of streets is graded with relation to the business center from which, and to which, the bulk of traffic flows. The unearned increment value of business property is largely caused by the grade of the streets and avenues giving the easiest grade to a common center for buyer and seller to meet. The idea of relieving the taxation of property at this common center by changing the method of payment of cost of a public provision from the usual method of percentage of assessed valuation, to a frontage tax, \outrageous and diabolical. A f \age tax without regard to valu \ means putting the wage earner's block at the same value as the business block. They are both of equal width or length.

The three amendments do not aim to increase taxation, but to make a more correct and righteous distribution of the cost of a public provision. The third amendment distinctly limits taxation unless a majority of owners ask for it. I am not willing to concede that a majority of lot owners, whether resident or non-resident, can not realize if a public improvement will benefit their property to the extent of the first cost. I can understand how they will hang back to improve till it will make their property marketable. Streets have been improved in Duluth on which the grass has grown fifteen years. Who was benefited beside the contractor?

For all the expenses of schools, the city, county and state institutions and government there is now taxed against all kinds of property about 15 per cent of the assessed value in any five-year period. Do you not think that for the one purpose of furnishing a highway that a tax of 25 per cent additional, or in all 40 per cent on the lot, is high enough in any five-year period? If a majority of owners can see a benefit equal to first cost of any improvement the third amendment waives the limit. It is not to be presumed that a majority of lot owners are children, idiots or insane persons. Only a small proportion of the assessed valuation of lots and acres off of improved streets is not at present paying taxes. The only thing to be done in such a case is to continue to lower the assessed valuation. It is evident that taxation in those cases at assessed valuation is confiscation. To prevent overtaxation or confiscation is the whole attempt of the third proposed amendment. To bring about a condition that will result in more wage earners being enabled to provide their families with a separate house with a bit of private ground on conditions of payment of public improvements similar to the most enlightened communities.

The Eastern cities have had a longer experience in the handling of cost of public improvements and we can safely follow their experience. The oldest improved roads had toll gates and that meant the payment of cost by persons, personal property and goods. Owners of lots and acres paid nothing. The use of the road is by things movable and we have been putting the whole burden of cost on the owners of the immovable lot. Outside of cities the highways are universally provided by general taxation with the aid sometime of a very mild poll tax or a nominal amount of work by any individual.

Inside city limits there is a diversity of methods, from payment of a large part of the cost from general taxation to the extreme among the larger cities of Duluth lot owners paying nearly the whole cost by special taxation or assessment based upon length or width of the abutting or nearby lots. The argument of cost being added to the value of lots is contradicted by the fact that no real estate man enters to credit of real estate the amount paid for assessments, but charges it off to expense the same as any other tax. Yours truly, CHAN SMITH.

EGG MARKET IS UP AGAIN

The Cold Weather Causes Higher Prices for the Hen Fruit.

The cold weather did it.

If it had not been for the severe temperatures of the last week, the chances are that it would not have been necessary to record an advance in the egg market, so soon after the time that it gave signs of receding from the elevated position which made the entire country place a fresh egg among the valuable gems.

When eggs were 40 cents a dozen—for the "strictly fresh" variety—there was much talk among the people, considerable complaint from the housewives, and no end of jokes and cartoons by the newspaper paragraphers and cartoonists.

After a while things began to look brighter. Fresh eggs dropped to 35 cents and indications were that from that time on, the egg market would gradually seek a more reasonable basis. There was every hope that this would come about when the mercury dropped and eggs went up again.

That variety of eggs known as "strictly fresh" are quoted on commission row at 37 cents a dozen, against a price of 35 cents a dozen, which prevailed last week, and until a day or so ago.

Receipts have been very light during the past few days.

Those brought forth to the trade from the bins of the cold storage concerns are costing 29 cents a dozen, wholesale, the same price asked for them a week ago.

The cold weather has also had the effect of creating a stronger undertone in the market for green vegetables and fresh fruits, as extra precautions must be taken in shipping them these days.

The fast freight cars are specially heated to carry the perishable goods. Their equipment not only includes heating apparatus and devices, but in many instances men to care for the same, and to look to it that the temperature of the carriers does not go below the danger point.

Hot-house cucumbers are about $3 a dozen. Tomatoes are $4.50 for six baskets. Lettuce is $1 per bushel. Parsley is 40 cents a dozen.

Of all the tropical or semi-tropical fruits, there is none which goes along on the even course that the banana does. Cold days may come thick and fast, and hot ones too, but the local banana market may usually be depended upon to remain upon a 4-cent basis. It is seldom a matter of weather in these United States, or even of supply and demand. It all rests with the United Fruit company and its auxiliary organizations.

The United Fruit company imports the larger part of the bananas consumed in the United States. Whether the market is particularly lively or not, bananas are usually kept upon a 4-cent basis. The fruit people are satisfied with that. It insures a profit, and it is possible for them to maintain it all of the time. Of course, if the demand gets too strong, they can raise it a little.

If the banana market is slack, the fruit people curtail importations, and bananas keep on selling at the same price. If the demand is strong, they import larger quantities. They have it all nicely arranged and you may be sure that they do not lose anything on a 4 cent market in Duluth.

The organges offered in the local market at the present time are choice. Most of them are coming from California, the Western orange being a greater favorite than the Floridas. Oranges are quoted at $3.25 to $3.50 a box.

Lemons, also from California, are $4 a box.

California figs are 85 cents to $1.25 a box and the Smyrna figs cost $1.25 for a ten-pound box.

Apples are steady at $3.75 to $4.75 a barrel.

Grape fruit is having a local vogue at the present time. The market for it is about $4.50 per box.

Cranberries remain very firm, at $14 a barrel. This season has been a very bullish one for the berries. The crop was short and the demand has been firm.

The market is well supplied with staple vegetables of all kinds and prices are about unchanged from last week.

The butter market remains steady, with prices unchanged. Creamery prints are 35 cents a pound and tubs 32 to 34 cents.

Poultry is firm. Chickens are 12 to 15 cents a pound and turkeys 22 to 23 cents. The meat market is unchanged.

MISSIONARY'S WIFE PRAISES CUTICURA

Daughter's Head Encrusted with Dandruff—Feared she Would Lose her Hair—Many Treatments were Futile—Baby had Milk-Crust.

BOTH CHILDREN CURED BY FAMOUS REMEDIES

"For several years my husband was a missionary in the Southwest, and we were living on the edge of the desert at an elevation of nearly five thousand feet. Every one in that high and dry atmosphere has more or less trouble with dandruff and my daughter's scalp became so encrusted with it that I was alarmed for fear she would lose all her hair, which was very heavy. After spending between five and six dollars for various remedies, in desperation I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. After rubbing the Cuticura Ointment thoroughly into the roots of the hair, I gently combed the crust of dandruff free from the scalp, and then gave her head a thorough shampoo with the Cuticura Soap. This left the scalp beautifully clean and free from dandruff, and after the hair was dry, I again rubbed the Cuticura Ointment, this time sparingly, into the roots, and I am happy to say that the Cuticura Remedies were a complete success. My troubles with dandruff were over, although for a long time afterward I used the Cuticura Ointment as at first, after shampooing, which kept the scalp and roots of the hair moist. I have used successfully the Cuticura Remedies for so-called 'milk-crust' on baby's head, and have never found anything to equal them. You are at liberty to publish this letter, for I do sincerely believe that the Cuticura Remedies are a blessing to mankind. Mrs. J. A. Darling, 310 Fifth St., Carthage, Ohio, Jan. 20, 1908."

Cuticura Ointment is one of the most successful curatives for torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin and scalp, including loss of hair, ever compounded, in proof of which a single anointing with it, preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap, and followed, when necessary, by a mild dose of Cuticura Resolvent (liquid or pills) is often sufficient to afford immediate relief of itching, burning and scaly humors, eczemas, irritations and inflammations, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure when all else fails.

USING MAILS TO DEFRAUD

Charge Against William Lipkia Who is Wanted in Omaha.

William Lipkia, employed as an organizer for the Modern Samaritans, was arrested yesterday, charged with using the United States mails to defraud. He was given a hearing before United States Commissioner Pressnell yesterday afternoon, and committed to jail in default of $2,500 bail.

The complaint is an old one, and was made out in Omaha, Neb. It charges that Lipkia, under the name of M. Bloom, wrote to several jewelry firms and asked them to send him goods. He may be taken to Omaha for trial. He is also said to have gone under the name aliases of N. Britton and J. E. Converse.

The man came to Duluth six months ago, saying he was from Denver. He has borne a good reputation locally, and has made many friends in the city.

COUNTESS LOSES JEWELRY.

Well-Dressed Man Steals Case From Motor Car.

London, Jan. 8.—The Countess of Caledon was the victim of a daring motor car robbery the other day in Albemarle street, Piccadilly. A well-dressed man of gentlemanly appearance entered the motor car while the countess was shopping and stole a red morocco dispatch case containing private papers, jewelry, and a sum of gold.

The countess had driven from Prince's restaurant, shopping in the West end, and her car was waiting outside a shop in Albemarle street at the time. Among the stolen property was a lady's gold hunter watch.

THE POLICY A FAILURE

Canada Cannot Shut Out Norwegians From Shipping Trade.

Their Vessels Carry Most of Coal for the Dominion

Montreal, Que., Jan. 8.—There is some interesting political history behind the order-in-council of Jan. 17, 1908—an order which as originally framed was intended to exclude non-British vessels from the coasting trade of the Dominion. The original order was a protective measure. It was intended to safeguard Maritime provinces shipping from the competition of Norwegian and Swedish vessels. But as was the case when the Laurier government in 1906 undertook to safeguard Canadian manufacturers from the competition of American manufacturers who advertise largely, and amended the postal agreement with the United States so as to exclude this American advertising, there has had to be some turning back in connection with the order-in-council of January, 1908. The first step was taken at the instance of merchants, ship-chandlers and ship repair men at Halifax and Sydney, N. S., who complained with much bitterness to the government that the coal business between the Sydneys and Montreal had gone into the hands of the owners of Norwegian steamers. In round figures this Sydney and St. Lawrence coal freighting business amounts to a million and a half tons a year. It is a seasonal business, and must all be done in the months between April and November, when the St. Lawrence is open for navigation. 1907 the coal which went from Sydney to Montreal, 1,085,000 tons, was carried by Norwegian steamers, and 404,000 tons in vessels either on the British or the Canadian register. These figures do not include the whole of the St. Lawrence coal trade. The city of Quebec and Three Rivers draw their coal supplies also from the mines near tidewater in Cape Breton; but the figures for these two ports would not add more than 150,000 tons of the total quantity of coal which goes from the Sydneys to the St. Lawrence ports. At least two-thirds of the freighting has for some years been done by Norwegian steamers built in England for this particular trade.

Complaints of Canadians.

The complaint in Sydney and Halifax against these vessels is that they are owned abroad, managed abroad, officered and manned by Norwegians, and that their captains buy little or none of their supplies in Nova Scotia. It was complained, also, that at the beginning of the St. Lawrence season these Norwegian vessels come out well supplied with stores, and even with spare parts of machinery, and that in consequence of all these conditions nothing is spent by their owners in Nova Scotia, and that practically all the earnings of these coal freighters are carried to the Dominion.

Nova Scotia can usually obtain almost anything is cares to agitate for from the Laurier government; and the result of the commotion at Halifax and Sydney concerning the Norwegian steamers and the St. Lawrence coal trade was that in the parliamentary session of 1907 Mr. Fielding, the minister of finance, announced in the house of commons that there would be an order-in-council reserving all the coasting trade for British vessels. This pledge given to the Nova Scotia members in the house of commons was put into effect by the government on Jan. 17, 1908, when the order which has just been amended was adopted in council. Under its provisions the Norwegian steamers would have disappeared from the Sydney and St. Lawrence trade when navigation closed several weeks ago. But the order of Jan. 17 had scarcely been promulgated when it was brought to the attention of the government that if the Norwegian steamers were excluded, there were no vessels on the Canadian register adapted to the St. Lawrence coal trade that could take their place. The government could have learned this fact had it cared to make an inquiry at the marine and fisheries department in Ottawa, which is charged with the administration of the marine code of the Dominion. But throughout 1907 the agitation against the Norwegian vessels was going on at Halifax and Sydney, and the government was anxious to appear to do something in response to this local movement for the protection of Canadian shipping.

Coal Company Kicked.

Most of the St. Lawrence coal freighting is done for the Dominion Coal company, the second largest industrial undertaking in the maritime provinces, and the largest employer of labor in Nova Scotia. This company soon acquainted the government at Ottawa with the serious dislocation of its business that would follow if the order-in-council of January, 1908, went into operation as framed, and as intended, on Jan. 1, 1909. In the last session of parliament the government accordingly admitted that it had made a mistake in framing the first order-in-council; that there were no Canadian vessels suitable and available for coal freighting up the St. Lawrence as that business is nowadays handled, and that the original order would have to be amended.

The amendment has now been made and the new order has been so framed as to limit the exclusion of non-British vessels from the coasting trade of the dominion to vessels which are of less than 1,500 tons. All the Norwegian steamers are of larger tonnage than this; for they are mostly designed for expeditious handling of cargo, especially at the Montreal end of the trip, where the equipment for unloading coal is as good as at the largest centers of the coal transport business of the United States. At the dominion general election there was in Nova Scotia a recrudescence of the agitation against the Norwegian vessels on much the same grounds as the agitation which led to the order-in-council of January, 1908. But in spite of this agitation, which is of little importance to the government, now that it is safely back in office for another four or five years, charters with the coal carriers have been renewed; and when navigation on the St. Lawrence reopens in April, 1909, the Norwegian vessels will, as in previous years, be among the first to reach Montreal.

Norwegian vessels carry most of the ore from Wabana, Belle Isle, Newfoundland, to the furnaces of the Dominion Iron & Steel company at Sydney. The same objection to them in the ore-carrying business is made in Nova Scotia as is made to them in the St. Lawrence coal trade. But the ore-carrying business is intercolonial. It does not come within the scope of the dominion government to interfere with it, and hence no order-in-council can be promulgated against Norwegian vessels in the ore-carrying trade.

YOUNG NATION IS GROWING

New York, Jan. 8.—That Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and New Jersey will during the new year join the young nation of George Junior Republics with full-fledged commonwealths of boys and girls, was announced at the headquarters of this new national organization at 22 William street in this city today. With hundreds of wayward youngsters struggling to reclaim themselves as "citizens" of their juvenile republics in California, Connecticut, Maryland and New York, the adult supporters of this spreading movement are providing for the annexation of these three important additions to their four original states. Before this year is over, they predict, many other states in the greater union will be applying for this successful method of turning their strayed young folks into real citizens instead of confirmed criminals.

In spite of the financial trials of the past year, the leaders of the George Junior Republic movement throughout the country have today decided to discount the returning prosperity in the greater nation and go ahead with pressing plans to extend their smaller republics to other states. All New York state is thoroughly capable of sustaining its original junior republic at Freeville, they believe, and Connecticut is now rousing itself to back its similar colony at Litchfield. The Annapolis commonwealth of boys and girls is today being supported by the people of Maryland and Washington, while all California is enthusiastic over the young republic which has been established during the past year near Los Angeles. With each of these states prepared to care for its own youthful representatives in the new nation of boys and girls, it has been thought time to admit the little commonwealths of Massachusetts, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, whose older citizens have for some time been eager to project George Junior Republic plans for their states.

The selection of a suitable site for the Pennsylvania junior republic near Pittsburg, is today already being undertaken by L. S. Levin, assistant city solicitor of that city, who has assured the officers of the national movement that his state will soon be the most flourishing little commonwealth in the new nation. Strong supporters of the George idea throughout Massachusetts are at present taking steps to incorporate an organization to maintain an extensive republic for the boys and girls of that state. Concerted action among the friends of the national plan in New Jersey is also promising to set up one of the strongest of these juvenile colonies in that state before the new year is over.

"These ambitious forward steps in our new National Association of Junior Republics will prove fully warranted by the hearty support which I believe the people of other states will give to their new republics," said Thomas M. Osborne, a leader in the movement, in this city today. "I believe that the success of the junior republic idea, as we have worked it out during the last fourteen years, is no longer dependent upon Mr. George, its originator, or upon any one man. Its established principles will now live on into the far future and work the sure righting of thousands of youngsters gone wrong in every section of the greater republic."

FOR OLD PEOPLE.

After reaching the age of forty the human system gradually declines in virility and strength and becomes less able each year to combat sickness. It is then that the accumulated poisons in the blood make themselves manifest by rheumatic pains in the joints, muscles and back.

These warning twinges should be promptly relieved and serious illness avoided by using the following prescription which shows wonderful results even after the first few doses and it will eventually restore full physical vigor.

"One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint of high grade whsikey. This to be mixed and used in tablespoonful doses before each meal and at bedtime. The bottle to be well shaken each time." Any druggist can supply the ingredients.

AGED "LIFER" GIVEN PAROLE

Indiana Prisoner Who Was Convicted of Slaying Physician.

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 8.—William Flowers has returned to Terre Haute from Michigan City prison, to which has was sent from this city in September, 1877, on a life sentence for murder. He has been paroled. He is past 70 years of age, and for many years has been a trusty at the prison, and took care of the flower beds. As on the day he was sentenced, he declares he is innocent of the crime, and there are a number of persons in Terre Haute familiar with the inside story who believe he is innocent. Some of these have been trying for twenty years to procure a pardon. Several governors have thought favorably of the application, but, for one reason or another, declined to act. Governor Hanly recently has been put in possession of much that was in Flower's behalf. The old man came to the home of Mrs. William Shively, a cousin.

In August, 1877, Dr. John Armstrong, a prominent citizen and physician, was shot and killed on a road north of town at night. He was said to have been on his way to or from a professional visit. The body was found the next morning. There was great excitement, and the amount of reward was increased from day to day. A man named Alvin McKinney, who was declared to be lacking in mentality, told the detectives that he held the horse while Flowers killed the doctor.

The trial came soon, with excitement running high, and both men were sent up for life, circumstantial evidence being used against Flowers. He says:

"This man, McKinney, who was deranged at the time went to some parties, and made the statement he could tell who killed the doctor. Two detectives got hold of him, and, as he told afterward, said that if he would plead guilty and swear that I was with him, they would get him out of the trouble and give him half the reward. McKinney repeatedly said in prison that I was not guilty."

McKinney escaped from prison in 1884 and made his way South. In Tennessee he murdered an entire family and outraged the wife and mother, for which he was burned at the stake.

Before he came to Terre Haute, Flowers lived at Mount Vernon, Mo., and before that he served in the Eighth Kentucky regiment two years, and later was eighteen months in the cavalry in the Civil war. At the prison he was popular with inmates and officials. He gained so many gold-braid stripes for good conduct that it was said if he was not paroled or pardoned soon he would have to get a new coat on which to sew the stripes. Summer and winter he was always to be found with his flowers and plants. Not a convict or officer was at the prison when he left who was there when he entered.

The Terre Haute records show that Flowers was proven guilty and that he had served one term in prison before he was given the life sentence. He was a farm hand for a man named King, and the latter seemed to be dying of slow poison. Dr. Armstrong suspected that such was the fact, and it was supposed that he had said as much to Mrs. King on leaving the house that night, and that the slayer of the doctor heard him. The doctor had not driven 100 yards when he was shot. There was no attempt at robbery. Within a month Flowers was on his way to prison, and very soon after Farmer King, who quickly recovered following the tragedy, sold out, and with his wife, went West.

COMMITTEE TO DRAFT LAW

President of Bar Association Chooses Four Other Members.

John G. Williams, president of the Bar association of the Eleventh judicial district, has appointed his committee to draft the bill for a law creating another judicial position in the district. The committee was authorized at a meeting of the Bar association Wednesday morning at the courthouse, following the call of the calendar for the January term of court.

Under the terms of the resolution, which was unanimously adopted by the association, Mr. Williams is chairman of the committee, and he has appointed as the other members J. L. Washburn, Clarence B. Miller, H. H. Phelps and Henry Oldenburg of Carlton.

The committee will set to work immediately and prepare its draft of the bill, which will be presented as soon as possible to the legislature at the present session. The members of the committee and the Northeastern Minnesota delegation in the legislature will work for its passage with high hopes of success. If the bill becomes a law, the judge will be appointed immediately, as there is now sufficient work for four judges instead of the three serving.

THIS WHITE SALE IS A MOST HELPFUL SALE.

$3.98 FOR ANY $5.00 SPREAD. Satin or Old Marseilles — fringed or hemmed — in any size you want. Many patterns to pick from.

It surpasses in importance and value-giving any ever before held in this store or in this city! We realize full well how conditions have made it a problem for the housekeeper to keep her household expenses down to the proper level—and months of careful preparation enable us to offer White Sale values, which less careful houses can not and will not match!

We give you every advantage of our fortunate purchases during the past year—when conditions frequently forced mills, jobbers, and importers to make startling concessions to realize on even their choicest stocks! The crowds in attendance—even during the extremely cold weather, is proof that the women hereabouts know values—and believe in coming for them when they are offered!

BACKACHE IS DANGEROUS

Efforts to Reduce the Death Rate Successful in Many Cities.

Lame Back and Urinary Troubles the Danger Signals to be Heeded.

More people succumb each year to some form of kidney trouble than any other cause. The slightest form of kidney derangement often develops into Bright's kidney disease, diabetes or dropsy. When either of these diseases are suspected the sufferer should at once seek the best medical attention possible. Consult only a good, first-class physician.

There are many of the lesser symptom of kidney trouble which can be treated at home is stated by a well-known authority. For some of these, such as backache, pain in the region of the kidneys, weak bladder, frequency, (especially at night) painful scalding and other urinary troubles, try the following simple home remedy: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple ingredients are harmless and can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy and anyone can mix them by shaking well in a bottle. The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and again at bedtime.

There is no more effective remedy known to relieve all forms of rheumatism, because it acts directly upon the kidneys and blood. It cleans the clogged up pores in the kidneys so they can filter and strain from the blood the poisonous uric acid and waste matter which if not eliminated remain in the blood, decompose and settle about the joints and muscular tissues causing the untold suffering and deformity of rheumatism.

Backache is nature's signal notifying the sufferer that the kidneys are not acting properly. "Take care of your kidneys," is now the physician's advice to his patients.

LYCEUM—Daniel Sully in "The Matchmaker."

DANIEL SULLY.

Old Time Favorite Scores Success in New Play.

Daniel Sully, that fine interpreter of wholesome roles, scored another success before a Duluth audience last night in "The Matchmaker." Supported by a good cast, he gave a refreshing performance, throwing life and emotion into a theme that is old, but ever new.

"The Matchmaker" as a vehicle for Mr. Sully comes fully up to the standard set by other plays, in which he has appeared here. The story, simple in itself, is well told with full regard for its dramatic value. The character of Father Daly is one well suited for Mr. Sully's artistic abilities and, despite a severe cold, he made an impression, which will not soon pass.

Upon Mr. Sully's work, the play depends for its success, but the supporting cast is capable and the roles well distributed. Julius Wright, as Jim Carter, the wealthy ranchman, manages to play the Western character without much of the "staginess" that many actors put into such characters. J. J. Kennedy as Col. Fitzhugh Potter, U. S. A.; Billy Kirby, as Willie Beekman, a New Yorker; Fred J. Harvey, as Pierre Wilf, a half-breed, and Joseph Lasher as Arnold Leslie, a mining expert, handle their parts capably. Eleanor Franklin is well cast as Margaret Manning, "a wild rose" and Mary Cagwin as Mrs. Miranda Wellington, a rich widow; Helen L. Warde as Silent Ann, Jim Carter's housekeeper, and Gertrude Earl as Dollie, Father Daly's ward, make up the remainder of the cast.

MAKES LONG JUMP.

"The Chorus Lady" Comes Direct From Butte to Duluth.

Frank V. Bruner, business manager for Rose Stahl, in "The Chorus Lady," which comes to the Lyceum Friday and Saturday, Jan. 15 and 16, is in the city, in the interests of his attraction, and he states that Miss Stahl and her company will make one of the longest jumps in the history of theatricals, in order to play Duluth, as they come here direct from Butte, Mont., losing two nights while on the road.

"The Chorus Lady" has just completed a remarkably successful tour of the Pacific coast, and is now jumping back at a rapid rate, to close its Eastern dates in order that the company may sail for London, March 20, for a year's engagement. The show closed in Seattle last evening, and a through Northern Pacific train was held an hour, in order to take the company through to Spokane, where the piece opens this evening. From Spokane, the next stop is Butte, and then the route leads direct to Duluth, so that Miss Stahl is jumping over 1,000 miles in order to present the famous play of stage life in Duluth.

This city is the last city smaller than a week stand that will be played in America by "The Chorus Lady," as the cities played from here until the close of the tour are Minneapolis St. Paul, Milwaukee, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston and Brooklyn. Closing in Brooklyn, March 10, the company will embark the next day on the Lusitania for London, where the Aldwych theater has been leased for a year, and the play is expected to run length of time in the British metropolis. Miss Stahl will have a new play on her return to this country, so that this will be the final opportunity to see her in "The Chorus Lady."

Paris is now thinking of making foreign visitors pay her municipal expenses by forcing all inkeepers to add 2 per cent to their bills and then collecting that amount. It would be a poor Parisian hotel bill which could be further padded.

About $8,000,000 will be spent for the education of children in the state of Washington this year. This is $52 per capita, based on the average daily attendance of more than 152,000, and is the highest appropriation of any state in the Union.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

FOUR BOYS CREMATED

Others Escape, Going Mile Through Bitter Cold, Scantily Clad.

Rice Lake, Wis., Jan. 8.—Four boys, whose ages ranged from 8 to 16 years, sons of Chris Lee, near here, were burned to death in a five early yesterday, which destroyed the home of Mr. Lee. Mr. and Mrs. Lee, with three other small children, escaped in their night clothes.

With the thermometer registering 22 degs. below zero, Mr. Lee and others of his family, who escaped, started for the nearest neighbor's house, a mile distant, clad only in their night clothes and with bare feet.

Mrs. Lee and two of the children collapsed when within a quarter of a mile of the neighbor's house, and the husband was compelled to carry the three. The third child walked and reached the house, but both feet were frozen.

DYNAMITER IS WORRYING MUCH

Hamilton in Penitentiary, Concerned About Family at Virginia, Minn.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—George E. Hamilton, the Virginia, Minn., man who is serving time in the local penitentiary for sending an infernal machine to Sheriff Beek of Houghton county, while a model prisoner, is said to be considerably worried over the fate of his family, who are in the Minnesota town.

"Hamilton gives us no trouble now," declared James Russell, the warden of the penitentiary, "although he gave us a little at first. He objected greatly to having his photograph taken, evidently not caring to have his face filed away in the rogue's gallery for future reference, but it only took a day or two to overcome those objections.

"He seems to be worrying a great deal over his wife and children," continued the warden. "He writes many letters, some to his wife and more to strangers. Many of them I cannot let go out, and he doesn't seem to like this.

"The man appears to have a perfect mania for letter writing, and he spends all of his time in scribbling off notes to some one or other. A majority of them never are mailed. He's working now in the overall factory and is a good workman. I don't anticipate any trouble from him. An attempt to escape here would gain him little. He has more coming to him from good behavior."

SPEAR HANDLE IN EYE.

Stony Brook Youth Meets With Painful Accident.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 8.—Oscar Johnson, the 15-year-old son of Martin Johnson of Stony Brook, has been taken to the hospital at Elbow Lake to receive treatment for a serious injury sustained in a peculiar manner. The boy started from his home a few days ago on his skis to spear muskrats, using his spear for a guide stick. While pulling the spear out of the snow and ice, as he slid along, he jerked it so hard that the handle struck him in the eyeball and broke through the brain covering. That he did not die is considered a miracle, and the doctor hopes to save his life, but he will probably not save the eye.

BROOKSTON'S NEW CHURCH.

A Methodist Episcopal Church Has Been Organized.

Brookston, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Articles of incorporation of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Brookston have been filed. Rev. LaVoy of Floodwood, who has been holding weekly services here, has been working on the organization for some time, and has secured the promise of $250, to be used in the erection of a place of worship. It is understood that the Townsite company will donate two lots, and work on the building will be commenced in the early spring. A meeting of the board of trustees of the church will be called next week, at which time the details of construction and other business of importance will be transacted.

JONES STILL MISSING.

Cashier's Absence Followed by Another Bank Closing.

Rugby, N. D., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The whereabouts of Andy Jones, cashier of the First National bank of this place, which closed its doors a few days ago, and is in the hands of Receiver Swords continues a mystery. Since his disappearance and the closing of the local bank, the Barton State bank located twelve miles from here closed its doors after an exciting run, following the receipt of the news of the closing of the local bank. Jones was president of the Barton institution.

Another big bunch of notes given by Jones as an individual and indorsed by himself as cashier have been received at the First National bank. Receiver Swords has ruled that unless the notes are of record in the bank, none of them will be honored. Unless the bank is involved heavily in some other direction, it is believed all depositors will be paid in full. The exact condition of affairs will not be known for several days.

No news has been received from Jones. He had a cattle company and other enterprises, besides the banks. Dr. H. M. Wheeler of Grand Forks had invested in the cattle company.

SALOON IS BURNED.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Paquin saloon, in the town of Lambert, was burned to the ground Monday morning. The cause of the fire was the explosion of an airtight stove that had been filled too full with dry wood. No insurance was carried on the buildign or stock.

DULUTH CONCERN BUYS BIG TRACT

Alger-Smith Company Acquires Timber Land Near Vermilion Lake.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alger, Smith & Co., Duluth, have purchased a large tract of timber near Vermilion lake. According to the appraisement, the amount of timber involved is 1,240,000 feet of pine.

The largest part of the timber, 1,200,000 feet, lies in section 36, township 64, range 18. The price on this portion is $5.50 a thousand. The total price of the timber paid by the Duluth firm is $6,745, 25 per cent of which was paid in cash.

WHY HE DESERTED.

Love for His Sister Lead Murphy to Leave Army.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edwin F. Murphy, who deserted from the army at Fort Snelling last March, was returned to the city yesterday from Grand Forks, N. D., and bound over to the military authorities. Murphy claimed that it was because of love for his young sister that he deserted.

His near relatives live in Vermont and some time ago his father died of tuberculosis. His sister also suffered from the disease, and mother and sister wrote many letters asking the soldiers to return home before the sister should die.

Murphy says he went to North Dakota to earn passage money home, but failing to accumulate enough, he gave himself up to the chief of police at Grand Forks.

THIRTEEN IN ONE ROOM.

Ward County, N. D., Family Lived Like Beasts.

Minot, N. D., Jan. 8.—(Special to the Herald.)—That Mr. and Mrs. Crittenden and eleven children lived, ate and slept in one room on their farm near Velva, was the statement of Nellie Crittenden, in the trial of her father here, who is charged with a grave crime.

Nellie said that the entire family lived in a little shack built like a cook car, and that there were three beds in the shack. The thirteen people slept in these three beds.

Th girl, who is 17 years old, told a pitiful tale in court. State's Attorney Nash is in charge of the case of the state and Joseph Denoyer is the attorney for the defendant.

CROOKSTON RED MEN REORGANIZE LODGE.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tha-ton, Hiawatha tribe, No. 34, Improved Order of Red Men, has reorganized here and elected the following officers, expecting next Wednesday to install about forty new members: Prophet, Tim Hastings; sachem, W. F. Peterson; senior sagamore, Charles Hoeft; junior sagamore, Mike Palen; chief of records, G. S. Chesterman; keeper of wampum, Adolph F. Rauch.

ELECT ADJUTANT GENERAL.

New Plan Proposed by North Dakota National Guard.

Mandan, N. D., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the National Guard here this week, a new step was taken to have the adjutant general elected instead of appointted by the governor. No one was suggested, but the matter will be brought before the legislature. The officers of the guard elected were: President, Capt. Fraser, Fargo; first vice president, J. N. Hanley, Mandan; second vice president, H. T. Murphy, Bismarck; secretary, H. Z Mitchell, Minot; treasurer, Corporal Baird, Dickinson.

EAU CLAIRE MAN MAY HAVE PERISHED IN QUAKE.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Elgvart J. Awsumb of this city are worrying over the safety of their son, George Awsumb, who is on a tour of Europe, and who spent Christmas day at Rome. They fear that he left Rome the day after Christmas and may have gone to the earthquake region and got there in time for the terrible catastrophe. They have received no word from him since Christmas and are anxiously awaiting word from him to dispel their fears.

ROUNDHOUSE FOREMAN IS INSTANTLY KILLED.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. S. Devinney, round house foreman at Wilck, was killed instantly a few days ago, seven miles from that town, while coupling his endine and tender, which was broken apart. He got down between the two parts of the engine and his fireman backed the engine to the tender, the brakeman warning the engineer of danger, but it appeared that Devinney's head stuck up too far and was caught between the drawheads and crushed fatally.

LAKE LINDEN EAGLES INSTALL NEW OFFICERS.

Lake Linden, Mich., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local aerie of Eagles has installed its new officers as follows: Past president, H. O. Thiel; president, H. E. Penninger; vice president, Albert Gasser; secretary, Ernest Kettenbell; treasurer, Chris Mayer; chaplain, Archie Pedlant; inside sentinel, Charles Bott; outside sentinel, Alex Picard; trustees, Will Kline, Fred Corbell and Harry Toupin.

FOUR NORTHERN PACIFIC COACHES LEAVE THE TRACK

Stockwood, N. D., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Four coaches of the Northern Pacific train No. 6 left the track Wednesday morning, near here. No one was seriously injured, only a few being slightly bruised. The train was several hours late and was going a good clip to make up time. Traffic was delayed a few hours.

Old Soo Citizen Dead.

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Andrew J. Cody, one of the old and well-known residents of the Soo, passed away Monday evening, about 9 o'clock, at his home on Ryan's hill, at the age of 74 years. Mr. Cody had been ill for some time, and the end came as no surprise to his relatives and friends.

The funeral procession left the home Thursday morning, at 8:30 o'clock, for St. Mary's church, where the service was held at 9 o'clock. Interment was at Riverside cemetery.

Receives Carnegie Medal.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Cross of this city has received a Carnegie medal for saving the life of Mat. Colton, who came near drowning while swimming at Maple lake, a little over a year ago. Cross is the first Grand Forks boy to receive the honor.

Mail Carrier Drops Dead.

Pipestone, Minn., Jan. 8.—W. H. Landon, recently appointed carrier on the star mail route to Flandreau and Egan, S. D., from this city, dropped dead of heart failure on the sidewalk Thursday while on his way to get his team. He had a family in Egan. Landon was 67 years old and a veteran of the Civil war.

Crookston Club Elects.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Crookston club has elected officers as follows: Claude Carpenter, president; Ole Tiegen, treasurer; Don Macdonald, secretary. Lloyd Eriesson was selected as vice president. The board of directors for the ensuing year will be as follows: Claude Carpenter, Edson Jerome, Ross Chesterman, Lloyd Erlesson, Harry Carpenter, Ole Tiegen, Don Macdonald.

New Minneapolis Hotel.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A new hotel, to front 162 feet on Fifth street south, between Third and Fourth avenues, adjoining the new Wilcox building and across from the Fifth street entrance to the city hall, is the latest prospect for the coming building season in Minneapolis.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

Mankato—Rev. Philip K. Edwards of Rushford has accepted the rectorship of St. John's Episcopal church and will assume his duties on the first Sunday in February. Rev. Edwards conducted services at the church on Sunday and the congregation was well pleased with him.

Fergus Falls—C. J. Wright has filed a deed in the register's office in this city whereby he transfers the bulk of his real estate holdings, including lands in nearly all parts of Otter Tail county to the Charles Wright company, which he incorporated some time ago. There are eighty-six separate descriptions in the deed.

Owatonna—Owatonna has been selected as the place for holding the annual convention of the Southern Minnesota Horticultural society, on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 22 and 23. The program of the event is not yet out, but promises to be of great interest not only to horticulturists generally, but to local people.

Shevlin—G. N. Hildreth, a farmer living south of Shevlin, who died Saturday of Bright's disease, was buried Tuesday afternoon in the cemetery here.

Perham—Miss Lizzie Buendiger and Howard Fahrman were married at Fargo Monday. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buendiger of this pace, while the groom is a prominent business man of Chaffee, N. D., where the couple will reside.

St. Cloud—The deal was closed Wednesday, whereby L. E. Wakeman and Peter Vandersluis disposed of their interests in the Powell Hardware company to Ebert Johnson, who has been a member of the company for three years. This company was incorporated some fifteen years ago.

Moorhead—Fridlund Brothers, contractors, who have been building the new model school building at the normal grounds, have finished all of the carpenter work and pulled out of the building Wednesday at noon.

Stillwater—Sarah Kranz, formerly of this city, died at his home in St. Paul Monday afternoon. Mr. Krantz was a well known resident of this city some years past, being employed as foreman in the machine shops of the Threshing company for a number of years. He is survived by four daughters and one son, an aged father, five sisters and two brothers.

St. Cloud—Information of insanity was filed Wednesday in probate court against Mrs. Catherine Theis, by her husband, Christian Theis. This is the third time the woman was cited during the past twelve months.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Hudson—An organization of the lawyers of St. Croix county into a Bar association was perfected here Tuesday night by electing H. C. Baker of this city president, and George H. Oakes of New Richmond, secretary, after which a banquet was held.

Eau Claire—The Eau Claire Rod and Gun club at its meeting Tuesday evening dedicated the new club house on Water street. About forty were present and all assembled at Alex Dean's place, from whence the grand march was taken up to the new home, which is just across the street.

Spooner—Realty dealers of Northwestern Wisconsin met Tuesday and formed the Northwestern Wisconsin Farm Land association for the purpose of advertising this section and encouraging immigration.

Stevens Point—Engineer Archie McNabb sustained a fractured knee cap when he jumped from his engine after doing his best to avoid a rear end wreck with a freight train. The wreck was averted.

Tomah—The annual meeting of the Association of Wisconsin Fairs will be held at Madison, Wis., Jan. 21, in the office of the Wisconsin board of agriculture, capitol building. All officers of any fair association receiving state aid are eligible to represent their society. A full attendance is earnestly desired.

Eau Clair—O. H. Ingram, a millionaire lumberman and a member of the capitol building commission, has started an Eau Claire fund for the Italian earthquake sufferers by contributing $500.

Menasha—Seventy-five men and boys employed on the lathes and in the hooping department of the Menasha Wooden Ware plant have walked out because of a reduction of 10 per cent in wages. If the entire plant closed 800 men will be thrown out of work.

Madison—Governor Davidson has appointed William MacLaren of Milwaukee as a member of the state board of agriculture to succeed R. B. Watrous of Milwaukee, who resigned because he is to move out of the state. Mr. MacLaren was indorsed for the appointment by a large number of business men of Milwaukee.

Ashland—R. E. Sanders, the boiler works man, has a force of six men busy these days pulling down the old Barker and Stewart burner. The different parts of it are being piled on flat cars and will be shipped to a point in Idaho, where a new sawmill is being erected.

Calumet—Township Treasurer White reports that to date total taxes of $39,000 have been collected. The cold weather is interfering with the collections somewhat, people refraining from venturing out of doors more than they have to.

Houghton—A jury in Justice Brand's court was unable to agree in the civil suit of Oscar Ellison vs. Edward Foley and the jury was dismissed. The case will be tried again next Monday. The suit involves the death of a horse, which Ellison alleges Mr. Foley allowed to freeze to death.

Hancock—Jerry O'Brien, aged 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter O'Brien, of the Hancock side hill, died at St. James' hospital in Butte, Mont., on New Year's night, from the effects of an accident in which he struck his head against a rock, fracturing his skull.

Laurium—The Laurium fire department will hold its regular meeting next Tuesday evening, and it is expected that at that time a committee will be named to prepare plans for the Upper Peninsula Firemen's tournament to be held in Laurium, in August.

Calumet—The Calumet & Hecla band will give a promenade at the Armory, Friday evening, the proceeds of which will go to the relief fund for the Italian earthquake survivors. A representative of the Italian committee will have charge of the finances of the promenade.

Lake Linden—Word has been received in Lake Linden that Homer Beauchaine, brother of Rev. Father Beauchaine, of this village, is dead in Nebraska. The decedent was 31 years of age. He is survived by a wife and four children.

Iron Mountain—The directors of the Iron Mountain Electric Light & Power company have not only decided to purchase a water power and install a modern hydro-electrical plant, but they have decided to make a reduction of 33 1-3 per cent on their meter rates.

Houghton—One of the horses attached to Charles Mills' delivery wagon ran away Wednesday morning, throwing the driver out into some soft snow, where he alighted unhurt and continued his flight until it had kicked itself out of the harness.

Lake Linden—The management of the Lake Linden orchestra has resumed the weekly promenades which for several years were in vogue in the Torch lake town and on Thursday evening gave the first for the new year.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Fargo, N. D.—Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hunter have returned from a holiday trip to the South. They spent some time at Chicago, New Orleans and St. Augustine, Palm Beach, Daytonia, Jacksonville and other points in Florida. Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Howland, who accompanied them, will return some time next week.

Grand Forks, N. D.—W. S. Husband, formerly an attorney in the city, now located at Harlowton, Mont., has been admitted to practice in Montana.

Bismarck, N. D.—The state board of railroad commissioners met Tuesday in their first official session and organized by the election of W. H. Stutsman of Mandan as chairman, and of Tom Hall of Fargo for secretary.

Fargo, N. D.—G. Roy Froling, teller of the Merchants National bank, was taken sick Tuesday noon, and it was found that he was suffering from appendicitis. He was taken to St. John's hospital, where he underwent an operation this morning.

Grand Forks, N. D.—As a result of the meeting of the light committee of the city with W. J. Murphy, president of the Grand Forks Gas & Electric company, there is likely to be a reduction in gas. Mr. Murphy intimated that he would submit a proposition to the city council at a later date.

Minot, N. D.—In all probability the case of the state vs. Dr. Thor Moeller, who was bound over to the district court by Judge Murray on a charge of manslaughter in the second degree, will not be tried until the next term.

Fargo, N. D.—T. V. Carey was elected president, M. M. Lawrence vice president and H. J. James secretary of Branch 1,043 of the National Association of Postoffice Clerks, at the annual meeting of the branch held here.

JANUARY CLEARING SALE

D. E. H., 1-8-'09.

We Are Selling Caps
these days, but a big shipment of Knapp Felt Hats, ordered in on a mild day, arrived while it was 30 below.

These Totally Different Sales
are of big stocks of clothes, mainly from the well-known Stein-Bloch Sincerity and Sampeck shops. Most sales with apparently lower cut prices include a few clothes of reputable make, but contain mainly sweat shop stuff which can be sold with a big profit even at low looking prices.

The first Columbia January Sales are now launched, and this week's severe cold spell makes them particularly timely. All who kept in touch with our high-class metropolitan stocks and with our open and above-board sales methods and all those who examined and priced Columbia garments, pronounce this to be Duluth's greatest sale of—

Overcoats and Underwear

Next week the prices of our Men's and Boys' Suits will undergo a radical operation on their profit-appendix.

Underwear Specials.

The first clearance of Underwear began today. Twenty of our best selling numbers went into this sale.

Three $1 kinds go at 69c, and six $1.50 and $2 brands at 97c.

$3 Stoneman and Dunham goes at $1.97, and $4.50 and $5 Lewis and New Brunswick is down to $2.97.

$4 and $5 Union Suits are on sale at $2.48 and $2.98.

Young Men's Overcoats.

$16.50 now takes the choice of everything up to $30.

$10.85 has the choice of coats up to $16.50.

$7.75 for all that formerly ranged up to $13.50.

$5 takes all former $7.50 and $8.50 overcoats for young men and also some odd ones from higher priced lots.

All our GIRLS' COATS at HALF PRICE.

Fine Fur-lined Coats—Tomorrow Only.

$300 seal dyed plucked otter coats for $235; a $300 marten paw coat for $225; $250 otter coats at $210; several $225 ones for $190; all these have fine otter collars.

A $150 Persian Lamb Coat will also go for $120, and several $110 and $100 fur-lined coats are down to $80, $85 and $90.

Fur-lined coats that were less than $100, as well as all our Outside Fur Coats can be had at reductions of $9 to $21.

Men's Overcoat Sale Is Now On.

He who is most familiar with the Columbia Overcoat stock will best appreciate this week's new prices.

If ever there were real bargain prices, here they are:

$7 for all $10 coats. $8.50 for $12.50 ones. $10.50 for $15 and $16.50 garments. $12.50 for our $18 overcoats. $15.50 for the $20 and $22.50 kinds, and $18.50 for a big selection of $25 and $27 coats.

Our $30 coats dropped to $22, $35 ones to $25, $40 coats are $30, $45 ones $33, and $50 coats can be bought for $37.50.

Extra Special at $9.90.

A great selection of small lots that were up to $20 at regular prices. All sizes in the lot as a whole.

Children's Overcoats

For Children, ages 2½ to 8, there is but one metropolitan store in Duluth. Our regular prices are not made with a view to many Half Price Sales. Remember this in judging our January figures.

What was up to $5 goes at $1.95, up to $6 at $3.55. The next price is $4.65, and takes coats up to $7.50. Then comes $5.75 for all coats up to $10. Then $7.85 for what sold up to $13.50, and $8.95 for the choice of the best up to $16.50.

This includes all Reefers which run to age 16.

School Overcoats

The popular styles for boys 8 to 16 years of age.

$3.65 for $6 and $7 coats. $5.75 for those up to $9.00. $7.85 for garments up to $13.50, and $8.95 for those up to $16.50.

IS GRANTED A DIVORCE

Dashing Bartender Broke Up Amabile Caruso's Happy Home.

With guns poked menacingly under his nose, and cordwood sticks sent hurtling through space in the direction of his head, Amabile Caruso led a life of terror in his little home at Hibbing after the advent of a bartender named Tony Amabile. Caruso told his story to Judge Ensign in district court yesterday afternoon, and the court decided he was entitled to a divorce from the faithless Rosania Caruso.

Caruso owned a saloon at Hibbing, he said, and lived in peace and happiness with his wife until the advent of Amabile. Mrs. Caruso took a liking to the dashing bartender, and then Caruso's troubles began. He was continually harrassed by his wife and finally, to relieve the situation, he fired the bartender.

His action brought a storm that almost engulfed him. With a gun to enforce her argument, Mrs. Caruso ordered that Tony be reinstated in the post of sliding suds across the mahogany, and, paying attention to her, Caruso complied, and then found that he was entirely on the outside in his wife's affections. With threats, he said he was forced to turn his saloon over to his wife, and under a shower of cordwood sticks and the persuation of two guns, he was driven from home entirely.

When Eva Basilius Jarvinen took the stand to tell her story of cruelty suffered at the hands of her husband, Hugo Basilius Jarvinen, she sent a quiet smile through the courtroom, and it flitted back and forth during her testimony. The auditors couldn't understand a word, but if ever woman talked faster in any tongue than did Eva Basilius Jarvinen, some of the spectators would like to hear it. With determined expression, emphiatic nods of her head, and rising inflections at dramatic points, Mrs. Jarvinen let loose a string of Finnish that would have taxed any stenographer. The gist of her story was translated for the benefit of the court by an interpreter, who often had trouble checking the stream that there might not be an overflow.

Mrs. Jarvinenen and her husband were married in Finland. She said he often choked her there, and in this country took all her money and spent it for drink, and was almost continuously drunk since their marriage, she keeping boarders to support the family. She said she had 6,500 marks in the old country, and Hugo copped it all. In this country, she said, he was wont to take money from her by force in order to keep himself saturated with the bad booze of the Bowery and Lake avenue. He also beat their son, she said, until the boy was covered with blood. She was granted a decree.

Victor William Hesbeck was also given a decree from his wife, Katrine Hesbeck. Desertion was the charge.

HAINS' DEFENSE RECEIVES BLOW

Prosecution Scores Point on Cross-Examination of Doctor.

Flushing, N. Y., Jan 8.—A blow from an unexpected quarter was received by the defense in the trial of Thornton J. Hains, today, when Dr. L. Samuel Manson, an alienist, under cross-examination by Prosecutor Darrin declared that Capt. Hains suffered from maniac depressive insanity last August, an ailment that would have prevented him from recognizing the face or name of any enemy. The alienist said that in a patient suffering from such a malady, all power was practically lost. Prosecutor Darrin, taking advantage of the admission of the defense's alienist, asked him if, in his opinion, Capt. Hains' mental condition would be changed if he knew that the army officer had conversed intelligently before and after the shooting of William E. Annis, and that he recognized his victim as his boat neared the float. The medical expert said his opinion remained unchanged.

Dr. L. Pierce Clark, another alienist for the defense, testified that Capt. Hains was insane on Aug. 15, when the shooting took place and that he was insane early in November, when the witness made his last examination.

STAGGERS INTO GARAGE, WOUNDED

Man Fatally Shot Is Identified as a Milwaukeean.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 8.—A man bearing evidence of wealth, who staggered into a North side garage, dying of murderously inflicted wounds, was identified today as Arthur H. Campbell, boot and shoe manufacturer of Milwaukee. Campbell was incoherent when he staggered into the garage and has since been unconscious at the hospital. A revolver, with one chamber empty, was found in the neighborhood today.

The first clue came from Mrs. Mary Hogebeen, whose home is in Oakdale, not far from the Birk residence. She had seen a man, who now is known to have been Campbell, in her back yard on Wednesday night. He was bleeding from cuts and bruises, and staggered Search of the neighborhood resulted in the finding of a hat, with a bullet hole through the rim.

Had Moved to Chicago.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 8.—Arthur H. Campbell, who is supposed to be the victim of a murderous assault in Chicago, formerly lived in Milwaukee, where he was interested in a boot and shoe business. For the last year, however, he lived in Chicago most of the time.

THE CHARTER AMENDMENTS.

The people of Duluth are indebted to H. H. Phelps, a member of the charter commission, for a very illuminating statement of the grounds upon which they should vote to reject the three proposed amendments to the city charter relating to street improvements. Mr. Phelps' letter was published in The Herald Wednesday evening and advanced an argument which clearly shows the street improvement amendments to be in part absurd, in part unconstitutional, and altogether opposed to the advantage of the city.

Mr. Phelps points out that these three amendments did not originate with the charter commission but that the commission was compelled to submit them to a vote of the people upon the petition of 5 per cent of the voters of the city. All three amendments were submitted by the petitioners with a total misunderstanding of their nature and without a realization of the very great injury their adoption will work.

The first of these amendments provides that "no assessment for benefits shall be made for any part of the cost of grading, paving or maintaining the intersections of streets with other streets or avenues." The amendment is unfair in that the cost of all such paving in the past has been borne by the abutting property, it would compel the city either to stop paving or take the money from necessary current expenses as there is no power in the charter to raise more money for general taxation than is being raised at the present time, and if it were possible to increase taxation, for this purpose, it would be unwise to do so as city property is now paying about all the taxes it can bear.

These are Mr. Phelps' reasons for voting "no" on the first street improvement amendment and they show the amendment both unfair and ill-advised.

As to the second amendment for municipal improvements Mr. Phelps shows that, instead of benefiting the small taxpayer, it will add materially to his burdens. The amendment provides that when property has once been assessed for the cost of an improvement of a street it shall never again be assessed for the renewing or the maintaining of the same improvement. When one considers that it is the pavement in the business section upon which valuable business property abuts that must be renewed every few years, and that the paving of the remoter residence streets will last practically a lifetime, one realizes the absurdity and the folly of releasing the property which gets the benefit, and which is amply able to pay, from the cost of the improvements and saddling that cost instead upon the general taxpayer who does not get the benefit, except in very small measure, and who is already supporting the maximum burden of taxation.

The effect of the third amendment will be directed almost entirely against outlying property and will materially retard, if not permanently prevent, the growth of the city, in many directions. This proposed amendment provides in brief that no property shall be assessed for improvements for more than 25 per cent of its value in any five-year period except upon petition of a majority of the owners who own more than 50 per cent of the frontage affected. The evils which would follow the adoption of this amendment are thus set forth by Mr. Phelps:

> On first thought, it would seem that property ought not to be assessed for abutting improvements more than 25 per cent of the value, but there is much property in the city that has no real value unless it can have sidewalks and other improvements. With improvements it becomes inhabitable, without them nobody can use it. In portions of the outlying districts the assessed value of lots is from $5 to $15 per lot. Twenty-five per cent of this would not pay for building a sidewalk. Much of our real estate is owned by non-residents and parties living away from the property. Such owners generally are opposed to any improvement that is to cause them any outlay. To require 50 per cent of the owners in such cases to petition before an improvement can be made, is to prohibit the improvement.

The amendment is also in direct conflict, it is pointed out, with the general laws of the state which allow cities of over 50,000 population to construct sidewalks by a four-fifths vote of the council without any petition therefor.

With such overwhelming reasons against them, it is hard to see what can be said in favor of the three proposed amendments for street improvements. They are fundamentally wrong. Instead of compelling wealth to bear a more just share of the burdens of taxation, they give it further exemption. The taxes of those least able to pay are not lightened, but increased. The growth of the city is not promoted, but blocked and prevented. The amendments are retrogressive, not progressive.

GROWING APACE.

In the rush and bustle of modern industrial and commercial life we Americans, with the thoughtlessness incident to absorption in business, are apt contentedly to take it for granted that about all the constitutional government really worth while that the world enjoys is that in which we and other English speaking peoples rejoice.

We are really very much mistaken if we entertain such thoughts. The love of liberty springs eternal in the human breast, be that human Turk, Frenchman, Englishman, or the islander of the seas. Some sparks of it flicker, and flame up now and then, even in the heart of the Hottentot and the heathen Chinese. The little incident that taught the German kaiser so much teaches all of us a great deal in this regard. The popular idea that Germany is a monarchy in the strong grasp of absolutism appears to be a mistaken idea and the truth seems to be that Germany is in fact as much a constitutional government of the people as is France, and is in reality a form of government strikingly like that of the United States of America. The German kaiser has been to the popular mind an absolute ruler; he has popularly been regarded as the world's great war lord. In his impulsive rashness he appears to the nations of the earth a law unto himself, with a power to lead and to command his people that knew no bounds save only those dictated by a wise understanding of the international limitations that hedge his country in. His fierce mustachios personified the dictator. Such has been his impetuosity, so violent have been his actions and so unrestrained his speech that it is not to be wondered at that the world regarded him as the absolute lord of the German people.

A mere incident, however, reveals the fact that William II is no czar but only a president with a very limited authority. So long as the kaiser was content to fuss and fume over things that were immaterial the German people were tolerant of what they regarded as merely the personal peculiarities of their emperor, but when his license of speech threatened to involve the nation in serious complications abroad Germany arose and plainly told its kaiser to hold his tongue.

The fact is that Germany is a United States. Its separate kingdoms are fully as independent as our states. Its Bundesrath represents the different kingdoms just as the American senate represents the different states. Its Reichstag is composed of representatives elected by the people of Germany just as the house of representatives is composed of representatives elected by the American people. Its kaiser has no more power to conclude treaties or to declare war or to perform any other final act of government than has the president of the United States. The president of the United States is chosen by all the people of the United States once every four years; all the people of Germany have declared once for all that the kaiser shall serve for life and that he shall be none other than the reigning prince of the largest German state, the kingdom of Prussia. As unessential as this difference is, it is about as essential as any other difference between the two positions.

The United States of America has, in fact, no monopoly of constitutional government. Even Germany, with its picturesque war lord enjoys fully as much constitutional liberty as we do, and is even more quick to resent rash utterances from William II than we are from Theodore Roosevelt.

UNIVERSAL BROTHERHOOD.

The unparalleled calamity which has overtaken the people of Sicily and Italy has leveled all classes, wiped out all sects and broken down all man-made barriers which keep us from knowing what our fellowman is thinking and feeling. That divine thing, the universal brotherhood of man, exists in Italy today, and its spirit moves all the peoples of the earth.

Sympathy for the sufferings and misfortunes of others is not of creed but of God. It reaches the helping hand across the deepest chasms of religious difference and spans the widest divergence of sect and denomination and creed at a single stride. The pope of Rome never sets his foot upon Italian ground and the unwavering hostility of Roman Catholic teachings to secret societies is well known, but when Mayor Nathan, a heretic and a past grand master of Masonry, telephoned the Vatican asking whether the unfortunate wounded from Messina and Reggio could be taken there, he received an instant affirmative. An envoy especially dispatched by the pope received the first wounded at the railroad station and conveyed them to the Vatican. The pope himself in his intense desire to give help to his suffering brothers, passed through the basilica of St. Peter's and over the arch connecting the basilica with the hospital and beyond the area which enjoys, by law, the rights of extra territory. A little incident, but big with the significance of the ultimate fact of the universal brotherhood of man.

Heroes and heroines are very common in Italy today but the world cannot fail to be especially touched by the devotion and heroism of Queen Helena, who refused to turn back from the dangers of the earthquake zone, but persisted in accompanying her royal spouse to the very heart of the scenes of death, destruction and suffering, there to render what aid she might to those who were left living. She ministered to the wounded in the hospitals, and thoughtless of her artificial royalties, she revealed the true royalty of a noble nature, that royalty of human nature which is kin to the divine. By the bedside of one of the least of her subjects the queen of Italy devotedly passed the night. Some poor unfortunate, crazed with the terrible events of the day, broke into the improvised hospital and crying, "The end of the world has come. The earth has fallen in! Save yourselves! Save Yourselves!" threw the inmates of the hospital into a panic. The wounded woman to whom the queen was ministering, sprang from her bed and in attempting to restrain her the queen was knocked to the floor and wounded. Yet the next day she continued her work of love and mercy although bleeding frequently from the mouth.

These are incidents brought us by the daily cable. They are but two amony thousands and of the others we shall for the most part hear nothing. But they illustrate the brotherhood of man. They show that there is something in man far better than the petty creeds and distinctions that he has built up over against his brother, and that he is entirely capable of breaking down the walls of separation and of flinging aside for the time being his baubles of belief and formality in the hour of his brother's need.

Altogether we are frank to confess that we like the natural man much better than the artificial and we hope to see more and more of him this side the millenium as well as on the other side.

BEARING FRUIT.

Governor Johnson's vigorous and attention-compelling demand for the development of the resources of Northern Minnesota is already bearing fruit.

This portion of the message, which the governor has made so large and so vital a part of the message that it dominates all the rest, is the talk of the hotels, of the offices, of business and professional men everywhere. It will be the text of sermons and it is flooding the newspapers with arguments and facts and enthusiasm for the speedy development of Minnesota's northern empire.

The message is already being put to one use for which it has probably never entered the governor's mind that it would be used. People are calling at The Herald office and eagerly asking for copies of the message to send to prospective visitors to the state, business men are demanding copies of the message to be distributed with their other advertising literature and there is every reason to believe that the Northern Minnesota portion of the message at least will be the most widely distributed of any message ever sent to the legislature by the governor of any state.

There is nothing wooden headed about the timber trust.

The man who interprets the Constitution literally makes it the government and not the people.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

A prophecy as to the relations between the church and the stage is made by Actor Daniel Sully, who, during his forty years upon the American stage, has seen the rise and development of the American drama from the crude and unfinished state, incomplete in detail, lacking in moral, inspiration or artistic conception, to the high plane of the drama of today, the highest function of which is to teach a moral truth, in the opinion of Mr. Sully.

At the Lenox hotel last evening the actor was discussing the various phases of the drama, its relation with the church, and what its relations with the church would be in the future.

It was here that Mr. Sully made the rather broad prediction that some time in the future the drama and the church would be closely allied; that there would not be opposition and misunderstanding upon the part of the members of the clergy; rather there would be an interest in and a deep sympathy with the drama that would result in giving a higher moral tone to the plays, and would do away with much of the narrowness and religious prejudice regarding the theater.

Going further than this, Mr. Sully made the prediction that there will come a time in the future years when every church will have its own little private theater. "Here," says Mr. Sully, "plays not unlike the old morality plays will be given, and their object will be the teaching of some Biblical truth, which in this manner will be driven home deeper than it could be by lecture or Biblical discourse.

"Way back in the dim past of history, my friend, they were giving plays to illustrate religious truths," said Mr. Sully. "In those days the church employed this primitive means of acting to teach the people the truths of morality or religion. These events were acted out in pantomime, and they were given under the authority or the auspices of the church.

"The Passion Play of the present day has the same effect. It gives one a deeper and more comprehensive idea of one of the most sacred chapters of Biblical history. It is my belief that we are going to return to this means of illustrating and making more clear Biblical history, and that in this way the theater will be brought closer to the church.

"There is no question but that the church and the theater have greatly lessened the chasm of prejudice and misunderstanding that in the years gone by existed between them. Much of this prejudice was due to misunderstanding. Much of it was due to narrow-mindedness and dense ignorance. Much of it, I regret to say, was due to the actors themselves. The revolution in this feeling between the church and the stage is due to an education among the churchmen who have seen with eyes not veiled with prejudice nor bigotry; to the moral uplift of the stage and the improvement of the morals and the education of the actors.

"The Church Alliance, of which actors and ministers in all parts of this country are members, has done much to clear away this prejudice and superstition regarding the stage. There is almost a branch of this alliance in every city of any size in the United States. This alliance, by its influence, has done much to improve the morality of the stage and the actors, as well as to bring the stage and church into closer relations.

"I am one of the people upon the stage who see a brighter and more worthy future for the work of the theater. I believe that this change will come from both the people who contribute to the amusement and instruction of the public, and the public itself. I believe that the time will come when the church will lend its influence in making the American drama better, more worthy of higher effort, and that also the time is not very far distant when the ministers of the gospel will attend those plays of more serious purpose and by their presence give encouragement to this class of drama.

"The time is coming when the play that teaches some moral truth, that touches the chord of the heart and leaves a person better for having seen it, is the play that is going to live. The public needs education as well as the men who cater to the whims of the public. You must remember that it is the public that the managers of theatrical amusements cater to; it is not the public that caters to the men who provide the public's entertainment.

"I have been upon the stage for forty years. I have witnessed the advance of the drama from the old rough and ready days, when there was much vulgarity, and sometimes little education among the members of the profession. In those days the stage was the profession of an actor were in great disrepute. Today, how different it is. The great majority of people have come to realize that there are just as good men and women upon the stage as there are off, and society has recognized the intelligence and breeding of the people of the stage, by receiving actors and actresses in the highest of its circles."

It was just eight years ago last New Year's that the "Parish Priest" was born. This was the play in which Mr. Sully first assumed a clerical role. Since that time he had appeared in his present play, the "Matchmaker," in which he again assumes the part of a priest.

Mr. Sully has studied priests, as was necessary for him, and he says he has found them jovial, intensely human, men, fond of a good story, and possessing rare humor as a rule. That is the kind of a priest he has characterized since he has been playing these roles. He says that his present play will be the last one in which he will assume a clerical role. He is afraid that the public will expect nothing else from him, should he continue in this line of characterization.

C. J. Anderson of Grand Marais, at the St. Louis yesterday, says settlement along the north shore is progressing very rapidly, and that during the past six months many of the very good claims have been taken up by homesteaders. Mr. Anderson says that the worst effects of the fire, among the homes of the settlers, have been largely repaired, many homes having been rebuilt since the fire of last September.

THE WEATHER.

The comparatively mild weather of last night was a mistake, due purely to local conditions in the shape of a wind from the lake, which tempered the extreme cold. It will be colder again tonight, and the mercury will be flirting with the bottom of the tube once more.

A year ago it was fair and cold.

The sun rose this morning at 7:53 and will set this afternoon at 4:37, making eight hours and forty-four minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Although the severe cold has moderated somewhat in the lake region, central valleys and Rocky mountain states, zero weather still prevails in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Northern Idaho, Eastern Washington and all of Canada west of the lake region. The development of another high pressure area over the Dakotas, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, has caused colder weather in the latter province, 48 degs. below zero occurring this morning at Battleford and Prince Albert. The barometer is abnormally high over the New England states and low over Wyoming, Southern Idaho and Northern Nevada. This disturbance caused rain in Pacific states and snow in Northern districts eastward to and including Michigan, during the past twenty-four hours. The easterly movement of the Saskatchewan pressure area will be attended by another drop in temperature in St. Louis and Douglas counties tonight."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Job never had to endure having a poem read to him from manuscript.

It always seems the height of impudence in a man to be smarter than we are.

The loveliest thing about a woman is how she can appreciate your telling her so.

Nobody ever has his feelings hurt by being taken for a rich man when he isn't.

Man can experiment with life in an infinite variety of ways; he has to take death as he finds it.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Chicago News: Large hopes from small foundations grow.

It takes a woman to tell a joke without a point.

An idle brain is the advance agent of a busy tongue.

It doesn't take very much to encourage a hopeful person.

Some people believe everything they hear, and a lot they dream.

No, Cordelia, the hand-maidens mentioned in the good book were not palmists.

Probably more men would go to church on Sunday if they had to sneak in through a side door.

The trouble with the man who thinks he knows it all is that he invariably tells a little more.

It's only a matter of time till people begin to say nice things about you—but you will be too dead to appreciate them.

In making an effort to know himself, the average man wastes a lot of time that he might spend in forming more agreeable acquaintances.

Dr. Wiley, Pure Food Patriot.

By heck,
Shall Wiley get it in the neck?
Shall he, who fights to give us food
That's pure and edible,
Be ousted by the impure bunch?
Incredible.
Shall we put food on our inside
That's doctored with formaldehyde?
Shall human stomachs tote a load o'
Dang'rous benzoate of soda?
Or shall the food we eat be pure,
To make a good digestion sure?
We eat to live;
The impure foodists treat
Their food and us as though
We live to eat.
Say,
Wiley's way
Means public health;
The others' way is private wealth.
They don't make food to keep us well;
They make it—hear them howl—to sell.
Oh, Wiley's hep to the impure food,
And he's not there to swap
The nation's health
For private wealth.
So he swings the government mop.
And here's to Wiley;
He's all right;
The pure food patriot
Winning his fight.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1884.

This morning Peter Arimond was married to Miss Louisa Watzel by the Rev. Father Murphy. This is the sixth time Mr. Arimond, who is verging on 70 years of age, but is hale and hearty as a man of 30, has entered the matrimonial lists. In an interview today at his home on Tenth avenue east, where he is living with his young bride, Mr. Arimond, who is of French descent, said that in 1836 he was an officer in the French army. One day a "prophet" came to the camp and told the futures of a number of the soldiers. He informed Mr. Arimond that he was going to leave the army before his time was up, and this came true. He told him, also, that he would have a fortune left him by an uncle, but it would be contested, and he would eventually lose it. This came true. He was to have bad luck in business, and bury four wives, who would die a natural death. This, he says, came true. The fortune teller did not say what was to become of the other two or three.

G. S. Ober, representing the Marquis de Mores, arrived yesterday in connection with the scheme to establish a meat packing house on a large scale. Accompanied by John B. Sutphin, he looked over the various available sites, and they decided to purchase dock frontage adjoining Graves & Co.'s warehouse. The land was bought from the Western Land association, through Thomas Dowse, for $10,000. It is proposed to put up a large building for the purpose of storing beef and other fresh meats for shipment to the East, and there will also be slaughter houses built outside the city limits. The Marquis de Mores, whose main ranch is near Little Missouri, is the largest cattle dealer in the West. He will have packing houses, when his plans are completed, at Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, Livingston, Helena, Miles City, Glendive, Marden, Little Missouri, Jamestown, Brainerd, Grand Forks, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth. The business here will be under the management of Mr. Sutphin.

Judging from current reports, the gas will be turned off entirely, and the city will have to resort to the old lamps again for the remainder of the winter.

L. S. Loeb, who has been traveling salesman for Sig Levy, the wholesale liquor man, has gone to Chicago, where he will visit for a few weeks.

H. C. Davis is mentioned as the probable successor of G. K. Barnes as general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific road.

Capt. B. G. Merry has tendered his resignation of the company of Company K, M. N. G., at Stillwater.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Minneapolis Journal: While the governor has seemingly forgotten the art of condensation, which he must have learned in his newspaper experience, he has not forgotten that other newspaper art of putting his most important and interesting material to the front. After a striking picture of the half-century growth of Minnesota, he takes up the vital problem of the development of the wonderful, but barely scratched northern section of the state. He shows how its vast resources in raw materials, make possible the industrial era now upon us, wherein steel, flour and sawmills, quarries, farm implement factories, cereal and woodworking enterprises are to spring up on every hand. He shows how the ancient handicap of costly coal has been overcome, first, by the tremendous cheapening of lake carriage westward, due to the huge tariff eastward, and second, by the development of the water powers that abound all through this region.

St. Paul Dispatch: Governor Johnson in his recommendations completely sinks the party leader in the public servant. Ordinary fairness to the man and respect to the office require that all citizens regard his communication in the same patriotic spirit.

Minneapolis Journal: The governor says a much-needed word about the criminal folly of making reprisals on great railroad systems or impairing their usefulness to the public, but steadily maintains that it is the state's duty to limit and control the vast powers they possess so that the individual citizen may receive fair consideration. His assumption that the 2-cent rate bill has already been justified by the figures on business done, would probably not stand analysis. It is difficult to understand how it is possible that the railroads of New York and Pennsylvania lose money on such rates, while those of Minnesota find them profitable. The state commission named by Governor Hughes is investigating the subject in New York, and the Pennsylvania courts have held against the 2-cent rate.

St. Paul Dispatch: The governor of Minnesota is at present the national Democrat who commands the greatest amount of public attention. Four years is a long time and much may happen between now and 1912, but at this moment the name of John A. Johnson is more in the minds of the Democratic masses as a probable leader of the party than any other man. It may have been a consciousness of the responsibilities and opportunities of such a position that suggested to the governor the advisability of leaving nothing to be guessed at in his message. And it may in fact be desirable that the record of a presidential possibility shall be very clear, that his point of view shall be well understood and that there shall even be full data upon which expert examiners like our good friend Mr. Watterson may reach a conclusion as to the processes of the inner mind.

Pioneer Press: The governor's appreciation of the magnitude and value of the state's resources, the conservation of which he would commit to the proposed new department, is broad and glowing; his picturing of the state's possibilities and opportunities a graphic one. Especially is what he says of the possibilities of the state in the way of the development of water-power worthy of study by the legislature and the people. * * * Had he omitted any reference to them (the advisory initiative and the application of the primary law to state officers), there would have been little, if anything, in his message undeserving the applause of the entire people of Minnesota.

Railroad Development of Farming.

Portland Evening Telegram: The new movement of railroad interest in the development of farming countries is a service that is most valuable to the country. In this movement James J. Hill was the pioneer; Mr. Harriman, recognizing its wisdom, engaged in it practically and extensively, and now we are given to understand that the St. Paul road as it reaches the coast, will make new departures in the same lines.

This campaign of agricultural development is, of course, purely a matter of business with the railroads. As Mr. Hill inaugurated it it was an investment on which he was willing to wait for returns; but the returns were bountiful, and the wisdom of the movement has been practically apparent to other managers. It has now become a well recognized policy that is a constant and permanent community builder.

There is nothing that the railroads accomplish in this territory of the West which is of greater value. It is a policy that goes far toward balancing sins of omission and commission by the roads, which subject them to criticism that is just. It is a business in which, most notably, the interests of the roads and the interests of the people are allied.

The result of this railroad campaign of agricultural education will be more rapid settlement of the unoccupied West than has hitherto been experined. It will add an element of certainty of profit for the man who seeks newer fields in this section; and from the very character of the enterprise th number of such will be wonderfully increased. In this regard, more than any other, the railroads are aiding in the phenomenal upbuilding of this section.

Italy's Heroic Queen.

Indianapolis Star: The Queen of Italy, who is showing so much heroism, comes honestly by her quality, for she belongs to that unconquered race, inhabiting the historic spot called variously Cernogora, Montenegro and Black Mountain, all three names having the same significance. Queen Helene is the daughter of the Montenegrin prince. In religion and some other respects the country is akin to Russia. There is no more interesting spot on the map of Europe.

Mr. Jerome On the Water Wagon.

New York Dispatch: District Attorney has joined the ranks of the great and the near-great. He has quit both cigarets and whisky. He says he is going to keep a reserved seat on the water wagon for the rest of his days. For the last three months Mr. Jerome has smoked only an occasional pipe, and he won't even speak of a highball. As a result he is losing superfluous flesh and his tailor has had to rebuild his clothing.

An Extensive Wardrobe.—The Tragedian—I'm indeed sorry to leave you like this, Mrs. Buskins; but I presume you have no objection to my taking my belongings away with me?

Landlady—You needn't worry. My husband has already hung your other collar on the hatrack.

Life: "He is a man of great imagination, isn't he?"

"I should say so. He has been keeping the books of a mining corporation."

Pick-Me-Up: Horace—Some men act like perfect fools when they are in love.

Evelyn—Yes, and a great many more do not wait even for that excuse.

Smart Set: Woman—Now that I have fed you, are you going without doing your work?

Tramp—Oi couldn't wurruk on an empty stomach, mum; an' Oi' niver wurruk on er full one. So there yez be?

Louisville Courier-Journal: "What kind of poetry do you prefer?"

"Poetical poetry," answered the Old Grouch. "It ain't so all-fired common as some might think."

Puck: Collector—This bill here has been running twenty-five years.

Scraggs—What bill?

Collector—The one in my hand, of course.

Scraggs—Thanks, I thought maybe you meant the one on your coat. I see that you are wearing a campaign button.

Philadelphia Press: "I tell you, sir," thundered old Galley, "if it wasn't for me you'd be the most forlorn and disreputable creature in this neighborhood."

"True for you pop," replied young Galley. "I won't be able to claim first honors until you die."

Harper's Weekly: City Editor—Why do you say that this man "passed away," instead of died?

Reporter—He owed me money and I don't like to feel that he is really dead.

Philadelphia Record: Tommy—Pop, what is retribution?

Tommy's Pop—Retribution, my son, is something that we are sure will eventually overtake other people.

Puck: He—I wonder if we can get along all right.

She—Certainly. We can buy the auto with the money father left me, and you will surely make enough to pay for running it, don't you think?

Our Taxation Problem.

Lowell Courier-Citizen: It is safe to say that as long as men are taxed on property that can be hidden they will hide it and lie about it. And the fact that most do lie about it will be taken by others who really regret the "necessity" of so doing as a justificatory plea. It remains, therefore, to discover the ideal system of taxation, —something which shall make the holder of more intangible property bear his share of the public expense as fully as the real estate holder can be made to do. As the thing works out now, the owner of land and buildings has to pay. He cannot escape. And if he does not pay, his property will be sold for taxes after a time and he will lose even that which he hath. The owner of taxable shares, on the other hand, if he succeeds in concealing them, pays nothing but what he chooses to pay. And because it is notorious that everybody regards a lie to the tax-gatherer as a venial sin, persisted in by all the world, the thing has become crystallized into universal custom. How can it be deemed fair that one person should declare all he really has, and thus pay a ruinous proportion of his total income, when those infinitely better able to pay choose to confine their contributions to the public purse to a very inconsiderable share of the total income, by a simple process of concealment? The size of it is that the taxation of concealable personalty is a ludicrous and pathetic failure, and the wonder is that we continue to regard it seriously. It has the disadvantages of double-taxation in some cases and no taxation at all in others. But it has to serve as long as nobody can suggest any alternative that hasn't even greater disadvantages than these.

A LIBRARY IS HIDDEN

Literature Locked Away Behind Doors Six Days In Week.

Was Provided for by Acts of the Indiana Legislature.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 8.—In these days of exposure at the courthouse it is not particularly surprising that a full-fledged free circulating library under the courthouse roof has been brought to light. It has existed in the Marion county courthouses since the early forties, though probably many county officers and members of their office forces have come and gone from the courthouse—and its predecessor—without knowing that a No. 1 free circulating library was under the same roof with them, and inquiry among the courthouse population reveals the fact that a number of its present occupants do not know that a general library is maintained in the courthouse. With these conditions existing among the people in the building, it is not surprising that few outside of the courthouse know that besides the state library and the city library, there is a Marion county library that is regarded by most of the meager 400 card holders, to be superior in many respects to the city library as a source of reading supplies.

Certainly Not Conspicuous.

It also extends, by winding staircase, into the room on the third floor. These roms are so located that the entrance to them, which is only the width of a double door, does not attract attention from the corridors, and inasmuch as this door is locked every day except Saturday, and the shades are drawn, people working in the courthouse pass the library week after week, month after month and year after year, without its occurring to them that the inconspicuous door is anything but an extra entranceway into one of the offices.

Still, when one gets into the double door he finds that it opens into a widening hall that is lined with filled book shelves. This hallway narrows again and then opens out into a great octagonal-shaped room which, also, is "papered" with filled book shelves. Winding up from the center, and leading through the ceiling, is a circular stairway that connects this main library with the upper rooms, which are the special depositories of national, state and other reports and maps—a very valuable suppement to a well selected library. On the shelves of the Marion county library are from 10,000 to 12,000 books, and the selection is said by some of the handful who have used the library and are using it to be more satisfactory than that offered by the much larger city library. This probably is not the case, but it seems to be so to the people, for at the Marion count library they have for years been permitted to go to the books, look them over and make their selections without an intermediary.

The county library is particularly strong and up-to-date in fiction! It is a good reference library, has a good selection and stock of juveniles dating back to those of almost three-quarters of a century ago, and it is also provided with a department well stocked with books of special interest and value to farmers. Many more than half of the 400 people who have asked for and have received, the library cards are farmers living out over the county, and the librarian and the library trustees have been very careful to cater to them.

The library is open only one day a week—Saturday. That day's selection dates back to the days when Indianapolis was more of a crossroads trading post than a metropolis, and when the farmers reserved Saturday afternoon for coming in "after the mail" and Saturday night for a good soak in the washtub.

This library has only the state library as a rival for the distinction of being the oldest one in Indianapolis. In fact, it dates back to the constitution of Indiana, and its funds were created by the act which provided for the platting of a capital for the state —the present city of Indianapolis. The fifth section of the ninth article of the state's original constitution, adopted in 1816, declared that the new state general assembly should, at the time it laid off a new county, cause to be reserved at least 10 per cent of the proceeds of the sale of town lots in the seat of justice of each county, for the purpose of a public library for the county.

Though there were a number of special acts of the legislature—especially in 1831 and 1835—touching on the matter of the Marion county library, if any was established before 1843, N. L. Taylor, for many years president of the library's board of trustees, failed in making a thorough investigation for comprehensive report in 1891, to locate it, and he expressed the opinion that the library was not founded until 1843. The first meeting of the board of trustees, of which there os any record, was on May 22, 1844, when rules and by-laws were adopted.

A little room in the southeast corner of the old courthouse was appropriated by the county commissioners for the library, and when the present courthouse was built it was placed in one of the rooms on the main floor, but later when there was a great demand for space it was removed to the halls, and the octagonal shaped rooms that it now occupies. A year or two ago it was about to be ousted from these quaters and relegated to one of the upper rooms, but this "burial" was headed off. The librarian is Lydia Blaich, who has charge during the Winter months, while W. O. Conway is the summer librarian. The county oppropriates enough money to meet the meager expenses and for the addition of about 500 books a year to the library. Thee havy been usually well selected and the library has been kept up to date.

In the early days of the library a fee was charged for membership, but this has been done away with, and membership rights and requirements are the same as those governing the city library.

Norwegian sardines are entering the United States to the value of nearly $800,000 a year, a more than threefold increase in only two years.

WRITER OF MUCH FAME

Nat Gould Has Produced Seventy Novels During His Career.

British Publishers Boost "Best Sellers" Same as Yankees Now.

London, Jan. 8.—A novelist of remarkable productive powers is Nat Gould, whose "sporting" books have made his name world-famous. Gould has upwards of seventy full-fledged novels to his credit; and though most of them might not appeal to readers who do not care for "manly arts" of various kinds, still they have wide circulation.

Gould's literary career has been a fascinating one. He left England in 1884, and "drifted," as he says, to New South Wales. "I first tried my hand at the tea trade," he said, in a recent interview, "but it was a ghastly failure. I then went in for farming, but did not make a success of that. I then got a job on an Australian paper, where I stayed for six years."

After knocking about in general newspaper work in various parts of Australia, Nat Gould decided to try his hand at fiction. He had been asked to write a serial for an Australian newspaper, and he plunged into the work without any definite idea of what his story was to be like. The paper began publishing the story before he had made up his mind what to do with it.

"I remember," he said, describing the fix in which he found himself, "when I came to the fifth chapter, I was rather puzzled as to how I was going to make out. However, I managed to worry through. This novel work had to be done 'after hours,' when I had already written from five to six columns a day of newspaper stuff for a paper called the Bathurst Times.

"When the serial had been running for thirty or forty chapters, one day the editor came to me and asked:

"'How long is that story of yours going to run?'

"I replied; 'Oh, about thirty more installments.'

"'No, it isn't,' he said decisively, 'it's going to run two more chapters. You have to wind it up in that length.' And I did.

"As the story came out I cut it out week by week, and when I had it complete I showed it to some friends. They brought the clippings before the manager of Rutledge's, and, to my surprise, after he had read it, his firm made me a good offer. Rutledge cabled asking me to do some more work for them, and in the course of time I wrote twenty-five novels for that firm alone. The book was first called 'With the Tide' and then 'In the Swim,' but as it was found that both these titles had been used, it was finally changed a third time to 'The Double Event.' It has sold well and proved the biggest of all my successes. The book was written in great haste and under peculiar circumstances of worry and interruption, and, despite its abrupt ending, it proved a success. It was dramatized in Australia. I might say that it was 'The Double Event' which led to my success in book writing."

Nat Gould is still a vigorous novel writer. He is now in his 51st year and enjoys remarkable health. He is intensely interested in racing, driving and all sports, and at the same time one of his favorite hobbies is gardening. He lives most of the time in England.

New Novels Are Illustrated.

Many of the novels of the new season just opening in the London book trade present an attractive feature in being illustrated. It has taken all these years for English publishers to follow American lead in this matter.

"Something must be done nowadays, "said a publisher in discussing the question of novel illustration, "to attract attention. While it is true that a picture will not sell a book, it gives it a first chance on the book stalls as against books which are not illustrated. Of course we do not illustrate all of our books, for then the ones we wished to make a stir over would be just the same as the others.

"We take the book that has the most striking illustrative subject and get a good artist either to make a frontispiece of that subject, or else to put in in the cover. Our judgment is more or less democratic. We do not take an author because his name is a big one, but we select the book that has the most striking subject that will make the best picture. We have found that we sell more of the books with pictures than we do of those without. Of course, when all the publishers go in for illustrating their books some other scheme will have to be tried."

Women Cover Designers.

It is curious that some of the best book covers in England are made by women; and they also do some exceptionally good work in bookbinding. There is a Woman's Bookbinding association which competes largely with men engaged in the trade and does work for many of the best publishing firms, especially those which bring out high-priced books with costly bindings. The women's association is also doing an extensive general bindery work, ranging from the new "seven-penny," or 14-cent books, up to the $1.50 novels. The women are not undercutting prices, but are securing the work on the merit of their productions.

Germany Reads Zangwill.

Israel Zangwill is receiving a great "send-off" in Germany just now. Everywhere his books are being read. Wells and Doyle are about the only other living English novelists who have achieved a German vogue in recent years. Nearly every one of Zangwill's books has now been "done into German," and the Germans are asking for more. He has recently been engaged in preparing a complete revision of all his books and plays especially for Germany. Zangwill's output of books has been limited recently by his interest in social affairs—not dining and wining, but studies in political economy. He belongs to all sorts of "advance" thought associations, and, as every one knows, is a staunch women's righter. In addition to his work in these directions, he is actively engaged in the great Zionish movement. He has made some exhaustive studies in the question of Jewish emigration recently, and hopes soon to bring out a book on this subject. He has already written a play dealing with it.

A Horrible Hold-Up.

"About ten years ago my brother was 'held up' in his work, health and happiness by what was believed to be hopeless consumption," writes W. R. Lipscomb of Washington, N. C. "He took all kinds of remedies and treatment from several doctors, but found no help till he used Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles. He is a well man today." It's quick to relieve and the surest cure for weak or sore lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs, and Colds, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Asthma and all Bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

EDISON'S PLAN NOT FAVORED

Builders Insist the Concrete Pouring Plan is Not Practical.

New York, Jan. 8.—Not long ago Edison announced a new scheme in house building. The plan in substance, was to erect big molds in the form of a house and then pour concrete into them. In this manner it was proposed to not only pour the walls, but the floors, door frames, window frames and every other portion of the house as well. There was not to be a stick of wood in the entire structure.

Since then, there have been all sorts of plans proposed in modification of the Edison scheme, most builders insisting that the scheme isn't practical. The "concrete pouring" idea doesn't seem to have caught on very strongly yet. The idea of getting along with a minimum amount of wood in a structure, however, takes well. In the Technical World magazine, an expert describes a new home idea as follows:

"A house of cement; a house without a chimney; a house with plenty of artificial light and heat and yet without ashes; without dangerous gases, such is to be the house of tomorrow.

"This is, indeed, an ideal house, and it is not impossible to have, for with little trouble one has just been completed at Carrollton, Ill. While this home is wonderful, the average American home will in a few years from now be like it.

"Wood is fast becoming too scarce and too high in price to be used as common building material, and the time is already here when, for economy's sake, architects and contractors are figuring to construct all buildings of steel and concrete. As the supply of coal diminishes the cost is advancing so that everything possible is being done to husband the supply and to see that none of the precious stored heat is wasted. Electricity, generated by water power, is even now taking the place of coal as a source of power, and the time is not far distant when it will rank first as a source of heat.

"This model twentieth century home at Carrolton is 34 by 30 feet, two stories high, with attic and basement, and has eight rooms on the two main floors. While Edisons' idea of a concrete house to be poured into one big mold was not carried out in its construction, yet the principal building material was of concrete. The foundation and walls are of concrete blocks. These blocks are molded right on the ground as they were required, so there was not waste of material. The floors are of hardwood and the interior is finished in plaster and oak. Such a house requires but little wood in its construction. The style of architecture is of plain, substantial mission type, this idea being carried out throughout the interior. The house is fronted with a large porch, and the whole construction, or rather, the entire cost was less than $3,500."

The foods we eat furnish energy for the body just as burning coal makes steam for an engine.

The experiments of Prof. Frankland, Ph. D., of London, show that cod liver oil yields two and one-half times more energy than starches or sweets.

See What You Get Worth 10c

Simply cut out the coupon below—hand it to the grocer when you buy your first cake of Galvanic Soap for the laundry, price 5c. Then you'll get the present I buy for you—a full-sized cake of Palmolive Soap for the toilet and bath—a soap never sold for less than 10c.

I buy this cake of Palmolive for you to thank you for trying Galvanic Soap—to repay you for the favor.

I know you don't care to try different laundry soaps—I know you now use a fairly good soap.

But don't be content with a merely good soap. It isn't one-half so effective. Please take my word for the moment.

300,000 Housewives Know

I figure that 300,000 women prefer my soap to all others—women who know merely good soap. They use mine because it makes the clothes cleaner and whiter than yellow soap—because it goes twice as far. Then it saves boiling—and rubbing, except where the clothes are very much soiled.

One reason is—cocoanut oil.

Other makers won't use this oil. It's expensive. It's not in the merely good soaps. Yet it's immensely effective. I go 10,349 miles—to Ceylon—for it.

But nothing's too good for the 300,000 who use Galvanic Soap.

It's Honest Soap

Try it and see if it isn't far better than the merely good soap you use now.

Cut out the coupon—buy your first cake today—price 5c. Get the free cake of Palmolive—worth 10c—as my thanks to you for the favor.

Don't pay 5c for a merely good laundry soap. Learn what you save and gain—using Galvanic Soap.

HILL MAY NOT TAKE OFFICE

Might Not be Able to Ride Free on Own Road.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A little incident which occurred in the governor's office at the state capitol, Tuesday afternoon, is being used by the opponents of the anti-pass law to illustrate the ridiculous results which occasionally are brought to light as the result of the strict enforcement of the law.

Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern railway, was tendered the position of the state highway commission, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Gustave Scholle, who is to take up his residence in Washington, D. C.

When Mr. Hill arrived at the capitol to see the governor, he was informed of the resignation of Frederick W. Weyerhaeuser, the wealthy lumberman, from the state forestry board. Mr. Weyerhaeuser is a director of the Great Northern railway, and he was refused a pass on the road because he was a member of the forestry board, so he resigned as a state official.

"Well, if that's Mr. Weyerhaeuser's predicament," said Mr. Hill, "perhaps I'd better not accept the position on the highway commission. By doing so I may be prohibited from riding on my own road unless I pay my fare."

On the governor's recommendation, the suggestion will be held in abeyance, pending the action of the legislature to amend the anti-pass bill, so as to take it outside of the recent ruling of the attorney general's office, which has held that state officials employed by public corporations are not exempted from the provisions of the law.

Meaning of Words.

Many words which are spelled alike and pronounced alike have different meanings. The word "rare" is an example. It may mean scarce as used to denote something not usually found, or it may mean choice—this is the meaning when we say that golden grain belt beer is a rare beverage, highly prized for its wholesome qualities and tonic properties. It should be kept in every home. Order of your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch Minneapolis Brewing Co.

DANCING STIRS UP BOARD.

President of Oklahoma School Board Asked to Resign.

Enid, Okla., Jan. 8.—Karl Kruse, president of the Enid school board, has been requested by a majority of the members of that body to tender his resignation. This is the latest development in the now widely heralded war on dancing by the school board of this city. But Kruse hasn't resigned. He is not likely to do so at an early date.

The very high standard of moraltiy set by certain members of the board for Enid teachers a month ago has stirred up a rumpus that is growing hotter and hotter every day. It all came about through the attendance of five teachers in the public schools on a social hop given by the Elks Thanksgiving evening, and participated in by about 200 of the elite of the city.

A majority of the school board took the position, to the astonishment of a large part of the community, that dancing is immoral, and school teachers ought not to attend festivities where waltzing was the order of the evening. Mr. Kruse, president of the board, held that it was none of the board's business whether the teachers danced or not. Just to show that he meant what he said, he went to a ball, accompanied by two of the teachers, and danced with them. Then the majority of the board became very indignant, and at a special meeting asked President Kruse to step down and out. He politely declined. The board is wondering if there is any way to oust him.

The teachers seem to be standing as a unit against the board and refuse to heed the anti-dancing order. They also refuse to resign, and declare that if stopped from teaching they will sue for the amount of their contracts for the entire year.

In the meantime the terms of several members of the board are drawing to a close, and the issue for the campaign near at hand is very plain. It is this: "Do you believe teachers should dance?"

S.S.S. NATURE'S CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

The conditions and causes which produce Rheumatism all suggest a healthful vegetable remedy as the surest and safest cure. The disease is brought about by the accumulation of uric acid, an irritating, pain-producing property in the blood. This causes a weakening and souring of the circulation which then becomes unfit for nourishing the body, while the deposits of uric acid in the nerves, muscles, joints and bones produce the pain and agony of Rheumatism. To treat the trouble with medicines containing potash or other strong minerals, is simply adding another poison to the already weak, diseased blood, sapping it of its remaining vitality, and perhaps in the end making a physical wreck of the sufferer. The one safe and only cure for Rheumatism is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy for this disease, made entirely from healthful vegetable ingredients extracted from the roots, herbs and barks of the forest and fields. S. S. S. goes down into the blood and removes every trace of the cause of Rheumatism, cleanses and purifies the circulation, and restores health and comfort to those who are suffering from this painful disease. There is but one way to be sure you are not dosing your system with mineral medicines, and that is to take S. S. S. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 8.—If you should discover a small, barren, mountainous and forbidding-appearing island twenty-five miles off shore and a couple of thousand miles from the centers of population, would you buy it?

You should say not? Well, so would I. But, then, neither you nor I probably will ever be multimillionaires, as are the astute Banning brothers of Los Angeles. They bought the Island of Catalina for a mere song, and as a result they own the city of Wilmington, steamship lines, banks, central business blocks in this city and so many farms that the tax collector has writer's cramp from listing them.

This famous island, the matchless Santa Catalina, was originally bought for a single rifle, Edward H. Harriman, when told this fact, gazed over the barren hills and said:

"Yes, and if it was a good rifle, the fellow who bought probably got the worst of it."

Didn't Get Worst of It.

But the aforesaid astute brothers did not get the worst of it, for when I tried to find out how much wealth the trio had added unto itself by reason of this "crazy" financial venture I asked if they were multimillionaires. A man who knows Los Angeles better than anything else in the world replied:

"They are worse than that, for Santa Catalina is a gold mine whose pay veins grow richer with the passing years."

Not so many years ago a syndicate of big gamblers cast longing eyes on the island and figured on buying it, with a view to transforming it into a Western Monte Carlo. They had millions to invest, and purposed erecting a marble gambling palace, constructing model race courses and, in short, making it the model—if the word may be permitted in this connection—gamblers' paradise or "joint" of the entire world.

The Banning brothers never disclosed the exact figure which they were offered for their island, but rumor has it that for the island and the ships and other things which go with it the gamblers were willing to pay $25,000,000. Pretty good, was it not, for a property in which you nor I would not have put counterfeit money when the astute brothers first cast their eyes on it?

Turn Down Gambling Proposition.

But to the everlasting credit of the Banning brothers, be it said that they told the gamblers that they would not sell for $50,000,000 if the property was to be used for a gambling resort, and so the deal fell through. Every one who comes to the City of the Angels goes to Catalina, but few have the pleasure of going with one of the astute brothers.

This favor is a treat of all treats to be had in southern California. In the Middle Ranch, which the brothers maintain in the center of the island, is to be had about all the finest sport that can be concentrated into one island. For the delectation of their friends, the brothers maintain a large herd of wild goats, and to the hunter this sport is the acme of enjoyment.

The ride to the ranch in a stage-coach is another favor. One of the astute brothers is the finest whip in California, and if you haven't heart trouble you will remember the drive to Middle Ranch as long as you live, and you have heart trouble you will probably remember it after you are dead.

Brothers Get It, Anyway.

If you do not go to Catalina as the guest of the astute brothers you will have to go in one of their boats—that is, unless you are the owner of a seagoing yacht. Even in that event, you will not be permitted to land on the docks of Avalon Bay, or even anchor in the shelter of the harbor, without first gaining permission from the owners of the island. Every step taken on the island is tribute to the brothers, and therefore you can readily understand, that Santa Catalina is the best of all lead-pipe, copper-bottomed, steel-riveted, revenue-producing cinches in the whole universe.

Moral, get enthusiasm, then get faith in something, then get a few dollars, then buy something no one else wants and then—go broke; for you would never buy such an impossible asset as a desert island. The trip to Catalina is one of the most delightful to be had from Los Angeles. A short ride on a Southern Pacific train brings one to the port of San Pedro, there to embark in one of the Banning boats.

Have Faith in San Pedro.

You had better take more than a passing look at San Pedro, for the business men of this city will tell you that it is destined to become one of the great harbors of the country. Don't smile, for things more utterly impossible than this have come true in Southern California, and San Pedro is even now the greatest port of entry for lumber there is on the Pacific coast.

The government must also have some faith in San Pedro, for congress appropriated $3,000,000 with which to build the longest breakwater in the world. Its length is 9,000 feet and a total of 2,300,000 tons of rock has been used in its construction. This wonderful piece of engineering protects the harbor from the severest storms that come from the South and West, and within its shelter is 615 acres of water space.

WAR ON STANDARD.

Fight in Scotland May Extend Into England.

Glasgow, Jan. 8.—A war of rates is in progress between the Standard Oil Company of America and the Scotch oil companies, and it threatens to extend to England.

Recently the American company established oil depots in Scotch towns for distribution to retailers in tanks, and the company is now making a further effort to secure a foothold in Scotland by offering to acquire the retail connections of wholesale houses on the basis of a valuation and participation in profits during the next three or four years.

At the end of that time the American company would thereby have secured an unassailable position in the British retail oil trade. The Pumpherston Company of Glasgow has decided to offer immediate opposition to the American inroad. This company will also establish oil depots in various Scotch towns, and will supply retailers from tank wagons.

The Scotch venture is also to be extended to England. Much interest is attached to the outcome of the threatened warfare.

As a result of the war the British Petroleum company has announced a reduction in the price of its oil.

NEW ROAD IS ASSURED

Easy Grade Route to Farms Back of Hilltop.

City and County Will Work Together on Project.

One of the projects of public importance to Duluth and the surrounding country, which will receive attention during the coming year, is that of a highway on an easy grade, leading from the city to the farming communities on top of the hill.

The matter has come before the city council several times, the most recent project being that the Sundby road, plans for which were prepared last year. Now, however, the county board also promises to take a hand, and by the co-operation of the two the road may become a reality before the end of the present year.

The road is of vast importance both to Duluth people and those of the farming settlements. At the present time, it is comparatively easy for people to drive into Duluth. But to drive out again is a different matter. It is almost impossible for anybody to take a load of any kind up the hill from Duluth and many are the trials of the farmer, who tries to take a load of supplies to his farm on top of the hill. The walls have been loud, long, and insistent, but they have thus far failed to bring the road on an easy grade.

In his speech of acceptance, on being elected chairman of the county board a few days ago, Neil McInnis of Eveleth promised his hearty co-operation with the city members of the board to bring about the road, which will be of signal benefit to thousands of residents of the county. The matter will probably be brought before the county board before long and it is already before the city council in the plans and estimates prepared by the city engineer.

The proposed Sundby road is planned to start at Fifth avenue east and Sixth street, following the bed of a creek, with a culvert under the boulevard and following the course of least resistance to join the road on top of the hill. The grade is the easiest that could be figured out by the city engineer's office and when the road is ultimately constructed it is believed the plans will be followed very closely.

There was a movement on foot to have the cost of the road raised by public subscription, but if the city and county get together on it, such a course will probably be unnecessary and it may be financed by public funds.

A MUTILATED NOSE.

Long Beach Woman is Bitten by Enraged Ostrich.

Long Beach, Cal., Jan. 8.—Miss Bertha Proctor, secretary of the Long Beach ostrich farm, is suffering from a mutilated nose, the result of an encounter with one of the old birds at the farm. She was viewing the creatures, and one of them attempted to take a nail she was holding in her fingers. Being repulsed, it attacked, her, snapped her nose and held on to it for two or three minutes. The marks of the injury will remain some time, but the attending physician does not think they will be permanent.

SPECIAL EXAMINER WEST OF ST. CLOUD IS DEAD.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Dr. Max West, a special examiner in the bureau of corporations of the department of commerce and labor and a well known economist, died of pneumonia yesterday at his home here, at the age of 38 years. His principal work with the bureau of corporations has been in connection with the Standard Oil investigations. Dr. West was a native of St. Cloud, Minn.

Don't Blame Your Stomach

When Without Exertion Or Cost You Can Enjoy Meals and Cure Dyspepsia.

Don't blame your stomach or your luck when your meals declare war on your system.

When the stomach won't do its work it is because it cannot.

When foul smelling odors come from your stomach, when the head aches and the sourness of mouth every morning makes you hate your breakfast, when dreams and nightmare assail you, don't give up the fight.

This is the appeal of nature, and it should be heard.

Over-eating, late suppers, poorly chewed food, too rich pastries and under-done cooking are some of the causes of the stomach's ill health.

When the stomach is busy, it presses and churns all the liquid matter from food and with its juices dissolves into liquid form or pulp everything which comes into it.

If such food be poisonous it affects the juices, attacks the stomach, goes into the blood and weakens the entire system.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest a full meal easily without material assistance from the stomach. They will restock the gastric fluid with all the elements needed. They build up the blood, destroy sour taste, bad breath, belching, stomach and bowel trouble and quickly restore natural conditions.

One grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food in the stomach or in a glass vial without aid of the human digestive apparatus.

The method of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are the methods of Nature.

They contain every requisite for the stomach and digestion. After a meal one of these little tablets when it enters the stomach mingles with the juices, attacks the food and digests it. It removes the fermented and decayed mass, lying stagnant there and eases the stomach at once.

It is wholly a question for you to solve. Your druggist will furnish Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets 50c the box, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package free. Address, F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

THE ANNUAL JANUARY CLEARING SALE!

Fashionable Suits, Stylish Coats, Dressy Skirts, Dainty Waists, Stunning Furs.

At Prices That Will Appeal to Every Economical Buyer!

WHAT A CLEARING SALE MEANS AT THE NEW YORK STORE

First of all, we never sell merchandise at "Half Price" unless the goods carry fictitious prices; no merchant can afford to sell at "Half Price." Our regular prices are lower than the excessively marked stocks in town that are cut in two and selling at "Half." We reduce our prices to the lowest notch we can, and still pay light and rent. Our Coats, Skirts, and Waists are bought in the same market as the high-priced stores; our merchandise has the style, the quality; and, lastly, you save good, big sums on your purchases at the NEW YORK STORE.

VIOLATION OF THE LAW

Selling Intoxicants From House to House Is Not Allowable.

Trouble in Sight—Liquor Ordinance May Pass Monday.

Local liquor dealers who make it a practice to send solicitors around from house to house, taking family orders for intoxicants, are liable to get into trouble with the city authorities. It is claimed that this is virtually selling liquor without a license, and therefore is against the state law.

The practice has been indulged in quite freely in Duluth, and it is understood that city authorities intend to put a stop to it. It is perfectly permissible for liquor establishments with licenses to deliver goods after they have been purchased by the customer, on the premises named in the license, but the taking of house-to-house orders does not fill the bill, it is claimed. Evidence has been collected, and probably one or two arrests will be made.

Local saloon men are very much interested just now in the proposed new liquor ordinance, and wondering what the chances are for its passage. The ordinance has been up in one form or another for the last three meetings, and every time its backers have failed to secure a sufficient number of votes to secure its passage.

It is hinted that there will be a different story to tell next Monday night, when the council next meets, however. There is a report, on what seems to be good authority, that enough votes will be lined up to secure a passage of the ordinance, despite votes to the contrary in the past. It is said an argument has been introduced which has resulted, or will result, in the backward aldermen looking at the situation in a new light.

Those voting against the measure say they did so because the new ordinance provides that an accused liquor dealer shall not be entitled to a trial by jury, as is allowed by the state law. The old ordinance was the same in this respect, for neither did it provide for a trial by jury. Prosecutions have been brought under the state law, which allows a jury trial, for the old liquor license, together with several other ordinances of the city, have been found unconstitutional, through a decision in the Max Bahr case.

At the present time Duluth is practically without a liquor ordinance, all prosecution against the saloons being brought under the state law. It is claimed that it is impossible to secure a conviction under the jury rule.

AUDIENCE SEES SINGERS FUSS

Unedifying Remarks Are Heard Above Orchestra in Berlin.

Berlin, Jan. 8.—During a performance of Wagner's "Walkure," at the Royal Opera house, Dresden, an amusing scene took place between the prima donnas, Frau Wittich and Frau Krull, two of the best known Wagner singers in Germany. These ladies have long been rivals, and only on rarest occasions are they allowed to appear on the stage at the same time, the director of the opera being afraid that their dislike of one another might show itself in deeds.

In the "Walkure" Frau Wittich took the part of Brunhild, Frau Krull that of Sieglinde. All went well until the scene where Sieglinde falls on her knees before Brunhild. Instead, however, of assuming the attitude of supplication, Sieglinde was observed to stand before her partner, and before a minute had elapsed the two ladies were observed in a violent altercation.

The director of the orchestra insisted on a fortissimo from every instrument under his control, but, notwithstanding this, certain words of battle were overheard in the theater, which were, to say the least unedifying. The cause of the outbreak was a preference shown to Frau Wittich by Richard Strauss in giving her the leading part in his forthcoming opera, "Elektra.' Frau Krull felt herself ignored, and as Sieglinde would not condescend to kneel.

WOMAN OF MYSTERY

Lady With Six Trunks and French Maid at Spalding.

The woman in the case, is "Miss Josephine Sachon of St. Paul," as she wrote her name upon the hotel register. Who she really is, will probably remain a mystery.

For a week and a half the mysterious woman has been at the hotel. Up until last night, when the mysterious woman left for the Pacific coast, the only three people who can remember having seen her, were the clerk of the hotel, the porter, and a reporter for The Herald.

Employes of the Great Northern ticket office saw her late yesterday afternoon, the first time she left the room since she has been in Duluth. After buying a ticket for Spokane, the mysterious woman asked the ticket agent to break a $500 bill. From that unusual incident the employes of the Great Northern office will remember the mysterious woman.

"Miss Sachon" speaks but indifferent English. In fact, she can hardly make herself understood in that language. Her coming to Duluth was a mystery and her leaving was equally mysterious.

In the first place, "Miss Sachon" has six trunks and a French maid. That was enough to attract attention. In the second place, as has been mentioned above, she has never left her room during her stay of over a week at the Spalding. Her wants were attended to by the maid and some of them were very elaborate wants. She received very important and official looking letters from some foreign country, all covered with queer and confusing postmarks. In fact, her very presence at the hotel, was a thing of mystery that none of the people around the hotel could fathom.

By some it is said that the lady was an employe of a foreign government. Nothing could be gleaned from the lady. When she discovered that she was talking with a newspaper man, she refused to lift the veil of mystery that has hung about her presence here. Nothing more than the fact that she came from South America, which spells mystery in itself, and that she thought America, and especially Duluth a very, very cold place indeed, could be gained from the lady.

Last night "Miss Sachon" and her six trunks and her French maid left the city. Only the porter and a man who came down in the elevator with her, and the hackman, who carried her to the depot, saw her depart. She wore a heavy veil, so that the two men who came down in the elevator with her, would be unable to give a description of the lady that would render the least assistance to any one who was curious regarding her appearance.

When the lady registered, Clerk Shattuck was on watch. First she essayed Spanish upon the unsuspecting clerk. He shook his head. Then French was tried. Again the clerk shook his head. German and another language that the clerk was not familiar with, were attempted, as a medium of understanding, but they all proved equally futile as a means of exchanging the pleasantries of the day. Then the lady attempted a broken English speech and finally succeeded in making her wants known. Then she disappeared into the elevator, and was not seen until she made a hurried exit from the lobby last night.

The mystery has come and gone, and none are the wiser. The six large trunks, marked with foreign labels, the chic French maid, the foreign letters, the mysterious seclusion, the sudden going, and the big bill—all of these circumstances have led to many stories about the mysterious woman.

CABINET WAITS FOR MR. BRYCE

Washington, Jan. 8.—James Bryce, the British ambassador, held a conference with the president today. It was postponed fifteen minutes beyond opening of the semi-weekly cabinet meeting and the president kept his cabinet waiting until he had concluded. Just what the subject of their conference was, Mr. Bryce refused to disclose.

The ambassador declared that treaties between Great Britain and the United States which Secretary Root and he have been negotiating, have not yet been signed.

SUPERIOR NEWS

MONEY RECOVERED.

Three Hold-Up Artists Said to Have Confessed Guilt.

J. M. Cramer, W. Lavis and Charles Wallace, the three men held by the Superior police suspected of holding up W. T. Riordan of Chetek, are said to have confessed their guilt.

Last night Lieut. Scoon, on information furnished by one of the prisoners, recovered the certificates of deposit and money, amounting to nearly $1,600, stolen by the hold-up men. The pocketbook containing the certificates was found in a dry goods box in the alley, between Tower and Ogden avenues.

Riordan presents a battered appearance, as the result of the assault. His jaw is swollen, and one of his eyes partially blackened. He said he came to the city on an evening train, registered at a lower Tower avenue hotel, and went out to find some friends. He met the three men under arrest in a Third street saloon, and it was on his description of them that they were arrested.

Grading Contract.

Swan Holquist was yesterday awarded the contract for grading and bridging East Second street, between Dawson and Hudson avenues, by the board of public works. The contractor's bid was $7,515.69. The work will be started at once.

Power Company Owas Island.

The St. Louis River & Power company was yesterday awarded a favorable verdict in their civil action against Michael McMahon in the circuit court. The case was one in which the possession of a certain island in the river opposite Fond du Lac, was in dispute. During the trial the point was raised as to what state held jurisdiction over the island.

Cabin is Destroyed.

A cook stove and a few potatoes were all that were saved from the fire that consumed the homestead of G. B. Baker, several days ago. The cabin was located seven miles south of Hawthorne.

The settler has a wife and six little children who, through the ravages of the fire, are left destitute. The neighbors, though none of them are well to do, are helping them as much as is in their power.

A. Ostergren Dies.

A. Ostergren, assistant superintendent of the Allouez Bay Dock company, died yesterday morning, at 7:40 o'clock, at his home, 1316 Harrison avenue, after an illness of several months. He was 30 years old and had lived with his family in Superior for seven years. Tuberculosis was the direct cause of his death, although he had never fully recovered from an operation for appendicitis. The funeral will be conducted under the auspices of the Superior Masons. The services will be held Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, from St. Alban's Episcopal church. Interment will be at Greenwood cemetery.

RANKS SECOND IN INCREASE

Duluth Makes Big Gain During December; Pueblo Is First.

The city of Duluth rans second among the cities of the country in point of building increase for the month of December over the same month the preceding year.

Pueblo, Colo., ranks first with a gain of 456 per cent and Duluth is second with 440.

During the month of December in this city there were issued by S. M. Kielly, sixty-three building permits aggregating $332,150.

REIGNS SUPREME!

The Steinway Piano is admittedly the instrument for the Virtuoso.

JOSEPH LEHVINNE

Now upon his third tour of America with the instrument which has assisted so many aspiring musicians to the goal of fame.

To fully appreciate this statement, we have but to refer to the list of noted piano users.

Franz Liszt, Richard Wagner, Hector Belioz, Anton Rubinstein, Charles Gounod, Theodore Thomas, Dr. Joseph Joachim, Eugene D. Albert, and many, many other equally illustrious. Those who are fortunate enough to hear the great Russian pianist tomorrow night, will have the privilege of judging for themselves the great power, and delicacy, splendid action, and above all the wonderful singing tone of the King of Pianos. A true work of genius, the attainment of the highest ideals in cantiteur, and tone color. Its response to every thought and wish of the artist is perfect. We invite you to call and see our special display of Steinway Pianos, and obtain for your library a 150 pp. volume of portraits of musical celebrities.

DIVORCE COURT HAS CUPID DOWN AND OUT

Three More Decrees Are Granted in the District Court.

Mrs. Cosmos D. Hone Gets Separation From Her Husband.

With tears streaming from her eyes, Ida Dorothy Hone told a story of inhuman cruelty and neglect suffered at the hands of her husband, Cosmos D. Hone, to Judge Ensign, in district court this morning. She was given a decree of divorce, custody of their one child, Virginia, and $30 a month allimony, for the support of the child. Mr. Hone made no appearance, although when the suit was first brought, he prepared to fight it.

Mrs. Hone's case was probably the most interesting to the morbidly curious that has come up this term. She is a littlet woman, 25 years old, and might pass for less, pretty and refined. She was fetchingly gowned in black, and a black turban set off her blonde hair and the sadness of her face, so that she made a picture on the witness stand that isn't at all common in the Duluth courts.

Mrs. Hone bore up well under the ordeal, although her voice was choked with emotion several times, and she had to stop to recover herself. In telling of especially trying periods in her married life, she was almost overcome several times, and only after a determined effort was she able to go on.

Mrs. Hone said her husband is now 34 years old, and they were married at Lodi, Wis., in July, 1900, living for a time at Merrill, Wis., and coming to Duluth in 1905. Mr. Hone was first associated with J. Alfred Mellin, and later embarked in business for himself, having a tailoring and repair shop on West First street.

The cruelty, to which she was subjected, began about six months after their marriage, she said. Her husband, from that time on, carried out a course of cruelty, which culminated in their separation and the suit for divorce. On innumerable occasions, she said, he cursed, struck, choked, and pinched her. He had a violent temper and made no effort to restrain it, giving it full vent in abuse of her, she claims. He cursed her when her mother died and she wept: he cursed her when she wanted to go to Milwaukee, just before the child was born; he cursed his aged mother, when she was visiting them, Mrs. Hone said.

She said she wasn't furnished with enough money to properly clothe herself and the child, and was neglected on many occasions, when she needed help. When the child was sick, she said Mr. Hone refused to carry her meals to her, and she had to call on a friend to help her, or she and the child would have been without food.

She said he neglected the child and would not allow her to come near him. "When Virginia wanted to climb on his lap, he would push her away, roughly. He was afraid she would take the crease out of his trousers," declared Mrs. Hone.

She said her husband had told her to get out of the house many times, saying that he didn't want to be bothered with her or the child. I got down on my knees to him once and pleaded with him to be good to me," she said. "He said 'If you don't like my treatment, get out and find another man. A woman is lucky to have any kind of a man.'"

Depositions of Mrs. Hazel Stoudt, formerly of Duluth and now of Ballard, Wash., and Mrs. Whatmore, Mrs. Hone's sister, of Chicago, were introduced as corroborative of Mrs. Hone's testimony. Both mentioned specific instances of cruelty on the part of Hone toward his wife, and Mrs. Whatmore swore that she saw blue marks on Mrs. Hone's neck, made by Hone choking her. The court granted the relief requested.

When the suit for divorce was first filed against him, Hone engaged an attorney and prepared to fight it, but later evidently changed his mind, and, selling out his business, left the city. He has figured in the public eye through a suit he brought against J. Alfred Mellin, claiming a partnership in the business, and through the present suit. After the court had ordered him to pay temporary allimony, he defaulted and it was necessary to take him before the court to have the order enforced.

Hone was a very neat appearing man, always well dressed, and a veritable bundle of energy. He was successful in business and his wife claimed on the stand that during the past fall, he made between $200 and $300 a month.

The case of Aaron P. Carlson vs. Anna Carlson clogged the divorce mill somewhat, taking up nearly all of the morning session, and the list was not disposed of. Three decrees were granted, however, within an hour after the Carlson case had been continued until later in the day that more evidence might be introduced.

Mrs. Carlson, who is 28 years old, is confined in the state insane asylum at Fergus Falls, having been committed Oct. 18, 1906. Friends are contesting the case through a guardian ad litem, the defense being set up that Mr. Carlson's grounds of divorce are based on actions of the woman while she was demented.

Mr. Carlson is 37 years old and they were married at West Duluth June 19, 1902. He bases his claim for divorce on grounds of cruelty, saying his wife neglected him and the children, accused him of infidelity, scolded him, and otherwise cruelly treated him almost constantly from the time of their marriage. The defense attempted to show that all of the actions were the result of insanity. There are two children and Mr. Carlson wants a divorce and custody of them.

Gertrude R. Cook was given a divorce because after over fifteen years of married life, her husband disappeared, and she hasn't heard of him since. She is now 33 years old and her husband, William M. Cook, is 36. They were married at St. Louis, Mo., June 22, 1890, and five children were born to them, the oldest being 14 and the youngest 3 years old.

The couple came to Duluth about six years ago and resided on Duluth Heights. Oct. 6, 1905, without a word to his wife of his intention, Cook departed and nothing has been seen or heard of him since. Mrs. Cook said she sought for him through the Tinsmiths and Metal Workers unions, but without avail.

Jacob Nickson's wedded happiness was shortlived. He and his wife, Sandra Nickson, were married in April, 1903. About a month later, Mrs. Nickson said she wanted to go to Finland and she left him without ceremony. A year later, carrying a child, she sought him out at a lumber camp, where he was working and asked for some money. He wanted her to live with him again and she refused. She left and he hasn't heard of her since.

He is now 29 years old and she is 33. They lived at Ely at the time of the separation. Nickson was given the desired separation.

HAVERHILL CLUB IS CENSURED

Commission Says Club Has Played Loose With Baseball Rules.

Cincinnati, Jan. 8.—Censure for the Haverhill club is included in a decision by the National baseball commission awarding Player John McInnis to the Philadelphia American League club. Haverhill claimed the player because of a reserve clause placed in his receipt for pay in full, and Philadelphia claimed that when he was signed, on Aug. 8, 1908, he was not under contract with the New England club, having failed to sign the contract that was tendered him when he joined the Haverhill club. In the course of the testimony it developed that he played with Haverhill five days in the week, but on Saturdays and Sundays was permitted to play with the Beverly club, an independent club outside of organized baseball, this fact being cited by Philadelphia to show that McInnis simply played with Haverhill part of the time, to help them out.

In conclusion the commission says that under the rules, "if the commission desires, they can inflict a fine against said club for playing this player contrary to the provisions of the national agreement."

The Toledo club of the American association, in another decision loses its right to Player Ward Miller, who had been drafted by the Chicago Nationals after he had been purchased from Wausau by Toledo, the fact that he failed to report under the purchase prior to the drafting season, making him subject to draft. The Wausau club however, must repay to Toledo the $600 given for the player for drafting, whom Chicago must pay the usual price.

CURLING CLUB TO BE REPRESENTED

Five Rinks Made Up to Attend St. Paul Bonspiel.

Five and probably six rinks will represent the Duluth Curling club at the big bonspiel to be held in St. Paul, which begins Monday.

The rinks are made up of some of the best local curlers, and they hope to be in the list of winners.

During the absence of these rinks there will be a good chance for those left in the city to get a number of games out of the way and an effort is being made to schedule all the games possible while the rinks are away.

The Duluth curlers are much pleased over the new trophies offered by the St. Paul club, particularly the one donated for competition between the smaller Minnesota towns, as a great effort is being made to establish curling clubs in the smaller places.

The following are the five rinks who have already declared their intention of attending:

William Shaver, P. Helmick, C. T. Fairbairn, Ron Smith, skip.

W. C. Sherwood, C. C. Staacke, Thomas Gibson, R. J. McLeod, skip.

Fred Kennedy, C. J. McBride, E. N. Whyte, C. D. Brewer, skip.

TO BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Attell and Weeks Agree to Fight a 30-Round Bout.

Goldfield, Nev., Jan. 7.—Articles of agreement were signed today by Attell, champion featherweight of the world and Freddie Weeks, to fight a 30-round championship battle next Thursday evening under the auspices of the Tex Ricard club. Five ounce gloves and soft surgical bandages are allowable under the agreement.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB FOR HILL

Preliminary Steps Towards Organization Taken at Meeting.

Preliminary steps toward the organization of the Central Hillside Improvement club were taken last night at a meeting of interested residents, held at 407 East Fourth street, in A. J. Harker's office. The purpose of the club will be to look after the interests of the central hillside, and bring about public improvements there whenever possible.

The gathering was quite largely attended by residents of the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth wards, and sentiment was generally in favor of organization. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws. A. J. Harker was elected temporary president, and C. Sundby was chosen secretary and treasurer. These two, with R. Murchison, make up the committee on by-laws.

While no name has been adopted yet, it is understood it will be the Central Hillside Improvement club.

Lumley Selected Manager.

New York, Jan. 8.—The appointment of Harry Lumley as manager of the Brooklyn baseball club of the National league was announced today by President Ebbetts of that club. Lumley has been right fielder of the Brooklyns. He succeeded Patsy Donovan.

Mazuma After Fight.

Reno, Nev., Jan. 8.—According to a dispatch from Mazuma, a mining camp in the center of the state, the athletic club of that city met Wednesday night and decided to offer a purse of $100,000 for a fight between Jeffries and Johnson, the fight to take place within the next six months at that place, preferably on July 4. "Bill" Morrison, formerly prominent in British Columbia sports, and Joe Nichols, who have pulled off a number of fights in Tonopah, along with a dozen others, are mentioned as being behind the project. Local sports are not inclined to take the offer seriously.

LONG FOR MORE OF THE BEAUTIFUL

Just a wee bit more snow would put the ski hill in the best sort of condition, and the members of the club are praying that this may happen before Sunday.

The opening tournament has been planned any number of times, but so far this year there has been very little doing in the snow line, and each time the date has been postponed.

It has got to be a question with the enthusiasts whether or not there will be any of the popular Norwegian sport in Duluth this winter.

The hopes of the ski riders were raised considerably yesterday when it began to snow, but it didn't continue long enough, and it is doubtful if there is sufficient to make the opening a success.

The Duluth club is bound to put on the first tournament soon, and if the weather man does not come to the rescue, they will engage teams and haul their own snow.

If things can be made ready, the first skiing will be seen on the new hill Sunday afternoon.

FIGHTER FORGOT HIS AFFINITY

Ketchel Figures in Grand Rapids Breach of Promise Case.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 8.—Stanley Ketchel, the pugilist, was arrested here yesterday on a complaint sworn to by Elizabeth Houman, 18 years old, who charges that Ketchel is guilty of breach of promise. She claims damages in the sum of $10,000. Ketchel was taken into custody by the sheriff, and after an hour at the jail, gave bonds in the sum of $10,000 and was released. Ketchel declares the charges are blackmail.

Nelson Dewey vs. Y. M. C. A.

Tonight at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium will occur the annual Nelson-Dewey-Y. M. C. A. basket ball game.

Both teams are strong and as they are both out for the championship, a hot game will probably result.

WITH THE CURLERS.

Two Games Played in Presidents' and One in Bagley.

Three interesting games were played at the rink of the Duluth Curling club last night. The ice was in good condition and many spectators were in attendance. The rinks and scores follow:

MILLION DOLLAR FORGERY CHARGE

California Broker Arrested on Complaint of Multi-Millionaire.

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 8.—F. B. Signor, real estate promoter and mining broker of this city, was arrested last night on complaint sworn to by James H. Murray, a multi-millionaire banker and mining man of Montana, Salt Lake City and Seattle, but more recently of Monterey, Cal., charging Signor with forgeries aggregating nearly $1,000,000. Signor is alleged to have forged Murray's name to four notes of $100,000 each, as well as to numerous other negotiable documents.

REPORTED DEATH OF RICH SPINSTER WHO HAD FOUR AUTOS, DISBELIEVED

London, Jan. 8.—The mysterious disappearance and the remarkable career of Miss Violet Gordon Charlesworth are furnishing the English public with a sensation equal to that of the Seinheil case in Paris.

Miss Charlesworth, an attractive spinster, who lived with her parents in Bodera street, Asaptha, Wales, has been reported killed while motoring in the direction of Penmaenwar, with her sister and chauffeur, last Saturday. The sister and the chauffeur aver that the motor came into collision with the retaining wall of a road along the edge of a cliff overlooking the sea, and that Miss Charlesworth was thrown over the wall into the sea.

The sister and the chauffeur gave the foregoing account to the local authorities, and since then the members of the family have declined to see inquirers to give details. Those who have examined the scene of the supposed tragedy do not consider it possible that the body could have been washed away. A woman's hat was found upon the rock, but there was no indication of a body having been thrown over the cliff.

Miss Charlesworth's picturesque career suggests that of Madame Humbert. She said she was heiress of a Gen. Gordon, her godfather, who left her $744,000, which was to be paid over to her on her twenty-fifth birthday anniversary, Jan. 13, with accumulated interest, making the amount $2,500,000.

Miss Charlesworth usually went by the name of Gordon, and visited London frequently alone. She operated heavily upon the London Stock Exchange and, according to the Evening News, owes her broker $50,000. She took a large country place at Inverness last summer, which was sumptuously furnished, the walls being draped with the Gordon plaid. She had four motor cars. The story of her death is generally disbelieved, although her parents have offered a reward for the recovery of the body. The disappearance and the family's secrecy are causing endless speculation.

SIX NIGHT RIDERS TO GET DEATH SENTENCE, BUT MAN WHO SLEW RANKEN GETS 20 YEARS

Union City, Tenn., Jan. 8.—With a verdict of guilty in varying degrees, the jury in the night rider trials has reported. The twelve men found Garrett Johnson, Tid Burton, Roy Ranson, Fred Pinton, Arthur Cloar, and Sam Applewhite, guilty of murder in the first degree, with mitigating circumstances, and Bud Morris and Bob Hoffmurder in the second degree, and fixed their punishment at twenty years in the penitentiary. The punishment of the six first named defendants was left to the court, and may be death or life imprisonment. The defense filed a motion for a new trial, which was set for hearing Saturday, and which will be overruled, as indicated by the court, when sentence will be pronounced.

The court will sentence the first six named defendants to death.

The room was crowded, as it was during the argument, and the bailiff called for the county physician because Juror Rosson was in a state of collapse. It was half an hour before Rosson was revived. The jury then filed in, and six deputies were summoned to carry the bed upon which the sick juror reclined.

The defendants took the verdict with calmness as they had been expecting it. Attorney Pierce turned to them when it was announced, and said: "We will tear this case to pieces in the supreme court."

The state expected a verdict of first degree murder in all eight cases, and was visibly disappointed. Bob Huffman, one of the men to escape with twenty years, is the man who, according to the confession of Frank Fehringer, fired the shot which killed Capt. Ranken as he was being drawn up by the rope.

When the jury's readiness to report was announced, the military surrounded the courthouse and a detail of soldiers, with revolver holsters open, was deployed around the walls of the courtroom, but aside from a whispered buzz of conversation, there was no demonstration.

EFFORTS AGAIN MADE TO LOCATE ELOPING MINISTER AND HIS CHILD-WIFE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 8.—A letter has been received by the police from the chief of police of Hartford, Conn., asking that detectives search for Rev. Jere Cook and Miss Floretta Whaley, the eloping couple from Long Island, who after their sensational escapade in the East, were discovered a year ago living incognito, in San Francisco.

The reason of the Hartford police desiring to know the whereabouts of the couple is unknown. It is stated that the couple left San Francisco recently for this city.

It is conjectured that the search for them at this time may be in connection with possible divorce proceedings by the wife of Cook or in relation to the inheritance of Miss Whaley. The couple now have two young children, the oldest 2 years old.

INSPECTION DISCUSSED

No Action on Medical Examination of School Children.

Good Teachers Scarce—Lakeside School Crowded—Few Truants.

WHAT THE SCHOOL BOARD DID.

Indorsed the action of Supt. Denfeld in inviting the Minnesota State Teachers' association to hold the annual meeting in Duluth.

Authorized the president of the board and the clerk to open negotiations with the city and devise some plan by which the board, by shouldering one-third of the expense, might secure for the new Ensign school a sanitary sewerage system.

Discussed the opening of a manual training room in the Bryant school and decided to repair a room in the basement and furnish it with the proper equipment for shop work.

Discussed the medical examination of all school children and referred the matter back to the committee for further investigation.

Accepted the report of the treasurer, who reported a balance in the bank of $96,373.54.

Granted permission to Mr. Denfeld to attend the meeting of the department of superintendence of the N. E. A. to be held in Chicago Feb. 23, with expenses to be met by the board.

But little business was transacted at the regular monthly meeting of the school board, held last night in the board room of the Central high school. The meeting was long drawn out, however.

In his report to the board for the month of December, Supt. Denfeld called the attention of the board to the fact that the Lakeside school has been for some time past overcrowded. An additional room has been fitted up and the situation somewhat relieved.

On account of ill health and the moving from the city, a number of teachers resigned and their resignations, together with the new appointments, were accepted.

The superintendent called attention to th fact that a number of teachers have been found incompetent, and suggested that he be allowed to take, in the course of each school year, a trip to other cities that he might study the system of engaging teachers, so that none but the best of people in his work be engaged. He said that on account of the scarcity of teachers he was often forced to seek the aid of employment agencies, and while in some instances the teachers engaged had on all that was required of them, still, in a majority of cases, they were totally unfit for the work. He said that these teachers were no longer connected with the Duluth schools and that their places had been filled with persons of ability.

The matter of medical inspection was touched on by the superintendent in his report. He advocated the idea and recommended that the board take steps at once in this direction. In connection with the inspection idea, he brought to the notice of the board how successfully the method was working in Boston and other cities where it had been adopted.

This subject brought forth much discussion by the members of the board, and was finally referred back to the committee for a more thorough investigation.

Mr. Denfeld said that the oil which is put on the floors of the buildings are proving very dangerous to the children, and cited an instance that came to his notice where a boy fell as a direct result of the oil, where it had not been absorbed by the wood. Director Stevens suggested that the boys be winter-shod.

Prof. Denfeld said that the manual training in the Lakeside school was proving very successful, and that the pupils are taking a great interest in the work.

He called the attention of the board to the fact that the West end was not receiving its share of manual training, and suggested that a manual training room be made in the basement of the Bryant school. Whether to finish the room up in good style or whether to simply put in a floor and the equipment, so that the room could be used this year, called forth another discussion, and it was finally decided to fix the room up temporarily and, if at the end of the year it is found to be necessary, additional repairs will at that time be made.

The superintendent also reported an accident in the Adams school. A transom fell from its place over the door, during the month of November, and a small piece of glass struck a boy in the eye. At first the accident was not considered dangerous, but later inflammation set it, and a doctor has recommended that the eye be taken out. How the accident happened is a mystery, although it is thought by the teacher that he was playing with the wire that guards the opening and closing of the transom.

Contrary to the usual report, the superintendent announced that the high school lunch room was now on a paying basis. Mr. Brewer wanted to know if they were "holding up" the high school children.

The average daily attendance for the month of November was 10,839.47 as compared to 10,187.8 during the same month in 1907. The total enrollment for the month was 11,908 and as compared with 11,407 during the year 1907, a net gain of 501.

There was an increase of 110 in the enrollment from October until November. There were ten labor certificates issued during the month.

The truant officer investigated ninety-six cases. He found but three to be truants and only one habitual truant. There were found to be two children without shoes.

The committee on maintenance of buildings and grounds reported that the Ensign school now under construction in the West end, is under roof and that the work of installing the heating plant is now going on. The school, it is expected, will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the September term.

They also reported that the architects are at work on the plans for the new C. C. Salter school and that the figures will be in the hands of the committee by March 1.

FORT WILLIAM'S MAYOR.

Ald. L. L. Peltier is Chosen by Large Majority.

Fort William, Ont., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—All the by-laws were carried by good majorities, while the plebiscite regarding the changing of the name of the city was defeated in favor of the abolition of the commission.

The interest all through the campaign has centered around the mayoralty contest. At first there were four candidates in the field, but Joshua Dyke, on account of illness was obliged to drop out, while Harry Harkness also retired on nomination day, leaving the field to Messrs. Peltier and Morton, both members of last year's council. The result was always doubtful and the surprise of the campaign was the large majority that Mr. Peltier secured.

The council over which Mr. Peltier will preside will consist of the following:

First ward—W. T. Rankin, George Grant; Second ward—A. E. Rutledge, Dr. T. E. Dean; Third ward—Joseph Oakley, W. K. O'Donnell; Fourth ward—R. Ferguson, R. Hymers.

The vote for the members of the board of water, light and telephone commissioners resulted in the re-election of James Piper and the election of William McCall, and thus the new commission will consist of these two gentlemen and Messrs. W. J. Ross and F. S. Jones.

TAFT WILL NOT ADDRESS BLACKS

Atlanta Negroes in Strife Over His Intended Speech.

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 8.—Acting upon advice, Mr. Taft yesterday wrote a letter to Asa G. Chandler, chairman of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, withdrawing his engagement to address the negroes of that city.

A lively row is in progress among the Atlanta negroes, over the question of where Mr. Taft should make his address.

TAKE MURDER SUSPECT.

Caught at Eau Claire for Wabasha, Minn., Killing.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 8.—William Miller has been arrested for the murder of Bernhard Roemer of Wabasha, Minn. Miller was captured in the town of Lincoln, where he had been hiding two weeks in a barn and going forth at night for provisions. The cold, however, proved too much for him. He was shadowed several days, and when he tried to escape two neighbors caught him and held him until the sheriff arrived. It is asserted that Miller mysteriously disappeared after the murder of Roemer last fall.

Frankhauser Trial Set.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 8.—George Frankhauser, the alleged Great Northern train robber, who was brought back from Moorhead, Minn., by a federal marshal, was arraigned in United States court yesterday and his trial set for Jan. 19.

FEW CALLS FOR HELP

Cold Weather Has Not Brought Much Poverty to Light.

Few Men Apply for Food at the Bethel.

The number of calls for assistance made on the charitable institutions of this city since the cold weather of the past few days set in, is surprisingly small, when the size of the city and the extreme cold are considered.

At the Bethel, the reading and lounging rooms are far from crowded with men seeking shelter from the cold. Today only fifteen men asked for food at the Bethel. Conditions are far different this year from what they were last, when at this time a multitude of men clamored each day at the Bethel for bread and something hot to drink.

When a stranger asks for food at the Bethel, and he is sober and seems worthy of assistance, it is never refused him, though he is often set at some small piece of work to prove that he is willing to earn his fare. The Bethel does this so as not to encourage the worthless to hang around its building.

The cold snap has forced a few families to have their names added to those which are already on the lists of charity as dependent and worthy poor. There have been more demands made for warm clothing, but not nearly as many as might have been expected under the circumstances. The demands have been met in every case thought to be worthy. But there have been few really pitiable cases brought to the attention of the charitable bodies. There may be many such cases, but they have not been reported.

Along Michigan street, the Bowery, and Fifth avenue west, the employment agencies have been well filled with men seeking warmth and jobs. The warmth, in most cases, was easier to find than the jobs, though a good many men have been furnished work within the last few days.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Mrs. C. H. Thornton was hostess this afternoon at a pretty reception, at her home, 1511 East Third street. Most effective decorations were used throughout the rooms. In the drawing room Mexican poinsettas were used with a pretty effect, and the glow of candles diffused a soft light through the rooms. Receiving with the hostess were Mrs. C. E. Judd, Mrs. E. S. Kelley of Fargo and Mrs. Lucia Judd McAuliffe. Assisting about the parlors weer Mrs. A. H. Davis and Mrs. Leonard Bradley.

In the dining room decorations in yellow were used. Yellow jonquils were the flowers used, and yellow candles and appointments. Presiding were Mrs. Charles F. Macdonald and Mrs. E. F. Burg, and assisting were Miss Irene Whitlinig, Miss Ethel McLean, Miss Irma Richards and Miss Gladys Heimbach. During the receiving hours, between 3 and 6 o'clock, nearly two hundred guests called.

SECOND COTILLION.

Delightful Affair is Danced at Country Club.

The members of the Cotillion club entertained last evening at the second of the series of germans, the affair being given at the Country club. John Sinclair, assisted by Miss Jessie Hartley, led in the series of attractive and amusing figures which were danced. Mrs. G. G. Hartley and Mrs. F. E. House presided at the favor booth and among the dancers were:

Mr. and Mrs. Powell Grady.

Misses—
Hartley, Irma Hartley, Katrina Richardson, Swift, Marjorie Congdon, Jessica Marshall, Julia Morrow, Helen Hale, Anne Hale, Mabel Duncan, Mary Paine, Kennedy, Madge Millar, Genevieve Washburn, Julia Hunter, Esther Adams, Ostrom, Patrick.

Messrs.—
Peyton, Sands, Hahn, Krieger, Drinkwater, Ned Congdon, Walter Congdon, Beckwith, Robert Marshall, Walker Jamar, Sinclair, Hale, Collins, Clapp, Kennedy, Bernard Marshall, Allen House, D. G. Cutler, Jr., Herbert Spencer, Howard Simonds.

Bridge Reception.

Mrs. D. H. Day was hostess yesterday afternoon at a large bridge reception at the Spalding. The game was played at twelve tables and the favors were won by Mrs. T. A. Hammond, Mrs. O. H. Clarke and Mrs. J. W. Norton.

Dr. and Mrs. Day will be hosts at a dancing party at the Spalding Monday evening of next week.

Civic Banquet.

The sale of tickets for the banquet, to be given tomorrow evening at the Spalding, will be closed by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The tickets are on sale at the Commercial club, at the library, or may be secured from Mrs. E. A. Silberstein. Among the assisting hostesses tomorrow evening, in addition to the list published last evening, will be Mrs. W. W. Sanford, Mrs. J. A. Stephenson, Mrs. F. L. Barrows, Mrs. E. A. Silberstein and Mr Swangie.

The banquet will be served promptly at 7 o'clock and will be preceded by a reception from 6:30 o'clock on. There is much interest being shown in the affair by the club women of the city and the business men. An interesting program of toasts has been arranged with out-of-town speakers, and several by Duluth's prominent citizens.

Informal Party.

Miss Marie Chambers entertained the members of the B. and N. club at a Christmas tree party last evening at her home, 329 Fourth avenue west. Those present were:

Mesdames—
Daily, Hay,
Bear, Wing.

Misses—
Lucille Patton, Kate Nichols, Jessie Nichols, Lulu King, Lillian Bukham, Mildred Gooch, Anna Mallett, Addie Mallett, Miller, Wilkinson, Gertrude Schiller, Mabel Read.

Kodahpa Club Party.

The members of the Kodahpa club will entertain at a dancing party Tuesday evening Jan. 19, the affair to be given at Flaaten's hall. The committees in charge of the affair are: Executive, Ray Johns, Harris Trux, Philip Hoigate, Willis Putnam and Robert Johnson; reception committee, Allen Trux, Ray MacCrea, Norman Norris, John Steinback, Earl Hanks; floor committee, Gilbert Ketcham, Frank Falk, Lynn Whitson, Earl White, Ray Fenton and Edward Hilliard.

Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph LaChance of Hunter's Park, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret, to Mathew J. Biesener. The wedding will take place the latter part of the month.

ON AGAIN—OFF AGAIN.

Now She Wants Him—Now She Doesn't.

When a girl's letter begins after this fashion: "At such a place a year ago I met a young man," I am always prepared either to hear that the acquaintance was mutually agreeable, and that it has ripened into an enduring friendship, or that the girl hoped it would mean more than it did, and was disappointed when the young man went his way and forgot all about her; or else that he and she drifted into love and became affianced lovers, and that now she is tired, is sure she made a mistake, and what shall she do?

I know that is a long sentence, but you will understand it if you will read it slowly, says Margaret E. Sangster in an exchange.

I never receive such letters without wishing two or three things about my girl friends.

One is that they would not too hastily become intimate with strangers. A girl should possess dignity, and should have a right notion of her own value.

Another is a regret that girls cannot meet men just as they would meet other girls.

Why expect someone whom you never saw until this morning, and whom you may never see again, to carry your image onthe heart, or to want to know anything further about you?

Girls are often foolishly emotional and foolishly susceptible. Do try to preserve indifference until you are sure a man whom you have recently met is interested in you. You ought not to take the initiative in forming an intimate acquaintance.

My deepest regret is, let me say, in having to admit that many girls too readily yield themselves to the fascination of being courted, and, therefore, say "yes" without considering what it means.

Not being the least in earnest in their love, they soon grow tired, are sure they have been mistaken and long for freedom.

Singularly, if the lover releases them they presently discover again that they were mistaken, and the next time they say, "What shall I do?" the refrain is "How shall I win him back?" With this attitude I have no patience whatever.

THE ANDROGYNE.

French Attempt at Publicity in Dress.

I am sorry that the French couturiers have not shown equal discretion in other matters besides the new sleeves, says Edouard La Fontaine, in the Delineator for February. Their latest attempt at publicity has been in the Androgyne, or trouser dress, that they would endeavor to make a credulous public believe was being worn in Paris. These skirts are very much on the order of an apronless divided riding-skirt. They are made of broadcloth and are in all respects the most clumsy, hideous, unwomanly type of dress that one could imagine. They are really not worthy of serious comment or notice. I simply mention them as a bit of Parisian gossip, because they have been a good deal talked of abroad. There are other subjects, however, far more interesting and important.

Ever Ready Help.

Keep in the kitchen a bolt of white passepartout paper, as so much can be done with it.

If a pretty plate is broken it can be mended by pasting a strip of the paper on the back and the dish can be used as an ornament on the plate rack.

When filling the salt and pepper shakers that have the cork in the bottom, instead of inserting the cork, paste a patch of passepartout over the opening.

It looks far neater than the cork.

It is convenient to keep as a marker for certain parcels that must be wrapped and put aside and the various boxes of silver spoons, knives and the like can instantly be identified by the printed slip on top, without opening the different boxes.

If a package must be hurriedly sealed and sent to the postoffice it answers the place of glue or twine in fastening the parcel together.

For the Guest Room.

There is nothing nicer for the guest-room than the "guest set."

Do you know what they are? A china water pitcher, match safe, candlestick and glass tumbler all on a round china tray.

Among the several sets noted one was of white with gold trimmings, one had blue bowknots and pink flowers, and a third was of a beautiful shade of pink, set off with gold. They are arther expensive—$6.75, but are very dainty, and are certainly convenient.

Livingston's GLOVE SHOP

What Retail Markets Offer.

Sweet potatoes, five pounds for 25 cents.

Dry onions, 40 cents a peck.

Spanish onions, 10 cents a pound.

Washed figs, 25 cents a pound.

Fresh pineapples, 25 and 30 cents each.

Squabs, 25 cents each.

Turkeys and other birds.

Soup bones, 10 to 35 cents each.

Heavy, hearty things to eat are what the housewife is trying to provide these days; pork and beans, and good, rich soup—not an apologetic, clear, and more or less insipid buillon—roasts with rich brown gravies, and fruit puddings, and mince pies, and such things. A sufficiently chilled grape fruit and salads that are cold enough, may be felt for other and warmer days. Buckwheat pancackes in the morning, with plenty of golden, yellow butter, and lots of maple syrup, and several little sausages—that's the stuff.

The fresh pineapples are particularly nice and not very expensive.

A Host of Mighty Values

50, 40, 30 and 20 per cent Discount

The biggest of all "Big Sales"—Nearly everything in the house subject to discount during this January "Clearance." Never such money-saving opportunities ever offered in Duluth before.

COMPLETE HOUSEFURNISHERS
BAYHA & CO
Second Ave. W. and First St.

Hundreds of Items Going at Just Half Price!

Never before in our history have we made such great and sweeping reductions. Remember, this is not a sale of a few odds and ends of undesireable pieces that we want to close out, but it is the most vigorous, bona-fide, price-slashing sale ever attempted in Duluth, on newest, most up-to-date and most desirable things in a mammoth stock of HIGH-GRADE FURNITURE, STOVES and HOUSEFURNISHINGS.

We are enabled to offer these unprecedented bargains during this January Clearance, simply because we had this sale in mind months ago, and bought heavily of manufacturers who were forced to unload at sacrifice prices, because of the panicky conditions that prevailed in the East at that time. It will pay you big to anticipate your needs in the housefurnishing line for the next twelve months or more, by taking advantage of these unparalleled offerings. Remember, this sale has been on since Monday, and many of the best things are moving lively. Don't wait any longer—DO IT NOW.

Gas Lamps Half Price

You will never have an opportunity to equip your home with lighting fixtures so cheaply again.

This sale includes more than a half dozen different styles of Library Table Gas Lamps, at just HALF PRICE.

Practically everything in our Lamp Department is subject to a liberal discount.

You can not afford to miss getting a new Library Lamp at this time.

Big Cut on Stoves

Stoves, of course, are included in this sale. If you are ever going to need a stove again, it will be decidedly to your interest to drop in and see what we can do for you.

The discounts run from 10 to 50 per cent.

Don't Forget

That your credit is always good at Bayha's; purchases during this sale are no exception; and no interest charged. If you haven't the money just now, it wont make a particle of difference with us. You can buy now at bargain prices and pay when you can.

Goods purchased from us at any time are always stored free of charge till wanted.

Rugs at Half Price

All of our Oriental Rugs are still going at the HALF PRICE figure, but when our present supply is exhausted, no more can be had at such ridiculously low prices.

Discount prices have been attached to everything in our Rug line. Why not buy now for spring?

Lace Curtain Bargains

Just think of buying the newest in Lace Curtains at 80 cents on the dollar! Isn't that a mighty good inducement to buy NOW, even though you may not need them till spring or till next fall?

Just think of the saving that this means—any and all Curtains from the humble 65c per pair Muslin, to the finest imported goods as high as $50 per pair, and embracing Clunys, Arabes, Irish Points, Brussels Nets, Marie Antoinettes, Nottinghams—in fact, pretty much everything that is on the market today in Lace Curtains, going during this January "Clearance Sale" at 20 per cent reduction.

You owe it to yourself to come in and see these goods and let us show you how much actual cash you can save.

Who Will Get It?

The magnificent $800 Bedroom Suit which we recently placed in our windows, advertising a reduction of $25 per day until sold, is at this writing unsold. If not sold Saturday, the price will be $675.

It is impossible to adequately describe the beauties and qualities of this suit, consisting of Bed, Spring, Mattress, Dresser, Chiffonier, Toilet Table and three Chairs. It is a Queen Anne reproduction, elaborately decorated with genuine inlaid marquetry on solid mahogany.

If you want it you'll have to act quick.

ANNUAL MEETING.

First Baptist Church Congregation Elects Its Officers.

The thirty-ninth annual meeting of the First Baptist church of this city was held last evening at the church at the corner of Ninth avenue east and First street. The reports of the officers of the church and the various societies were presented, showing that the church has passed through a most successful year. Every organization has contributed generously to the finances of the church.

J. D. Scott and E. C. Little were elected trustees for a term of three years to succeed themselves, and A. L. Miles and C. F. How were new trustees elected also for a term of three years. K. A. Ostergren was re-elected deacon for a period of four years. F. M. Burral was elected superintendent of the Sunday school and Mrs. J. Latshaw was elected clerk.

An interesting feature of the meeting was the reading of a letter of greeting and congratulation to the church members, from Rev. Bower Reynolds Patrick, formerly pastor of the Baptist church here. Mr. Patrick is now a chaplain in the United States navy and is located in the Samoa Islands. He retains his membership in the local Baptist church, however, and his letter, which has been thirty-nine days en route was received with much pleasure and interest by his former parishioners.

Two Failures on 'Change.

New York, Jan. 8.—Failure of customers to protect the holdings of the Consolidated Gas at the time of the severe decline in that stock following the decision upholding the 80-cent law is alleged to have been the cause of the failure of the firm of Hacklock, Baxter & Seed, which was announced on the Consolidated Stock exchange today. The failure of C. W. Willets, a trader, also was announced today on the same exchange.

ON THE IRON RANGES

DULUTH ARCHITECT TO PREPARE PLANS

Aurora Village Council Takes Preliminary Step in Building Hall.

Aurora, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council, at a meeting held Wednesday night, took the preliminary steps towards the erection of a new village hall by engaging Anthony Fuek, a Duluth architect, to prepare plans and specifications for the proposed building.

The State bank was appointed water rate collector.

The treasurer's report, showing $16,000 on hand, was accepted and placed on file.

The office of fire chief was made a non-salaried office, and Marshal Witte was instructed to look after fire apparatus.

A liquor license was granted to John Zuponsic and one refused to Frank Hran until the blind pig agreement is signed.

CHAPTER AT VIRGINIA.

Interesting Masonic Event Scheduled for Saturday Evening.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow evening a Masonic chapter will be instituted in this city. J. E. Cooley, grand high priest, will be master of ceremonies. Mr. Cooley will arrive this evening. The event will take place in the Masonic rooms in the Minnesota block.

The following officers have been elected and will be installed: M. E. Fanning, H. P.; J. A. Kennedy, K.; A. C. Osborn, L.; Dr. J. H. Crowe, C. H.; W. B. Shaver, P. S.; E. D. McNeil, R. A. C.; C. H. Moore, M. of Third V.; W. H. Eaton, M. of Second V.; E. F. Johnson, M. of First V.; B. D. Levin, sentinel; W. R. Wasson, secretary; John Horkey, treasurer. Elaborate preparations are being made for the installation of the officers, and the Masons of the city and many from surrounding towns are planning to attend. A luncheon will be served.

Council Will Take Matter Up With Railroad Companies.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The village council has directed Village Attorney Stratton to take up with the railroads the question of building a viaduct over First avenue, where it is crossed by the Great Northern and Missabe railroad tracks.

There has long been need for such a crossing. The street is open for travel on both sides, and at present the tracks at that point lie some four feet below the level of the street, and it has been necessary for all teams passing along the avenue to go round either by way of Third or Second avenues. There is a crossing open at Second avenue, but it crosses all of the switches and is usually blocked up, and even when open is very dangerous to teams. For this reason a roundabout course of about four blocks has been usually followed by drivers.

NERVY FINNISH YOUTH.

Walks Two Miles Through Bitter Cold to Attend School.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—A little Finnish boy, aged about 6, living in the Finn location, about two miles from town, who said his first name was Elmer, did not let the bitter cold of Wednesday deter him in his desire for an education. The brave little fellow, without an overcoat and with his little hands encased in stiff leather gloves, trudged through the biting cold of 40 degs. below to the primary department of the Center school, and nearly froze to death. When he arrived it was found that all his fingers were frozen. He was hurried to the Hood hospital, where his hands were thawed out and his digits probably saved. Later he was furnished warmer clothing and sent home.

AURORA ITALIANS ACT.

Appoint Committee to Raise Funds for Fellow Countrymen.

Aurora, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Italians of Aurora and vicinity, at a mass meeting, formulated plans for raising a benefit fund to aid their fellow-countrymen who suffered in the recent earthquake in Sicily and Calabria. Dominic Furlorelli, Bigi Furci, George Gravet, Joseph Pollank, Carmine Venticlnique and Anello Ametrna were appointed a committee to solicit donations, and a house-to-house canvass will be made on Jan. 24. In the meantime those who wish to give may hand money to Mr. Pollank.

KILLED IN CLARK MINE.

Joe Godits Crushed to Death in Chisholm Property.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Crushed to death under several tons of earth and ore in the lower set of one of the levels of the Clark mine here was the fate yesterday of Joe Godits, a miner employed by the Oliver Iron Mining company. His skull was crushed and his body more or less mangled. A widow and one child, a young son, survives.

The deceased had been employed by the mining company for two or three years. He carried the usual miner's insurance, which will leave his family enough to temporarily provide for their wants.

NEW OFFICERS FOR EVELETH RED MEN.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—At last night's meeting of the local Sagwa tribe, No. 29, at Monitor hall, the following chiefs of the Improved Order of Red Men were raised by Judge Vivian Prince, past great sachem: Sachem, James Brazonovich; senior sagamore, Ernest Thomnas; junior sagamore, Leonard C. Sannicola; prophet, Jules T. Thibaut; chief of records, Vivian Prince; keeper of wampum, Matt J. Doyle; collector of wampum, J. C. Bradford; medicine man, Dr. J. V. Johnson; trustee for three years, Axel Sholund; for two ysears, W. H. Chapple; for one year, Frank Rylander. After the ceremonies the members of the order held a social.

AT SELLWOOD MINE.

Nashwauk, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Despite the cold weather the Sellwood mine is a scene of activity these days as the work of installing the machinery is progressing, under the management of John Carlson.

Sheriff T. T. Riley and family moved to Grand Rapids Tuesday, where Mr. Riley has taken the position of sheriff of Itasca county.

AURORA FIREMEN PLANNING FOR AUGUST TOURNAMENT.

Aurora, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Aurora firemen held a meeting Tuesday night to talk over plans for the Mesaba firemen's tournament that is to be held here in August. The tournament arrangement committee will meet in this city on the 26th of this month to make further plans.

NASHWAUK IN BRIEF.

Nashwauk, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. L. Larsen returned last Friday from Virginia, where she spent a few days visiting friends.

School opened Monday after a two weeks' vication.

Archie McWilliams is in Grand Rapids.

Mayor Henry Hogan was a county seat visitor the fore part of the week.

Mrs. Louis Larson returned Friday afternoon last from a few days' visit at Virginia.

The Ladies' Aid society met with Miss Mae Johnson Thursday afternoon.

Supt. J. Rough of the Cleveland-Cliff mines arrived Tuesday and is spending a few days with Capt. John Relgart of the Crosby mine.

William Leham returned Wednesday after a few months' tour in different points in Michigan.

Two Workmen Injured.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Erick Gustafson, a Swedish Finn miner, aged about 30, having a family in the old country, was caught by a blast in the Rust mine and severely burned about the neck and face. Part of the flesh on his face was torn away, the rest blackened beyond recognition. He will lose the sight of one eye.

Andrew Toumen, a Finn, working for Roberts & Kingston in their stripping operations, near Chisholm, had a leg broken at the hip when a mass of dirt fell upon him.

VIRGINIA CURLERS HAVE VERY EXCITING CONTEST.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 8.—There was an interesting curling match pulled off at the curling rink Wednesday night that attracted a large crowd. Dr. C. B. Lenont, an enthusiastic member of the local club, just to make things interesting for the members, placed a trophy of four sweater-vests for the rink which should pull more games on the winning ice than the other rinks, and this tournament started New Year's day. All the skips played their rinks to the best possible touch on the ice, but the results had not been so allurring to the old timers, until the teams skipped by D. Miller and Thomas Gill were pitted together Wednesday evening. These two teams, with plenty of backers each, began their game at 8 and finished at about 10. It was see-saw and tie, and both were picked as the winners, until the last head, the game then standing 15 to 15, so an extra head was played, the doctor pulling three stones into the house and spoiling Gill's chances entirely, and giving the trophies to Messrs. Eaton, Sigel, McNeil and Miller. Another schedule is being arranged, and then the best rink will be decided.

EVELETH CLUB DESIRES JUDGE

Business Men Go on Record and Designate Attorney to Act.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club at a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting last night went on record in favor of a district court for the Mesaba range. N. C. Arnold, an attorney was delegated to go to St. Paul and work with representatives from other range towns for the necessary legislation.

A committee composed of J. P. Boyle, Solomon Sax and Dr. Medler was appointed to arrange an entertainment for the next meeting. The annual meeting will be held the latter part of February. The club reconsidered the motion raising dues to $5 yearly, and $3 was decided on as the annual dues.

P. E. Dowling spoke about the organization of the County club at Duluth this week, composed of delegates from the range commercial clubs. Another meeting of the club will be held Jan. 22. P. E. Dowling, James Robb and J. H. Hearding were appointed delegates for one year to the County club.

Dr. More of the anti-tuberculosis exhibit committee stated that the program for the exhibit to be held here Jan. 12 to 17, had almost been arranged, though he had still to hear from some outside speakers. The Urania hall will be used for the exhibit. The idea is to have the working classes attend the exhibit as much as possible. The women will have a day, when they will speak. The exhibit will be opened Tuesday night and will continue over Sunday, so many can attend Sunday, who cannot during the week. The ministers will also speak on the subject from their pulpits. Some doctors from Duluth will talk, while others in the state may be present. Most of the speeches will be delivered at the evening meetings.

The committee on the location of the county agricultural school reported they were keeping at work on the question. Deputy Coroner J. J. Gleason resigned from the Virginia road committee and Solomon Sax and Charles Jesmore were appointed to the committee.

J. H. Hearding and Neil McInnis were appointed delegates to the State Federation of Commercial clubs to be held in St. Paul, Jan. 14 and 15. Solomon Sax and N. B. Arnold were appointed alternates. J. H. Hearding is one of the vice presidents of the state federation. The auditing committee reported that a balance of $23.18 is in the treasury.

NORTH DAKOTAN GETTING BETTER

Chester Adams Ill in Hibbing Hospital Will Pull Through.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The condition of Chester H. K. Adams of Lisbon, N. D., who is being treated at the Adams hospital by his son, Dr. Adams of this city, for blood poisoning resulting from an automobile accident, is considerably better today, and Dr. Adams informed The Herald correspondent at noon that he had every reason to believe his father would pull through.

Last fall the elder Adams sustained a broken leg in an automobile accident in North Dakota. The fracture failed to knit, and the break later was bored. Blood poisoning resulted, and Mr. Adams was brought here from Lisbon to be treated at his son's hospital.

DID NOT HEAR TRAIN.

Track Cleaner is Killed at Canisteo Mine.

Coleraine, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—His ears muffled with heavy wraps because of the intense cold, Peter Markovitch, a track-cleaner and pitman, was struck by a stripping train at Canisteo mine Tuesday night and instantly killed. The train was in charge of William Hathaway, engineer at the Canisteo pit, and it was held that he was not to blame for the accident.

WOODSMAN IS KILLED.

Crushed to Death by Falling Tree Near Ely.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Enneri Utinen, a brother of Mrs. John Thompson, living here, was struck by a tree at the camp of Herman Pete, at Bear Island, fifteen miles east of here, Wednesday, and instantly killed. The tree fell in a different direction than he expected and crushed him before he could escape. The body was brought here last night, and the funeral will be held here.

Victim of Pneumonia.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Arthur Namecheck, a former resident of Hibbing, died Wednesday at Bear River after a brief illness of pneumonia. She is survived by her husband, a Bear River merchant.

Grabbed Wrong Coat.

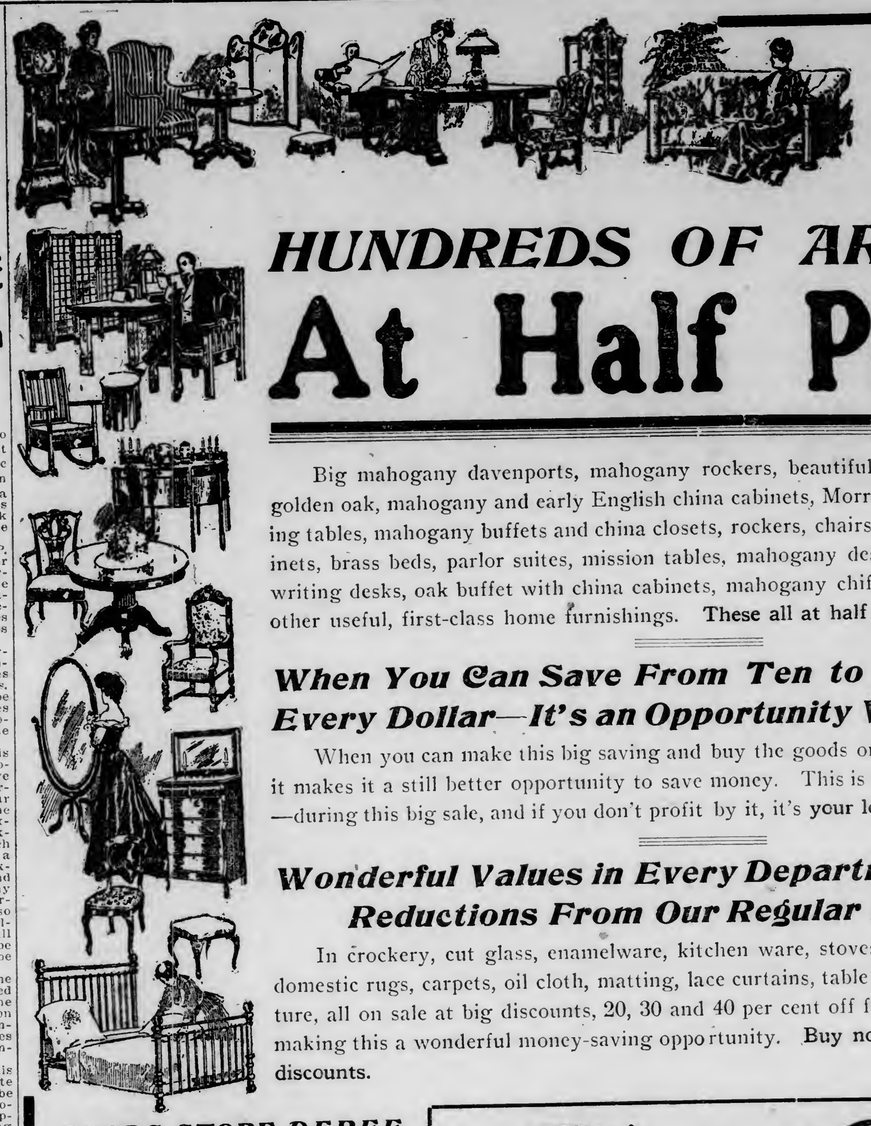

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—"I grabbed the wrong coat," was the explanation Fred Alexander gave Chief of Police Walsh when arrested on the charge of stripping a coat from a dummy in front of Nathanson's store. Alexander claimed he had thrown off his coat to engage in a friendly tussle in front of the clothing store, and when it was over, took the coat from the dummy by mistake. He will have to explain matters to Judge Carey.

experts for the state. The prosecutor believes that the cross-examination which will be conducted under the guidance of Dr. Austin Flint, will show that Capt. Hains had full knowledge of the nature and quality of his act when he killed Annis.

Justice Crane too kpart in the cross-examination of Dr. Manson, who declared that hysteria was allied to insanity. The alienist was questioned at length on his definition of the various forms of insanity and of the nervous disorders and their relation to hysteria. A hysterical man was not insane, said the alienist. The cross-examination of Dr. Manson was involved.

French & Bassett DULUTH, MINN.

TAX AMENDMENT UPHELD

amendment defeated. The governor, as required by law, then proclaimed that the tax amendment has been duly adopted and become part of the constitution of the state.

Thereafter a contest of the declared result was instituted in the district court by an elector, as authorized by the statute, and inspectors were appointed who inspected the ballots cast on the two amendments in 654 of the 2,870 voting districts in the state. No effort was made to inspect the ballots in the remaining 1,945 districts. The court found that the tax amendment had been lost and the good roads amendment adopted. In order to reach this conclusion it was assumed that a uniformity of error had been established, due to the transposition of the amendments on the ballots and tally sheets, whereby votes cast for the good roads amendment were counted for the tax amendment, and votes cast for the tax amendment were counted for the good roads amendment, and that the errors disclosed in the recounted districts would continue throughout all the districts in the state.

On appeal it was also contended that the contestant, after having recounted the ballots in certain districts, and disclosed errors sufficient to overcome the declared majority in favor of the tax amendment, might rest and rely upon the declared vote in the remaining districts.

The Findings.

Held: That (A), the conclusions of law are not justified by the findings of fact.

(B)—The courts of this state have power to determine when a constitutional amendment has been submitted to and adopted by the people.

(C)—Whether a constitution shall be amended is a political question; whether it has been legally amended is a judicial question.

(D)—The statement and certificate of the state canvassing board, and the proclamation of the governor that the proposed amendment to the constitution has been adopted, is not final and conclusive upon the judicial department of the government.

(E)—The statutory procedure for contesting the dcelared result of a popular vote on the adoption or rejection of a proposed amendment to the constitution is adequate for the purpose.

(F)—A contest of this character is not in a strict legal sense an adversary proceeding. It is more in the nature of an investigation for the purpose of discovering the truth, in which sonal interest antagonistic to the general public. It must be conducted in no one individual has any direct perthe manner required by the statute, and an orderly proceeding requires that general rules regulating the production of evidence shall be observed. But it is not necessary or desirable that every technical rule of evidence shall be observed with extreme nicety, nor should the result, in a matter of such public importance, be determined by a nice banlancing of presumptions and probabilities.

Inference Not Justified.

(G)—In this proceeding the contestant sought to overthrow the result of the election in the state as declared by the state board of canvassers and proclaimed by the governor. He alleged errors in every voting district in the state, due to a cause which operated in every district and offered evidence which overthrew the declared result in certain precincts only. The findings of fact made by the trial court did not justify the inference that the errors against the tax amendment would continue throughout the uncounted districts.

(H)—The prevailing presumption in this proceeding is that which arises from the statement and certificate of the state canvassing board. In a collateral proceeding this certificate is conclusive, and in a direct attack it can be overthrown only by very clear and satisfactory evidence. The burden throughout was upon the contestant. The correctness of the certificate of the state board depended upon the result of the total vote in the state regardless of the shifting results in particular precincts. It could be determined only by a recount of the entire vote, or at least of such a proportion thereof that even if all the remaining votes were counted one way, they could not affect the final result."

Justice Brown Dissents.

Justice Brown, in his dissenting opinion, says:

"I concur in the conclusion that the court has jurisdiction to entertain the contest, and that the statute providing therefore is not void for uncertainty, but dissent from that part of the decision, in effect that the contestants failed to make out their case because there was not a complete recount of all the ballots cast at the election. That conclusion, in my view, is in conflict with the elementary principles of procedure in such cases, and unsound. The contestants charged, in their notices of contest irregularities, errors and mistakes in the returns of the election, and that the true vote showed the adoption of the good roads amendment and the defeat of the tax amendment. To this, the state, appearing by the attorney general, made no response by counter notice of an intention to offer evidence on points not specified in the notice of contest, but rested upon the presumptive correctness of the returns and upon the theory that the contestants were required affirmatively to prove their case, and if they could do so, nothing remained for the state to offer. So that the state, as contestee, in no way challenged the accuracy of the election returns as certified by the proper officials.

Findings Fully Sustained.

"In this condition of the issues, the contest proceeded to trial, and upon the final hearing below were consolidated and disposed of as one case. The trial court found from the evidence submitted to it that the good roads amendment received in fact a majority of all the votes cast at the election, but that the tax amendment fell short of the necessary number for its adoption. This was the reverse of what the election returns disclosed. There is no question but that the evidence fully sustains the findings of the court. The attorney general makes no contention to the contrary, but he insists, in effect, and a majority of this court sustains him, that because there was not a complete recount of all the ballots cast in every precinct of the state, the findings of the trial court cannot stand, and there must be a reversal because, perchance, if a complete recount had been made, it might have appeared that the tax amendment was in fact adopted by the necessary majority vote. In this I am unable to concur. It is elementary that election returns, especially certified, are prima facie evidence of the correctness of the result thereby shown and, in the absence of proof to the contrary, not mere assertion in a notice of a contest, import absolute verity, and are final and conclusive. To overcome this presumption, the evidence of irregularities, errors, or defects must be clear and free from doubt. It is unnecessary to cite authorities to a proposition so fundamental and necessary to the integrity of our elections.

One Prima Facie Case Necessary.

"It is also elementary that in contest proceedings the contestant, however broad may be the allegations of his notice, is required to go no further with his evidence than to make out a prima facie case in his favor. He may prove less, but never more than he alleges. (Palmo on Elections, 824.) He may attack by his evidence such of the returns as he chooses, and if he thereby changes the result announced by the official returns, he may rely upon the verity of those not attacked and rest his case. At this point, by all the rules of proceedings in cases of this kind, the contestee must take the laboring oar and overcome the prima facie case thus made. (5 Am. and Eng. Enc. Law, 39; Merritt vs. Hinton, 55 Ark., 12; People ex rel. vs. Thacher, 14 Am. R. 312; Phelps vs. Schroeder, 16 Ok., St. 49; Lloyd vs. Sullivan, 9 Mont., 577). There was no attempt to do this in the case at bar. The court holds that it was incumbent upon the contestant to proceed further with the recount, notwithstanding the fact that when he rested his case was complete and upon the facts then before the court but one conclusion could be reached, and that to the effect announced by the trial court. This is a departure from the settled practice and in my opinion not sustained even by the new theory advanced by the majority opinion that a constitutional amendment contest case resolves itself into an investigation for the discovery of the truth, not controlled by the rules of procedure applied to analogous cases. But even in that view the investigation has been had the truth declared, and the conclusions of the trial court should be sustained.

BROWN,
Justice.

The case was heard in the St. Louis county district court by Judge Dibell, who held that the recount made at the instance of the Duluth Real Estate exchange, showed that the tax amendment had been lost and the good roads amendments carried, and he therefore filed a decision to that effect, from which the attorney general appealed to the supreme court. The latter court's decision makes possible a ton-nage tax on iron ore and confirms the legality of the state tax commission and a mortgage registry tax.

H. H. Phelps, who fought the suit for the Duluth Real Estate exchange, from its inception, stated this afternoon that he had no comment to make on the decision, as the verdict of the supreme court was final.

"We cannot go ahead and recount the ballots in the other precincts," he said, "because the ballots have been destroyed."

ANOTHER COLD WAVE IS D[UE]

Mercury Will Again Hit the Twenty Below Mark.

Last night and this morning were but a little intermission in the cold weather, for H. W. Richardson, weather prophet for this district, from his lofty perch on the hill, has sighted some more cold descending in this direction from the districts of Western Canada.

Tonight it is likely that the mercury will drop to between 10 and 20 below. The winds will freshen up from the West, although it is hardly likely that they will become as strong as the wind which prevailed Tuesday night.

At 7 o'clock last night the lowest temperature of the night was reached. At that time the thermometer registered 7 below zero. At 7 this morning it was 4 below.

Prince Albert, Can., was the coldest point on the map last night, the thermometer at that place registering 48 degs. below zero.

The cold snap is general all over Canada, Eastern Washington, the Dakotas and Montana.

WAS "FRISKED" FOR HIS "ROLL"

Carl Benson Lost $30 Cash in Bowery Lodging House.

Carl Benson came to Duluth yesterday, and went to bed in a lodging house last night with $30 in his possession. When he awoke this morning the room was still there, but the money failed to respond to Carl's own "frisk" of his trousers.

Yesterday afternoon Carl loitered around the festive places of the Bowery. He met congenial friends, who exchanged gay repartee and merry quip. Then Carl went to sleep and this morning he came to. While Carl was coming, his money was going. Carl has requested the police to find his friends of yesterday. Carl says there were other ingredients besides alcohol and corn in the drink his acquaintances gave him.

WILL MARRY KANSAS GIRL.

J. E. Bratton Will Bring Back a Bride With Him.

J. E. Bratton, bookkeeper for the Globe Elevator company, had a little surprise in store for a number of friends who accompanied him to the union depot last night to bid him goodby and wish him a pleasant visit at his old home in Kansas, when he confessed that his mission to be Sunflower state, while primarily to visit his father and mother, was still more important.

With a "don't-tell-anybody" air," he confessed that when he returned to the Head of the Lakes he would not come back alone—in other words he was to be married. He told the surprised group that next Thursday he expected to be married to Miss Etta Sheesley of Hutchinson, Kan. Mr. Bratton's father, who is a minister, will perform the ceremony. The Duluth man and his bride expect to arrive here in about two weeks. Mr. Bratton is president of the Epworth league of the First M. E. church and has resided at the Head of the Lakes for several years.

MOTOR BOATS ONSARTAIN.

Loopholes in a Solution of the Dead Calm Problem.

New York Sun: "Mighty pretty things, for sure," was the judgmatic remark of a man on the visitors' deck of a Gravesent Bay clubhouse. "Go some, too.

"Listen to those boats purring away out yonder and you might think all the problems of navigation had been solved. But just you wait, I say. Maybe you won't have to wait very long at that. When your cat stops purring you know generally what to expect. The details are different every time, but you know that something's going to happen. Likewise it does. Motor boats too.

"The first go I had with that system of propulsion is so long ago that you might think I sailed in fleet formation with Admiral Noah. Come to think of it in detail and to reckon up the calendar, it was only fifteen years ago.

"I had a cutter down in the islands, handy sort of little tub, but she went nowhere when the wind didn't happen to be blowing, and in the trade wind regions that happened along just about sundown most every night. In some paper or other I read an advertisement of a kerosene engine just then put on the market for the solution of the dead flat calm problem. Fit, says I. I flat calm problem. bulkheaded off an engine room in the hold of the cutter, bored a hole for the shaft, set thrust block and tail block, according to the diagram and keyed the screw on. She certainly was a beautiful little steamboat all right while I had her up on the beach.

"She was just as good when I got her down in the sad sea waves. I unscrewed the diagrams marked A, inserted the dofflicker marked K, and I gave her her first drink of Pratt's Astral. Then I hunted around until I found the hole C marked 'Ignite here.' Well, I ignited. Then I turned her over.

"It was fine. She picked up headway all right and before you could say Jack Robinson she was just scooting. I swung around to the wharf and took aboard all our most representative citizens. With that deckload we measured up six knots in harbor and a good five when I took her outside through the reef. If there had been any money in the beach I could have taken orders for six kerosene engines just like her, but I held out for cash with orders and that stopped me.

"Then what I had done the showing off stunt, when it was time for this kerosene thing to buckle down to the white man's burden of cruising in trade and latitude seas, well, just about that time the trouble began. What that engine didn't do to me is omitted from the standard text-books on trouble, all the standard text-books on trouble.

"If I was bowling along under canvas with fair wind I could ignite the kerosene and she'd behave like a little saint in a painted glass window. But if was a head wind to buck it was a different sort of story. She'd cough, she'd groan, she wouldn't spin that propellor fast enough to make a splash in the water, to say nothing of laying out a wake. And you never knew at any given moment whether she was going to turn over.

"Her best trick was to take me along into the middle of some narrow pass through the reefs in a dead calm and a heavy sea, and then she'd die on me and wait for me to sag down on some snakehead of coral. Oh, she was a cat for fair. She wouldn't even carry horse power when it was in the line of business, but no matter how much she'd been cutting up she was always ready to do an exhibition stunt for me and to astonish the natives, running like a clock.

"That's how it came that it was easy to sell her. An old shellback on the beach wanted to cruise down to some other group and he thought she'd be just the craft for him. So I sold him the craft as she stood and all apparel, got my money back and a little more.

"But I told him I couldn't guarantee the motive power. He didn't want a guarantee, he'd seen her run and that was enough for him.

"About three months later he came back by steamer and I stood by for squalls, all the more because he hadn't brought back that kerosene cruiser.

"Did any of those angry squalls arise when we met? Nary squall. He was the most contented mariner you ever saw. Down in the other group he'd sold out for double what he'd paid me.

"Finest type of motor he'd ever seen. When he got ready to start he just ignited her and she went. Positively that was all he knew about the engine. 'Where do you light the darned thing?' was his only question to me and never a blessed thing more."

CHURCH, A SPREE, OR BOTH.

Outing: The chief recreation of the woodsmen of the Puget Sound country is to go to town on Saturday nights. As a valley dweller explained.

"They've got money and they just blow it in. That there is the ogger style of it. There's not places of amusement in the town. They can go to the library and sit down, or go to a hotel and sit down, but that don't suit 'em. No, they either get drunk or go to church. Some take in both."

BENEFIT OF GYMNASTICS.

London Standard: On the subject of gymnastics and golf Capt. Hutchinson, who holds a gymnastic appointment in the Coldstream guards, reports: "While actually going through five hours daily work in the gymnasium I found that the heavy work was certainly detrimental to golf. But I think that it eventually proved of the greatest assistance, as it strengthened the muscles of the wrist and forarm, which play such an important part in all golfing strokes. I found it necessary to shorten my swing a little, and took to the overlapping of Vardon grip, two changes that certainly improved my game."

POLES WIN THEIR CASE

Court Holds That Society Owns West End Church Property.

Bishop McGolrick and Priest Dispossessed as Result of Suit.

Holding that the deed conveying to Bishop James McGolrick the Polish Catholic church property on the northwest corner of Twenty-fourth avenue west and Fifth street, is null and void on account of having been improperly executed, Judge Ensign, by an order handed down this morning, decided that St. Peter and St. Paul's Polish Roman Catholic society is the owner in fee simple of the property, and is entitled to immediate possession, and restitution of the premises, with the costs and disbursements in the case. The memoranda, accompanying the decision closes with a caution:

"Under the evidence introduced upon the trial, the court can arrive at no other conclusion. But whether the best interests of the plaintiff society will be subserved as an isolated, independent, unattached congregation, when under the rules and regulations of the organized church to which they all belong there is coburation, strength and vitality, a matter to which the plaintiff might well give the most serious consideration."

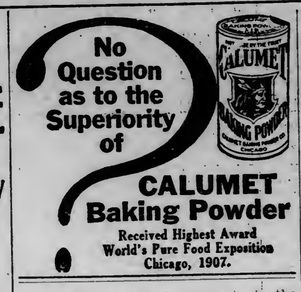

The case of St. Peter & St. Paul's Polish Roman Cathoic society against Leon M. Laskowski and James McGilrick was called for trial Dec. 28, the jury being waived. It grew out of a transfer of the property to Bishop McGolrick, as the holder of church property in the diocese. The plaintiff claimed that the property had not been legally transferred by the society, while the defendants claimed that the parish organized and absorbed the former society, having the authority to transfer the property to the church.

Judge Ensign finds that Father Laskowski is in possession of the premises by license and authority of Bishop McGolrick. The deed under which the bishop claims the title, says the court, was never authorized to be made by any resolution of the plaintiff corporation, was never executed by the officers of the corporation, is not the act or deed of the corporation, and is null and void. He holds that the claims of the defendants to title or possession are unlawful.

In the memoranda, accompanying the decision, Judge Ensign holds that under the laws governing religious bodies of the nature of the plaintiff, property could be transferred by the trustees on authorization by a two-thirds vote of members present and voting at a meeting, and proof of the proceedings must be filed with the register of deeds. None of the conditions were complied with, he says, and the transfer was entirely without authority. The deed is signed by Anthony Koneczny as president, but he was not president of the society at the date of the deed, Oct. 9, 1903. Neither was Wladylaw Lewandowicz, who signed the deed as recording secretary, holding that office in the society at that time.

The claim that the plaintiff corporation was abandoned is not found true. The parish society has nothing to do with the case, the court says, the question being on the validity of the deed transferring to James McGolrick the church property.

The case was of considerable interest to the Polish people of the West end. After the organization of the parish society, it was thought the former corporation was abandoned and absorbed, but dissatisfied members brought suit. The church, school and parochial residence are estimated to be worth $16,000, all of which was paid by the members of the corporation. There were hints of a withdrawal from the jurisdiction of the bishop in case the society's success in the suit, but they were denied by those interested. It was claimed that the suit was brought merely to establish the title.

the EVENING STORY

CAMILLA

By Edgar White.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

She was such a little thing, and so used to bow her tawny head at the caprices of earth, air and sky, that nothing was further from her parents' minds than her reluctance when the lord of San Jose valley condescended to ask his hard-working peons for their daughter. Just why Camilla's glowing, black eyes should flush with tears instead of shine with delight at the great honor was beyond the divination of the star readers, and she never told. The marriage of the daughter meant the liberty of the parents. The big hacendado had sworn it. He was a good man and would keep his word. Camilla knew that. The prelado who was to perform the ceremony had called to congratulate. He told her any maiden in the province would be rightly proud to win the love of de Gomara, and left her quite dutiful.

The wedding was a fine affair. Looking like some glorious bird of the tropics, the little bride smiled sweetly beside her lordly husband and extended a soft white hand to well-wishing friends. Military men from the Alajuela mountain garrison formed a fair proportion of the guests, and their smart uniforms blended artistically in the sparkling panorama under the chandeliers.

The perfume of rare flowers, the languorous melodies of Castle and the subtle magnetism of bright eyes that outshone their own diamonds chased the glad hours away. In groups of two to ten the guests were scattered about the verandas and the softly lighted lawns. As they walked side by side under the shadow of the date palms the young husband was gently breathing the story of his first love to the startlit face beside him. In words of boyish enthusiasm he sketched the rose-strewn way along the velvet path of life. She listened as a glad child, and for answer raised her warm trembling lips to his. A tall streak of fire shot out from the sullen mouth of Cartago volcano.

Camilla assented, her coral lips showing the white gems beneath. They had reached the far end of the lawn, when de Gamara stopped and raised his hand to the star-decked heavens.

"May thy richest blessings—"

Quicker than the stealthy action of a tiger two dark-eyed men came out of the shadows and, leaping upon the hacenado, gagged him and bound his hands. Then as swiftly and as noiselessly they gently picked up Camilla and gently passed her across the hedge, where a sinister crew of dark figures awaited, like vampires of the swamps.

The music and the dance went on; the stars glowed out of the dark canopy and now and then Cartago discharged a column of white, hot flame. Then a discovery was made by a pair of promenaders. The stricken hacendado was released and the military gentlemen mounted in hot haste.

"Ten thousand pesos for the brigand Moreno, dead or alive!"

So cried the lord of San Jose valley as he climbed into the saddle on his great black stallion and led the way. A like reward has been standing against the bandit captain by federal warrant since he had relieved the bank at Alajuela some moons back, and there were in addition captaincies and colonelships galore for the subalterns who crossed swords with him and Moreno.

Under the tropic heavens, through the perfumed foliage, into the wild mountains rode the rescuers, three hundred strong. Fiercely in the van thundered the black steed of the hacendado, his rider's mind considering the most appropriate punishment for the malefactor. The law's merciful premonitions of rifle balls before breakfast was ridiculously inadequate. The faggots or boiling oil seemed a better remedy, yet scarcely measuring up to the exigency. He would consult the monks, who had read up on the Inquisition, and perhaps an ideal method might be suggested.

As the ascent grew steeper the party deployed. De Gomara and his retinue keeping straight ahead, turned suddenly into a roadway cut into the side of the mountain. Across the abyss was Moreno and his fantastic crowd of outlaws lined up as if waiting. Camilla sat on the saddle in front of her captor. De Gomara, with a cry of rage raised his carbine. The bandit held up his right hand.

"Senor de Gomara," he said, "it would be a pity to slaughter a hundred good men when two will suffice."

"The hacendado understood.

"So be it," he returned; "you on that side and I on this till one shall die."

Moreno dismounted and gently assisted Camilla to alight. He indicated a safe place for her to stand and walked down the road bordering the chasm on his side. It was agreed that a captain in the pursuing party should count. The bandit stepped boldly out in the center of the road. He was a magnificent figure when he threw his long black coat on a rock and began examing his carbine. From his tall black hat a crimson plume threw a sinister shadow in the morning sunlight. His face was strong and rugged like a soldier's that had seen service, but his voice, though clear, was soft and musical. He was a typical bandit of song and story, plying his dangerous trade in the sombre mountains of the isthmus, smiling at smartly dressed soldiers and their nickel-plated guns.

No one could tell just how it happened, nor when, but at the last count the two carbines spoke simultaneously and Camilla sank at the feet of the brigand chief with a bullet in her breast. De Gomara's right arm was perforated by the ball from the enemy's deflected weapon. With a strange cry, Moreno stooped and lifted the stricken girl. Then he looked across the gorge.

"A truce, gentlemen," he said; "the lady's hit. Will Senor de Gomara please come over? My men will guide him and protect him."

Moreno walked down the narrow cliff roadway and then disappeared in a rude shanty on the mountain side. When the hacendado entered a few minutes later he saw the brigand on his knees beside the cot, the dying girl's arms around his neck. Her eyes were looking into his with pathetic devotion.

"They made me do it, my dear Moreno," she murmured; "thou wilt forgive poor Camilla, who never ceased to love thee?"

The brigand run his hand through the tawny tresses and whispered something no one else heard. The dark eyes smiled; then closed forever. For a moment or two the hunted man knelt with bowed head. Then he arose and looked into the face of the one with whom he had fought.

"Her last words were of love and forgiveness," he said, with a curious trembling of his voice. "I imagine she mistook me for you."

The hacendado's eyes brightened.

"Heaven be praised!" he exclaimed; "I feared she loved you."

"Not likely," returned Moreno, with affected carelessness. "I had heard of her in—in a general way—that's all. Her dust is yours."

SECRET OF WASHING GLOVES.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: "The only trouble about these wash gloves," said the lady, "is that they dry, after washing, so very stiff and boardlike."

"That is easily remedied," he said. "I'll tell you how to wash the gloves so that they will dry soft and pliable, the same as new. After you have rinsed them quite clean, dip them in a final bath of fresh water and rub plenty of soap into them, drying them without rinsing this last soap out. The soap left in the gloves makes them wonderfully soft—they don't then need, after drying, to be rubbed soft with ten or fifteen minutes' hard labor. This soap secret being used, wash gloves are quite perfect. It is no wonder they are completely superseding the expensive kid glove, for they are half as cheap again and their washing is so easy—do them at bedtime, toss them on the radiator, and in the morning they are ready to put on."

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—

The Board of County Commissioners of the county of St. Louis, Minnesota, met this the 31st day of December, 1908, at 9:30 o'clock in the forenoon, pursuant to adjournment.

The minutes of the meeting of Dec. 8 were approved as read.

Duluth, Minn. Dec. 31, 1908.

A meeting of the board of audit of St. Louis county, Minnesota, was held at the office of Odin Halden, county auditor, at 9 o'clock a. m., Dec. 31, 1908, and called to order for the purpose of examining bonds and proposals for bank depositories, Odin Halden, chairman; E. PROMINENT WEST DULUTH MAN DIES

O. S. Olson Passes Away After Brief Illness and Operation.

O. S. Olson, who for the past eighteen years has been prominent in West Duluth affairs, died last night at the Duluth hospital following an operation, which was preceded by a brief illness of a week.

Mr. Olson was operated upon on Wednesday night. Thursday he appeared to be improving, and it was thought that the operation might prove successful. In the evening, however, he grew worse, and at 7:30 death came.

For the past eighteen years Mr. Olson had been a resident of West Duluth. He was councilman while West Duluth was a village. He also served as street commissioner and assistant superintendent of the poor. He was a director in the Western State bank at the time of his death.

Mr. Olson came to Duluth from Farmington, Minn. He first entered the general merchandise business, later selling out and engaging in the grocery business, in which business he was at the time of his death, under the firm name of Olson & Kauppi.

The decedent was 58 years old, and leaves a wife and adopted son. He also is survived by his mother, three sisters and three brothers. One of the brothers, Rev. Sten of Fosston, Minn., and two sisters from Farmington, are in the city to attend the funeral, which will take place tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock from the residence, 205 South Sixty-first avenue west, with interment in Oneota cemetery. The funeral will be small, and only the relatives and close friends of the family. Rev. T. T. Roan, pastor of the Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church, will officiate.

Friends and relatives may view the remains at the residence tomorrow morning from 10 to 12 o'clock. Mr. Olson was well thought of in West Duluth and had many close friends there.

FIREMAN'S HOME BURNS.

Fire Started in Basement From an Oil Stove.

A fire which started from an oil stove in the basement, this morning, badly damaged the home of William E. Harrison, a West Duluth fireman residing at 1415 Central avenue.

The department was called at 9:53 and was out for nearly two hours. The house is situated at the top of Fifty-fifth avenue west, which is poorly paved, so it was a hard, rough pull for the horses.

From the basement, the fire worked up through the kitchen floor, and on into the attic. The damage is estimated at $600, and is partially covered by insurance.

Curling Scores.

CHORUS ELECTS OFFICERS.

Plans Are Made for Norwegian Independence Day May 17.

The Normanna male chorus held its election of officers last night at Flaaten's conservatory. The following were chosen: President, C. J. Hailing; vice president, George Thrana; recording secretary, G. Sodahl; financial secretary, P. J. Hammer; treasurer, B. Sande; manager, John Solvick; property man, H. Haugan; marshal, S. Haug and director, O. Halten.

The society decided to celebrate the Norwegian independence day, May 17, with a program of music and speeches. Some prominent speaker will be engaged for the occasion.

The boys of the Tacoma, Wash., high school want a $100,000 stadium, and are doing their best to raise the money for it. Already over $5,000 has been collected, and now some of the business men of the city have promised to take a hand in the matter and help them out.

IS THE EVIL SPREADING?

Police Say Many Questionable Characters Are Coming Here.

Efforts Being Made to Drive Them From the City.

Are women of doubtful character and reputation coming to Duluth from outside points, since the closing of the St. Croix avenue disorderly district, to walk the streets?

The police seem to think that they are. During the last week a number of women of suspicious appearance, unknown to the police, and with unfamiliar faces, have appeared on Superior street, and their actions lead the detectives to believe that they are of an undesirable class.

They are being closely watched, and at the first opportunity will be run out of town if they are caught doing anything out of the way. It is an easy matter for the blue coats to keep tab on the few women of St. Croix avenue fame who are yet in the city, but with these strangers it is different. It may take several weeks for the coppers to get a line on them.

The fact that Duluth's disorderly district has been closed was well advertised throughout the West, and particularly in the Twin Cities, where women who walk the streets are said to numerous. It is also well understood that the police will keep pretty close watch of girls who formerly lived in St. Croix avenue houses, and it naturally follows that strange girls could fly their calling with more safety in Duluth. This fact might induce outsiders to come here.

It has been the experience of other cities that the closing of the disorderly houses has increased the number of disreputable characters in other parts of the city, and realizing this to be a fact, the Duluth police are very vigilant just now, and doing everything they can to prevent this condition of affairs existing in Duluth.

BIG ORDER FOR MACHINERY.

Duluth Concern Will Ship Log Loaders to Louisiana.

That the fame of Duluth-made machinery is not local, is illustrated in a large order just closed by a local manufacturing concern for machinery to be used in the South.

J. R. McGiffert, secretary and treasurer of the Clyde Iron works, returned yesterday from Chicago, where he closed a deal with the Tremont Lumber company, which operates extensively in the South, for about six carloads of machinery, all to be made here, for use in Louisiana.

The order calls for two large Clyde four-line steam log skidders and two McGiffert steam log rollers.

The consideration involved is not made public, but is understood to be in in five figures. The machinery is to be shipped to Louisiana in February.

TAWNEY IN HOT RETORT

Minnesotan Puts Roosevelt Himself in Ananias Club.

Declares He Can Prove President's Statements Untrue.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The packed galleries, which listened today to the stinging report of the house committee, appointed to deal with President Roosevelt's reply to the request for information concerning the basis for his statements about the secret service in his last message to congress, remained crowded after Mr. Perkins had finished his report, and the speeches by the congressmen, who were mentioned in the president's reply, were listened to with intense interest.

Mr. Tawney of Minnesota, in presenting his views of the case, declared that nothing could contribute so much to the destruction of the republic as an attempt upon the part of one branch of it to impeach the honor and integrity of another branch, however that attempted impeachment may be sought, "whether by attributing to the members of that other branch as a whole motive for conduct wholly inconsistent with honor, integrity and the faithful discharge of duty, or otherwise."

The arbitrary and unauthorized use of the great power of any one of the great branches of the government in that respect, he said, if allowed to pass unchallenged, would go further to undermine the confidence of the people in their government and the very foundation of the government than all agencies combined.

He said that when the executive deliberately charged, as he said was done in the president's message of Dec. 8, 1908, that the legislative branch, in the exercise of its constitutional functions, passed legislation which "has been of benefit only and would be of benefit only to the criminal classes" and "if deliberately introduced for the purpose of diminishing the effectiveness of war against crime, it could not have been better devised to that end," there was clearly implied that in adopting the provision of which the president complained, congress intended to benefit and protect from detection and punishment those guilty of committing fraud and other violations of the public law.

Mr. Tawney asserted that no disclaimer now could modify or change either the meaning of the language used by the president of its interpretation by the people and press of the country "under which interpretation the honor and integrity of congress has been assailed and stands impaired."

He referred to the further utterance of the president regarding members of congress being afraid to be investigated, and said that "to thus impugn the motives of the members of the legislative branch of our government, violates not only the constitutional privileges of congress, but is calculated to arouse a popular prejudice against all branches of our government more injurious to its continued success than anything that has occurred in the history of the republic."

Without Justification.

If, he added, there was no intention to thus impugn the motive of congress, "then it was extremely unfortunate that he gave the people of our country the opportunity to say that that was the intention and that such language would not have been used by the head of the executive branch of the government without justification."

He would prove, he said, that the president's utterances were unfounded, but he added, "when proven unfounded, it is unfortunate that there will still linger in the minds of many, as a result of this charge, the suspicion that there does not exist among those entrusted with the duties and responsibilities of government that degree of faithfulness to duty and unselfish patriotism which the people have a right to expect of their representatives in all branches of the service."

Taking up the provision enacted which restricted the operations of the agents of the secret service division of the treasury department, Mr Tawney declared that for thirty years the law specifically had confined their duties to that department, but that the law in that respect had been strengthened. He denied that the provision tied the hands of government officials in ferreting out crime, because, he said, the secret service of the treasury was a very small part of the secret service in the various departments. He attempted to refute the statement that land fraud investigations were estopped because of the provision referred to, and cited the appropriation of $500,000, given last year for the land office alone, for detecting frauds, an amount, he said, double that ever allowed before.

The president, said Mr. Tawney, had completely misquoted his speech mentioned in the message, "whether unintentionally or not," and he read from the congressional record certain extracts to support his statement.

As to Morah, the assistant chief of the secret service department, who was promoted for unearthing certain "ink frauds, Mr. Tawney declared in conclusion, that the promotion was made on the initiative of the committee on appropriations itself and no one else.

Speeches were also delivered by Messrs. Smith of Iowa, Fitzgerald of New York and Sherley of Kentucky.

PROMISES TO BE IMPARTIAL

Illinois Speaker's Hands Off, in Election Contest.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 8.—Speaker Shurtleff made a definite statement today, asserting his impartiality in the contest question. After the adjournment of the house he said:

"I have not made any bargains, express or implied relative to any action in the event of a contest or a recount. If any one shall agree on what is to be done in the present situation it is a matter solely for the parties to the agreement to agree as they see fit. I shall be absolutely impartial as to the parties to any such contest."

SAYS ROADS FORMERLY WERE IN COMPETITION.

New York, Jan. 8.—That prior to 1901 the Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and Santa Fe railroads were in actual competition for California business was testified to by George Smith of Jersey City, former general agent for the Pennsylvania at the hearing today of the government's suit to dissolve the alleged Union Pacific merger.

Smith said the Oregon Short Line, the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern competed for freight shipments into and out of Portland, Or.

Shippers at Denver and other Colorado points had benefited by competition, he said.

NIGHT RIDING AT END, IS BELIEF

Satisfaction Over Conviction is General Throughout Tennessee.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 8.—As far as can be ascertained, the verdict of murder in the first degree rendered in the case of the six alleged night riders and second degree murder for two others, at Union City, while in some degree surprising, meets with the hearty approval of the better classes of citizens throughout the state.

The prompt conviction of these men, it is believed, will effectually put a stop to night riding and other similar lawlessness in Tennessee.

WHEAT HAS FIRM TONE

Cold Weather and Snow Shortage Causes Apprehension in Southwest.

Flax Fractionally Higher at End of Session Here.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 8.—Wheat trading was only moderate today. Closing prices were firm on bullish weather reports from the Southwest. The Modern Miller was out with a bullish report on winter wheat conditions. On the other hand Argentine shipments were very large.

May wheat was a shade off in Chicago, but other markets showed no losses. Duluth and Minneapolis were fractionally higher.

The Modern Miller says:

"Freezing temperatures and no snow protection in most of the winter wheat territory, creates apprehension of damage to the crop, especially as weather conditions some time past favored plant growth."

Argentine shipments of wheat were 864,000 bus, against 336,000 bus. last week and 496,000 bus. a year ago.

Liverpool closed ⅛d higher. Berlin and Budapest ⅝c higher and Paris ¼c lower.

The May option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth, a shade off in Chicago, ¼ @ ¼c higher in Minneapolis and unchanged higher in New York, St. Louis and Winnipeg. The closing prices were not received from Kansas City. The July option closed ⅛c higher in Duluth and Chicago, ⅜c up in Minneapolis, unchanged on New York, a shade higher in St. Louis and ⅛c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅛c higher in Chicago and unchanged to ¼d lower in Liverpool. May oats closed ⅛c higher in Chicago.

Car receipts at Duluth were 19 against 66 last year, and at Minneapolis 122 against 229 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 141 against 305 last year. Chicago received 6 against 16 last year. Winnipeg received 97 against 122 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 245,000 bus, last year 538,000 bus. Shipments, 167,000 bus, last year, 182,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 480,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 376,000 bus, last year, 620,000 bus. Shipments 476,000 bus, last year 449,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 51,000 bus.

Trading in wheat was fairly active in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.09⅜, went off to $1.09¼, rallied to $1.09⅝ and closed at $1.09⅜, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed ⅛c higher than yesterday at $1.09⅜.

Durum wheat closed ¼c lower and cash spring wheat was selling at the May price for No. 1 northern.

Flax was quite active and closed fractionally higher here. May flax opened ⅛c lower at $1.54, went up to $1.54⅜, declined to $1.54⅛ and closed at $1.54½, a gain of ⅛c over yesterday.

Oats closed ⅛c higher and other coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Slump at Opening Caused by Selling by Commission Houses.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 8.—General selling by commission houses and pit traders caused a sharp slump in prices in the wheat market at the opening here today, but a large part of the loss was regained on covering by shorts. News of the day was rather colorless and had little effect. The greatest selling pressure was on the May delivery, and to that option, after opening ⅛ @ ¼c to ¼ @ ⅜c lower at $1.07¼ to $1.07⅝, declined to $1.06⅝, rallying later to $1.07⅛. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 147 cars against 321 cars a year ago.

The market became strong during the last half of the day owing to good demand by leading longs. May advanced $1.08. The close was steady, with May a shade lower at $1.07½.

Liberal sales of cash grain yesterday offset the weakness of corn market, caused a firm tone in the corn market. Owing to a scarcity of offerings the volume of trade was small. Prices at the opening were unchanged to ⅛c higher, May opening at 61⅜ @ 61⅞c to 61⅝c. Later the price touched 61⅝ @ 61⅜c. Local receipts were 104 cars, with 3 of contract grade.

The market rallied with wheat, May advancing to 62c. The close was firm, with May up ⅛c at 61⅞c.

Oats were firm because of the continuance of an extremely small movement. Trade was quiet. May opened unchanged at 51⅜c, sold off to 51⅝c and then advanced to 51¾ @ 51⅞c. Local receipts were 51 cars.

Provisions were quiet and steady. Small receipts of live hogs at West packing centers had a bullish effect, but the slump in wheat partially offset this influence. Prices at the opening were unchanged to 2½ @ 5c higher.

Cash wheat, No. 2 red, $1.05¼ @ 1.07; No. 3 red, $1.05 @ 1.06; No. 2 hard, $1.03½ @ 1.05; No. 3 hard, $1.01 @ 1.04; No. 1 northern, $1.09 @ 1.10; No. 2 northern, $1.07 @ 1.08; No. 3 spring, $1.02 @ 1.08. Corn No. 2, 59½c; No. 3, white, 61½c; No. 3 yellow, 59½c; No. 4, 58 @ ½c. Oats, No. 3 white, 50 @ 51c; No. 4 white, 49½ @ 50¼c; standard, 51½c. Close: Wheat, May, $1.07½; July, 98¾c; September, 94½c. Corn, January, 57⅞c, May, 61¾c; July, 62 @ ¼c; September, 61⅛ @ ¼c. Oats, January, 50¼c; May, 52c; July, 46⅝c; September, 39½ @ ⅝c. Pork, January, $16.45; May, $16.67½. Lard, January, $8.47½ @ 9.50; May, $9.72½; July, $9.82½. Ribs, May, $8.87½; July, $8.90. Rye, cash, 76 @ ½c; May, 78½c. Barley, cash, 63 @ 68½c. Timothy, March, $4.10 @ 4.15. Clover, March, $9.60.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 8.—Light receipts became the feature of the local market today. Only 121 cars appeared in Minneapolis, compared with 329 a year ago, and in Duluth 19 against 66; Winnipeg got 99, compared with 144. The fact that elevator stocks will increase for the week 250,000 bus. lost effect, in view of the light movement, and the certainty that in all probability will follow when the milling business gets back anywhere near normal again. The market was checked at $1.09 for May and turned up after striking that point. May opened $1.09; high, $1.09⅝ @ ¾; low, $1.08¾; close, $1.09¾ @ ½. July opened $1.09; high, $1.09⅝ @ ¾; low, $1.08⅞; close, $1.09½ @ ⅝. Cash demand, while not brisk, was active enough to absorb the light offerings. Millers bought sparingly.

No. 1 Northern was firm at ¾ @ 1c over May, selling later at 1c over with a car or two 1¼c over. No. 2 averaged about 1¼c over. Close: No. 1 Northern spot, $1.10¾; to arrive, $1.10; No. 2 Northern spot, $1.07¼; to arrive, $1.01¼; No. 3 wheat, $1.05¾ @ 1.06¾; No. 3 yellow corn, 55½ @ 55¾c; No. 3 white oats, 48⅝ @ 49⅝c; No. 2 rye, 67¾ @ 71¼c; Barley receipts, 22 cars against 96 cars; shipments, 27 cars. The market was about steady with best demand for the dark colored barley. Close: 58 @ 61c.

Flax receipts, 14 cars, against 30 cars; shipments, 1 car. No. 1 seed sold at ½c over Duluth price, and was in good demand. Close, $1.54¾.

Mill stuffs, shipments, 1,442 tons. Millers quote bran in bulk $19, but somewhat easier prices are heard on the outside.

Flour has not improved very much, although some of the country millers are finding inquiry a little better. Foreign interest is slight. Shipments, 30,507 barrels. First patents, $5.40 @ 5.65; second patents, $5.20 @ 5.40; first clears, $4 @ 4.10; second clears, $2.90 @ 3.10.

Duluth Car Inspection.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

The Market Opened With Slight Gains But Soon Went Downward.

Close Was Weak and Active Near Lowest Figures.

New York, Jan. 8.—Gains were general in the opening dealings in stocks today, but were small as a rule, and business was in moderate volume. A few stocks were lower than last night, Erie running off a point, and Colorado Fuel tending towards reaction. Consolidated Gas rose 1⅝, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Ste. Marie and Kansas City Southern preferred 1, and Central Leather and Tennessee Copper large fractions.

Although there was a marked demonstration of strength in many of the minor railroad stocks which have been prominent in the speculation of late, the usual trading stocks were not supported. St. Paul lost a point and the other leaders a good fraction. Minneapolis and St. Louis jumped 7 points, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie 4½, American Express 4, Kansas City Southern preferred 3¾, Colorado & Southern 3¼, Bethlehem Steel preferred 2¾, Chicago and Alton preferred 2½, Iowa Central preferred 2¾, and others a point or more. Losses were shown of 1½ in Colorado Fuel and American Car preferred and a point in American Smelting.

The general list continued to recede with regard to the occasional spurts in special stocks. Missouri Pacific was marked up 2⅝, St. Louis Southwestern preferred 5½, New York Air Brake 3½, Iowa Central 2½, Kansas City Southern 1⅝ and New Haven 1½. On the other hand, New York Central, New Yor kPublic Utilities and Colorado Fuel declined 1¾ to 2, Erie 1⅝, Union Pacific and St. Paul ½, Utah Copper 1¼, and Southern Pacific. Great Northern and Amalgamated Copper 1. Bonds were firm.

The market closed weak and active. The Rock Island stocks extended their advance, the preferred rising 2¾ in all. Western Maryland and American Agricultural Chemical gained 1½, and Louisville & Nashville and various others a point. The general list drift on a lower level, some stocks touching the lowest prices again. Interborough-Metropolitan preferred lost 3, Colorado Fuel 2½, American Locomotive 1¾ and Atchison, Northwestern and the Denver & Rio Grande stocks 1. There were violent reactions where some of the advances had occurred.

Closing prices are bid.

COAL SHORTAGE IN THE WEST

Heavy Movement Is Beginning, Say the Railroad Men.

According to the statement of railroad agents and fuel men of Duluth, the amount of coal in the West is almost exhausted, which means that a heavy movement of coal will set in within a very short time.

According to the opinion of a Northwestern agent of one of the roads, the West has been overstocked with fuel for the past year. This condition came about through the car shortage, peculiar as it may seem.

According to this man, at the time of car shortage, a year ago last November, dealers ordering coal in the West, would order five cars if they only desired one car. The first road that could fill the order would get the business, the orders of the other four roads being cancelled.

Then suddenly the business depression overtook the country. The East shipped foreign cars to the West by the trainload. In two or three days the car situation was completely changed. Then the dealers in the West, who had ordered so bountifully of coal, with the expectation that they would only get one car out of the multitude of orders, suddenly found that they had received all of the coal they had ordered, at about exactly the same time.

In this way, according to the railroad man, the West has been overstocked with fuel for the past two years. Very little fuel was needed last year, and very little fuel has been ordered this fall. Now the fuel stock has been exhausted, according to this man, and the roads of Duluth will soon begin to get the business of carrying coal to the Western towns and villages.

According to the statement of the railroad men, the coal movement has already shown an increase, and from now on they predict a steady movement of coal to the West.

The business for the month of December, 1908, shows a marked increase over the business done in the postoffice for the same month in 1907.

The receipts for the month of December last year were $29,292.97, and for the same month in 1907 were $27,336.94, a gain of $1,966.03.

For the year ending Dec. 31, 1908, the total receipts were $282,129.43, as compared to the total receipts of $269,100.14, in 1907, a gain of $13,029.29.

GRAND JURY REPORTS

The grand jury returned its first batch of indictments at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Indictments were returned against the following: Fred Whitby, burglary, third degree; Cliney Cooper, forgery, second degree; John Myllykoski, assault, first degree; Charles Nelson, grand larceny, second degree; Charles Kelly, Mike Miller and Frank Johnson, burglary, third degree. No true bill was returned against Josie Svensk, accused of blind pigging.

SAYS TEETH ARE BROWNING'S

Dentist Identifies Them in Church Murder Mystery.

Port Huron, Mich., Jan. 8.—Dr. Charles Bowber, dentist, of St. Clair, this afternoon, positively identified two of the teeth found in the stove in the Battle Run Methodist church as part of the set he made for Gideon Browning, the missing carpenter from Adair.

Prosecutor Brown has accepted the identification and the supervisors have offered a reward of $500 for Brown's murderer.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 8.—Rumors and theories are the only result thus far of the Methodist church murder mystery and reports that either the missing Rev. John Carmichael, or the equally sought Gideon Browning, village carpenter, have been seen since the murder Tuesday prove baseless.

Mrs. Carmichael, wife of the missing preacher, was today taken to Port Huron with a number of other residents of the village of Adair, to be questioned by the prosecuting attorney, that the officers might secure every fact in her possession that could bear on the disappearance of her husband and Browning. A suggestion that the gruesome relics of a human being taken from the church stove may have become from a cadaver and that the blood scattered about the church may not have been human blood, does not receive much support.

MEETINGS OF NATIONAL BANKS

No Changes Anticipated in Officers of Duluth Institutions.

No changes in the directors or the officers of the City National or the First National banks, are scheduled to occur, when the annual meeting of the stockholders and the directors of these two banks are held, next Tuesday.

As far as is known at the present time, all of the old directors of the two institutions, as well as the present officers of the two banks, will be re-elected. There may be some changes, but they are not anticipated at the present time.

The annual meeting of the stockholders will show that the affairs of both of the banks are in excellent condition. The meeting of the stockholders and directors of all national banks in the state will be held next Tuesday.

HIS ORDER.

Chicago News: "I believe I'll take a New England boiled dinner," said the uncertain man with the white eyelashes. "How is the boiled dinner today?"

"It's all right," replied the waitress. "They serve a good boiled dinner here," corroborated the florid diner opposite.

"I see they've got roast goose and apple sauce," said the uncertain man. "That looks pretty good—if it is any good. Would you recommend the goose?"

"Why, cert'nly," replied the waitress. "It looks real nice."

"If it's a young goose and not too greasy——. You say the boiled dinner is good, do you?"

"Most always is," said the florid diner.

"The trouble with goose at a restaurant is that they never cook it right," said the uncertain man. "To begin with, they're likely to get some tough old gander and then serve it up with gravy that's just plain grease and most generally the dressing's got too much sage in it. I'm fond of goose, too. I suppose I might as well risk it. Wait a moment. Here's pigeon potpie. I don't know when I tasted a pigeon pitple last. I don't know but that would suit me about as well as anything. I kind of had my mouth made up for a boiled dinner, though. Do you have sliced salt pork in with the corned beef?"

"I believe so," replied the waitress.

"They ought to," said the uncertain man. "I wouldn't give a snap for MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by William R. McMasters and Emma C. McMasters, his wife, mortgagors, to R. W. Higgins, mortgagee, dated the 10th day of February, 1908, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 11th day of February, 1908, at two o'clock P. M., in Book 234 of Mortgages on page 453 thereof.

That said default consists in the failure of said mortgagors to pay the sum of $752.09, which amount is due at this date upon eight (8) notes of $50.00 each and one note of $300.00, with interest on said notes amounting to $52.09, which said mortgage was given to secure.

That the said R. W. Higgins, mortgagee, has paid the taxes assessed against the premises described in said mortgage for the year 1907 amounting to $4.53; that the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at this date, including said taxes, is Seven hundred and fifty-six and 62-100 dollars ($756.62); that by reason of such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

That the property described in and covered by said mortgage is situated in St. Louis County, Minnesota, and is described as follows, to-wit: the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter (sw¼ of se¼) of Section fifteen (15) in Township fifty-three (53) north of Range nineteen (19) west of the fourth principal meridian, containing thirty-seven and twenty-two one hundredths (37.22) acres, more or less, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining.

That subsequent to said mortgage a portion of the premises therein mortgaged, as above described, has been platted into lots and blocks and that portion is now known and described as the plat of Meadowlands, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said St. Louis County, Minnesota, and recorded on June 12th, 1908, at 4:30 o'clock P. M., in Book "J" of Plats on page 14 thereof; that on the 28th day of July, 1908, said R. W. Higgins, mortgagee, executed and delivered to William R. McMasters and Emma C. McMasters, his wife, mortgagors, a partial release of said mortgage, releasing Lot one (1) in Block two (2) and Lots one(1), two(2), three (3) and four (4) in Block seven (7) of said above mentioned plat, which said partial release was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County and State on the 29th day of August, 1908, at nine o'clock A. M., in Book 218 of Partial Release of Mortgages, on page 262 thereof; that that portion of said platted premises not released from the terms of said mortgage is described as follows, to-wit: Lots one (1) to sixteen (16), inclusive in Block one (1), Lots two (2) to sixteen (16), inclusive, in Block two (2), Lots one (1) to four (4), inclusive, in Block three (3), Lots one (1) to four (4), inclusive, in Block four (4), Lots one (1) to twelve (12), inclusive, in Block five (5), Lots one (1) to twelve (12), inclusive, in Block six (6), and Lots five (5) to twelve (12), inclusive, in Block seven (7), Meadowlands, Minn., according to the recorded plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota.

That no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW THEREFORE, By virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of said premises, excepting such part as has been released from the terms of said mortgage, as aforesaid, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash by the Sheriff of St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House in the city of Duluth, in said County and State, on Saturday, the 23rd day of January, 1909, at ten o'clock A. M., to satisfy the amount then due on said mortgage, including said taxes, together with the costs of such sale and fifty dollars ($50.00) attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage.

Dated this 11th day of December, 1908.

WOMAN SCORES INVESTIGATORS

Warns Them That God is Watching Penitentiary Inquiry.

Leavenworth, Kan., Jan. 8.—Miss Kate Barnard, state superintendent of charities and corrections of Oklahoma, declared today at the Lansing penitentiary investigation that she was not being treated fairly, and warned the Kansas investigators that God was watching the hearing and would hold them responsible.

It was Miss Barnard's original charges that Oklahoma prisoners were being inhumanely treated that brought about the investigation. Today, when Senator Reed, one of the commissioners appointed by Governor Hoch, was questioning the witness, asking her to be more explicit, Miss Barnard displayed anger and declared she was not being given a fair chance to support her charges.

"I warn you gentlemen," finally declared Miss Barnard, "that God is watching this trial, and that he hears everything that is being said, and you men are responsible to Him. I serve notice on you that if necessary I will meet you before the gates of heaven for a fair trial."

ORDERS NEW MOTOR BOAT

Al Ribenack Will Have 29-Mile an Hour Speed Craft.

Plans of the Other Enthusiasts for 1909 Season.

Al Ribenack, the well-known hotel man, will next summer have a motor boat that will take spray from nothing in the local harbor.

The new boat—for a new boat it is—is being built by the Dingle Boat company. She will carry a 75-horse-power engine, built by the Auto Engine company, and will have a guaranteed speed of twenty-nine miles an hour.

There is no boat in the harbor that has that speed.

When motor boat enthusiasts begin to slip their craft into the waters of the Duluth-Superior harbor next spring there will be excitement in plenty. The board of trade men are planning on bringing the Currier, the Sterling Engine company's boat, to the head of the Lakes. Dick Schell has something up his sleeve, although he refuses at this time to make known his plans. "Did I ever slip up when there was a motor boat race in sight?" was all that he would say in answer to the question of whether or not he would have a new outfit. Frank Wade, it is expected, will have a new one, and Guy Warren will refit the Buster with a new engine.

Interest in motor boat racing is becoming intense in Duluth, even with spring some months away, and it is expected that the summer of 1909 will create a ne wepoch in local motor boat racing.

CENTRALS WIN FROM FITWELLS

PRESIDENT OF STATE BOWLERS

Duluth Men Have as Their Guest R. F. Malone of St. Paul.

R. F. Malone of St. Paul, assistant passenger agent for the Chicago Great Western railway, and also president of the State Bowling association visited the Duluth bowlers last night.

He rolled several games with some of the locals and said afterward that they were among the best he had met.

He is enthusiastic over the bowling tournament to be held in St. Paul next month. Winnipeg and a number of cities in North and South Dakota asked some time ago, permission to send teams, and at a recent meeting of the officials of the state league this permission was granted.

This will necessitate the changing of the association from a state association to an international bowling association.

The Duluth bowlers will send a number of teams to the tournament this year and hope to repeat their very creditable showing of last year.

DISAGREEMENT MAY BE RESULT

Wilson Jury Has Hard Time Arriving at a Verdict.

The jury trying the case of the state against Andrew Wilson, the New Duluth saloonkeeper, charged with keeping his saloon open and selling intoxicants after hours, filed out of the municipal court room at 10:50 o'clock this morning, and up to 1 o'clock had not returned a verdict.

In charging the jury, Judge Windom said that merely keeping the saloon open after hours could not be considered an offense against the laws of the state. It must be shown beyond reasonable doubt that intoxicants had been sold after 11 o'clock at night, he said. He explained that if the jurors believed any witness had perjured himself on the stand on one point, they were justified in giving no consideration to his testimony on other points, unless such other testimony was corroborated by a reliable witness.

John Keyes acted as attorney for the defense, and Assistant City Attorney Kenney conducted the prosecution. Mr. Keyes frankly stated it as his opinion that some of the witnesses for the prosecution had lied.

Witnesses for the state were: John Berger, Wencel Boyer, Otto Krueger, J. M. Carlson, Vernon Laidley and Rudolph Brunc, and those for the defense were William Lewis, Martin Bradley, Andrew Wilson, proprietor of the saloon; C. Christopherson, Frank Wilson and C. C. Strand.

It was charged that the night of Dec. 26, Strand proprietor of a rival saloon, closed his saloon at 11 o'clock, and that about ten men went from there direct to Wilson's place; that they were admitted, and that they purchased intoxicants there during the next hour.

WEST END

MEETING NIGHT CHANGED.

Bema Club Will Meet on Tuesday Evenings Hereafter.

Members of the Bema club, the West end debating and literary society, which has flourished for two years, have decided that Tuesday evening is the best time to hold their regular gatherings, and hereafter that will be the big night in Bema circles. Friday has been abandoned as a meeting night.

The next session will be Tuesday evening in Dr. Oredson's office. There will be a debate on the question: "Resolved, That Capital Punishment Should Be Abolished."

Hereafter, officers of the club will be elected at every quarter. Officers for this quarter are: President, John Carlson; vice president, Nils Nissen; secretary, Oscar Helam; treasurer, Louis Levine.

EXTENSION PROJECT.

West End Hillside Improvement Club to Take It Up Farther.

For the furtherance of the society's plan for the cutting down of the grade on Piedmont avenue to permit of the extension of the street car line, the West End Hillside Improvement club will hold a meeting this evening in Alderman Peter Olson's shop, Twenty-third avenue west and Tenth street.

Already the club has secured many signers to the petition urging the improvement and promising financial and moral support to the project, and it is planned to secure many more names this evening. The club has been working quite a while on this plan, and expects to carry it out successfully.

Narveson Funeral.

The funeral of Narve O. Narveson, the well known West ender who dropped dead on West Superior street Wednesday night, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the residence, 2201 West Fourth street. He was a member of the U. C. T. and Ancient Order of United Workmen, and members of these lodges will attend. Death was found to have been caused by hemorrhage of the brain.

West End Shortrails.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal church is in session this afternoon, at the home of Mrs. William Naughton, 2510 West Second street.

The Adams school alumni boys held an enjoyable smoker the other evening at the home of one of the members who now resides in the East end. Plans for a number of athletic enterprises were made.

The first hockey team of the Adams school alumni will meet the Gopher team Sunday, at the first named organization's rink, at the foot of Twenty-first avenue West.

The recently organized West end lodge of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will hold its installation of officers next Thursday evening in St. Clement's hall.

Ernest Wettelhahn has gone to Collegeville, Minn., to resume his studies at St. John's college.

A party was given last evening in honor of the eighteenth birthday of Miss Lillian Chell, at her home, in West First street.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Johnson have returned from Madison, Wis., where they visited their daughter.

The Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Clement's church will entertain at a card party next Thursday evening.

Edward Stevens and John Steele have gone to the range, to take positions.

The young people of Zion Norwegian Lutheran church will give a musical and literary program this evening, in the church parlors.

Notice to Loggers.

BARS ARE THROWN DOWN AS TO TAX LEGISLATION BY THE COURT'S DECREE

Almost No Limit to What the Legislature May Attempt.

Tax Theorists Now Favor Continuance of Direct State Tax.

Good Roads Amendment Becomes Part of the Constitution.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The decision of the supreme court of the state of Minnesota that the tax amendment to the constitution was carried at the election of 1906, in spite of the fact that an obvious error in the position of the tax amendment and the good roads amendment on the tally sheets produced incorrect returns, and in spite of the fact that when the amendment was resubmitted at the election of 1908 the people showed that their mind was in the matter by rejecting it overwhelmingly, will add a new note of confusion to the thirty-sixth session of the Minnesota legislature.

What it means is that the bars are down as to tax legislation. Under the old constitutional provision in regard to taxation, equality was enforced. All property must be assessed equally, upon a cash basis.

Under the new rule the only restriction is that taxation must be equal upon the same "class" of property. One class may be taxed heavily, and another class not at all. There is almost no limit to what the legislature will now be able to attempt in the way of tax reform measures.

While the decision gives a chance for a tonnage tax on iron ore for state purposes, that was not the object of the "wide open" amendment; neither is it the only scheme that is possible. As a matter of fact, in the days when the "wide open" amendment was proposed, tonnage tax was not heard of. The state had had a tonnage tax in former years, and had abandoned it as unsatisfactory, as other states have done in similar circumstances.

The main object of the "wide open"

WROTE NOVEL BEFORE CRIME

Minister, Thought to be Slayer, Had Morbid Theme.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 9.—Following the statement by Dentist Browbeer of St. Clair, that the teeth found with the human remains in a stove in the Methodist church near Adair, were those of Gideon Browning, the missing carpenter, and the consequent deduction that Browning was murdered by Rev. J. M. Carmichael, the missing minister, it is announced by Rev. Charles W. Baldwin of this city that Carmichael had just finished writing a novel before the murder. The manuscript was mailed to Baldwin and he received it last Tuesday, the day of the murder.

In a letter with the manuscript, Rev. Carmichael explained that it was a sequel to a story entitled "The Blazed Mill Creek," which the minister sent to his brother clergyman here several months ago.

Rev. Mr. Baldwin and a Detroit newspaper man began an examination of the stories, but the investigation had not proceeded far before Rev. Baldwin refused to allow the examination to continue, on the ground that the papers did not belong to him and the revelation of their contents might involve a breach of trust on his part.

The slight glimpse into Rev. Carmichael's production tended to produce the impression that the later work, mailed the day before the crime, showed a morbid frame of mind.

One chapter opens with a description of an old miner, who has lost his eyesight, an arm and a leg in accidents in the mines. The miner asks himself why these terrible injuries should be inflicted upon him, a well-meaning and innocent man.

Another chapter opens with two covicts telling freely of crimes they committed and knew others to commit.

It became known today that Rev. H. Carmichael, bought a ticket from Port Huron to Chicago the day after the murder and presumably left for that city.

STATE TAX ON IRON ORE

Recommended to Legislature by the State Tax Commission.

One Member Opposes This Tax in a Strong Statement.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota tax commission in its forthcoming report to the legislature will recommend a small tonnage tax on iron ore for state purposes. There will be no recommendation as to the method of imposing the tax, or as to its size, but the commission, or at least Commissioners Lord and McVey, make the general recommendation that there be imposed a

IS FOUND GUILTY OF JURY BRIBERY

Bell, Indiana Horseman, Convicted Despite Rich Relatives.

La Porte, Ind., Jan. 9.—After being out four hours, the jury in the trial of William H. Bell, a well known horseman, charged with jury bribing, brought in a verdict today of guilty. The punishment is an indeterminate term of two to fourten years in state's prison.

The case originated during the trial of a $10,000 alienation suit by Steve Juanovitsch of Chicago, against his father-in-law, John Stevens of Cincinnati. The jury disagreed and because of remarks alleged to have been made by Bell, an investigation was ordered. The grand jury indicted on conspiracy and bribery charges. Gust and George Stevens, sons of the defendant in the alienation suit, William H. Bell and Juror William Blakeman, it being charged that the two Stevens paid Bell for acting as a go-between. The Stevens, pleaded guilty. Bell was defended by the best legal talent obtainable in Northern Indiana, rich relatives using every effort to save him from prison.

JOY RIDE AFTER THEATER, FATAL

Auto Wheel Comes Off, One Man Is Killed.

New York, Jan. 9.—Thrown from an automobile headlong against a fence, Edward Colt Gilman, a well known young real estate broker of Flushing, L. I., was instantly killed, in a "joy ride," which a party of young men and women of Flushing were taking through the Long Island villages early today.

Miss Jeanette McKim of Flushing was rendered unconscious and the extent of her injuries has not been ascertained.

The chauffeur, Frank Brennan, sustained fractures of the skull and arm.

Miss McKim and two other young women, Lucy Bogert and Dorothy Whittle, attended an amateur play given at the Flushing town hall last night, in which Miss McKim had a part. After the play, the party were taken for an auto ride by Mervin Lee. They dashed through Bayside and Great Neck, and then one of the wheels of the automobile came off, as the car was coasting down a steep hill. The car dashed into a fence at the roadside and turned over.

DENY TALE OF TIERNEY

Prosecution in Hains Case Summons Eye Witnesses.

Defendant Is Depressed Although Believing Jury Favors Him.

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 9.—In the trial of Thornton J. Hains, the state today called all the eye witnesses of the shooting of William E. Annis to deny the testimony of John Tierney, the ash collector, a witness for the defense, who said he was on the float when Capt. Hains killed the publisher. The testimony of the witnesses was brief, and Prosecutor Darrin said that he had reason to believe that both sides would be ready to sum up Monday. The defense will call only one witness in sur-rebuttal.

"It's only natural that I should feel the strain of the trial," said Hains, "when so much depends on the outcome. No man knows what twelve men may do, but as I have read the faces of the men who will judge the facts, I have no fears of a conviction. My only fear, however, is a possibility of disagreement, which means another long stay in jail, perhaps, before I can get a new trial. On the evidence I should be acquitted and my best belief is that I will be found not guilty."

It was stated in court today that Tierney is ill with pneumonia.

Warden Sieth of Queens county jail testified in rebuttal that he saw Policeman Fallon seated next to the defendant the night of the coroner's inquest, when Thornton Hains is said to have told the officer that he "would go to hell to get Annis and kill him again."

Fallon was recalled and testified that he was in the Flushing stationhouse when Capt. Hains was brought in, and the captain answered the interrogations put to him by the desk lieutenant regarding his age, name, business and birthplace of his parents and himself. The officer described the speech and manner of Capt. Hains. This testimony was brought out to show that Capt. Hains after the shoot-

MAIL HELD UP BY QUARANTINE

Postmaster at Beaver, Wis., Is Stricken With Smallpox.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 9.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Marinette, Wis., says:

Postmaster Olaf Johnson of Beaver has been stricken with smallpox, and the government has closed the postoffice and held up the mail there. A temporary postoffice has been opened to be maintained until Johnson shall be discharged from quarantine.

Because of the many exposures, nine schools have been closed and wholesale vaccination ordered.

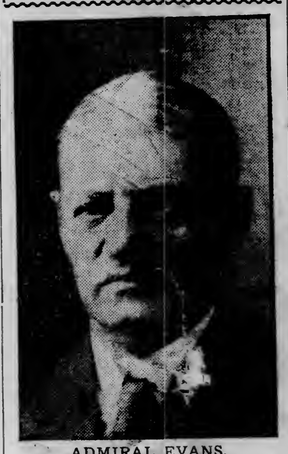

TO ANSWER CHARGES OF THE PRESIDENT

SENATOR TILLMAN.

Washington, Jan. 9.—It was announced today that Senator Tillman will next Monday make answer on the floor of the upper house to the charges made against him by President Roosevelt in his letter to Senator Hale of Maine, in which the president says the South Carolinan used his franking privileges for private business and was mixed up in the Oregon land grab scandal.

FIGHTING BOB, ON CRUTCHES, CHEERED

ADMIRAL EVANS.

New York, Jan. 9.—In an auditorium resplendent with color furnished by the free use of naval insignia in the decorative plan and by the number of brilliant naval uniforms on the platform and among the audience, Rear Admiral R. D. Evans was given a royal welcome to New York by the Navy league members of this city, whom he had come to address at Carnegie hall. "Fighting Bob's" appearance was heralded by a trumpet blast, which called a company of sixty naval battalion members to the platform, the sailors standing at attention, while the admiral, supported by crutches, slowly made his way upon the stage. The audience rose and shouted its welcome to the distinguished guest, who stood bowing until the applause had subsided.

DULUTH HEIGHTS LIKELY TO HAVE THE TERMINALS OF CANADIAN NORTHERN

TWO LARGE COMPANIES NEGOTIATING FOR SITE NEAR THE STEEL PLANT

This Is the Prediction of Duluth Real Estate Men.

Unlimited Space There for Shops, Roundhouses and Yards.

Railroad Has Purchased Large Tract of Land Near Heights.

That a second Proctor will ultimately be established at Duluth Heights by the Canadian Northern road, is the prediction of Duluth real estate men.

The Canadian Northern officials have announced their intention of building into Duluth, and it is not unlikely that work will be begun on the line in the spring.

The water front terminals will be at Forty-second avenue west. The road has purchased what is known as the Pittsburg pier between Forty-second and Forty-third avenues west, and it has a full block of dock property, adjoining some dock property owned at this spot by the Wisconsin Central road.

On this water front site, the road will have its piers and warehouses. Here also, it is stated on good authority, large ore docks will be built, as the road is expected to be a heavy ore carrier.

The right of way, acquired by the road, extends up through Oneota and through the gap in the hills beside the old Merritt homestead. It then turns sharply to the east, and sweeps along the hilltop to Duluth Heights. Passing through Duluth Heights it extends northward.

Duluth Heights is the logical point for the terminals and yards of the road. It is no easy matter, as the New Ohio Governor Asks Appointment of Another Receiver.

Cincinnati, Jan. 9.—Late today Judge Lurton will hear the application of Judson Harmon to be relieved of the receivership of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton road. The American Locomotive Company and Pressed Steel Car Company.

Believed That They Will Establish Large Works Here.

That the American Locomotive company and the Pressed Steel Car company are negotiating for a site in the vicinity of the steel plant site, and on the Wisconsin side of the river, is the statement of a Duluth man who is in a position to know whereof he speaks.

The American Locomotive company, one of the largest corporations in the world, has recently purchased a large tract of land at Gary, Ind., and will erect a great locomotive works there, which will give employment to from 12,000 to 15,000 men. This shows the trend of the iron and steel business west from Pittsburg.

This company and the Pressed Steel Car company are two of the largest concerns making use of the products of a steel plant, and there is little doubt but that ultimately such con-

CUT HIS THROAT THEN SHOT SELF

Old Resident of Gogebic County Makes Certain of Suicide.

Ironwood, Mich., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Martin Cuff, an old resident of Gogebic county, while mentally deranged at his home north of this city Tuesday, slashed his throat with a razor, then shot himself, dying a few minutes later.

Mr. Cuff had resided for years on his farm in the township north of the city. Of late he showed signs of insanity, but his wife never expected the probability of his self destruction.

His brother, Edward Cuff of Houghton, arrived in the city Wednesday to prepare for the funeral. Deceased was a well known farmer, having resided in this section since boyhood. The funeral took place Thursday morning from St. Ambrose church. Interment was made in Riverside cemetery.

THAW ATTENDS SANITY HEARING

Fishkill Landing, N. Y., Jan. 9.—Harry K. Thaw was taken from Mattewan hospital for criminal insane today to Nyack, to be present at a hearing before Justice Tompkins on the application of his mother, Mrs. William Thaw, for a jury trial, to determine whether Harry is insane, and whether he ought to be liberated.

Mrs. Thaw obtained a writ of habeas corpus from Justice Tompkins a few days ago, on her allegation that her son is now sane and that he was not legally committed to the asylum.

Thaw left the asylum in custody of Dr. Baker of that institution, and an attendant.

GIRL KILLED IN KENTUCKY FEUD

Six Persons Wounded, Two of Whom May Die.

Williamstown, Ky., Jan. 9.—Miss Ethel Ranson, aged 25, was killed and six other persons injured, two probably fatally, as a result of a feud fight on the street here early today.

There had been bitter feeling for a long time between the Lantern and Ranson families and it led to trouble when they met at a dance last night in the home of Wes Barnes, two miles east of Williamstown.

The first outbreak was suppressed, but later the men met on the street and, from words, took to pistols and the throwing of stones.

Miss Ranson was killed by a bullet and her brother Sidney was shot below the heart and above the eye, and his recovery is doubtful, as also is that of Charles Clark, who was shot through the lungs.

Grover Clark suffered a broken collar bone. Thomas Turner was beaten, and Emmet Homan has a bullet in his right arm. Grover and George Lantern, both of whom escaped serious injury, are in jail.

FIVE PERISH BY FREEZING

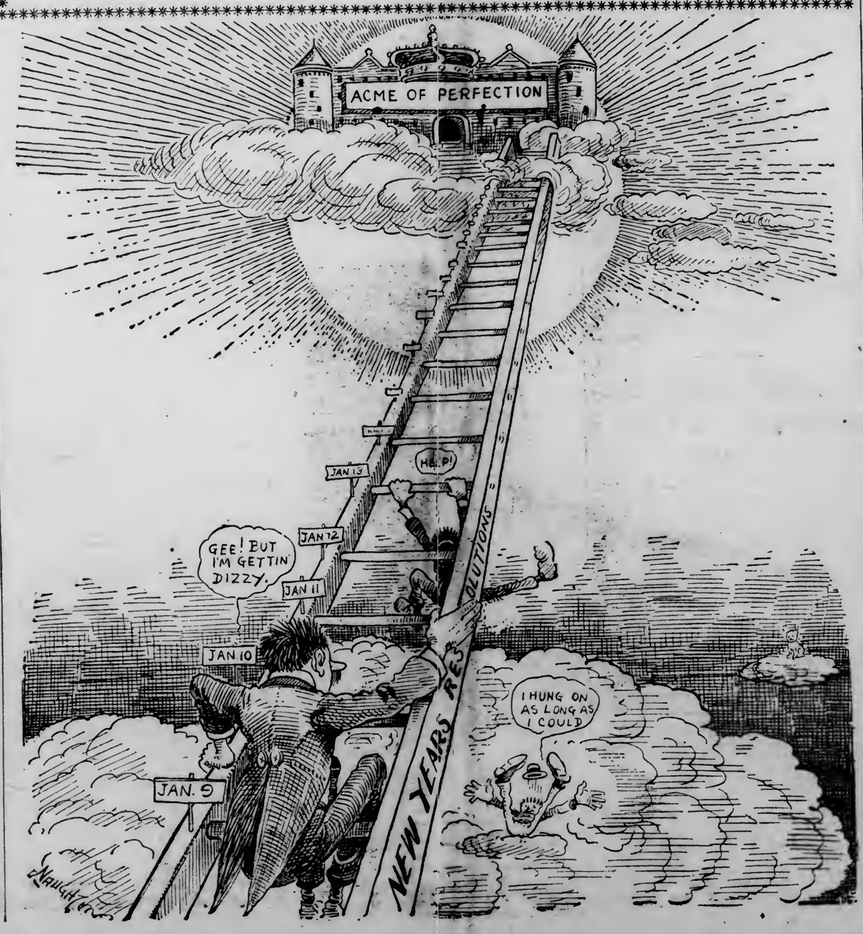

A Party of Frenchmen Meets Death Near McLeod River.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 9.—A report is received at Edmonton, Alberta, that five men have been frozen to death near McLeod river.

According to information from Stony Plain, five Frenchmen left there for McLeod river two days ago and perished three miles west of the 169-mile house on the Grand Trunk Pacific survey.

McLeod river is at the foothills of the Rocky mountains, 200 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Reasons showing the wisdom of having chosen the site at Gatun rather than that at Bohio for the big dam in the Panama canal are given in a letter from George W. Goethals, chairman of the Isthmian canal commission, to Secretary of War Wright.

It is a reply to a recent published article in which Mr. Buneau Bonilla, representative of France in the negotiations for the purchase of the canal company's rights, is alleged to have predicted that the plan adopted by congress for the canal would be a failure because of the selection of Gatun as the site for the main dam. He is quoted as saying that the remedy is to place the dam further up the Chagres valley at Bohio.

Col. Goethals says that idea of having the dam at Bohio is not new, that it was proposed by the canal commission in 1899 and 1901 and that the plan considered by the board of consulting engineers for purposes of comparison with the sea level project contemplated a dam at Bohio with a supplementary dam at Gatun. The minority of this board eliminated the dam at Bohio and this plan was adopted.

"Since that time," says Col. Goethals, "the site at Gatun has been continually under investigation and observation and nothing has been indicated which would cause departig from the opinions expressed by the minority of the consulting board."

RIVERS-HARBORS BILL ADVOCATES STRIVE TO HAVE IT INTRODUCED

Washington, Jan. 9.—The advocates of a general rivers and harbors appropriation bill are making every effort to have such a measure appear at the present session. While the scheme for the Atlantic deep water ways project and the lake-to-the-gulf deeper water ways project are not ready for consideration by congress, the Ohio river project is in such shape as to require only the money necessary for commencing the work.

This project, which is to make an "all-year nine-foot water way" from Pittsburg to Cairo along the Ohio river probably will be the first new large inland project which will be presented to congress and the members of the house committee on rivers and harbors are deliberating as to whether a bill appropriating the money for this work should be reported at the present session.

The committee will meet again Monday to decide, if possible, what course it will pursue with reference to rivers and harbors improvements.

Representative Ransdell of Louisiana, president of the rivers and harbors congress, and a member of the house committee on rivers and harbors, will introduce a resolution within a few days which will provide for a joint commission similar in purpose to the present monetary commission, which would be empowered to employ experts and visit the countries of Europe in order to give congress complete information with regard to the policies of other nations in improvement of water ways.

AGREEMENT IS REACHED

Liquor Ordinance Will be Adopted by Council ...day.

Aldermen Hold Meeting With Mayor in Latter's Office.

A liquor ordinance, said to be satisfactory to everybody concerned, will be adopted at the meeting of the common council next Monday evening.

Aldermen representing the two sides of the council, those favoring Alderman McKnight's liquor ordinance and those opposed to it, met with Mayor Haven in the latter's office yesterday afternoon and agreed to adopt a liquor measure that will cover all the points at issue.

The whole council was not present at the meeting, but those who were there were authorized by the others to arrive at some agreement whereby both sides could get together and vote for the adoption of a satisfactory ordinance.

It is understood the ordinance will include all the important points provided for in the McKnight resolution. It will cover all the points of the old ordinance, but will be so framed as to be constitutional, whereas the old ordinance was not.

As was the case with the old ordinance, jury trials of saloonmen charged with a violation of the liquor laws will be done away with. For some time past prosecutions along this line have been brought under the state law, and invariably a jury has been asked for. Hereafter, following the adoption of the ordinance, these cases will be tried before the judge of the municipal court, without any jury.

Members of the council committee on ordinances and resolutions were among those present at yesterday's meeting.

INDIAN IS ARRESTED.

Walker, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy United States Marshal Frank Tufts was in town Friday, coming down from Bemidji to take in custody an Indian named Jim Kickem who was accused of taking liquor on the reservation. Kickem appeared before United States Commissioner Daniel DeLury, and will later appear before the federal court at Duluth.

McKAY HAS RESIGNED

Fire Board Accepts His Resignation as City Veterinarian.

Park Point May be Given Better Fire Protection.

Dr. John McKay, who recently came so prominently into public notice through charges brought by local horse dealers to the effect that he was discriminating against them in supplying the city fire department with horses, is no longer city veterinarian.

At the meeting of the board of fire commissioners, held yesterday, Dr. McKay tendered his resignation, following out a prediction made in The Herald in December, and it was promptly accepted, without discussion. His successor has not yet been appointed.

Dr. McKay, in his letter of resignation, speaks of the meeting of the commission, called for the purpose of investigating charges made against him, "at which you evidently held me blameless of any wrong doing," and says he deems it best for his personal interests to sever his connections officially with the city.

The investigation showed that Dr. McKay had sold horses to the city, through the Duluth Horse company, at a profit to himself, contrary to the provisions of the city charter, which plainly states that no person employed by the city, no matter in what capacity, has a right to sell anything to the city. It was admitted by the veterinarian that he had sold several horses to the city, through his company, at a profit to himself. It was not claimed that this profit was unreasonably large, but rival horse dealers asserted that horses they offered for sale were turned down by Dr. McKay in favor of animals of his own, so that he might get what profit there was coming.

The board of fire commissioners will hold another meeting next Tuesday or Wednesday, and will then take up the matter of better fire protection for Park Point, and also the matter of building a fire hall at Fourth avenue east and Second street. The council has authorized the purchase of a site there, and preliminary steps in the way of a building probably will be taken at next week's meeting.

At the present time there is no protection against fire on Park Point, except for the volunteer department, and a little apparatus which is held at the street car barns. An attempt will be made to devise means whereby better protection will be provided point resident, and some regular firemen may be established there.

NEW MODEL AUTOMOBILE

Largest Franklin Touring Car Received by Russell Motor Company.

The first 1909 Franklin Model "H" touring car has just been received by the Russell Motor company, 310-312 East Superior street, Duluth, Minn. This is the largest motor car built by the Franklin company and has a six-cylinder 42-horse power air-cooled motor. As in the other 1909 models, no radical change has been made from their models of last season—improvements and refinement throughout and along a fixed line, since established by the Franklin company, constituting the interesting features.

The Model "H" is a seven-passenger motor car, weighing under 2,500 pounds, or less than many five-passenger water-cooled automobiles. Air cooling, light weight, easy riding construction as well as economy, have always been the principles upon which the Franklin company have operated and that they have admirably succeeded is shown by the new model. The finish is royal blue, upholstered in hand buffed leather. The dash is mahogany and carries none of the customary apparatus, such as the oiler and spark coil. The transmission is of the selective type. The ignition system is by Bosch high tension magneto, the magneto having a governor making back firing impossible. The new system as installed brings the ignition to the highest point of perfection. The concentric intake and exhaust valves, auxiliary exhaust valves and other features peculiar to the Franklin and its air-cooled success are still retained. Careful attention to details is noted throughout the motor car. This model is also built as a single and double rumble seat runabout, and limousine.

A representative of the Russell Motor company states that since they have received this car, they have disposed of four six cylinder cars for spring delivery, to Superior street business men, and expect some nice business here in the spring.

NORTH DAKOTA SEEKING UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A meeting of the board of trusteees of North Dakota university is called for next Monday to select a president. President Merrifield of the university, who has resigned, will continue throughout the school year, his resignation taking effect in June.

At a former meeting of the directors, Judge N. C. Young of Fargo was tendered the position, but he declined. Senator Gunderson of Fargo is another possible candidate, and an effort is being made, it is understood, among some of the members of the board to have President Merrifield reconsider his resignation and remain as president of the institution.

ICE-BOATS ARE RACING ON BAY

Ten Entries in the Last Race of the First Series.

The Yacht club iceboat skippers held a meeting at the clubhouse Friday evening and decided to hold two series of three races each, and one series of five races.

Today the last race in the first series is being run off on the bay, with ten boats entered.

Yachtsmen say that the ice was never in better conditon for the sport, and it is expected that the races being held today will be the best of the present season.

Owing to the light wind of the past few Saturdays the races have not been so successful as anticipated, a number of the boats being unable to finish, and those which did, not breaking any records as to time.

Sunday afternoon, there will be no regular races, but several of the boat owners will get together and organize a scratch contest.

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"On October 18th, last, my little three-year-old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech compietely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day October 23rd, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. I recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unreservedly as I have found it the surest, safest and quickest cure for colds, both for children and adults, of any I have ever used." For sale by all drug gists.

NEWS OF THE WEEK AT THE NORMAL

Teachers and Pupils Assemble After Christmas Vacation.

The teachers of the normal school, who spent their Christmas vacation elsewhere, returned to resume their work the first of the week.

Those who left Duluth for their vacation were: Miss Robertson, Chicago; Miss Carey, Cleveland, Ohio; Miss Shoesmith, Lena, Ill.; Miss Murray, Madison, Wis.; Miss Van Stone, Missouri; Miss Horne, Iowa; Miss Long, North Dakota; Miss Palmer, Fort Dodge, Iowa; Miss Ely, Chicago; Miss Pettingill, Cleveland, Ohio, and Miss Ely, Chicago.

The usual hard task of buckling down to work was experienced this year as in all others after vacation, but it was especially noticeable this year, as the vacation was longer than usual.

The cold days this week also broke into the work, as so many pupils were absent or tardy, but from now on until the end of this term should be the time for the best work of the year, as there are very few interruptions in the school work during these weeks.

Miss Patty S. Hill, head of the kindergarten training department of the Teachers' college at Columbia, was a guest of Miss Pettingill at Washburn Hall on Thursday.

Miss Hill gave a lecture on kindergarten work in Superior on Thursday evening, and one in Duluth on Friday afternoon. Both attracted interested audiences. Miss Hill was heard in lectures along the same line of work last year, both in Duluth and Superior, so is well known here and was very warmly welcomed by all who met her or heard her before.

Miss Margaret Quilliard, head of the kindergarten training department of the Normal school in Duluth, attended the lecture with the students who are taking up work in that department.

A meeting of the normal board was held on Jan. 2. At this meeting the recommendations for the appropriations for several of the normal schools were made. The recommendation for the Duluth school, outside of the usual amount for the expenses of the school, was $65,000 for a new dormitory and $50,000 for additions and improvements. It is hoped that the appropriations will be made in time so that the dormitory will be ready for use for another school year.

A meeting of Miss Long's division of the Literary society was held this week.

Although one of the smaller rooms in the building has been set aside for a lunchroom, it has never been used much for that purpose, as the pupils seem to have preferred to eat their lunches in their own particular corners, located all over the building.

Mr. Bohannon announced in chapel during the week, that since the pupils subject themselves to such unhygienic surroundings while eating their lunch, it has been deemed advisable to fit up two rooms, with enough tables and chairs for all, and with a small gas stove in each for heating food or drinks, and restrict the students to these rooms.

Miss Olive Horne, teacher of the eighth grade, model training department left for California during the Christmas vacation with her mother, who has been seriously ill. Mrs. L. W. Kline will act as substitute teacher in Miss Horne's place until her return in the spring.

During the Christmas holidays a beautiful mahogany piano was put into the assembly hall in place of the old Grand piano, which for the past many months has been a grief and trial to all who have attempted to use it.

A new pupil, Miss Hulda A. Hannah, was enrolled in the school on Tuesday. Miss Hannah is a graduate of the Virginia high school.

President Bohannon and Dr. Kline of the normal school faculty attended the Minnesota Educational association meeting held at St. Paul during the holidays.

Miss Anna Peterson, a former student and graduate of the normal school, who is now teaching at Soudan, visited the school on Friday.

Miss Maude Adams, who graduated from the school last term, visited the training department this week.

The committee appointed to select the senior class play held a meeting this week. Those on the committee are Ethel Lewis, Clarabelle Durbrow and Jessie Todd.

WILL BOOST MINNESOTA.

Commercial Clubs Will Meet at St. Paul to Advertise State Resources

Delegates from the Duluth Commercial club and from the commercial clubs of the range towns, will attend a gathering to be held in St. Paul, Jan. 14 and 15. One of the objects of the meeting is to devise means to advance the industries of Minnesota and to provide means of advertising the resources of the state. More than 100 clubs will be represented at the meeting.

2 p. m.—Addresses: "Minnesota as an Agricultural State and the Necessity of Developing the State's Resources," E. W. Randall; "The Settlement of Minnesota's Unoccupied Farm Lands, and the Opportunities the State Offers to Settlers," George Welch, commissioner of the state immigration bureau; "One Hundred Thousand Dollars a Year for Advertising Minnesota's Resources," Curtis L. Mosher.

Jan. 15, 10 a. m.—Addresses: "The Relation of the Federation to the Local Club," Eli S. Warner, St. Paul; "The Co-Operation Needed Between Our Commercial Clubs and the State Immigration Bureau," W. L. Harris, Minneapolis.

2 p. m.—Addresses: "How to Build Good Roads Out of the Material at Hand," G. W. Cooley, state engineer of the highway commission; "The Value to the Farmer and the Municipality of Good Roads," G. A. Will, Minneapolis.

GOODELL COMES HERE.

Houghton Man to Succeed R. G. Hubbell as Broker's Manager.

R. T. Goodell of Houghton is to succeed Ralph G. Hubbell as manager of the Duluth office of Gay & Sturgis, the Boston brokers.

Mr. Hubbell resigned his position this week, severing a connection with Gay & Sturgis which began when the firm first opened an office here about two years ago.

R. T. Goodell is a son of R. R. Goodell of Houghton and is a graduate of Amherst college and the Harvard law school.

LUMBER COMPANY SUES SOO LINE FOR FORTUNE.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Holding the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie railroad responsible for the fire which destroyed much property of the plaintiff in August last, the J. H. Worden Lumber & Shingle company of Dick, Chippewa county, has brought suit against the Soo line for $75,000 damages. Nearly 5,000,000 feet of lumber, 350,000 lath and buildings were burned. It is alleged that a spark from a locomotive caused the blaze.

WEAK MEN, WAKE UP! WHY DO YOU WAIT?

Are you satisfied to turn the grindstone for the other fellow all your life? Are you content to be a plodder all your days? There's nothing in it, and you know it. Then why not brace up and be a Man? We are making hustling, energetic men out of wrecks every day. In every walk of life you'll find these men—men whom we have saved from lives of wretchedness and despair—men who are making their mark in the world—men who will tell you that their success in life dates from the time that they began the only absolutely safe and sure remedy for a weak man—a broken-down man.

Our remedy is a honest remedy, a logical remedy, a time-tried remedy. You have seen our advertisements for over twenty years. If you have been on earth that long, and if you'll write to or consult some of the men who have been cured by our scientific methods, then why do you wait if you are weak and suffer go-down the road of self-destruction? You know you are not the man you ought to be—what's the use in bewailing your fate? We can help you! We guarantee our cures to be lasting and thorough.

If it's fresh strength and energy you want, VIM and VIGOR, that's what we can give you, and you'll be a long time getting anything like that by any other man.

If your stomach don't work, refuses to digest your food; if your Bowels do not move regularly; if your Kidneys are weak; if your Liver is sluggish; if your Blood Circulation is poor and your Blood is full of Uric Acid or other impurities; if your powers of Manhood are weakening; if your body is full of Pains and Aches; if you suffer from Headaches, Debilitating Losses, Urinal Disorders, Irritability, Despondency, Sleeplessness or any other signs of Nervous or Physical Breakdown, stop and THINK! Don't, don't depend upon drugs to build you up; they'll never do it. Don't you know that all such symptoms are crying out the fact as loudly as they can that the nerve-cells of your body are robbed of their power—their vitality? Don't you know that it is nerve-power that operates every organ, every function of the body? Don't you know that the basis of nerve-power is health? Then why not get it?

We can cure you of Rheumatism, Catarrh, Cancer, Tumor, Discharges, Gleet, Syphills, Blood Poison, Piles and other Chronic Diseases.

VARICOCELE.

This disease is often associated with Hydrocele, enlarged, prostatic gland, spermatorrhoea, stricture, bladder and the whole train of associated diseases is brought on by that secret vice of habit, which destroys body and soul, even of the best and of the most hopeful of young men.

We found in former years that cutting and dissecting out these veins did not cure our patients. The deep-seated nerves that control the function and nutrition of the sexual organs were still causing the patients trouble and more pain than before. After our discovery of the poisons in stagnant circulation of varicocele, we invented the "Direct Method of the Dissolving Process," and this method is as superior to the old-time cutting and blood letting and drugging, as the modern electric light is superior to the old-fashioned tallow candle.

We are Specialists in Men's Diseases Only, and we are as successful in the cure of these diseases as we are in the cure of all and any men's ailments. Men, if you want a cure of your suffering, no matter what your trouble is and how long you had it, come to us and you will not look any longer for the restoration of yor health. Consultation is free from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.; Sundays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. No. 1 West Superior street.

TURNED ON HIM, SAYS RINEHART

Former Bank Cashier Declares He Once Aided Witnesses.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 9.—Much sensational testimony will be introduced by the defense in the trial of J. B. F. Rinehart, former cashier and vice president of the Farmers' & Drovers' National Bank of Waynesburg, Pa., when the case shall be resumed in the United States court next Monday. This testimony will be given in an effort to combat the evidence introduced by the government this week against the banker, who is accused of wrecking the institution two years ago. Additional information concerning a political pool in Greene county of $188,000 and the alleged manner in which the money was used for the election of candidates will, it is said, be made public.

During the early sessions of the case next week Rinehart is expected to testify in his own behalf, and it is intimated his testimony will be interesting and will seriously involve a number of other persons. Asked for his opinion of the trial this week, Rinehart said today:

"Well, it ws a hard week. I could not have believed possible some of the incidents that happened. For instance, have you ever done a great kindness to a person in need, without ever thinking of any return? Well, in the case of several of the witnesses who testified, during the course of the trial, it happened that again and again I had helped them, and again and again I had helped some of their relatives. And what did they do? Why, they went on the stand and, whether by accident or whether on purpose, testified to what absolutely was not correct.

"In the Bible there is mentioned 'a book of remembrance.' Well, it will be necessary for me and my counsel to be, for some of the witnesses, 'a book of remembrance.'"

Helena, Mont., Jan. 9.—As showing his faith in the future of the famous Comet mine, which he and other Eastern investors have taken over, M. L. Hewett of this city, has refused $1,000,000 for his holding of stock. Recently a strike of rich ore was made in the property, which is in the Basin district, south of Helena. Hewett owns 450,000 shares and New Yorkers, Quakerites and Bostonians t he remainder of the 1,000,000 shares.

W. H. Wright of Virginia City has made an excellent strike in his Prospect mine. The initial shipment of fifteen tons averaged $100 in gold.

There is a general revival in mining in Montana's first district, for the Wright strike was made within a short distance of where gold was primarily discovered in 1864. The introduction of electric power means cheaper rates for mining and a better chance for profit. Heretofore the cost of mining has been a drawback, wood and coal being very expensive and the near-by supplies having been exhausted.

DOCTOR IN AUTO CRASH.

Ran Machine Into Telephoae Pole and Saved Boy's Life.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 9.—To save a small boy, who ran in front of his high-power Pope-Hartford automobile, Dr. L. E. Safley of Livingston, one of the best known physicians and surgeons of the state, deliberately turned the machine into a telephone pole, sustaining injuries in the crash that followed that may prove fatal.

Dr. Safley is at the Murray hospital in this city, where he was taken for an operation. He is the physician for the men employed in the Northern Pacific shops at Livingston.

While making time in his big machine in response to a call, a small boy ran in front of him. Instantly the doctor threw the machine to one side, and into a pole.

The shock threw him with tremendous force against the stern wheel, but the boy escaped unscathed.

KNIFE RIVER LOGGING.

Stillwater Lumbermen Have Entered Into a New Field.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—James E. McGrath and Anderson E. Ewart, both prominent in logging and mill affairs in this city, have entered into a partial arrangement to conduct operations on Knife river.

The old contracts of Mr. McGrath to supply logs to parties in this city have expired. He still has considerable timber on the waters of Knife river. The saw mill at Pine City that Mr. McGrath has operated for a time will be overhauled by a crew sent there from this city and will be used to saw the logs that Mr. McGrath had left.

WOMEN'S AUTO RACE PART OF MARDI GRAS.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 9.—The New Orleans Automobile club announced today that a race for the women's championship of America will be added to the program for the international Mardi Gras automobile speed carnival, to be held Feb. 20-22.

There is no case on record of a cough, cold or la grippe developing into pneumonia after Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken, as it cures the most obstinate deep seated coughs and colds. Why take anything else. Sold by all druggists.

Count Gets Rich Widow.

New York, Jan. 9.—Count Kalman I. Csaky, intimate friend of Count Szechenyi, husband of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, has won a fair American for his bride. His engagement to Mrs. Maude Howard Bryan, widow of the late Montgomery Bryan, a wealthy literary man and publisher of San Francisco, has been announced.

HOUSE WILL KEEP IT UP

Appropriates $5,000 to Cover Expenses of Thorough Probe.

Washington, Jan. 9.—That the house does not intend to stop with its action of yesterday in rebuking the president for his structures regarding the secret service, was evidenced today when, at the instance of Mr. Tawney of Minnesota, and without a dissenting vote, it adopted a sweeping resolution of inquiry into the amount of money appropriated for the present fiscal year for detecting frauds and the efforts to bring to trial offenders against the laws.

The resolution calls for the appointment of a committee of five to conduct the investigation, and it is authorized to employ stenographers and clerks, to send for persons and papers, and to administer oaths. The sum of $5,000 was appropriated to cover the expenses involved.

It is understood that there will be nothing further from the president on the matter.

After providing that the committee shall ascertain the amount of money appropriated for the present fiscal year that could be used to prevent frauds upon the several branches of the public service with particular reference to the public lands, the resolution instructs the committee to ascertain "what branches of the public service, paid for in whole, or in part out of the United States treasury, are authorized or are in existence and supported by appropriations by congress, whose principal duties are to detect and prevent frauds, or to apprehend and bring to trial and punishment persons charged with violating the laws of the United States; whether such branches of the public service or any persons employed therein have been or are engaged in any duty not contemplated by the law or the appropriation establishing or providing for such service; the names of persons employed for any period, in each branch of such service during the current and last fiscal year, the rates of compensation and allowance paid or being paid to each of them, by whom they were appointed and on whose recommendations and a statement of the specific duty performed, or engaged upon by each of such employes, each day since the beginning of the fiscal year 1908."

Simple Remedy for La Grippe.

Racking la grippe coughs that may develop into pneumonia over night are quickly cured by Foley's Honey and Tar. The sore and inflamed lungs are healed and strengthened, and a dangerous condition is quickly averted. Take only Foley's Honey and Tar in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists.

New Day and Night Classes

Missionary Here.
Rev. W. B. Dickson, a missionary from Assan Burmah, is in the city and will be the speaker at the morning service tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock at the Central Baptist church. Mr. Dickson will speak at 12:30 o'clock at the Sunday school services at the First Baptist church.

Steckist Case Dismissed.
The case against Mary Steckist, charged with selling liquor without a license in her boarding house on Thirty-ninth avenue west, was dismissed in municipal court this morning. Mrs. Steckist was arrested Oct. 25 last, and the case has been hanging fire ever since.

Wants a Divorce.
George Trotter, aged 33 years filed suit for divorce against his wife, Ida Trotter, aged 25 years, in district court this morning. They were married Oct. 14, 1903, and he claims she deserted him Aug. 1, 1907. They have one boy 4 years old, and Mr. Trotter asks a divorce and custody of the child.

Stole Two Coats.
Frank Adams was brought to the county jail from Virginia today to serve thirty days for petit larceny. He is charged with the theft of two coats from Nathanson Bros. He is 54 years old and a single man.

To Dissolve Partnership.
Claiming that John Bergman repudiated the partnership existing between the three, claimed contracts with the city of Duluth as his alone, and appropriated money from the contracts to his own use, Fred Engle and Simon Johnson have brought suit in district court to have the partnership dissolved, and the assets of the company they claim to have formed, divided. They claim they were jointly interested in the contracts with the city and Bergman wrongfully claimed the money due from the city, allowing them only $3.50 a day each, as foremen.

Sues on Board Bill.
Claiming that John Watt owes Mrs. Minnie Hargreaves a board bill of $602, C. Farrell has begun suit against Watt for that amount in district court. The claim was assigned to him by Mrs. Hargreaves. The bill is alleged to have been contracted between June 1, 1906, and Aug. 1, 1908.

Claim Disallowed.
By stipulations filed with the clerk of the district court this morning, the appeal of the Washington club from the judgment of the probate court, on its claim against the estate of Walter H. Singer, was settled, and judgment entered in the sum of $61.25. The claim was for $91.41, and it was disallowed entirely by the probate court.

Meeting Postponed.
The meeting of the College Alumnae association which was to have been held next Monday at the home of Mrs. C. M. Rice, 1515 East Second street, has been postponed for one week.

Sale of Art Goods.
An event that will be of great interest to the people of Duluth and vicinity is the half-price sale of art goods that will begin at the Engel's art store, 9 East Superior street, Monday morning. This is a sale that is put on only once each year, and is an event that a great many Duluth people have been waiting for ever since the holidays. The reputation of the store for being exclusive in the class of goods it handles is too well known throughout the Northwest to need comment. Everything in the way of pictures, framed or unframed, statuary, mirrors, bronzes, brasses or bric-a-brac, is the best that can be procured, and the opportunity offered by the half-price sale is one that the public will, no doubt, greatly appreciate.

AMENDMENTS TO CHARTER.

Chan Smith Says They Are Not Unconstitutional or Absurd.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Chapter 213 of the laws of 1963, which Mr. Phelps quotes as being violated by the proposed amendments, was expressly repealed, as Mr. Phelps will find by reference to chapter 108 of the revised laws of 1905.

A table giving rates of taxation on each $100 of cash valuation of property in the central business districts of Duluth, and eleven other important cities, showed an average tax for all of the cities to be $1.52 each year for a period of five years. The average tax of Duluth central business property was an average of $1.32 each year for the period of five years. In the other eleven cities a varying proportion of the cost of public improvements was taken from general taxation. In Duluth, practically none of the cost of public improvements was taken from general taxation, and accounts for a large part of the lower rate of taxation of its business properties. Duluth central business property will pay more taxes if the cost of intersections and repaving is added to general taxation. Lots and acres off of improved streets will help to pay something instead of nothing. Owners of personal property will pay something instead of nothing. This is not going to kill any person or business.

Pittsburg, with a population of over 600,000, found it necessary to appropriate only $173,900 in 1908 out of the general fund for that purpose. In proportion to population Duluth would need to appropriate only about $30,000. I assert and repeat that taxation (including assessments) of the community provided with the system of streets and avenue will not be increased, but a decrease of taxation (including assessments) will be brought about by the provision of a larger maintenance fund to keep the streets in repair and making longer life and a smaller first cost.

One would think from the report of the committee of the Commercial club that they "hurried back" to be sure of getting back before the streets were already worn out. We do not seem to have gotten any of the kind of streets that last a lifetime yet.

The most destructive to roadways by modern vehicles are the automobiles and they use mostly residence streets. In Chicago, the novelty of the auto has worn off and they are objecting to asphalt, as it attracts them. The whole question of a frontage tax is to bring to a level for the purpose of taxation the wage earners' blocks and the business blocks. Given our best business block with a valuation of the lots, buildings and goods of $1,600,000, and many ordinary wage-earners' blocks with a total valuation of lots, buildings and goods of $40,000, and the present system of the maintenance of the streets is at the rate of payment of $40 by the business block to $1 by the wage-earners' block. The present system of payment of paving lets the business block off with the payment of about $2 to the wage-earners' block paying $1.

A large proportion of the representatives of central business property lots and acres off of improved streets, and the largest owners of personal property, including the street car company, are bitterly opposed to the proposed amendments, because it will bring them into the circle of taxpayers to help provide this most important public provision. But there are among them many wise business men who realize the justice of a more equitable distribution of the cost, and that it will prove to their financial interest to avoid overtaxation of any element or part of the community.

INQUIRIES INTO TRANSPORTATION

Interstate Commerce Commission Acts on Own Initiative.

Washington, Jan. 9.—On its own initiative, the interstate commerce commission has instituted an inquiry into the matter of the transportation, by interstate carriers, of employes and property of express companies free of charge.

It has developed that through contracts made by the express companies with the carriers, a considerable amount of property and a large number of persons are transported by the carriers.

It is proposed by the commission to inquire into the nature of these contracts with a view to determining whether they are in violations of law.

All the important express companies in the United States are made defendants in the inquiry.

ARRESTED ON LARCENY CHARGE

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 9.—Frederick Richardson, formerly president of the J. Richardson Shoe company of Elmira, N. Y., was arested today on a fugitive warrant charging him with the larceny of $750 from the Chemung Trust company of Elmira.

While $750 is the sum mentioned in the warrant, Police Chief Casada of Elmira says $250,000 is involved in the case.

HARVESTER TRUST VERDICT UPHELD

Kansas Supreme Court Affirms the $12,600 Fine Decision.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 9.—The Kansas supreme court in a decision handed down today affirmed the verdict and fine of the district court of Shawanee county against the International Harvester company.

The company must pay a fine of $12,600 on forty-two counts, each count charging a violation of the Kansas anti-trust laws.

The decision is far-reaching. It is certain the case will be appealed to the United States supreme court.

THE DOCTOR'S ATTENTION.

Chicago Evening Post: Any one who has had to wait any considerable length of time in a doctor's public room until the man of medicine was ready to receive him will appreciate an experience of Congressman Francis W. Cushman of Washington state. It is said the congressman some time ago had occasion to visit one of the noted physicians at the national capital, and was compelled for many weary minutes to cool his heels in an anteroom. Finally, his patience becoming exhausted, he summoned an attendant, to whom he said:

"Present my compliments to the doctor, and tell him if I am not admitted in five minutes I shall get well again."

The physician found it convenient to admit Mr. Cushman at once.

POISONOUS NETTLES.

London Telegraph: In tropical regions there are nettles far more powerful that that of our own country. The one called Urtica stimulans, which is found in Java, and that called Laportea crenulata, found in Hindustan, when bruised emit an effluvium which poisonously affects the eyes and mouth, and if handled produce convulsions and serious swelling and pain in the arms, which may last for three or four weeks and in some cases cause death.

New York, Jan. 9.—The confession of Marie Ferrilo that she committed perjury because of hatred toward the man who had killed her husband, yesterday, saved Nicolo Zarconi of Brooklyn from electrocution after he had been sentenced to receive such a death. Zarconi was to have been executed next week for the murder of Frank Ferrilo. Since his sentence, Mrs. Ferrilo has told the police that her husband was the aggressor in the quarrel with Zarconi. Zarconi was brought down from the death house at Sing Sing prison and his sentence changed to imprisonment for not more than ten years.

ANDREW WILSON FOUND GUILTY

Jury Says He Sold Intoxicants After Regular Hours.

The municipal court jury trying the case of the state against Andrew Wilson, the New Duluth saloonkeeper, charged with selling intoxicants after hours, brought in a verdict of guilty at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after having been out for six hours.

Judge Windom will impose sentence today. This is the first conviction of a saloonkeeper on a trial by jury in Duluth, since the 11 o'clock closing law has been enforced. City officials had begun to think it an impossibility to secure a verdict of guilty in the case of a saloonman tried by jury, on the charge of unlawful sale of liquors.

LAST CASE DISPOSED OF

Thirteen Divorce Decrees Were Granted During the Term.

Mrs. A. H. Bushnell Left Husband After Thirty Years.

The divorce calendar, or that part of it, which will be heard at present, was practically cleared up by Judge Ensign in district court yesterday afternoon, when four more decrees were granted, making a total of thirteen for the term.

Victor Soderstrom brought suit for divorce against his wife, Clara C. Soderstrom, but Mrs. Soderstrom came back with a counter charge and secured a decree on her own account. Mr. Soderstrom charged cruelty, but Mrs. Soderstrom proved that her husband had been guilty of cruelty toward her and the court decided she was entitled to the divorce. Mr. Soderstrom made no appearance.

Albert H. Bushnell, aged 50 years, told the court that Minnie A. Bushnell, aged 49 years, had suddenly left him after thirty years of married life and he had heard nothing from her since. She told him she was going away and she left, never to return. They were married May 8, 1876, and Mrs. Bushnell deserted April 19, 1906. Mr. Bushnell was given a decree of divorce and custody of the three minor children. There are four adult children also.

Malinda Liberty was given a divorce from Joseph Liberty on grounds of desertion and Catherine Cameron a separation from Angus Cameron on charge of cruelty. Final testimony was submitted yesterday afternoon in the case of Aaron Carlson against Anna Carlson. Arguments will be made in the case by the attorneys this afternoon.

BARS ARE THROWN DOWN

amendment was—and still is—to provide the state with indirect revenues that will permit the abolishment of the direct state tax, leaving the localities to assess and tax as they please.

As The Herald has often shown, Pennsylvania is a conspicuous example of a state where this method has been tried. That state has had no direct state tax on real estate for many years. It gets its taxation from indirect sources, like corporation taxes, etc. The result has been that the state treasury has always been full to the bursting point; that the state authorities had no incentive to safeguard local taxation, and that the individual taxpayer has had no personal interest in what was done with the state's money. He knew the state had plenty of money, and he thought that he did not pay it, though of course he did, even though it was indirectly. So he let the state officials go ahead as they pleased, and it is not astonishing, under such circumstances, that that full treasury should have proved too great a temptation, and that the state officers should have got together to produce a state capitol worth $4,000,000 which actually cost $13,000,000. Some of them are now going to jail for it, but the horse is stolen and disposed of long since.

The tax experts who used to be back of the wide-open tax amendment, when it was first proposed in the early days of this century, have since undergone a change of mind, and practically all of them now favor the continuance of the direct tax law. They have found that its absence leads to indifference on the part of the public to what is done with the state's money, which is a premium on corruption; they have found that when there is no direct state tax the state has no longer a live interest in local assessments, and that it is a premium upon corrupt manipulations of such local assessments by powerful interests seeking to evade their just share of taxation. So the tax theorists who proposed and advocated the wide-open tax amendment have now abandoned the theory upon which it was based; yet Minnesota now has a wide-open tax provision in its constitution, thanks to the intricacies of the law as laid down by the courts, though the people have twice rejected the proposal.

If the tax system of this state is as bad as the advocates of the tax amendments declare, it is going to be a big job to create a new system of taxation—a bigger job than any legislature can hope to accomplish in one session, with a thousand other matters pressing for attention. Fortunately, the state has adopted the tax commission idea, and it may be that instead of attempting the creation of an entirely new tax system, the legislature will merely try a little tinkering, and leave the proposal of a new tax code to the tax commission, whose duty it is to suggest such things.

Tonnage tax bills are already in, and there will be other proposals. Two years ago there were bills taxing bank deposits, the gross business of wholesalers and retails, the saloon business, the cigar trade, and some other lines of business activity, all for the express benefit of the state. All of these failed of adoption, and the only law passed in the legislature of 1907 as a result of the tax amendment, was the registry tax on mortgages. This, by the way, is upheld by the decision of the supreme court that the tax amendment was adopted.

When it is stated that the supreme court has decided that the tax amendment was adopted, however, the statement is not accurate. The supreme court has simply held that it has not been proven to its satisfaction that it was not carried.

The state has adopted the policy of making farm machinery for its farmers, making it as good as it can and selling it as cheaply as it can. There is no reason why the state cannot repeat with farm machinery the abundant success it has had with the manufacture of binding twine, by which it has saved the farmers millions of dollars. The policy will not be abandoned; it is more likely to be broadened at this session.

The state needs iron in the making of farm machinery.

The state owns the raw material up in St. Louis, Lake, Cook, Itasca, Crow Wing, Aitkin, Beltrami and other counties—millions of tons of it.

Why shouldn't the state use its own iron? Why shouldn't it establish a blast furnace for making pig pig iron, say at the St. Cloud reformatory? Better still, why not establish a new prison, when a new one is needed, on the Mesaba range, and put its blast furnace there?

The fact that in the making of binding twine and of farm machinery the state is competing with a trust—the harvester trust—makes the proposition popular. And so long as the state is going into the iron manufacturing business, why shouldn't it use some of its own iron ore instead of selling all of it to private manufacturers?

Members of the legislature who spent most of their ready cash in getting elected are looking rather askance at one feature of present legislation regarding the pay of lawmakers. That feature is the long, dry spell between now and pay day.

Under the law by which the per diem system of paying lawmakers was repealed and the salary system adopted, it was provided that the statesman should receive $500 a year, payable $250 Feb. 1 and $250 March 15 of each year. So there is no pay day until Feb. 1, and the state treasurer, though he may wish to strain a point in order to be helpful, has no authority to advance pay.

It used to be that the members drew their mileage at the opening of the session, but the revised laws of 1905, by a provision which slipped through without the knowledge of many—if any—of the members, put the mileage payment over to the end of the session.

When the members got $5 a day, they were paid every ten days, and the same thing is now true of the employes of the legislature will be better off than they are between now and Feb. 1.

Members of the house of 1907 are looking forward to a visit from Clarence B. Miller, who was one of the most popular members of that legislature, but who has since been promoted by the people of the Eighth congressional district to J. Adam Bede's seat in congress. Old members are asking daily for Congressman-elect Miller, and all the pretty things they are saying about him would fill a very flowery scrap-book if they could be collected.

The effect of the adoption of the good roads amendment, which was declared lost in the election of 1906, but which now becomes a part of the constitution because the state did not press its appeal from Judge Dibell's decision that it was carried, will be to enlarge the powers of the legislature in levying a tax for state aid to road-making. The old provision limited the annual tax levy for road purposes to one-twentieth of a mill, and this limit is raised to one-quarter of a mill by the amendment.

PART OF ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE IS TABLED

Washington, Jan. 9.—After having made him the target all day for criticism with here and there words of commendation, the house of representatives, 212 to 35, rebuked the president by tabling so much of his messages as reflected on members of congress in connection with his recommendations regarding the civil service, and also declaring it to be the sense of the house that it shall decline to consider any communications from any source which is not in its own judgment respectful.

ROOSEVELT'S HOME COMMISSION HITS TOBACCO AND INTOXICANTS

Washington, Jan. 9.—Sweeping restrictive legislation, including suppression of usury, making drunkenness a misdemeanor, and greater regulation all round, all meaures designed to promote the welfare of the masses of the people of the District of Columbia, is recommended in the report of the president's home commission, transmitted to congress by President Roosevelt.

This commission was appointed to study the problem of how best to improve the conditions of the people here and especially from the standpoint of their physical, social and moral welfare. The recommendations are of vital interest to the people of the whole country.

The report says that families investigated could add on an average at least one room to their overcrowded houses if the money expended for tobacco and intoxicants were devoted to paying rent. To restrict the consumption of these so-called harmful agents, the commission favors educational methods; social schemes and proper amusements.

three weeks before the earthquake at Messina.

Quake Measures Modified.

Rome, Jan. 9.—The parliamentary committee which is examining the measures proposed by the government in the chamber of deputies, has modified them, with the consent of the cabinet. The changes provide that the building taxation be 2 per cent for five years instead of 5 per cent for two years, and that the earthquake zone be exempted from a building tax for fifteen years. A further provision is that all unclaimed valuables in the devastated district be devoted by the government to the relief of the survivors.

Miss May Sherman of Elizabeth, N. J., who was active in the measures undertaken at Taormina for the relief of the earthquake sufferers, and who is now in Rome, today gave further details of the condition of the refugees who came under her observation. Some of the wounded, she said, were so seriously hurt that there was very little chance of their reaching Cantania alive. They were, therefore, taken from the train and given every attention possible at Taormina. Local Italian doctors and an English physician, Dr. Dashwood, and his wife, were indefatigable in their labors. Four of the wounded died during the first two days.

"All the bakers of Taormina," Miss Sherman went on, "were kept at work making bread, and they were paid by contributions from the foreign colony. We all did everything possible to obtain clothing to cover the shivering and naked people. There were many children among the refugees who had been made orphans by the earthquake.

"A Mrs. Welch, who has been intending going to Messina the day before the earthquake, saved her life by postponing her departure. Mrs. Welch has taken charge of a little girl refugee, evidently of gentle birth, and if she is not claimed, will adopt the child.

"Lady Hill and her daughter, who have a school at Taormina, in which they teach embroidery, gave themselves up to nursing and caring for the sufferers, receiving some in their own villa.

"I was much struck," Miss Sherman went on, "by the behavior of the refugees. They seemed dazed with terror and suffering, but they were absolutely uncomplaining. They were ready to share whatever was given them with each other, and even those that were suffering the most did not neglect to thank us for the kindnesses shown. The people of Giardini seemed to have no idea of even giving water to the refugees until such a course was suggested to them by the foreigners. But as soon as they did wake up they showed great kindness, and received 100 of the wounded into their homes."

An American Refugee.

London, Jan. 9.—The foreign office has been advised from Malta that an American, named Paul Richardson of Pennsylvania, has arrived there from Reggio, on board the British cruiser Minerva, and has been sent to Posital.

Anglo-Saxon Station.

Messina, Jan. 9.—A detail of bluejackets from the United States gunboat Scorpion has constructed an Anglo-American station upon a space adjoining the ruined building in which the American consulate was located. Dr. George C. Rhoades, surgeon of the Scorpion, has assumed charge. The station is formed of several large tents. It is the intention to confine the work largely to redressing the wounds of a considerable number of Italians who have been in America or who have relatives there. These persons come to the attention of Dr. Rhoades through their seeking out the consulate for assistance or for sending word to their relatives in America for help. Most of the applicants desire permits to remain in Messina in order to recover personal property.

Orphan Girls Abandoned.

Reggio, Jan. 9.—The sun has shone again in all its splendor, emphasizing the beauties of nature in the surrounding country—along the mountains covered with green, over the vineyards and lemon groves and down to the smiling shore, where it reflected in the opalescent sea. Inside Reggio, however, its warm rays fell upon only huge piles of debris.

Proportionately with other towns, Reggio gave the highest percentage of orphans as a result of the earthquake. The boys are taken care of by relations, but the girls mostly were abandoned. Fortunately, however, they have been entrusted to the ladies' committees which arrived here from all parts of Italy, and doubtless will secure good homes.

All the wounded have been removed to Reggio, and 8,000 refuges have departed from the town. One thousand bodies have been dug from the ruins of fallen buildings and buried in improvised cemeteries.

Among others who escaped uninjured when the shock came were thee children who, after having been buried in the debris of their home for seven days, got out unaided, burrowing like mice.

A man and his wife also have been found uninjured beneath ruins, where they had lain for eight days, subsisting on a chunk of olive oil.

The safe of the Bank of Italy, containing $3,000,000, has been found.

At Sinopoli all the houses were destroyed except three built after the earthquake in 1905 of hollow brick, with a wire passing through them and uniting them, while at the top another wire united the different lines horizontally, thus making the whole building compact.

Fresh earthquake shocks are being felt here, at Brancaleone and at Messina each night. They are preceded by explosions, and many walls that were not totally destroyed by the big shock are being further damaged.

DENY TALES OF TIERNEY

ing was able to act and speak in a rational manner.

Fallon further said that Capt. Hains said in the cell that he wanted to send a message to his father. Witness identified a piece of paper that the army officer had written in jail after the shooting, and Justice Crane ruled that it might only be admitted as evidence bearing upon the captain's sanity and not upon facts contained regarding the shooting.

Mr. McIntyre took the paper over to Gen. Hains and Maj. Hains, who shook their heads. He then said:

"I object to the paper on the ground that it is not in Capt. Hains' handwriting."

"Overruled," said Justice Crane sharply, and Prosecutor Darrin read the paper to the jury as follows:

"Gen. Peter C. Hains: Have shot Annis. Come to Flushing police station. Peter."

Officer Fallon said that Capt. Hains told him what he wanted for supper, and that he and his brother ate together and had a conversation. From what he heard and saw, Fallon said he thought Capt. Hains was rational.

Mr. McIntyre, on cross-examination, directed Fallon to write on a piece of paper the message of Capt. Hains to his father. Counsel dictated the contents of the message. The witness was directed to write "E. A. F." on the top of the paper. Fallon identified the initials "E. A. F." on the message, and the defence's lawyers offered Fallon's copy of the message in evidence.

"I now ask the jury to inspect both the message and the copy," said Mr. McIntyre, handing the paper to Foreman Hill. This move of counsel was taken for the purpose of showing that the two papers were written by the same hand. The jurors carefully compared the original and the copy.

Mr. McIntyre drew from the witness the statement that he did not know whether the telegraph operator sent the contents of the message from the paper or made a copy of it.

Frederick Levitt, a club member, was recalled and swore he did not see John Tierney on the float at the time of the shooting.

"Well, you ran away, didn't you, at the time of the shooting?" asked Mr. McIntyre in cross examination.

"Yes."

"That's all," said McIntyre."

The prosecution called other members of the Bayside Yacht club, who testified that they did not see John Tierney on the float.

TWO LARGE COMPANIES

cerns will locate in the vicinity of the Duluth plant. It took years to build Pittsburg, but Gary is springing up almost in a day, and in these days of rapid development, there is no doubt that the Duluth plant will come, as did the Gary plant, quickly.

The freight on a locomotive to Duluth from Pittsburg is about $50, and on a freight car about $50. The railroad development of the next few years will be west and northwest of Duluth, which is rapidly becoming recognized as one of the great railroad centers of the country.

It therefore seems most plausible that plants for the construction of locomotives and steel cars should be erected in the shadow of the Duluth steel plant.

No verification of the report can be secured in Duluth, as there is no person in the city with the authority to speak on the subject, but it is known that the American Locomotive company is negotiating for a site in the district mentioned.

Northern Pacific has found, to secure level ground for yards in the city proper. The Northern Pacific has been compelled to make a large area of ground on Rice's point for its rapidly growing yards, and it has been confronted with the problem of extending its yard facilities. At Duluth Heights, the Canadian Northern road would have unlimited space for yards, roundhouses and shops, and it is the belief of those who are closely in touch with the situation, that the road will ultimately construct its terminals there. In fact it has already acquired a large tract of ground near Duluth Heights, and it is believed that this was done with this purpose in view.

A depot would doubtless be established at Duluth Heights, for the convenience of passengers who could leave the train there and take the incline car to the city, instead of making the long trip to the West end, and then eastward, if the road ultimately runs its trains into the Union or Wisconsin Central depots.

The convenience of having the yards at Duluth Heights is easily seen. Duluth Heights is within fifteen or twenty minutes ride of the center of the city. Property is cheaper, and workmen employed in the yards would have no difficulty in finding homes at a low rental.

SAY FIFTY SAWMILLS WILL SOON BE CLOSED.

Wellington, New Zealand, Jan. 9.—A conference of the timber trade was held at Palmerston North to discuss the importation of Oregon pine. Several delegates asserted after the conference that owing to the recent wholesale importation of pine, fifty saw mills would close indefinitely. The mill owners demand the imposition of a duty on all imported timber except in bulk.

ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL NEARLY READY.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The army appropriation bill probably will be reported to the house by the committee on military affairs late next week. The committee is expected to vote on the measure Tuesday. Daily meetings are being held to discuss the various amounts asked for, and every effort is being made to cut down the appropriation to the minimum.

THREE POWERS A UNIT, REGARDING VENEZUELA.

The Hague, Jan. 9.—The foreign offices of Holland, France and Great Britian have been in consultation with regard to their disputes with Venezuela, and the three chancelleries will act together in dealing with Jose de J. Paul, the Venezuelan envoy sent to Europe by President Gomez, to effect a settlement of Venezuela's difficulties with the powers of Europe.

COLD WEATHER FAILS TO ARRIVE

Thermometer Didn't Get Below Zero Point; Snow Sunday.

Missed it, by Hek!

The weather man's prediction of from 10 to 20 below for last night didnt materialize and Duluth people last night enjoyed plain zero weather all night.

This morning the temperature was about the same and will, according to the weather bureau, remain about the same today, tonight and Sunday.

Sunday the ski riders may be made happy for it is expected that snow will descend. It will not come in large quantities, but there may be enough to put the ski hill in first class order.

The cold is general in British Columbia and H. W. Richardson of the local office thinks that by the first of the week Duluth will be again wrapped in the grasp of the ice king.

BATTLESHIPS SAIL FOR MEDITERRANEAN PORTS.

Port Said, Jan. 9.—The vessels of the American battleship fleet still in port are being coaled as fast as possible and as soon as their fuel supplies are on board they are being dispatched to the various Mediteranean ports embraced in the new itinerary. The Nebraska left here today for Marseilles, and the Ohio proceeded for Greece.

ON A HUNT FOR PREHISTORIC RACE.

Monroe, La., Jan. 9.—To seek relics of the aboriginal race, a party of scientists from Philadelphia has arrived here and will spend a month or two in research about Monroe, and along the Ouachita river.

Steamship Movements.

Ten Years of Electrical Progress in Duluth

1898

This diagram illustrates the quantity of electric light used in the city in the year 1898 and the rapid increase up to the present year.

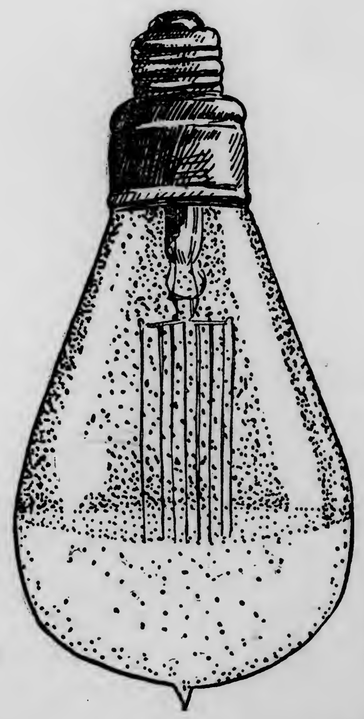

For the past ten years the necessities of life have been steadily becoming more and more expensive; but the one necessity—the Electric Light—has been greatly reduced in cost. Its use has become more popular—more and more is it used with every passing year, and the result is, that the almost universal use of this, the best and most sanitary of all methods of lighting, has conferred a great benefit upon the people by doing away with the old, vitiating forms of lighting, which, because they consumed the oxygen of the air, and spread small particles of carbon ail over the room in which they are burned, were great breeders of disease—particularly tuberculosis.

If your home is not yet fitted up with electrical fixtures, drop us a card, and we will convince you that it will be cheaper for you to have them.

THIS WILL DIGEST IT

A Dieted Stomach Gets Blue and Grumbles for Good Eat.

All Stomach Trouble Is Due to Food Fermentation.

Some people think they have Indigestion, others Catarrh of the Stomach, others Nervousness, Cancer or Dyspepsia, etc. Call it this if you will, but the real name for your trouble is Food Fermentation, with only partial digestion. Everything you eat turns to either Acid, Stomach gas or Stomach poison, which weaken the digestive organs, causing a lack of gastric juice. Your food sours, is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, burning sensation, a feeling of vomiting, heartburn, water brash and tenderness in the pit of the stomach, slimy tongue, bad taste in the mouth, constipation, nausea, belching of gas, dizziness, sick headaches, mental depression and many other common symptoms.

You can cure all this by not eating, by not putting any food in your stomach to ferment; but how about the nourishment needed to sustain your bodily strength? If you are a stomach sufferer, either man or woman, young or old, whether you call it Indigestion or any other name, go now to your druggist and give 50 cents for a case of Pape's Diapepsin.

Every possible kind of Stomach trouble is readily cured by Diapepsin, which takes right hold of the food in your stomach and digests it alone, without the help of the stomach, just as if your stomach wasn't there.

After a few days' use of Diapepsin your Stomach will again be in good working order, your meals will thoroughly digest and your intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will have no use for laxatives or liver regulators.

SAYS TILLMAN TRIED TO GRAB

Roosevelt Makes Public His Charges Against Senator.

Washington, Jan. 9.—President Roosevelt has made public the details of the investigation by postoffice inspectors and secret service agents of Senator Tillman's connection with the alleged land grab in Oregon. As he presents the evidence to Senator Hale, in response to the latter's request to the heads of the various executive departments for a statement of the operations in the secret service the president undertakes to show:

"That Mr. Tillman used his influence as a senator in an effort to force the government to compel a railroad corporation to relinquish its control of land grants from the United States in order that he and his family and his secretary, J. B. Knight, might profit through the purchase of some of the land.

"That the senator used his government franking privilege in numerous instances for the conduct of private business.

Comparatively few senators were favored with the opportunity of reading the president's report to Senator Hale, but those who had not read the report, took a serious view of it, although most of those who perused to believe Tillman had ever done anything in violation of his oath as a senator.

Senator Tillman did not permit the fact that the president was giving out the charges against him to alter his determination to make no statement until Monday. No effort was made by him to conceal the fact that when he had learned the facts concerning the railroad grant he had made an effort to obtain portions of the land in the names of himself and members of his family, but declared that, as at most, he could have gotten possession of only a few hundred acres, his efforts were, after all, in behalf of the public and not especially in his own interest.

"Incurable" Dropsy Cured

FRANKLIN MILES, M. D., LL. B., the Well-Known Dropsy Specialist, Will Send a $3.75 Improved Trial Treatment Free.

Many So-Called "Incurable" Cases Soon Cured After 5 to 20 Doctors Failed.

At first no disease is apparently more harmless than dropsy, a little swelling of the eyelids, hands, feet, ankles or abdomen. Finally there is great shortness of breath, smothering spells, sitting up to breathe, cough, faint spells, sometimes nausea and vomiting, even bursting of the limbs and a lingering and wretched death if the dropsy is not removed.

Dr. Miles has been known as a leading specialist in these diseases for 28 years. His liberal offer is certainly worthy of serious consideration. Another opportunity may not occur.

The Grand Dropsy Treatment consists of three dropsy remedies in one, also Tonic Tablets, and Pura-Laxa for removing the water. This treatment is specially prescribed for each patient and is at least three times as successful as that of most physicians. It relieves the first day, and removes swelling in six days in most cases.

Mr. R. Burford, Bannister Mich., tapped every week. Cured after four physicians failed. Mrs. Olive C. Van Leeren, Fairport, N. Y., says: "The swelling in my limbs went down the first day and night after I began taking your treatment and has never returned." Miss Nancy Martin, Greenville, Ind., so badly swollen, could not raise her feet from the floor. Given up to die. Cured in two months. Mrs. D. A. Martin, Russellville, Ark., whole body terribly swollen. Cured after eleven physicians failed. Mr. John T. Alexander, Elwood, Ill., cured after four failed. Many cures from your state sent upon request.

All afflicted readers may have new Dropsy Book, Examination Chart, Opinion and a $3.75 Treatment free. Write at once. Describe your case. Address Dr. Franklin Miles, Dept. D., 1422 to 1432 Main stret, Elkhart, Ind.

ELY PREPARING FOR BIG EVENT

Elaborate Arrangements for Showing How to Fight White Plague.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The general committee having in charge the tuberculosis exhibit to be made here held a meeting at the city hall Thursday evening and heard reports from the various sub-committees.

The committee on program presented a complete report of what had been done in the way of programs for the various meetings, and the committee on publicity and advertising reported that it had completed all arrangements for making the event well known to all of the people of the city and vicinity.

Dr. E. L. Twohy of Duluth will address the meeting on Wednesday evening, Jan. 6, and Dr. C. W. Moore of Eveleth will speak on Thursday afternoon. Dr. G. T. Ayres of Ely and Dr. H. M. Bracken of St. Paul and who is secretary of the state board of health, will deliver addresses Thursday evening. Dr. J. W. Metcalf of Winton and Rev. Alexander Sandstrom will read papers Friday afternoon. Dr. Owen Parker and Prof. C. L. Newberry will address the Friday evening meeting. Dr. Christopher Eaton and Supt. Charles Trezona will have charge of the meeting Saturday afternoon.

Saturday evening Rev. Father Schiffer of the Catholic church will have charge of the meeting, and Dr. W. E. Harwood of Eveleth will deliver an address, Sunday afternoon. Dr. C. C. Carpenter of Ely, Dr. Jackola of Duluth and Dr. Easton of St. Paul will speak. The meetings are expected to be very interesting and entertaining. Local talent will assist by contributing vocal music, piano music and addresses. The high school band has been engaged to furnish music for the evening programs. A special afternoon program will be arranged for teachers, probably on Friday afternoon, at which Dr. Christopher Eaton will give some practical advice as to school work along the lines of preventing of tubercular troubles by proper attention to school ventilation, by devices for securing good ventilation, and how to impress upon the pupils the necessity for pure air.

No little enthusiasm is manifested here over the exhibit, and the city council has come to the aid of the local committee substantially so that no charges will be necessary, nor will it be necessary for any soliciting.

THIRD ANNUAL BALL PLANNED

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Secial to The Herald.)—At the last meeting of the Mesaba Range division, No. 654, B. of L. F. and E., committees were appointed to take charge of arrangements for the third annual ball to be given by that order at the Finnish Temperance hall on the evening of Feb. 22. The boys always arrange a good time for their patrons and always have a big attendance, and the coming ball will be no exception.

J. M. O'Leary of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg, returned from a trip to Clam Falls, Wis., where on Christmas day he was united in marriage to Miss Katie Hunter of that place. The groom is one of the popular young men of the railroad bunch, and receives the hearty congratulations and best wishes of a host of friends.

J. W. Lusk returned Thursday evening from a Christmas visit in Chicago and at South Bend, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Matheson have returned from a holiday visit with relatives and friends at Port Huron, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. John Costin, Jr., have returned from Minneapolis, where they have been spending the holidays.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. L. Williams on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Harold Griggs returned Wednesday from South Beaver Dam, Wis., where they had spent the holidays as guests at the home of Mrs. Griggs' parents.

Leslie Reid has returned to Iowa City, Iowa, where he is attending a dental college.

Miss Edna O'Leary of Chicago is spending the week in the city as the guest of her brother, J. W. O'Leary.

J. A. Kearney is operating a steam shovel at Nashwauk.

Miss Louise Hicks has returned from Duluth, where she has been spending the holidays with friends.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid society will conduct a baked food sale at the McMillan grocery store Saturday, Jan. 16.

Mrs. E. D. Parmelee of Iron Mountain, Mich., who has been spending the holiday season with relatives and friends in the city, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Dorway were Duluth visitors the last of the week.

Mrs. C. T Fairbairn of Duluth is the guest of Virginia friends this week.

Mrs. Joseph G. Watt has returned from Minneapolis, where she has been visiting friends.

Mrs. B. Vinson of Two Harbors is the guest of Mrs. Nels I. Coffman, being called here by the serious illness of Mr. Coffman.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Bailie expect to leave for North Yakima, Wash., the first of next week, and will be accompanied by their two sons.

Mrs. W. J. Monroe has returned to Duluth after spending some time here with her daughter, Mrs. H. S. Gillespie.

Senator P. R. Vall returned yesterday from St. Paul, where he spent several days in attendance at the meetings of the legislators. He expects to return to the capital city on Monday.

F. B. Myers, the Biwabik banker, was in the city today looking after business matters.

James Lavick, manager at the Misberg furniture store, will soon commence the erection of a fine modern residence just east of the city hall.

C. V. Younger, for some time past head clerk at B. Tivin's, left for Janesville, Wis., where he will obtain a line of samples from the Lewis Knitting company, for whom he will go on the road, his territory including Minnesota, the Dakotas and Iowa.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. G. I. Williams on Sunday.

William Monahan, a teacher of violin, will organize an orchestra here.

J. P. Chalmers was a Duluth visitor Thursday, making arrangements to take the local agency for a laundry.

ROOT RUNNING HOTEL.

Grand Rapids Man Resumes Charge of His Hostelry.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—On Jan. 1 L. R. Root again assumed the management of the Great Northern hotel, on Third street west. Keo Leroux, who had conducted this well-known house very successfully for a number of years, has taken charge of the saloon, formerly run by Ike Crossen. Mr. Crossen expects to move south to a milder climate for the benefit of his wife's health. Mr. Root is the owner of the Great Northern property, and conducted the hotel for a number of years prior to renting it to Mr. Leroux. It is his intention to at once repair the building throughout and put in new furniture.

Word has been received here of the death of Allen Shaw at Coeur de'Alene, Idaho, on Dec. 29. Allen Shaw was a brother of Angus Shaw, who is well-known to nearly everybody in Itasca county, and who is now in charge of logging operations near Fort Frances, Ont. Allen Shaw formerly lived in Itasca county.

County Attorney Price and Sheriff Riley are the only two new officials at the courthouse, as a result of the last general election.

Mohie Bergen, was arrested Monday morning for being drunk on the streets and fined $10 and costs by Justice Huson. Marshal Seamans, who made the arrest, found it necersary to use rather vigorous measures.

F L. Kingston of Larimore, N. D., is here on a few days' visit. Mr. Kingston was a former Grand Rapids boy, but has been a resident of Larimore during the past four years.

Nicholas Swift, an inmate of the poorhouse, was arrested and sentenced to twenty days in the county jail, in Justice Huson's court, for assaulting a paralytic patient at that institution.

Deputy Sheriff Harry returned this week from Superior with Ed Johnson in custody. Johnson is charged with having robbed a freight car at Swan River in October last.

Bracken, secretary of state board of health; address, P. E. Dowling, Eveleth; address, Dr. Fred Patton, Duluth; address, Neil McInnis, Eveleth; address, J. H. Hearding, Eveleth.

It is also possible that Dr. F. F. Westbrook, dean of the medical department at the university and a prominent authority on tuberculosis, will be present and speak, but at present he is undecided about coming, as dates as yet may call him elsewhere on those dates.

This exhibit is intended more for the working classes than for any others, as they are not conversant with tuberculosis, its cause and cure, and these are the ones the committee and the exhibit want to get to come to the exhibit. To affect this end some of the speeches will be made in Finnish, Swedish, German, Austrian and any other language with which the speakers can make themselves understood. Many people from the surrounding towns are expected to attend.

PUPILS ARE ADDRESSED.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A special meeting for the school children and teachers of the tuberculosis exhibit speakers was held at the Roosevelt school auditorium yestedday afternoon, several hundred children attending.

The speakers were Prof. Lafayette Bliss of this city, C. Easton of St. Paul, Dr. W. C. Weston of Duluth, Mrs. S. A. Reid and Dr. A. E. Hall of this city, and Mrs. Dibble of Duluth. The exhibit will close this evening with the following program: Rev. H. E. Neff, chairman; address by Rev. James Hogan; paper, on "Modes of Infection," by Dr. C. W. Miller; paper on "Prevention and Treatment," by Dr. W. E. Harwood of Eveleth, and a stereoptican lecture by Christopher Easton, director of the exhibit.

MEDICAL RECITAL IS SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The musical recital at the Roosevelt school auditorium by students of the Gaustavus Adolphus college of St. Peter, assisted by local talent, was a success, the larger auditorium being crowded and the members receiving due appreciation. The piano playing of Luther G. Hanson and the violin numbers by Joel P. Hanson, sons of Rev. and Mrs. P. O. Hanson, were worthy of special notice. Especially the violin selections, the player being but 12 years of age. His work did great credit alike to his talent and instructor, Prof. Olsen of the range school of music, who played piano accompaniments.

The Mission

Of those corpuscles in your blood that have been called "Little Soldiers," is to fight for you against the disease germs that constantly endanger your health. These corpuscles are made healthy and strong by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

This medicine is a combination of more than 20 different remedial agents in proportions and by a process known only to ourselves and it has for thirty years been constantly proving its worth.

No substitute, none "just-as-good."

EVELETH MOURNS M'CLORY'S DEATH

Former Alderman and Hotelkeeper Dies of Cancer in Michigan.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Word has been received of the death Thursday of ex-Alderman Patrick McClory, at Saginaw, Mich. Mr. McClory was one of the most popular and best liked men that ever made Eveleth their home. He came here when the town was in its infancy and only left about a year or two ago for his health. He has been a sufferer constantly from cancer, which finally claimed him. While here Mr. McClory owned the Eevleth hotel and was a partner in the McClory & Wye livery stable. The hotel was sold to John Mitchell and the livery stable to Fuller & Shea. He was always prominent in city affairs and served in the council for two terms. Mr. McClory was about 56 years old, and is survived by his wife and child. All his friends here were surprised at the news of his death.

VIRGINIA COW IS LAMBASTED

Experts Say Not One Bovine Is Fit to Milk.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A regular meeting of the Commercial club was held in connection with the tuberculosis exhibit at the Roosevelt school auditorium last evening and proved a very instructive and interesting session.

Dr. Bracken of St. Paul, secretary of the state board of health, Prof. Haecker of Minneapolis, who has been in the dairy business for the past thirty years, and A. J. McGulre of the experiment station at Grand Rapids, were the principal speakers. Their remarks were along the lines of milk from a hygienic standpoint sanitary dairies and practical dairying in St. Louis county. They said this section of the state was well adapted for dairy purpose and urged the business men of Virginia to do all in their power to induce farmers here to engage in dairying and to encourage them in the establishment of such farms. They had inspected a number of stables in the city during the day and surprised the audience by stating that they had failed to find one cow that was fit to milk. Prof. Haecker further stated that he had been engaged in the inspection of dairies for the past twenty years and that he had never found a worse condition of affairs than which exists in this city today.

Dr. C. B. Lenont, president of the Commercial club, talked at some length along this line. He said he was aware that the sanitary conditions of some of the stables in the city were not of the best, but that he did not know they were as bad as claimed. He urged the club to take some action to better this deplorable condition. He also suggested that a stock company be formed to engage in the dairy business and establish a model dairy near the city. He further suggested that the farm be established between this city and Eveleth, so as to allow the people of that city to join the company if they so desired. The president was instructed to appoint a committee of three to wait upon the council and urge that body to take some action towards the appointment of a dairy inspector, and was also instructed to appoint a committee of five to agitate the matter of forming a stock company to engage in the dairy business. These committees have not as yet been appointed, but it is expected that the president will announce them shortly.

The club also decided to send a committee to St. Paul to urge the matter of passing a bill to establish a district court on the ranges. The committee will be appointed later.

MR. HUGHES MENTIONED.

Hibbing Attorney May Become New District Judge.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Local friends of Martin Hughes, the well known Hibbing attorney, are hoping that in the event the legislature grants the request of the St. Louis County Bar association for a fourth district judge, that he will be honored by the appointment. The range is working for a district judge exclusively for the range, committees having been appointed in several towns to work to that end. If this is accomplished, it is claimed Mr. Hughes would be the best fitting candidate for the honor.

PUT ON PROBATION.

Wayward Eveleth Youths Given Chance to Reform.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Probation Officer Resche of Duluth was here yesterday and heard the cases of the four boys who were arraigned early in the week for stealing some jewelry from the store of Matt Anderson. Mr. Resche put the boys on probation, and they will be required to report monthly to Judge Prince. The age of the boys, and the fact that this was their first offense, led to their being put on probation. Their names are withheld for obvious reasons.

OFFER FOR PROPERTY.

Louis Jackson Reported to Have Closed Important Deal Here.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Louis C. Jackson has been a Duluth visitor during the week, attending to business matters in connection with his mining interests in 68-18. It is understood the company with which Mr. Jackson is allied has been made an offer of a several thousand dollars bonus for an option on a 35-cent royalty basis.

HAVE SLEIGH RIDE.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Sewing club of the high school were guests last night at a sleigh ride party given by Miss Ruth Jesmore. Many assembled at the Jesmore residence and were bundled into the sleighs, having a fine drive to Virginia and back. After the ride, refreshments were served at the Jesmore home. About twenty-five girls composed the party.

William Coss of Tower was here Thursday conferring with Charles McDonough, with whom he will start a meat market at Hibbing. Mr. Coss is well known here, having had the saloon now owned by Frank Winchester for some time. Coss & McDonough expect to start their business at Hibbing during the latter part of the week.

MONEY COMING IN.

Fund Being Raised to Reward Hibbing Watchman Grows.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The children of Hibbing who are raising a fund to purchase a watch for Capt. McCormick, the veteral watchman at the Third avenue railroad crossing, who worked gratis for several years and is about to retire is growing, the $30 mark having been passed.

It gains slowly because, though many of the business men have contributed, they have only been allowed to give small amounts, the idea being to make it mostly a gift from the children themselves Little tots from the primary grades come toddling in with their pennies and nickles. A record is being kept and published in each issue of the Hibbing Tribune of the names and amounts and all the schools are watching it grow. One little lad, when asked his name yesterday, answered sententiously, "Mr. Little."

EVELETH SENIORS ARE REHEARSING FOR PLAY.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The members of the cast for the senior play, "She Stoops to Conquer," have again resumed rehearsals and are practicing after school each day. The play will be given some time in February at Vall hall. Misses Denfield and Kendall of the high school faculty are coaching the cast in their separate parts.

Louis Andrews was elected captain of the high school basketball team. Principal Shoemaker will act as manager of the team. Games will be arranged with the Hibbing, Two Harbors, Grand Rapids and other range high school teams. Some more games will be played with the local militia company.

EVELETH MERCHANT MAD OVER PROPOSED AUCTION.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The merchants in town are up in arms against an auction sale that is being started. The party proposing to conduct it put up signs and distributed bills announcing the sale, but has not secured a license. At the council meeting last Tuesday the application for a license was put over for two weeks. It is understood that the party intends to start his auction sale without a license, pay the necessary fine, and then keep up the auction. He has secured auctioneers from out of town for the auction, besides other necessary help, but the merchants will ese that he does not have his auction sale without having a license.

DULUTH PRODUCTION PLEASES TWO HARBORS.

Two Marbors Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The production of the oratorio from Handel's "Messiah," by Duluth people, at the opera house last night, under the direction of Prof. Horace Rayner, packed the building. It was pronounced a rare musical treat and the participants and the leader came in for plenty of praise.

Funeral services for Nels A. Sandelk, aged 21, who died at a local hospital Wednesday, were held at the Norwegian Lutheran church yesterday afternoon. He was unmarried. Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Ramstad of Sherwood, N. D., attended the services. Mrs. Ramstad is a sister of the deceased.

WORKMAN'S HAND IS CRUSHED IN FAYAL SKIP.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Climo Noel, employed at the Fayal, was injured quite severely yesterday in the machine shop. The men were pulling a steam shovel boom on some rollers in the shop, and Noel was placing a roller when his mitten was caught between the roller and the boom, and before the boom could be stopped it had passed over his hand.

To Dance for Charity.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Crescent Aid society, a charitable organization in the Catholic church, will give a ball on the evening of Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12, at Cloquet hall. The proceeds are to be devoted to general local charity.

Miss Agnes Lynch, engaged to teach in the public schools, was called to her home at Minneapolis yesterday on account of the illness of her mother with pneumonia.

Paralysis Victim Buried.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral of Gust Hill, who died on Tuesday as a result of a stroke of paralysis, was held this afternoon from the undertaking parlors of H. S. Gillespie. He was a native of Finland, 40 years of age, and had no known relatives in this country.

Hibbingites Are Well.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Very few cases of diphtheria and other contagious diseases are being reported here. Only three or four cases are known to the local doctors, and the city is in a much better state as regards general healthfulness than it was a month ago.

FEAR IT'S FIRE TRAP.

Aurora Council Asked to Investigate Aurora Hall.

Aurora, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the Commercial club Thursday night the following officers were elected: W. J. Rashleigh, president; P. M. Johnson, first vice president; Dr. Darrow, second vice president; B. Christianson; secretary; A. W. Cowln, treasurer.

A committee was appointed to draft resolutions asking the council to look into the safety of the N. P. hall in case of dances or other large gatherings. The hall doors all swing in and the place is looked upon as a firetrap.

A committee was also appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws for the club.

OSCAR TURNS TO CHICAGO.

Windy City May Get Opera Season If Plans Materialize.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 9.—Oscar Hammerstein announced yesterday that he had received proposals from several Chicago millionaires and high society folk to come to that city, build an opera house and give his opera there, and Philadelphia society may go hang—so there.

Mr. Hammerstein said that he had been promised unlimited financial and social support, and that he had two agents in the field looking over the proposition. He said if the envoys' reports were favorable he would enter Chicago in a week or two and personally investigate the city's qualifications.

"Chicago is ripe for my art," he said. "If I abandon my Philadelphia enterprise, as I have intended, I shall go there at once. If not, I probably shall add it to my New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington circuit. I shall not build, but shall use the Auditorium, which is now used by Klaw & & Erlanger."

APPARATUS INADEQUATE

Fire Losses During Year Just Closed Were $812,299.

According to Chief Black of the fire department, the department is not keeping pace with the growth of the city in either men or apparatus. Chief Black says that so limited is the equipment of the department now, that were a fire of widely destructive nature to break out in the wholesale, retail, or lumber districts, and gain headway, all of the uptown companies would be forced to go to it, leaving the remainder of the city unprotected.

The report says it seems to be the practice of all municipalities to allow the fire departments to fall behing as the city forges ahead. The needs of the city today, and the fact that the department is behind the municipality in its growth, is shown by a comparison with 1894, when there were 104 men in the department, and when the cost of maintenance for the year was $126,023. In 1908 only ninety-six men were employed in the department, and the cost of maintenance during the year was only $108,703.

In 1894 the department had three engines, three hook and ladder trucks, three hose and seven chemical companies; in 1908, four engines, four hook and ladder, two hose and one chemical company. Sixteen captains and twelve lieutenants were in charge of the department in 1894, while in 1908 there were nine captains and ten lieutenants. And while this decrease in the efficiency of the fire department has been going on, the city has increased in population from 33,000 in 1904 to 85,000 in 1908.

Chief Black strongly urges that a fire tug be provided, for the protection of the property along the water front, and says it could in emergency be connected with pipe lines leading up the hill, thus furnishing certain parts of the city with water for fire purposes. In the city of Milwaukee, the report goes on to state, the fire tug connects with twenty-seven pipe lines, ten miles in length, with 219 hydrants. On a test in Milwaukee water was forced from the fire boat to a point over a mile distant, and up an elevation of eighty-five feet, leaving the nozzle with a pressure of eighty pounds.

The chief further recommends the replacing of house No. 6, Fifty-first avenue east and Superior street, which has rotted and is unsafe, with a new building, and the construction of an addition to house No. 2, corner of First street and Piedmont avenue; also replacing house No. 8, corner of Central avenue and Cody street, with a new building. The immediate purchase of two engines is recommended, and the erection of a fire hall at the corner of Fourth avenue east, near Seventh street.

Fire losses during the year just closed amounted to $812,299. Damage to buildings was $247,406, and their contents, $565,893. The loss of wooden buildings, with their contents, amounted to $718,556; partially fireproof buildings, $73,623; fireproof buildings, $523. The largest loss during the year was occasioned by the burning of the Consolidated Elevator company's building in June. The loss in this instance was $674,000.

Most of the losses during the year were covered by insurance. The insurance companies paid out $2,153,375 for fire losses in Duluth, an excess over reported loss of $1,340,076. Only $5,666 worth of burned property was without insurance.

Only once in the last fifteen years have the fire losses of 1908 been exceeded, and that was in 1906, when the total was $1,134,000. The average loss per year for the last fifteen years has been $253,000.

The department responded to 406 calls during the year, and its fire-fighting equipment traveled 2,019 miles in doing so. Chemical company No. 1 was called out most frequently, answering 179 calls. Hose and ladder company No. 3 was second with 146. Engine company No. 10 responded to but one call during the year.

The report says the property of the fire department, in apparatus, is valued at $100,607.25, and the value of its real estate and buildings is $155,450.

One fireman was killed and two were injured while in the discharge of duty during the year.

F. E. Hough, city electrician, sent in his report with that of the fire chief. It shows that the city owns 169 miles of laid wire, for use of the fire, police and water and light departments. Mr. Hough made 2,976 inspections during the year, and issued 1,174 permits. He recoinmends the purchase outright by the city of telephones used by the departments, for intra-department services.

SCHOOL BUILDING BURNS.

Too Hot Fire in Austin Building Brings About Destruction.

Austin, Minn., Jan. 9.—Fire early Friday destroyed the Lincoln school building. The fires of the heating plant had been forced for several days, in order to make the building fit for occupancy by children, and it is believed the blaze started in the basement. The janitor left the building at midnight and everything appeared safe at that time.

The loss amounts to $12,000, and the insurance is $8,000. About 325 children are left without school facilities. The Lincoln was a frame building, the main part having been erected fifteen years ago. Several additions had been made to it and it was modern in all respects.

Largest Ever.

The New Year opening at the Duluth Business University was the largest in the history of the college. Students enrolled from seven outside states, as well as from Ontario and Manitoba. 1909 promises to be the school's banner year. The college will get into its new quarters about Feb. 1. In the meantime present rates of tuition will prevail for whatever term the student may arrange. Location, 105-7 West Superior street.

MAY DROP BASEBALL

Local High School May Not be Represented This Year.

Boys Favor Spending Time Training for Track Meet.

The Central high school may not, this year, be represented on the diamond by a baseball team.

It seems that baseball as a high school sport is dying out amongg the schools of the Northwest, and even though a team were organized there would be much trouble in arranging a high school schedule, for this reason.

Most of the boys of the local school are in favor of spending all the time there is to spare in the spring, on track athletics. Only those few who play the great national game themselves wish a team to be organized, and even among their ranks there are some who favor the idea of eliminating baseball from the high school sport calendar altogether.

Baseball has become so largely a professional sport that a great number of the preparatory schools throughout the country have dropped it, and the movement seems to be general through the West.

The Minneapolis schools have announced that the great game would be dropped, and a large number of schools near by have announced the same decision.

The matter has not been taken up by the Athletic association as yet, but it is expected that it will furnish food for discussion at the next monthly meeting.

One high school student said this morning that, as the other schools were not going in for the sport, he saw no reason for the Duluth school organizing a team and playing just the amateur teams about town. He said further that there were a number of boys who favored baseball because they played it themselves, and that he expected when the matter finally came up before the Athletic association, the discussion would be a hot one.

TEAMS ARE TIED FOR FIRST PLACE

Columbias and Centrals Lead in Bowling League; Fitwells Next.

As the season progresses and the several teams gain, through constant practice greater skill in knocking down the pins, the tendency of the bowling teams seems to be to pile up, for the Columbias and Centrals are tied for first place, and the Fitwells are not so far behind, but they might become dangerous at any time.

The standing of the teams and the team averages follow:

Standing of the Teams.

	Games.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
Columbias	24	15	9	.625
Centrals	24	15	9	.625
Fitwells	24	14	10	.581

FIGHTERS CLOSE A GOOD YEAR

1909 Finds Many Changes in the Rating of Pugs.

New York, Jan. 9.—The past year has been a busy one in th efighting game. Every fighter of any prominence has had one or more fights, and several championships have changed hands.

Abe Attell still holds his title, but he has had to fight hard to keep it. Owen Moran, the little English featherweight, gave him two hard tussels. Joe Gans lost his title to Battling Nelson. Mellody was whipped by Harry Lewis, but this crown is not safely resting on Lewis' head, for there are several claimants to it. Papke passed his along to Stanley Ketchel.

Young Loughrey, the Philadelphia lightweight, has engaged in more contests than any other American pugilist. He has fought twenty-seven contests. Mickey Gannon is second on the list, with Jack Blackburn next. Leach Cross, who was Gotham's boxing sensation during the past year, fought eighteen contests and some with the best lightweights in the country.

Willie Lewis was the next in the number of fights. He fought some tough men from the beginning of the year, and then went to Paris, where he won seven contests.

Jimmy Clabbe, a southern product, made quite a hit in the welterweight division. He had sixteen fights and with some tough men, one being Jimmy Gardner, whom he held even after twenty rounds.

The game was successful from a money standpoint for all the fighters, as the fans paid well to see good contests all over the country.

TEXAS SEEKS QUAKER COACH

Draper, "Pennsy" Tackler May Go to Lone Star State.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 9.—There is a chance that Dexter W. Draper, the University of Pennsylvania star football tackle, may coach the eleven of the University of Texas next fall. It is said that Draper has received a good offer from the Southern institution and that if nothing better develops, he may accept the place. Draper has shown no little ability as a coach. He is credited with having worked out several new plays, made possible under the latest rules. He will be graduated from the medical college next spring. If Draper accepts this, he will be the fourth Pennsylvania man working in Southern fields. Levene, the star end of the 1905 and 1906 teams, is now coaching the University of Tennessee; Eddie Greene is at North Carolina, while Pat Dwyer is at Alabama Tech.

MICHIGAN SEES HOPE IN SPRING

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 9.—The University of Michigan is both hopeful and cautious. The undergraduates foresee doings of note scheduled for next spring, and the spark of hope that they had fanned into life in the early fall, but which had been suddenly extinguished, is once more beginning to show signs of existence. The students, among themselves, almost confidently predict that the Wolverine baseball team will regain much of the old-time prestige that at one time was cherished by the groups that were wont to assemble about the campus at Ann Arbor.

They assert that the talent which has already announced its intention of trying for places on the varsity baseball team of 1909 is of a quality that has not been out for honors on the diamond in several years. There are candidates galore who have all had more or less experience in the national game. Director Baird has hopes of a championship nine and his feelings have proved contagious. It is said that the prospects for a fast team of timber toppers, distance men, pole vaulters, jumpers and weight men are also bright. Despite the fact that only four track men who have won their "M" are eligible for the varsity team again, there is a wealth of new material which has a promising look.

Demarest Wins Two Games.

New York, Jan. 9.—Calvin Demarest won both of his 18.2 balk line billiard games yesterday. In the first he defeated H. Spinks, a local amateur, by 250 to 167. The winner's high run was 69 and Spinks' best effort netted 43. Each man played ten innings, the averages being 25 for Demarest and 16 7-10 for Spinks. In the second game Demarest defeated Ed McLaughlin, a professional by 250 to 129. Demarest's high run was 90, with an average of 15 10-16. McLaughlin's high run was 22 and his average 8⅗.

BIG INTEREST IN MARATHONS

The Races Will Create a Big Crop of Amateurs.

New York, Jan. 9.—Everybody is wondering what effect the sudden and immense popularity of professional "Marathon" running will have on amateur athletics. Some people think it will have a tendency to make amateurs turn professional. A few will, of course, but the general effect will be to make amateur athletics stronger than ever before. Thousands of young athletes who never went in for sport seriously will train hrader and enter more competitions. The amateur clubs will put on long-distance races, in which instead of two men running around and around for two or three hours, a dozen may be seen competing at a time, which will be far more interesting. There are amateur runners still in the amateur class who would give Durando or Longboat or Shrubb a touh time over the Marathon route. In a few months new runners will come up and eclipse all the old records. It always works that way when there is general interest in any one specialized branch of sport.

The general result will be a crop of long-distance runners that will doubtless crack all of England's long-distance records.

Beell Wins Fast Match.

New Orleans, Jan. 9.—Fred Beell of Wisconsin, former American champion wrestler, took two straight falls from Chris Pierson of California in a fairly well contested match before the Royal A. C. here last night.

WASHINGTON "U" NOT IN REGATTA

Pacific Coast Institution Will Refuse to Enter Poughkeepsie Event.

New York, Jan. 9.—Advices from Seattle indicate that so far as the University of Washington is concerned, a crew will not go East to compete in the intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie on June 26. At a recent meeting of the board of control of that institution it was decided that no crew would be sent to the Hudson next spring. However, if Washington should win the triangular regatta with Stanford and California universities, which race is assured, although neither time nor place has yet been settled, it may make a difference and the purple and gold may be represented when the varsity eights leave the line on their four-mile pull.

Then there is the possibility of either of the California universities winning the championship of the Pacific coast, and in that event a Western crew will probably be on hand at Poughkeepsie. At any rate, the triangular regatta between the coast crews is a fixture. At the present time it is not known just where this race will be held. It is said that a movement is under way to hold the race in California in April. After such a meeting it is proposed that the universities arrange with the promoters of the Yukon-Alasko-Pacific exposition for the holding of another regatta at Seattle, where the freshman eights may also be able to compete.

At the meeting of the board of control it was also decided that an endeavor should be made to secure the services of John Hoyle, the Cornell university boatbuilder, to go West and build shells for the University of Washington. It appears highly improbable, however, that Hoyle will quit the Ithaca university for the West, since he has been made assistant to Coach Courtney and will have charge of the freshmen as well as the building of the shells.

INQUIRY IS VERY BRISK

Local Automobile Dealers Report Heavy Business During Past Week.

Prices Down to What Might be Called Reasonable Level.

Inquiry at the garages of the local automobile dealers reveals the fact that never in the history of the business has the outlook for a season been so bright.

During the past week many machines for spring delivery have been ordered, and taking the number of inquiries into consideration, it would seem that many more orders will be placed before the end of the present month.

While many are thinking seriously of the big comfortable touring car, the majority of those contemplating the purchase of a machine, seem to look with favor upon the new light cars that have made such a hit in the East.

Cheaper Automobiles.

The doom of high automobile prices has sounded. One can buy a better car today for $1,500 than he could buy a few years ago for $3,000. It is only a matter of time now until any man who can afford to keep a horse can afford to own an automobile, says a recent editorial in the New York World.

"Automobile-building was more or less of an experiment up to a short time ago. But now it is an exact science. When the modern car is turned out of the shop the makers know that it will run, and run well. Close watching of the earlies machines has pointed out the defects of construction. These have mostly been remedied. Shops are better equipped now. Cylinders, crank-shafts, axles, gears and the like are made in great quantities by special machinery. The cost of labor and materials has been much reduced by system, until now it possible to turn out a much better machine than formerly and charge about half the original price for it. Truly good touring cars are offered for as little as $1,000. Runabouts that will give ten times the service of any horse and buggy bring $500. The higher-priced cars give the buyer a better finish and higher power, but the cheaper automobiles is a very satisfactory car in most cases and has the support of thousands of users in moderate circumstances. And this is only the beginning. The years will see a yet more pronounced drop in prices, while quality is maintained."

MALONEY WINS MARATHON RACE

Brooklyn Man Has Easy Time Out-Winding Other Athletes.

New York, Jan. 8.—Matthew Maloney of the Trinity Athletic club, Brooklyn, won the amateur indoor Marathon race at Madison Square Garden last night, from thirty-one competitors, in quite handy fashion. Maloney, who had run strongly throughout the race, ran his competitors into the ground, after finishing twenty miles, and won practically by himself. He was four laps, or nearly half a mile ahead of James F. Crowley, the New York Marathon winner. Sydney H. Hatch of Chicago, who always finishes strongly in distance races, did so again last night, and plucked third place from Sam Mellon, the veteran Yonkers runner, who had set the pace for fifteen miles. Maloney's time, 2:54:45 2-5, is rather slow. It was probably due in a measure to the fact that the track was soft, and that for the last five miles of the race there was no man strong enough to push the winner.

Maloney is a newcomer in the running game, and has been in this country for only about three years. He ran himself into prominence the day after Christmas by winning the Rye-to-Manhattan Marathon in the remarkable time of 2:36:26 1-5.

Crowley lost time and distance toward the end of the race through trouble with his shoes. He changed them, but the new ones did not suit, and he ran the last two miles of the race in his bare feet.

A big and enthusiastic crowd witnessed the event.

TAME BOUT IN NEW YORK.

Tommy Murphy Outpointed Frankie Madden Before Large Crowd.

New York, Jan. 9.—Before the biggest crowd that has attended a boxing bout in New York since the resumption of the sport here, Tommy Murphy outpointed Frankie Madden, both of New York, in a ten-round bout at the National Sporting Club of America last night. There was no police interference with the bout, which was disappointingly tame to the crowd. The men, who met at 133 pounds, started at each other briskly, but Murphy soon proved that he was more than the Bowery boy's match at boxing. Madden did all the forcing, but was unable to land cleanly, the Harlem lad blocking cleverly and proving his opponent superior at all stages. Although Madden made a rally at the end he was clearly outfought. There were four brief preliminaries.

A Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches in two or three weeks after sprining his ankle, and it is often two or three months before he is fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, as by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, as directed, a cure may, as a rule, be effected in less than one week's time, and in many cases within three days. Sold by all druggists.

Y. M. C. A. MEN FIND RECREATION ON THE FINE BOWLING ALLEYS

When the plans for the new Y. M. C. A. building were drawn up and it was proposed to make room for a bowling alley, few comprehended how popular the place would become.

For the man who shoves a pen all day over a musty ledger, it is a favorite resort, and every night the alleys are busy helping someone to get the regular daily exercise he needs.

Drawings Made for St. Louis and Manley-McLennan Trophies.

Some of the curlers are leaving today for St. Paul, where the annual bonspiel begins on Monday of next week.

A number went down this afternoon, more will follow tonight and the rest will go Sunday.

Several of the bonspiel rinks were tried out Friday afternoon and night. They showed up in good shape and were able to easily defeat those who were willing to accommodate them with practice games.

Every rink was occupied last night by the enthusiasts, who are to make the St. Paul trip, and if they show up in the style they displayed on the ice of their own rink, some of the trophies will be brought back to Duluth.

The drawings for the St. Louis event have been made. This is the first event this year to be drawn in regulation bonspiel style. There will be no substitutes allowed except as provided for in the general rules governing C class rinks.

The drawings follow:

AMATEURS ARE GETTING BUSY

Managers Are Lining Up Men for Baseball Season.

The different amateur baseball managers are already looking for players, and spring gossip has become quite general among the players.

At the meeting to be held about the end of the month, in Winnipeg, Al Kuehnow, the Duluth manager, will attend, and it is probable that Duluth will withdraw from the Northern league. Mr. Kuehnow says that there is very little doing in baseball that plans for next year are not ready for publication and that while a few players have been signed up, things generally are quite unsettled.

Among the amateur teams, things are different. A number of the managers have their men already signed up, and there is just now a rush on the most promising players.

Manager Lavell of the Spaldings says that he is going to have the best team in the city. He has a number of surprises to spring on the baseball loving public, and while he is not willing as yet to give out the names of his players, he says he will have them out as soon as the snow goes off the ground.

The Fitwells are planning on making the season a bumper one, and it is likely that their team will consist of the same players with one or two exceptions, that occupied positions last year.

The Big Duluth and Columbia teams will experience a general shakeup. Both teams will be entirely reorganized and the Kelley team will this year be stronger than ever.

The Commercial league will do business again next season, with the same teams as before, and probably two more, although this point has not as yet been decided.

It looks as if these Australian fight men were the real thing in the promoting line, for they have the big crowds of the Pacific coast beaten to a whisper. We have boasted many times about our $50,000 houses for big fights, but these have seldom materialized, and a battle which draws $30,000 at the gate is a big affair, indeed. But the Johnson-Burns contest drew close to $150,000, and the promoters have plenty of money left after paying a very liberal purse to the principals. In fact the match was such a success from a financial standpoint that the promoter feels perfectly safe in offering the largest prize ring purse ever named for another world's championship battle.

The next wrestling match for the world's title will undoubtedly take place in Chicago and will be between Frank Gotch and Yussif Mahmout, the Terrible Turk. All of Gotch's efforts to get Hackenschmidt into a return contest have failed and the American will sail for his home country as soon as his English music hall engagements are ended. The Turk has been telling that Gotch went to England to avoid a match, but it won't be long before the sultan's subject is disabused of all such ideas.

Hackenschmidt has become extremely unpopular with English sporting writers, for the Russian has been doing some very adroit ducking to escape a second match with the world's champion. Practically every critic of note in England lent himself to the task of getting the Lion into a match, but all strategies failed, for the Russian always had some excuse. Finally becoming disgusted, the sporting writers began to go after "Hack" and the result is that he is no longer the popular idol he once was.

Tommy Burns' defeat was not bemoaned in England. In fact Burns' actions while in the British Isles did not make him any friends, while Johnson became very popular during his brief stay. Johnson impressed the English sportsmen with being on the square, while they got the idea that Burns wanted all the easy matches he could get.

Jack Johnson has already begun to reap the benefits of his notable victory over Burns, for the new world's champion is even now beginning a series of burlesque and vaudeville engagements in Australia. He has been engaged at a very comfortable weekly salary—$1,750 per—and it won't be very long before Jack has as much money as any of the top-notchers. He is ready to fight at any time, but none of the Australian fighters can get backing for a scrap, so Johnson's life will be pretty easy until he hits American soil once more. It is rumored that he is to fight Sam Langford in London later in the winter, and he will also get a crack at some of the American second raters, although up to this time no matches have been arranged.

No more diamond medals for winning world's championships. The national commission, unable to please the ball players when picking out suitable mementoes for the world-beaters, has decided to abandon that system of rewarding the future "champeens." Hereafter instead of presenting the various members of a championship club with souvenirs, the commission will give the owner of the winning club $500 with which to purchase a gold plate to be hung in the club's office or the players' clubhouse.

It never has been possible to quite suit the ballplayers when it came time to hand out the prize packages. In 1906 the Cubs decided they would have some diamond cuff buttons. That decision was reached before they tackled the White Sox. The Sox then expressed a desire for any particular souvenir, evidently being satisfied with winning the series and the big slice of prize money. But both of the next two years the Cubs won the big series and they claim they drew lemons for souvenirs. The commission has taken the players' word for it and hereafter will present the club with the money to buy a gold plate instead of handing out anything to the men who battled on the diamond.

SKI DATES ARE SET.

The North country tournament will take place at the following places and on the dates mentioned:

Chippewa Falls—Jan. 24.
St. Paul—Jan. 31.
Colfax—Feb. 4.
Eau Claire, national tournament—Feb. 6 and 7.
Stillwater—Feb. 9.
Duluth—Feb. 12.
Coleraine—Feb. 13.
Superior—Feb. 14.
Munising—Feb. 19.
Skandia—Feb. 21.
Ishpeming--Feb. 22.

Don't sit and look on while some other man gets all the business in your line. By advertising in this paper you can enjoy the sensation of seeing things move with a rush.

CURLING IS PROVING TO BE MORE POPULAR THAN EVER THIS SEASON

With the exception of the few cold nights experienced during the week, the curling ice at the Duluth Curling club has been in demand every afternoon and evening this year.

Many exciting games are pulled off nightly, and people who never heard of the game before are getting enthusiastic and attending many of the contests.

There are this year, more than ever before, many new curlers who are playing their first season. They are daily showing their liking for the game by their inability to tear themselves away from the rink.

BASEBALL GOSSIP FOR THE FANS

Will the Chicago Cubs be able to win their fourth straight championship in the National league? Well, it's a long time until next October, and a great deal of water can run under the bridge before the returns are in for the season of 1909. Almost anything is possible in baseball, a fact which helps a lot in making it the great and popular game which it is. Still, dope is interesting, even if it often goes wrong.

On form the Cubs will not win again next year, and the team that looks to be the most certain of beating them out is that organization of hated rivals, the New York Giants. The first week of the new year is hardly the safest time of the year to pick baseball champions, but the winter book shows the Giants as the odds-on favorite in the National league handicap.

There are reasons for this view. Last year the Giants lost by a nose at the post, and actually had the pennant won but for a stupid play by one of their substitute players in an important game.

The fine stand made by the New Yorkers was accomplished with only one pitcher of high class, and with an awful hole in the outfield, while one man had to do practically all of the catching.

Now McGraw, by his trade with St. Louis, by which he secured George Schlei and Jack Murray, along with Bugs Raymond has filled up that fearful cavity in the garden, and has added some possible strength to his pitching staff without weakening his team behind the bat or in any other position. If all his men report in good condition and remain so, he will have one of the hardest-hitting teams ever got together, and one that can run bases some likewise. Then, if Leon Ames can begin next year where he left off in 1908, the New York pitching department will be powerful enough to go along with the best, assisted, as it will be, by some ferocious slugging.

At this distance it is hard to see more than any other of the first division teams, and the dope is, therefore, in their favor at the present writing. The Cubs look sure to go back, perhaps not very far, but to a certain extent. Johnny Evers swears that he will not play a game before July 1, and appears to mean it too. That means that the team will have trouble keeping in the first division up to mid-season.

Players understand how important little Johnny is to that team, and history shows how the club went back when he was out of the game for a while last year. He seems to be absolutely sincere in his desire for a rest, and has gone so far as to make several good-sized wagers that he will not be in the lineup until July. The Cub outfield is not a wonder for next year. At this time it looks like an impossible task for them to carry out their hope of breaking a National league record by winning a fourth straight championship.

Vice President Benjamin C. Adkins of the St. Louis Browns says there is no truth in the story that George Tebeau offered the Kansas City American association club and franchise to Clarke Griffith for $40,000.

"Bob Hedges and myself heard of Tebeau's alleged offer to Griffith," said Mr. Adkins, "as soon as we landed in New York for the American league meeting, and decided to buy the club for Jack O'Connor to manage, if Tebeau would let it go for anything like that figure. When cornered, Tebeau denied that he had offered to sell the Kansas City team for $40,000.

"Nothing less than $80,000 would induce me to part with the Kansas City club and franchise," said Tebeau.

"I also think that the story that Tebeau offered to sell his Louisville club for $35,000 is incorrect," continued Mr. Adkins. "The Louisville team ran the Indianapolis club to a head for the American association championship last season, and earned over $35,000. Tebeau is too smart a baseball man to sacrifice any of his properties.

"We nearly landed a splendid minor league franchise, and there is still a chance that it may yet be bought by St. Louis capital," added the vice president of the Browns. "If the deal is made, O'Connor will be offered the management of the team. Jack is thoroughly fitted, in my estimation, to make a most successful manager. All he needs is the chance."

Charlie Sommers, the millionaire owner of the Cleveland American league team, has written Ben Adkins that he will be in St. Louis some time this week to inspect the new grandstands at Sportsman's park. Mr. Adkins has impressed Sommers with the fact that re-enforced concrete is the real thing for baseball grandstands. Sommers has decided to tear down all the rickety old wooden stands in Cleveland and replace them with fireproof structures. Sommers' father died recently and left his son an immense estate. Sommers is now rated one of the wealthiest men in baseball.

The Cleveland magnate is the biggest "bug" in the national game. His business interests demand most of his time during the day, and he seldom gets a chance to watch his own team play, but he keeps up with the game by nightly fanning bees with the Cleveland players and members of visiting teams.

While the Browns were playing in Cleveland last September Sommers called at their hotel every evening and spent many an hour talking baseball with Jimmy Williams, Jack O'Connor and other members of the team. Sommers would drive up to the hotel in his big auto and join the first group he struck spinning baseball yarns. Sommers' line of information on minor league players is marvelous. He keeps close tab on all the little leagues, through his scouts, and has the most thorough line of dope on young ball players of any man in America. Sommers not only knows what each and every youngster is hitting and fielding, no matter what league he may be in, but he also knows their weaknesses.

"Baseball averages don't always tell the real tale," said Sommers one night while discussing a youngster who was hitting .350 in a minor league. "Whenever I hear of a hard-hitting youngster I like to find out what kind of pitchers he has made his fat batting average off; also, whether he can hit left-handers, because, you know, there are all kinds of star southpaws in the American league. I also like to find out what kind of a throwing arm he has; also something about the throwing arms of the catchers on whom he has rolled up an alluring stolen-base record. Then, the intellectual equipment of a baseball player is another important feature that should not be overlooked, and you never can get information on this point from cold figures."

The extent of Sommers' knowledge of the value of so many ball tossers was a revelation to the St. Louis players, who were unable to understand how a man with so many diversified interests has the time and inclination to follow baseball so closely.

GOTCH ANGRY OVER WAY "HACK" TREATED HIM

New York, Jan. 9.—Frank Gotch, champion heavyweight wrestler of the world, who went to England seeking a return match with George Hackenschmidt is having a lot of trouble over there. He is not only ill physically, but he is mad as a hornet about the way "Hack" has treated him. Gotch unburdened himself to the editor of Sporting Life in this manner:

"I came here to get a match with Hackenschmidt. It was no business of mine to challenge the Russian, as I beat him in Chicago. I asked him to meet me at your office. He declined, and as a bit of bluff he replied to my invitation by putting down $500 at the Sportsman. The editor of that paper made two appointments for me to meet Hackschmidt. But the wily fox did not respond to this. I was ready all the time, but he was always shuffling. Never a straight thing has he done all through this controversy.

"Instead of meeting me as he was invited to do, he called his famous meeting of press men, and on them placed all the responsibility of arranging his matches. But this move of his brought me into an agreement which I did not want. He got a committee appointed to manage my affairs as well as his own. The impudence of it makes me angry. I have said that I have always had before me a match with Hackenschmidt. After the Hackenschmidt-Zbysco match and the Lemm and my own match, I felt that I should meet him again and show the public how the slanders upon me have been. But Hackenschmidt will not meet Zbysco. He defies the board of control, and as I only consented to wrestle Lemm in order to get Hackenschmidt, I see no objection in going on with this match. Hackenschmidt has again succeeded by bluff, and I suppose the English public will go on applauding him."

LOCAL SPORT NOTES

The high school basketball league will get busy next Tuesday, when the first game of the year will be played between the seniors and the freshmen. There is much interest among high school students in the game, and the recent announcement made by the boys' department, Y. M. C. A., that men who were not members are eligible to play, has brought out much more material than in former years.

The Spaldings met defeat again last night when the St. Clements school nine defeated them at indoor baseball by the score of 11 to 2. Capt. Lavell says that his men have not turned out lately with their usual enthusiasm, and that a number of the men failed to show up last night. Unless more interest is displayed during the next two weeks he threatens to cancel the rest of the games scheduled.

L. A. Gunderson of Lester Park has tendered the use of his sixty-foot ski slide to the amateurs who wish to practice on it before tackling the larger one located on Chester hill.

Many of the Lakeside boys are already practicing on the slide every evening, and some of them have become quite proficient in the art of coming down the hill gracefully on the wooden runners.

"PREP" CHAMPIONS OF THE ENTIRE UNITED STATES.

Before the Longmont, Mont., high school football team, defeated Englewood of Chicago in Denver, early last December, very few people knew that Longmont existed. Every high school boy at least, is alive to the fact now. The town has a population of 6,000.

NEWS OF THE WEEK AT THE CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL

Students and Teachers Settle Down to Winter's Work.

New Paper, "The Scream" To Make Its Appearance.

It was indeed a gay set of boys and girls who filled the assembly hall of the school on Monday morning.

While they were all sorry that their holidays were at an end, everyone seemed in good spirits, and they entered into the work and routine with good-natured industry. It was certainly a happy and well-spent vacation. Another circumstance which helped to make the opening a cheerful one was the presence of a large number of the alumni. Those who were home from college came around to pay their respects to the school and have a chat with Miss Taylor, who was kept busy all day saying goodbye to her old companions of the assembly hall. In chapel, Mr. Smith made his usual remarks, and mentioned the good luck that befell one of the members of the faculty, at which Mr. Custance struck up the wedding march, which created a good deal of mirth at the expense of the teacher.

The presentation of the "D" sweaters is the last event connected with football each year. The "D" is a distinct mark of merit which is much coveted by the students and happy indeed are those who are privileged to wear one. This year the players covered themselves with glory, and played as well as any team in the history of the school. It will be a long time before so many stars will be gathered together on one team. Several of the men have already received more than two "D's," and on account of this a different kind of a sweater was given this time. Instead of the high neck, red sweater, which has been given for the last few years, a white vest sweater with a small red "D" was given. Those who received these were: William Crawford, Henry Boyle, Mack Cook, Harold Blowen, Earl Cummings, Manus McFadden, George Ostergren, Arnold Olsen, Roy Kent, Arthur Helmer, Dwight Larrowe, John Quinn, William Stevens, Eugene McComber, Archie Glass, David McFarlane, Edward Furnie.

Friday morning the school was given the opportunity of listening to a very talented elocutionist, Miss Cora L. Patton, who is giving readings in the different cities. She appeared at the high school last night giving "The Servant in the House," the play which is attracting so much attention in the East. Miss Patton captivated her audience from the start, and her talk was exceptionally interesting and enjoyable. Her easy manner of speaking and her soft pleasant voice drew the attention of the whole school, and they were very reluctant to let her stop. Miss Patton explained that she was not going to give a reading, as had been expected, but just a little talk. She gave a few pointers in regard to "diction" and told what is fashionable and what is not fashionable, in the literary way and of the latest fads in words. She also touched on novels and dramas and explained why they were so popular at the present time. The audience insisted that she continue, so she gave two readings. One was a poem by Thomas Bailey Aldrich and the other was one entitled "Secrets of the Heart," Austin. They were exceptionally well given, and Miss Patton was given a great ovation.

A new field of journalism will be opened in the school next week. Some of the youthful journalists, not content with the Zenith, which only appears once a year, will endeavor to get out a new publication which will make its appearance more often. This new creation will be copied after Life or Puck and will try to condense all the wit and humor of the school into one sheet. It will also be strong in local hits and jibes, and it will take a great amount of influence to keep one's name out of this yellow paper. It is not known at present whether anything very sensational will be attempted or not, but almost anything may be expected. It will be under very clever management, and the staff will be made up of the best cub reporters of the school. The cartoonist is said to be a wonder. The new freak will pass under the name of The Scream, which the editors think very appropriate and suggestive, which remains to be seen. The laugh may be on them.

The basketball season will open next week. The boys of the different classes have been practicing for some time and they are now ready for the contests. The first game will be next Tuesday between the Seniors and Freshmen. It promises to be a very interesting game, as they both have fine teams. The Seniors are at present suffering from the loss of David MacFarlane, who is their captain and star player and who may not be able to play with them.

The debaters of the school are working very hard for the debate to be held with Pine City soon. All during vacation they haunted the library digging out the facts of the case and preparing both sides of the question, for it is not known yet which side will be taken. Mr. Baker, who is coaching the team, is making them work all the time and he hopes to turn out a successful team.

Miss Mogford, the English teacher for the juniors, has been forced to give up her work on account of illness. She has been unable to meet her classes for some time, Miss Hopkins taking her place, but finally had to give up for the rest of the year. Miss Mogford will go South and will be accompanied by Miss Hopkins.

NELSON-DEWEY MEETS DEFEAT

Y. M. C. A. Put It All Over Superior Team at Basketball.

It was easy for the Y. M. C. A. basketball team to win out last night against the Nelson-Dewey team of Superior. The final score was 22 to 21, and even that fine showing does not give the local men the credit they earned.

The Duluth boys showed better all around training and were in the better physical condition. From the blow of the whistle at the opening of the game, the men who represent the association rushed the Superior men right off their feet and kept after them in the same spirit during the entire game.

Fenton, Colton and Perry were the stars for the Duluth team, each one of them playing a magnificent game, and each, after the game was over, found three baskets credited up to him. McLean threw five field baskets.

For the Superior team, Hudson and Conley were the stars.

The score at the end of the first half was 22 to 7.

The lineup and summary follow:

Duluth—		Superior—
Fenton	forward	Hudson
Colton	forward	Conley
Perry	center	Welter
McLain	guard	Whalen
Thompson	guard	Jordan

Field baskets: Hudson, 2; Conley, 5; Fenton, 3; Colton, 3; Perry, 3; McLain, 5; fouls, Hudson, Conley, 6; Thompson, 5. Officials, Conley and Fahey.

NO BASKETBALL FOR THE GIRLS

University of Minnesota Co-Eds Denied Privilege of Playing Game.

Minneapolis, Jan. 9.—That the co-eds of the University of Minnesota will be denied the privilege of participation in intercollegiate basketball contests, for at least the season of 1909, was the announcement made by those in charge of girls' athletics at the state institution this morning. Heretofore the gopher co-eds have met teams from middle Western universities and colleges, and the girls' sport has been financed by the University Athletic association. This year marks the first departure from the custom.

The annual interclass tournament will be the only girls' basketball contest at the varsity this year and elaborate plans are being made for the event.

PINK GERANIUM DANCE FOR ETHEL ROOSEVELT.

Polly of the Circus.

Playwrights have long studied along many lines to introduce into their productions something that is in some way different from anything that has gone before. Day after day, night after night, they have racked their brains to get something original. Often they have succeeded; many times they have failed, not through any fault of their own, but because the field explored had been exhausted.

Now comes Frederic Thompson, famed first for his "Trip to the Moon" at the Pan-American exposition, originator and designer of the New York Hippodrome, New York's greatest amusement palace, and Luna Park in the heart of Coney Island.

"Polly of the Circus," one of Mr. Thompson's latest dramatic productions, following "Brewster's Millions," and followed by "Via Wireless," the real drama which is now the talk of New York, comes to the Lyceum theater Monday, Jan. 11, for two nights only, and provides one of the best examples of Mr. Thompson's desire to produce his plays as they should be produced. Mr. Thompson has spared no expense in former productions, no more has he in "Polly of the Circus." When expense is an item in a Thompson production, money is readily forthcoming. One of the best instances of that fact lies in the employment of a wireless operator in the successful play "Via Wireless." He alone can see that everything goes well in that memorable third act of the play, and he was hired and put to work the moment Mr. Thompson saw the necessity of doing so. "Polly of the Circus," a play which should undoubtedly be one of the greatest dramatic sensations of the Duluth season, unless all promises fail, Mr. Thompson has provided one of the best instances of his desire to have everything done in proper fashion.

To that end he has furnished an old-time country circus for his play that holds the boards only two or three minutes. All the necessary equipment is present.

Rose Stahl in "The Chorus Lady."

Rose Stahl will appear at the Lyceum in "The Chorus Lady," the famous comedy of stage life by James Forbes, author of "The Traveling Salesman."

Miss Stahl, who is under the Henry B. Harris management, comes to Duluth next Friday and Saturday, matinee and night, after making a wonderful record and breaking the established theatrical traditions of years. In the first place, it will be remembered that the play, when first produced in New York, was practically unheralded, for the reason that its author was unknown and its star a new figure on Broadway. Leaping into the spotlight of public approval instantaneously, after the first night, the production ran an entire season in New York and overthrew the superstition which casts ill luck upon a play moved from the opening playhouse. "The Chorus Lady," forced successively out of the Savoy and Garrick theaters by previous bookings, found shelter in the Hackett and still retaining its popularity, established the longest run of any offering on Broadway that season. But this was only a beginning. Chicago called for the play, and without the loss of a performance it was transferred to Powers' theater, where it ran for four months to capacity during the hottest summer months, and followed this by a long run in other cities, until when Miss Stahl, compelled to seek a brief respite, closed her season in Boston last May, "The Chorus Lady" had played ninety-four consecutive weeks to record-shattering business.

Concerning the story of the play, little need to be said, for playgoers in general know of "The Chorus Lady," and its pretty romance. The central figure is Patricia O'Brien of the chorus. The love interest concerns Patricia and Dan Mallory, owner of a racing stable in which her father is employed as trainer, and the contesting element is Dick Crawford, a rich young man about town, who is Mallory's partner in the stable, and who is currying favor with Patricia's pretty sister Nora, with evil intent. Patricia, returning home after her company has failed, discovers this state of affairs and determines to remove her sister from Crawford's influence. This much is revealed in the first act, and the second act discloses the much-talked of dressing room in a New York theater, where half a dozen young women are making up for the evening performance of a musical comedy. Nora, through a propensity for betting, has involved herself with these young women and at the same time incurred the enmity of Sylvia Simpson, a show girl. In the effort to extricate herself, she has been foolish enough to accept the aid of Crawford. At this rather unfortunate juncture, Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien appear on the scene, to pay a visit to their daughters, and their arrival precipitates a new series of dramatic complications, which are illustrated in the third act, taking place in Crawford's apartments, and are finally happily settled in the fourth, at the Harlem flat of the two O'Brien sisters.

Miss Stahl, in the role of Patricia, has been universally commended for a portrayal of this young woman, endowed with extreme worldly wisdom, philosophic reasoning, and unflinching steadfastness of character, and expressing herself in the inimitable slang which has made the play famous. Her characterization is acknowledged as one of the finest in stage history. In the sensational dressing room scene of the second act, which has proved a potent factor in the success of the play, are shown the original Tanagra sheath gowns, which created a sensation when worn at Longchamps in Paris, last May.

Henry B. Harris has retained the original supporting cast, including Wilfred Lucas, Eva Dennison Earle R. Williams, Alice Leigh, Giles Shine, Madeline Travers, Thomas Maguire, Amy Lee, Amy Lesser, Marguerite Wheeler, Annie Ives, Jean French, Lavinia Mason and Alice Chase.

At the Bijou.

A NOVEL and intetresting interesting bill of vaudeville will open at the Bijou Monday afternoon. A novel act will be the Australian Tree Fellers, in an exciting exhibition of tree felling. This is the first act of its kind that has ever appeared in Duluth.

Eugene Ellsworth and company will offer the latest comedy success, entitled "His Day Off." The following is a recent notice from a Philadelphia paper:

"Eugene Ellsworth, assisted by Edna Earl Lindon, presented one of the best sketches that has appeared at the Keith theater this season. The act is entitled 'His Day Off.' It has an excellent little story, and is played by two capable artists, who fill the parts to the letter."

Among the other acts that deserve special notice will be Joseph K. Watson, the popular Hebrew comedian, and late star of the "Bankers & Brokers" company.

A very attractive and classy little act will be given by Flora Browning, "The Girl With the Diamond Heels," who is assisted by Keller, the celebrated whistler. They offer their original idea, entitled "The Hunter and the Maid," which is brimful of good singing, comedy, dancing and whistling.

A good act will be given by "Lightning Hopper," the American cartoonist, who will draw a series of comic and artistic sketches. The public will recognize Mr. Hopper's sketches, as nearly everyone has seen his work in magazines and in the comic pages of different city papers.

The moving pictures will be "The Installment Collector" and "The Bee and the Rose."

Matinees are given daily at 2:45, and evening performances at 8 and 9:30. Seats may be reserved by either 'phone. A school children's matinee is given Saturday at 2:30, and performances Sunday afternoon and night.

Gave Up the Stage to Teach School.

The past and present life of any leading actress is more or less interesting, and their history is often enjoyed, especially by girls of a stage-struck nature, and people who attend the theaters a great deal. It is seldom that actresses give up the profession to teach school, but such is the case of Nora Shelby, who is playing the role of "Texas West" in J. Mauldin Feigl's American play, "Texas," which appears here next Wednesday and Thursday nights at the Lyceum. It was five years ago, while Miss Shelby was in the cast of "Arizona," and the company was playing a week's engagement in Louisville, Ky., which is Miss Shelby's native state. The company received notification that they would lay off two weeks, so the actress ran down to Hillsboro, to visit her people, whom she had not seen for two years. She enjoyed such a pleasant time that the home folks wanted her to remain home, which she promised to do. It was but a short time until Nora craved for something to occupy her mind—and her father, who was one of the county school trustees—told her he could secure her a position in one of the schools as an instructor in the German language. She accepted the position and was unusually successful. Early last year, when the night riders were destroying so much property, Miss Shelby decided she would go back to the stage. She made this fact known to the New York manager, and was immediately engaged for the leading part in "Texas."

In speaking of the night riders recently, the actress said: "My father, Col. John Shelby, has been a respected resident of the state for thirty-five years, and has been very proud of the fact until the recent uprising in the state. He had always raised an immense crop of tobacco, received a good price for it, and had made numerous cash donations to the different charitable institutions, and when twelve big, strong, heartless men rode on my father's place last year and made unreasonable demands, which were refused, they immediately set fire to the large tobacco barns, and they barely gave us time to get our things out of the old home, when it, like the other buildings, was in flames. We pleaded for mercy, but the contemptible night riders only mounted their horses, gave a yell and rode away. The outside world cannot begin to imagine the awful, disgraceful, crimes that were committed by these so-called men, and you can't blame the Kentuckians for denouncing them."

Lyceum Notes.

Manager Marshall makes the announcement that the musical extravaganza, "The Land of Nod," will be seen at the Lyceum on Saturday matinee and night, Jan. 23. This show was an unusually good company of comedians, singers and dancers, and with a lavish equipment of scenery, costumes and electrical and other effects. As presented last season, the performance was far above the average, and those who witnessed it will be its best advertisers now. Practically the same company which was seen then, returns, including Knox Wilson, as "April Fool." Many new song features and several fresh comedy scenes have been added to those which characterized last season's performance.

"Little Johnny Jones," which comes to the Lyceum the latter part of this month, is apparently as much of a favorite with theater-goers as it was during the days of its initial presentation.

Young Mr Cohan has devised some exceedingly clever situations, and the web of melody which is so deftly woven throughout the three acts, makes "Little Johnny Jones" an entertainment par excellence.

The song numbers in "Little Johnny Jones" are one of its most fascinating features. As a matter of fact, Mr. Cohan has supplied this particular play with more of his compositions than are noticeable in any of his other productions. The favorites seem to be "They're All My Friends," "Nesting in a New York Tree," "Up in the Annsom," "Good Old California," "Good-Bye, Flo," "Yankee Doodle Boy," "Life's a Very Funny Proposition After All," and, last but not least, that internationally famous one, "Give My Regards to Broadway." One of Mr. Cohan's most recent contributions to the musical world is a march entitled "Popularity," which is rendered by the orchestra between the first and second acts of the performance of "Little Johnny Jones."

"It is astonishing how many ways a man can find to beat the devil 'round the stump.'" These words were uttered by the comedian, Al. H. Wilson, who is to star this season in a romantic comedy drama, entitled, "When Old New York Was Dutch."

"A friend of mine who was suffering from lung trouble, had been advised by the doctor not to take more than three drinks a day, as his lungs were affected. I advised him to try some other doctor.'

"'You'll die if you can't get more than three drinks a day,' I said.

"'That's what I think,' replied my friend, 'so I consulted another physician.'

"'What was his answer?'

"'Three drinks a day—the limit.'

"'Well,' said I, 'if each one of them said you could take three drinks a day, that makes six drinks.'

"'Great!'

"'If you don't think you can get along with six, visit every doctor in New York and if they all say that you can have three drinks a day, I guess that will allow you as many drinks as an invalid ought to take every twenty-four hours.'"

"The Three Twins," which comes to the Lyceum for five nights and a matinee (on Jan. 18 to 22), is positively one of the best musical comedies on the road. Its long run in Chicago of five months at the Whitney opera house and of eight months at the Herald Square theater in New York, where the S. R. O. sign is still being displayed nightly, should be proof of this.

"The Three Twins" is a musical comedy with a plot and many novel features. The conglomerate nonsense, the riot of color and the spirited movements which make such an agreeable attack on one's senses that it matters not under what name the revelry goes. The electrical effects are marvelous, the faceograph being a distinct novelty. The electrical aerial swing, being a structure of steel, illuminated with over 2,000 electric lights revolving at a rapid rate with six girls in the baskets singing "The Cuddle Song," is said to be one of the most beautiful finales ever staged.

The company is headed by Victor Morley and includes Richard Bartlett, George S. Trimble, Eva Fallon, Maud Demarest, Della Niven, Ruby Ray, Florenz Kolb, W. H. Woodside, Frank Smith, E. P. Bower, Ada Bateman, Marie Naskow and a large chorus. Charles Dorrance, the Duluth boy, who was last seen here in the "Red Feather" is with "The Three Twins."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

New York, Jan. 7.—Eddie Foy's threats to appear as Hamlet have been realized, as the Casino in "Mr. Hamlet of Broadway," a musical whimsicality in two acts. Not since the days of Edwin Booth has a Hamlet been seen on our stage, and although the great tragedian was famous in the role it remained for Mr. Foy to show the public what he does not know about the melancholy Dane. Mr. Foy's conception of the character is new and the funniest thing shown on Broadway in many a long day. Maude Raymond's Ophelia is also a screamer.

The Shuberts announce that George Fawcett, who recently returned from London, where he made one of the greatest hits ever made by an American actor, has come under their management and will shortly make his first appearance as a Shubert star in a play entitled "Ganton & Co.," a dramatization of Arthur Jerome Eddy's novel of the Chicago stock yards, by Hartley Manners.

"What Every Woman Knows," in which Maude Adams is appearing at the Empire theater, is not quite so fine a play as others written by J. M. Barrie, but it is good entertainment for all that, and has been well received by the admirers of this popular actress. The scenes of the play are laid in Scotland and the leading characters are Scotch. Maggie Wylie, the heroine, is a clever, but timid girl who has no suitors for her hand despite her wealth. However, in the end she marries the man of her choice. There is quaint pathos and whimsical humor in the story. Miss Adams as Maggie Wylie has scored heavily.

"Peggy MacIree," in which Joseph O'Mara, the Irish singing comedian, has made a strong impression at the Broadway theater, is a typical story of Ireland with an excellent part for Mr. O'Mara and many opportunities for the introduction of songs; always a feature of plays of this description. The new star has a beautiful voice and sings delightfully. His engagement has started with a rush.

Saturday night of last week Miss Annie Russell closed her long and successful engagement at Weber's theater, where she has been appearing in John Valentine's beautiful comedy "The Stronger Sex" to the largest audience ever known in that playhouse. Miss Russell could continue for many weeks, but out of town managers declined to cancel contracts, so this winsome actress must leave us for a tour of the important cities. Her managers, Wagenhals & Kemper, will send on the road the original New York cast, which includes several well known actors and actresses, all of whom are popular with our theater-goers. "The Stronger Sex" has a charming, grotesqueness all its own and is a comedy of genuine humor. In this city Annie Russell is as popular as John Drew, with many admirers among refined, conservative people. During the next few weeks she will fill engagements in the Southern cities.

Miss Clara Krail, this season playing the leading role in "The Great Divide," seems to be a find for Manager Henry Miller. On the road the young actress is receiving very great praise for her impersonation of Ruth Jordan, the role originally played here by Margaret Anglin. Although Miss Krail is only 22 years of age she will next season blossom out as the star in a new emotional drama written specially for her by a well known newspaper man.

George Tyler, executive head of the firm of Liebler & Co., states that Eleanor Robson has made such a fine success in "The Dawn of a Tomorrow" that he has decided to add it to her repertory for the remainder of the season. Mr. Tyler has this to say: "It is a wonderfully clever play with a part that fits and will be used in conjunction with 'Vera the Medium,' Richard Harding Davis's successful drama. I expect to bring Miss Robson to a Broadway theater at an early date. Arnold Daly, another of our stars, has hit 'em hard in 'The Pickpockets,' and Walker Whiteside is presenting Zangwill's 'The Melting Pot' in Chicago to very large receipts. We have arranged for a play in which to present Viola Allen this season. It is entitled 'The White Sister,' and has been written by F. Marion Crawford. The play is in four acts, and while it follows to some extent the story of the author's novel it was written first and the novel later. Miss Allen is to appear in this city late in January."

Elsie Ferguson, who has made her triumphal way out of the chorus, and by successive steps to the rank of leading woman, made a good impression in "Pierre of the Plains," and made a better in "The Battle." In the last play she reminds her audience, quite unconsciously, of Maude Adams. There is a girlish vibrata midway of her vocal register that is Adamsian. An abrupt angular gesture that suggests girlishly sharp elbows in another trick that catapulted memories back to the conquest by the first of the Lady Babbies.

Returning from his long tour of the Pacific coast and the Far Northwest in the spring, Richard Carle will begin a run at the Colonial theater, Chicago, Memorial day as the star comedian of "The Hurdy Gurdy Girl." This production will be even more elaborate than "The Tenderfoot," "The Mayor of Tokio," "The Spring Chicken" or "Mary's Lamb," Mr. Carle's previous big successes. An unusually large company will be engaged, with principals of note and hosts of choristers.

Mr. Carle is still at work on the part he will play, which will be slightly different from his Prof. Pettibone, Ambrose Girdle and Leander Lamb. He has named his next character Pericles Perkins a name generally indicating the scion of a plebian family, which grafted upon the humble name of "Perkins" the rather formidable one of "Pericles."

"The Hurdy Gurdy Girl" will be in two acts, the second having some of the features of the English pantomime. There will be thirteen songs—the lucky Carle number. Musically the new piece ought to prove a great success, for every song gives promise of being popular. Of these there is one, "Why Should There be a Morning After?" to be sung by Mr. Carle, which is of the topical kind.

Creston Clarke, who plays the Man of Mystery in "The Servant in the House," tells an interesting incident in the life of David Christie Murray that has never been published. When the famous English novelist, at that time a mere youth fighting against poverty, finished his first story, he called it "Ninety Eight Pounds, Ten." He sold the manuscript to Chatto and Windus, who objected to the rather odd title, and, with Murray's consent, changed it to "A Life Atonement." Murray received in payment a check for £100, which he cashed at the bank, receiving the amount in gold, sovereigns and half-sovereigns. When he had mounted the decrepit stairway to the room which he shared with a young friend, who has since become a famous actor, the young author spread the contents of his paper bag over the bed, got upon it, and rolled about on the glittering coins, saying: "I have always had an ambition to wallow in gold." Strangely enough, when he and his friend collected the money they found that 30 shillings were missing, one sovereign and one half-sovereign; and although they searched the room carefully the lost coins were never found. This brought Murray's little fortune down to £98 10s, the totle he first gave his story.

"I went home after the theater one night with a successful woman star and her husband, and in their charming apartment swallowed oysters, munched celery and discoursed to her on the charms of her domesticity," says the matinee girl. "It is delightful, and we are domestic," she assented, "but there's a business side, too, to never being seen in restaurants. I got the tip from the remark of a pair who stood admiring a couple of posters of stars who sun in public after the theater.

"'They're both in town next week. We must go to see them,' said the woman.

'But what's the use of paying $2 a seat when you can see them at a cafe after the show for nothing?

"You can catch a good deal of floating wisdom if you will listen for it on the streets. I made up my mind to give no free exhibitions. The only place people can see me is the theater where I am playing, and after the first week the free list is suspended."

Concerning gospels, that exotic beauty, Lina Cavalieri of Rome and Paris and latterly of New York, whom certain critics have declared is "the most beautiful woman in the world," before departing next week for a tour of Mexico in opera, will open an "atalier of beauty" on Fifth avenue. There will be gold cosmetics which are the short cut to beauty.

Lillian Russell, importuned to open a shop on Fifth avenue, considered the plan for a time, but abandoned it because she concluded: "A New York shopkeeper can't operate from San Francisco." That objection the pliguant Roman has met by placing in charge of her atalier a competent relative.

Maude Odell says: "I am dressing in 'Love Watches' exactly the way I like to dress. My gowns are black and white. It is a combination with endless variations, and in my opinion always timely effective. When I am asked what is my favorite color, I reply, I have no favorite color. My favorite colors are black and white."

Mary Garden, always epigrammatic, says: "I dress in the evening for my hair and skin. In the afternoon for my eyes." Yellows and grays she chooses for evening wear because they "agree" with her complexion and hair. "Royal blue always for afternoon costumes because my eyes are blue," is her dictum sartorial.

When she was a very little girl in Philadelphia, Ethel Barrymore used to go behind the scenes at her grandmother's theater to see Edwin Booth act. One night Mr. Booth stopped in dead silence in the middle of a speech. For a few seconds the crowded house was absolutely breathless. Every eye in the audience was strained on Booth's blank Hamlet face. When he resumed and finished the act he was recalled over and over again. After the play he picked up little Ethel Barrymore to talk to her as she sat in his arms—an almost nightly habit with him. "My! but I am a good actor tonight, eh?" said Booth with a little laugh.

"You stuck dead," the child answered.

"I had to," was the actor's answer, partly to himself and partly to the child, "the audience was dead until I did. If they show signs of dying again I'll tumble over a chair; they'll think I've been drinking and they will watch me like cats and help me out."

Some years later Miss Barrymore sat in front one night watching Booth's performance of "Richieu." She still remembers that he played one entire scene crossing and recrossing the stage many times, supporting himself by holding to the back of a heavy chair. Miss Barrymore naturally went back to see whether the great man would be able to finish the performance. He met her with a hearty laugh.

"You thought I had been drinking or that I was ill," he said. "Why, I had to hold on to that chair. I was carrying that whole audience, the deadest weight in the world. I tried 'sticking' for what seemed like five minutes in the second act, but it did not concentrate their attention."

All of which amply illustrates that not even the great ones can enter the spirit of a part unless the people in front come along. There is no place in the world as lonely as a stage inhabited by an actor conscious that the audience is not giving him its undivided attention.

How much money down can the unknown playwright expect when the manager says he'll accept the manuscript and put it on for production?

One qualified to talk on this topic is Theodore Burt Sayre, the well known dramatist and play reader.

"If a manager isn't willing, after having accepted a manuscript, to pay the author something down, then he isn't the sort of a manager it is wise to have dealings with," he says. "I'd set down as the minimum sum which a new author should get on acceptance, $250. Most managers can tell when they read a scenario whether they will want the completed play or not. Then they will say down $250, or more, and another $250, and this will secure to the manager the rights to that play for one year. In the event that the play is not staged within the year the manager will forfeit his $500, or he may, on payment of an exra $500, retain the option for another year. If he does not do this the author is, or should be privileged to sell his play elsewhere.

"The recognized writers, of course, are in a position where they can demand and get considerably in excess of these figures, and in many cases they are given a substantial sum before they ever put pen to paper."

Men who have written as successfully for the stage as J. M. Barrie, Anthony Hope and that class of playwrights, receive advance royalties that run sometimes, to as high a figure as $2,500, and this before the manager has a hint of the nature of the matter he is purchasing. And he may write a failure at that, though the chances are strongly in favor of a success, if the past performances of the authors are to be considered. It is the talk in theatrical circles that Mr. Barrie has made as high as $2,000 a week in royalties on the plays he has written for Maude Adams.

Mr. Sayre continued: "I had a young man come to me once and question me eagerly as to how much he ought to get for a play. 'Where are you from?' I asked him, and he said California. 'How long have you been in New York?' I asked. 'Two weeks,' he answered. 'And you are so confident that you are going to sell this play that you want to know at once about terms, eh?' He said yes, he thought he'd sell the play. Then I told him if he got a manager to accept it, he ought to get from $250 to $500 down, and then he could make a contract for 5 per cent royalty on the gross receipts up to $5,000 a week, 7½ per cent on $7,500, and 10 per cent on but when he did sell it, he had a winner, for it was 'The Rose of the Ranche.'"

"What sort of play must the young man write in order to have it accepted?"

"A play with these three qualities—love interest, sympathy and suspense. Above all else, it must be a clean play. The American public is without any doubt the cleanest-minded public of any in the world.

"In England just now they have a class of what we call 'tea-cup comedies.' Most Americans would think these pretty pale productions, but the English seem to like them a lot. If they are brought over here and the principal part given to some big actor or actress competent to carry the weight, they may achieve a certain measure of approval—but it isn't that they are successful or that they represent the style of entertainment the American public likes. It is just that the star is popular.

"What the American dramatist will find most profitable in turning out is what we inelegantly style the "dress-suit melodrama.' Melodrama, if it isn't too mellow, will always get down to the heart strings of the people. There is really very little difference between the $2 audience and the cheaper priced house, except in the matter of externals. Primarily, the likes are the same. Let the young author devote himself to stories of actual life, with good red blood in them, with the men manly and the women tender and sympathetic, and he will reap his reward in success."

$10,000, and more—or any other arrangement he could come to with the manager, for these figures are not arbitrary. His play had a lot of merit in it, but in the shape he had written it it wouldn't do for production. He was five years getting it on, was Mr. Tully.

WOMEN SUPPORT THEATERS

"I scarcely know what to say about my little theater," said Maxine Elliott to the Chicago Journal, referring to her beautiful theater which was opened in New York New Year's eve. "After all, it's not what you put on a theater—time and thought and material—that counts in the long run. It's what you put in it that must tell the story. For the past eight years I have worked and planned to have my own theater, but even now it does not seem possible that I am to realize my dream.

"All last summer I stood on a step-ladder in London examining lights and other mysteries to learn what would be best for the little theater I looked forward to calling home. Most of all I hope it may seem more like home than a theater to those who visit it. My chief aim has been to make it pleasant and comfortable.

"The chairs are wide and let us hope restful, for comfort is as necessary to the theater as to the home. It helps people to forget the bad plays they see, don't you think? We have good plays, of course, but the poor are always with us, aren't they. And it's so much nicer to take them comfortably!

"Mr. Shubert, of course, has worked with me, but my ideas have been carried out almost to the letter. Here and there minor changes have been made, perhaps, but on the whole my suggestions have been found practicable.

"This is one reason why the theater means so much to me. Merely to have a theater bear my name would mean nothing to me. A proposition of that sort was made to me on two occasions, but I insisted upon being a partner. This time a partnership has been formed and the new theater will be conducted along strictly business lines.

"Bookings will be made for it just as for other houses."

"With a definite part of each season reserved for yourself?"

"Horrors, no!" she exclaimed, as the car swung around a corner. I shouldn't dream of inflicting myself upon a helpless public in that way. I shall appear each year in the house, of course, but my stay will be determined by the merits of my play. Miss Marlowe, Mme. Nazimova and Miss Mannering, among others, will also appears there."

"Is it to be essentially the home of women stars?"

"It will be identified with women stars," answered Miss Elliott, "though not necessarily restricted to them. It will be largely devoted to light comedies. Neither will it be given over to so-called 'society plays.' Let us hope it will be the home of good plays that everyone will enjoy."

"Of course, women are the main support of the theater," she assured the puzzled man. "A man usually goes to the theater because Kittie or Nellie wishes to go. Left to his own tastes he would probably prefer to stay at home with his pipe and his book and a cheery fire. I know I should if I were a man.

"A woman is more keenly interested in the thater. It means more to her. It has comparatively little attraction for a man. He is not easily interested in a play, and still less in a woman in a play.

"Not even a beautiful woman?"

"Only for a moment, perhaps, if at all," declared Miss Elliott. "Beauty in a woman on the stage is a detriment to her unless she can rise above it, unless she shows that she has something more than beauty to justify her position.

"A woman without beauty is readily given credit for cleverness, whereas a beautiful woman must work twice as hard to be considered at all clever. On the stage beauty carries its own penalty.

"You hear Lillian Russell spoken of as a beautiful woman. The public doesn't remember her beautiful voice with which she first won her position.

"She is still a beautiful woman. But she has done more for herself than her beauty has done for her. By her own efforts and sheer cleverness she has this year scored a distinct success in comedy. She has won this success honestly, by hard work. She has not been idle in the years of her beauty. And yet one longs at times for a little rest."

"I don't think I could be content off the state for a very long time," she confessed. "But the management of a theater interests me tremendously. It seems to me that an actor is the one person of all others who knows the theater.

"It is the place in which he displays his wares, and he should know best how to do it. When you go to see Mrs. Fiske, for instance, you know you will see a performance that shows intelligent direction. There is always the question of a good play, of course, and incidentally this question is a more serious one in this country than in England, where the actor-manager has greater opportunity for securing good plays.

"Here the plays of successful authors are bought and paid for before they are written, and so the field is necessarily limited. At the same time one must be in a position to get good plays; therefore, one can not be so independent as the London actor-manager. As for the actress-manager, Miss Lena Ashwell, has been immensely successful with her Kingsway theater. That's encouraging, isn't it?"

ACTOR WILTON LACKAYE

Believes American Stage is in Low Condition and Needs Help---No Leisure Class in This Country and Everybody Hurries.

Wilton Lackaye believes that the American stage is in a low condition and needs help. The actor, who is now appearing at the Savoy theater, New York, in Cleveland Moffett's successful play, "The Battle," was seen the other afternoon in the library of the Lambs' club, and while he puffed away at cigarettes he also blew away the happy belief that everything is as it should be in the realm of the American stage.

"And what is the trouble with the stage?" he was asked.

"The trouble chiefly is due to the public itself," was Mr. Lackaye's reply.

"There is no leisure class in this country,' continued the actor. 'In England or France you can get away from the big cities in the summer by bicycle or automobile and you'll see hundreds upon hundreds of villas in which the Inhabitants seem to be enjoying life in a leisurely, sensible thoughtful manner. You will see men reading books, and if you walk with them you will find that they are not too busy really to think about such things as art and the theater. They have sensibly retired upon a small, comfortable sum of money. But here the acquisition of $100,000 is simply the goad to get a million, and possession of $1,000,000 leads to the wish for $2,000,000, $20,000,000, $40,000,000—there's no end.

"What time has the financier, the capitalist, for art? None. Why, his clerk has infinitely more leisure, for when he leaves the office, he leaves his office coat behind him, while the financier takes his office coat home with him, as he does his plans. His head is buzzing with business deals and if it occurs to him to go to the theater he seeks those theaters that offer excitement. He is hunting thrills, sensations. A good play does not interest him, for he wants to see a show that is frankly a disrobing exhibition, or he wants to see a comedian fall off the top of a ladder and not kill himself.

"And this same hurry and restlessness, this something "doing" mood, sits upon the public at large. There's no repose in the race. If they travel by rail, they cannot find trains fast enough; if by an automobile, they must go tearing over the country at sixty miles an hour; if they go to the theater, it must be an exciting "show." Everywhere there are signs of hysteria. How can a good, serious play survive under such conditions? How can a serious-minded manager overcome them?

Prefer Meldorama to Shakespeare.

"Added to this desire for sensations is the item of hypocrisy. Ask the vast majority of educated people what they think of Shakespeare, and they will roll their eyes in ecstasy. Produce Shakespearean plays and these good people will eagerly remain away from the theater. Let Shakespeare be acted by stars and the public will go—to see the stars; and even then the attendance will be comparatively slim. Sir Henry Irving never did the business here with Shakespeare that he did with such out and out melodramas as 'The Bells' and 'The Lyons Mail.'

"I tell you the stage is looked down upon. Persons who belong in vaudeville are elevated into stars on the stage of the legitimate theater; theaters that ought to be devoted to serious plays are given over to flashy ones, and no one puts forth a helping hand in this country for serious dramatic art. Abroad the governments provide funds for the maintenance of art in the theaters, but here, what has the government or the public done for the theater? Nothing, absolutely nothing.

"If a girl sings in a village choir and shows traces of talent, a purse is made up for her and she is sent abroad to study. The same is done in the big cities and in thousands of cases.

"What did the wealthy men do who built the Metropolitan opera house? They made it possible for the poorer classes to hear good opera and to get to love it, until today New York has two wonderful opera houses and audiences to fill them. Europe can sneer at us no longer in the matter of music, and we have arrived at this point in only a few years. I remember distinctly that not many years ago Bill Nye would always get a roar of laughter by saying:

"'I am informed upon good authority that Wagner is not as bad as he sounds.' They used to think that was so funny, but now you cannot joke on the subject of Wagner. The public will not laugh, because it has been educated to understand and appreciate Wagner. So much has been done for music here, but for the stage? Nothing.

As to the New Theater.

"I have not noticed that the wealthy colonies invite the famous French actors to play before them when they have a private entertainment to give. But I have noticed that they sometimes vary the monotony of giving monkey dinners by having Miss Maggie Cline sing 'Throw Him Down McCloskey,' or by having Miss May Irwin sing 'coon' songs. That's an index of what some of the wealthy think of the theater."

"But how about the New theater?"

"That is still a thing of the future. But even now it seems to me that the wealthy men at the head of the New theater do not think very highly of the American stage, for I have not heard that they have appealed for information and advice to such players as Miss Julia Marlowe, Miss Viola Allen or E. H. Sothern or any others of our many players of great experience, who, I am sure, would be very happy to lay at their feet all the information they possess on the subject of the theater—knowledge, gained by experience that must simply be invaluable. So far as I know, no such consultations have been held, so it remains to be seen what the New theater is going to do for the American stage. I sincerely hope it will do much. There is no doubt that the stage needs it.

"Why, do you know that the occasional serious minded man you meet is rapidly losing interest in the theater? Just a short time ago I met an old friend, one of my schoolday chums. I happened to be playing in the city in which he lives, and we met in the street. After a moment's chat he said, most solemnly:

"'I am going to see you act tonight.'

"'Ah,' said I, 'this is an honor indeed.'

"My tone must have betrayed some sahcasm, for he added:

"'Seriously, old man, I did not mean to speak condescendingly, but I've not been to the theater for a year, as I cannot waste any time on the piffle and the vulgarity that holds the stage these days.'

Public Is to Blame.

"Now, I don't blame the managers," continued Mr. Lackaye, "for they treat the theater purely as a business proposition, and the only one to blame is the public itself. Then there is another complication, and that is the foreign element which is now so great a part of the population of New York. Theater managers must cater to that, too, which probably, in a measure, accounts for some of the things seen in Broadway playhouses. And I tell you there are some things on view at some of these houses that would not be tolerated fifty miles away from here—say in Plainfield, N. J.

"I'm not a prig or a prude, but I have wondered what topic of conversation must follow witnessing some of these 'shows.' I've wondered what train of ideas must be started by some of these 'exhibitions.'

"Now that you've cited the evil, Mr. Lackaye, have you thought out some scheme for reform?"

"Indeed I have. The remedy lies in a theater censorship. Not the censor appointed publicly, but the censorship in the home. It is absolutely inexplicable to me how a mother can give her daughter $4 and send her downtown to buy herself and her schoolgirl chum matinee seats for any theater that the daughter elects to patronize. Is the daughter allowed to purchase same daughter allowed to purchase and read any and all books? Is she allowed to look at any vulgar pictures? Hardly! All these are questioned, but the theater is not taken into consideration at all. Parents evidently do not take it seriously enough to give it any thought."

"And do you think any reform will ever correct these conditions?"

"Yes; they will be corrected by the public itself in time. I think possibly in another generation the masses will cease to have 'the bicycle eye,' gotten in hunting for the dollar, and when the public begins to give the theater serious consideration then there will arise a general dissatisfaction, and when the multitude grows dissatisfied a reform is bound to follow. Then let us hope, a lot of the piffle now holding the boards will be thrown in the theatrical discard, and good, serious plays will be given the respect and patronage they deserve.

"But at present the pdague is upon us. A showy, flashy production gets the audience of excitement mongers screaming with delight the first night, and they go out into the highways still screaming:

"'It's great! Go to see it.'

"So the success of that play is assured; but the more dignified audience that goes the first night of a simple, exquisite play is quite moderate in spreading the good news.

"'Oh, yes,' they say, 'it's charming.'

"And the result is that the news about the latter play spreads so slowly that the manager is usually compelled to take the play off before the real public ever gets interested enough to hear and know about it.

"You know," concluded Mr. Lackaye, "there's a saying that the emptier the head the harder the hands. That applies to theater audiences, too; and hard hands make an awful lot of noise when they are brought togcther in applause."

Came Near Choking to Death.

A little boy, the son of Chris D. Peterson, a well known resident of the village of Jacksonville, Iowa, had a sudden and violent attack of croup. Much thick stringy phlegm came up after giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, Mr. Peterson says: "I think he would have choked to death had we not given him this remedy." For sale by all druggists.

FROM THE MINES AND THE SMELTERS

BUTTE & ARIZONA COMPANY

Has Proposed Consolidation With the Ironwood & Arizona Development Company---Properties Are in the Huachuca Mts. and Adjoin Each Other.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 9.—The Butte & Arizona Mining company, owned principally by Butte men, has made a proposition to the stockholders of the Ironwood & Arizona Development company to purchase the entire assets of the latter company and assume its indebtedness. In return for the stock of the Ironwood company, the Butte & Arizona proposes to issue 150,000 shares of its treasury stock at the par value of $1 per share. This would make the basis of exchange of stock to the shareholders of the Ironwood & Arizona company, ten shares of Butte & Arizona to each full paid share of Ironwood & Arizona. The properties of the two companies join each other and the consolidation, it is said, would add materially to the working value of both companies. The properties lie in the Huachuca mountains, some fifteen miles from the railroad, the nearest point being Hereford, on the El Paso & Southwestern railway.

The Butte & Arizona company is still prosecuting development work, driving the tunnel or adit, on which it has been engaged for several years. The opening is now in about 3,500 feet, and has reached beyond a point where it has been expected the vein would be cut. So far only vein stringers have been encountered, and unless all calculations have gone, or the vein has disappeared entirely, the vein is likely to be cut at any time now. The adit gives a vertical depth on the vein of about 1,000 feet. At present the work is being done under contract at $12.50 per foot. The vein has a splendid outcrop, and the surface workings gave results that seemed to leave no doubt that a big vein and ore body would be found at depth. Fire destroyed the surface plant early in the year and operations were suspended for six weeks or two months, but were resumed about the first or last of August. The Butte & Arizona owns eleven patented claims and eight that are unpatented, beside

UTAH MINES HAD LEAN YEAR

Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 9.—Because of the general business depression throughout the country, and the low prices of the metals, Utah experienced a lean year in mining and smelting in 1908. Mining company dividends show a falling off of almost $2,500,000 for the year compared with the figures of 1907, and the value of the gross output is many millions under the high water wark of the preceding year. Here is the record of dividends for the year:

Bullion Beck	$ 80,000
Colorado Mining company	450,000
Mammoth	60,000
May Day	44,000
Puritan Mining company	2,500
Sioux Consolidated	126,716
Silver King Coalition	562,500
Uncle Sam Consolidated	100,000
*United States companies	2,770,500
Utah Copper company	702,500
Utah Consolidated	600,000
Utah Mine company	34,000
West Mountain Placer Co.	5,000
Total	$5,537,716
Paid in 1907	8,000,755
Decrease for 1908	$2,463,039

*On common and preferred stock.

Twelve of the twenty-five companies that paid dividends in 1907 are not represented in the foregoing list.

Lead—102,591,786 lbs at 4.199c	3,359,819
Silver—9,298,423 ozs at 53.236c	4,950,280
Gold—250,082 ozs at $20	5,001,640
Zinc—5,936,000 lbs at 4.681c	277,339

Compared with this total of $23,227,970 for 1908, the geological survey gives the value of the output for 1907 as $32,706,864, a decrease of $9,478,885, or 29 per cent. The price of silver in 1905 averaged 13 cents under the price of the previous year, and lead averaged practically 1 cent a pound less.

At the opening of the year the outlook for the future is bright. The mining industry weathered the financial storm in fine style. There were no failures. Even in the darkest days of the panic and depression there was no letup in the planning for the future. There was no relaxation in the effort to secure better smelter and transportation facilities. The completion of the Western Pacific from Salt Lake City westward through Nevada opened up a great stretch of mining country, and it is practically assured that a branch from this line will open up the rich mining country region of Deep Creek in the immediate future.

The Utah Copper company is preparing to build a branch line of its own to transport its ores from Bingham to its smelters, while hte Cole-Ryan-Amalgamated combination has announced its purpose to build a great smelter in Pine Canon, Toole county, west of this city. It has already started the work of connecting this smelter site with the San Pedro and the Rio Grande-Western Pacific with a view to treating not only the ores of the Utah Consolidated at Ruth, but also to entering into direct competition with all other smelting companies for the custom of trade of the region.

The Tintic Smelting company closes with three lead furnaces in commission, a copper furnace ready to start and another lead stack in course of construction. The United States Mining company is friendly to this enterprise.

F. Augustus Heinze and his associates have secured the smelting works at Milford with a view to placing them in commission early in the year.

THE PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT

Proof of Blanket Deposits at the Ray Consolidated Company's Properties Means Smelter and Employment of Two Thousand Men.

Douglas, Ariz., Jan. 9.—Provided the drill tests now under way on the properties of the Ray Consolidated Copper company in the Kelvin district of Pinal county prove satisfactory, that company will have at least 2,000 men in its employ by May 1. This is the latest reliable information from that section of Pinal county. Seven drilling outfits are now at work on the company's properties at Ray and Kelvin, the deepest being about 400 feet. The results of the drilling operations will be reported to the headquarters of the company in New York by Feb. 1. In case the great blanket deposits of that region prove as reported, arrangements will be made at once to commence the erection of the largest smelting plants in the United States.

Mining men familiar with this district of Pinal county assert that there is a greater range of mineralization there than in any district of the territory. The ore bodies are principally blanket deposits extending through the mountains many miles. In the great masses of low grade conglomerates are found many veins of ore sampling high in copper. Two hundred miners and mechanics are employed at Ray and 240 miners and mechanics at Kelvin. The high grade ores from the Ray mine are being piled on the dumps awaiting the completion of the smelter and the concentrates shipped to the Kelvin concentrating plant for treatment. The concentrating plant is running three shifts with a crew of sixty men. The Ray mine is connected with the Kelvin concentrating plant by a narrow gauge railroad.

The Ray Consolidated Copper company owns three large groups of mining claims in Kelvin and Ray. The consolidation of the three properties was recently consummated. The great blanket ore deposits assay small percentages in copper which will yield a handsome profit when operated on a large scale.

There is an ample supply of water for all reduction and domestic demands in the Gila river, which passes Kelvin.

RICH ORE COMES FROM SHAFT

Strike by Arizona & Michigan Company in Its Deepest Workings---Pronounced the Highest Grade Silicious Copper Camp in Arizona.

Benson, Ariz., Jan. 9.—Though the Arizona & Michigan Development company struck the second enrichment in its deepest workings over three weeks ago, and has been sinking in it ever since, its great import only began to dawn on the people of Johnson a few days ago, when attention was attracted by the rich ore being taken from the incline shaft.

After inspecting the great blocks of rich ore now being taken out, and examining the ore which was extracted previous to the late strike, it appears that the Arizona & Michigan Development company has penetrated the second enrichment of copper ore.

Ores from workings between this and the surface, while rich enough to be pronounced the highest grade silicious copper camp in Arizona, have more or less a leached appearance, showing that the action of the water, percolating slowly through them for centuries, has taken part of the copper in solution to lower depths; while the ore now taken out is not leached in appearance, but rich and lustrous in heavy copper sulphides, black, yellow and rainbow hued.

Ed Johnson, an old-timer in Johnson, who has watched the different mining operations of the district, said this was an important thing for the whole district. He said other mine owners had gophered around and taken ore from near the surface, but appeared afraid to go down deeper after more, lest they might expend more than they could get back.

The A. M. D. company has boldly gone on down, after reaching a depth where others had stopped, and now the courageous adventure has been rewarded by very tangible results which will encourage others who are able to do likewise.

The latest report is that the entire shaft is bottomed in ore of the second enrichment, and not only the bottom but the sides also.

No footwall or hanging wall is in sight, and as the formation dips about 40 degs., and the shaft follows the dip, its roof is toward the hanging wall, and this roof is now rich sulphide ore, just like the best of that being taken out, so that there is no telling what the extent of this ore body is.

Not only Johnson district, but the leading newspapers all over Southern Arizona are rejoicing over the news from Johnson.

AT THE LAKE COPPER MINES

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Keweenaw Copper company's activity in the Mandan mine is beginning to show results. Drifting is in progress and discloses pay ground at several points below the seventh level, but it is in the so-called North vein that the best showing is had. The general condition of the mine is much better than it was six months ago. The ground reserves have been materially added to, and more and better copper rock is exposed, but none of the rock is exceptionally rich in copper, and at best the Mandan mine is a low-grade proposition. Much of the rock is barren of copper, and, together with the exceedingly flat dip of the lode, presents a waste rock problem on the successful solution of which the future of the company on this lode would seem to depend. The stamp mill is operating steadily, and a small rock tonnage is being milled with apparently good results. The company is outputting around 45,000 pounds of fine copper monthly.

Hancock.

Hancock's big vertical shaft is sinking below the fourteenth level. The crosscut driving at the thirteenth level to connect the vertical shaft with the older ineline, or No. 1 shaft, is progressing at the rate of 200 feet monthly, and should afford the desired connection by April. The company is compelled to do a considerable amount of "dead work" in opening the mine for production, and only a limited amount of time and attention has been devoted to the creation of ground reserves, in consequence of which the mine is not opened up sufficiently to permit anything but a very limited production. There is no likelihood of a mill test in the early spring, as has been asserted. Mining Engineer Woodbridge of Duluth was a visitor underground recently. It is thought that his visit has some connection with the listing of the company's stock on the Boston exchange.

Winona.

The Winona Copper company continues to confine its operations to development work. The ground reserves have been materially increased, and a fair grade of copper rock is in evidence. Developments in the No. 3 shaft are especially encouraging. The mine is in good physical condition and sufficiently opened ahead to supply 1,000 tons of rock daily, should milling be resumed this summer, of which there is some talk but little likelihood. The electric hoist is regularly in service and working satisfactorily.

North Kearsarge.

The steel frame work of the shaft rockhouse under construction at the No. 4 shaft of the North Kearsarge mine, is up and ready for the sheathing. The surface plant at this shaft is being rushed to completion and is expected to be ready for duty in the spring. It will have capacity for handling upwards of 1,500 tons of rock daily.

Arcadian.

The Arcadian stockholders, in annual meeting, failed to take any action on the proposed reorganization, the necessary two-thirds stock representation not being present. The sale of the company's interest in section 16, where the discovery of what is believed to be the Baltic lode, was recently made, also failed of ratification for the same reasons. After re-electing the retiring directors, the meeting was adjourned until Feb. 25. No especial effort was made to secure proxies for the last meeting. The stock is widely scattered, being held by between 1,500 and 2,000 persons. The largest individual holding is 6,200 shares. Boston stockholders hold the largest interest. The company has an exploratory shaft 200 feet, sunk in the theoretical horizon of the Baltic lode. It is planned to further deepen this shaft to 500 feet and crosscut the formation at that depth in search of this lode as soon as the re-financing of the company can be accomplished.

Victoria.

Mining operations by the Victoria Copper Mining company were interrupted for several days owing to the premature explosion of several hundred pounds of giant powder stored underground. The shaft was partially wrecked, but has been repaired sufficiently to permit hoisting through it. No fatalities are reported. The water shortage has been overcome, and it is again possible to operate the hydraulic air compressor up to capacity required. Exploratory operations continue with rather better results.

Atlantic.

Atlantic has succeeded in disclosing new copper measures in its Baltic lode mine, but in neither case has the continuity of the copper ground been proven, nor are indications of permanency at all favorable. The crosscut driving at the nineteenth level has reached the lode, and drifting at that point is now in progress. On the fifteenth level, where copper rock was first encountered, several weeks ago, the drift has again encountered pay ground, after driving through barren rock. The ground at this point is not quite so badly shattered as was the case nearer the shaft, with which improved condition better results may be expected. The shaft is sinking steadily and should reach the twentieth level in a week or ten days. All rock taken from opening work is going directly into cars for shipment to the stamp mill, and a further mill test will be had as soon as a sufficient tonnage has accumulated.

Copper Range.

Exploratory operations in the Globe shaft by the Copper Range Consolidated company continue very disappointing, and the mine will very likely be abandoned with the expiration, next May, of the option under which the property is held. The shaft is 1,000 feet deep, at which depth considerable drifting has been done. Nearly $500,000 has been spent in an endeavor to make a mine on this property.

OUTPUT OF THE BUTTE MINES

Figures for Last Year Show Increase of Nearly 30,000,000 Pounds of Copper Over 1907—Recovering From the Scare Over President's Threat to Close the Smelters.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The mines of the Butte district produced 269,265,640 pounds of copper in 1908, against 240,887,516 in 1907. Both years were exceptional for the misfortunes under which the mining suffered. In 1907 was witnessed the great panic and demoralization of the copper industry, from which the Montana mines were but slightly recovering, after six months of practical suspension, or great curtailment, when the disastrous floods last June again interrupted operations and caused damage from which there was not a complete recovery until late in the fall. Only the Boston & Montana and Original companies operated at all during the first two months of the year, and other companies operated only partially later for some time. The output of the various companies for the two years was as follows:

Anaconda	64,154,636	95,997,440
Butte & Boston	9,209,650	15,783,000
Washoe	5,438,429	12,700,000
Parrott more than $50,-	5,403,010	9,650,000
Trenton	6,794,475	15,398,400
North Butte	20,531,240	37,500,000
Butte Coalition	24,971,800	22,113,000
Original	17,296,940	17,000,000
Pittsburg & Montana	4,785,090	4,753,500
Miscellaneous	9,345,000	20,323,125
Totals	240,887,516	342,688,800

The output of the North Butte and Coalition mines for each month in 1908 was as follows:

	North Butte.	Coalition.
January	480,000	.....
February	450,000	.....
March	2,453,000	992,000
April	2,830,000	2,237,000

Recovering From Scare.

Montana communities are recovering from the scare given them by the threat from Washington to close the Montana smelters and mines because of damage done by the smelter smoke to forest reserves, and assurances have been made that no precipitate action will be taken. Reports from Washington are that conditions had been greatly misrepresented to the president by the parties interested in having action taken against the Amalgamated company. The wide interest and agitation the matter created is evidenced by the letter sent to President Roosevelt by Bishop L. R. Brewer of the Episcopal diocese of Montana. After recounting the disaster that would result by a closing of the Washoe smelter and the Butte mines, the bishop says he has been in Montana twenty-five years and was here before they were any smelters, and knows of his personal knowledge that little harm has been done by smelter smoke to the forests. He declares that all the timber within a radius of twenty miles of the Washoe smelter can not possibly be worth more than $50,000. By far the larger portion of the timber that existed twenty years ago has been cut off for wood, fencing and lumber. In the city of Anaconda, within a few miles of the smelter, beautiful trees, plants, grass and flowers are now flourishing, all of which has come from the efforts of the mining and smelting companies to abolish the smoke evil. The state board of land commissioners has also sent similar resolutions to the president, declaring that very little damage is now being done to timber. For five years or more the Amalgamated Copper company has had in its employ some of the most noted and high-salaried experts in the world, who have been doing nothing but traveling over the world studying similar conditions in other smelting places and devising means for improving conditions and abolishing the poisonous gases, and all improvements that have been made by the Amalgamated company were made on their suggestions. The officers of the company even asked the government experts, who came to Montana to investigate matters, to suggest a remedy, but the only thing the high-salaried government experts could offer was to convert the poisonous product into sulphuric acid and build a pipe line to the Pacific ocean, dumping the product into the sea. The suggestion was made in sincerity. "Why, even if that could be done the product would pollute the entire Pacific ocean," said a smelterman.

Pittsburg & Montana.

The Pittsburg & Montana company is now mining between 500 and 400 tons of ore per day and is engaged in enlarging the smelter by the addition of another blast furnace with a capacity of 200 tons. The smelter has been entirely rebuilt and not a vestige of the old, so-called "Baggaley process" machinery is left. The smelter now is of the ordinary kind and the company is trying to forget its experiments of the Baggaley process inventor. The new concentrating mill, built during the past summer, has a capacity of 250 tons and is working very satisfactorily. The Pittsmont mine is in good shape, and although there has been no development work done during the past year there is more ore in sight now than there was a year ago, the reserves being enlarged in the course of mining. Mining is chiefly confined to two large ore bodies at nearly opposite limits of the property, one on the east end and the other on the west end. These ore bodies run from six to thirty-five feet in width. The ground between them is practically now unexplored. The mining is done on the Soo, 1,000 and 1,200 levels. From the latter two winzes have been sunk 300 feet and they are in good ore, but as there is plenty of ore on the levels above, Manager Rohn concluded it advisable to confine mining to the latter. The company, which was badly managed from the be-

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON MINES

Great Developments on the Eastern Portion of the Mesaba, in the Vicinity of Aurora and Biwabik—Large Deposits in the Territory Adjacent to Lake Embarrass.

Developments in the eastern portion of the Mesaba range the past year or two have been of much importance. Particularly has this been the case in the vicinity of Biwabik and Aurora. Ore has been found in considerably greater quantity than was thought likely, and it has been found in areas which some geologists and mining men had pronounced practically barren in mineral wealth. Probably the fact that a heavy overburden of sand is characteristic of much of the field, has served to discredit the region and retard exploratory work, but there is no question now of the standing of the district from a mineral standpoint, or that a very large source of ore supply has been added to the known reserves of the range. More especially is this true of the territory adjacent to Lake Embarrass, where the deposits amount to many millions of tons.

From the eastern Mesaba, is coming the only ore that is being forwarded from the range this winter. These shipments are being made from the Adriatic mine of Joseph Sellwood of Duluth, and are consigned to the Zenith furnace at West Duluth. The Adriatic is an underground property, in section 30, 59-14, and excepting the Mayas open pit it is the easternmost of all the producers on the range. It is six miles northeast of Aurora. No other mine in Minnesota has been shipping since the recent close of navigation on the Great Lakes. In sections 25 and 26, 59-15, midway between the Adriatic and Aurora, is the Steel corporation's Stephens mine, which has been inactive for the past two seasons. The Stephens was opened in 1902, and made its initial shipment of 90,000 tons in 1903, after which it was idle until 1905, when it sent out 365,000 tons. Since 1905, the Stephens has not been on the producing list. It is an open pit property, and has a considerable body of ore.

Close to the north of Aurora, in section 3, 58-15, is Corrigan, McKinney & Co.'s St. James mine, which has been idle since a year ago last September, and which, it is hoped, will be restored to the active list this year. The St. James is an underground property. Its ore body is of large extent and had just been opened for production when work was suspended and the pumps were taken out. It is understood that Corrigan, McKinney & Co. have approximately $1,000,000 invested in the property. In the vicinity of the St. James are the Meadow mine of the Jones & Laughlin Steel company of Pittsburg, the Miller mine of the Pitt Mining company of Steubenville, Ohio, and the Mohawk mine of Pickands, Mather & Co. of Cleveland. All are underground propositions.

The Biwabik Mine.

No work is in progress at the Biwabik mine at Biwabik, this winter. This is a large open pit property, in the control of which Eastern furnace interests and the Steel corporation are jointly associated. It is well opened ahead, and is in condition to ship upwards of 2,000,000 tons a season. However, it is the policy to produce only in accordance with the furnace needs of the associated interests, and for that reason operations have not been conducted at maximum capacity for a number of years. The Biwabik produces a high grade of Bessemer. It has shipped more than 8,500,000 tons of ore since the initial work of opening the mine was started in 1901, and it is estimated that there are still 20,000,000 tons remaining.

The Biwabik has the distinction of being the first property on the Mesaba at which the utility of the steam shovel in stripping the overburden and mining the ore was demonstrated, and the success met with in this particular at that mine led to the adoption of the machine on the range generally. The Biwabik at that time was in the hands of John T. Jones, the well known mining man and metallurgist of Iron Mountain, Mich., and the late Peter L. Kimberly of Sharon, Pa., and Chicago, and it was Mr. Jones who conceived the idea of employing the steam shovel in the manner stated, although to an extent the machine had previously been used on the Gogebic range. The task of getting the ponderous apparatus to the Biwabik was a most difficult one, the road over which the shovel was taken from Mesaba station being almost impassable for the entire distance of fourteen miles, but it was finally accomplished. The Biwabik made its first shipment in 1903.

The New York State Steel company's Kellogg mine, a short distance south of Biwabik and close to the western shore of Lake Embarrass, is being wrought with vigor and it is not unlikely that as much as half a million tons of ore will be shipped during the season opening in April. The Kellogg is an underground property. As is usually the case in the Lake Embarrass field, there was considerable

ORE FROM GREENE-CANANEA

Ishpeming, Mich., Jan. 9.—A consignment of copper ore from the property of the Greene-Cananea Mining company of Mexico has arrived at Iron Mountain for treatment in the newly invented blast furnace of John T. Jones. The experiment is one fraught with very great importance, and the outcome will be awaited with interest by metallurgists the continent over.

It is the contention of Mr. Jones that low grade copper ores can be treated at the furnace even more successfully and at lower cost than low grade iron ores. Should this prove the case, the field of operations will be vastly extended and the value of the invention increased many fold. There are extensive fields of low grade copper deposits throughout the Southeast—ores containing chemical contents which present methods of treatment are unable to successfully or economically extract—which will become valuable should the treatment of the Greene-Cananea product prove all that is anticipated. Present costly methods of smelting copper would be reduced more than 50 per cent.

The process devised by Mr. Jones is so revolutionary that the old blast furnace expert is reluctant to admit the success of the invention. However, every test made thus far with iron ore—the only material yet experimented with—has been attended with entire success, and the inventor and his associates have no doubt of the great value of the new method of extracting the metallic content of mineralized rock. It is expected that the entire plant will be in readiness early next month. The blast furnace itself has been completed for some time, and there is now being provided the auxiliary balling furnace, such as has been used in iron manufacture for a number of years past. The balling furnace will treat the product of the blast furnace, already satisfactorily tested. This product is known as "sponge iron." The product of the balling furnace will be known as "muck balls." These balls will weigh from 400 pounds to one ton each and will, in turn, be treated in the ordinary squeezer, in which process they will be converted into bars or other forms as desired. A temporary shelter has been provided for the works, but eventually, and as soon as the structure can be erected conveniently,

SWANSEA MAY RIVAL BISBEE

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 9.—Following the report of two important strikes on the Morro and Clara mines of the Clara Consolidated, orders have been issued from the headquarters in Los Angeles, for a survey and plans for a narrow-gauge railroad to connect these properties with the Signal mine at Swansea, Ariz., where the Clara Consolidated Smelter is being erected. Engineer McKinney, who has recently become associated with the Mitchell ventures in Western Arizona, is in charge of the work. Immediately after the survey for the new railroad line, the work of construction will begin.

Developments in that territory have been so rapid, and big ore bodies have been encountered with such frequency, that Swansea gives promise of becoming the center of another Arizona mining district that may even surpass Bisbee in copper production, and at the same time open some large gold mines.

While prospecting the Morro group this week Supt. Larry Brown struck a vein parallel to that which has furnished several shipments of commercial ore, and the new find has opened to six feet, carrying the lowest assay 7½ per cent copper and $31 in gold per ton. Considering that 2 per cent copper can be treated at a profit, the find is considered an exceptionally good one.

On the Clara mine, a short distance northeast, another shaft, started on a vein heretofore not explored, has opened a body of similar ore than shows for the entire width of the shaft.

Harry Mitchell, brother of Fred and George Mitchell, of the Consolidated, will arrive at the mine this week with more men to begin extensive development on both the Morro and Clara.

To date some 2,500,000 tons of copper-gold ore has been blocked out ready for mining and smelting, and the new field gives promise of adding an immense tonnage to this already remarkable result.

It is the intention of the Consolidated to have several hundred men at work within the next few months. These, together with the force that will be employed on the new Bousefield-Swansea spur from the A. & C. railroad, and that employed on the company's narrow-guage road, will make more than 1,000 men who will find employment in connection with George Mitchell's big operations in Western Yuma county.

Mitchell has solved the fuel problem by using slag in steam generation. Recently a patent was secured on a specially constructed boiler. The slag from the furnaces is introduced automatically, after it has done its work of steam generation. This boiler is now in use at the Cananea mine in Mexico, and is a success.

BIG DEAL IS CONSUMMATED

Yawkey Interests of New York and Detroit Purchase the Treasury Stock of the Bisbee Extension Company and Work Resumed.

Bisbee, Ariz., Jan. 9.—Word has been received here telling of the successful consummation of the largest and most important mining deal affecting the Warren district in several years, throught which the control of the Bisbee Extension company passes to Detroit and New York interests headed by W. A. Yawkey, the millionaire lumberman, who recently visited the property of the company in this district. The deal was made by William Clute and Fritz Harrington of this city, who promoted the company two years ago. News of the deal when received here caused considerable excitement among the stockholders of the Bisbee Extension, and the absence of details was fully made up by the immediate commencement of activity by the local officials of the company. Supt. Long received word to resume work at once, and two shifts were put to work at the property, which is about eight miles west of the city. It is understood that another shift will be added as soon as the miners can be obtained.

The shaft, which is now 400 feet deep, will be pushed further down and two drifts will be started from the present low level. In addition to miners, a force of surface workers has also been put on.

Although details are lacking, it is understood from a reliable source that the Yawkey interests are taking over the treasury stock of the company, none of the officials disposing of his stock, and all of the acquired stock will be kept in escrow by the new owners. The price is said to be $250,000, and it is also understood that this entire amount will be placed at the disposal of the management to conduct development work.

An excellent feature of the deal is that there will be an Eastern market for the staock, which is largely held in this city and vicinity, as it will be traded in on the Boston and other curb markets.

Mr. Yawkey and several of his associates, including his mining expert, F. R. Ross, were in Bisbee the last week of November, and spent several days here. About two weeks ago Messrs. Clute and Harrington left for Detroit to conclude the deal and the first news of its consummation was received from them.

The property has been reported upon favorably by every engineer who has visited it, and many believe that it will in time become one of the big copper producers of the Southwest.

IT HAS UNUSUAL FEATURES

Rich Mine Opened by Peavine Mountain Tunnel Company Near Reno---Lodi Mines Company Building Smelter With 100-Ton Capacity.

Reno, Nev., Jan. 9.—Twelve miles northwest of this place the Peavine Mountain Tunnel company is developing a mine with unusual features. A surface cut of 112 feet along the vein has been made, twelve feet deep between the walls, which are eight feet apart. From this the company has shipped several carloads of ore running from $50 to $60 to the ton, while from a shaft on the property 260 feet deep $100,000 worth of ore has been taken. One assay showed $5,940 in gold to the ton, 153 ounces of silver and 2.5 per cent copper. Another class of ore, which is 40 per cent iron, assayed 280 ounces in silver, $4.80 in gold and 25 per cent copper. Rich streaks run through the entire ore body.

Ely, Nev., Jan. 9.—The Steptoe reduction works of the Cumberland-Ely and Nevada Consolidated are operating better than at any time since the opening. The production for December will pass the 3,000,000 pound mark and the mines are keeping far in advance of the reduction works. At the Cumberland-Ely the output of ore is entirely satisfactory, while development work is going forward.

The Giroux management is pleased with the workings of its mill. It is at present handling ore at the rate of 750 tons a month. It is estimated that the output here should be 400,000 pounds of copper each month. Added to the value of the copper is about $6 in gold in each ton of concentrates.

A number of properties that were closed down at the time of the panic are reopening.

Luning, Nev., Jan. 9.—Bob is the name of a new town just laid out at the Lodi mine, forty miles from here, in Nye county. The Lodi Mines company is preparing to operate on a large scale. It is building a smelter and is laying a pipe line to convey water from the south side of Lodi Valley to the mine and town. The smelting plant will have a capacity of 100 tons a day. It will be in operation in ninety days. The Lodi company has developed a large ore reserve.

Mazuma, Nev., Jan. 9.—The custom mill under construction between this place and Vernon will be ready for business in February. It will combine every ore saving, sampling and milling improvement to date. The plan of the company is to buy, mill and ship ores, paying cash for them.

ST. JEAN BAPTISTE CHURCH.

A remarkable thing about Duluth is the rapid growth of Catholicity here. The city has developed at a surprising rate, and the Catholic church has kept pace with this development.

In 1870 there were only about two dozen families of this denomination in Duluth and they had no regular place of worship. Now the number of Catholic families here run into the thousands, and $800,000 will just about cover the cost of property belonging to this church in the Zenith City.

In the early days French missionaries among the Indians held services in Duluth for the Catholic settlers. In 1866 people of this religion attended services held under the direction of a visiting priest, and in 1870 Father Chebul of Superior began making regular visits here for the purpose of conducting services. The same year a movement was started to build a chapel.

The movement was crowned with success and a frame structure, the first Catholic church in Duluth, was erected on the site of the present cathedral. Rev. Father John Chebul, a missionary priest of Austrian birth, was then ministering to the spiritual wants of the Catholics at the Head of the Lakes, visiting Duluth, Bayfield, La Pointe, Superior and all the Indian reservations along the shore of the lake. He made his headquarters at Superior. He was obliged to traverse great distances on foot, in winter and summer alike, and must have suffered many hardships.

In January, 1871, Father Chebul was succeeded by Father G. Keller, a German priest, who remained nearly three years. He built a home here consisting of three rooms. Rev. J. B. M. Genin, O. M. I., arrived in January, 1873 and began at once to make improvements in the church. He secured a bell, had new altars built, and otherwise provided improvements. He also built a larger residence.

Father Genin was succeeded by Father Christopher Murphy, in October, 1882, and he remained in Duluth until 1885, when he was succeeded by Rev G. J. Goebel, who continued in Duluth. Duluth was created an episcopal see.

The arrival of Bishop James McGolrick on the evening of June 9, 1890, on a special train with a delegation from Minneapolis, marked a new epoch in Catholicity in Duluth. He was installed by Archbishop Ireland.

When Bishop McGolrick took hold of the Duluth diocese there were few parishes and priests in it. The principal parish, of course, was in Duluth. The diocese was formerly a part of the vicarate of St. Cloud, under the jurisdiction of the Rt. Rev. R. Seidenbusch, D.D. At the time of its erection there was a Catholic population of about 22,000. There were twenty priests in all, fifteen diocesan and five regulars.

The only hospital in the diocese was located at Duluth and there were three parochial schools here. There were four Catholic churches here when Bishop McGolrick came, the Pro-cathedral, St. Mary's, St. John's and St. Clement's.

The Pro-cathedral was a plain, wooden structure, poorly furnished, but with a beautiful altar. The building was heated by stoves. The Pro-cathedral, together with the episcopal residence, was destroyed by fire July 2, 1892, and with the exception of some books and furniture, the entire property was destroyed. The association hall, previously built, served advantageously as a temporary church, and was promptly fitted up for service the Sunday following the fire.

The cornerstone for the new cathedral was laid on July 15, 1894, and the cathedral was dedicated, with beautiful and impressive ceremonies, July 26, 1896. During the summer of 1903, Catholic association hall was removed and replaced by the hall of the new cathedral school.

The Catholic church has several very fine buildings in Duluth, but one of the finest religious structures at the Head of the Lakes is the Sacder Heart cathedral. It is attractive architecturally, and is built of pressed brick, with a foundation of stone. The commodious residence adjoining, for the use of the reverend fathers, is of similar material.

The cathedral school, completed in August, 1904, is situated just across the street from the cathedral. The school, including furnishings, cost $60,000. With the cathedral and other buildings in the group, it represents a valuation of about $200,000.

The accompanying photographs show some of the other Catholic buildings in Duluth. The convent at Woodland, one of the most beautiful and costly structures of the kind in the state, is only now being completed. It would be considered an ornament to any city. All the buildings pictured have been built since Bishop McGolrick came to Duluth.

The first Catholic school was started in Duluth in 1880. A carriage shop was converted into a school, with five class rooms and several dwelling rooms for the sisters. January 17, 1880, school opened, with an attendance of 153 pupils and five teachers. The population of the town was then 3,643.

The following year the sisters rented a dwelling, in which they opened a select school, with music classes, for the girls, and an attendance of thirty-two. Both schools were well attended till the end of the school year in June, 1882. The school remained closed for nearly a year, because of the poor condition of the building, but in 1883 the sisters returned and rented a dwelling house for themselves, and secured a vacated public school building, all furnished, and standing on the present site of the high school. From that time on different buildings were occupied, until the completion of the present Sacred Heart school.

In 1897 St. Mary's hospital, costing more than $100,000, was built, upon a basement built in 1893. This hospital has a capacity of 160 patients, and is up-to-date and modern in every detail.

The St. James church, West Duluth, and the Polish Catholic church in the West end, are both fine buildings, only completed within the last few years. The St. James' orphanage is doing good work, and is being conducted in a most praiseworthy manner.

The Catholic churches, missions and schools of Duluth, inside the city limits, are at present as follows:

Cathedral of the Sacred Heart, school, St. Thomas Aquinas.

St. Anthony de Padua (German), and school.

St. Clement's and school.

St. James.

St. John the Baptist (French) and school.

St. Mary's Star of the Sea (Polish) and school.

St. Peter and Paul's (Polish) and school.

St. Peter's (Italian).

CONFIDENCE ON A FORMER BASIS

Dun's Weekly Review Show Satisfactory Progress in Business.

New York, Jan. 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Credit and confidence are again established on a firmer basis at the opening of the new year than at any time in the past fifteen months. Progress is steady and naturally slow, but is going along very safe and satisfactory lines. The statement of commercial failures issued this week clearly shows a gradual wearing away of the effect of the financial pressure of the early months of last year, and this necessarily improved underlying conditions. While conservatism still characterizes operations in many markets, the development is along safe lines. Changes in prices this week are not significant, but generally in the direction of firmness; employment in mills and factories is steadily maintained and advanced, with no disposition to lower wage scales previously prevailing, which will constantly improve the purchasing power of the people and add to consumptive demand.

Iron and steel mills continue well occupied on business previously booked, and new orders are constantly being placed, some of them for a considerable quantity. Some large sales of pig iron are noted this week, and a higher demand is expected as the year advances. Additional work is noted in structural mills, but increased orders are expected when spring building begins. Additional open hearth furnaces have been put in operation.

The renewed activity in dry goods trade is noted, some buyers being disposed to place orders for spot goods and for future delivery who were disinclined to operate a few weeks ago. The export market is very quiet and no improvement from the Chinese quarter is expected until the advent of the Chinese new year.

In woolens much will be determined in the market which opens next week. There are some inquiries for yarns, but buyers defer operations. Woolens and worsted yarns are strong, but trading is limited.

The easier tendency in hides is due to the seasonable deterioration of the present take-off and not apparently to any inherent weakness in the market. Holders generally are firm. There is tendency to firmness in the foreign markets. Leather continued dull, but prices of most descriptions are firm in anticipation of a renewal of the demand after the middle of the month. Shoe factories in New England have larger reserve orders and current business is quite satisfactory.

REPORT OF HARBOR EXPERT

Copies of Statement of English Commissioner Received in Duluth.

T. W. Wahl has received from the Chicago harbor commission a copy of the report made by J. Paul Goode, after visiting the great seaports of Europe. This commission examined the Duluth harbor last September.

The report is very interesting from a great many points of view, and especially to Duluthians, because this is acknowledged to be the greatest harbor in the world.

It shows the great growth of cities where nature has favored them with good harbor facilities, and a very wonderful example of what live men and money can do in Manchester, England.

Here a seaport was created to order by digging a channel 290 to 370 feet in width at the top, and 120 to 170 feet at the bottom, and 26 feet deep for a distance of 35½ miles from the sea.

This stupendous undertaking was accomplished after an expenditure of $85,000,000.

Chicago has had experts examine and make reports of all the harbors of this country as well as Europe, and is planning on expending $8,000,000 on its harbor.

THE HERALD'S HUMANE CORNER

Conducted by T. E. GRAE.

To argue the case of the marsh hawk is about as unpopular as to argue the case of a notorious criminal at the bar. Public sympathy is against him. Most of us were taught during childhood to fight the hawk, "Because he kills chickens." None of us were taught nor thought that the hawk was of any special value to anyone. No one tried to find out if the hawk lived on anything but chickens. The first twenty-eight years of my life were spent on the farm, and if the hawks never got anything else to eat than chickens, there would not be a live hawk in that neighborhood for we never lost a chicken, nor did we hear of anyone else losing one, from a hawk.

William Dutcher tells us that this hawk is known by three names, each of which relates to a special characteristic of the bird: Marsh hawk, because it is found about marshes, or prairies; mouse hawk, from its fondness for these small but destructive vermin; and harrier, from its habit of continually hunting or ravaging the houses of small mammals. It is one of the most useful and valuable of all the hawks, and the agriculturist should, under no circumstances ever permit one to be killed on his premises. No person can fail to recognize the marsh hawk on sight, from its very peculiar, slow, wing-beats, its proximity to the ground either in marsh or meadow; its long wings and tail, and especially the large white patch at the base of the tail above. There is certainly no excuse for killing the marsh hawk because of mistaken identity. All of the data regarding the food of this hawk show that it lives very largely upon a class of rodents, that do the farmers and fruit growers of the country incalculable damage in destroying forage crops, and especially in eating the bark from young orchard trees and thus killing them. At a recent meeting of horticulturists in New Jersey, one of the members stated that during the past winter, owing to the deep snow, mice and rabbits had damaged his orchards to the extent of $2,000.

Only fourteen of our states give protection to hawks, although scientific research shows them to be immensely valuable aids in killing rodents. Poisons cost the farmer money, besides labor in distributing, and then do good only if the rodent eats the bait. On the other hand, the mash hawk is always hungry, and during the long hours of daylight is incessantly coursing back and forth hunting for food. He works continuously without pay, and deserves legal protection as well as the care of every person who tills the soil.

CALUMET CABLES MONEY.

Sends More Than $1,000 to Earthquake Sufferers.

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Italian relief committee of Calumet today cabled to the Banca Commerciale Italiana the sum of 5,160 lires, equivalent in American money to a little over $1,000, for the earthquake sufferers in Southern Italy. The money is consigned to the care of the Red Cross society, which is handling all relief monies sent from the United States. This is Calumet's first direct donation to the survivors and it augurs well for what will be done. From time to time, it is hoped to send additional sums. It is believed that Calumet will respond nobly to the appeal for help, and that it will be one of the foremost cities of Michigan in amount of its donations. The subscriptions are coming in fast and in substantial sums.

The Italians are very grateful for the contributions being received.

AN UNFORTUNATE DECISION.

The decision of the supreme court upholding the so-called "wide open" tax amendment to the Constitution is a most unfortunate decision for the state of Minnesota, for it makes the machinery of the law to be greater than the people.

There are few, if any, who have considered the matter who will contend that the people of Minnesota adopted by their votes the amendment to the Constitution which the supreme court now upholds. The mistake by which the tax amendment and the good roads amendment were confused upon the ballot and upon the tally sheets is a matter of record; the errors made by the judges of the different election precincts in recording the votes for and against the two amendments is also a matter of record, while the recount of the state has shown in black and white that the tax amendment did not receive a majority of the votes cast at the election of 1906. By a technicality the supreme court thrusts upon the people of Minnesota a law which they refused to enact and which they have twice by their ballots declared they do not want.

The courts are established that justice may be done, but in this case the courts, by the means of the technical rules of legal interpretation, have been made to do injustice. But this is not the most unfortunate phase of the situation. The decision, whatever may be the purity of motives back of it, and in the purity of the motives of the members of the court The Herald has complete confidence—the decision is fair notice to the political trickster that what he cannot gain by fair means in Minnesota he may possibly get by sharp practice. Where did the confusion of the two amendments arise? Somewhere in the offices of the state which have charge of the preparation and approval of the form of the ballots and the tally sheets or in the printing office where the ballots and the blanks were printed. Doubtless it was purely a mistake and not an intentional confusion with the clever purpose of causing the voters to say one thing when they meant another. But in either event it caused them to do just that thing. Besides it confused those who recorded the votes and caused them to register the votes differently from the way in which they were cast. If a mistake or a trick can amend the Constitution, what is to prevent some unscrupulous official or employe from again thwarting the will of the people in this same manner? If a mistake or a trick can so easily accomplish an end, what is to prevent a conspiracy to gain some coveted thing in exactly the same manner? It is unfortunate, indeed, when the courts which the people have established to give them justice are the means by which injustice is upheld.

While The Herald deplores the decision as unfortunate in that it forces the state to accept that which it has twice rejected and in that it makes organic law by lawyers' rules instead of by the votes of the people, it does not greatly fear the uses to which the amendment may be put as against the interests of the state. The Herald has faith in the ultimate wisdom and justice of the people of the state and of the representatives whom they elect to make laws for them. By the decision of the court the legislature is given larger powers than the people of Minnesota were willing it should have, a fact which, of itself, must cause every lawmaker to consider well how he uses those powers.

QUALIFICATION FOR MARRIAGE.

A Chicago clergyman has opened up an interesting subject for discussion by the statement that the ability to cook is the highest qualification for marriage. Of course he means that the wife should know how to cook; the husband will do well if he knows how to appreciate and how to make the effort for good food worth while by yielding a timely word of praise at frequent intervals.

From the purely practical viewpoint there is something to be said for this opinion, but like many other good ideas it is not to be taken too literally. Certainly nobody should go so far as to say that cooking is the only qualification. Cooking is of vast importance, of course, because bad cooking leads to indigestion, and indigestion to a horde of ills not the least of which are bad temper and irritability. Many an unhappy wife who complains to herself of a bad temper and irritability of her husband is herself at fault, if she did but know it. Her lack of discrimination in the selection of foods and in their preparation has ruined her husband's stomach, and that indignant organ has run riot through his system, so to speak, and soured his disposition.

Bad food badly cooked is capable of turning into a grouchy old curmudgeon the sweetest soul that ever lived. When it is considered, therefore, how large a part good cooking has in the maintenance of harmonious marital relationship, even though it may often be unsuspected, there really is a good deal to be said for the Chicago clergyman's theory. And of course it is just as true of wives who are able to employ others to do the cooking as it is of wives who do their own cooking, because the wife who knows how to cook will know how to hire good cooks and keep them, and the wife who knows nothing of cooking will surely have trouble with her cooks.

Of course this interesting Chicago preacher does not hold the ability to cook to be the only qualifications. He puts its proportion at 75 per cent, and he adds physical beauty at 20 per cent and taste in dress 5 per cent. It is not so easy to agree with him as to these proportions as it is to agree with him as to his main conclusions. Physical beauty is to be considered of course, but it is also to be remembered that it doesn't last, while the ability to cook well and the taste in dress are very likely to last.

But the Chicago clergyman, after all, has left out a great deal. Why in considering physical beauty he should have left spiritual beauty out of consideration, we cannot imagine. A woman might be an excellent cook, might be beautiful, and might have extraordinarily good taste in dress, and still be thoroughly undesirable as a wife; yet these qualities exhaust his requirements. Such a woman might have a bitter and jealous and peevish disposition, and these faults would more than outweigh all her comeliness and skill in cooking. She might lack intelligence, too, and still be beautiful and tasteful and know how to cook; though it is extremely improbable that an unintelligent woman would know how to cook. Then, too, some women will say that a wife who is 75 per cent cook is not likely long to remain 20 per cent beautiful.

These qualifications are all very well and good, but when they are vaunted so highly as to exclude consideration of amiability, kindliness, charity, intelligence, sweetness of disposition, and many other qualities that make for beauty much finer, much higher and much more lasting than physical beauty, their champion appears short-sighted, if not rather absurd.

DISTRUSTFUL WITH REASON.

Representative James A. Tawney of the First district of Minnesota, writing to the editor of the Review of Reviews, complains that the ways and means committee of the house, which has charge of the investigation upon which the bill for the revision of the tariff will be based, is being greatly embarrassed by the distrustful attitude of the country toward the committee. He speaks in particular of the "unwarranted newspaper agitation" which he asserts has been destroying among the people "that confidence which is absolutely essential to carrying out in spirit as well as in letter, the declaration of the Republican party in favor of tariff revision."

That the distrust complained of by Mr. Tawney does exist is true, that it has been encouraged by the newspapers is likewise true, and that it embarrasses the committee in its work is certain. But in view of the attitude taken by the Republican party, that all these things should be so, is inevitable. With the house of representatives completely under the thumb of a man who frankly confesses himself to sympathize first of all with the interests which oppose tariff revision, with a chairman of the ways and means committee who is notoriously a standpatter, with the ranking membership of that committee reluctantly and tardily avowing themselves for tariff revision because they feared they might not otherwise be re-elected, with big business enterprises spending money and time to surround the committee with an atmosphere hostile to revision and with the consumer scarcely represented at all at the hearings—with all these reasons is it any wonder that the people are uneasy for the fate of revision?

The wonder is that the country is so patient. Here and there an ultra partisan newspaper has been too violent in its accusations, perhaps; but upon the whole the country has been, and is, willing to give the Republican party and its ways and means committee time to work out a fair performance of its promise. The country is distrustful, for it has reason to be, but it is hopeful, and it is waiting with more patience than the Republican party has any right to expect.

The fact is we are a long suffering and a much forgiving people and we are willing to let bygones be bygones if the congress will now give us the promised revision. Mr. Tawney's point is well taken, that confidence is necessary if the ways and means committee is to work out a tariff bill that shall materially reduce rates and shall yet be able to command enough votes to pass. The committee must be pretty thoroughly agreed upon its bill if it hopes to get it through the house. If the committee can come to a substantial unanimity in the support of a bill for revision, the chances are fair that it will not be compromised to death on the floor of the house. But if by reason of bickerings, by charges of false motives, by irritation caused by unwarranted distrust of its purposes, the committee goes to the house hopelessly divided as to its belief in the bill it reports, the resulting tariff law will not be of a character to afford the country much relief.

It is such considerations as these that has caused the country to be so marvelously patient. It cannot help its feelings of distrust but it keeps them as much as possible in the background and holds to the hope that the promises of revision will be redeemed, with a determination that if they are not redeemed it will hold those responsible strictly to account.

SUPPRESSING USEFUL PATENTS.

It is interesting, and slightly encouraging, to note that the project of passing a law against the suppressing of useful patents is being discussed again.

Of course there ought to be such a law, but there is an immense influence against its passage, and the prospect of getting it is not very good.

A man achieves an invention, one that greatly simplifies and cheapens the process of making something that is in wide and necessary use. As a recognition of this achievement, the people, through the patent office, give him the exclusive right to the manufacture of that article for a definite period. This is fair enough, so far. The inventor has accomplished something that is, or should be, of great benefit to the people, and the people reward him by giving him a monopoly in the sale of his invention for seventeen years.

But suppose the inventor isn't financially able to manufacture his device. He goes to a manufacturer already engaged in that line, and sells him his patent. If he is firm and wise, he will make such an arrangement as to compel the buyer to put the invention to use, and to pay him royalties on its sales. But if he isn't wise or firm, or if he is in desperate need, as inventors are often likely to be, he will sell outright, often for a song.

Suppose, then, that the manufacturer sits down and thinks it over. He has a large plant equipped for the manufacture of this article, and it will cost a lot of money to make it over so it will be capable of making the new device. He comes to the conclusion that it would be cheaper to stow that invention away in his vault, and keep on in the old way.

Then the people, who have given this monopoly in good faith, are deprived of a benefit to which they are properly entitled. Instead of getting the article involved cheaper and better than before, they are forced to put up with the old device and the old prices. They have given a monopoly, and have got nothing back. If they hadn't given the monopoly, anybody could make use of the device.

All that is proposed is a law compelling inventors who get patents, or their assigns, to put their devices to use within a reasonable time. If they don't put them to use, the patent would lapse, and somebody that would put it to use can take up the device.

That seems fair enough. The people oughtn't to be giving things away all the time without getting a fair return. When they give a man a monopoly on an invention that would be of great public benefit, and that invention is then suppressed, they are actually injuring themselves.

It is said that the vaults of large manufacturers are filled with suppressed patents. The people have given the inventors and their assigns a monopoly in their manufacture and sale, yet because the monopoly was not accompanied by a provision that the inventions must be put to use, the people have had no returns whatever in the form of cheaper and better devices.

Surely the time has come when this ought to be changed.

MAKE A MAN OF HIM.

When you are considering what to make of your boy do you think, first of all, to make a man of him?

The question of a vocation for the son is a puzzling one. Such a bundle of habits and tendencies and impulses! You have high hopes for him and you wonder how you can make something more out of him than you have made out of yourself. So you study him; you observe the drift of his mind and you consider his likes and his dislikes and balance them against this trade and that profession. He's a boy, growing and unfolding all the time, and there is no knowing what hidden qualities and talents a year may bring forth. The decision is a hard thing to come at and you hesitate to make it. But with all your thinking and planning and hoping for him have you thought and planned and hoped to make a man of him?

> "A man once came to me and said, 'What do you think I had better do with my son?' And in telling him, it seemed to me that I somewhat embodied my feeling about the question of the art student. 'Your son,' I said, undoubtedly has some talent for art, start him in art if you like, but first of all, I'd make a man of him because he will then do well what he pleases.' For it seems to me that before a man tries to express anything to the world he must recognize in himself an individual, a new one, very distinct from others."

What a timely bit of advice is this that we quote from the January Craftsman! If we make a man of the boy, what does the rest matter? If we make a man of him he will be useful and happy in whatever vocation he finds himself and the boy that is useful and happy in the task that life sets before him is certain to find sooner or later that vocation in which his life will be most useful and happy.

First make a man of him!

The proper way for the St. Paul Dispatch to punish the governor for the length of his message is to make him read the message submitted by the mayor of New York. He had 50,000 words in his.

Some newspapers complain because the governor's message is so long but 30,000 words is not even a marker to what the newspapers are handing the legislature.

The railroads could not feel any worse over a proposal to confiscate their whole property than they do over the proposal to raise the gross earnings tax 1 per cent.

If the Kaiser Wilhelm had a chance to say 30,000 words to his legislature the words would probably all sound alike.

This is to advise President-elect Taft that a real, live labor leader for secretary of commerce and labor would be a hit with the country.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"There is a feeling among lumbermen that there will be a greatly increased demand for lumber, and that this demand will take active shape within the next three months," said Charles Ross of Cloquet at the St. Louis yesterday. "The Weyerhaeuser interests at Cloquet are preparing to increase their operations to meet this expected demand from the lumber market. There is also an increased activity among other lumber operators in the state, I have been told.

"The way a lumberman of Cloquet put the matter to me was something like this: He said that despite the reduction of the lumber tariff, made by the railroads some time ago, there had been practically no heavy shipments of lumber. In fact, this man is authority for the statement that the heavy decrease in lumber shipments, both here and from the Pacific Coast country, is responsible for a large part of the falling off in freight traffic. This man says the lumber trade has been very dull for over a year. Under the law of supply and demand, this lumberman says, there will have to be a demand for lumber very soon.

"What surprised me not a little, is the fact that I have found very few lumbermen who are opposed to the removal of the lumber tariff between this country and Canada. They seem to think that the competition, that the removal of the tariff would bring about, will not materially affect the price of lumber in this country. I expected to find that there would be a leather-lunged protest from the lumbermen, when the subject of tariff tinkering regarding the lumber schedules was brought up. The few men I have talked with have not regarded it with alarm.

"Some of the lumbermen admit that the removal of the tariff is inevitable, eventually. Of course there are some lumbermen in this part of the country who control timber across the Canadian line. They are, naturally, in favor of a revision of the lumber schedules. But aside from these men, I have heard but mild protests against the revision of the lumber tariff, and some lumbermen have told me that, in their opinion, it would not be a bad thing for the industry."

Col. Joyce of Minneapolis, one of the big insurance men of the Northwest, and famous as one of the staunch supporters of the fortunes of the Minnesota football team, was at the Spalding hotel yesterday. Friends of the colonel say that he did not smile during the football season, or at least until the Gophers took the dusky faced brothers from Carlisle into camp, upon the day when an ignominious season's record was retrieved somewhat by a brilliant victory over the government wards.

However, after giving the matter calm and serious consideration, Col. Joyce is of the opinion that there is cause for rejoicing and happiness in the belief that Minnesota will have one of the greatest teams in her history next year. This belief of the colonel's is based on the fact that about nine of the regulars will turn up next fall, and worry the athletic manager until they have been fitted out with football equipment. With these men and the men who have been taking knocks and thumpings in a Christian-like spirit, as members of the second team, there is every reason to believe, according to the colonel, that the old gold and maroon will again wave triumphantly over the Western gridirons, and the "Giants of the North" will again be proclaimed the champions of the West. That is one reason why the colonel is so optimistic these days.

It was originally intended to secure some information upon the status of the insurance game, but the colonel started the football talk, and he was abundantly able to finish. A few more agents like the colonel scattered throughout the breadth of Minnesota would result in a husky lot of material pouring into the State university, as the products of the soil pour into the state fair grounds each fall. "We need students and professors and other things at the State university—appropriations—but we also need some husky chaps, whose prowess can raise a student wail that will begin at Lincoln, Neb., circle around to Marshall Field, Chicago, and end at Madison, Wis., with a depth of sincerity that will leave no doubt of the superiority of the University of Minnesota team," is the attitude the colonel takes.

THE WEATHER.

Local conditions, which mean the lake, moderated the cold wave predicted by the weather man for last night, and the lowest point reached in Duluth was 2 above zero instead of from 10 to 20 below as predicted. About the same temperature will prevail tonight, and there will probably be some snow flurries tonight and tomorrow.

A year ago today it was fine and quite cold.

The sun rose this morning at 7:53 and will set this afternoon at 4:38, making eight hours and forty-five minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The barometer continues high off the New England coast and over Western Canada and low over Wyoming. During the past twenty-four hours these conditions caused rain in the Pacific coast districts, Florida and the lower Missouri and lower Ohio valleys, and snow from the upper lake region westward to Oregon and Washington, together with a rise in temperature in the central valley and North Atlantic states and most of Western Canada. Zero weather continues in the latter district, Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho and Eastern Washington, the coldest being 44 degs. below zero at Battleford. Indications favor snow flurries at the Head of the Lakes tonight and Sunday, but it is not expected that the temperature will change materially before Sunday night.

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

The Cost of Tuberculosis.

J. Sloat Fassett in Charities and the Commons: There are 86,000,000 people in the United States, and it is estimated that 200,000 of them die of tuberculosis every year. It is estimated that 11 2-10 per cent of all who die die from tuberculosis. If that is true, then of the 86,000,000 of people now living in the United States 9,632,000 are doomed to die of tuberculosis. Prof. Irving Fisher states that the money cost of tuberculosis, including capitalized earning power lost by death, exceeds $8,000 for each death, so that the band of this destroyer has already laid its paralyzing grasp upon $1,100,000,000 worth of human productive energy a year, and of this cost two-fifths, or $440,000,000, falls on others than the consumptive. And when this tremendous loss, this enormous paralysis of energy, is extended to what may happen unless conditions change, before the last living inhabitant of the United States passes to his long home, it is represented by figures that are stupendous and inconceivable. Measured, then, by the bare standard of money alone, this dread disease, unless checked, has already laid out for destruction an amount of energy to be measured feebly and crudely by the sum of $77,056,000,000.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

A Man's Alliance.

We all have periods of wanting to be and do our best, to give the fullest and most far-reaching expression of that which is finest and noblest within us. These periods are likely to be contemporaneous with the beginning of a new year or with our birthdays. Unfortunately, the do not always last much longer than those transient occasions themselves. So, on the whole, take it the year through, the task of achieving our best limps or halts when it ought to move steadily forward.

All the more reason, then, why we should form alliances with forces that can help us to be and do our best. The strongest nations in the world today are more and more disposed to league themselves through definite agreements with other nations, to mutual advantage. And no man has ever yet reached the pinnacle of his ambition unless he has availed himself of aid from many persons. It is simply impossible to live the noblest life without assistance, and our problem is to form the right kind of leagues, so that what is lacking in us may be supplemented, and what is weak strengthened, and what is wrong corrected. This frank admission of one's incompleteness when alone does not dishonor the individual personality any more than a man's asking a woman to marry him implies that all the rest of his life he is going to be a limp, pusillanimous creature. If he is the right kind of fellow, he is going to be more teachable and considerate; but on the other hand, his personality is going to be stronger and sweeter, because of the enrichment that comes through joining life with life.

The first league any man should make is with books. He is to be pitied who has not on his book shelves or table at least a few volumes of either history, biography, essays, poetry or fiction to which he can turn for solace and inspiration when the cares of life press upon him; or when some sorrow or defeat or injustice has clouded all his way. I know one of the busiest of busy men, who, besides managing extensive private interests, renders a vast amount of public service, who persists in finding time either at the beginning or the close of the day for his favorite authors. The first impression that a visitor gains at his home is of a large and well selected library, and one in constant use. The benefits of intercsting books have recently been finely put in a little verse by a well-known newspaper man, who writes:

"Who hath a book hath but to read,
And he may be a king indeed.
His kingdom is his ingle nook—
All this is his who hath a book."

An alliance with nature may serve a man wonderfully. Time was when men dreaded and placated the elements; but we moderns are learning to admire the beauty and order of the universe, to look up at the patient stars and find our own restless spirits quieted, to take delight in the lavish sunshine, the sweep of the hills, the majesty of the forests, the beauty even of the winter storm, the wonder and mystery of the tiniest blossom. Ask Nature to be your friend and ally, and she will do her part,p rovided you do yours.

We are rising on the scale when we consummate leagues of friendship. They need not be many; but they ought to be not only splendid defenses around a man's life, but precious with a price that is above rubies, because into such leagues go the love, devotion and gratitude of human hearts. You have all the friends you want? That may be; but are you keeping your friendships in repair? Are you clearing away misunderstandings that arise from time to time? Are you making your own contribution to the cementing of the ties?

A league with God. Did you ever think of your life in such terms? You hardly dare so to think; but if it is not true that we can maintain a fellowship with our Maker and our infinite Friend, then nothing else is true and we move in a world of sham and shadows. You never come anywhere near doing your best until you have definitely and thoroughly leagued your life with God.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: The Pacific coast congressman was starting for the capital.

"On one point I am resolved," he said to his admiring constituents. "Cannon can't bulldoze me. I defy him. We're after his scalp."

"Cannon has not in all respects been an ideal presiding officer," he told a reporter at Omaha.

"Cannon?" he replied to an interviewer: "well, perhaps he has not been without faults, but," etc.

"Hello," said the newspaper representative as Washington. "Glad to see you're back. Hear you're going to fight Cannon. How about it?"

"Fight Cannon! Well, of all the ridiculous yarns! Why, he's the best presiding officer that," etc.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1884.

The warm wave predicted by Venner is now striking the country. At 6 o'clock this morning the thermometer registered exactly zero at Duluth, while the lowest it was anywhere in the country was 6 degs. below, at Fort Garry and St. Vincent.

Stumpage is now held in the lower peninsula of Michigan at $5 per 1,000, and it is expected the high prices will compel buyers to come to Minnesota to invest this year.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Duluth National bank yesterday, the following directors were elected: O. P. Stearns, Luther Mendenhall, D. E. Little, Nils Hall, W. G. Peck, C. S. McDougall and D. A. Duncan.

H. A. Smith has been appointed special administrator of the estate of the late Peter Dean, and has taken charge. The store in Duluth will be opened tomorrow, and the stock sold at retail the same as before.

Phil Sheehan and Miss Allie Robinson were married last week.

The skating rink will not be closed, even if Patterson & Dean have skipped out. It will be run hereafter by Capt. Lutes.

John Loft, who had an elbow dislocated several days ago, is suffering very severely, and the G. A. R. post has made application to have him admitted to St. Luke's hospital.

A. B. McLean & Co. will begin next Monday the erection of a large stone warehouse on Lake avenue. It will be two stories high, 140 feet by 50, with a wing on one side 50 by 50 feet. Mr. McLean is of the opinion that the greatest boom Minnesota Point has ever had will come next spring.

Last evening, at the literary meeting of the Caledonian society, an interesting debate took place, the subject being: "Which is the thetter general, Gen. Grant or Gen. Lee." The admirers and defenders of Gen. Grant were A. M. Morrison and John McQuade, and the advocates of Gen. Lee were William McEwen and James Dingwall. The Lee men got the best of the argument, and they were awarded the banner.

Free musical demonstration in voice culture and musical notation by Prof. J. B. Carpenter of the M. E. church tonight.

DIET AND HEALTH

OBESITY AND LEANNESS

(Copyright, 1909, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Half of the men you meet on the street are too fat or too thin, but the average man is not so painfully conscious of his defect as is the average woman.

The insurance company is suspicious of the man who is twenty pounds over or under the standard weight, but the average woman who varies so much is more concerned about her appearance than about the opinion of the medical examiner, which is altogether natural, though not wise.

The model figures we see in the art galleries excite our admiration, but it is not to be supposed that the Apollo Belvidere, or the Venus de Milo represents the average citizen of Athens or Sparta; those are the Greek ideals of physical beauty and they have never been surpassed.

Experience has shown that when there is a variation of more than ten pounds in weight from the standard tables, defective nutrition is present, which may lead to serious results. Whether it is more serious to be twenty pounds under than twenty pounds overweight, depends upon age and temperament and work. It is better, as a rule, that a woman of nervous temperament at 40, should be over than under weight, but a farmer of bilious temperament would be better a little under weight than over and a teacher or a physician of nervous temperament would be better a little over weight. Unfortunately, however, it is the nervous teacher who is usually under weight, and the slow-going clerk or the gentleman of leisure who has adispose tissue to spare.

Abnormal Weight's Effects.

But what are the injurious effects of abnormal weight?

Several times during experimental food tests and in fasting from five to twenty days, I have been twenty pounds below normal weight and have had a good opportunity to observe the nervous system that results from insufficient sheathing of the delicate conductors of nervous energy. We see and hear, and feel by the vibrations of light, sound, heat, etc., that strike our nerves, and if thes nerves of sensation are not fully sheathed in tissue there is a rasping, and a consequent waste of vitality and the intolerable noises, unfortunately still tolerated in our cities—screeching whistles, clanging bells, rattling cars—magnify the unconscious irritation. Of course one in this condition is much more susceptible to the finer forces, but the coarser vibrations grate upon one constantly. Hence in a protracted fast one should be in a quiet place, to avoid injurious physiological effects. A person much under weight is wasting nervous energy by defective insulation. The nerves need more sheathing as conducting wires need insulation. And in the vent of protracted illness he has no reserve.

All the great poets, Shakespeare, Milton, Browning, Emerson, Whittier, have been of slight build, of susceptible nervous organization, and lean, while great orators, like Phillips, O'Connell, Beecher, Bryan, are of the more vital type, sleek and sympathetic. The ideal temperament is the balance of these, with strong nutritive powers, as represented in the Greek models.

The negative condition, fear, expressed as worry, envy, jealousy, hatred, is destructive of vitality. Fear produces a poison in the blood which interferes with normal nutrition. Worry wastes. It is the placid mind who "laughs and grows fat."

Eat and Be Happy.

The worried woman who leaves her household cares behind to spend a month at the old homestead in the country gains in flesh not so much because she drinks country milk and breathes coutnry air, and eats "strictly fresh" eggs, as because her mind is diverted. And so when I am asked for a diet prescription that will increase the weight, I feel disposed to advise the patient, to eat the same diet in another state (of mind) and be happy—and that without any inclination to indorse the pernicious advice, "Eat anything."

When all the nutritive functions are performing their part naturally, and the proper food is supplied, in proper amount, weight will not vary much from the figures which long experience of insurance companies has proved to accompany average health conditions.

Over-eating is the commonest cause of starvation. It is not what we eat but what we assimilate that keeps us in condition. The bony horse eats as much as the sleek one, but his teeth are bad and his oats are not properly chewed, and his arteries are becoming ossified—or he may be worried by a driver who lacks horse sense, for a good horse is sensitive. The cattle coming from Montana to Chicago might be supplied with more than their usual ration of hay, water and turnips, but they would lose weight by worry—and this is not the place to advert to the effects of consuming the poisons produced in the blood and milk of animals seriously harassed, except to remark, in passing, that where an infant is fed on the milk of one cow, exposed in a city lot to worrying by dogs and boys, the cause of baby's failure to do well on the neighbor's Jersey milk is often not suspected. Microscopic examination of the flesh of animals much abused before reaching the slaughter house, shows the wasteful effects of fear upon the tissues, and it is not alone the bite of "the blue grass nigger" that is poisonous but the bite of any infuriated animal. The mind controls all the secretions; it is the real alchemist.

A Source of Poisoning.

When the amount of food eaten is greatly in excess of the body's requirements, the remnant is removed by a wasteful expenditure of vitality, and, clogging the bowels, becomes a source of poisoning to the entire system by absorption into the blood of the fermented refuse, putting an undue strain upon the liver whose duty it is to destroy poisonous matter absorbed from the alimentary tube into the blood, overtaxing the kidneys, whose duty it is to eliminate certain poisons, bathing the brain in a poisoned blood, thus dulling the wits, producing bilious headache, making the subject irritable and therefore easily worried and developing a state of mind which reacts upon the body, intensifying all these abnormal physical and mental conditions—and hence the extreme absurdity, to anyone who is properly grounded in physiology and psychology, of that malicious half truth, "Eat anything, so long as you think right," a doctrine which is no more justifiable than it would be to say, "Think anything so long as you eat right, for your thinking is determined by your eating," (which is part of the truth).

We eat too much because we eat too fast. If the nutritive system, controlled by the mind, is in good condition, the mind positive, the placid and hopeful and the mechanism of the body normal, the food is well digested, the waste freely eliminated, and flesh maintained; perhaps an excess is stored, if the food contains much starch with the necessary amount of the other food elements. But if the opposite mental condition exists, fear, constant irritation, the food is not properly digested, and much vitality is consumed in neutralizing poisons and removing superfluous waste food. I have in mind a typical fat man, one who is sympathetic enough to be a successful politician. His mind is ordinarily so easy and he eats so leisurely and cheerfully, that his digestion is always good, and when he overeats seriously diarrhoea follows naturally, and at 50 the signs of auto-intoxication are less obvious than in many lean men half his age, but he will not see 70 unless he reduces fifty pounds, soon.

Slow and Fast Eating.

Suppose that food were conveyed to the stomach by a chute, how could one feel when he had enough? Only by the sense of pressure or oppression. If food is eaten very slowly, that is, naturally, there is a registry on the nervous system that causes the flow of just the right secretions to digest it and a sense of satisfaction comes as the amount the system actually requires is ingested. But suppose one must catch a train or hurry back to business? Then one must use the chute, in the quick lunch room. If the mind is more on the danger of missing the train or of not being able to write all the letters—you are preparing for the hospital, or the sanitarium, if the habit is long continued.

Eating is delightful! But to enjoy it you must have a good old crust of bread, and—yes, a little peanut butter, not to make it slide down easier, for that is what you don't want. Like the man who doesn't often enjoy a good class of whisky, because he can't get it often, you "wish your throat was a mile long." You want with your delicious crust a fair spreading of the best sauce, real appetite, not that gnawing, "all-gone" sensation that results from overeating but the genuine, old-time, schoolboy appetite, and you will never really enjoy your work or your play again till you get that kind of appetite.

How? To begin with learn to eat only "two square meals" as advised in the preceding article. Rooseveltian sport is good, even in homeopathic dose. Eat as few things at a time as the present state of civilization will permit, and let it be largely live, that is, uncooked food. And eat what you eat. Don't chute it! Taste it. Keep every mouthful in the mouth as long as you can, even if it is soup or milk, but the harder and dryer the food is, the better can you comply with this rule.

Now I have used my space for the treatment of leanness and I haven't said a word about what to eat to grow fat. It is useless to eat the right food if you don't eat right and think right, and water, air, and exercise right.

How To Get Fat.

Fat makes fat. The Eskimo hasn't brains enough nor business enough to worry, and he eats fat and grows fat. Fat is produced in the system from other food, but if a certain amount of fat is supplied, it is directly assimilated, and saves digestive work. In lving on proteid only, as meat, one makes the needed fat from that, but the product produces a severe strain on the kidneys, auto-intoxication is encouraged, and rheumatism, Bright's disease, or other disease due to kidney failure (heart failure, perhaps), must in time, ensue. Fat can more easily be made fro mthe carbohydrates, starch food, bread, bananas, potatoes, etc., but oil is worth about two and half times as much for heat and fat, and if a little more than the system can use is taken it does little harm, but great good in facilitating bowel action. Nuts, the chief natural food, contain, on the average, 50 per cent fat and we shall yet learn the sad mistake of the race in substituting so much starch, especially in fine white bread, for fat and fruit sugar (not cane sugar). If your staple diet is not largely nuts, take a spoonful of vegetable fat with a glass of hot water or cocoa an hour before the morning and evening meal—fat coats other foods and interferes especially with proteid digestion. A spoonful or more may be taken, however, with buttermilk made from good unskimmed milk, especially in stomach disorders. Olive oil is much better than animal fat, but the most assimilated oil is peanut oil—not peanut butter, for that contains much coagulated albumen, but refined peanut oil. Take a teaspoonful of peanut butter, beat it with a tablespoonful of peanut oil, add a pint of of warm water and you have a perfect vegetable cream, which a year-old baby will assimilate better than milk, and it is clean, fit food.

Don't eat more than two ounces of proteid food daily (uncoagluated), and prefer toast to fresh white bread. Avoid mush. Prefer baked potatoes, including the sweet potato. Buttermilk has long been known as a fatto a degree. A glass at bedtime with the oil is good. Prunes aid elimination, digest casily and are nutritious; oil may be taken with them.

Physical examination of an average excessively lean and an average excessively fat person indicates, as the leading general characteristic, of the former, a hardening of the skin, a drying and wrinkling in the former case, and of the latter, the oposite condition—skin soft and clear, more resembling that of infancy. In other words, the assimilative and elimination systems are in better condition in the fat person, the external signs of auto-intoxication, being less pronounced. Cereal starch and potatoes are readily assimilated and converted into fat. There is little tendency to constipation, the circulation is active, and—coming to the fundamental difference—there is an easier habit of mind, a wholesome good-naturedness, a care-freeness that we seldom find in the constitutionally lean, for these conditions are constiutional, hereditary. No matter what you feed a greyhound, or a foxhound you cannot fatten it, and if you feed the pug at all it will not be lean; and they vary accordingly in mentality.

So it follows that we cannot alter constitutional conditions by merely making a diet list. However, the diet, too, has a fundamental bearing in this as in every other case of mal-nutrition

Fat Man's Disadvantage.

The fat man labors under the disadvantage of carrying an unnecessary burden, the play of all his organs, especially of the heart, is more or less hampered, especially for one past middle life. You can find many fat men of 40, 60, and even 70, but few or no octogenarians among them and a centenarian.

A person who is twenty pounds over, or under weight, should no more neglect the diseased condition than he would neglect rheumatism, or asthama.

The over-fat should elinimate, gradually, the starch foods and substitute nuts and wheat gluten. He should exercise more and eat less and more slowly. In many cases a fast of ten days or longer proves a radical cure, but drugs advertised to cure obesity should be avoided. Dry graham and corn bread with uncooked Virginia peanuts should be the stables of the diet.

To increase the weight, avoid monotony and worry, loss of sleep, exposure and overwork. Use olive oil and peanut oil regularly, a tablespoonful half hour before the meals or on retiring; fruits for breakfast, whole wheat and dry bread (not fresh) with peanut butter and uncooked Virginia peanuts, baked potatoes or eggs and toast, or prunes and dates, or rice, for supper. A glass of buttermilk before retiring, in which oil may be taken, will serve to antidote auto-intoxication.

Cereal coffee may be substituted for coffee or tea by the obese and cocoa by the lean, if coffee or tea has been used; but no drink should be taken with meals. The electric vibrator aids in breaking down and removing dead tissues and improving nutrition. Distilled water or at least filtered water is especially benefcial for the lean and nervous.

The morning Turkish towel bath is especially beneficial in all cases.

A nap after the noon meal, if only for five minutes, is helpful for the lean and nervous woman. Sit in the vibrating chair for five minutes before the meal. After eating, induce sleep, relaxing and turning the closed eyes upward, after reading poetry or fiction a few minutes, if possible.

Finally, let the obese direct the appetite, excluding starches and sugar, and exercising religiously, until the weight is reduced to the normal, and let the lean be easy in mind, avoid monotony, eat heartily but slowly, of plain, nourishing easily digested food, including exercise freely in the open air daily, avoid excesses and exposure, and remember that the secret of good living is contentment.

HERNANDO DE SOTO MONEY

BY SAVOYARD

EXCEPT John Warwick Daniel, he is the last of the old South remaining to public life. I mean the South that the late George F. Hoar eulogized so eloquently, so appropriately and so deservedly, in numerous public addresses, and in his writings, the last ten years of his life. How happy would it have been for our country if such men as Burlingame and Lovejoy had known as intimately and appreciated as accurately Yancey and Wigfall as Hoar did Walthall! Indeed it is easy to believe that Walthall was the first gentleman of the American congress when reading the passage devoted to him in Senator Hoar's memoirs. Of all the men who ever served in the American congress it would be difficult to choose one who was more broadened than George F. Hoar by personal contact with men politically opposed to him. In 1869 he was intensely fanatic in his prejudices, and daily recalled to mind his fathers futile mission to Charleston a score of years or more earlier; but in 1899, the gold of patriotism had banished every particle of the dross of fanaticism from his great heart, and only two years ago it was beautiful to see the growing intimacy that made Henry Cabot Lodge and Edward Ward Carmack, men of a later generation, warm personal friends, each imbued with respect for the character and admiration for the parts of the other.

We hear a heap of the new South; there is also a new North. Political asperities are witnessed in forensic debate; personal animosities no longer poison the minds and hearts of Northerners and Southerners who meet in social converse.

Hernando de Soto Money was born in Holmes county, Mississippi, in 1839. He received a liberal education, and chose the law for profession; like most Southern lawyers of that period, he joined the Confederate army at the first call to arms, and served gallantly until his eyesight failed in September, 1864. I think he held the rank of captain at the time. After the war he was the editor of a weekly paper at Wynona, and in 1874 he was a delegate to the Democratic convention to nominate a candidate for congress, and of which body he was chosen secretary.

It was in the days of reconstruction, and the bayonet was the scepter. The property owners were but the hewers of wood and drawers of water, so far as civil government went—for their former slaves of an inferior race, marshaled by a set of adventurous scoundrels from the North, vultures that preyed on a devasted country. Taxation was literally confiscation. Nobody dreamed that the Democrats had the slightest chance to carry the election of 1874, and many of the older men insisted on drafting a candidate for congress in Money's district from the ranks of the younger men. Old Judge Jarnigan, from Noxubee county, proposed "Our young secretary, Capt. Money," and to the utter surprise of the young man he was nominated by acclaim. The time had come for the outraged manhood of Mississippi to assert itself, and so it did, and swept the state triumphantly.

On the first Monday of December, 1875, there convened at this capital for the first time since March 4, 1859, a house of representatives with a Democratic majority, and a pronounced majority it was. The regime that reconstructed the South had been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Stevens was dead, Butler was defeated, Schenck, beaten at home, was in another political department, Blaine surrendered the speakership to Kerr, Pig Iron Kelly gave way to William R. Morrison on ways and means, Garfield was superseded by Randall on appropriations, Proctor Knott supplanted William Lawrence at the council board of the judiciary.

In short, it was the era of the Confederate brigadier. It was then that Ben Hill, Joe Blackburn, Randolph

SENATOR H. D. MONEY.

Tucker, Julian Hartridge, Henry Watterson, Randall Gibson, E. John Ellis, Charles E. Hooker, J. D. C. Atkins, John F. House, Casey Young, G. C. Dibrell, David Culberson, John H. Reagan and Beverly Douglas first appeared in that body. Money was another. Alexander H. Stephens, L. Q. C. Lamar, John Young Brown, and Roger Q. Mills got there two years earlier.

The debates of the first session of the Forty-fourth congress were the ablest and the most eloquent the house of representatives had heard in a double decade, for there had been precious little Democratic membership since 1861. Except when Randall, as chairman of appropriations, was saving at the bung and Holman, his lieutenant, was economizing at the spigot, the quarrel was political and sectional. The bloody shirt floated from the Republican side, and even the mild and genial Garfield bore it to the forefront of the strife. He it was who named the majority side "Confederate brigadiers," which was soon turned to "rebel brigadiers" by his less polite comrades.

The cause of tariff reform was lost in the passions of the disputed presidential succession, and for six or eight years it was buried in the grave of Michael C. Kerr, to be surrendered when John G. Carlisle became speaker in 1883.

Money was 36 years old when he entered congress. He was put on the committee of postoffices and post roads, of which he was subsequently chairman for some two or three terms. In 1885 he retired from public life, but was returned to the Fifty-third and Fifty-fourth congresses.

The most serious tactical mistake Cleveland made was in not convening congress in extra session immediately after his second inauguration to reform the tariff. Four years later McKinley, profiting by his predecessor's error, called congress together to elevate the tariff; but McKinley had this advantage of Cleveland—he knew congress. Cleveland was forced to convene congress to take order in regard to the financial panic of 1893. Money, as I now recollect, was delayed in his attendance, and it was understood that he was very friendly to the president, whom he had supported for the nomination. He was for the repeal of the Sherman silver law—all of it—and there he parted company with the administration. He favored that repeal that would clear the track for a free silver law, and then he also parted company with his colleague, Thomas C. Catchings, who supported the repeal of the purchasing clause only.

All that is history now. If Grover Cleveland had been re-elected president in 1888 the Mills' tariff would have become a law in 1889, and the gold standard would have been established, with slight demur. If the South had come solidly to the support of Cleveland in 1892 his second administration would have been as successful as McKinleys, prosperity would have returned in 1895, taxation would soon have become democratic, and the country this good year 1909 would be even more Democratic than it is Republican.

Never in the history of politics did subsequent events so entirely, so thoroughly, so overwhelmingly vindicate the statesmanship of any man as the events since 1895 have justified Grover Cleveland's policies. But the South thought otherwise, and would not have it so. The great misfortune befell in 1888, when Cleveland was defeated for re-election. That, however, was not the fault of the South. The regime at Albany, N. Y., and the Tammany machine on Manhattan were to blame for that. When Warner Miller fell outside the breastworks there was method for it. On the Democratic side of the lists Guth was saved and Ivanhoe sacrificed.

James G. George was many years a senator from Mississippi and one of the very great lawyers of that body. Not an orator, yet he could make abstruse legal principles clear to the layman, and that is a great thing in a lawyer, and more than Edmunds or Evarts could do. George died in 1897, and doubtless if he could have bequeathed the succession, he would have bestowed it upon the man to whom Mississippi gave it—Hernando De Soto Money.

Money has been during his entire public career a rather delicate man physically, and his eyesight, now completely gone, has been defective since his service in the army. I never saw him roused in debate but twice, and on both occasions he was superb, the first time triumphantly so. The Republicans were bewailing the enormity of the South in not sending negroes to help them solonize for the American people. Without the slightest tinge of passion Money discussed the proposition. Always a student of literature in general, he is particularly well acquainted with the history of American politics, and now he showed from speeches by Conkling and others that it was never the intention of the intention of the Republican party to confer suffrage on the negroes of the North, and that the fifteenth amendment was proposed, adopted and ratified as a political necessity. When he cited that Ohio had yet the word "white" in the suffrage clause of the state constitution, and in 1867 defeated an amendment eliminating it by a popular majority of more than 50,000, the Republican members from Ohio felt the sting of his lash. When he dug up some Ohio legislation adverse to this man and brother while R. B. Hayes was governor, and every Ohio Republican sprang to his feet protesting that the governor of Ohio had no veto, Money, as calm as May, retorted: "What of that? I am talking about what Ohio did. A state speaks by its legislature."

If Money had been created a vain man he would easily have been a showy man. He never made a public speech except from a sense of duty. I doubt if congress ever knew a member less avaricious of applause. About twenty-five years ago I was editor of a country weekly in Money's district in Mississippi, and present in the convention that nominated him for the Forty-eighth congress. His speech of acceptance was a conversation, but a delightful and instructive political address. In a few words he defined our government as he saw it, and I have a thousand times reverted to that plain statement of principles and congratulated myself that I learned a good lesson that day.

Senator Money is one of the very deeply informed men in public life. His reading is large and varied, and ever since his eyesight failed, loving voices have been instant to read to him any works his taste suggested. Senator Hoar took delight in discussing ancient history with him, and it is no exaggeration to say that Money is better versed in the writings of Levy, Sallust, Caesar, Tacitus and Plutarch than any of his fellows in either house of congress. I doubt if any officer in our army is more familiar with the campaigns of Alexander the Great than he, and one of his favorite pastimes is to accompany Xenophon and the Ten Thousand on their immortal retreat.

When his term expires, Senator Money will have attained three-score years and twelve. He has always been the perfect representation of a proud, a virile, a soldier race, pure Anglo-Saxon mixed with pure Huguenot, holding principle above interest and honor above wealth.

THOUGHTS ON BOYS

By J. S. KIRTLEY, D. D.
Author of "The Young Man and Himself," etc.

HIS ROOM

He needs a room of his own—needs it in his business. If he does not get it at home he always wants to establish headquarters somewhere else—on the street corner, or a vacant lot, or in an old deserted house, or in some basement or in another boy's home; and that always lessens his attachment for his own home. The rule is that when he will not stay at home, he is pushed out for lack of a room.

He is not apt to be blind to the injustice of it, either. His little sister, bless her dear heart, has the daintiest room in the house, and mamma and papa bring her all sorts of exquisite souvenirs and decorations, till she is like a pink rose in a garden of exotics, but he is put into any kind of a corner, with instructions not to interfere with what little he finds there and not to make any noise, as he goes to his gloomy quarters, nor while he is there, nor on his way back, on pain of being asked to vacate the house, and if his sense of chumship overides his pride enough to bring in another, now and then, he is halted at the door, with a shrill voice which informs him that he is not to bring other boys home with him. Then when he is compelled to take that bundle of energy which he carries around with him, out of the house and is reinforced by some other boys, stocked up with similar supplies of energy, and they go off and get into mischief, the people shake their stupid heads and say "those bad boys again," when they would do far more wisely if they would organize a vigilance committee to wait on the parents of these boys.

The light of the library is good for his eyes, but that is not enough. The corner of the family room is better than nothing, provided that corner is recognized as his own property at certain important times, and many a boy—and girl, too—can look back to happy moments when the crowd of little folks were playing in one end of the room and father and mother were talking or reading by the light glowing at the other end of that dear doom. But even that is not all he wants.

He already has the proprietary instinct and that cannot be fully gratified without a room he can call his own. The mere possession of that room may be training instincts that will make him a useful citizen and property holder, and keep him from becoming improvident and a vagbond. It is one and the same instinct with him, and hence his room has a permanent value to him.

Besides, he has immediate need for it. It is a place wher he can let off steam and make more noise than could be borne in any other part of the house. That is a relief to the rest of the family, for they can persuade him to be fairly quiet everywhere else when he knows that there is one yelling room always at his disposal. That room is enabling him to secure valuable voice culture.

His self-respect and social standing require taht he have a place where he can bring his friends, both informally as individuals and formally as a club or gang. If he brings them there they are in a respectable place and not apt to get their relatives into trouble. He will be proud to have his parents become honorary or sustaining members of the club, and that will give those parents a chance to take the sting out of all their mischief and renew the joys of long ago. His room is necessary. His little sister has one, where her little friends can come with their little dolls and have the sweetest time till they get to pouting, and they all go home without umbrellas in a shower of tears. He must have a place for his friends, too. His room is a social center, training him for life.

He wants a room where he can objectify his thoughts, by means of the things he puts into it. The articles, both useful and ornamental, match up with his inner self. If he is an artist, he will have pictures, and perhaps make some; if he is musical, he will no doubt have a banjo or mandolin and if he is just boy he will probably have some hair-raising pictures and at least a mouth-harp, anyhow. Indians and warriors and clubs and things are on his walls.

Dainty bed spreads are a work of supererogation, whatever that may mean—his room is no parlor. It is a den. Rugs and carpets can come in, only under strict regulations. It is hard to make them harmonize with boys. His decorations are an aggregation of things. They will be mostly the implements and emblems of sport, with pennants in the place of honor—balls and bats and gloves and knives and all the kinds of firearms it is safe to allow him, from a squirt gun to a Flobert or Winchester. Flags are one of his specialties. He is apt to gather up the flags of various countries, put "Old Glory" in the center, and drape the others around to add to its glory. If he has the taste of a naturalist, he is likely to have as large a collection of bugs and beetles and flies and toads and snails and birds and snakes and grasshoppers as he can and as many of them alive as possible.

In after years, he will preserve those collections as happy memories and others will trace a vital connection between the substantial citizens, with his thrift and his friendships, and the lad that once lived and loved and yelled and dreamed in that room.

MILK AND INFANT MORTALITY

Question of Pasteuring Milk or Using It in Raw State Secondary to the Instruction of Ignorant Mothers.

New York, Jan. 9.—That pasteurized milk is more satisfactory from the standpoint of safety in feeding infants than raw milk, but that, given a clean certified milk to begin with, the question of pasteurizing it or using it in a raw state is olf minor importance in infant feeding compared to the instruction of ignorant mothers and seeing that they care properly for their infants, is the statement of a comprehensive report on "Infants' Milk Depots, and Their Relation to Infant Mortality," issued by the New York milk committee of the N. Y. A. I. C. P.

During the past seven months the milk committee has maintained seven infants' milk depots from which modified certified milk has been prepared in individual feedings and dispensed by nurses, who, with the assistance of a corps of twenty-nine physicians, have educated mothers in infant feeding and infant hygiene. In order to ascertain what were the comparative results obtained from the continued use of pasteurized or raw milk, the committee dispensed pasteurized modified milk from three of its depots and raw modified milk from four of them. Its purpose in carrying on this and other experiments, as stated in the introduction of the report, was, "to find some answer to those questions which have been raised most frequently by persons interested in the milk situation and which until there was some uniformity of opinion concerning them, bid fair to prevent successfully an effort in the reduction of infant mortality." By requiring each mother to bring her baby weekly to the depot at which time it was stripped and weighed while the doctor in charge instructed the mother concerning its food, clothing, cleanliness, etc., an excellent opportunity was afforded to observe and follow the condition of the child.

Of 156 babies who attended these weekly weighings in the pasteurized milk depots during the last week in August, the condition of 81 4-10 per cent was improving as opposed to 73 6-10 per cent of the babies in the raw milk depots. On the other hand the condition of only 12 3-10 per cent of the raw milk babies actually deteriorated against 13 5-10 per cent of the pasteurized milk babies. The total number of babies who were really stationary or improving in the raw milk depots was 87 7-10 per cent against 86 5-10 per cent in the pasteurized depots. Out of a total of 784 babies brought to the depots during the summer, eighteen died who were attending the raw milk depots and fifteen died who were attending the pasteurized milk depots. Most of these babies were in a moribund condition when brought to the stations, and consequently all the efforts of physicians and nurses, were of no avail. The association of physicians working in connection with the depots has estimated, that of the fifteen deaths in the pasteurized milk depots, the milk committee was responsible for none. Of the eighteen deaths in the raw milk depots, the association of physicians has estimated that the milk committee was apparently responsible for two deaths and possibly responsible for one. The true explanation of this death was probably not the milk but the absence of refrigerators in the homes of the people who used it.

Commenting upon these facts the report says: "Because of the brevity of the period which they cover, these figures have little statistical value. Actually, however, it was the experience of the physicians that the babies fed on raw milk were more apt to be upset than the babies fed on pasteurized milk; and it was the custom, among certain of them, to order the mother to pasteurize the raw milk in the feeding bottles, if by chance it did not agree with the babies. The fact that this was deemed necessary, as well as the good showing made by two nurses not connected with infants' milk depots, who instructed their mothers to bring their milk to the boiling point, substantiates the opinion of those who have worked upon the problem that raw milk, however excellent may be its quality and however carefully it may be prepared, is less desirable for infant feeding during the summer time than pasteurized milk. The nutritive value of the two kinds of milk, is a question which can only be decided after a period of long and wide observation, such as the committee has undertaken. Given a certified or guaranteed milk, properly modified, refrigerated and safeguarded in every way, the question of pasteurizing it or using it in raw state is of minor consideration compared to the care and instruction of the mother and the care which she gives her infant. But until the system of handling even this certified or guaranteed has been reduced to the highest state of perfection, from the farm to the consumer, the milk for infant feeding, should be pasteurized. Given ordinary store milk, modified by the mother, the question, in the present state of the supply, admits of only one answer—that milk should be pasteurized. Apart from pasteurized the report shows conclusively that the educating of ignorant mothers is by far the most important factor in saving the lives of infants; and it backs up this statement of the work done by two nurses who were not connected with milk depots, but who merely organized classes of instruction for mothers where these mothers were taught by physicians to modify their own milk. Of 205 babies received at these stations, only four died throughout the summer and in none of these cases, the association of physicians decided, could the milk committee be held responsible. The milk used by these nurses was ordinary store milk, boiled in the home. The chief difficulty of work of this kind is that nurses have no hold upon the mothers such as is secured through the sale of milk. The committee believes that a great saving of infants' lives can be effected through pure instruction carried on by nurses and physicians in connection with the ordinary milk supply; but it believes if those physicians and nurses could be connected with infants' milk depots selling whole as well as modified milk, the chancesof effective work, because of the 'hold' which the sale of the milk would give upon the mothers, would be greatly increased."

An interesting conclusion by tho milk committee expressed in its report is that the work of infants' milk depots can not be self supporting and that philanthropy will be needed to assist them either through actual relief or through the distributinn of milk sold at reduced prices. The plan recommended is the production and sale of the milk on a business basis in cooperation with physicians who should feed the infants, nurses who should instruct mothers and follow up cases into the homes, and relief agencies which should provide free milk for poor people through the co-operating milk company.

SOCIETY

DULUTH is passing from the typical holiday gaieties into a whirl of bridge parties, and the game, which was neglected somewhat during the first part of the season, is receiving all the attention there is. Like other habits of mind, bridge grows on one, and after attending three or four afternoon bridge parties during a week, the devotees become almost hectic over it, and continue to get a table or two together for every evening. In spite of all this practice, men will continue to cover a condescending smile with their hands while they remark: "It is to laugh," whenever they consider the bridge game of mere woman. To which woman replies with a smile, the blandishment of which no one in his senses will dispute, and lo! in just a second he has forgotten whether she can, could, or ever would play bridge.

Who cares anyhow?

During the week, many Duluthians were interested in the side excursions of the Duluth Oratorio society to sing "The Messiah" at Superior, early in the week, and at Two Harbors last evening. Duluth soloists sang with the society. They were, Miss Jane Everington, soprano; Miss Ruth Markell, contralto; Walter Smith, tenor; and Horace G. Brown, basso. Miss Everington, who sang the beautiful solos entrusted to the soprano in the great work, was warmly received, and the earnest and serious study of the last two years has added much to a voice always of sweet and pleasing quality. She displayed a good appreciation of the demands of oratorio. Miss Ruth Markell, who has not as yet appeared in public in solo work in Duluth, sang the contralto numbers with tenderness and feeling, and the tenor and bass roles were well received. A number of Duluth people attended the reproduction at Superior.

Mrs. J. B. Adams was hostess last Saturday at a morning bridge party and luncheon at her home, 2110 East Superior street, in honor of her mother, Mrs. Russell Bennett, of Minneapolis. The appointments were in the holiday colors of red and green, and thirty guests were entertained. The favors were won by Mrs. W. E. Richardson and Mrs. F. M. Shaw.

The members of Aad temple, Ancient Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, entertained Wednesday evening of this week at an open installation of officers, followed by a ball at the Masonic temple.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the grand procession, headed by Drum Major Michaud and the Shriners' band, in which many distinguished musicians took star parts, entered. Then came the uniformed patrol, followed by thirty Oriental maids, and lastly the officers-elect. Past Potentate T. W. Hugo, the installing officer, inducted each man into his office with appropriate remarks. The Oriental maids, led by Frances Burris, sang several songs and choruses replete with hits on the various officers, which caused much amusement, particularly in a verse which stated:

"Though we have lost Beethoven, Handel, Wagner, and Franz Liszt,
We still have Herr Von Hugo, so they never will be missed."

Mr. Hugo then presented Noble Albert Farrington, the retiring potenate, with a beautiful past potentate's jewel, on behalf of Aad temple, for which Noble Farrington expressed his thanks, with his usual eloquence. Illustrious Potentate Harry Nesbitt then welcomed the guests and invited them to follow the procession to the banquet hall, there to dance and partake of the traditional "bread and salt." Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour by the nobles and their ladies, of whom a large number were present, in spite of the cold. The following were the officers installed:

Henry Nesbitt, illustrious potentate; Arthur P. Cook, chief rabban; William D. Underhill, assistant rabban; John Cox, high priest and prohpet; Herbert W. Richardson, Oriental guide; J. Walter Lyder, Jr., treasurer; Sheldon L. Frazer, recorder; James E. Watt, marshal; Cassius H. Bagley, first ceremonial master; Lyonal Ayres, second ceremonial master; Grier H. Thompson, captain of the guard; Andrew C. Volk, outer guard; Renwick B. Knox, director; John I. Thomas, assistant director.

A beautiful wedding ceremony took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. d'Autremont when their daughter, Miss Antoinette d'Autremont became the bride of Oliver S. Andreson of this city. In the drawing room, where the ceremony took place, decorations of green and white were used. At 8 o'clock the bridal music was played by a harpist from the St. Paul Symphony orchestra, and the bridal party entered the rooms. The bride had as her only attendant her sister, Miss Marie d'Autremont, and the groomsman was Charles Andreson of Medford, Wis. The service was read by Rev. A. W. Ryan of St. Paul's church.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white satin in the directorie style trimmed in point lace. She wore a long tulle veil and carried bride's roses. Miss Marie d'Autremont was gowned in pink tulle and carried pink roses.

Decorations of bride's roses and greens were used in the dining room. Mr. Andreson and his bride left for a wedding trip and after their return will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. d'Autremont until the spring.

Mrs. C. H. Thornton was hostess at a party reception yesterday afternoon at her home, 1514 East Third street. In the receiving room effective decorations of Mexican poinsettas were used, and candle light furnished the illumination throughout the rooms. Receiving with the hostess were Mrs. C. E. Judd, Mrs. E. S. Kelley of Fargo and Mrs. Lucia Judd McAuliffe. Assisting about the parlors were Mrs. A. H. Davis and Mrs. Leonard Bradley.

In the dining room the appointments were in yellow. Yellow jonquills were the flowers used and yellow candles further carried out the color scheme. Mrs. Charles F. Macdonald and Mrs. E. F. Burg presided here, and were assisted by Miss Irene Whiting, Miss Ethel McLean, Miss Irma Richards and Miss Gladys Heimbach. During the receiving hours from 3 to 6 o'clock nearly 200 guests called.

CIVIC BANQUET WILL BE GIVEN BY CLUB WOMEN

Chicago Social Economist Will be Guest of Honor.

Duluth Men and Women Will Also Respond to Toasts.

ROYAL L. MELENDY,
Guest of Honor at the Civic Banquet.

The civic banquet, which will be held at the Spalding this evening, will bring together a representative gathering of Duluth men and women interested in the progress of the city along the lines of social service. The banquet was planned by the Women's Council, which is now entering upon the eleventh year of its work. In many lines the Council has done pioneer work in stimulating public interest along the lines which tend toward the broadest and best possible development for the citizens. Within the last year Duluth has been active in several lines for the betterment of its people. Public playgrounds have been discussed and the beginning made for a fine system of grounds in which the children may find recreation and satisfy the play instinct, so necessary to the development of the normal child; an anti-tuberculosis society has been organized; the Women's Council for several summers has maintained vacation schools hoping that in a short time this work will be taken up by the board of education; the need of an associated charities has been discussed in detail and that work will probably be taken up in the near future; and along many other lines Duluth has shown progressive and thoughtful attitude.

These and other matters relative to the best growth of the city, will be the theme of the toasts at this evening's banquet. Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge as president of the Council will preside and a spiendid program of toasts has been arranged.

Royal L. Melendy of Chicago, who will be the guest of honor, is a social economist, lecturer and writer of note.

Mr. Melendy was educated in the Ohio Weslevan university, the University of Michigan and Hartford Theological seminary. Mr. Melendy is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the National Municipal league, the Religious Education association, the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education, the Playground Association of America, the American Civic association, etc., and was a delegate to the First National Congress on Immigration, 1905.

Mr. Melendy will respond to the toast, "The Civic Duty of the Individual."

Dr. E. L. Tuohy will speak on "Civic Health;" Mayor Haven will have as his toast, "What We Are Doing in Duluth;" and Wilson G. Crosby will talk on "Vacation Schools." Mrs. J. Lee Washburn will speak on "What Can Be Done in Duluth Today." Mrs. Starkweather, secretary of the women's department of the state labor bureau, will speak of "The Woman Wage Earner in Minnesota" and there is much interest in her coming as she has been identified with the legislative movements planned to improve the conditions of working women in the state.

The banquet will be served at 7 o'clock in the ball room of the Spalding and during the preceding half hour, an informal reception will be held on the same floor.

The person who has once experienced the pleasure of a cup of delicious "Salada" Tea is not easily persuaded to accept a substitute.

HOUGHTON PLANS FINE PLAYHOUSE

Preliminary Steps to Erect Structure Costing $75,000.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—An opera house to cost $75,000, to be one of the finest playhouses north of Chicago, may be realized in this place before the end of the year if the preliminary steps taken at a meeting held this week materialize.

At the meeting, which was attended by a number of the more prominent business men of Houghton, $25,000 was subscribed for this purpose, and it is said that a desirable site for the theater on Shelden street was promised.

Business men of Houghton argue that the city is large enough to support a good sized theater. They hold that Houghton now furnishes two-thirds of the audiences which attend the attractions at Hancock, and that this money might well be kept at home.

The promoters believe that little difficulty will be encountered in raising the remainder of the funds required to build a $75,000 opera house. If the old plan of selling tickets for the opening night at $5 and $10 fails to bring in the necessary amount, the theater can be bonded for the sum needed, and there is little fear as to the playhouse's paying dividends.

Little May and Naughty Kitty Puss.

BY MAUD WALKER.

LITTLE MAY and Kitty Puss were the best of friends. Little May was seven years old and Kitty Puss was six months old. But they were chums, regardless of the difference in age. But, of course, looking at their respective ages in the true sense there was not any difference, for a cat is as old at six months as a human being is at seven years of age. Therefore, one might say Little May and Kitty Puss were of an age.

Little May had found Kitty Puss in the street one day three months before this story opens, and had taken her up and carried her home, feeding her some warm milk and a bit of scraped meat. And from that day to the present one the little stray kitten and the dear good-hearted little girl had been on the best of terms. When Little May would run home from school in the afternoon Kitty Puss was sure to greet her as soon as she opened the hall door, and would look up into her little chum's face as if to say: "Dear Little May, I have been so lonely without you. Come, let's have a romp." And Little May, understanding Kitty Puss' desire, would stroke her pretty gray fur coat and go with her into the big dining-room, where they would have a game at ball.

Now, did you ever hear of a kitten playing ball with any person? Well, Kitty Puss would play ball with Little May. But it was not the toss-and-catch sort of ball game. Their method of play was this: Little May would get the ball—a tiny rubber one—and would sit on the floor and roll it about the room, Kitty Puss running after it in the gayest mood possible. Of course, Little May had a string—a bit of twine—tied about the ball so that she could pull it back to her as soon as Kitty Puss was about to grasp it in her little furry paws. But sometimes Kitty Puss was too quick for Little May, and would get the ball in her paws, holding it and rolling over and over in great excitement. And then it was that the game was full of fun for both players, Kitty Puss trying to hold on to the ball and Little May determined to get it away from her.

Thus had Little May and Kitty Puss played ball every evening for many, many weeks. And as both had grown so fond of the game they looked forward to it each day with happy anticipation.

But there came a day of disappointment to Little May. On returning home in the afternoon after school she did not find her little four-footed chum waiting for her in the hall. She looked about for her in vain. Then, going towards the dining-room, where they always had their game of ball, the room being so big and without too much furniture, she called: "Kitty Puss! Kitty Puss! Kitty Puss! Where are you? Come, here I am—your chum, May. Come, let's have our game of ball. Kitty Puss! Kitty Puss! Kitty Puss!"

But no Kitty Puss responded to Little May's call, and the little girl ran from room to room, calling to her playmate. But no Kitty Puss was to be found. At last Little May went to the kitchen, asking cook if she had seen her kitten. "Ah, yes, I saw the little beast running down the cellar steps awhile ago. Likely she's down there looking for a mouse. I called to her to come out, but she didn't mind me, so I shut the door and left her down there."

"Ah, Sally, how could you have shut the poor dear in the cellar?" exclaimed Little May. And she ran to the cellar door and opened it, calling gently: "Come, Kitty Puss. Here I am, ready and waiting to have our game of ball. Come, Kitty Puss."

But no Kitty Puss appeared. Little May, fearing something had happened to her pet, ran down the cellar steps as fast as she could and began hunting about among boxes and barrels and baskets for her. Pretty soon she espied a dark little object run across the cellar floor at her very feet, and in close pursuit ran Kitty Puss. "Ah, and so you are after a mouse, are you?" cried Little May, trying to come between the small beast of prey and her tiny victim. "Ah, how naughty you are, Kitty Puss, to be trying to kill that poor helpless mouse!"

But the mouse had run behind some boxes that stood only a few inches from the wall and Kitty Puss had squeezed her own little body into the narrow space, catching the mouse between her sharp teeth. A woeful little squeak made Little May know that the victim was caught, and that it was also being tortured. "Kill that poor thing this instant, you naughty, naughty cat!" cried Little May, trying to get hold of Kitty Puss' back, but failing in the attempt. "I say kill that poor little mouse this instant, and put it out of its suffering," repeated Little May, shaking her fist at Kitty Puss.

But Kitty Puss paid no attention to her little mistress' command. Indeed, this was Kitty Puss' first mouse, and she meant to make the most of her victorious catch. So she crept into a larger space beneath a table which was so closely surrounded by boxes and barrels that it was almost impossible for Little May to reach her. And there she toyed with and tortured her poor suffering little victim till at last Little May reached her with the end of an old mop stick which she had found in a corner, and which she quickly pressed into use as a weapon. Thump, thump, thump! went the big stick on Kitty Puss' back, and you would better believe she hurried to make short work of her prey, for she didn't like being thumped by such a hard stick in the hand of so angry a little mistress.

After killing the mouse outright, Kitty Puss sat down to devour it. But Little May would not permit this, and poking Kitty Puss with the big stick she forced her to leave the body of her victim and to rush out of her corner. Then up the cellar stairs Little May chased her, declaring that she meant to punish her for her naughtiness.

The cook, overhearing the threats of Little May, came to Kitty Puss' rescue, inquiring: "W'y, what's all the racket about, Miss May? Has the kitten been in the cream jar?"

"No; if it had only been the cream jar I wouldn't have minded, for the cream jar can't feel," said Little May, stepping up into the kitchen. "But she had a dear little mouse and she was torturing it, and she's a naughty cat, and I mean to break her of that cruel habit."

The jolly fat cook laughed and laughed, and then said: "Why, child, it's human nature for a cat to ketch a mouse. If your cat is good for anything she'll rid the cellar of them pesky mice. You should enjoy having her do her duty."

"Duty!" And Little May looked with scorn at the big cook's merry red face. Then she continued: "I guess you'd not think it a cat's duty to rid the cellar of mice—if you were a mouse and merely coming out of your dark little house to find a bite to eat. Bah! You are as cruel as Kitty Puss." And Little May tossed her curls and stamped her feet.

"Then we must let the nasty mice overrun our cellar just because they are hungry and because it's cruel for the cat to catch them?" cook asked, seriously.

"I don't mind your catching the mice with traps that kill them instantly," declared Little May. "They are not frightened nor tortured that way. But a cat—oh, a cat is so cruel! And I'll punish naughty Kitty Puss for her cruelty, so I will. She shan't have a game of ball this day, and never again must she be allowed in the cellar. That is my order, Sally, and please remember it." And pretty, good-hearted Little May walked high-headed out of the kitchen. "That old Sally is as hard-hearted as a savage," she said to herself. "I only wish she were a mouse for just one minute and that a cat would get her cornered and give her a good scare—and maybe a bit of a bite, too. After that I guess she'd have some sympathy for the poor little mice that are so helpless."

Then Little May went to tell her mamma about the naughtiness of Kitty Puss and to ask for advice in her management of her in future, and how to break her of her desire to be cruel to the poor little mice that never did her a bit of harm.

Sleighing.

Children's voices singing
To sleigh-bells merry ringing,
As a-down the country road
They go,
Cold and wind defying,
As they go a-flying
In the big bob-sled across
The snow.

The driver is big Billy,
Beside him sits fair Tilly;
Both join in the song that's sung
So gay.
And from the hills surrounding
You catch the echo bounding
Of voices of the youngsters in
The hay.

Thus goes the bob-sled, swinging,
With merry children singing,
A happy sight for mortals'
Weary eyes;
Sweet youth and wholesome pleasure
To fill an hour's leisure,
An anthem fit to reach the Very skies.

Billy the Brick.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE. JR.

A GROUP of boys were chatting at the corner of the street. School had just been dismissed for the day and the group of boys referred to had stopped to discuss some question of interest to them before going to their respective homes. As they stood there in conversation one of their school fellows hurried past them, not pausing to speak. "Hello, there, Billy!" called out one of the group, hailing the hurrying boy. "Hello," came back the response. But Billy did not take the time to turn his head as he replied to his comrade's salutation.

"Say, what's your hurry, Bill?" cried another of the group. "Can't you stop long enough in your mad career to treat us fellows with respect?"

"No, I'm in a hurry," called out Billy, turning a corner and disappearing from sight. Then the group of boys laughed and one of them remarked: "I never saw such a fellow as Bill Duncan. He never has time after school to chat a moment, but runs off as if the Great Tempter were at his heels and about to nab him for the lower regions. I wonder what he's so busy about, anyway?"

"Search me," laughed another of the boys, using an expression in slang that meant so much to those familiar with its meaning. All laughed at this, and another boy said: "Well, I don't like such a fellow as Bill. He's too busy to have any fun. The other day I asked him if he'd like to join our Saturday morning skating club, and he shook his head, saying he had not time. Now, wouldn't that take the cake?"

"Oh, well, we've a large enough club without him," said one of the first speakers. "He's always so hard up for money that he'd probably have no skates, and want to be borrowing ours all the time. I guess his folks are very poor."

"All you've got to do is to look at his hat and overcoat," said the second speaker. "They tell of his financial standing."

All the boys laughed at this, and one remarked: "Gee, Ned, you use all-fired big language for a small potato. 'Financial standing.' That's good enough for a banker's kid. But, say, what are we going to do about our contemplated skating carnival, eh? Will it be too much of a white elephant on our hands to attempt anything so huge?"

"Course not," declared the boy called Ned. "We'll have it on a Saturday night, and I'll wager my new skates it will be a success."

Then the boys proceeded to discuss the plans for a skating carnival which was to take place in the near future, forgetting Billy Duncan for the time.

And forgotten Billy Duncan was just turning into the gate of his own home at that very minute, saying to himself: "Wish I had more time to spend in the company of the boys; but at present I must not think about it. Too much depends on me just now, and I must not shirk my work. Gee, it's cold, and threatens another blizzard. And I must complete my plan before another bad spell of weather." Then he bounded into the plain sitting-room of his home, crying to a pale-faced woman who was sitting close to a small heating stove: "Hello, Mamsy! How are you this afternoon? Hope the old cough hasn't been bothering you as it did yesterday afternoon."

The woman, sweet faced and delicate, looked up at her robust boy, smiling and answering: "Ever so much better today, Sonny. How rosy you look, dear. Come and kiss me." And she held up her cheek to receive the resounding kiss of her only child, and one whom she adored with an intense love.

"Well, I'll stir up the fire; then I must hurry off, for I must not be a minute late at my work, Mamsy," explained Billy. "If Daddy gets home before I do, just set the supper without me, for Daddy is always so tired, and must not wait for me. Poor old Dad! Hope I'll be able some day to relieve him of so much responsibility."

"You're a noble boy, Billy," said the mother, in low, feeling tones. "Were it not for your helpfulness I don't think it would be possible for us to pull through since the reduction in your father's salary. It was small enough at best; but now it just meets our daily expenses, without a cent being left over to use for an emergency fund."

Three hours later, while his parents were seated at a frugal supper, Billy bounded into the room with a shout of joy. "Dad!" he cried, rushing over to his father, "I haven't only received my month's wages, but have something for you besides. The president of the company asked me today if you were at liberty to accept a new position. It seems, from what he said to me, that he had been making inquiry about me, and found out that you had been a railroad man a few years ago. He said he had looked up your record and wanted a capable man, and that was your reputation. He wants to see you at his private office tomorrow evening after your day's work is done. And here is my month's wages," he added, taking a small roll of money from his pocket. "They were much pleased with my work, saying that I did as much for them in the three hours each evening as the other boy—whose place I am filling—did in a day. And during the vacation they are to put me on regularly, giving me the chance to rise. Isn't that great, Dad and Mamsy?"

And Billy, enthusiastically happy, dropped into a chair, his face radiant.

"Son, you are a brick!" declared Mr. Duncan. "Yes, indeed, I shall be glad to talk with your company's president and take the new position he will have to offer me, for I am good at nothing except my old trade—railroading. Hope it's in the freight department. I don't know anything else."

"Exactly, Dad," affirmed Billy. Then, turning to his mother he dropped his voice to tender tones: "And Mamsy, you'll get ready tomorrow to go to Aunt Grace's down South, where you will stay all winter. You won't cough down there. And Dad and I will look after each other while you are away. You know I have all my last month's money in the savings bank. That, added to this (Billy spread his roll of money on the table in front of his mother) will take you to Aunt Grace's and leave about a dollar over. Now, don't say a word, Mamsy, for you've got to go. That's been my reason for working every evening after school instead of playing with the other boys. I knew you had to get to a warmer climate, for the cold months."

"He's more than a brick," murmured Mrs. Duncan, her eyes swimming. "He's a hero, and my darling."

Billy bounded into the room with a shout of joy.

His Son's Choice.

"Pa," said the little boy, after long silence in the crib, "when I'm a man will I be a twin?"

"Yes, just the same. Don't you want to be?"

"I don't care. I don't want to be a Chinaman."

"Were you afraid you would be?"

"No—o. And I don't want to be a soldier."

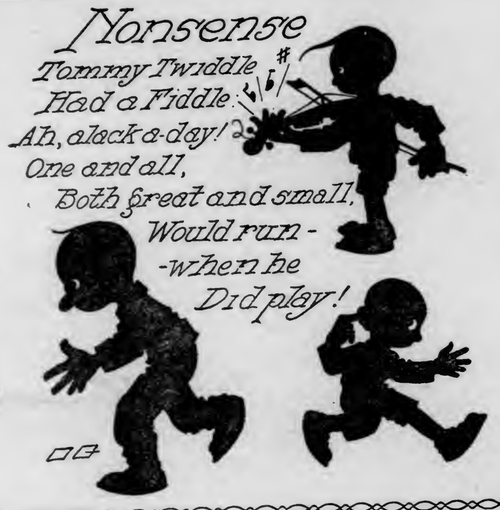

"What do you want to be?"

"I think I'd like to be a storekeeper and a father."

"Oh, you want to be a father, do you?"

"Yes, and a storekeeper. Then I'd have lots of money and could give it to my little boys."

Silence from pa.

How a Sculptor Works.

A good many people who have never seen the inside of a sculptor's studio suppose that he chips his statues out of blocks of marble. As a matter of fact, the sculptor rarely works upon the marble except to give a few finishing touches to his creation.

He makes, to begin with, a small model of his subject in wax. Then, if the completed work is to be of considerable size, an iron framework is constructed to support it. On this framework the sculptor builds up and fashions a full-size copy in clay of his wax model. His work, generally speaking, ends here. The rest belongs to his assistants, who are skilled mechanics.

The clay figure, when hard, is covered with plaster of paris. When the plaster has set, the clay is dug out and the hollow plaster case remaining is used as a model for casting a plaster replica of the sculptor's handiwork.

This cast, in turn, is used either as a model for casting in bronze, or as a model for copying in marble. The copying process is purely mechanical, though it requires great skill and care. It is done by taking a great multitude of measurements from the plaster and drilling holes to the required depth in the block of marble. The marble is then chipped away to the depth of the drill holes, and the carver proceeds to copy the details of the work from the original, under the supervision of the sculptor.

Little Boy Brown and His Long Journey.

BY HELENA DAVIS.

LITTLE Boy Brown lived in the country, ever so far from town. But Little Boy Brown had heard of the wonders of the town, which was really quite a city, for in its streets were numerous electric street cars, running everywhere and never stopping anywhere. And many, many thousands of people walked up and down the pavements, forever walking and walking, but never seeming to reach their places of destination.

Now, Little Boy Brown had been in another town, a town in a state far from the one where he now lived, but that town was a tiny place, having only a few streets and a few people. And for that reason Little Boy Brown was very, very anxious to visit the Big Town, of which he had heard so much since he had come with his mamma and papa to live in their new home.

Gertrude and Fred Brown, sister and brother to Little Boy Brown, had told him about the wonders of the Big Town, but hearing was not seeing. So Little Boy Brown thought. And Gertrude and Fred had gone to the Big Town to spend the winter attending a school there, for the little district school near to the farm where they lived hardly met with their requirements. The fact is, Gertrude was 16 and Fred 14, and both were in the High School in the Big Town. The little district country school had no High Grade, and both Gertrude and Fred were very, very far advanced in books. Gertrude studied Latin and Fred meant to do so in a very short time. So, of course, being so old and big and advanced, Gertrude and Fred were sent to the Big Town to further their education.

And that left Little Boy Brown the only child on the farm. Not that he ever thought of Big Sister and Big Brother as being children. No, to Little Boy Brown they were quite as big and smart as papa and mamma. But they often condescended to come down from their high dignity and play with Baby Brother. So when they went away from home to attend the High School Little Boy Brown felt very, very lonely. And then came his great desire to see the Big Town and the High School, the latter place a mystery in the mind of Little Boy Brown. Owing to its being called the "High School," Little Boy Brown supposed it was a house in the air somehow, high above the other houses. Just how it was held thus suspended in midair Little Boy Brown had no idea. That was the mystery, you see, that he had to solve. And it could not be solved till Little Boy Brown visited the Big Town and the High School. Then he would know. All this was in Little Boy Brown's mind as he sat by the window one delightful January day. Although the weather was pretty cold, the sun shone gloriously bright, and to Little Boy Brown, who sat in a warm room, the day seemed to be almost summer. The chickens were running about the yard, the old turkey gobbler was strutting with spread wings, glorifying the bright day with his gobble, gobble, gobble. In fact, the whole out-of-doors aspect was most pleasing. And so Little Boy Brown decided it would be a good day on which to visit the Big Town.

And everything was in his favor, too, for no one was there to say him nay. His papa and mamma had gone to a neighbor's farm to see the neighbor's wife, who was ill, and they would not return till in the afternoon. Jane, the woman-of-all-work, was busy churning in the kitchen, and as soon as she was through with that work she would attend to baking some bread which Little Boy Brown had seen her molding into loaves for baking. And Little Boy Brown remembered that not one word had his parents said to Jane about "keeping an eye on Baby during their absence from home." Usually Jane was thus instructed when the master and mistress left the place to her and Little Boy Brown. But on the morning of this story they had merely said to Little Boy Brown at parting: "Be a good boy, Baby, till mamma and papa get back." Then kissing him (they always did that when leaving him for a little while), they had hurried away, calling out to Jane that they would not return till in the afternoon.

With a cry of delight Little Boy Brown ran to meet the vehicle.

"All day alone!" Thus thought Little Boy Brown. Then his mind flew to the Big Town where Gertrude and Fred were in the High School. Ah, what a day to go there!

Half an hour after the parents of Little Boy Brown had taken their leave from home their youngest child was getting into his overcoat and cap and mittens, preparatory for a journey.

And just as Jane was fixing the fire in the big kitchen range for baking the bread, Little Boy Brown was going out at the front door and running down the lane that led to the big public road. Once on that road he turned in the direction of the Big Town. He had seen Gertrude and Fred going that way the day his papa took them in the buggy to the Big Town. So he knew he was on the right road, and going in the right direction. After walking briskly for half an hour Little Boy Brown came to a bridge. And after crossing the bridge he was surprised to see two plain roads leading from it at the farther end. What should he do? Should he turn to the right, or to the left? For one road led almost directly east, while the other turned towards the west. For a minute he stood irresolute. Then he decided to take the road which he could trace to the farthest point. The road to the right dropped over a hill, and Little Boy Brown thought it might end there. But the other road ran on for a long, long way, growing so narrow that it seemed to turn into a mere dark thread, traceable through the snow.

So the choice was made, and Little Boy Brown stalked on, not going quite as rapidly, however, as at first. The fact was he was getting a bit tired. He felt that he must be almost at the Big Town, for he had come such a long, long way. At least, he thought he had come a long way.

He reached the top of a very long hill, one he had unconsciously climbed. Then he looked into a deep valley below, one traversed by a river, broad and deep, and by a thread which Little Boy Brown knew to be a railroad. Yes, it was a sure enough railroad, for there, coming round a wooded hill in the distance was a puffing engine and a train of cars. But at the distance they—engine and train—were like mere toys. Little Boy Brown stood spellbound at the vast scene before him in that great valley which spread on and on for miles and miles. And way down in its very center the road he was following became lost in hedgerows, which ran every which way, crossing each other so frequently that the ground looked like a vast checkerboard. But nowhere could Little Boy Brown see the Big Town where Gertrude and Fred were attending the High School.

The disappointed little fellow was on the point of crying, when he saw coming up the long, sloping hill a top-buggy, drawn by a black horse. He batted back the tears and determined to remain where he was till the buggy should come up to him. Then he would ask the driver to direct him to the Big Town. Undoubtedly, he had turned into the wrong road at the bridge.

Slowly, very slowly, so thought the waiting Little Boy Brown, came the black horse and buggy to the top of the hill, and soon the little wayfarer discerned that the vehicle held two occupants. One was a woman, the other a man. And a few seconds later he saw to his sudden joy that the woman was his own dear mother, and the man was his own dear father.

With a cry of delight Little Boy Brown ran to meet the approaching vehicle, waving his arms in ecstasy. "Oh, Papa!—Mamma!—it's your Little Boy!" he cried.

Then the buggy stopped and in another second Little Boy Brown's mother had him in her lap, and both father and mother were questioning him regarding his being picked up away out there on that lonely hill, three miles from home.

"Oh, I thought I'd come a hundred miles!" cried Little Boy Brown. "I got lonely at home, and thought I'd go to the Big Town and find Gertrude and Fred at the High School. But—I'm glad to be going home again."

"Why, dear child," said the mother, wrapping the warm fur laprobe about Little Boy Brown's feet and legs, "you would have been lost. You were going in the wrong direction to reach town. And just think of what might have happened to you had not papa and I come along at this minute. Why, my Little Boy Brown might have wandered so far away that we never would have found him. And what would have become of him then?"

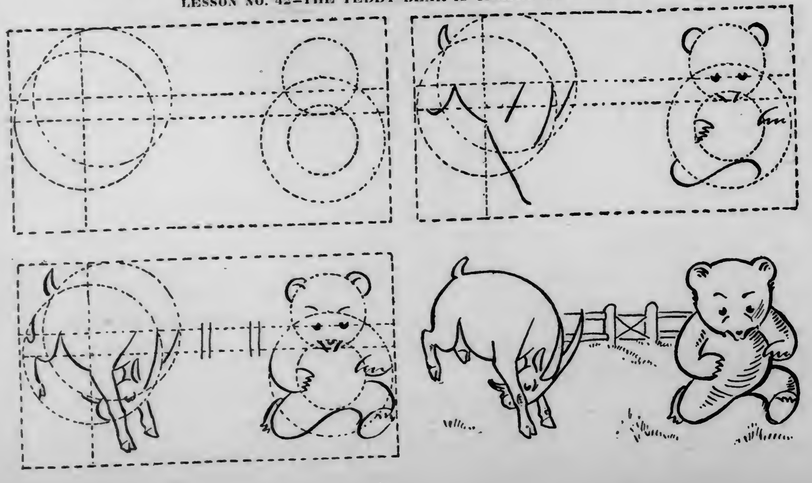

Little Boy Brown became very serious as the truth of the situation was thus presented to him, and he was thankful in his heart that his parents had come in time to save him from being forever lost. He shuddered at the thought, declaring fervently: "I'll never, never go off to hunt for the Big Town again 'less I have papa or mamma with me."

"I'll take you to the Big Town next Saturday, son," promised papa. "I've got to go there to look after Gertie and Fred, and you may bear me company."

"Ah, and then I'll get to see the High School," cried Little Boy Brown, clapping his hands. "But just now I'm anxious to get home. I want my dinner. Ugh! walking so far makes a feller hungry."

LESSON NO. 42—THE TEDDY BEAR IS CHASED BY A GOAT.

OUR PUZZLE CORNER

LETTER ENIGMA.

My first is in man, but not in boy;
My second is in play, but not in toy;
My third is in river, but not in lake;
My fourth is in yeast, but not in bake;
My fifth is in lumber, but not in pine;
My sixth you will find in my second line;
My seventh is in nut, but not in crack;
My eighth is in dark, but not in black;
My whole spells the name
Of an Eastern state,
And its place in history
Is very great.

HIDDEN PROVERB PUZZLE.

The words necessary to form a well-known proverb will be found in the following seven sentences, each sentence containing but one word of the proverb:

Every cloud has a silver lining.
Good deeds are rarer than diamonds.
Live so that your name shall be above reproach.
Freedom in its fullest sense is unknown.
It is better to be a poor honest man than a rich rascal.
Better a cottage with love than a palace without it.
True riches are not to be found in money bags.

WOULD PUT MISSION WORK ON A BUSINESS BASIS

An Interdenominational Committee Is to be Formed Here.

A Laymen's Missionary Movement is Launched in Duluth.

An interdenominational committee which will contain five or six members from each of the Duluth churches, will be formed here tomorrow to represent the local branch of the Laymen's Missionary Movement.

The meeting is called at the Spalding hotel at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon by Lyman L. Pierce, general secretary of the movement. David P. Jones, ex-Mayor of Minneapolis and chairman of the Minneapolis committee, will be present tomorrow, as will Harry W. Jones, a commissioner of the movement, who has been in the mission fields studying the work; Dr. W. D. Lawrence, an Episcopal layman, who is vice president of the Minneapolis committee, and J. M. Anderson, a member of the executive committee of the movement.

These men will tell the Duluth people who are interested in the formation of the local branch just what the movement is. Some of these men will occupy the pulpits of Duluth churches during the morning.

The Plan of Work.

The object of the Laymens' Missionary movement, as presented by General Secretary Pierce, is primarily a work of education. The movement is unique, in that it does not ask for a single cent in contributions. The men behind the movement are business men who desire to put the work of evangelization of the millions of unchristian peoples, upon a thorough business basis. To accomplish this end they have first begun a campaign of investigation. When this preliminary work is completed, they will place the results before the various churches of North America, confident that their work will receive its reward in a renewed interest among the various church workers in foreign missionary work.

The organization was formed Nov. 15, 1906. The real cause for the movement, was the fact that most of the work of carrying on the foreign missionary work has devolved upon the women of the various churches. People contribute in a general way, without knowledge or method of what they are contributing toward, and the whole missionary work in many respects has been lacking in business methods. It was to remedy this defect that the Laymen's Missionary movement was formed.

Sixty commissioners of the movement have been in the foreign missionary fields investigating the conditions there, and their report has been received by the executive committee of the organization. They have gone at their own expense, have made a thorough, businesslike investigation of the conditions as they found them, and this information will eventually be laid before the various churches in this country and Canada.

It is the plan of the executive committee to have branches of the organization in every city and town in the country. The work of organizing these committees in Minnesota is being taken up at the present time. Interdenominational committees, with representatives from all the churches, have been formed both in Minneapolis and St. Paul. Duluth is the next Minnesota city that will have the attention of the organization, through the person of General Secretary Pierce.

There will be a conference of these committees and of laymen in general in Minneapolis, Feb. 4 to 7, and it is desired to organize the Duluth committee so that this city will be represented at this conference.

Although the organization is very young and is only beginning the work, one of the notable results accomplished is the fact that though every other country fell off very heavily last year in the contributions to the foreign missionary cause, the United States contributed over $600,000 more than the previous year, despite the business depression.

Mr. Pierce will take charge of the meeting tomorrow, and the gentlemen from Minneapolis will tell of the results of the work in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and some of the results of the investigations into the foreign missionary field.

CHRISTMAS IN GREEK CHURCH

Three Days' Feast Is Drawing to a Close.

When the Christmas of the Gregorian calendar is but a memory, the children are tiring of their toys and the elders are settling back after the holiday season, the Christmas of the Julian calendar comes for the celebration of the people of the Orthodox Greek church.

The Christmas of the Julian calendar falls on Jan. 7 and the Russians and Greeks of Duluth are just ending three days of feasting. Belated as they are in celebrating in this country, they spare nothing in the celebration, which has all the characteristics of the American observance of the feast recognized in this country.

There is no Greek orthodox church in Duluth, but there are many people of that faith and they religiously pass by the Christmas of the Gregorian calendar to celebrate two weeks later. There is feasting in Greek and Russian homes for three days, parties, and open house, and in cities, where the people of the faith have churches, the usual religious services mark the observance.

Day and Night School

Has re-opened at the Duluth Business University with a large enrollment of new members, and 1909 promises to be the most prosperous year in the history of the college. As the instruction given in all departments is chiefly on the individual plan, students may begin with equal advantage at any time. Present location 105-7 West Superior street, 118 Fourth avenue west after Feb. 1.

JOBBERS OPPOSE EXPRESS FIRMS

Association Would Have Them Abolished—Elects Gees President.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Legislation abolishing express companies and equipment companies would meet with the approval of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association, which has closed its annual meeting here, and a resolution was passed pledging each member to do his utmost to help along any measure to this effect, which may be introduced in congress.

The association favors forcing the common carriers to deal directly with the public, thus doing away with the middleman and his profit. The association took the ground that no corporation has a right to purchase transportation from the railroad and peddle it out to the public at a higher rate. A memorial to this effect will be presented to congress.

A middle course between the wishes of the importers and the fruit growers was adopted in regard to the tariff on foreign fruit and nuts. No change in this tariff is to be requested.

The following officers were elected: R. W. Gees, Kansas City, president; J. M. Walker, Denver, first vice president; Samuel E. Linx, Topeka, second vice president; R. G. Moyer, Des Moines, third vice president; H. B. Knudson, Duluth, sergeant-at-arms. Denver was selected for the next annual meeting.

FEARS ROBBERY, KILLS WOMAN

Shot Nearly Tears Bride's Head From Her Body.

Iliff, Colo., Jan. 9.—Fearing he was about to be robbed, Karl Tsarch, a Russian living near here, fired a load of shot at Henry Tucker and his bride of two months, who had stopped at his cabin to inquire if he wanted work. The shot tore Mrs. Tucker's head nearly off her body, and Tucker was wounded slightly.

Tsarch walked to a neighbor's house and told what he had done, explaining that he had $600 concealed in the house, and that he thought the Tuckers were robbers. He then disappeared.

LAMB AND VEAL HIGHER.

Increased Cost of Poultry Stimulated Consumption of These Cuts.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 9.—The highest prices paid in years will be paid this winter for lamb and veal cuts if the present advancing tendency of values continues. Although veal and lamb always have been favorite meats with the consumers during the holidays, the fact that poultry prices were so high served greatly to increase the consumption of these cuts and stocks in packers' coolers underwent a most severe depletion. To accentuate this increased demand from consumers, supplies did not come from the country as freely as usual.

TOBACCO DEAL WITH SPAIN DECLARED OFF.

Clarksville, Tenn., Jan. 9.—The deal between the Tobacco Growers' association and the Spanish government for all the lugs held by the association is off, and this type of tobacco, which has been held off the market since negotiations for the entire lot have been pending, has been thrown on the market. The reason is that a better average can be secured by selling each hogshead separately. The association has been offered five cents a pound for all lug holdings, but this it has refused.

SPECIAL MEETING.

West Duluth Commercial Club Will Discuss Charter.

It was announced last night at the regular weekly meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club, that a special meeting will be held next Friday night, with a smoker following, for the purpose of discussing the proposed charter amendments. The regular business of the club will be dispensed with on that evening, and it is urged that all members be present.

Last evening the annual election of officers was held, W. B. Getchell being elected president. The other officers were as follows:

Vice president, E. J. Zauft; secretary George M. Crulkshank; treasurer, L. A. Barnes; directors, H. H. Phelps, David Sang, M. M. Clark, J. J. Frey, P. H. Martin, C. M. Brooks, Andrew Miles, F. W. Jolitz, Thomas Olafson and S. W. Korth.

A committee was also appointed to draw up a set of resolutions, expressing the members' regret at the death of O. S. Olson, who was one of the most prominent and active in the club's affairs. The committee will report at the next meeting.

DEMOCRATS ORGANIZE.

Will Try to Elect Lucien Merritt in Seventh Ward.

The Democrats of the Seventh ward met last evening at the office of M. J. Filiatrault and organized for a systematic campaign to elect Lucien Merritt, alderman from that ward.

Joseph Gibson was placed in command of the ward, and under him the following men were given precincts to canvass: No. 1, Edward Rudberg; No. 2, Lennis Morrow; No. 3, William Bernard; No. 4, Conrad Wicklund; No. 5, M. J. Filiatrault.

The meeting last evening was the second that has been held by the precinct officers. A mass meeting will be held later to promote the candidacy of Mr. Merritt.

WILL REOPEN MILL.

Night and Day Shifts at Virginia Lumber Company's Plant.

According to S. J. Cusson of the Virginia & Rainy Lake Lumber company, that company's mill at West Duluth will be started up after Feb. 1 with night and day shifts.

Both of the company's mills at Virginia are working double crews. The shipping of logs to the West Duluth mill will be started immediately. The starting up of the mill will give employment to about 200 men.

West Duluth Churches.

Rev. J. G. Leitch will fill the pulpit of Westminster Presbyterian church, Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

At the West Duluth Baptist church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Grand avenue, Arthur J. Hoag, the pastor, will preach at both services tomorrow. At 10:30, "Christ, the Giver of Life" will be his subject, and at 7:45 "The Penniless Widow," the seventh in the series on "The People Whom Jesus Praised." Sunday school will meet at noon, and B. Y. P. U. at 6:45.

At the Merritt Memorial M. E. church, Forty-sixth avenue west and Halifax street, Rev. E. F. Stidd, pastor, will preach at 10 o'clock, on the subject, "Christianity's Greater Works." In the evening at 7:45 o'clock the pastor will preach on "Reality of God." Sunday school will meet at 10 o'clock in the morning, and Epworth league at 6:45 o'clock in the evening.

At the Asbury M. E. church, Sixtieth avenue west and Raleigh street, Rev. Thomas Grice will preach at both services, at 10:30 and 7:30 o'clock. There will be special music. Sunday school will meet at 11:45 and Epworth league at 6:45 o'clock.

At the Holy Apostle Episcopal church, Fifty-ninth avenue west, Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, the rector, will preach at 10:45 o'clock in the morning on the subject, "Bargaining or Serving." Sunday school will be held immediately after the service, with William Cowden as superintendent.

At Immanuel's Lutheran Church of the Synod there will be services in the evening conducted in the English language. The pastor, Rev. B. A. Johnson, will preach. Sunday school will meet at the usual hour in the morning.

West Duluth Briefs.

Mrs. C. A. Steller, who has been confined to her home for the past two weeks as the result of a fall, is now improving.

OVERHEAD APPROACH

Great Northern Will Secure Line to the Interstate Bridge.

Duluth Transfer Company Plans Double Track Elevated Approach.

Now that the Soo road has won its fight before the city council for the approach to the Interstate bridge the Great Northern, which lost out before the council, is preparing to approach the bridge from another direction by means of a steel trestle.

Condemnation proceedings were filed by the Duluth Terminal railroad, which is a subsidiary to the Great Northern, in district court this morning for an approach from the present track of the Duluth Terminal railroad to the Interstate bridge. The petition asks that appraisers be appointed by the court to appraise the land desired by the railroad for the construction of the approach.

The Duluth Terminal railroad at present runs from the union depot, along the bay shore and Rice's Point to the Northern Pacific bridge. The petition sets forth that the traffic over the Northern Pacific bridge is already so great, and is increasing in such volume, that an approach to the Duluth-Superior bridge is a necessity to the Terminal company. It expresses the intention of building a double track, steel elevated approach, branching off from the present line of the road at Maple street, in Cox avenue, crossing Ole, Pine and Spruce avenues, and running to the dock line.

According to the petition, the overhead approach will be twenty-two feet above the surface of the ground at its most elevated portion, and will at all points be high enough for the passage of Northern Pacific trains, street cars, vehicles of all kinds, and pedestrians.

The proposed approach will be the result of the Great Northern's defeat before the council, and will be a more expensive undertaking than would have been necessary had the franchise been obtained. It will join the line to be built by the Soo road under the franchise, and, with other roads, the Great Northern will have access to the bridge.

The Soo put up its fight before the council on the ground that if the Great Northern were given the franchise for the approach, it might not avail itself of it immediately, and there would be no means of access to the bridge open to the Soo road. The move today indicates an intention on the part of the Great Northern to secure an approach to the bridge, regardless of the council action.

IMPROVING CONDITIONS

Prof. Haecker Says Dairying Is Achieving Progress on Range.

Model Creamery Will be Established by Farmers Near Virginia..

That the work of men interested in better dairy conditions in the northern part of the state has borne fruit, is shown in the determination of the farmers in the vicinity of Virginia to establish a model creamery.

Prof. T. L. Haecker of the Minnesota College of Agriculture, who is in Duluth today, has been upon the range assisting in the movement at Virginia for the establishment of a creamery, and he says that the farmers there are impressed with the idea that they stand in great need of such a thing and that the work of organizing the company has been taken up.

Prof. Haecker says the milk from the farms in the vicinity of Virginia is very bad. Proper care of the milk is not taken and the farmers have not the proper facilities for handling their dairy products. The establishment of a creamery, such as the farmers near Virginia propose, would go a long way in improving the milk supply of that part of the range, according to the professor.

Dairy conditions in this part of the state are gradually improving, according to the statement of the professor today. The work of the men interested in the progress of the dairy industry is showing results, in that the cattle are being improved, creameries are being established and through the circulation of literature relating to dairying subjects the farmers are obtaining a thorough knowledge of dairying methods and are taking advantage of this knowledge to better their own conditions.

Prof. Haecker is of the opinion that an agricultural school in this part of the state would be a splendid thing for the agricultural interests here, and would result in a greater interest being taken in dairying and general farming.

TO BREAK DEADLOCK

Illinois Republican Committee Will Hold a Meeting Soon.

Governor Deneen Will Prepare Statement for Presentation.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—The Republican state committee has been called to meet here next Tuesday morning to take action along party lines relative to the proposed contest on the governorship and the breaking of the deadlock between the house and senate.

Chairman Roy O. West talked to Governor Deneen, who is in Chicago, over the long distance 'phone today, and informed the executive of his determination to call the meeting. Deneen said he would likely prepare a statement for presentation to the state committee.

In the opinion of the governor the two houses will agree some time next week upon a plan to govern the action of the joint caucus and when this is accomplished the executive thinks the deadlock will be broken.

Deneen, reiterated his statements that he has no fear of the result of a recount of the votes and even desires it, to clear up the uncertainity of the situation.

TILLMAN CAN'T FIND

Says Papers Bearing on Land Deal Are Gone.

Washington, Jan. 9.—In the preparation of his speech in reply to the president's charges, in connection with the secret service issue, Senator Tillman has failed to find a number of papers bearing upon the Oregon land case in connection with which the present controversy arose.

These papers, he says, were enclosed in a large envelope and were left in his private desk in his committee room at the capitol when he left Washington last March on account of his illness, but they cannot now be found.

The senate does not charge that the papers have been abstracted by a government agent who may have been shadowing him, but he says it would be possible for any such officer to gain access to his room and desk, both of which were fastened only with ordinary locks.

The papers, he says, are very important in the preparation of his case and would go far to substantiate his defense. He says that not only his desk, but that every nook and cranny of his office have been searched for the documents, but without avail.

Notwithstanding the loss of his data, Mr. Tillman expresses confidence in his ability to make satisfactory reply to the president.

"He will be hoisted by his own petard," declares Tillman.

CHINESE DIPLOMAT GOING HOME JAN. 19.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Ton Shao Yi, the Chinese ambassador who came to the United States to thank the president for the remission of a portion of the Boxer indemnity and who has been recalled, will sail from New York to Europe on his way home Jan. 19.

Tomorrow he will leave for New England and during the interval before his departure will visit friends in Massachusetts.

CARMICHAEL OUSTED FROM NEBRASKA CHURCH.

Benkelman, Neb., Jan. 9.—Rev. J. H. Carmichael, who figures in the Adair, Mich., tragedy, was pastor of the Methodist church of this place during 1895. He was severely criticised near the close of his pastorate for alleged indiscretions and his dismissal followed the bringing of charges against him.

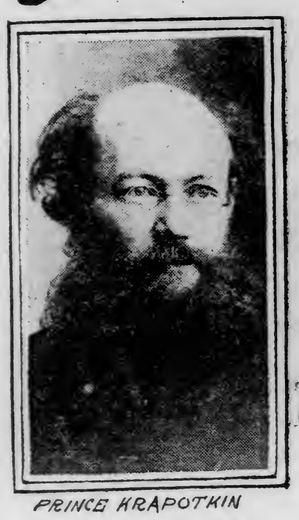

He was a member in good standing of the A. O. U. W., lodge of Benkelman.

THESE CELEBRITIES HAVE SLEPT IN PRISON CELLS

PRINCE KRAPOTKIN

AUGUST BEBEL

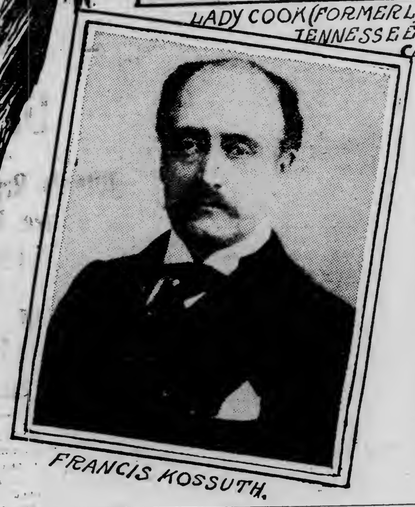

LADY COOK (FORMERLY TENNESSEE CLAFIN)

MAXIM GORKY

THE DUKE OF ORLEANS

FRANCIS KOSSUTH.

By JOHN S. HARWOOD

(Copyright, 1909, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

IMPRISONMENT frequently has brought blessings to mankind as well as suffering, misery and death. And to some of those who have experienced its ordeal it has given fame that might otherwise have been unattained. In a cell Bunyan created "Pilgrim's Progress," De Foe called "Robinson Crusoe and His Man Friday" into being; Cervantes conceived "Don Quixote," and Tasso wrote many of his immortal epics.

Nor are these fruits of the prison to be found only in times mediaeval. There are many men living today, or who have died recently, who owe much of the lustre of their names to the reflections of involuntary solitude.

Francis Kossuth, the Hungarian statesman, who again has become prominent because of the dual empire's new racial problems, growing out of its spectacular acquisition of Bosnia and Herzegovina, obtained his earliest inspiration, as did his famous father before him, in the seclusion of a dungeon.

When only 8, in the year 1849, after the downfall of his father and the defeat of the cause of Hungarian independence, the younger Kossuth was taken prisoner and consigned to a cell in the fortress at Presburg. Though only a child, the ordeal made a lifelong impression upon his mind, and awakened his love of country far more than all the fiery words of his father hitherto done.

While at Presburg, the son of the patriot was put to a test which proved there was true Kossuth blood in his veins. A handkerchief, which was discovered pinned over his heart, proved to be nothing more than a miniature Hungarian flag. He was seized forthwith and dragged into the fearful presence of the Austrian commander, who thundered:

"The boy must tear the flag to tatters, or be torn into as small bits himself."

Young Kossuth therewith took the handkerchief, opened the bosom of his shirt, and repinned the cloth over his heart.

"Take him back," muttered the commander. "I only wish he was my boy."

Francis Kossuth did not rise to leadership in the fight for his country with the swiftness, vigor and the overwhelming enthusiasm of his father. Being less of an idealist, he hesitated before determining which was the more practical course to follow. Accordingly he did not appear in Hungarian politics until long after his liberation from the Presburg prison, his exile in Asia Minor with his father, his years of education in England, his life as a civil engineer in Italy, from which he at last returned to Hungary upon his father's death in 1894, when he brought back the remains of the famous patriot, in accordance with the edict of his countrymen.

First a member of parliament, later the leader of the party of independence, Francis Kossuth rose rapidly in influence and popularity. When the Hungarian parliament resisted encroachments upon its constitutional rights, he was able to head the coalesced parties that formed the majority of the house. There is a diversity of opinion, however, as to whether the son has taken the place of the father in the hearts of the people. Some say his political sagacity is greater; others that he is lacking in depth, and affected, regarding himself as an arlstocrat of the English lord type.

Although often blamed for conceding too much in his negotiations with the ministerial party, he has persevered successfuvly in many of his efforts to obtain what the people have demanded. For example, he made a special issue of the imperial order, that the German language should be used in the Hungarian army instead of Hungarian; and resisted Emperor Francis Joseph so firmly that the latter was compelled to abandon his purpose.

The younger Kossuth frequently has said that the goal of his ambition is the absolute independence of Hungary but that this can be realized only by peaceful and legal means. Agitation and insurrection, he says, would only endanger Hungarian liberties and postpone indefinitely the day of Hungarian emancipation.

Uncle Sam's Dusky Queen Prisoner.

Even in the imprisonment of the dusky, Lilioukalani, who again has returned to Washington to press her claims against the United States, there were borne certain fruits of fame, which the Hawaiian ex-queen has treasured greatly. During the few months that she was in prison she composed a number of songs, one of which is sung by her supporters as the national anthem.

At the time of her incarceration, however, "Queen Lil," as the last of the Hawaiian rulers was known by her American born subjects regarded her plight as infamous. Indeed it was a striking contrast to her former grandeur. On being proclaimed queen on Jan. 29, 1891, upon the death of King Kalakaua, her brother, in San Francisco, she sought still further to increase the splendor of her court. Her brother, after a trip around the world in 1881, had decided that the little one-story coral abode where he and his predecessors hitherto had ruled contentedly, was too humble, even for a sovereign of only 58,000 people. Accordingly, he blossomed out in a brand new $340,000 palace.

"Queen Lil," however, had lived too long at the Palace hotel in San Francisco, and carried back to the mid-Pacific too many bargains from New York shops, to be satisfied even with the luxuries which Kink Kalakaua imported. Aspiring to more power and revenue, she attempted at last to abolish the constitution. Her own downfall was the result, being forced from this throne on Jan. 30, 1893, when a provisional government was set up and annexation to the United States proposed.

Under the extreme penalty of a $5,000 fine, and five years' hard labor, this too ambitious woman was compelled to exchange her palace for a prison, where she was not at first permitted to have even a scrap of paper to write on. But there was no peace within the four walls of the place until writing materials were supplied, and so they were.

All her imperial demands for musical instruments, however, proved unavailing, the queen even being told by one Irish guard that her playing might make the prison too popular. Accordingly, she spent her time humming the melodies that came into her head, jotting down her compositions upon paper as fast as she composed them.

Not only are the songs of the ex-queen to be heard in the land, where she once ruled, but there are regions in the United States where they long have been popular airs for the reason that many of the inhabitants came from the Hawaiian Islands as converts of Mormon missionaries. When "Queen Lil" accepted the invitation of her Mormon country folk, and visited Salt Lake city in 1904, the bands in welcome played her own compositions.

If "Queen Lil's" melodies might only persuade the United States congress to give back the million acres of crown lands she would find herself enriched to the tune of $20,000,000. On her dethronement the land was appropriated by the provisional government, which later turned it over to the United States. Although she has a small private fortune she always has insisted that she should get back her own crown lands, or an allowance equal to their old revenue. Once the Hawaiian legislature voted to give her $250,000, but Governor Dole vetoed the bill. Today she is asking congress for a beggarly $200,000 to support her in her old age.

When Lady Cook Was a Prisoner.

Two other women who have spent time in prison for political reasons, though under far different circumstances, and who have again been brought to public attention by the recent suffragette outburst in New York city, are Mrs. Victoria Claflin Woodhull Martin and her sister, Lady Frances Cook.

Last October a number of women, including Lady Cook, besieged a registration place in New York with the demand that they be permitted to enroll. Finally the police had to be summoned to quiet the excitement. As the women withdrew Lady Cook exclaimed:

"Let us at least be thankful that they do not dare arrest us, as they did when my sister and I, more than thirty years ago, tried to vote at a booth only a few doors from here."

It was in 1872 that Victoria and Tennesee Claflin, the two daughters of Reuben Claflin of Homer, Ohio, were carried off in a patrol wagon and thrown into Ludlow street jail, because they insisted upon casting the ballot. In the 1872 campaign Victoria Claflin ran for president on the woman's suffrage ticket. Both sisters were determined to vote, and so vigorously did they fight for their alleged rights at the polls that they were ordered arrested by John A. Shields, United States commissioner, and held in $8,000 each.

In Ludlow street jail the two women were confined until the newspapers began to call it persecution, and demanded that the sisters either be tried or released. On being arraigned before the commissioner the following day, Victoria Claflin stepped forward and announced he had a warrant for their arrest.

It has been the contention of the Claflin sisters that women of the United States already have the suffrage, under the constitution. Accordingly, it is the duty of the women to compel them to grant them the exercise of their rights. In 1870, when the movement began to attract public attention, Victoria Claflin, who then was about 30, became the leader and enlisted as supporters of the cause such distinguished women as Susan B. Anthony, Isabella Beecher Hooker and Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

In other ways than in politics these two unusual women have shown their desire to fill the sphere of men. Before their imprisonment they had startled New York by opening a brokerage and banking house in Wall street, known as Woodhull, Claflin & Co. Dr. Woodhull was Victoria's first husband. The sisters also studied law in their father's office, and for five years they kept the press on the qui vive by plunging in the stock market, starting lawsuits and exhorting their fellow women from the campaign platform to seize the ballot. Later they retired to England, where both married, Victoria to John Biddulph Martin, and Tennessee to Sir Francis Cook. Both are widows and wealthy. Zula Maud Woodhull, daughter of Victoria by her first marriage, has taken up her mother's work, and besides actively campaigning in the cause of woman's suffrage, she finds time to write scientific books and psychological dramas.

Rebel and Kropotkin, ex-Prisoners.

The prison often has been called upon to check the tide of Socialism; but thus far it has appeared only to strengthen the convictions of Socialistic leaders. This has been particularly true of August Bebel and Prince Kropotkin, who originally were Conservatives.

Bebel, unlike the prince, however, was cast upon his own resources early in life. Born in Cologne on Feb. 22, 1840, he lost his father when only 2 years old. After a short schooling he was apprenticed to a turner and wood carver, and at the age of 22 he threw his knapsack over his shoulder and tramped the roads of Germany in search of work. When 24 he opened a little shop of his own in Leipsic.

These were the days when the workingmen of Germany were organizing under the banner of the Social Democratic party. Bebel became converted to its principles, and entered the movement with such vigor that within only a year he became a recognized leader.

But it was not until prison gates had shut him away from the world that Bebel found opportunity to obtain that high degree of intellectual training which has made him such a power in the reichstag. He calls his fifty-seven months in imprisonment his university career. This period afforded him his first chance to study in peace and quiet. He learned to speak English, and the sisters appeared in court to get their liberty. A man suddenly approached Tennessee Claflin, now Lady Cook, and whispered that if they were bailed out they would be rearrested and committed to Jefferson Market jail, which would then be set afire.

Tennessee and her sister, Victoria, refused the offer of the strange hondsman, and hardly had they started to return to Ludlow Street jail when a bailiff of the Jefferson Market court stepped forward and announced he had a warrant for their arrest.

It has been the contention of the Claflin sisters that women of the United States already have the suffrage, under the constitution. Accordingly, it is the duty of the women to compel them to grant them the exercise of their rights. Bebel, unlike the prince, however, was cast upon his own resources early in life. Born in Cologne on Feb. 22, 1840, he lost his father when only 2 years old. After a short schooling he was apprenticed to a turner and wood carver, and at the age of 22 he threw his knapsack over his shoulder and tramped the roads of Germany in search of work. When 24 he opened a little shop of his own in Leipsic.

These were the days when the workingmen of Germany were organizing under the banner of the Social Democratic party. Bebel became converted to its principles, and entered the movement with such vigor that within only a year he became a recognized leader.

But it was not until prison gates had shut him away from the world that Bebel found opportunity to obtain that high degree of intellectual training which has made him such a power in the reichstag. He calls his fifty-seven months in imprisonment his university career. This period afforded him his first chance to study in peace and quiet. He learned to speak English, and gained a much wider knowledge of literature and history from Liebnecht, the founder of the Social Democratic party, who was a fellow-prisoner. Liebnecht was a man of unusual education, a graduate of the universities.

Behind prison bars Bebel planned his first and most successful book, "Die Frau," in which the writer takes woman's side in dealing with the industrial conditions in which the woman of today has been forced to live. This work has gone through twenty-five German editions, besides being translated into fifteen other languages. Bebel is a strong advocate of equal suffrage and equal legal rights, as a citizen, for woman, and his opinions are gaining ground in the Fatherland. He was a bitter enemy of Bismarck, and led the Socialists of the reichstag in refusing to send congratulations to the "man of blood and iron" on the eightieth birthday of the former chancellor. Bebel recently has called Emperor William insane for giving the secrets of the German war office to the press.

Kropotkin was a Conservative by inheritance. His family had claims to the Russian throne which some say are as well founded as those of the Romanoffs.

In 1873, when Kropotkin was 31, he was arrested and locked up in the dungeon of the historic St. Peter and St. Paul. Although for a time it was feared by his friends that the confinement would kill him because of his poor health, his three years' incarceration, in fact, proved a boon to his mental self. During that time he was able to write several valuable scientific articles for the Encyclopedia Brittanica, in addition to two volumes on his glacial observations. So suddenly did the Socialistic prince depart from prison that he left behind the second volume of this work. It took him twenty years to get it back.

Kropotkin found that imprisonment greatly dispressed him, because of lack of exercise. So he used the heavy stool of the cell for a ball, and would toss this from one hand to the other until fatigued. It was ten steps across the room, and by pacing back and forth a thousand times each day he figured it out that he thus walked nearly five miles.

In spite of his heroic efforts to remain well, the prince at last fell ill, and was ordered transferred to St. Nicholas hospital. There he obtained leave to walk as much as he pleased in the open courtyard. A sentinel kept watch, but indifferently because the prisoner was supposed to be dying. One day a gate was left open for gangs of men to bring in the winter supply of wood. He got word to friends outside, who posted a carriage near, and when no one was watching he darted out, jumped into the carriage and escaped.

The discovery that Kropotkin was a Socialist was even more dramatic. After serving some time in Siberia, in investigating prison conditions for the governor, he appeared at the court, until he became disgusted with its intrigue and superficialness, quarreled with his father, who cut him off, leaving him to work his way through the university himself, studied Socialism and Anarchism in Switzerland, as well as its glaciers, and then returned to St. Petersburg to inherit the enormous fortune which his father had just left him.

About this time a remarkable agitator, by name Borodin, began to stir up the working classes of the Russian capital to revolt. The police searched for him high and low, but just as they were about to lay hands on him he appeared to vanish in thin air. Finally they seized him as he was leaving a revolutionary meeting to step into a carriage bearing the imperial arms of Rurik. Borodin was Kropotkin.

While in France in 1882, with his dying brother-in-law, Kropotkin was arrested, charged with being implicated in the anarchistic riots in Lyons. He was sentenced to five years' imprisonment, and removed to large, airy quarters at Clairvaux, the ancient abbey of St. Bernard, where he fell ill with malaria and scurvy. The vault-like cell of St. Peter and St. Paul, he often said, was far referable, for its utter solitude inspired a higher degree of mental concentration than he had ever reached before or since.

Gorky's Strongest Dramas Planned in Prison.

In utter contrast to Kropotkin, Maxim Gorky rose from the depths of life before he became a prisoner because of his political beliefs. Alexei Maximovitz Pjeshkov was his given name, but as Pjeshkov means pawn in Russian, he changed it to Gorky, meaning bitter. To him life was indeed bitter.

Beginning his career as a shoemaker, Gorky ran away and obtained work as a designer. Later he found employment in the shop of a painter of images. After that he became a galley boy on a Volga river boat.

The boat was a sort of prison for him, and its confinement proved a blessing. He developed a love for reading, and as the cook happened to be the owner of quite a library he found opportunity to delve deep into all sorts of books, legends of the Saints, folk lore and the novels of the elder Dumas.

After that time, no matter what was his work, even while he was a gardener's apprentice, a baker's helper, a porter, a wood cutter, an apple peddler, a signal man on a railroad, a vender of beer, which he sold from a barrel he trundled about the streets, a lawyer's clerk, a herdsman, a chorus singer or a newspaper reporter, he spent every available spare moment in reading.

In 1892 a broken down student advised him to write, and under the guidance of Korolenko, Gorky soon became as popular with the masses as he was hated by the bureaucrats. In 1900 and 1901 he was imprisoned for short terms, but so poor was his health and so greatly was public indignation aroused that each time he was liberated promptly. Yet in these brief intervals within prison walls Gorky obtained the inspiration for two of his strongest dramas.

The recent attempt to assassinate Albert Dreyfus recalls Devil's Island, where the victim of the most tragic army scandal of modern times was confined from 1895 to 1899. Imprisonment, however, brought to Dreyfus only gray hair and a premature feebleness of body. In the tropical climate of the Carribean, under the depressing influence of a guard always lurking at his elbow, Dreyfus found little opportunity to do more than brood over the crimes committed against him.

When Dreyfus returned to Rennes in 1899 for a new trial he appeared like a man in a dream. He was white haired, stoop shouldered, and broken in spirit. He was tried, convicted to six years' imprisonment, that the dignity of the court might be sustained, and immediately pardoned by President Louhet. On regaining something of his old self, Dreyfus joined with his friends in bringing about a third trial in 1906, when at last the court of Cassation quashed the former verdict, and the senate and chamber of deputies promoted him to a major.

Gen. Picquart, an army's head who was a prisoner, who was involved in the Dreyfus scandal, has been said to owe his present position of French minister of war to his prison experience. It was a test which proved that Picquart would not shield those he knew were guilty by falsely accusing Dreyfus. So nobly did he bear up through this ordeal that he became recognized as one of the strong men which the French army needed. Clemenceau, on becoming premier, recognized this, and made Picquart head of the department of war.

At the time the Dreyfus scandal broke, Picquart was a lieutenant colonel in charge of the secret intelligence bureau. He maintained that Dreyfus was innocent and Esterhazy guilty. He was charged with forgery and locked up in the Cherche Midi military prison. There was talk that Picquart might commit suicide, as did Col. Henry, a bitter anti-Dreyfusard, who had confessed that he had committed forgery to shield those guilty. Picquart heard the rumor concerning himself, and, believing it meant a plot to murder him, he sent a thrill through the courtroom as they led him out, by exclaiming:

"I wish to declare that if I find in Cherche Midi the rope of Lemercier Picard (a murdered police spy) or the razor of Col. Henry, it will be murder, I have no idea of committing suicide."

Picquart was released after 330 days' imprisonment, the German government having made public the fact that the "petit bleu," which it was alleged Picquart forged, was the handiwork of Col. Schwarzkoppen, a German officer.

The French republic also derived benefit from the imprisonment of the duke of Orleans. The duke also profited by the experience. His confinement at Clairvaux was a sort of test of the strength of the royalist sentiment. It proved that the cause of monarchy in France was hopeless.

Duke Louis Phillippe Robert of Orleans, who had been living in exile, decided in 1890 "to stir things up in France." He told his father that the time was ripe to renew their pretensions to the French throne. Accordingly, he went to a recruiting bureau in Paris, stated he was 21, and asked to be permitted to enlist in the army. He was shifted by one official to another until the public was well aroused, rival factions had arisen, and there was talk of fight in some quarters of Paris.

In October the duke was finally arrested and tried for violation of the exile law. The duke had a little epigrammatic speech, which he tried to repeat from memory, but his voice was husky, his gestures without force, his bearing not particularly impressive. Yet a few in the crowd began to cheer for the duke with the result that there was almost a riot. The duke spent four months in the prison of Clairvaux. His wife later tried to stir up sympathy for his claims, but to no avail. With the death of his father the count of Paris, in 1894, the Orleanist cause practically died, too.

The fact that T. Estrada Palma, Cuba's first president, who died recently, was shut up in a Spanish prison for three years, added to his popularity among the masses. In 1876 Palma was chosen head of the provisional republic of Cuba. He was a man of wealth, having inherited large plantations from his father. The poorer

MINNESOTA UNIVERSITY

"Woman's Dormitory" Edition of the Daily to Appear Thursday.

Johnsons Are in the Lead in the Students' Directory.

Minneapolis, Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The "Woman's Dormitory" edition of the Daily will appear next Thursday, Jan. 14, edited by the woman's league. This is something new, for never before has any woman's organization edited the paper. The material will deal mostly with the new woman's dormitory proposition, but the constitution of the league will also be published. Nell Overpeck and Neva Hudson will act as editors.

The league expects to secure appropriations from the legislature this year for the dormitory and many of the legislators were visited by out of town girls during Christmas vacation. The regents and faculty consider this as one of the most important items of the budget of requested appropriations.

The students' directory appeared this week with a vast assortment of appendages. The Johnsons are in the lead, a gallant band of thirty-eight, followed by the Smiths with thirty-two, with Andersons and Nelsons as close thirds. George B. Sjoselius of Duluth was awarded the Daily gold medal for the most unpronounceable name. In the trades and professions, there are as representatives five "Bakers," two "Cooke's," "Smith's," a "Hunter," "Piper," "Porter" and "Workman," a "Hammermeister," a "Mouser," "Mark," "Barber," "Mason," "Carpenter," "Turner" and "Plumber." The pugilistic arena is also well filled. There are at the U, "Corbett," "Fitzsimmons," "Johnson," "Burns," "Nelson," "Kelly" and "Sullivan."

REINFORCED CONCRETE BRIDGE AT THIRD STREET AND OREGON CREEK. SPAN 70 FT. WIDTH 30 FT. LENGTH OVERALL 140 FT. Thos. P. McGilvray, CITY ENGINEER.

The concrete bridge to be built over Oregon creek, on Third street, marks a new era in bridge construction in Duluth. It is the first concrete structure of the kind of more than 4 or 5 feet in length in the city, but it will not by any means be the last.

The accompanying drawing shows the advantage of a bridge of concrete over one of wood or steel, so far as beauty is concerned. It adds to rather than detracts form the scenery. Not only this, but it is durable, and lasts many years longer than wood, while the cost of construction is low enough to make it cheaper in the long run. Where bridges are needed in Duluth in future, it will be the policy of the city administration to build them of concrete.

The span of the Oregon creek structure will measure 70 feet, and the bridge itself will be 170 feet long. It will be 30 feet wide, and will have two 5-foot walks, one each side of the roadway. The roadway will be covered with a pavement of tar macadam. The exterior portions of the bridge will be given a float finish, similar to the best walks of the city, and there will be a paneled concrete railing on each side of the bridge. The structure proper will be of concrete reinforced either by steel or large blocks of stone, and will cost about $6,500, complete.

Both ends of the bridge will rest on the solid rock foundation of the hill. The bridge will connect the two portions of Third street recently paved. Third street is paved for its whole length, as far as Harrison division, except for the block through which Chester creek runs. The creek bed is 55 feet below the level of the street.

BREWERS AS REFORMERS

What the Brewers Have Accomplished in Freeing the Drink Traffic From Improper Accessories.

By Hugh F. Fox, Secretary U. S. Brewers' Association.

(Exclusive Service Charities and The Commons Press Bureau.)

(Aside from his interest in the United States Brewers' association, Mr. Fox has been for ten years president of the New Jersey State Board of Children's Guardians, and a member of the executive committee of the New Jersey State Charities Aid and Prison Reform association, and in 1906 was president of the New Jersey State Conference of Charities and Corrections. He is well known here an dabroad in connection with social welfare work and social legislation.)

At the last convention of the United States Brewers' association, a declaration of principles was adopted which set forth the willingness of the brewers to co-operate in the passage and enforcement of rational laws for the regulation of the drink traffic, and for keeping such traffic free from unlawful and improper accessories.

It would be unreasonable to expect a revolution in the six months which have elapsed, but enough has been accomplished to make us feel encouraged.

It is impossible to study this question impartially, without reaching the conclusion that in a number of states the laws are directly responsible for many of the evils which prevail. For example, the Ohio constitution forbids the licensing of the sale of liquors, and in lieu of a license, an annual tax is imposed, practically without conditions. Under such an arrangement, any man who could pay the tax has been able to open a saloon, and it will readily be seen that with no restriction as to the number of licenses, or the character of the saloon-keeper, the business has often fallen into disreputable hands. The law of New York state has also encouraged the multiplication of saloons, and is directly responsible for the establishment of fake hotels to catch the Sunday trade. On the other hand, the Pennsylvania law, restricting the saloons and placing the licensing in the hands of the courts, with power of revocation, has resulted in the saloon being conducted decently and with strict observance of the law. It is true that there are objections to the law from the standpoint of the courts, and that Sunday closing of the saloon has resulted in a great deal of illicit Sunday traffic, which is winked at by the police. However, this has nothing to do with the beer business, for practically no beer is sold illicitly, and the licensed trade in Pennsylvania has absolutely no connection with the evil.

In greater New York the brewers have established a working arrangement with the committee of fourteen and the bonding companies, which has resulted in cleaning up about 100 disreputable places. The law itself makes the undertaking very difficult, and it is further complicated by the overcrowded condition of the courts an dthe attitude of some of the minor judges. Neither the brewers, nor the committee of fourteen, are thoroughly satisfied with the result, but they feel that a creditable start has been made which warrants the continuance of the compact. Similar work has been done in Buffalo, Rochester and other up-state cities

In October, 1907, the Ohio Brewers' association established a vigilance bureau to investigate the saloon business and report obnoxious places, with proofs of their misconduct, to the authorities. They demanded that legal steps be taken to close up such places, and if the authorities failed to act, the association was instructed to bring legal proceedings itself to drive the disreputable stloonkeeper out of business. The executive board of the association did not expetc to bring about the millenium, but it went at its business very thoroughly, employing detectives to get evidence wherever necessary. A letter was addressed to very saloonkeeper in the state, calling attention to the law and giving them a warning. Particular attention was paid to the enforcement of the juvenile law, and in many localities the brewers are co-operating with the juvenile courts. A special department was organized with a corps of twenty-five men, whose duty it was to obtain information as to the manner in which the saloons were conducted throughout the state. In Cincinnati alone more than 100 places were reported to the chief of police, and in several other cities the vigilance bureau succeeded in eliminating a large number of dives. The greatest obstacle which the Ohio brewere found in the work of reformation was the evident compact which existed between lawless dealers and grafting authorities. In cities where such conditions exsted, the brewers were compelled to prosecute vigorously in their own behalf. The work has been very expensive, and has brought down upon the brewers a great deal of political opposition and misrepresentation, but on the whole the response to the movement has been most encouraging. Perhaps nothing could illustrate the difficulty of the problem from the brewers' standpoint more than a recent controversy with the chief of police of Cincinnati. The chief stated that he did not propose to act "as the brewers' agent in assisting to convict law-breaking dive keepers." Percy Andreae of the brewers' board of trade retorted as follows:

"We have succeeded in some instances—instances distributed over some fifty cities and villages in the state—in driving out notorious dive-keepers. But in far greater number of instances we have failed, and in every one of these latter instances the cause of our failure proved to bo the same cause of which our esteemed chief of police makes so strange a boast. In other words, we succeeded wherever the police administration welcomed our efforts, and we failed wherever the police administration did not welcome our efforts, or, as Chief Millikin emphatically describes it, "where the police proudly refused to act as the brewers' agent."

The Texas Brewers' association was perhaps the pioneer in the clean-up movement. An enormous amount of money was spent in securing evidence as to disorderly practices, particularly in connection with the gambling evil as associated with the saloon. The association was obliged to conduct its own prosecutions in a great many cases, and has succeeded in breaking up gambling in the saloons and suppressing other disorderly practices.

Here, too, the success of the venture has been prevented in some cases by lack of co-operation on the part of the authorities.

Perhaps Milwaukee represents the most successful undertaking for which the brewers are responsible, in the cleanup movement. At the instance of the Milwaukee Brewers' association, the chief of police recommended to the new council license committee last May that a number of licenses be revoked. After considerable negotiations between the authorities and the brewers, in the course of which the mayor stated that "It will be easier to refuse licenses for cause, than to revoke them for cause," action was postponed until the beginning of July, when every license expired. In the meantime, a white list was prepared of the saloons that were being properly conducted, for which license renewals were recommended by the license committee and the chief of police. As a result of this action, seventy-nine saloons were closed on July 6. These places included three dozen dance halls, connected with saloons, in outlying parts of the city, and a number of so-called hotels and joints, where women of questionable character resorted. About fifty saloons were also closed in the county of Milwaukee, outside of the city. The Milwaukee incident is particularly significant, because it shows what can be done by the earnest cooperation of the manufacturers, the reputable retailers, and the civic authorities. In this case, the mayor, the chief of police, and the common council, worked in complete harmony with the brewers and the Milwaukee Liquor Dealers' Protective association. The brewers, however, are entitled to the credit for initiating the movement.

Space forbids a further recital of testimony. It has, however, been demonstrated that the brewers can accomplish a great deal where the laws are reasonably good, and the authorities honestly willing to do their part. Much might be said from the standpoint of legislation, which is often neither very loose or thoroughly unfair; in many states, both the retail and wholesale branches of the business have little or no protection under the law, as compared with other lines of trade. The tendency to treat the liquor business as an outlaw business which exists by suffrance only, brings about a condition of unstability and uncertainty which is most demoralizing. As a class, I believe that the majority of the men engaged in the traffic have the same respect for law and order as the men in any other business, but they are the victims of too much legislative bungling and quackery. The license to sell liquors is really a limited franchise and implies a contract between the city and the licensee. The city is not giving the saloonkeeper a square deal if it grants a similar franchise to another man to start business next door in opposition to him. On the other hand, it is a cruel act of injustice to ruin a man who has obeyed the law by cancelling his license, without giving him any compensation.

The evidence in my possession leads me to believe that the abolition of the license system has resulted disastrously in practically every important city where it has been tried. It is equally true that the license system has been attended by grave evils in many places. Sometimes the law or the system is at fault, but quite as often the condition simply reflects the carelessness or corruption of the local government. The recent action of the National Municipal league in considering saloon-regulation as an important municipal problem, is a hopeful sign of the times. With the natural reaction from the destructive radicalism of the abolitionists, a spirit of honest inquiry has come. Public sentiment has been aroused; it is waiting now for competent direction. Trained students of social legislation and men in the front rank of civic administration should take advantage of this situation with a view to the permanent betterment of conditions. It is time for intelligent laymen to take the lead!

MINING IN THE BLACK HILLS

Deadwood, S. D., Jan. 9.—The Regan brothers of Lead have just struck what appears to be a rich ore shoot on their ground the Kickapoo claims in the Yellow Creek district, east of here. The ore was encountered during the annual assessment work. It is of high grade, assays ranging from $50 to $100 a ton gold. The ground lies next to the Wasp No. 2 ground, one of the best producers in the hills although of low grade.

Supt. John Wise of the Mariposa Mining company has just returned from Minneapolis, where he conferred with the owners of the property which lies on State creek, southeast of Mystic. It was decided to erect as soon as possible a 100-ton plant. As the ore in the Mariposa workings contains considerable arsenical iron, some other process than cyanide will have to be used. Should the Golden Reward smelter be reopened, according to present plans, it is probable that some of the Mariposa ore could be treated there with profit. The Mariposa has a twelve-foot ledge of ore averaging $4 a ton, which was crosscut in the tunnel, driven 1,700 feet into the hill. It has only been opened up to the 100-foot depth, but development work will be continued steadily.

Hill City, S. D., Jan. 9.—Another southern Hills property is soon to resume active development. It is the Golden Slipper grown, owned by the Empire State Mining company. Plans made some time ago to resume were delayed but the necessary money is now on hand. The Golden Slipper has been fairly well opened up with a 400-foot shaft, in which appears a vertical ledge of high grade quartz. Some years ago it attracted attention from the richest specimen ore ever found in this section, what is known as picture rock. It is believed by mining men here that it can be made a producer. It was at one time the property of Charles Rowland of this place and later of J. B. Safford, who did considerable experimenting in a small way with mill tests. It is on the same ore zone as the Joe Dollar, the J. R. Tea and Dolcode lodes, all rich properties.

Manager Curtis of the Golden West company of Rochford has returned to Chicago after arranging to place at work a large force of men on the treatment plant of the company. Stamps will be put in again and a cyanide plant will be built. The cores from the diamond drill hole show ore of high grade from the 100-foot level.

J. D. McNickle and associates of Missouri are making arrangements to erect in the spring a mill on the property of the Crown Mining company, near Rochford. At present a small force of miners is opening up a good looking body of free milling gold ore that gives rich returns.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT

Increase of $3,000,000 in Gold Production for 1908 ---Output to Date $160,000,000---Product of Cyanide Mills Increases.

Cripple Creek, Colo., Jan. 9.—The Cripple Creek 1908 production, based upon the known capacity of mills, will exceed $16,000,000 over 1907. The great camp's gold output to date approximates $160,000,000.

Perhaps the chief feature of the year's record is the increased production of cyanide mills. Of 762,228 tons of ore treated by all the plants 133,265 tons were handled by the smaller cyanide mills. The value of this ore was only $523,647, or not quite $4 a ton; but herein is the significant fact that the new invention and believe the principle is correct. If it proves so it will revolutionize concentration methods and be a tremendous asset to East Butte. Its extreme simplicity and economy seem to be the things that raise doubt in the minds of some. Small tests have worked with extraordinary results and satisfaction.

trouble experienced in getting down to the ore body, because of the wet and sandy overburden. However, the shaft was finally sunk by the drop system, and last year, in August, the mine made its initial shipment. The deposit at the Kellogg amounts to a number of million tons, and the ore is of excellent quality. The royalty paid to the fee owners is a dollar a ton, the highest charge of that nature in the Lake Superior region. Development work is being pushed rapidly, and as room is made for them additional miners are added to the working force. The New York State Steel company also has the Larkin mine at Virginia.

Adjoining the Kellogg is the Republic Iron & Steel company's Monica property, and like the product at the Kellogg the ore is a bessemer. The work of opening the mine will be carried on with vigor this winter, in the hope of bringing the property to the point of production at as early a date as possible. The overburden is composed very largely of quicksand, bowlders and glacial drift, sinking through which is attended with difficulty. The Schley property, near Gilbert, and the Bray, near Keewatin, also are Republic Iron & Steel company properties which are to be added to the list of producers. It is estimated that the ore bodies contained in the three tracts aggregate some 13,000,000 tons. The Schley adjoins the same operator's Pettit mine.

North of Lake Embarrass.

Extending around the north end of Lake Embarrass and across the stream which connects that body with Sabin lake, easterly to a point not far from Aurora, there is an iron formation which it is understood, holds many millions of tons of ore. The territory ha sbeen extensively explored the past few years by the St. Clair Interests of Duluth. Naturally what has been developed by the drills, has not been given any particularly publicity, but there is no question that important finds have been made. One result of the exploration is the extensive work of development now in progress at the Bangor and Syracuse properties, which are held under lease by Pickands, Mather & Co. of Cleveland, and which are well known as the wettest propositions, the opening of which has yet been undertaken in the entire Lake Superior region.

The Bangor and the Syracuse have already cost a veritable mint of money and have necessitated the working out of knotty engineering problems, not the least of which has been the shaft-sinking, finally accomplished by means of the pneumatic caisson method, and the question of keeping the workings comparatively free from the deluge of water that continually pours into them. However, the ore bodies are large enough to be well worth going after, more especially that at the Bangor, and it is the general belief that other of the properties that have been explored by the St. Clair interests along the same formation will be developed by the big Cleveland concern. Notably mentioned in that connection are the reported big find at the Lake Embarrass dam and the Ajax property, formerly the Qui Kanawha, which, with the Hector intervening, lies west of the Bangor. The Ajax ore lies near the surface and can be mined from an open pit.

The Hector mine, which when first opened years ago was known as the Hale, is being operated by G. A. St. Clair, who has been successful in finding ore bodies after other interests had abandoned the property as a worked-out proposition. It was at the Hale, something like a dozen years ago, that the first attempt was made on the Mesaba range ore by the clam-shell mining system, which during the past year years has been tried at the Grant mine at Buhl by the Jones & Laughlin Steel company with indifferent success. It is believed that the ore deposit at the Bangor extends into the Hector property, and it is gossip in mining circles that the latter tract also will be transferred to the Pickands-Mather interests.

At McKinley, four miles west of Biwabik, Pickands, Mather & Co., have the Elba and Corsica mines. In the same district are the McKinley open pit mine, one of the most valued possessions of the Steel corporation, and the old Witlis property of the Republic Iron & Steel company. The latter has been closed down for a number of years, but according to reports in circulation operations may be resumed this season. Southwest of McKinley, and between that town and Sparta, is the Steel corporation's Gilbert mine, which during the past few years has been a scene of vigorous development. The property contains a very large body of ore, part of which will be mined underground and part from open pit by steam shovels. The underground portion of the mine is equipped with two fine shafts, from which much lateral work has been done.

The Gilbert.

The Gilbert is in position to produce 1,000,000 tons and more this year, but it is not thought likely that this output will be attempted, still, mining is being carried on actively now ,and a stockpile of probably a quarter of a million tons will be accumulated during the winter. It will require only three seasons to take out such ore as can be mined by steam shovel direct, and with this portion of the deposit cleaned up the milling system will be employed very largely. Vigorous stripping operations have been conducted at the mine the past one and one-half years, and this work is being continued this winter. The open pit is in the shape of a figure eight. The overburden ranges in depth from forty- to seventy feet. The No. 1 shaft,, which is down 250 feet, was sunk through 100 feet of taconite, in addition to much clay and slate, the whole of which constituted material that it was impossible to strip. The same formation was cut through in sinking No. 2 shaft. Both shafts are surmounted by shafthouses of steel construction.

Adjoining the Gilbert on the east are the Pettit and Hobart mines, the former a property of the Republic Iron & Steel company and the latter a property of the Pittsburg Iron Ore company. The Mariska, a mile distant, is another mine operated by the Republic company. Near the Hobart is Pickands, Mather & Co.'s Malta mine, and further to the southwest is the same concern's Sparta property, the ore deposit of which is, however, practically worked out. The Sparta was opened by G. A. St. Clair in 1896, and up to the time that shipments ceased three years ago it had sent out 1,250,000 tons of high-grade ore.

At the townsite of Sparta is the Steel corporation's Genoa mine, the first property to be opened in the field. The Genoa has been operated for years as an underground property, but is to be converted into an open pit proposition, because of which the village has been purchased by the company and the area now occupied by the town will be stripped, the ore body having been found to extend directly under the townsite. The stripping work will be started in the spring, as will the work of sinking a new shaft which, with the present shaft, will be utilized in taking out ore when mining by steam shovel direct becomes unfeasible and when the milling system is made use of.

The Swanzy District.

The concrete walls having been put down into the ledge, a distance of more than 100 feet from the surface, the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company is now sinking to the ore body at its Kidder mine, in the Swanzy district of the Marquette range. It will be several months before the deposit is reached, as the ore is some 200 feet beneath the surface. The concrete portion of the shaft was sunk by the New York Foundation company, resort to the compressed air-lock system having been necessary because of the treacherous nature of the overburden, which is very wet and very sandy. A similar shaft is now to go down for the Cleveland Cliffs company at its North Lake property, west of Ishpeming, and still another one is planned for the same operator's Northwestern tract, in the Swanzy field. Aside from the Kidder, the company's new Smith mine, in the same locality, has been provided with a concrete shaft.

This method of sinking through quicksand overburden is becoming popular in the Lake Superior region, and it is likely that the next few years will see much work of that nature in progress. Up to the present only seven shafts of the kind have been sunk in mining regions in the United States, these being at the Bangor and Syracuse mines, on the Mesaba range; the Smith and Kidder, Marquette range; one at the Chapin mine, Menominee range, and one each at the Wyoming and Kingston collieries in Pennsylvania. All of the shafts, with the exception of those at the Chapin and Kingston, were sunk by the pneumatic caisson method. The Kingston shaft was put down by what is known as the open dredging caisson system, and the Chapin shaft, sunk twenty years ago, was put down by the freezing process. Aside from the work in progress at the North Lake property, Marquette range, the Foundation company is sinking a concrece shaft at the Carson lake mine of Tod, Stambaugh & Co. of Cleveland, two miles southwest of Hibbing, Mesaba range. This last mentioned shaft will be the largest of its kind yet put down. The inside diameter of the shaft, which will be oval in shape, will be twenty-two feet and the walls will be six feet in thickness, the outside diameter being forty-four feet.

THESE CELEBRITIES HAVE SLEPT IN PRISON CELLS

classes regarded him as an aristocrat. But when the Spaniards laid hands on him, confiscated his estates and shut him up in a Spanish ceil, the crowd forgot much of its old prejudice and acclaimed a hero and a martyr.

The Civil war has furnished many notable examples of imprisonment proving the nobility of men even more than their exploits on the field of battle.

Samuel Hawkins Marshall Byers, the author and diplomat, says that he owes much to his imprisonment, following his capture at the battle of Chattanooga. In a Confederate ceil he had the opportunity of thinking out many of the literary works which he afterward accomplished. It was Byers who wrote the song of Sherman's march to the sea, which gave the campaign that name.

OUTPUT OF THE BUTTE MINES

ginning until Mr. Rohn was placed in charge, became heavily burdened with debt; bonds had to be issued and it looked for a time as if the bondholders would get the property, but things are improving now and there is talk of the bonds being exchanged for stock. The company is capitalized for $10,000,000 of common stock and $1,000,000 of preferred, 50 per cent of all the stock remaining in the treasury. The smelter is turning out about 500,000 pounds of copper per month now. Operations were kept up all through the financial and copper depression and a good net profit made. During the past three years the company produced about $3,000,000 worth of copper. It owns 287 acres of mineral ground, carrying the extensions of a dozen Butte veins, including the Silver Bow, Leonard and Colusa, three of the big veins of the district. There are six miles of drifts and cross-cuts on the 1,200 foot level and 12 to 15 veins have been opened, most of them small ones, but some thirty to forty-five feet wide.

East Butte.

The East Butte Mining company is making good progress with its development work and the future looks exceptionally bright for the company. Shipments of high-class ore from the 400-foot level are made regularly, and the company is deriving good profits from the precipitating plant, the last shipment of concentrates netting the company nearly $5,000. The 900 crosscut being driven through the entire length of the company's property will cut the big Glengarry vein, more than sixty feet wide, and it is confidently expected that the vein at that depth will be found full of good ore. In all there are twenty-one distinct veins in the East Butte ground of varying width. A new concentraiing mill of small capacity is being built for the purpose of testing a new concentrating method, all work being done without cost to the company. Many mining and smelting men have examined

KEROSENE IS BLAMED

Over Hundred Accidents in State Last Year Due to Coal Oil.

State Oil Inspector W. E. McEwen Would Change Fire Test Degrees.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the past two years 102 accidents from the use of kerosene were reported to the state oil inspector. This number includes fires that caused an aggergate loss of $36,442.

According to the report of Inspector McEwen, the department brought the state $35,557.35 in 1907, and $37,885.75 in 1908, the total representing fees for the inspection of oil brought into the state. This is a substantial increase over the receipts of 1905 and 1906.

Mr. McEwen is pleased with the new system of bookkeeping adopted by him, under which not a cent of money now passes through his hands. He simply submits the bills and the collections are made by the state treasurer and auditor.

For the further efficiency in the inspection of oil, Mr. McEwen recommends a change from the fire test of 120 degrees to the flash test of 105 degrees, with the right to apply the gravity test. He also wants the right to inspect gasoline, which is not now included in the law. Gasoline, he says, is in common use and every effort should be made to see that consumers do not get an adulterated article.

CHEESEMAKERS ELECT OFFICERS

The Wisconsin Association Chooses H. M. S. Waldo as its Head.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the meeting of the Wisconsin Cheesemakers' association, held here this week, H. M. Scott Waldo was elected president, following the announcement by J. Q. Emery, state dairy and food inspector, that hereafter he would oppose the election of men in the employ of the state to offices in the association.

The position of Mr. Emery practically compelled the retirement of Secretary U. S. Baer, Treasurer F. E. Carewell and Vice President Fred Marty, and John Cannon, New London, director, all of whom work under the state inspector. Mr. Cannon had two years to serve.

John B. McCready, Sheboygan, was elected secretary. Others elected are: William Waddell, Hub City, vice president; James O'Brien, Boscobel, treasurer; J. W. Cross, Mauston, director for three years; John Grotemont, Brillion, director for two years.

Claiming to have the interests of the association at heart, Mr. Emery opposed the election of any member of his staff in an address before the association. His position caused comment, as it came as a complete surprise. The reasons given were that the men did not have time to attend to their duties as employes of the state when serving as officers of the association.

Prof. F. W. Woll, agricultural experiment station, University of Wisconsin, spoke of the necessity of feeding dairy cows with unadulterated feed, at the morning session. "The adulteration of food is due," he said, "to the growth of certain manufacturing industries, which furnish large quantities of refuse materials that can be bought for a song, and used as adulterants of common feeding stuffs."

HIS COLOR LIGHT FOR NEGRO YOUTH

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Red haired, pale faced enough to be considered white, and only 18 years old, Roy Powers, colored, applied for a marriage license yesterday at the office of Judge L. K. Hassell. The young woman in the case is also colored, and she is also 18. Powers' father, unlike his son, has every appearance of a negro. He was present to give his consent to the marriage of the pair.

Powers is the first red haired African to get a marriage license in the local probate court.

The ceremony was performed last evening by Rev. F. E. R. Miller, and W. H. Battle was a witness.

INAUGURAL BALL HELD.

Notable Social Event at North Dakota Capital.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The inaugural ball held in the house chamber at the capitol last night, for which elaborate preparations had been made, was a highly successful affair.

The reception committee for the chief social function of the session was headed by Mayor F. R. Smith of Bismarck. The other members were I. P. Baker, C. B. Little, Maj. R. R. Steadman, F. O. Hellstrom, Gen. E. A. Williams, Senator Welch, Representatives Wolbert, Hughes, W. H. Webb, Jr., Judge Winchester, M. H. Jewell, H. L. Reade, Frank Reed, Attorney T. R. Mockler and Joseph Hare.

"STICKERS" ARE LEGAL.

Can be Used in Voting for Candidate Not on Ballot.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A voter can use a "sticker" in voting for a candidate for office whose name is not upon the ballot, according to a ruling made by the supreme court, on an appeal from Yellow Medicine county, in which the lower court decided Oscar C. Snortum was elected sheriff over G. O. Homme in the last election.

Homme and Snortum were candidates for the Republican nomination for sheriff and Snortum won by a small majority. At the election Homme supplied his followers with "stickers," which they placed in the blank space opposite the title of sheriff. The return of the county canvassing board declared Homme elected, but the lower court held that the "stickers" were not included in the law which provides that a voter may write any name he chooses in the blank space on the ballot.

The supreme court says that it is a constitutional right which every voter has to vote for whom he pleases, and that the statute must be liberally construed. The conclusion is that the word "write" includes any mode of representing words or letters.

MINER'S BODY IS SCATTERED ABOUT

An Unexpected Explosion Kills Cassimer Cuchek in Mine at Ironwood.

Ironwood, Mich., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cassimer Cuchek, a miner employed at the Newport mine in C shaft was instantly killed while blasting Wednesday afternoon.

Cuchek and his partner placed five sticks of powder in the holes and retreated. Cuchek going in a different direction from his partners. Four of the sticks went off, the fifth giving no results. Upon going back to investigate the cause Cuchek's partner found the mangled remains of his companion scattered around the room. The supposition is that Cuchek returned to the room unsuspecting the fifth blast had not gone off, meeting death without knowledge of his fate. The coroner pronounced the death the result of an accident. Cuchek was an Austrian, having worked at the Newport for some time past.

LUMBERMAN BADLY HURT.

President of Ruby Lumber Company Crushed by Logs.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—L. A. Hawn, president of the Ruby Lumber company of Ruby, Wis., is at the Sacred Heart hospital in this city in a critical condition as the result of a serious accident which befell him as he was watching a force of men operating a "jammer."

The "jammer" was lifting three logs to the rollway at the time. Something about the apparatus suddenly went wrong, and the logs slid sideways and, before Mr. Hawn could get away, he was caught by the heavy logs and squeezed against the rollway. Assistance was immediately rendered Mr. Hawn, from whose eyes, ears, nose and mouth blood was flowing freely, and he was soon liberated from his precarious position.

He is suffering from a fracture of the skull and other injuries.

FARMERS INSTITUTE DATES.

Where They Will be Held in North Dakota.

Grafton, N. D., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Supt. T. A. Hoverstad, who has charge of the farmers' institutes which are being held throughout the state, has arranged his dates up to Feb. 6.

TARIFF TINKERS DISAGREE.

Conflicting Interests Clash Over Question of Revision.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9.—Conflicting interests clashed over the question of tariff revisions at yesterdays session of the Western Fruit Jobbers' association at the West hotel. When President R. W. Gees introduced A. G. Kendall of Los Angeles, representing the Citrous Protective league, W. W. Summers of Chicago, entered an objection to his speaking on the tariff. Mr. Kendall accepted the suggestion. Later in the session, J. A. Ownes of New York, read a paper in which he ridiculed the idea of any increase in the tariff on pineapples, grapes, oranges, lemons or figs, all California products

WEBB PUTTING UP FIGHT.

Rich North Dakotan is Fighting Extradition.

Calgary, Sask., Jan. 9.—The case of Oscar Webb of Minot, N. D., comes up here today on extradition proceedings. He was undergoing a year's imprisonment for infraction of the liquor law in Minot, when he escaped jail and fled to Canada. The Canadian authorities refused to eject him upon the request of the United States, but decided to hold him till the court decides on the procedure. Webb is a wealthy man and is making a hard fight. If successful he will be free to remain in Canada, but will be declared an outlaw by the government of the United States and his property confiscated to the state. Canada is much interested in the outcome.

DEPUTY POSTMASTER HIGGINS IS ACCUSED.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Jan. 9.—Deputy Postmaster Frank L. Higgins has been arrested on a charge of embezzlement and his examination set for today. The arrest is the outgrowth of an alleged robbery of which Higgins reported himself the victim, Dec. 14. It was stated at that time that three foreigners assaulted the deputy postmaster with a sand bag, while he was alone in the postoffice, making his payroll the previous evening, and that his assailants escaped with $2,500 of postoffice funds.

NORTH DAKOTA LICENSE DID NOT GO IN MOORHEAD.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—After living together as man and wife two days, Rudy E. Dahl of Fargo and Miss Annie G. Iverson of Moorhead discovered that they never had been married. The complication of interstate matrimonial alliance were not thoroughly understood by them, which, coupled with the failing eyesight of the preacher, caused the predicament. The license was secured on the North Dakota side and the ceremony performed at Moorhead. A second attempt was made here and it was more successful.

NEW TWINE CROP MOVING RAPIDLY

Sales at State Prison for December Were Very Large.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state board of control held its first monthly meeting of the new year at the state prison yesterday. S. W. Leavett and P. M. Ringdal were the members in attendance. They gave audience to twenty-eight prisoners, an unusually large number, eight of whom were new applicants for parole.

The financial statement for December shows receipts on account of binder twine sales to the amount of $80,055.02. This indicates that the new crop of twine is moving rapidly earlier than usual.

The miscellaneous receipts for last month footed up $7,046.92. This includes $3,270.96 charged to the warden for convict labor in the twine factory, $3,712.71 for convict labor in the shoe factory, $192 collected by the usher from visitors and $1,101.85 turned over by inmates for custody.

The board granted five paroles. In the afternoon the board and warden made a visit to t he new prison to inspect the progress being made. It is hardly possible the twine factory will be in operation next week, as expected, but the wheels will soon go round.

MAY LOSE EYESIGHT.

Stillwater Ticket Seller is Victim of Serious Accident.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joseph E. Carroll, ticket seller at the union station, had his face badly scalded, and is in danger of losing his sight, as the result of an accident at his residence Tuesday night.

Mr. Carroll had placed a lard can on the kitchen stove, filled with water, to be heated to thaw out a frozen water pipe.

In removing the tight fitting lid with a knife, an explosion resulted and a blast of steam struck him across the eyes and in the face.

The skin has peeled off his face and forchead and his face is swollen. The steam striking him in the eyes, it is feared that the injury to them is serious and it will take time to determine the extent of the injury to the sight.

LADD DEFINES POSITION.

Not Fighting the Manufacture of Bleached Flour, But Its Sale.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—"I am not endeavoring to force the millers of this state or those shipping into North Dakota to stop manufacturing bleached flour," said Pure Food Commissioner Ladd.

"I am merely requesting them not to offer it for sale in the state. They will have to stop the practice of shipping it from one state to another after six months, and they might just as well quit selling it here now. I have received letters from fourteen of the milling companies supplying the greater part of the trade in this state. They agree to cooperate with me. Two of these are among the big concerns in Minneapolis. They assert they will offer no more bleached flour to the North Dakota trade. The only large concern from whom I have failed to get a response is the Russell-Miller Milling company, who has four mills in the state."

GOV. BURKE APPOINTS PEAKE ADJUTANT GENERAL.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 9.—Governor Burke has designated Col. A. P. Peake of Valley City as adjutant general of the state National Guard, and issued an order returning Gen. Thomas H. Poole, who has been adjutant general for the last two years.

An ordr ws also issued directing Poole to transfer all properties and supplies of the office of the adjutant general to his successor, and this order Poole refused to obey. As a consequence the matter of the adjutant generalship will be fought out in the courts of the state, the question involved being whether Poole holds during good behavior, and if only to be removed by sentence of court-martial, or whether he is appointed only for two years and at the end of that time goes on the retired list.

BEAR TRAP NABS THIEF.

Wisconsin Man Resorts to Novel Method to Catch Culprit.

Neenah, Wis., Jan. 9.—Joseph Brigham, residing between this city and Appleton, recently was troubled with thieves, who entered his buildings and stole grain. A few nights ago he set a bear trap near the grain bins. In the morning he was rewarded for his pains. Along in the night he heard a howl in the barn and found a neighbor, who had always been a supposedly true friend, caught in the teeth of the trap. When released the culprit offered to pay for the grain he had stolen.

The Doctor Writes of Counterfeiters.

Hyannis, Mass., Aug. 17, 1905.

CHAS. H. FLETCHER, New York City.

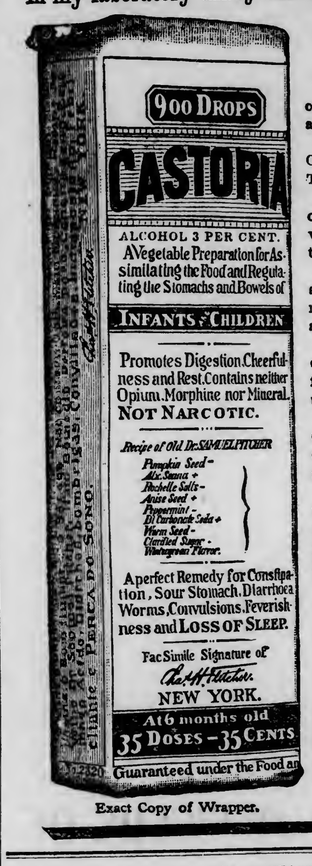

Dear Mr. Fletcher:—I wish to congratulate you on your numerous victories over counterfeiters and imitators of Castoria, and trust the time is not far distant when these inferior and dangerous mixtures will be entirely suppressed.

You are right when you say in your advertisements that it is "Experience against Experiment."

I feel it to be an outrage, and an imposition upon the parents of little children that my name should be associated with imitations of Castoria, dangerous to the health and life of these little ones who too often fight their battles for life in vain.

Let me again commend you for the high standard you have maintained in the preparation of my prescription, and I confidently believe it is due to this scrupulous integrity you are indebted for the wonderful sale of Castoria to-day, and the steady growth it has had since I gave you the details of its manufacture in my laboratory thirty-three years ago.

Letters from Prominent Druggists addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Mansur Drug Co., of St. Paul, Minn., says: "We are not in the habit of recommending proprietary medicines, but we never hesitate to say a good word for Castoria. It is a medical success."

Hegeman & Co., of New York City, N. Y. say: "We can say for your Castoria that it is one of the best selling preparations in our stores. That is conclusive evidence that it is satisfactory to the users."

Myers-Dillon Drug Co., of Omaha, Nebr., says: "Your Castoria is one of the best sellers we have. We cheerfully recommend it to our trade voluntarily at all times, and will testify to its merits at any and all times."

Weber Drug Co., of Indianapolis, Ind., says: "Fletcher's Castoria is an article for which there is no substitute. It is undoubtedly one of the most popular articles on the market to-day and our customers for it are numbered by the hundreds."

Parrish & Bailey Pharmacy, of Los Angeles, Cal., says: "During an experience of over 30 years in the retail drug business we have never found a proprietary remedy that has had such a large sale or given such universal satisfaction as your Castoria."

Theo. Metcalf Co., of Boston, Mass., says: "We have handled Fletcher's Castoria for years and consider it one of the best preparations made. Our sales are continually increasing and everyone of our customers have nothing but praise for Fletcher's Castoria."

W. H. Chapman, of Montreal, Que., says: "I have sold Fletcher's Castoria for many years and have yet to hear of one word other than praise of its virtues. I look upon your preparation as one of the few so called patent medicines having merit and unhesitatingly recommend it as a safe household remedy."

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

Don't Suffer With Rheumatism

No matter how many other remedies you have tried, Hill's Rheumatic Pills will positively cure you.

Try these Pills at our expense. It costs you nothing to prove what they will do.

We send a trial box free to all sufferers from Rheumatism.

If you have Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Gout, Kidney and Liver Complaint, Blood Poisoning, Stomach Trouble or Constipation, we want you to take advantage of this free trial offer.

If your trouble is of recent origin the trial box of Hill's Rheumatic Pills should alone prove sufficient to cure you. But if your disease is of long standing, you will of course want an additional supply.

In any event this trial box of Pills will stop the pain you are suffering, restore the organs of your body to vigorous health and make you feel so much stronger and better that you'll want to continue taking them until a complete cure has been affected.

Hill's Rheumatic Pills are made the same today as they were in 1835. There is a record of seventy-three years of successful cures behind them. Eighteen thousand people have written us that our remedy cured them of Rheumatism and kindred Uric Acid troubles.

It will cure you and we want to prove it free of cost to you.

We know, and you must know too, that Rheumatism and all its kindred diseases are caused by the presence of Uric Acid in the blood.

Hill's Rheumatic Pills go direct to the seat of the trouble. They act upon the acid which is formed in flakes about the joints, bones and muscles, resolving it again into a liquid and driving it through the liver and kidneys out of the bowels.

These Pills are Nature's own remedy, being made entirely of roots and vegetables with the single exception of a very small percentage of common baking soda which every one knows is an excellent thing for the stomach.

They could not harm the most delicate digestive organs. On the contrary, they will strengthen the stomach and bowels, put the liver and kidneys in perfect working trim, fill the arteries with new, red blood and tone up the entire system. They are an ideal tonic and body builder.

Write today for the free trial box of Hill's Rheumatic Pills and see if they do not do all we have said and more. Address

WHEAT HAS WEAK CLOSE

Market Sells Off During Last Hour of the Session.

May Flax Makes a New High Mark for the Crop.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 9.—During the latter part of the short session in the American markets today, wheat declined, and the closing prices were lower everywhere, except in New York, which closes an hour earlier than Duluth on Saturday, and in Winnipeg.

The market held fairly firm around yesterday's closing prices during the early part of the day, and until the last hour, when selling orders caused values to shrink steadily until the close.

Liverpool closed unchanged, Paris unchanged to ¼c higher, Antwerp unchanged Berlin ¾c higher, and Budapest ⅞c higher.

The May option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth and Chicago, ⅞c lower in Minneapolis, ¼c higher in New York, ⅝@⅝c lower in St. Louis and ⅛c higher in Winnipeg. Comparisons on the Kansas City close are not possible. The July option closed ⅝c lower in Duluth, ⅜c lower in Chicago, ⅞@1c lower in Minneapolis, ⅛c higher in New York, ⅝@⅞c lower in St. Louis, and ¼c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ¼@⅜c lower in Chicago and unchanged to ⅛d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed ¼c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cables from Liverpool:

"Wheat—The market here was affected by the strength in America yesterday and values were ⅛@⅛d higher. Later, selling pressure developed, and the advance was lost and more, too. There were larger offerings of La Plata wheat and prices were for larger worlds's shipments to the United Kingdom. At the close values were unchanged to ⅛d lower than yesterday.

"Corn was steady at the start and unchanged, being influenced by the strength in American cables. Later, an easier undertone developed on predictions of larger American shipments to Liverpool."

Car receipts at Duluth were 7 against 46 last year, and at Minneapolis 212 against 239 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 219 against 285 last year. Chicago received 7 against 33 last year. Winnipeg received 61 against 165 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 404,000 bus., last year 521,000 bus. Shipments 162,000 bus, last year 241,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 166,000 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Moderate Demand by Elevator Interests Imparts Firmness to Wheat

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 9.—A moderate demand by elevator interests imparted a fair degree of firmness to the wheat market today, but the volume of trade was small. Many traders were in a "waiting" mood, owing to the absence of any news of special importance and this largely accounted for the inactivity. Prices at the start were unchanged to ¼c higher, May opening at $1.07½ to $1.07⅝. Later May sold at $1.07¾. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 226 cars against 331 cars last week and 300 cars a year ago.

The market weakened during the final hour on profit-taking, May declining to $1.06¾. The close was weak, with prices at the low point. May being off ⅝c at $1.06¾.

Realizing sales by a leading long caused moderate weakness in the corn market. An official prediction of unsettled weather for the corn belt had a steadying effect. May opened unchanged to ¼c lower at 61¾ to 61¾c and for a time held within that range. Local receipts were 130 cars with two of contract grade.

Additional weakness developed owing to the late weakness of wheat, May declining to 61½c. The close was weak, with May down ¼@⅜c at 61½@⅝c.

Selling by elevator interests had a depressing effect on the oat market at the start, but a firmer tone developed early in the day on buying by pit traders. May opened unchanged at 52c, sold off to 51⅞c and then advanced to 52@½c. Local receipts were 83 cars.

Provisions were easy because of increased receipts of live hogs. Local holders were moderate sellers. Prices at the opening were 2½ to 10@12½c lower compared with the previous close.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Selling Results From More Favorable Winter Wheat Conditions.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9.—Wheat opened fairly steady but uncertain in tone. Liverpool was unchanged. Duluth could show up only seven cars against 46; Minneapolis 212 compared with 239; Winnipeg 61 and 165. The local stocks having gained 252,879 bushels for the week now amount to 14,678,899 bushels and for one day there is an additional gain of 50,000 bushels. Winnipeg was strong and up about 2c for January wheat, which was taken to mean European buying and was strengthening here. Selling that came from a more favorable winter wheat condition and the promise of snow over Sunday met resistance again at $1.09 for May. Near the close the market went below that price. May opened at $1.09¾; high, $1.09½@⅝; low, $1.08½; close $1.08½@⅝; July opened $1.09⅝; high, $1.09⅝; low $1.08⅝; close, $1.08⅜. Cash wheat sold well at to 1¼c over May for No. 1 northern and ¾@1c under for No. 2 northern. Millers bought more freely. Close: No. 1 northern spot, $1.10¼; to arrive $1.09¼; No. 2 northern spot, $1.07¼; to arrive, $1.07¼; No. 3 wheat, $1.04¼@1.05¼.

No. 3 yellow corn, 55¾@56c. White oats 48⅞@49¾c. No. 2 rye, 67@71¼c.

Barley, receipts, 45 cars, against 74; shipments, 35. Some buyers waited over to Monday, and as offerings were larger the market was easier and quotably unchanged lower. Close, 56@61c.

Millstuffs, shipments 1,153 tons; millers expect better demand next week for feed. They quote bran in bulk at $18.75@19.00.

Flour remains quiet, but the outlook for next week is better and millers expect larger orders to come in. Wheat today made the tone easier and if any further weakness follows flour will ease off, in which case sales should increase. Shipments, 38,020 barrels; first patents, $5.40@5.65; second patents, $5.20@5.40; first clears, $4.00@4.10; second clears, $2.95@3.00.

Census Cotton Report.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The census bureau today reported 12,470,226 running bales of cotton ginned from the growth of 1908 to Jan. 1 last, against 9,991,501 a year ago and 27,336 glueries operated, against 27,276 a year ago. The percentage of the whole crop ginned to Jan. 1 is 90 per cent for 1909 and 90.4 per cent for 1908.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 9.—Barrett & Zimerman report: A comparison of the volume of business done in transacted at this market in 1908 with that of 1907 shows that the past year's totals to be much below the previous year. The unsettled financial condition curtailed the trade and narrowed contract work in all lines. Horse consumers have not only economized in the volume of their equipment as far as possible, but have in many instances bought a cheaper grade of horses. As the farmer and horse raiser did not feel the effect of the recent panic, they were not inclined to sell their horses at any lower prices and the dealer was forced to pay the high prices of 1907 and sell them at reduced values in 1908, which often eliminated the dealers' profit entirely. The better grades of horses moved 15 per cent under the 1907 value.

The general demand already shows decided improvement, but no change in values is looked for at present. There is an early inquiry from the Northwest, including Canada, for farm mares and general purpose horses, and good spring trade in the agricultural classes is anticipated. Several bunched logging horses were sold today. Local icing interests placed a number of orders.

OFFICERS OF THE BOARD

Annual Caucus of Duluth Board of Trade is Held.

The annual caucus of the board of trade was held at the close of the session today. There was no change in the directorate, the board remaining the same, and the offices being handed around. Julius H. Barnes, who was president for two years, is succeeded by S. H. Jones, formerly vice president. A. W. Frick was elected vice president and the directors elected for three years are M. L. Jenks, D. T. Helm and Julius H. Barnes. Six other directors hold over.

S. H. JONES,
Elected President of the Board of Trade.

The boards to serve for the coming year are:

Arbitration—G. G. Barnum, W. S. Moore, S. A. McPhail.

Inspection—J. F. McCarthy, A. M. Prince, J. T. Pugh, H. A. Starkey, C. F. Halley.

The action of the caucus is equivalent to election, the latter being merely a formal ratification.

To improve the quality of its habutai (fine Japanese silk) the Fuji Gas Cotton Spinning company has obtained the services for three years at a salary of $11,580 a year, of a French weaving expert. Success will enable Japanese silk to compete with French silk in the great market among the Parsees of India.

Notice to Stockholders of the American Exchange Bank of Duluth, Minnesota.

The regular annual meeting of the shareholders of the American Exchange Bank of Duluth, Minn., will be held at their rooms in the Exchange building, Duluth, Minn., on January 12th next, at 7 o'clock p. m.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Heavy Outpouring of Stocks Caused Prices to Take Drop.

Slight Rally on Short Covering, But Close Was Feverish.

New York, Jan. 9.—Changes in the opening prices of stocks today were somewhat mixed. A number of the Southwestern railroads showed strength, but there were some sharp declines in the standard railroad stocks and the New York tractions. Denver & Rio Grande advanced 1⅜, Union Bag preferred 1, and Missouri Pacific ⅝. Interborough-Metropolitan preferred declined 2, American Smelting 1 and Union Pacific, Pennsylvania and Brooklyn Transit large fractions.

Severe liquidation in the Interborough-Metropolitan stocks led to unloading in other stocks and losses of a point or more became general in the list. Low priced stocks, which have been active recently and advanced materially, were without support and suffered more severely than the general run of stocks. Interborough-Metropolitan preferred fell 6 points, the common 2¾, Colorado & Southern second preferred 4¼, the common 2, American Smelting 2⅝, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie 2½, Third Avenue 2⅜, Brooklyn Transit 2¼ and Consolidated Gas 1¾.

The market closed feverish and irregular. There was another heavy outpouring of stocks, which embraced all the usually active speculative favorites. The general losses of a point or upward extended in Reading and American Smelting to 3¼, Union Pacific 2¾, Colorado & Southern 1rt preferred, St. Paul & Southern Pacific, Northwestern, Missouri Pacific, Wabash, New York Central, Erie second preferred, Louisville & Nashville, Amalgamated Copper and Colorado Fuel 2 or more. Metropolitan Street Railway sold at a decline of 5. The bears caused some rally when they covered shorts, but it was fitful and uneasy.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street.

Weekly Bank Statement.

New York, Jan. 9.—The statement of the clearing house banks for the week shows that the banks hold $22,692,950 more than the requirements of the 25 per cent reserve rule. This is an increase of $1,735,650 in the proportionate cash reserve as compared with last week. The statement follows: Loans $1,707,035,700, increase $23,815,000; deposits $1,358,349,800, increase $7,503,300; circulation $50,254,200, decrease $106,700; legal tenders $83,151,000, increase $3,602,900; specie $279,129,400, increase $7,503,300; reserve $362,280,400, increase $11,106,200; reserve required $339,587,450, increase $9,370,550; surplus $221,692,950, increase $1,735,650; ex United States deposits $24,890,750, increase $1,740,450. The percentage of actual reserve of the clearing house banks today was 27.08. The statement of banks and trust companies of Greater New York not reported to the clearing house shows that these institutions have aggregate deposits of $1,145,499,800; total cash on hand, $112,301,100, and loans amounting to $1,056,502,900.

New York Money.

New York, Jan. 9.—Money on call nominal; time loans dull; sixty days, 2¾@3 per cent; ninety days, 2¾@3 per cent; six months, 3¼@3½ per cent; prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4 per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.84.90@4.85 for 60-day bills and at $4.87.15@4.87.20 for demand; commercial bills, $4.84¾@4.84⅞. Bar silver, 51½c; Mexican dollars, 44c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds easy.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 9.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 5@6 points in response to higher cables and bullish week-end figures with March selling at 9.18 for a new high record in season. Census report shows 12,470,000 bales ginned to Jan. 1 was just about as expected, possibly a shade heavier and had evidently been fully discounted. The market weakened right after the opening under realizing of week-end sales. Futures closed steady. Closing bids: January, 9.06; February, 9.06; March, 9.10; April, 9.06; May 9.09; June and July, 9.02; August, 8.95; September, 8.82; October, 8.76; November and December, 8.75. Spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 9.40; middling gulf, 9.65. Sales, none.

SATURDAY, JAN. 9, 1909.

Calumet & Sonora was the big feature of today's market. If you think this one is not going to advance fast you are badly mistaken. It closed $16.00 bid today for big lots. This one is getting down to a point where we seldom see a certainty. I believe there is a big short interest and all we have to do is to let them hunt for the stock. Personally I believe a man almost a fool who could not see further ahead than to sell Calumet & Sonora short. Why they can simply break a man in this issue. Look what they did with San Antonio. Never sell any stock short when there is only a limited amount of shares issued. Calumet & Sonora can go to $80.00 a share and not much stock will change hands for the insiders honestly believe it is worth $200.00 a share.

Calumet & Corbin I advised the purchase of at $1.00. The mine is located in the Corbin district, which many experts claim is another Butte. Supt. Wilcox of the Mass mine has reported favorably on this one and we certainly get orders from the Copper country for the stock. They are bidding $1.75 for big blocks.

Superior & Globe will do better. It closed $1.12½ bid. Those bankers down at Calumet and Laurium are not going to let this issue lag behind. We advise the purchase for big sure money.

Butte-Montana has simply got to come. It is trading at 50 to 52 cents and is without question one of the greatest low-priced stocks ever put on the boards.

REVIVAL OF INTEREST IN REAL ESTATE MARKET

Earnest Money Deposited on Two Superior Street Deals—Much Inquiry From Outside Investors —Park Point Property Being Picked Up.

With Duluth more tightly in the grasp of the Frost King than it has been for a good many years, with the people just recovering from the holiday season, and with the closing up of the business of the old year before the start of business for the new year, the real estate market was naturally very quiet during the past week.

There was one bright development. The depositing of earnest money on two deals, aggregating about $100,000 and involving Superior street property, was a good indication of the revival of interest. Real estate men were looking for just that after the first of the year. The spring boom is coming, and the deals begun this week are the forerunners of many more in desirable pieces of property.

Real estate men are the leaders in optimism. They are the original boosters to take advantage of every development that tends to lay a foundation for telling people what a good city Duluth is, and what a great future it has before it. They aren't looking for an artificial boom. They don't need to, for Duluth has the foundations laid for a march of progress that will more surely secure it in its place as the greatest city of the Northwest.

The coming of the steel plant, the invasion of the railroads, the formation of the big lumber combination, the new discoveries of ore deposits in Northern Minnesota, all turn eyes of people outside to Duluth and those with any degree of perception are quick to see that the prophecies made for Duluth and Northeastern Minnesota are founded on fact, not wild conjecture.

Duluth real estate men report that every mail brings them letters from capitalists all over the country, seeking information and opportunities to invest money in Duluth real estate. The recognize an opportunity, which local people are just beginning to realize is present, and between the two, Duluth property will be very much in demand.

The expansion of the city is surely going on. Increase in industrial prosperity means increase in population; increase in population means increase in number of homes; increase in number of homes means spreading out of the home building territory an dthe expansion, which was marked during the year 1908, will be exceeded by far by that of 1909. Property in Lakeside and Lester Park, Woodland and Hunter's Park, West Duluth and West end is forging to the front, and the owners of unplatted pieces of land just outside of the built-up district of the city are thinking seriously of platting it and putting it on the market.

Building operations are going on steadily with no new developments. Most of the buildings under construction in the down-town district are equipped with false fronts and the interior work is going along. The roof is on the courthouse and Lanquist & Illsley, the contractors, have a large force at work inside of the building. The foundation work on the new Commercial building is going along rapidly and work on the superstructure will begin within a week or two.

Real estate men think better results would accrue to property-owners if their property was listed with one agent alone, instead of being placed with several agencies around the city. "I have a piece of property, for which I am asking $20,000," said a real estate dealer yesterday. "I find, however, that it is listed with several other agents, and buyers are naturally afraid of property after being shown it by several agents. They think there must be something wrong with it. I had an eastern buyer look at the proposition last week and he said 'I have had that property shown me twice already. I am a stranger here and naturally cautious about investing. When I see several agents trying to sell a tract, I ask why do not home people buy it, if it is such a bargain?' "

When property is listed with one agent alone, he tries harder to sell it and is inclined to spend more money in advertising it. He hates to put himself out in the matter, if he knows half a dozen other agents are working on it and thus do himself out of the commission.

The contract system is becoming more popular in Duluth and most of the real estate men are inclined to adopt it entirely. Under the contract system, the firms refuse to list a property unless the owner signs a contract to leave the tract with them for a certain length of time at a certain price.

Deeds recorded in the register of deeds' office during the past week indicate that Julius H. Barnes is adding to his shore line holdings on Park Point. He is already the owner of a considerable amount of bay shore line property and deeds recorded this week give him two more whole blocks on the bay shore near Twentieth street and near Twenty-fourth street and several scattered lots, besides an undivided one-half interest in ten other scattered lots. The property bought outright represents an investment of $4,800 and the consideration for the one-half interest is $900.

George H. Gamble has sold to L. B. Manley property in the altered plat of London Park addition, with a frontage of nearly 600 feet on Oneida street in the vicinity of Fifty-second and Fifty-third avenues east. The property comprises twenty-four 25-foot lots in Blocks 1, 3 and 4 and the price paid was $2,750.

George L. Wolen has sold to Josephine Bates a house and lot on the south side of Jefferson street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth avenues east for $5,000. The lot has a frontage of twenty-five feet on Jefferson street.

N. M. Pomeroy has sold to Antone Reed a lot on the south side of Fourth street between Fifth and Sixth avenues west for $2,300.

D. R. Black & Co., have been awarded the contract for the plumbing and heating in the new $16,000 home of Dr. H. Collins in the East end. The contract was let at $2,000.

W. E Kern, a former alderman and for many years engaged in the laundry business in Duluth, and Phillip H. Smith, a well known traveling man, have formed a partnership and have embarked in the real estate business with offices in the Manhattan building.

The following letter was received by Wahl & Messer, referring to receipt of one of their birds eye postal cards.

"Sirs: Ay revelsed a Post Card from you and it lucks leik someting as to buy or rente Property, wel ay am owner of a Lot in West Duluth Seckond Devision, ver ay vil sele if ay can get havth det Lot is worth, if you leike to buy det Property please let my know how mutch you thik det Lot is vorth."

FIREPROOF HOME WHICH WOULD COST $6,000 TO BUILD IN DULUTH

This illustration shows a practical design, somewhat out of the ordinary, for a dwelling of fireproof construction. Hollow tile is the material used for the floors, walls and roof construction. The exterior wall, columns and cornices would be treated with stucco.

Located on level grounds with ample space surrounding it, a home of this design would present a striking and attractive appearance. The low effect carried out in the elevations the wide projecting cornice, and the massive veranda treatment, give this design its individuality.

The first story plan in general suggests hospitality and is interesting in its unconventional effects. The living room is comparatively large and well lighted. The cozy ingle nook with its wide tile fireplace and hearth and built-in seat, is the most attractive feature of the living room. An unusual feature of the plan is arrangement of the staircase, which winds around the ingle nook, and is designed to be shut off from both the first and second stories by glass doors, thus eliminating the possibilities of a "drafty" house, which is the greatest objection to open staircases.

The diningroom is treated more as a large alcove off the living room, and is yet arranged to accommodate a large dinner party. Between the kitchen and the diningroom is a large serving pantry provided with cupboards, sheives and a small sink for washing chinaware. The kitchen arrangement is perfect in regard to convenience. The cellar door and the rear door open into the kitchen, except that in the latter case a small pantry serves as an entry and a location for an icebox and shelves.

In the second story plan three large and airy bedrooms, a sewing room, a bathroom and ample closet space, are all that is required for the ordinary family.

With full stone basement, hardwood floors and a good grade of finish, such a home would cost $6,000, which includes heating and plumbing.

TILLMAN SAYS MALICE MOVES MR. ROOSEVELT

South Carolina Senator Denies Crookedness in Land Deal.

Resents Action of President in Having Him Watched.

Upper House Packed With Crowd That Hears Speech.

Washington, Jan. 11.—It was evident from the time the doors of the capitol were opened today that Senator Tillman's reply to the president's charges against him in connection with an Oregon land grant would receive the attention of an audience commensurate with the seating capacity of the chamber.

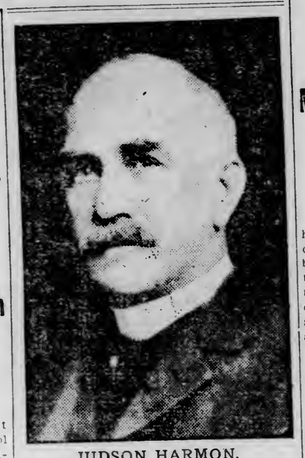

The fact that the South Carolina senator would make response to the allegations of the chief executive had been widely and persistently advertised, and long before the doors leading to the senate chamber had swung open for the day, the corridors leading to them were thronged by people, embracing both sexes and all colors.

When the senator rose to speak there was not a vacant seat in the galleries. The senate floor was also well occupied, not only by senators themselves, but by members of the house of representatives and by employes of the senate and others entitled to the floor.

It was generally understood that Senator Tillman would attempt to justify his course, and the disposition of the audience both on the floor and in the galleries was to await his explanation before passing final judgment.

"In my public work here," said Senator Tillman, "I have not hesitated to

JUDSON HARMON.

HARMON TO BE ALERT

New Ohio Governor, a Democrat, Will Watch Trusts.

State's Name Not to be Used to "Decorate Securities."

"We must make the state government more broadly useful. Its powers are ample and undoubted to grapple with many things which have been developed by new conditions and give general concern. Why, then stand by and let the general government assume to regulate state corporations because they engage in interstate commerce. Citizens engage in that commerce, too, and congress has the same right concerning their personal affairs as with those of state corporations, no more and no less. If congress gets general jurisdiction over us, if we engage in commerce outside the state we may as well turn over the capitol to a federal commission and go home.

"We should carefully supervise the creation and extension of corporate rights so that the name of the state shall not be used to decorate securities which do not represent good faith and full value.

"The creation of impersonal beings with extraordinary rights and facilities for wrong doing is a serious matter and should be so treated.

"What caused for a time the obscuring of the vital truths about state powers and duties was the unsatisfactory character of our home governments. I do not believe their shortcomings have been, on the whole, any greater than these of the national government. They touch us much oftener and more closely and we seem them at a shorter range. That is all. Certainly no state government ever used, or would have dared to use, taxing power to swell private fortunes, or plunged into unparalleled expenditures in the face of a large and growing deficit, chiefly due to diverting taxation from its primary purpose of raising public revenue.

"But whatever the defects of the state governments, they have been chiefly due to lack of timely attention, and our hope for betterment springs from the marked renewal of active interest in them."

In closing, Mr. Harmon discussed, among other things, the necessity of more effective rules and methods for the taxation of both real and personal property, private and corporate

FORTY KILLED, SIXTY INJURED

By Collapse of An Ancient Church in Switzerland.

Berne, Switzerland, Jan. 11.—During divine service yesterday an ancient church near Sion suddenly collapsed, burying the worshippers in the ruins. Practically all members of the congregation were killed or injured. A wild panic followed, those who escaped rushing through the fields shouting that an earthquake had overtaken the village. Other villagers joined in the outcry and were with difficulty calmed. After an hour's exertion the fire company of the place extricated forty corpses but it is believed there are still a number under the timbers. Sixty persons were badly injured. The collapse of the church was caused by the time worn pillars in the under ground crypt giving way.

HAINS CASE IS ENDING

Rebuttal Testimony is Concluded, Evidence Is All In.

Jury Will Probably Begin Deliberating Wednesday or Thursday.

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 11.—The trial of Thornton Jenkins Hains, charged, with his brother, Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., with the killing of William E. Annis on Aug. 15 at the Bayside Yacht club, entered today upon its fourth and last week. An hour was given over today to concluding the rebuttal testimony, and the evidence upon which the jury will act will all be in. The jury will retire either Wednesday or Thursday afternoon.

Upon the verdict in Thornton Hains' case depends the course to be taken with Capt. Hains, now awaiting trial for murder in Long Island city jail. Should Thornton be found guilty, it is generally regarded here that a commission will be asked for to determine the sanity of the army officer; but in the event of an acquittal for Thornton, the case of Capt. Hains will undoubtedly come to trial, and his defense will be maniac-depressive insanity of temporary character. In the event of a disagreement in the trial of Thornton Hains, which has been a heavy expense to Queens county, it is believed he will be admitted to bail and the indictment filed away.

Announcement was made today that Prosecutor Darrin would sum up for the state on Wednesday, and that he would take the entire day to close. A short session of the court will be held today and an adjournment taken until tomorrow, when Mr. McIntyre will sum up for the defense. Dr. Harris Boughton, a member of the Bayside Yacht club, was called today by Prosecutor Darrin, and after stating that he did not see James E. Tierney, the ash col-

TAKE LIVING FROM RUINS

Old Man Rescued, Attention Being Called by Dog.

Measures Taken to Protect Quake Victims From Looters.

Messina, Jan. 11.—Balmy weather has prevailed for the past two or three days at this place, and it is a great blessing, making it possible for the troops and survivors of the earthquake to live more or less comfortably in the open. Occasionally there are earth shocks, but the people have become accustomed to them. Two severe shocks on Friday brought down many broken walls in Messina. Gen. Mazza, who is in supreme command, has adopted stringent measures in order to protect the people and the people's property. In addition to establishing a police service around the city, he has issued orders that persons found excavating without a permit shall be shot. Gen. Mazza's command extends to both sides of the straits. In an interview he said that some semblance of order was at last being re-established. The work is now systematic, and the situation, he believed, is well in hand.

"The question of the ultimate rebuilding of Messina," he said, "belongs to the political authorities; it does not concern me. My principal energies will be concentrated with those of the authorities at Reggio in getting out the remainder of the wounded, burying the dead and disinfecting the ruins in order to prevent the spread of sickness."

Gen. Mazza explained that the prevention of looting entailed the most

LID ON TIGHT IN ROANOKE

Every Law and Ordinance Was Enforced on Sunday.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 11.—Mayor Cutchins' order to the police department to enforce every law and ordinance was craried out yesterday. No cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, fruit, confections, toilet articles or other merchandise were sold. One cigar stand gave away cigars to all its patrons.

The police hailed all milk wagons, drays, wagons, ice cream wagons and street hacks and took the names of the drivers and owners of the vehicles. The number of all street cars and the names of the motormen and conductors runing them were recorded and the numbers of freight trains running through the city, not hauling perishable matter, were noted.

The anti-spitting and all other ordinances were rigidly enforced.

The mayor's order was accepted good-naturedly by the people, and there were no clashes between citizens and officers.

TWENTY-FIVE MINERS DIE

In Gas Explosion in Leiter's Colliery at Zeigler.

Mine Just Started, After Shut Down, Due to Fire.

Duqoin, Ill., Jan. 11.—Twenty-five men lost their lives in a gas explosion at an early hour yertesday morning in Joseph Leiters famous colliery at Zeigler. A spark from a trolley pole of an electric motor, coming in contact with a pocket of gas, is assigned as the cause of the explosion.

Efforts to establish the cause with certainty are being made, but thus far few of the theorists agree. Experts, who had inspected the mine after the recent fire in it, declared it safe, and full preparations for a resumption of mining had been made. The men killed were cleaning up the last of the debris by the fire fighters, and it had been expected that coal would be hoisted today.

The Americans killed by the explosion include:

WILLIS WARNER, foreman.
ALBERT KERR, foreman.
JAMES PATTERSON,
JOE RICHARDSON,
FRED MORGAN,
JOE ORANS,
GILBERT X. JONES,
JOE TATE,
JAMES H. PHILLIPS,
JOHN CASSAY,
AARON JEROME,
THOMAS HUBBARD,
CEBE HUCKET,
CHARLES SMOTHERS.

Mr. Leiter personally conducted the first relief party that descended into the mine to recover the dead bodes. The lone survivor of the explosion was an Italian youth who escaped unharmed.

An expert, who had been experimenting with the gas in the mines at Zeigler, left Wednesday confident that he had placed the mine in safe condition to be operated.

The men entombed were engaged in clearing away the debris caused by the recent fires in the mine and it was expected that operations would be resumed this week after two months suspension.

Bodies Badly Burned.

STRAWBERRIES DUE TO RIPEN THIS WEEK

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 11.—Strawberries, barely out of reach of the winter's first cold wave, are due to ripen this week in South Georgia, by the thousands for shipment to snowbound Northern markets. Last week's cold snap, which pushed the frost line southward to the gulf of Mexico, worried the berry growers, but today, with rising temperatures, the strawberries are reported as on the average the size of hickory nuts, and as needing but a few sunny days to redden them for market.

CARMICHAEL KILLS SELF IN CARTHAGE, ILL.; ADMITS MURDERING CARPENTER

REV. J. H. CARMICHAEL.
The Pastor Murderer.

GIDEON BROWNING.
The Pastor's Victim.

Michigan Methodist Minister Cuts Throat From Ear to Ear.

Says He Committed Crime Under Wife's Hypnotic Influence.

She Learns of His Whereabouts and Is Calm.

Carthage Ill., Jan. 11.—Leaving a letter in which he admitted killing Gideon Browning, a carpenter, cutting up his body and stuffing it into the stove of the Methodist church, at Battle Run, Mich., Rev. John H. Carmichael, pastor of that and two other Michigan churches, today committed suicied by cutting his throat from ear to ear with a razor.

A letter of ten pages was written by Carmichael, admitting his identity and confessing that he killed Browning, cut up the body and burned it in the stove, while under the hypnotic influence of his wife.

Carmichael had been staying here for the last two days in a private boarding house.

He cut his throat while in an outhouse on the premises of the place at which he had secured a room. He had a sister living here, Mrs. Miranda Hughes.

He was taken into custody after inflicting his wounds, and died in the care of the sheriff.

Wife is Calm.

Adair, Mich., Jan. 11.—"Really, really have they found him," was Mrs. Carmichael's exclamation when told that her husband had been found in Carthage, Ill. She took the news calmly; in fact seemed admost relieved to know that the much-sought man had been located. "I know of no reason why he should have gone to Carthage," she continued. "He has no relatives there and no friends that I ever knew of. I never heard of Carthage before, and know nothing of the place."

When told that her husband in his letter said that he had committed the murder of Browning while under her hypnotic influence, Mrs. Carmichael declared she knew nothing of hypnotism, that her husband so far as she knew was ignorant of it, and that it had never been discussed in their home. "I never saw a person hypnotized," she said, "and know absolutely nothing about the practice. And if my husband made such a statement in a letter I cannot imagine the reason for it."

SEES FOUR BEHEADED

French Crowd Expresses Satisfaction Over Work of Guillotine.

Bands Who Terrorized Two Countries, Executed in Public.

Bethune, Pas de Calais, France, Jan. 11.—The first inflictions of capital punishment in France for a number of years past were witnessed in this town today when four members were decapitated by the guillotine. The executions were public and took place in the presence of a large crowd.

The record of crime against the four men was long. Working together, they, as members of a band, had terrorized Northern France and Southern Belgium for several years.

As the condemned men were led out of prison cries of vengeance arose from the assembled crowd, and as the knife fell four times in rapid succes-

BLEACHED FLOUR HIT

Judge Pollock Upholds Constitutionality of North Dakota Law.

Millers Lose in Fight on Pure Food Commissioner Ladd.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bleaching flour by the Alsop process was held to be in violation of the North Dakota pure food law and that law was held to be constitutional by Judge Pollock of the district court here today. The decision was in a case brought a year ago by the Millers to prevent the publication by State Pure Food Commissioner Ladd of bulletins against bleached flour.

The case was bitterly fought. After the issuance of a temporary injunction the defendant sought a writ of prohibition, but the supreme court decided the lower court had jurisdiction. When the case came on for trial both sides called some of the eminent chemists and pure food experts of the country.

Especial importance is attached to the decision, as it was the initial bleached flour action in the entire United States, being brought prior to the proceedings before the secretary of agriculture. The court finds that the experts differed greatly, that the millers introduced no deleterious substance, that it seems incredible a small amount of nitrogen peroxide would be injurious in flour, discredits rabbits and white mice tests of both sides, holds millers did not use the process in order to use cheap wheats, but sees possibility of that being done. Millers concede the presence of nitrates in flour, but contend it is lost in the baking of bread. This admission was fatal, as the court was dealing with flour, not bread, and the state pure food law bars the presence of any such substance. The law is declared constitutional. The costs were taxed to the milling companies.

WILL DIE FROM STAB IN FIGHT

No Clue to Assailant in a St. Paul Affray.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Liggeo Dommo, aged 25, of 401 Russell street, was fatally stabbed in a fight Sunday.

The man was found in his home by Dr. Geer and ordered taken to the City hospital. He was suffering from two deep cuts in the back and one over the heart. No hope of his recovery is entertained. The fight was reported to the police carry today.

There is no clue as to who did the stabbing.

LADY WILLIAM BERESFORD IS DEAD IN ENGLAND.

Dorking, Eng., Jan. 11.—Lady William Beresford, who was Lillian Warren Prince, daughter of the late Commodore Prince, United States navy, of Troy, N. Y., died here today. She had been ill for some months past and her death was not unexpected.

Lady Beresford's first husband was Louis Hammersley of New York. After his death she married, in 1888, the eighth duke of Marlborough, who died in 1892. She was consequently known for a time as the dowager duchess of Marlborough. Her third husband was Lord William Leslie de la Poer Beresford, who died in 1900.

HOUGHTON ATTORNEY'S RESIDENCE IS BURNED.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The home of Attorney Allen F. Rees of this place was destroyed by fire this morning. Its loss is from $18,000 to $20,000. Mr. Rees is at present in Cincinnati representing the Calumet & Hecla Mining company in case against the Bigelow syndicate in the United States court of appeals.

CHAIRMEN SELECTED

For the Senate and House Committees in North Dakota.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the week's recess taken by the North Dakota legislature rapidly drawing to a close, the solons are beginning to get into shape for the work that will be taken up upon reconvening Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The legislature adjourned last Wednesday until Wednesday of this week and the recess has been taken up in the work of fixing up the senate and house committees.

Lieutenant Governor Lewis has practically completed his list of committees. Only two chairmanships have been officially announced, Judson La Moure of Pembina county for the committee on appropriations and J. B. Sharpe of La Moure on the committee judiciary committee. The state affairs committee chairmanship, it is generally understood, will go to Maynard Crane of Griggs county. Senator Talcott of Cass county is slated for the educational committee, while the railway committee will be presided over by Gilbert of Cass, who has held that same position in other sessions. Ed Pierce of Ransom county has practic-

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Chicago Girl Shoots Her Former Friend and Herself.

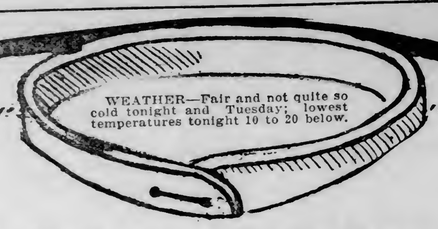

Chicago, Jan. 11.—"I held her love until that young man stepped between us," declared Anna Rubinswitch, 22 years old, shortly before she died at a hospital last night from a bullet wound inflicted by herself after she had shot and perhaps fatally wounded Bertha Yablowsky, 22 years old.

Until recently, when the Yablowsky girl became acquainted with a young man, the two girls were close friends. Miss Rubinswitch yesterday afternoon went to her friend's house, and after gaining admittance, drew a revolver from beneath her cloak and fired three shots. She left a note showing that she had been brooding over the estrangement of her friend.

TURKEY MAY REFUSE AUSTRIAN INDEMNITY.

Constantinople Jan. 11.—It is reported here that the council of ministers has decided to reject the offer of Austria to pay Turkey £2,500,000 Turkish ($10,800,000) as indemnity for the annexation of the provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina.

ICE VERY THICK.

New Duluth Houses Filled With Blocks Two Feet Thick.

This has been a good season for the ice man and a busy one.

The Duluth Ice company, though it has been cutting ice only a little over a week, has filled its two big storehouses at New Duluth, and is now preparing to attack the frozen surface of the river at Spirit Lake, where it has more houses to fill. The houses at New Duluth were filled in record time. The ice on the river is thick and clear, the best it has been in years, so early in the season, it is said. It has been easy to fill the big storehouses with blocks of ice from 20 to 24 inches in thickness.

The continued cold weather is rapidly thickening the ice on the river, and it is thought that before the company has finished filling its houses at Spirit Lake it will be putting away blocks of ice three feet thick.

UNFAITHFUL TO TRUST.

Superior Man Said to Have Defrauded Countryman of $15.

According to the story told by Ell Bojat last night at the West Duluth police station, his family in faraway Austria is waiting for money they will never receive from him.

Bojat claims that not long ago he entrusted $15 to John Balich, who is the proprietor of a Superior boarding house, with instructions that he was to send it by postal money order to his dependent family across the water. Bajot later thought that his trust may have been misplaced, so he inquired at the postoffice if the money had been sent. There were no records there to show that it had, so he complained to the police. Balich was arrested last night and was placed under bail of $30 to appear in justice court for trial this morning. He did not appear and so forfeited his bail.

West Duluth is represented at the bonspiel which began today in St. Paul.

Last night four picked players from the Western Curling club took the train for the Twin Cities to contest with broom and stone for honors for their club. The rink was composed of P. Martin, W. Sullivan, Martin Meldahl and Arthur Hoag, skip.

Tonight at the rink there will be three games in the West Duluth Commercial club trophy contest. They are as follows: Wade's rink vs. Everett's, Buckley's vs. Staples', Keyes' vs. Barnes'.

Did Not Object to Autopsy.

Mrs. Peter J. Quinn of Forty-seventh avenue west, denies that it was through her objection to an autopsy being performed on the body of her child, that she changed undertakers on the eve of the child's funeral.

She engaged one underlaker to make the funeral arrangements, and she claims that she could not come to an agreement with him as to the price of the coffin, so had it taken back to his rooms. She then called on another undertaker, who completed the arrangements. The funeral took place last week.

SUPERIOR NEWS

GREAT NORTHERN WINS FIGHT

The Wisconsin railroad commission today filed an order which gives the Great Northern railroad permission to build its line from Cadotte avenue and the intersection of the Northern Pacific tracks on the bay front in the East end, to the Interstate bridge on Connor's Point.

This decision settles the fight which has been waged so long between the Great Northern and Soo roads, giving the Great Northern the victory. The Soo did not wish the Great Northern to cross its lands. If the Great Northern desired an approach to the Interstate bride, it claimed that it should be built by the Duluth-Superior Bridge company.

The Wisconsin railroad commission's decision has given the Great Northern the privilege of condemning lands required for its approach right of way to the Interstate bridge, which means that some of the Soo's holdings will be crossed.

THE ANNUAL DEBATE.

Blaine High School Will Meet Duluth Central Students.

"Resolved, that the United States should annex Cuba, providing the Cubans are willing," will be the subject for the debate between the Blaine high school of Superior and the Duluth Central high school, which will be held during the latter part of April or the first of March. The exact date of the debate has not been set, but it will be held in Duluth. The Superior school has the choice of sides, the affirmative or the negative. They have not decided which it will be.

Seven Will Graduate.

At the beginning of the second semester at the Blaine high school, seven seniors will be graduated, but will not be awarded their diplomas until the end of the semester, when the annual joint graduating exercises of the Nelson-Dewey and Blaine high schools will be held.

Will Employ 100 Men.

About 100 men will be employed at the new stock food plant which is being erected on the St. Louis bay front by the Marsden Stock Food company, when the factory is completed.

According to Manager Whitefield Gibbs, the plant will be operating within two months. It will then be turned over to the American Milling company.

Will Talk in Superior.

D. M. Philbin, superintendent of the Great Northern road, and J. A. Murphy, the road's attorney, while in St. Paul last week, visited J. J. Hill. In the interview with them, Mr. Hill said that he would deliver an address in Superior in about a month. He had planned to visit Superior sooner, but business will make it necessary for him to be in the East for three weeks. Mr. Hill will be the guest of the Commercial club, while in the city, and elaborate plans are being made to entertain him.

Business is Good.

Charles W. Putnam, agent for the new Ladysmith-Superior extension of the Wisconsin Central road, says that both the passenger and freight business of the new road has more than come up to the expectations of the officers and of the local agency.

Granted a Divorce.

"MASHERS" ARE GROWING BOLD

That the ever present "masher" is growing bolder, is the complaint that was made to several Duluth merchants this morning by girls in their employ.

Several young women stated this morning that they had been accosted Saturday evening while returning from work, and that the men who spoke to them had been very persistent, in many cases following them for some distance.

The police have been doing their best to round up these gangs of young rowdies, but with the present force it is impossible to watch the side streets and avenues closely, and it is generally the dark avenues that these young toughs select.

A Rare Opportunity.

If you desire a picture, a piece of statuary, bric-a-brac, in fact anything in the way of exclusive art goods, don't fail to attend the half price sale at Engels' Art store, 9 East Superior street.

Wallace Munro Here.

Wallace Munro, manager of Louis James, one of the best known press agents of this country and a leading spirit of the famous Friars club of New York city, is at the Spalding today.

Mr. Munro has seen service in the English newspaper field, being one of the newspaper men to interview "Chinese" Gordon, the general who became famous through his campaigns in Egypt and the Orient.

Though Mr. Munro says the past year has not been a very prosperous one with the theatrical business, there are indications that it will improve before many months, and many new productions are being planned with this belief in view.

Mr. Munro is ahead of Louis James, who is appearing in "Peer Gynt."

CONFESSES TO SIXTY THEFTS

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Sixty burglaries and hold-ups of which he was the perpetrator were admitted by Leo Adams today, according to the police.

Adams told his story in a matter-of-fact way. He said that sometimes the routine of "doing jobs" palled on him, at which times he would get legitimate employment.

"But I couldn't earn enough to have a good time," he continued, "and when an 'easy mark' came along I just naturally had to relieve him of his valuables."

INTERESTING POINT RAISED

The case of Marten Skala vs. Anton Strauss, for the title to a valuable claim located on the range, is on before Register Engel of the United States land office today.

Strauss, who some years ago held title to a homestead on the same land he is now fighting for, relinquished his claim to the homesetad, in order that he might take it up as a stone and timber claim.

Skala, who is contesting him, claims that the land Strauss now holds under the timber and stone act, is more valuable as agricultural land, and that Strauss is not entitled to hold the same under the timber and stone entry.

There is much evidence to be presented and the land office officials expect the case to drag out the greater part of the week.

EKLUND OF DULUTH SENT TO WASHINGTON.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The electors of Minnesota met in Governor Johnson's office in the state capitol at noon and cast their vote for W. H. Taft and J. S. There is not a single unclaimed package in the local postoffice.

HAS HARRIMAN CONTROL OF NEW YORK CENTRAL?

New York, Jan. 11.—There was keen interest in railroad circles yesterday over the reports from Omaha that E. H. Harriman had gained controlling interest in the New York Central lines, and was already exercising his power in the direction of the affairs of the railroad by officiating as chairman of the executive committee. William C. Brown, president of the New York Central, denied the report.

BROWN APPEALS TO HITCHCOCK

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 1.—(Special to The Herald.)—Will Mr. Hitchcock, chairman of the national Republican committee, please send A. D Brown, chairman of the Minnesota Republican committee, $1,500, or—if it can be spared—$2,000?

This is the question which has been sent East, and a number of creditors of the Minnesota Republican committee are anxiously waiting to see "what shall the answer be."

When the late campaign in Minnesota wound up, the Republican state committee found itself considerably in debt. And as the party had not elected its candidate for governor, it has proved a very uphill proposition to collect money to meet unpaid bills.

A. D. Brown succeeded in raising some money locally, and about $1,500 from Duluth Republicans but he finds his treasury still nearly $2,000 short. He wants to wipe out all this indebtedness that is a blot upon the history of the late Republican campaign in Minnesota, and this is the reason for his having remained up to date in St. Paul instead of going to his home at Madison.

An Interesting Story.

Behind Mr. Brown's request to pay the national committee for money to pay the remaining bills against the Minnesota state committee, is an interesting story. It is to the effect that it was recognized before the Minnesota campaign opened, that many of the well-to-do Minnesota Republicans were weak-kneed in their Jacobson Republicanism, or else were altogether Jonhsonites. All of them, however, were strongly in favor of Taft. So it was agreed that the national committee should do practically all the soliciting for funds among the wealthy Minnesota Republicans, and then divide with the Minnesota committee. Thus both the state and the national committee stood to get a greater amount of the much-sought cash from the Minnesotans on the list of contributors. The story goes that the national committee was very successful in Minnesota; that it got, according to different rumors, from $8,000 to $20,000 from this source. And then, apparently, the national committee forgot all about the Minnesota comittee.

Brown Recalls Agreement.

So it is that now comes A. D. Brown with a request that the national committee remember the old agreement, do the fair thing, and help out the Minnesota organization, which is suffering on the rocks of financial distress and attacked on every side by hungry creditors. The story goes further, that Frank B. Kellogg, who is now in the East, is the messenger from the state to the national Republican committee, and that his return to St. Paul is accordingly being anxiously awaited by both Mr. Brown and those who fain would have their bills paid.

OREGON SENATORSHIP.

Election of Chamberlain Thought to be Assured.

Salem, Ore., Jan. 11.—The probable election of a Democrat to the United States senate by the Republicans pledged to such a course, will be the chief feature of the Oregon legislature, which convened in this city today. There is but one candidate for senator, George F. Chamberlain, the present governor of Oregon, who was selected as the choice of the people last June, defeating the Republican party choice, H. M. Cake, the victor, over United States Senator Fulton in the primaries.

Senator Fulton's friends have been working for months to find a plan to defeat Chamberlain and bring about the election of a Republican. It is the general belief, however, that the opposition to Chamberlain will suffer a defeat, after a warm political fight.

WATCHORN CASE IS NOW UP TO STRAUS.

Washington, Jan. 11.—President Roosevelt had a conference today with Secretary Straus and Robert Watchorn, commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island, New York, respecting the charges made against Mr Watchorn causing the withdrawal of the latter's nomination from the senate a week ago. At the conclusion of the conference, Mr. Straus said the president had turned the case over to him for disposition and that he would give a hearing to those making the charges, if they so desired.

VERDICT FOR PHYSICIAN

Lorne Boston Fails to Urge Counter Claim for $20,000.

Mrs. Leland's Suit Against Samaritans Is Again on Trial.

Judge Dibell's court was the only one active in district court this morning, Judge Ensign being unable to take up anything on account of the attorneys not being ready to go on with the cases on call. In passing one case over until tomorrow, Judge Ensign took occasion to remind the attorneys that when cases are called for trial, they will be tried or stricken from the calendar, the call giving all plenty of time to prepare or decide on a continuance.

The case of John Specht vs. Lorne Boston occupied but a short time before Judge Dibell. Although the defendant had filed a counter claim for $20,000, he made no appearance and the issues were quickly submitted to the jury, resulting in a verdict of $250 for the plaintiff, one-half of the amount asked.

Dr. Specht sued for compensation for medical services rendered between December, 1907, and May, 1908. He alleged he performed several operations and had received no pay. In answer, Boston, who had both legs broken in a railroad accident, claims that the bones were improperly set and put in a claim for $20,000. The defendant withdrawing from the case, the counter claim was not submitted and the only question for the jury was the justice of Dr. Specht's claim and the amount that should be awarded to him.

The case of Cora G. Leland vs. the Modern Samaritans was then taken up before Judge Dibell. It is a suit for $2,000 on a certificate held by Mr. Leland in the Samaritans. The Samaritans claim that Mr. Leland was in arrears in his dues at the time of his death, April 14, 1908, and had forfeited all benefits under his certificate. The plaintiff claims that the local council made a practice of receiving Mr. Leland's payments for three months at a time in the second month and, relying on that, he was in arrears technically only and Mrs. Leland is entitled to recover.

The case was tried at the November term of court and resulted in a disagreement of the jury.

The petit jury reported for the first time this morning. Judge Cant is still engaged with an election contest case at Grand Rapids and Judge Ensign and Judge Dibell will take care of the calendar until his return, when all three will be engaged.

"DON'T CALL THIS COLD IN WINNIPEG"

There are some people who don't think we are having cold weather here in Duluth. L. Van Praagh of Winnipeg, formerly of this city, who at the present time is engaged in business in the Western Canadian metropolis, is one of them.

Mr. Van Praagh walked into the Lenox this morning, with his coat open and his derby hat at an airy angle. He didn't even have his coat collar turned up. In fact he didn't even have a heavy outer coat on.

Some one asked the former Duluthian if he didn't think it was cold. "I should say not," he responded. "This is very mild and moderate weather compared to the brand we have been used to up in Winnipeg. Our average for the past two weeks has been worse than 30 below zero. Then once in a while the thermometer has gone as low as 40 below. You shouldn't complain about the weather you are having here."

Mr. Van Praagh says Winnipeg is growing very fast and is going to be the greatest city in Canada before very many years have gone by. He says they are going to construct a million dollar water power plant near the city, that will do away with many of the disadvantages the city has labored under.

Mr. Van Praagh expressed the opinion that the construction of the Canadian Northern railroad to Duluth will bring the two cities into closer business and commercial relations. He says the business men of the Canadian city are taking a great interest in Duluth, and should the tariff between Canada and the United States be modified, the two cities will be much closer bound together in a commercial way.

Mr. Van Praagh is in Duluth upon a business trip. He is accompanied by his wife and child.

WANT BRANCH STATE SCHOOL

At the meeting this afternoon of the agricultural committee of the Commercial club, a recommendation was sent to the public affairs committee of the club favoring the locating in St. Louis county a branch of the Minnesota State Agricultural college. The recommendation will be acted upon at the next meeting of the public affairs committee.

After looking into the conditions of this county thoroughly, the members of the agricultural committee have come to the conclusion that a branch of the state college would be the best possible influence for the agriculture interests of the northern part of the state.

Along the lines of the recommendation for the establishment of a branch school in this country, the members of the committee resolved to carry on the work for the improvement of agricultural conditons in this county upon an enlarged scale during the present year. Everything possible will be done by the members of the committee and the Commercial club to develop the lands near Duluth.

The question of an open produce market for this city was considered by the members of the committee. As yet, however, no definite steps in this direction have been taken by the committee. The members of the committee desire to ascertain just what attitude the retail grocers of Duluth are going to take in the matter of handling the products of the farmers near this city.

It is the aim of the committee to have products sold in this city at the lowest possible cost to the consumer, and yet at a profit to the producer. It is working upon this line at the present time.

A. P. Hostetter, the man employed by the Commercial club to take charge of the agricultural work of the club will attend the annual meeting of the Minnesota State Agricultural society in Minneapolis, and while there will make the preliminary arrangements for the exhibit of St. Louis county at the 1909 Minnesota state fair.

The question of the Commercial club having an agricultural paper was considered by the committee, and this project may be taken up. If it is, Mr Hostetter will edit the paper in the interest of the farmers in this county.

COPPER STOCKS CLOSE LOWER

North Butte opened at $82.50, went off to $82.25 and closed at $81.87½ bid and $82.12½ asked. Amalgamated opened at $82, went off to $80.87½, rallied to $82.12½ and closed at $81.75 and $81.87½ asked.

Greene-Cananea opened at $48, advanced to $48.25 and closed at $48 bid. Butte Coalition opened at $26.50, declined to $26.12½, rallied to $26.50 and closed at $26 bid and $26.25 asked. Walker's Copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial said:

"Copper is quiet but firm. Lake is 14½ to 14¾ cents, and electrolytic is 14½ cents per pound. The recent reports of a sale of 40,000,000 pounds of copper at 14½ cents were unwarranted. One cipher should have been dropped, as there was a sale of 4,000,000 pounds at about the price named. It had been expected that there would be a heavy buying demand for copper during the first week of the new year. Although there was the best of basis for this belief, the buying did not materialize, the sharp decline in security prices causing consumers to hesitate and to buy only such amounts as they requir- ed for immediate use. The buyers are still in the market, and there are some good bids fractionally below the quotations given. Producers are exceedingly confident, however, and are more disposed to raise their offering prices than to lower them. As general business is steadily improving, there is every reason for confidence that there will be a heavy buying demand soon which will cause an advance in the price of the metal.

"Viewed from any and every possible standpoint, copper is worth 15 cents per pound. At this price it is a successful competitor with many other metals and materials for building, plumbing, tank-making, etc., and in the electrical field, where there is a rapidly increasing consumption, it is practically without a rival. The production of copper is growing, but not as rapidly as consumption. I feel very confident that the average price of copper this year will be at least 15 cents per pounds."

RAILROADS

Movement Light.

According to statements made by the freight officials of Duluth, there will not be 25 per cent of the pulpwood shipments that were hauled by the Duluth roads last year. The reason is that overstocked condition of the Wisconsin pulpwood mills, due to the heavy floods in the districts where the mills are located, which rendered them idle a good part of tthe time when the busy season was on.

As a consequence of the inability of the mills to take care of the supply of wood on hand, there will be very little pulpwood shipped from the Minnesota districts. The Duluth roads will lose this freight as a result of the lessened demand.

Change in Time.

Yesterday, the new time of departure of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic train for the Copper country went into effect. Heretofore the train has left Duluth at 7:30 a. m. Beginning yesterday, the time was changed to 7:45 a. m., so that the Winnipeg train, which reaches Duluth at 7:30 a. m., could make better connections with the South Shore train. The change in time gives passengers of the train from Winnipeg ample time in which to make the connection for the Copper country.

Curling Scores.

Four interesting games was played at the Duluth Curling club Saturday evening. In The Herald event, Deetz was defeated by Feetham by 13 to 5, and McGillvray was defeated, 12 to 3, in the same event.

In the president's event, Royal Alworth's rink defeated Stillman by a score of 14 to 5, and in the Bagley, Pugh won over Jacobi by 11 to 6.

WATERWAYS PACT SIGNED AT ONCE

London, Jan. 11.—The British government today received telegraphic assent from the United States and Canada to certain slight alterations in the terms of the drafts of the waterways treaty so that an absolute agreement has now been reached, the immediate signing of the treaty in Washington is expected.

Deposed For Heresy.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—On a charge of heresy, Rev. Horace Westwood has been deposed, without hearing, from his assignment as pastor of the Edison Park Methodist Episcopal church. The action was taken by the presiding elder after a conference with Bishop McDowell, without formal complaint from the congregation. The minister had tendered his resignation to take effect Jan. 24, but the dismissal was made peremptory.

TWO-CENT DECISION FAVORS RAILROAD.

Easton, Pa., Jan. 11.—Judge Scott today handed down an opinion in the case of the Central railroad of New Jersey against the county of Northampton to restrain the latter from collecting fines for violating the two-cent rate law, the court finding for the railroad company and placing the costs on the county.

SAFETY GUARDS ARE CONSTANTLY IMPROVING.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The interstate commerce commission has filed its annual report, a feature of which is the statement that the American railroads are constantly improving their safety appliances.

ON THE IRON RANGES

BLAST GOES OFF; PITMAN INJURED

Exploding Gopher Holes at Hawkins Mine When Explosion Occurs.

Nashwauk, Minn., Jan 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walter Berglund, a pitman aged 20, employed at the Hawkins mine, was seriously injured a few days ago. He was engaed in blasting gopher holes, and while lighting them one of the charged holes exploded and he received the full charge of dirt, striking him in the face and body. He was taken to the hospital, where his wounds were dressed and it es expected that he will recover.

John Meinting, representing the Duluth Candy company, called on his customers here between trains recently.

Guthrie Bros. have laid off a large crew of men recently on the work being done on the Great Northern line at Oxhide lake, which is to be built between here and Coleraine.

The local corps of teachers here spent Friday visiting many of the range schools.

COULD NOT READ; DONOLSON VOTED

Itasca County Elector Not Able to Spell Name He Voted.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Riddell-Riley contest involving the office of sheriff is still engaging the attention of the district court and the public, and it is thought that the trial will last about three weeks further. Night sessions are being held and the issues are being taken up with great exactness.

During the past week there were examined as witnesses, Mike Stevens, one of the judges of election also William Shultz, a judge, Henry Simpson, foreman of Simpson's camp No. 1. C. England, clerk in the employ of Sam Simpson, at Bena, August Donolson, an employe of Sam Simpson, and T. A. Gamble, a homesteader. The purpose of the testimony will be to show the illegality of certain camp votes on account of the non-residence of the voters. The members of the election board have testified to irregularities practiced or allowed by them. The legal votes of the precinct will be permitted to stand notwithstanding the alleged irregularities, and the evidence of clerks and employes will be received for the purpose of determining who were legal voters of the precinct.

An interesting bit of testimony was offered by August Donolson, an employe at Camp No. 1. On being asked on direct examination as to whom he voted for, he stated that it was Riley. On cross-examination he said that he could not read or write, that he had marked his own ballot, and that he could not tell Riley's name if he should see it. Requested to spell Riley's name, he spelled it "R-O-D."

Although much testimony of uninteresting nature has been produced the past week, yet the public is following the proceedings, and there is much speculation as to the outcome.

BRITH ABRAHAM INSTALLS.

Social Event in Jewish Eveleth Circles Sunday.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following officers of the local lodge, Order Brith Abraham, were installed at Monitor hall last night: President, Sam Siegel; vice president, Charles Levaut; recording secretary, Harry Levault; financial secretary, Morris Stein; treasurer, Jacob Stein, outside guard, Frank Meyenberg; trustees for one year, Sam White, Morhis Feldman, Abram Rubinstein. A number of outside lorge members from Hibbing and Duluth were present at the installation.

After the installation, the members, their wives and friends adjourned to the Wahlonlahde hall, where a ball was given by the lodge. The hall was handsomely decorated. The Symphony orchestra of five pieces furnished the music.

Many outside people attended, among them being Mrs. Gudell and daughter, St. Paul; Mr. and Mrs. Mesberg and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mlavetz, Miss Nellie Karon, Mr. and Mrs. Bloom, Virginia; Miss Greenblatt, Hibbing; Miss Kemer, Superior; Harry Buchman, Alec Polinsky, Duluth. A supper was served in the dining hall after and during the ball.

DOES NOT CLAIM MONEY.

Louis Fischer of Virginia Seeking for Its Owner.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Several men were waiting for the train at Wolf Junction Saturday evening. Among them was Louis Fischer of this city. One of the men had been drinking, and for some reason did not want the responsibility of taking care of his own wealth and insisted on Fischer taking his pocketbook, which was found to contain a considerable sum of money. They rode to this city and Fischer again tried to have the stranger take his money, but he would have none of it. After getting off the train here the stranger disappeared and thus far Fischer has been unable to locate him.

ASKS ELY FOR DAMAGES.

Herman Kandelin Seeks $2,000 for Personal Injuries.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council at the last meeting disposed of quite an amount of old belting and machinery to the D. Silk Iron & Metal company for the sum of $450. The council also appropriated $150 upon petition from Health Officer Dr. G. T. Ayres to defray the expenses of the coming anti-tuberculosis exhibit the latter part of the month.

Herman Kandelin presented a communication to the council asking the city to pay him $2,000 for injuries received by falling through the sidewalk on Third avenue last fall and on account of which he received severe and permanent injuries. He claims he has been compelled to refrain from labor during the winter on account of his injuries. The matter was referred to the city attorney for investigation.

The council also voted to charge two-thirds of the recent improvements to the sewer and water systems, to the property abutting the alleys and streets so improved, the city defraying the remaining one-third of the total cost.

A petition was received from school district No. 12, asking for a special rate on light and water furnished to the schools. The council voted to refuse the request on the grounds that the city was at present operating the plant without profit to the city.

The usual number of liquor licenses were granted and the pay roll for the month was approved. The salary of the City Treasurer John Cosgrove for the first half of the year, $200, was allowed. Also the salary of Health Officer Dr G. T. Ayres for the year, $150, was allowed. The city attorney, A. J. Thomas was voted $50 for services and retainer.

HIBBING AFTER PROPOSED SCHOOL

Commercial Club to Work to Secure the County Institution.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 11.—Special to The Herald.)—The Commercial club will hold a meeting tonight to elect officers for the ensuing year and consider many questions pertaining to the welfare of the community. The main question being considered at this time is the development of lands surrounding this district for agricultural purposes. A strong fight will be made to secure the agricultural school for this locality.

There seems to be no question as to the great possibility awaiting the farmers in St. Louis county; the soil can be made to show handsome returns. Homesteaders in this vicinity are raising practically everything in the line of vegetables and declare the soil to be as fertile as any found in the state for all kinds of vegetation. The object of the agricultural school would greatly stimulate interest of farmers throughout this section. The matter of a grade crossing over First avenue will also come up.

R. L. Giffin will retire from the clothing business and devote his time to other interests. Some time ago he took a lease on the Rood building, now nearing completion, but sub-let it to John Peterson, a Pine street clothier. Mr. Peterson has been a pioneer of Hibbing, and conducted a clothing store for a number of years.

Peter Schawang, the photographer of this city, has purchased a panorama camera and will soon leave for the Southwest. He will visit all the mining camps and will return with panoramic views of the various properties. He will visit the Carman property and bring back a number of views.

The Hibbing department store opened for business today.

ILLEGAL AUCTION CASES MAY FURNISH SENSATION.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—New developments are expected when the cases will come up in court today of the men arrested Saturday for selling without a license. Dave Frankfort was first arrested for selling and after furnishing bonds, he again sold at auction, so he was again arrested and gave bonds. Robert Mantel, who is running an auction sale, was also arrested, but was released on bonds. The merchants in town do not look with favor on the action of Mr. Mantel in running the auction sale without a license.

HIBBING PERSONALS.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Bloom of Superior are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Osherman.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Raymond of Nogaunee are i nthe city guests of Mrs. N. C. M. Hanson.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wilson have returned to their home in this city, after spending several weeks in Buffalo, N. Y.

D. G. Brose is spending a few days at his old home in Quincy, Ill.

TWIG IN BRIEF.

Twig, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Little Henry Nicholson, who has been so sick for the past month, is able to be up now for a few hours each day.

J. F. Whalen of Duluth made a trip here last week in the interests of the Duluth Tie & Pulpwood company.

J. C. Carlson of Duluth has been looking after his timber interests here.

Miss Anna Bolland visited with friends at Cloquet river Sunday.

Hogan Kennedy has commenced hauling his ties and cedar to Martin siding for future shipment.

A petition is being circulated to remove the postoffice of Twig to a more central part of the town.

BOVEY LODGES TO INSTALL

Joint Installation of Woodmen and Royal Neighbors.

Bovey, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local lodges of Modern Woodmen and Royal Neighbors will have a joint installation at Eagle hall tomorrow night. Many members of the orders from other points are expected. After the installation there will be supper and dance to music furnished by the Coleraine orchestra.

The Woodmen will install these officers: Consul, Mose Lafand; adviser, A. S. Koulainen; clerk, C. J. Frauti; banker, P. K. Priest; escort, L. Simons; watchman, C. Wallas; sentry, A. A. Mitchell; managers, E. Johnson, G. Prescott, P. K. Priest; physician Dr. Lupton.

The Royal Neighbors will install the following: Oracle, Mrs. Nels Lexen; vice oracle, Mrs. J. K. Jasper; past oracle, Mrs. J. Griffin; chancellor, Mrs. C. Tubman; recorder, Mrs. H. Topping; receiver, Mrs. F. Johnson; marshal, Mrs. A. Olson; I. S., Mrs. N. Morrisette; O. S., Mrs. P. Harrington; managers, Mrs. H. Downing, Mrs. F. Provinski, Mrs. Youngberg; physician, Dr. Lupton.

WANT DAIRY INSPECTOR.

Important Matters Coming Before Virginia Council.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is expected the council will hold a very important session tomorrow evening as many matters of vital interest to the city will come up. The committee appointed by the Commercial club to ask the council for appointment of a milk inspector for the city will urge that body to take immediate action. Many of the cow stables in this city are in a deplorable condition and the committee feels that immediate action is necessary.

It is also expected a number of our citizens will appear to urge the necessity of the appointment of a person to inspect all meats before sold over the block in this city.

The council will probably be asked to appoint a committee to act in conjunction with the one appointed by the Commercial club, to go to St. Paul to urge the legislature to pass a bill providing for the establishment of a district court for the ranges.

JOINT INSTALLATION.

Virginia Woodmen and the Royal Neighbors Install Tuesday.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Modern Woodmen of America and Royal Neighbors of America will have a joint installation of officers tomorrow evening in North Pole hall. The ceremonies will be followed by a luncheon.

Ross Crane, a noted cartoonist will appear at the Roosevelt school auditorium this evening under the auspices of the high school entertainment course.

Commencing tomorrow evening special services will be held during the week at the Scandinavian Mission church, Rev. P. B. Wellander, the local pastor, will be assisted by Rev. P. Lindh of Winnipeg and Fred Wallbom of Minneapolis.

Louis Lilienthal, who holds down a homestead near Ash Lake, is spending a few days in the city on business. Mr. Lilienthal recently closed a deal for the sale of about 150,000 feet of standing timber located on his homestead there to Duluth parties.

R. R. Bailey, manager of the W. T. Bailey Lumber company of this city, accompanied by Mrs. Bailey, arrived in the city Saturday from Duluth, where he had been for several days looking after business matters. Mr. Bailey reports logging operations at their camps near Paine progressing nicely and that they have in their employ nearly 200 men. Logs are being shipped to their mill in this city and the company expects to begin sawing some time in Febraury.

EXHIBIT BEING PLACED.

Eveleth Getting Ready for the Anti-White Plague Show

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The anti-tuberculosis exhibit that will commence tomorrow in Urania hall is attracting much attention, as it is the first time such an exhibit has been here, and those interested in the work of stamping out tuberculosis are working hard to see that the exhibit is a success.

Today and tomorrow afternoon the exhibit will be placed in Urania hall, so that everything will be ready for the opening Tuesday night. The exhibit closed yesterday at Virginia. A large number of charts, statistics and the like have to be put up, all taking time. All the money necessary for the expense of the exhibit has been donated by the city council, school board, Mesaba Mountain and Fayal townships.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

Virginia Men to Discuss Political and Other Questions.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first meeting was held Saturday night of a number of well-known men interested in forming a literary society for their mutual benefit, to discuss political, literary and other questions.

It is proposed to hold regular meetings each week, at which time papers on the subject will be read and discussed by the members. The general public will be invited to attend and to take part in the discussions. At the meeting Saturday evening the lives of Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr were discussed. Dr. C. N. Malmgren was elected president of the society and George F. Shea secretary and treasurer. The next meeting of the society will be held Saturday evening of this week, probably in the parlors of the Fay hotel.

HIGH SCHOOL GLEE CLUB.

New Organization Has Been Formed at Hibbing.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A musical and social organization to be known as the Hibbing High School Glee club, has been formed among the students of the high school, with the idea of promoting good fellowship. The club includes practically all the students in the high grades. They will give a number of socials and parties during the winter and plan as soon as the good voices can be picked out to start a big choral society.

The first party was given Saturday night, with games and refreshments to help pass the time. Officers of the new club are: Alex Eckstrom, president; Ruth Bates, vice president; Elden Anderson, secretary and treasurer, and Wilbur Wring and Albert Kanipes, sergeant-at-arms.

IS CRUSHED BY A LOG.

Superior Man Loses His Life Near Nashwauk.

Nashwauk, Minn., Jan. 11.—John Rowan of Superior, Wis., was fatally injured near here Saturday while loading logs for the Swan River Lumber company by a log striking him on the breast and crushing him. The accident was caused by the chain holding the logs breaking and letting a big log down upon Rowan. He died shortly after the accident. He was 35 years old and unmarried. The body was taken to Superior, where a sister resides.

CHAPTER INSTITUTED.

Duluth Masons Take Part in Exercises at Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many prominent Masons from the range towns and Duluth were here Saturday evening to assist in instituting a chapter of the Masonic lodge. Grand High Priest J. E. Cooley of Duluth was in charge of the ceremonies, which were followed by an elaborate banquet in the lodge rooms. The following officers were installed: H. P., M. E. Fanning; K., J. A. Kennedy; L. A. C. Osborn; C. H., Dr. J. H. Crowe; P. S., W. B. Shaver; R. A. C., E. D. McNeil; M. or Third V., G. H. Moore; M. of Second V., W. H. Eaton; M. of First V., E. F. BUILDING A SPUR FOR LOG LOADING

Iron Range Road Planning to Handle Many Million Feet.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth & Iron Range is putting in a spur track near Mile 44 for Murphy Bros., who will cut about 3,000,000 feet of logs in that vicinity for shipment to the Alger-Smith company's Duluth mill.

City politics are beginning to liven up for the March election and the early evidence promises no dearth of candidates. Among those mentioned for mayor are John Norlen, A. S. Hollibay, F. E. Evans, J. M. Burwick and C. G. Rothfus, the present incumbent.

At the recent election at the Y. M. C. A. the following were elected directors for three years: Thomas Owens, J. E. Chandler and W. W. Scott; trustee for three years, D. H. Lawrence.

The city council has instructed the police to stop the playing of hockey on the local public rink.

J. Williams loaded twenty carloads of ties for the Northern Pacific railway with a special train near French River yesterday.

Carlson Bros. & Lindberg expect soon to have their sawmill at Silver Creek in operation.

During the year of 1908 there were eighty-six deaths and 123 births in this city.

McLeod & Brown are logging on Silver creek, north of the sheep ranch. Their timber will be sawed at the Carlson Bros. mill.

G. M. Stirton of Hancock, Mich., Socialist candidate for governor of Michigan at the recent election, spoke to two well filled houses Saturday. He delivered an interesting talk on "Socialism."

SENT FORTUNE ABROAD.

Hibbing Postoffice Sold Many Foreign Orders.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The local postoffice's figures on the business of the past year, show that an enormous amount of money was sent by the patrons to the old country; most of the miners here and at Chisholm being foreigners, many having families or others dependent upon them in the old country.

During the year 1908 there was $127,955.42 sent out from the postoffice to the old country, or more than a dollar for every man, woman and child in the place. The total amount of money sent from the postoffice was over $300,000.

During the year, gross postal receipts to the amount of $20,000 were taken in. Of this amount, $9,000 was paid out in salaries, leaving $11,000 to be turned over to the national postoffice department in Washington.

The business in the various departments shows a material gain over previous years; it has shown a steady increase every year since its establishment, with the biggest jumps in 1902, 1903 and 1906.

EVELETH ITALIANS ARE RAISING RELIEF FUNDS.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Italians of this city are working faithfully to raise funds for the assistance of their countrymen in distress.

A relief committee was appointed yesterday. The following are the officers:

President, C. Sannicolo; vice president, Peter Nordi; secretary, Victor Vitullo; treasurer, S. Forte.

It was decided to see the superintendent of each mine and from him secure permission to solicit from the miners. In this way they hope to accomplish considerable in a short time. The other residents of the city will also be visited.

Another meeting will be held Tuesday to report progress.

Pug Events at Eveleth.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the benefit of the Eveleth Driving club, that is going to give the horseraces on Ely lake, a boxing match has been arranged for on Wednesday evening at Vail hall. Barney Annamon of Milwaukee and Billy Trenholin of Sparta, who fought a fifteen-round draw recently at Gilbert will be the principals. The bout is for twelve rounds. Two six-round preliminaries will be put on, in one of which Nick Constantine, the Eveleth pride, will take part. A large crowd is expected at the bout.

Rock Hurled From Mine.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A stone sent skyward by a blast at the Sellers mine Thursday afternoon, came down on the roof of Vanderbloom's photograph gallery at the corner of Third avenue and North street. The rock did not remain on the roof—it struck slanting near the peak of a shed roof, penetrated the roof and came out of the side of the building.

ficult. Twenty-six men entered the mine on the night shift and the names of the victims are taken from the pay roll. The explosion was peculiar; no noise or shock was felt at the opening of the shaft, only a puff of smoke. The engineer noticed the smoke, and realizing that an accident had happened, summoned aid. The mine had recently been on fire and the flames had been sealed and confined to workings, which were not in the vicinity of the present explosion.

Mrs. Leiter is at Zeigler and yesterday was at the mouth of the mine with her husband, aiding in quieting the widows and orphans who crowded about the opening. She furnished coffee and sandwiches to the men engaged in the rescue. Mr. Leiter said that after the bodies are recovered he will have work started toward the re-opening of the working. The mine was put in operation in 1903 and soon after the labor troubles began, in April, 1905, an explosion in the mine killed fifty-one men.

Rescuer Overcome By Gas.

Joseph Husband, a friend of Mr. Leiter, who was also the latter's desk man at Zeigler for the last week, was overcome by gas in attempting to recover the bodies, and it was with considerable difficulty that he was revived.

In speaking of the explosion, Mr. Leiter said the interior of the mine was not damaged, neither was any of the top works, and there was scarcely any trace of the explosion. For more than six weeks a serious fire had been burning in the workings and for a time it was feared that the valuable coal property was certain of destruction. All efforts of employes to quench the flames proved unavailing. Finally, about two weeks ago, Mr. Leiter, accompanied by his wife, went direct to the works at Zeigler, renewed vigor was given the task of extinguishing the fire, and inch by inch it was fought back until all the workings except one small section were clear. The part of the mine still burning was cut off from the remainder and sealed up only two days ago, and since that time preparations were completed to start digging coal at full capacity. Small quantities of coal were taken out on Saturday, and this was hailed with joy by the employes, who saw an end to their long idleness due to the fire.

ally clinched the chairmanship of the banking committee.

The House Committee.

In the house the distribution of the chairmanships has been as interesting, and Speaker Burdick has been having a hard time trying to maintain harmony along the line. B. G. Skulason of Grand Forks will get the chairmanship of the judiciary committee, this being officially given out by the speaker. George A. White, who held the railroad chairmanship two years ago, is slated for the same place again this year. Banks and banking will go to George Wolbert of Cass county, who was a candidate for speaker. Elections and privileges goes to Matt Johnson of Bottineau county according to the present outlook. Game and fish, which will be rather a important committee this year, will be presided over by Hale of Grand Forks. Counties and county boundaries will probably go to S. Hendrickson of Ward county. Apportionments has been set aside for Traynor of Ramsey, while livestock goes to Cunningham of La Moure. State affairs will go to Cass county, W. J. Price being put down for the position. Insurance is said to be a sure thing for Honey of Ramsey, while municipalities goes to Kneeland of Stutsman. Highways and bridges will probably be given to Dibley of Cass county.

Druggist Permit Law.

There will be a hard fight to have the druggist permit law repealed. Several bills with this purpose in view have already been prepared. The temperance workers are back of the movement, the W. C. T. U. being into the fight strong. There are other temperance measures which will come into the limelight before the session gets very far advanced, among them being the Ueland initiative and referendum, which it is claimed, is a direct attack at state prohibition. The temperance forces will fight the adoption of this measure.

The establishment of a good roads department in connection with the agricultural college at Fargo is the object of a measure prepared by Senator J. G. Gunderson of Nelson county. It provides for the holding of good roads meetings throughout the state under the direction of the department, the plan being much the same as that now operating with reference to farmers' institutes.

An appropriation of $75,000 will be asked from the state for the purpose of idemnifying owners of horses that have been killed because of glanders. The state board has destroyed, during the past two years, between $60,000 and $75,000 worth of horses that have been afflicted with glanders, and though there was a law passed by the 1907 legislature providing that owners should be idemnified for losses thus sustained, no appropriation was made to cover expenses.

criticise and comment upon the official actions and utterances of President Roosevelt and have doubtless given him good cause to seek revenge. I have, at various times, arraigned him in the senate for tyrannical invasion of the rights of congress; for usurpation of authority not given him by the Constitution, for disobedience of the law and the neglect of duty and particularly in the case of Mrs. Morris, for brutal and cruel conduct toward a helpless woman. I was not aware that these darts of mine had quivered in the executive hide and stung him so, but the eagerness and intensity with which he has presented his case against me, his making a precedent, when none has existed before, his taking from the committee to which he has forwarded them; the papers and giving them to the press before a committee had considered them, indicates that Theodore Roosevelt enjoys to the limit the feeling of getting even with Ben Tillman and lays one of the biggest sticks with the keenest relish, doubtless believing that the 'pitchfork' has gone out of business."

Tillman arose to a question of personal privilege, declaring that for the first time in the history of this government so far as he had been able to learn, a member of the senate had been brought to the bar of public opinion before the senate itself to be judged under indictment by no less a personage than the president of the United States. The manner of doing it, he said, and the animus and zeal displayed by the chief executive, were worthy of consideration.

Mr. Tillman called attention to the publication of these charges by the president before they had been considered by the committee of the senate to which they were referred, and declared that in so doing, the president had treated the senate with that contempt which has been his wont. He declared that the president was an adept at advertising and had used the press with more skill than any man in American politics.

Another probable reason for his great haste, said the South Carolina senator, was that he sought to distract attention from the action of the house of representatives on Friday in laying part of his message on the table, by the sensational accusation against a man who has had long service in the senate."

Referring to the president's letter to Senator Hale, Mr. Tillman declared that the president recognized the extraordinary character of his action "as well as the unlawful use he has made of the secret service." Mr. Tillman said he did not deny the authenticity of the letter or the telegram of which photographs were made and he presumed the letter from William E. Lee was also a correct copy, but he was not aware of its existence until it was brought to his attention by the president's statement, and added that he was not in any way responsible for Mr. Lee's ideas expressed in it. Taking up the president's statement concerning Dorr, a land agent, making his filings through Reeder & Watkins of Marshfield, Or., Mr. Tillman said:

"It will be noted that I accused Dorr in the senate of being a swindler, and that the postoffice department to issue a fraud order against him. Dorr declared in his circular: 'So sure is Senator Tillman of our success that he has subscribed and paid the necessary fee for a quarter section for himself and ten other sections for ten of his nearest relatives.' It was this bold and outrageous falsehood mainly that caused me to denounce Dorr as a swindler, as well as to declare in the senate that he had no warrant for the assertion. The sleuths which the president put upon my trail have made their report, and a perusal of it will show to any fair mind that, so far from endeavoring to justify the fraud order against Dorr, they were really put on work to investigate me and endeavor if possible to discover something to my discredit, while the president directed the investigation. I say this because it is hardly possible that a postoffice Inspector would set about getting photographic copies of the letters of a United States senator and trying to convict him of lying, if the orders did not come from a high source.

"The president's sleuths set to do the dirty work of spying on a senator, when that senator had exposed a fraud which was being perpetrated on the public, reported to him on July 27. I had nothing to do with the change in the law of which the president complains in regard to the secret service. So the president's animus is not against me on the same ground for which he has attacked Messrs. Tawney, Smith and others in the house, but one of personal malice engendered by hatred because of my course in the senate during the last seven years."

lector, on the float, swore that he saw nothing irrational in Capt. Hains' appearance and manner. Dr. Houghton said:

"I saw Capt. Hains standing by an upturned boat. His face was tense but not drawn, and his voice calm in conversation. I heard him say, 'Of course, I did it; there is no question about it,' and as he made the statement he dropped his hand from his chin to his side."

Frank J. Asanak, a Polish boy, whose testimony was given through an interpreter, said he knew John Tierney, but did not see him at the Yacht club the day of the shooting.

Mrs. Florence E. Hill, wife of a Bayside Yacht club member, testified that she was on the dock before the shooting, and denied the statement of Thornton Hains that he put his arm on his brother's shoulder, and Capt. Hains threw him off. Justice Crane ruled out much of Mrs. Hill's testimony, stating that she should have been called as a witness in chief.

Mrs. Lillian E. Nesbitt, wife of another club member, testified that she saw Mrs. Annis run up the runway from the float after the shooting. She did not see the ash collector on the dock that afternoon.

Mrs. Margaret Rockwell, wife of another member of the club, swore: "When the first shot was fired, Mrs. Annis ran down the runway to the float and in the direction of her husband's boat. She ran about five feet and stood there a while and came up the runway to the dock again."

Mrs. Rockwell was not permitted to say anything about the defendant and his brother. Justice Crane ruling that it should have been adduced in evidence in chief. She told the court that hse did not see John Tierney on the dock.

sion the people present did not hesitate to evince their satisfaction.

The French parliament recently passed a resolution in favor of the retention of the death penalty in France, and the cabinet a fortnight ago decided to carry out parliament's ruling. The law permiting the infliction of capital punishment had been practically a dead loss, for it has been the custom of the president of the republic to commute all death sentences to life imprisonment. There remain today eighteen persons in France under sentence to death.

COLD WAVE IS GENERAL

Even Washington and Oregon Have Zero Weather.

Lowest Temperature Recorded in Duluth Was 27 Below.

It was 26 degs below zero this morning at 7 o'clock.

At 10 o'clock it had moderated 5 degs., the mercury standing at 21 below. It is expected to get warmer than that during the day, although nobody will suffer from the heat in Duluth today.

Zero weather extends east to Michigan, south to Kansas, west through Eastern Washington and British Columbia. All through Eastern Washington the ice king has things firmly in hand, the very unusual temperature of 10 below being recorded. In Portland, Or., it is 10 above, which is very cold for that point. Even down in San Antonio, Tex., the natives are experiencing freezing weather.

Up in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and North Dakota it is 30 below, and in the St. Lawrence valley they are having snow and rain.

The weather man says that it may moderate a little after tonight, but that it will tonight be anywhere from 10 to 20 below.

LECTURES ON FARMING

University Professors Will Give Series of Talks in Duluth.

Experts in Many Lines Will Deliver Free Addresses.

The educational department of the Y. M. C. A., in co-operation with the Commercial Club of Duluth, has planned a course of eight or ten lectures to be given during the months of January, February, March and April, on agriculture in St. Louis county, covering all branches of gardening, dairying and horticulture, not only from a professional, but an amateur standpint.

It is intended that these lectures shall be of interest to the truck gardeners and dairy farmers adjacent to Duluth, to all citizens of Duluth having flower gardens, grounds, shrubbery, vegetables, or who keep a cow; also to people of every class who have been considering agriculture or farming in this locality, the intention being to include the laboring man, and the young men and boys who may wish to change their methods of livelihood.

The University of Minnesota, through its agricultural department, has offered the services of various professors, who have made a careful study of this part of the country, and who will be able to tell what they consider possible and profitable in the way of agriculture. In St. Louis county this should be of great interest to every business man and merchant who is interested in the upbuilding of the locality.

The Y. M. C. A. has donated the use of a lecture room and the services of the office in getting out advertising matter and attending to the distribution of the tickets.

The other expenses will consist of printing and mailing circulars, printing tickets and the traveling expenses of the lecturers. This will approximate $300, and will be raised among those interested in the work.

In order that the subscribers to the plan may, in a measure, direct the distribution of admission tickets, it is considered best to have printed coupon tickets for the course of lectures, and each subscriber will be given such tickets as he can distribute to advantage. Further distribution of tickets will be made through the Y. M. C. A. and the Commercial club, and the farmers' clubs throughout the country. It is believed that all business houses having relations with the consumers of St. Louis county will find these tickets very acceptable to their trade, and that a considerable number will be distributed by the wholesalers.

It is believed that this course of lectures will be of unusual benefit to the community, and it is possible that it may be the forerunner of an agricultural study to be offered by the Y. M. C. A. another year.

The committee that has the affair in charge is composed of the Y. M. C. A. committee on education, W. D. Bailey, W. I. Prince and Charles W. Anderson, and the agricultural sub-committee of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club, Bishop James McGolrick, L. B. Arnold, Edward Hazen, John G. Williams and H. G. Mooney.

The Speakers.

Among those who have been secured to speak are: A. H. Kohler, assistant professor of agriculture, who is in charge of the potato work at the state university; Prof. Bull, assistant professor of agriculture, whose special work it is to look after the farm crop work; F. M. Freeman, who is a specialist on plant diseases, and who is the botanist at the university; Prof. Haecker, who has been for sixteen years closely identified with dairy work and who is the leading authority in the country on feeding dairy cattle; Prof. Cady, assistant professor of horticulture in charge of fruits and berries; Prof. Andrew Boss, who is at the head of the animal husbandry department, and Prof. John T. Stewart, who is at the head of the drainage and survey department of the state university. These men will give in the course of the lectures interesting talks bearing on their respective work.

F. B. McLeran, a successful young farmer of Wrenshall, Minn., and Prof. McGuire of the Grand Rapids experiment station have been secured to give practical talks along with talks by practical Duluth farmers.

The program follows:

Friday, Jan. 22.—Prof. Andrew Boss, Prof. A. J. McGuire, "Agricultural Possibilities in St. Louis County."

Friday, Jan. 29.—F. B. McLeran, "The Development and History of a Timber Farm."

Friday, Feb. 12.—Prof. T. L. Haecker, "The Dairy Cow on the Farm and at Home."

Prof. LeRoy Cady, "Home and Market Gardening and Horticulture."

HOW THEY DID IT.

The tax amendment of 1906 to the state constitution is upheld by the opinion of four of the five justices of the state supreme court, Justice Brown sharply dissenting.

The tax amendment is read into the state constitution by a pure technicality, and if we read the decision aright, by the laying down of a new rule of law and procedure. In other words the amendment is upheld by means of a new principle not hitherto enunciated by the courts or held to apply to such cases. This principle is stated by the majority opinion as follows: "A contest of this character is not in a strict sense an adversary proceeding. It is more in the nature of an investigation for the purpose of discovering the truth." Because of this alleged fact, the majority opinion of the court holds that whether the amendment actually carried "could be determined only by a recount of the entire vote, or of such a proportion thereof that, even if all the remaining votes were counted one way, it could not affect the final result." Such a recount not having been made the court holds that the return of the state canvassing board finding that the amendment carried must stand.

The application of this new principle is denied by Justice Brown who declares that the amendment has been clearly shown to have been rejected, even admitting the application of the new theory.

An analysis of Justice Brown's dissenting opinion shows that it declares the amendment rejected for the following reasons: First, because the contestant proved his case and it is elementary that he should not be obliged to do more; second, because it is also elementary that election returns, especially certified, are prima facie evidence of the correctness of the result and in the absence of proof to the contrary are final and conclusive. Therefor the contestant having shown that the amendment was lost in the precincts counted, and the state not having offered proof that the returns in the remaining precincts are incorrect as certified to by the state canvassing board, the amendment is lost.

Justice Brown pays his respects to the new theory of contests, as enunciated by the court, in no uncertain terms. He says: "The court holds that it was incumbent upon the contestant to proceed further with the recount, notwithstanding the fact that when he rested, his case was complete, and upon the facts then before the court but one conclusion could be reached, and that to the effect announced by the trial court. This is a departure from the settled practice and in my opinion not sustained even by the new theory advanced by the majority opinion that a constitutional amendment contest case revolves itself into an investigation for the discovery of the truth, not controlled by the rules of procedure applied to analogous cases. But even in that view, the investigation has been had, the truth declared, and the conclusions of the trial court should be sustained."

A study of the two opinions clearly reveals the fact that in order to uphold the law it was necessary for the court to lay down a new principle of law. Thus we have the constitution amended by means of a clerical mistake and the pronouncement of a new theory of law with the people all the time voting no.

THE PRESIDENT'S POWER.

Boston Globe: Moorfield Storey's declaration that "President Roosevelt is more powerful than the czar of Russia or any other monarch in the world" is an indication that the constitution is not working in exactly the way that the distinguished and thoughtful makers thereof intended.

Mr. Storey's premise may be correct but we doubt the conclusion that the Boston Globe draws from it. At any rate, whether the Constitution is working exactly the way its distinguished and thoughtful makers intended, it is working just the way, in this respect, that the people of the country want it to work. If Theodore Roosevelt has more power than some other presidents it is simply a greater power to carry the country with him in his demands. After all, this is a government of the people and if the people and the president want some things that Mr. Storey and the Boston Globe and Wall street do not want, so much the worse for the Storey-Globe-Wall Street company. Any president can be just as powerful as Roosevelt if he can command the confidence that Roosevelt commands and as for us we hope before we die to see some more presidents just as powerful as Roosevelt. It will not hurt the Constitution or the people.

LAYMAN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT.

The tide of the great layman's missionary movement, which is sweeping across the North American continent, reached Duluth yesterday and caught up and carried with it the men of the churches of the city.

The movement is significant of the times. "The world is growing smaller," declared ex-Mayor Jones of Minneapolis, one of a number of earnest Twin City business men who came to Duluth yesterday to speak in the various churches in behalf of the movement. These gentlemen, and hundreds of others like them all over the country, are the "minute men" of the layman's missionary movement. At a moment's notice, and at their own expense, they are going out from all the centers of population to carry word of the movement to others and to spread the knowledge of it broadcast over the land. The movement is significant of the times in that it recognizes the fact that the world's distances are being annihilated, the world's politics is growing to be every one's politics, trade is no longer a local or a national matter but a worldwide concern. The occident and the orient are fast coming together. So with the missionary movement. It is no longer simply a matter of saving the individual soul of the heathen but of Christianising whole races. And so the layman's missionary movement has been born and is growing in strength every day. The industrial, the commercial, the political development of the world today is a new development, the most wonderful of its kind that the world has ever known. The layman's missionary movement is the religious counterpart of this movement and it is rising on a tide of enthusiasm that promises to make it the greatest and most far reaching missionary movement in the world's history.

If such it proves to be it will, aside from the moral uplift of it, be an enormously important factor in the commercial development which is making the Pacific its great theater of action.

A DOUBLE CALAMITY.

The need of help from the nations of the world is greater in Italy at present than the general public is aware. Not only are those who are left alive in the earthquake region destitute of food, clothing and shelter but Italy itself is in a condition which makes it almost impossible for it to help them. In fact the people of Italy, not touched by the earthquake, are themselves desperately in need of help.

According to a communication from Consul Cheney to the department of commerce and labor the people of Italy, always poor, are now overwhelmed in poverty because of a crop failure. "Never in the memory of the 'oldest inhabitant' has there been such an absolute lack of production of this necessary fruit (olives) as now prevails in this district," reports Mr. Cheney. "When it is remembered how essential in the diet of every Italian olive oil is, the great importance to the entire population of a failure of the home supply may be somewhat realized. Added to this are the loss to the whole country, owing to the impossibility of securing the large income from selling in foreign markets, and the failure of the supply of common oil for home industries. Thus the crop failure becomes this year nothing less than a national misfortune."

But the failure of the olive crop is not all. Other agricultural products are also lacking owing to the same cause as that responsible for the failure of the olive crop, a drouth extending over a period of more than seven months.

Italy's need is certainly a desperate and an urgent one. If you have money to give in the name of humanity, now is the time to give it.

RESTRAINING THE KILLERS.

A matter that is of very considerable interest to Northern Minnesota in general and to the northeastern section of the state in particular is the vicious killing of birds and wild game by foreigners, particularly by those who are new to this country's customs and who refuse to learn English and otherwise to become Americanized. The matter is serious because of the very large number of such persons in this section of Minnesota and the constant arrival of fresh additions to that number.

Many classes of these foreigners have a perfect mania for hunting small game. They take to the woods with their guns upon every possible occasion. They go in company and drive through the forests advancing in a long drawn out line killing every living thing that they can uncover. The wanton destruction of birds by these people is enormous. Local authorities who have attempted to cope with the situation have been amazed to discover the contents of the bags of these pot hunters. Song birds of every variety known to this section have been found by the score in the bags that have been seized. Such wholesale slaughter of birds and small game is appalling.

Local authorities have not been very successful in dealing with this class of offenders. Most of the men cannot talk English and those who can, put on stupidity like a mask; to get any testimony whatever from them is a tremendous task. In their ignorance of American customs and their distrust of courts and established authority, they deny all knowledge of the doings of their fellow countrymen. Conviction is impossible unless they are caught in the act.

So annoying, and so serious in fact, have the Old World customs of this class of people become, that the state game and fish commission has considered ways and means to put an end to this wasteful killing and it has been suggested that a law permitting none but naturalized citizens to hunt in Minnesota would be effective. It is true that state statutes already make the killing of certain birds an offense, but it is easy for the wily foreigner to assert, when found afield with his gun, that he has no designs upon birds and that he is merely out for an afternoon's legitimate sport.

Whether such a statute would stand the test of constitutionality is a question. A similar clause in the new liquor law of Louisiana, forbidding foreigners to operate barrooms, is claimed to be unconstitutional on the ground that it violates treaty rights. However that may be, the matter is one that the state in its campaign for the preservation of game can no longer neglect. We want to see the oppressed and the downtrodden of other lands making homes and finding prosperity and happiness in this country, but we do not want to see them slaughtering and exterminating our song birds and our small game. They can bring their hopes and their aspirations with them, but they must leave such vicious habits behind them.

The quickest way to arouse a man's interest in the government is to double his taxes. It's not the best way, though.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Remember, I won't be responsible for all the things that I have heard reported about the Moro divers," began Lieut. Arthur Watts, as the guests of the McKay gathered around the grate for the evening's bunch of stories.

"Some people have been blunt enough to call me not only a profound exaggerator, but also a premeditated prevaricator, when I told them some of the things that the Moro divers have been able to do. However, I have seen them do some very remarkable things with my own eyes.

"One time down in the Moro country, that's in the Philippines, you know, the army mess had some decayed cheese and other rotten canned goods that were unfit to eat. One of the men asked me what to do with the stuff. The water near there was over thirty feet deep, and besides there was a strong current. I told him to throw the canned stuff into the water so that the natives couldn't get it and eat it.

"I saw him throw the stuff into the water, went away to attend to some duty, and returned in about ten minutes, just in time to see two or three natives sitting upon he pier eating the decayed cheese.

"I saw that with my own eyes. The water at that point was over thirty feet deep, yet the natives had thought nothing of diving to the bottom to rescue some decayed and mouldy cheese, which they devoured with relish.

"Now they tell of some feats of these Moron divers, which I simply relate to you, not being responsible for the statements. Some people have been very unkind in their judgments, when I have related these stories. However, I will give the stories as they tell them over in the Philippines.

"It is said over there that some of the most expert native divers can go down to a depth of about 110 feet. That sounds impossible, when you think of the water pressure at that depth and stop to think that these natives have no protection; simply dive in the altogther costume.

"At one of the clubs one night this story came up. There was an Englishman there, and when he heard this story of the most expert divers being able to reach a depth of over 100 feet, he let out an uproarious laught that shook the building. When he had recovered from his laughter, a German, who had lived in the islands all of his life, quietly approached the Englishman.

"He informed him that he knew of a native, some distance away, who could dive 160 feet, and that he would wager a small or large amount upon the man's ability.

"That afternoon one of the big boats had landed. The vessel had lost its gangplank in a storm. They made a Jabo's ladder for some of the men to land. In going over this ladder, one of the officers had lost a valuable sword—one that had been presented to him. There was a depth of about sixteen feet of water at the place where the sword was lost. He offered a reward equivalent to $50 in American money for the recovery of the sword.

"The German offered to wager the Englishman a neat little sum that the diver, whom he spoke of, could go down and bring up the sword. The Englishman said he would have counsel with his head native man before making the wager. The next day he informed the German that he had held counsel upon the matter, and that his native adviser had told him not to make the wager, because the native diver would be able to accomplish the seemingly impossible feat.

"The Moros swim from the time they are infants in arms, almost. I have never heard of a Moro being drowned. They are wonderful long distance swimmers. I have seen ordinary natives dive over fifty feet and think nothing of the feat. They can stay under water an incredible length of time. I have seen a Moro dive into the water with a knife in his teeth and stay under until he had cut away a rope that had become entangled with the propeller of a launch. The rope was woven in and out and required some little work to cut it away, yet when the native came up the propeller was free from the entanglement."

"Tobacco chewing is a very filthy habit," said A. T. Atwood at the St. Louis yesterday. "I know of a very effective way to cure anyone of his love for the plugcut. It is simply to take the user of the chewing tobacco into the factory where they are making the plugs. He will probably never care to chew any more.

"They have the tobacco leaves spread out in a large vat, about twenty-five feet in diameter. They have a big negro in this vat, with little on except what nature provided him with. He walks around spreading the leaves with a sort of pitchfork, meanwhile taking some preparation that he carries in a can at his side, and spraying the leaves with this.

"Mind you, he takes this spray with his hands—no cup or anything like that. After one good, hard look at the method in the factory I went through, I swore that it was the best tobacco cure that I had ever seen or heard tell of.

"I would not say that all tobacco factories are like the one that I went through. But even admitting that, I am still of the opinion that if an inveterate tobacco chewer went through the factory that I did, and saw the process by which they manufactured the chewing tobacco, he would swear off."

THE WEATHER.

CONTINUED COLD

Again Duluth is in the throes of a cold snap. Yesterday and today the mercury has been steadfastly below the zero mark. It has been considerably below zero, as the fact that yesterday's minimum temperature in Duluth was 26 degs. below. Tonight the weather forecaster expects the temperature to rise, and slightly warmer weather is predicted for tomorrow. The lowest temperature here tonight will be from 10 to 20 degs. below zero, with fresh southwest winds.

The weather a year ago yesterday was partly cloudy and cool, and a year ago today, clear and cool. The sun rose this morning at 7:52.

Mr. Richardson says of the weather conditions:

"Zero weather covers all of Western Canada and extends southward to and including Iowa, Nebraska, and Wyoming, eastward to Lake Michigan and westeward to Eastern Washington, the coldest being 30 degs. below zero in Manitoba, Eastern Saskatchewan and Northern North Dakota. The barometer continues high from Montana northwestward to British Columbia. Areas of low pressure are central over the lower St. Lawrence valley and Mexico. During the past twenty-four hours these disturbances caused snow or rain in the Lake Region, Ohio and Middle Mississippi valleys, Southwestern states, Western Montana, Idaho and Eastern Washington, besides milder weather in Atlantic and Gulf states, Western Montana and Alberta. Indications favor slowly rising tmeperatures in St. Louis and Douglas counties tonight and Tuesday, though the lowest tonight will vary somewhere from 10 to 20 degs. below zero in those districts."

Chicago News: Some men make a specialty of getting into trouble.

Many a man has lost his grip by clinging to one idea.

The commonest disease is how many men think they had good singing voices before they smoked so much.

The Reason.

The editor of the Trenton News gives the conclusion of the whole matter:

"The reason there are so many nice little people is because when the Lord saw what material He was using He finished the job with what He had mixed rather than take chances on being able to prepare another batch as good. The reason big folks are so nice is because the Lord saw what a triumph He was making and kept on adding a little more to a good thing! Now, I hope you are all satisfied."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

•••James Irving Crabbe, at one time connected with the Bee, when it first started in Duluth, but now employed with one of the Minneapolis papers, arrived in town yesterday on business.

•••On the evening of Jan. 9, Dr. Davis of Rice's Point, was married to Miss Erwin by Rev. C. A. Poole. The intention was to keep the matter as quiet as possible, and but few persons were invited. The members of the Select Knights, however, were aware of the event, and after their meeting repaired to the doctor's residence, where they were found by Dr. and Mrs. Davis when they returned from their marriage ceremony. All present had a pleasant time until midnight, when the Knights departed.

•••The report published yesterday that Phil Sheehan was married recently turns out to be incorrect.

•••Three stage lines are now running between here and Agate Bay, and there is some talk of starting another.

•••Justice of the Peace Foster has had thirty-seven cases before him during the past year. Only one was of a criminal nature.

•••A number of boys undertook to charivari Peter Arimond and his young bride the night after they were married. After making the night hideous with unearthly noises they went to the door and compelled Arimond to write out an order on M. Fink & Co. for two kegs of beer.

•••On Dec. 31, L. B. Johnson, a well known citizen of Duluth, died on the street, and as the result of an inquest a verdict was returned that he had died from physical exhaustion. He was known to have been married, but it was supposed that his wife was dead. Last evening a woman claiming to be his wife arrived at the St. Louis hotel and this morning she engaged an attorney to settle up his estate. She was married to him about twenty-four years ago, but they have been separated for the past five years, during which time he provided for the support of herself and three children. The first intimation she had of his death was when she arrived in Duluth and the hotel clerk informed her he had died on the street.

•••Miss Webb, who has been assisting her father in the music store, has returned to her home in Superior.

•••Monroe Nichols left last night for the East, and will be gone about six weeks.

•••Henry Haskins has purchased a lot on Third street from Miron Bunnell and will erect a $1,500 resident in the spring.

•••Mr. Hooker has sold his large residence to W. G. Peck, and George Barnum has sold his residence on Second street to F. W. Paine, cashier of the Duluth National bank.

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

St. Peter Herald: The Republican party in this state might adjust its differences by submiting them to a peace commission composed of Joel Heatwole, Ed Paradis and Bob Dunn.

Wheelock's Weekly: The semi-centennial of Minnesota as a state is safely passed, and wonder grows as to what the big cities will offer the legislature this winter as a subject of appropriation and big city exploitation.

Rushford Press, by Mrs. J. F. Stone: The people who do the voting don't believe in a primary election law. It is a political nuisance and ought to be abated.

Walker Post: There is more joy over the one Christmas tree that is cut down than there is over the ninety and nine that stand in the swamp.

Roseau Region: The supreme court holds that a doctor may not legally draw the teeth of a patient—though necessary—because he is not licensed as a dentist. This is doubtless the letter of the law, but the law should be changed, or we may find that a doctor may not legally shave a patient's face to get at a wound or trim his hair in order to heal some scalp disease, because he holds no license as a barber. The idea strikes us as ridiculous.

Paynesville Press: It is stated that the tariff commission has recommended that the duty on "rough lumber" be removed. This is another case of handling the people a lemon. No rough lumber could be imported even if $2 per thousand were paid as a premium.

Ortonville Herald-Star: There will be several ambitious men in the legislature. During the session covetous eyes from several directions will be cast upon the elegant apartments of the governor, as well as upon most of the other offices in the capitol, while a congressional barkis will develop in almost every district. Even embryo United States senators will bob up and gently feel the public pulse. It will be a session worth watching.

St. Cloud Times: Queens are women, after all, with hearts that beat in sympathy with distressed humanity. Queen Helena of Italy, is proving, amid the ruins of Messina, that she is such a woman, with all a woman's noble heart.

Cannon Falls Beacon: Hon. Theodore Roosevelt could do a great service to his country after March 4, by accepting the management of the government secret service until several dark corners have been thoroughly explored and the lid pried off some very noisome receptacles.

Reorganization of State Departments.

Minneapolis Tribune: We think the most useful part of Governor Johnson's message is that which refers in one way or another to reorganization of various state departments for greater efficiency. This broad question covers even more of the message than it appears.

For example, recommendations of better care of natural resources, more attention to drainage and irrigation and better care of state stumpage, all can be brought around best through the new department of lands, mine and forests, which the governor agrees with the auditor in recommending.

All of the recommendations in relation to general taxation and regulation of railroads can be carried out best through the tax and railroad and warehouse commissions. The establishment of a separate department of banking would release the public examiner for more thorough performance of his duty of supervising public offices, and his work would be facilitated again by a system of uniform municipal accounting.

We should like to see the legislature take action as soon as possible in the creation of a state bureau of lands and a separate department of banking. The officers of auditor and public examiner are overworked. The small expense of two more departments would be amply compensated by more efficient administration of lands, mines and forests, drainage and irrigation and more efficient supervision of public offices on the one side and financial institutions on the other.

The question of a public utilities commission is a larger one and will take more time in the working out. But the whole drift of public opinion and state action is in direction of the policy established years ago in Massachusetts and improved upon by Governor Hughes in New York.

Probably two commissions will be required here also, though the line will not be geographical as there. Leaving the railroad and warehouse jurisdiction where it is, another commission could look after all other public utilities in city and country.

Cost of a Great City.

Milwaukee Sentinel: One hundred and fifty-six million dollars is the princely sum for which the budget of New York city calls for the ensuing year. This is $11,000,000 more than our national pension bill, and is the largest annual appropriation ever made for any city in the history of the country. Even the sedate and easygoing metropolis has been startled by the tremendous outlay. That there is a vast and criminal waste in the city expenditures goes without saying. Tammany has never been in power for its health.

Recent investigations have produced some interesting facts, material has been purchased for which the city has been obliged to pay enormous prices. Workmen have been paid fancy wages for their labor. Every municipal department seems to be honeycombed with graft. An honest, businesslike administration of the great city, on the lines of private enterprise management, would unquestionably effect a saving of millions of dollars and bring a gracious relief to the overburdened taxpayers.

"I am afraid, my son, that in too many cases it means twice around the golf links."

Tit-Bits: Ellison—Hello, dear boy, you look very sad this morning. What's the trouble?

Green—I've just undergone a most annoying operation.

Ellison—What was it?

Green—Had my allowance cut off.

London Opinion: Tardy Waiter—No, sir, I have never been in the country. Why do you ask?

Weary Customer—Oh, I was thinking what fun you'd have sitting on a fence and watching the slugs whiz by!

Cleveland Leader: "Her husband has been a sufferer for many years, hasn't he?

"I don't know—how long have they been married?"

Chicago Tribune: Nan—I always know when Jack is at the front door. He gives just one little ring.

Fan—Yes, just like that one on your finger.

Punch: Old Lady (shrinking from plunging hack)—Oh, I don't think I'll take your cab. I don't like the look of your horse.

Cabby—Well lady, p'raps it's just as well as he don't seem to like the look of you, neither!

Chicago Tribune—Mrs. Highmus—I see from the fashion plates that gowns are not to be worn so long next year.

Mrs. Pneuritch—Gracious! My husband will have a fit. I never wear a gown more than once or twice even now!

Argonaut: Little Charley Maloney, a 6-year-old boy, heard a man practicing on the calliope preparatory to playing it in the circus parade. Rushing to his father, he said: "Listen, papa."

"What is it?" asked his father.

"It's de elephant singing," said Charles.

Philadelphia Press: "After all," said Morrell, "the Almighty Dollar is man's greatest enemy. It is responsible—"

"If that's true," interrupted old Roxley, "I guess that young wife of mine simply loves me for the enemies I've made."

Washington Star: "Your audiences seemed shocked by the show?"

"At first," answered the manager, 'but we expurgated it."

"And then?"

"They seemed disappointed."

Louisville Courier-Journal "I'm living in a new neighborhood now."

"Have your new neighbors offered you any attentions?"

"Well, I think some of them invited friends to watch me move in."

Governor Johnson and Corporation Taxes.

Anoka Free Press: Since John A. Johnson became governor of Minnesota strange things have happened to corporations in the matter of taxation. Previous to his administration it was customary to pay whatever taxes they pleased and whenever they pleased, thereby proving that the corporations and not the state officials were in control.

Since Governor Johnson came into power all this has been changed. The mining interests have had their taxes increased six-fold; street railway magnates and other franchise holders have been made to toe the mark; and railroads have likewise been compelled to contribute their legitimate share of taxes. Roads which formerly escaped on the plea of holding early-day charters, specifying low rates of taxation, have been brought to time in the courts and are now obliged to pay their 4 per cent gross earnings tax in full and on time, and the gross earnings have been made to cover side issues which formerly escaped.

Through efforts of the present administration, the Great Northern and Great Western railroads were only recently forced to disgorge $500,000 for taxes that had been evaded in the past, and a new pace was set that will increase the state's income from this source alone to the extent of $160,000 a year.

Is it any wonder that the people insist on having Johnson at the head of the state administration. And is it any wonder that the tools and lackeys of certain interests are "knocking" him?

The Magnate.

Life: A magnate is a man who is expert at getting hold of things and never letting go. It is he that discovered the perpetual franchise. When conditions are prosperous and industries are running full tilt, he takes all the credit and all the prosperity, but not all the industry. When affairs might be better he gives us to understand that, were it not for him, they might be worse. When affairs are in bad shape he tells us whose fault it is, making it cery clear that it is not his own. When they get better again he emerges from the scrimmage on top of the pile, and explains that the resuscitation is due entirely to his infinite ability and resourcefulness.

MURDER IS THE CHARGE

Frank Colon Indicted for Crime Committed at Alborn.

Is Charged With Killing Glazzo Ivanovich With an Ax.

Another man will be tried for his life in the St. Louis county district court during the current term of court. The grand jury now in session this morning returned an indictment against Frank Colom, charging murder in the first degree, in the killing of Glazzo Ivnaovich, alias Mike Smith.

The crime is alleged to have been committed Nov. 21 on the ne¼ of section 10, township 52 north of range 17 west, near Alborn. The men were both employed at one of the Northern Lumber company's camps ner Alborn. It is said they had a quarrel over a file and there was bad blood between them. While the men were returning to the camp Nov. 21, Ivanovich was found lying near a pump at the roadside, with his head split open and an ax lying near. Colom was said to have been seen with Ivanovich a short time before the discovery.

Ivanovich was brought to Duluth and placed in St. Mary's, where he died Nov. 26. The assault occurred on Saturday and Colom remained at the camp until the following Monday morning, when he was arrested. It was said that he was preparing to leave the camp when taken into custody.

Colom is a German about 50 years old and the man he is charged with killing was an Austrian about 24 years old. Eight men from the camp, where the crime is alleged to have been committed, were examined before the grand jury.

Three other indictments were returned by the grand jury this morning against people in custody and several against people who are yet to be taken into custody. Two of the indictments were against Charles Johnson, both charging grand larceny in the second degree. Under the first, Johnson is charged with misappropriating $42 collected at Buhl on behalf of Johnson & Ryan. Under the second indictment, he is charged with securing $50 from William Hekkila on the false representation that he was employed by Johnson & Ryan, and authorized by them to collect money due them. Both offences are alleged to have been committed Nov. 24.

Annie Sanford, a colored woman, was indicted on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. She is alleged to have stolen $30 from one Ole Johnson on Lake avenue, in Duluth, the night of Nov. 16. She was arrested at Superior the day after the offence is alleged to have been committed.

rigorous measures. He declared that under the guise of rescuers many thieves were going about and committing robbery on every hand. He was not able to check this during the first wild confusion, but had succeeded better in the last few days.

The body of Madame Ogston, wife of the British consul at Messina who with his daughter made his escape from the ruins, was found yesterday. The British consul is reported from Palermo as recovering from his injuries.

The living are still being taken from the ruins. Days ago it was thought that all buried under the masses of wreckage must have perished, but several persons taken out on Saturday were found to be in extraordinarily good condition. A party of sharpshooters rescued an old man. Their attention was called to the place where he was lying, by the whining of a little dog. They succeeded in removing a great quantity of debris, and there they came upon the dog's master, alive but unconscious. They carried the sufferer to the hospital, and the officer in command of the party took the dog under his immediate care.

British Attache Radcliffe said yesterday that he believed there were many still alive under the ruins. Unfortunately, during the past few days the work of searching the ruins has been in a measure abandoned, as it was thought impossible that any living remained.

Search for the buried victims of Italy's last great earthquake still continues and is frequently rewarded with the rescue of the living. Yesterday noon a man named Bensaja, who had spent fourteen days without food, locked in the ruins of his home, was taken out unconscious and resuscitated. He had been caught in a kind of straight jacket formed by the debris and unable to move, was compelled to watch the lingering death of his wife and four children. Saturday a married couple were removed not only alive but conscious. Their imprisonment had lasted thirteen days.

Saturday night a terrible tempest accompanied by earthquake shocks arose, causing a number of fresh collapses in the ruined city and spreading new terror among the people. Most of the people in Messina were camped under tents or huts, and nearly all of these were destroyed by the wind and blinding rains. Over sixty feet of the landing quays in the harbor was swept away, carrying off a large quantity of provisions stored there and several horses. Two soldiers narrowly escaped death. Near Glarre an immense fissure opened. It was 650 feet long, three feet wide and 65 feet deep and has been styled by the people "the mouth of Hell."

The American consulate, where the stores from the relief ship Bayern are being distributed, was besieged all day yesterday by a crowd of hungry refugees. The American committee, which is working strenuously, is receiving expressions of gratitude from all quarters. Gen. Mazza, who is in supreme command here, yesterday thanked Ambassador Griscom warmly for the humane initiative of his countrymen, suggesting that as the great exodus from Messina had left the city practically without any wounded, the most urgent need for the Bayern's services was along the coast towns, especially Catania and Syracuse. The Bayern has proceeded to those points. The supply ship Yankton will remain here to convey to Naples the bodies of the American consul and his wife when they are recovered. Ambassador Griscom paid a visit Saturday to the house of the Catholic archbishop, who, after confessing that his relief committee lacked both food and money, entrusted the ambassador with a message to Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, who is now in Rome, asking him to make another appeal for American aid. Food, clothing and other supplies were immediately sent to the archbishop's committee from the Bayern.

Disinfecting Progresses.

The disinfecting of the city is progressing rapidly. Two depositories connected by ferryboat have been established and disinfectants will also be transported along the Sicily and Calabrian coasts for distribution in the inland villages. The illumination of the city by electric light has been partially re-established. The American fleet, which arrived here Saturday morning and left Saturday night, made a great impression. Expressions of gratitude and admiration are still heard on all sides. Admiral Sperry's last act before leaving was to send a launch with a burial party to convey the body of Mrs. O. J. Ogston, wife of the British consul, across the straits to the English cemetery.

The survivors of the city fathers will meet Jan. 15 to elect new officials to replace those dead.

Prof. Salinas has succeeded in saving from the ruins of the civic museum several valuable paintings, including the famous Triptych by Antonel lo de Messina, of 1463.

Gen. Mazza in his report to the premier yesterday said that the recovery of valuables stolen from the ruins was progressing satisfactorily. Seven thieves were arrested Saturday.

Almost $3,000,000 in money and valuables besides the contents of the safes of the various banks has already been recovered.

Storm Delays Landing.

Naples, Jan. 11.—Owing to a storm, Rear Admiral Sperry has not landed from the battleship Connecticut, which arrived here yesterday. As the battleship entered the harbor, Admiral Moreno, commander of the naval department, who knew Admiral Sperry at the time of the Spanish-American war, sent him a wireless message congratulating him on the fleet's successful circumnavigation of the world. Admiral Sperry replied cordially in the name of the American navy.

Ambassador Griscom, who arrived here on the Connecticut, received a wireless message today, announcing that the relief ship Bayern had stopped at Reggio on its way to Catania and Syracuse, to discharge considerable supplies for the interior towns of Calabria. The Bayern expects to take 1,000 refugees to Leghorn or Genoa. If necessary, the relief ship will be immediately recargoed and sent back, as Ambassador Griscom still has $75,000 in Red Cross and other funds at his disposal. Mrs. Griscom has been conefrring here with the duchess of Aosta and the heads of other relief organizations, arranging for the distribution of the funds raised by auxiliary American relief committees.

It is considered doubtful whether the 2,500 tons of fresh meat aboard the supply ship Celtic will be available for relief work, as the Italians possess no refrigerating attachments, and arrangements have been made by Admiral Sperry to repurchase the meat for the fleet. A large number of refugees are here, and the influx of bad characters has compelled the authorities to adopt stringent measures. A condition bordering on martial law prevails.

Ears Torn to Get Rings.

Rome, Jan. 11.—The Corriere Italia publishes an interview today with eGn. Mazza, dealing with the looting in the earthquake zone. The general is quoted as follows:

"What especially preoccupies me is the succession of thefts since the first day of the disaster. Hundreds of native and foreign malefactors have poured into the devastated district, searching among the ruins for bodies to despoil or treasure to sack. The dead have been found with fingers cut off to remove rings and with ears torn to remove ear pendants. Many signs of robbery have been discovered in half ruined houses which the thieves penetrated during the days of general fright and disorder. Every day since the state of siege, which I intend to maintain vigorously, the military tribunals have distributed the gravest penalties to hundreds of persons suspected to theft. All the severity of a military regime will be invoked against those in whose possession are found objects of value or money of which they can give no satisfactory account.

"My program is to allow no one to enter the city except those whose interests make it absolutely necessary, and to them I shall give an escort of sailors and soldiers to guard against any harm to public or purivate property. The city will be emptied as much as possible of inhabitants. The vagabonds will be ejected, while I will try to persuade the inhabitants to go to nearby villages or to construct huts outside of the town. The 40,000 corpsse which are now petrifying under the debris are a menace to public health. The greatest possible number of bodies will be excavated and buried. To escape the exhalation, when excavation is impossible, the ruins will be flooded with torrents of quicklime and disinfectants."

Washington, Jan. 11.—As shown by the annual report of the commissioner general of immigration for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1908, the work of the bureau was in many respects the most comprehensive and interesting ever performed by it. Despite a decrease of 39 per cent in immigration, the report shows that the work of the bureau increased nearly 20 per cent during the fiscal year.

The report of F. H. Larned, deputy commissioner of immigration, under whose direction the report was prepared owing to death of Commissioner General Frank P. Sargent, the year was remarkable for a reduction of the number of aliens entering the United States. The total immigration for the year was 782,870, 502,479 less than for the year 1907. During the fiscal year of 1907, 13,064 aliens were rejected; during the past year 10,902 were rejected.

By reason of an amendment to the law, the report of the first time furnishes figures which show approximately the net increase in population by immigration. The figures indicate that the net increase was 209,867. Of the aliens admitted, 630,671 were between the ages of 14 and 44 years. Of those admitted, 172,293 could neither read nor write, and 2,310 could read but not write. Therefore, about 26 per cent were illiterate, a decrease of 4 per cent in comparison with 1907. The total amount of money brought into the country by arriving immigrants was $17,794,226, an average of almost $23 a person. During the past year there were turned back at the ports 10,902 aliens—about 1.3 per cent of the total number applying for admission.

There was great activity in the suppression of the importation of alien women for immoral purposes. Of these women, 124 were rejected; 43 procurers were denied admission, while 44 immoral women and two procurers were deported from the country; fourteen procurers were convicted and sentenced to terms of imprisonment and fined. A systematic campaign was inauguarted during the year against the importation of immoral women, and the results have been gratifying. While investigations into the "white slave" traffic are difficult, the success attendant upon them has been satisfactory.

"Polly of the Circus."

The mystic world of red wagons, clowns, peanuts and sawdust and the big tent of a circus will be seen in Frederic Thompson's production of "Polly of the Circus," which will be seen for the first time at the Lyceum tonight and Tuesday. While the play carries with it the atmosphere of the sawdust ring and its accessories, which is usually more or less prosiac and far from being romantic or sentimental, there has been woven into it by its author, Margaret Mayo, a touching romance of love which is forcibly and capably brought to the front by Miss Edith Tallaferro, who plays the title part.

Her Polly is not the noisy, uncouth "circus lady," but is the portrayal of a refined, affable and gentle young woman, who, "shy" on education but rich in principal, is injured through a fall from her horse and becomes at the termination of a pretty little love affair, instead of a bareback rider, a helpmate for the parson, whose sympathy leads her into a parsonage and thence to a life which is spiritually sweet and happy. Mr. Thompson has provided an exceptionally strong cast of capable artists.

One Actress With No Fads.

Miss Grace Lockwood, who succeeded Mary Shaw as "Miss Alving" in Henrik Ibsen's great play, entitled "Ghosts," is about the only woman of the stage who positively has no fads, and she claims that fads are only foolish ideas and are really a delusion. Miss Lockwood is this season playing Jinnie Peppercorn in "Texas," which will be seen at the Lyceum on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

"One of Miss Shaw's strongest fads was the wearing of a peacock feather, notwithstanding the fact that this is considered a rank hoodoo by many women of the stage," said Miss Lockwood. "She would wear this feather even if she was forced to partly hide it from view, by wearing it in her hair. Elsie Janis, who is one of the youngest stars, insists on a colored baby occupying the first seat in the thirteenth row of the theater every Monday night, consequently the management keeps a list of colored babies in the box at all times. Fritzi Scheff has a black cat in her dressing room on all opening nights. Trixie Treganza always wears a string of pearls on her right ankle while on the stage. Grace George has a cross-eyed boy in the box at the opening performance. Maude Adams has no foot in her left stocking on initial nights. Ethel Barrymore refuses to wear a piece of jewelry opening nights."

AMERICAN TELEPHONE & TELEGRAPH CO.

Is Now Connected With 5,000 Independent Companies Having 1,000,000 Stations—This is 25 Per Cent of All Bell Stations.

(From the Boston News Bureau.)

One of the most important features of American Telephone development in 1908 was the large increase in the number of independent companies, with which connections were established. During 1907 the Bell companies established toll and long-distance connection with no less than 450,000 independent telephone stations throughout the country. The number taken over last year was practically as great.

As a result of the 1907 and 1908 development in this direction, the American Telephone system now embraces a total of over 4,000,000 stations, of which 1,000,000 represent stations of small independent companies not owned outright but connected with the Bell lines and therefore an integral part of the system from the standpoint of effective public service. Five years ago there were considerably less than 100,000 of these independent stations so connected.

The independent stations are nearly all in rural districts, were installed by local people and were operated along provincial lines until the American Telephone company saw fit to widen the scope of its public usefulness and made these companies an integral part of its own 3,000,000 odd stations.

These connected stations represent at least 5,000 companies, commonly classed as "independents," but which in everything except local service are really a part of the Bell system. Gradually these companies are putting in Bell instruments and adopting a Bell standard of construction.

RUN OVER AND HURT INTERNALLY

Peter Hahn Victim of Serious Accident in West End.

Peter Hahn, a driver for the People's Moving company, was taken to St. Mary's hospital unconscious, as a result of injuries sustained this morning in the West end, when he was run over by his own sleigh, at about 9 o'clock.

Hahn, who had been in the Carlson & Johnson store at Eighteenth avenue west, attempted to jump to his seat on the heavy moving dray, when the horses became frightened and jumped, throwing Hahn under the runners. The heavy rig passed over his body, and it is feared by the hospital authorities that he is badly injured, internally.

Hahn regained consciousness shortly before noon. He is in great pain, and the attending physicians have been unable to learn just the exact extent of his injuries.

WILL CANVASS THE VOTE.

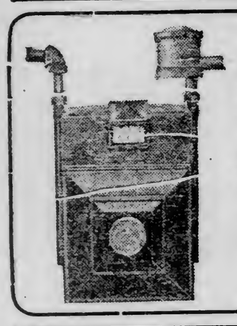

Preliminary Step to Contest for Governorship of Illinois.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 11.—The Record-Herald says: "The combination of Republicans and Democrats at Springfield, which elected Edward G. Shurtleff temporary speaker of the house, propose to canvass the vote cast at the November election on Tuesday morning. It is proposed that Speaker Shurtleff shall proceed with the canvass of the vote, irrespective of whether the senate is present or not, in fact. He will declare that Governor Deneen and the other state officers chosen in November are duly elected. The way will then be open for the filing of a contest for the governorship. It is claimed by the combination that the constitution provides that a joint assembly of the two branches of the legislature for the canvassing of the votes is not necessary; that the senate merely attends the proceeding as a compulsory spectator."

THE FUTURE OF DULUTH

Needs of Growing City Discussed at Civic Banquet.

The Womens' Council Celebrates Its Tenth Anniversary.

Although the assembled guests at the civic banquet at the Spalding Saturday evening were not, in the opinion of Royal L. Melendy of Chicago, truly representative of Duluth's population, they were at least a highly representative group of the Duluth men and women who are keenly interested and alive to the progress and development of the city along every line of social service and improvement.

The banquet was planned by the Women's Council of the city in celebration of the tenth anniversary of its organization, and during the course of the evening a little was said of what had been accomplished and much of what might be.

Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge, president of the Council, presided as toastmistress in a thoroughly delightful manner. The speakers were happily and expeditiously introduced. The guest of honor was Royal L. Melendy of Chicago, social economist, lecturer and writer, who chose for the subject of his talk "A City Facing Itself."

"The first work that must be done in solving municipal problems," said Mr. Melendy, "is the securing of a thorough knowledge of itself and then facing the problems which are found to exist. We often see the case of foreign cities being governed in a better and worthier way than those in a so-called democracy, and only by a thorough study of the city and its needs can we hope to intelligently solve the problems confronting us. Today graft is the most picturesque of the vices of poor municipal government to be attacked, but there are other conditions more worthy of attention because of the results they bring about. The relation of physics to morality must be considered by any city looking well to the conditions within itself. Consider the architecture of a tenement and its relation to the people within. By the conditions existing there—a family of six or seven with a few boarders living in two or three rooms—there cannot help but be a lack of that privacy which is inevitably the greatest guard to the morality of the young women.

"The solution of almost every municipal problem will come when a truly representative group of a city's people realize the conditions to be faced. The world is passing from the consideration of a merely individual morality to a code of social ethics and in every line of education and effort there is coming to be corelation of social forces, a greater effort toward industrial justice and a broader charity looking to the community welfare."

Mr. Melendy declared himself strongly in favor of a Duluth survey, which was earnestly suggested by Dr. E. L. Tuohy in a previous toast. Both speakers advocated the spending of a few thousand dollars at this time, to secure knowledge of the every condition and need of the growing city. Dr. Tuohy also advocated the organization of an associated charities and the provision for medical inspection of all school children.

"Women Wage Earners."

Mrs. Perry Starkweather of St. Paul, secretary of the women's department of the state labor bureau, spoke of "Women Wage Earners." Mrs. Starkweather gave a bright, brief and thoroughly earnest talk of the present conditions and what might be accomplished.

She said in part: "The women of Minnesota add $33,750,000 to the state's earnings each year, and surely this is tangible enough, and large enough to command attention and respect. The greatest need of this large body of workers is fresh air, an amount sufficient to insure health. Then there should be efforts made to raise the standard of cleanliness. The greatest evil, one so easily prevented if we put our efforts toward it, is the presence of the child woman in industry. There is nothing more tragic than this figure which in years is a child, and in burdens she bears, a woman."

The solution of some of these difficulties, the speaker said, is in continued interest on the part of thinking women, and the use of woman's weapon, the tongue. "We are not classed as among those who say 'the people rule,'" said Mrs. Starkweather, "but we can do much."

Wilson G. Crosby, representing the board of education spoke of the value of vacation schools. Mr. Crosby complimented the Women's Council on the work it had accomplished along this line, saying that in several movements the council had furnished "the impertinent devil of yeast, that makes the dough rise." The thanks of the community were due the Council, said the speaker, for making the attempt and pointing the way to what can be done.

Mayor Haven was the first speaker of the evening and he also spoke words of praise for the work of the Council, and highly complimented Mrs. M. R. Baldwin, who is a health inspector appointed at the request of the Council.

The last speaker was Mrs. J. L. Washburn and she had as her topic "The Present Needs—What Duluth Can do." Mrs. Washburn made an earnest plea for a general support and approval for the movement to secure the Rodin statue of Greysolon duLhut for the city, the organization of an Associated Charities, the medical inspection of school children, and establishment of vacation schools as a part of the city system. Following her speech resolutions were introduced by Rev. R. J. Mooney, Mrs. H. C. Marshall and President E. W. Bohannan of the Normal school advocating these movements.

KING MANUEL'S HEALTH

Causes Alarm in Portugal—His Death Might End Monarchy.

Lisbon, via Badajos, Spain, Jan. 11.—In order to dissipate the rumors current here that his recent illness had entailed lung trouble, King Manuel, attired in the uniform of a field marshal, Saturday rode through the principal streets of the city, followed by a brilliant staff.

It was noted generally that the king was very pale and that he sat on his horse with difficulty. Afterward his majesty went aboard the royal yacht Amelia. His physicians are insisting that the king make frequent cruises, in the hopes that the sea air will strengthen his constitutional weakness.

It is said the duke of Oporto, the king's uncle and heir apparent to the Portuguese throne, has declared that in the event of Manuel's death, nothing could induce him to assume the crown. In such a circumstance, as there is no other descendant of the royal family in direct line of succession, the monarchical form of government in Portugal would be seriously jeopardized.

PULPIT AND PLATFORM

DULUTH IS AT A CRISIS IN HER MORAL PROGRESS

Two Deadly Perils Eating at City's Vitals, Says Pastor.

Something More Than "Religion From Teeth Out" Is Needed.

REV. CAMPBELL COYLE.

"Woe to him that buildeth a town with blood, and establisheth a city by iniquity," Hebrews 11-12; and "Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain," Psalms, 127:1; were the texts used by Dr. Campbell Coyle, in his sermon last evening at the First Presbyterian church. His subject was "A New and Better Duluth; A Study of the Moral Conditions of Our City."

Dr. Coyle said in part:

"The location of cities is not accidental, but providential. When God ordains that a city shall occupy a certain site, He appears on the scene far in advance of the first settler, and makes all the preliminary arrangements. He considers the lay of the land, and all necessary supplies, so that when the city has arrived, it will be able with reasonable exertion, to grow, and develop, and expand. I believe that it is the will of God that there shall be a large and enterprising city up here at the Head of the Lakes, and I will tell you why."

Here Dr. Coyle recounted the advantages Duluth has had bestowed upon her—the naturally protected harbor, the resources of the hills back of the city, the great iron mines and large timber tracts, and the geographical location, which will make it a great railroad center.

"It follows as the night follows day that God meant that there should be an important city right here. And this means also that it shall be a city according to His plan, and that you and I, and others, shall conspire together to accomplish His plan. We are the workmen on the walls of this growing temple, and the result we produce will be the crystallization in wood, brick and stone of what we ourselves are. The institutions, which the future shall honor or dishonor these granite hills, are now in process of development, and it behooves us as parties to the entrprise to pause and consider where and what we are, and what we are doing, and whether we are tending.

"Cities are like buildings, not one whit better or stronger, or more enduring, than the materials wrought into them. Cities are organized entities, with a destructive character of their own, and are good or bad strong or weak, wholesome or unwholesome, according to the quality of that character. What makes a city a good place to live in, is not climate alone, or business, or schools, or population, but that subtle something called atmosphere, that climate that affects character and makes it vigorous, and good, and enduring. The most important thing about any city is the quality of the character of its people, and this leads us to bend our gaze on our own city tonight, and to give ourselves to the consideration of some issues that are extremely vitla. Duluth is germinal as yet, only in the bud, and in the nature of the case, the flower must partake of the strength or weakness, the goodness or badness, that are now embodied in the seed. Hence, everything we do these germinal days is going to project itself far into the future and yield fruit either good or bad for geneartions yet to come. It is the time for us to act.

Crisis in City's History.

"This little city of ours is in the midst of a crisis just now. Goodness is grappling with badness, order with disorder, heaven with hell, and the question before us to consider is this: Are we going to sit inert and with folded hands, thus giving the lie to Christian soldiership, while institutional wickedness plants itself openly and defiantly in our midst? It does seem to me that the mission of professedly good people is something in addition to believing in a creed, and going to church when the weather is nice, where they can sing hymns and pray, and be religious from the teeth out; something in addition to church membership, and a subscription to the support of the cause if they do not happen to forget all of it; something in addition to hymn books, and prayer books and mere externalism.

Two Deadly Perils.

"There are some most deadly perils eating at the vitals of this city at the present time—serpents poisonous and deadly, that have slimed their way up out of the abyss, and they are crushing the city in their strong and horrid folds, while their forked tongues hiss defiance, and their foul breath pollutes the atmosphere. Of these subtle and deadly and far-reaching perils I shall speak of but two.

"First, there is the evil of immorality which carries on its business in what is known as the 'red light district.' During the recent weeks there has been a good deal of local agitation on this matter. The newspapers have had their say, and the churches have had their say, and the men in the council chamber have had their say, and the result has been, at the surface at least, the extermination of the foul district, that avenue of death, down there on the lake shore. But I am going to speak of it as if it were still there, for I am quite sure that the time has not yet come for us to congratulate ourselves too strongly. The ways of politics, like the ways of the heathen Chinee, are decidedly peculiar, and I am going to keep my fireworks and sky rockets for some future celebration. I have simply four things to say at present concerning this awful and barbaric evil—the red light district. First, that they who lend their influence to sustain it are either weak, or bad, or grafters of the most dangerous type. Either they lack moral backbone, and are to be pitied, or they are morally bad and, like swine, want to have a moral bog or swamp near by in which they can wallow, or they are getting something out of it, either by way of money or promise of future preferment. If it were a matter of a mad dog, or a poisoned well, or a deadly contagious disease, there would be no question at all as to the course to pursue. Everybody would say, kill the dog, destroy the well, banish the contagion. But men classify themselves differently when it comes to the evil under discussion. They are either weak, or bad, or grafters, and if any here tonight lend their influence to the support of this ching, they can take their choice as to which of these things they are.

Build City With Blood.

"Another thing I want to say concerning such a district is: That to take money from it by way of fine or license is to build a city with blood. It is impossible to conceive of anything more hellishly horrible, or utterly barbaric, than for a city to build itself up out of revenue which is the price of souls. Tearing down the walls of character to get money to build up the walls of wood and brick and stone, is paganism gone to seed. Our city ought to be ashamed of itself, its officials ought to blush, and its citizens ought to put on sackcloth and cover their heads with ashes, in view of the fact that the city has been accepting $20,000 of such blood money annually to help pay expenses. If some man, or body of men, did such things, we would spurn them as we would spurn a plague. But is this thing any less wicked because it becomes impersonal and a city does it? Remember this, that God still reigns, and that He will visit with his judgment every city that is budded out of blood. Woe to him that builded a town with blood, and establish a city by iniquity. Words these that ought to be printed in letters of fire and hung on the wall of every council chamber in the world. Woe, woe, woe, is what God says is coming to the man or city that takes into their sinful hands the dirty money that is the price of souls.

"Another thing I want to say concerning such a district is: That to take money from it by way of fine or license is to build into a city the germs of its certain destruction. Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.

"Just one thing more. What are we going to do with the false women who inhabit such districts in our cities? We call them plagues, pestilences, running sores of iniquity, and fallen women. How many of us men and women are up, do you think? Her's is not the only sin that shuts one out of the kingdom of God. But what she needs and what in her deepest heart she yearns for, is not curses, and criticism, and hate, but the gospel of Jesus in the form of love and sympathy. God loves them. Jesus died for them. And good people ought to organize to reveal unto them the love of Christ."

In closing, Dr. Coyle spoke upon the saloon evil.

HAS LOST ITS GRIP.

Church Not Keeping Pace With Modern Thought, Says Pastor.

Rev. C. W. Casson of Boston, who preached at the First Unitarian church yesterday, said:

"The characteristic feature of the multitude today is its unfaith in religion."

"It is very evident that for some reason the church has lost its grip upon the minds and loyalty of men. The reason for this is the fact that while human thought has been evolving to higher conceptions, the church has not kept pace with its advancement. Just as one human life grows from babyhood to manhood changing its thought of things at each new stage of progress, so humanity, in its advancement from religious babyhood to religious manhood, finds its religious conceptions need changing. Thus it is that today there is the definite need of declaring religious principles in accord with the maturer thought. This the liberal church is endeavoring to do. It frankly and fully adopts the principles of freedom and progress in religion. It shows that religion should have a rational basis, and that in the conflict between an ancient tradition and a modern truth, the latter should be given precedence.

"The Unitarian church has recently adopted new and progressive methods in declaring its message to man. It is utilizing the power of the press and making it its ally in propaganda work. This is done by publishing, under regular business contracts, hundred-word sermonettes under the heading 'Paragraph Pulpit.' This method has been wonderfully successful in arousing interest and affording help to those who needed a definite statement of religious verity. During the last year work has been done in over seventy papers, with a net circulation of over a million. The average circulation of the 'Paragraph Pulpit' has been about half a million daily. Requests have been received from all over the States and Canada asking for information and Unitarian literature. Several new movements have been started at various points, and the first steps have been taken toward the establishment of a liberal church.

"The recent election of William H. Taft, a member of the Unitarian church in Washington, has sown the wide interest at the present time in the liberal movement in religion. While in some quarters his religious faith has been the subject of criticism and opposition, there has been manifest a remarkably liberal spirit throughout the country. It has been recalled that most of the great men of this country, who have led it on its way to freedom, have been Unitarian in their belief. Four Unitarian presidents have already served the republic. Washington was simply a theist in his belief. Jefferson was an avowed Unitarian. Franklin was a liberal. Lincoln refused to join any church with a creed. The Declaration of Independence was written by a Unitarian. All of this is seen to be deeply significant. They were not liberals by chance. It was their free faith that made them seekers and workers for national freedom. No country can be really free until it is free in its religious faith. The Unitarian church in this way stands in the truest sense for true patriotism and for the religious principles, without which our American ideals can never be realized."

DUTIES OF THE LAYMEN.

Men Responsible for Souls of Brothers as Well as Bodies.

Speaking on "Opportunity Brings Responsibility," Dr. W. D. Lawrence of Minneapolis, outlined the duties of laymen in spreading Christianity and assisting the church at St. Paul's Episcopal church yesterday.

He declared the laymen of the church have a grave responsibility before them. He recalled the organization of the Laymen's Missionary movement and explained its purpose. He said that there are hundreds of millions of people in the world today who have never heard of Christ, and the clergy and regular missionaries cannot reach them all. He said the responsibility rests on the laymen, and no man may call himself a Christian unless he is trying to make someone else a Christian, or is trying to make someone who is a Christian, a better Christian.

"We need, then, to restore the true idea of the church," said Dr. Lawrence. "To teach the layman that he, too, has a priesthood, distinct, indeed, from the priesthood of the clergy, but none the less real—differing in degree more than in kind; that his work is not done when he has audited his accounts, or served on committees, or fed and clothed the poor, but that he is responsible for the souls, not only of the poor, but of the men in his club and the children and servants in his home."

"HOW TO WIN."

Three Causes for Men's Failures Outlined by E. W. Peck.

The first of a series of Sunday afternoon mass meetings was held at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon and was well attended. State Secretary E. W. Peck was the speaker, taking for his subject, "How to Win."

The measure of success in life is not money and riches, or wealth and selfish possessions, declared Mr. Peck, for real success comes only to that man who stands for righteousness and truth.

"There are three causes for men's failures," said Mr. Peck. "One is greed for wealth, another is companionship with the popular, sinful crowd, and the third is the power of bad habits. The elements of success are willingness to face the truth, courage of conviction and courage of decision to do right."

Mr. Peck's address was preceded by a song service led by H. G. Sydow. Miss Blanche Fleming and Miss Gladys Reynolds sang a vocal duet and Paul Gilbert sang a solo.

DEATH ASCRIBED TO USE OF ANTI-TOXIN.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Eleven colored children, of whom one has died, are said to have become violently sick as the result of the administration of diphtheria anti-toxin by a city physician. Several days ago the physician was called to attend Theodore Meredith, 3 years old, and it was found convenient to administer the anti-toxin to ten other children in the neighborhood. The death of the Meredith child was followed by the sudden sickness of the others. The physician contends that the dead child also had pneumonia, and this may have caused the death, but the health department has ordered a rigid investigation.

MOORE IS PRESIDENT

Branch of Laymen's Missionary Association Organized Here.

Duluth Falls in Line With New Evangelical Movement.

Watson S. Moore was elected president, and W. I. Prince, secretary of the local branch of the Laymen's Missionary association, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon. The meeting was called by Lyman L. Pierce of New York, general secretary of the Laymen's missionary movement, which was started at the Fifth avenue Presbyterian church in New York about a year ago.

It is an international movement of co-operation among the laymen of various Christian bodies, designed to stimulate and maintain among the laymen of the churches of North America, an intelligent and active interest in the speedy evangelization of the world, in co-operation with mission boards and societies of various churches. Co-operative committees will be built up all over the continent. It is not the purpose of the association to collect funds nor administer them, nor will it send out missionaries. Its special field will be among men.

Yesterday's meeting, held at the Spalding, was attended by about seventy-five ministers and laymen. Addresses were made by David P. Jones, ex-mayor of Minneapolis; Dr. W. D. Lawrence and Harry W. Jones, Minneapolis; Rev. Roderick J. Mooney, W. S. Moore and R. R. Briggs of Duluth.

The Duluth committee consists of the following men: Dr. J. B. Weston, J. G. Roos, K. C. Hoxie, James Wanless, Albert Baldwin, Ward Ames, Henry Taylor, S. T. Hamilton, E. G. Chapman, H. V. Holmes, H. GOMPERS SAYS IT WAS UNJUST

Talks About the Injunction and Sentence at Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 10.—In what he said was his first reference to the recent sentence of himself, John Mitchell and Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of labor, Samuel Gompers last night said:

"The granting of the injunction and the sentence imposed by Judge Wright were grossly unjust, and not even a judge nor his sentence can put a stigma upon my colleagues nor myself, nor make criminals of us. The injustice of it is shown by the fact that the very things we are forbidden to do, every other citizen has the right to do, and it is this that we are protesting against."

Mr. Gompers' remarks were made at a fishing resort near this city, where he was a guest at a reception given by the labor faction there.

THE KEYSTONE GUARD.

Insurance Commissioner Hartigan Issues Warning to the Public.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The insurance commissioner has issued the following warning:

Information reaches this office from time to time, to the effect that the Keystone Guard, a concern organized at Athens, Pa., is doing business in Duluth. This department has made frequent attempts to secure evidence against the solicitors, but so far has been unable to do so. The solicitors of this concern represent that upon the payment of $480 during a period of five years, $1,000 will be returned to each member.

This concern is not licensed to do business in this state; any one soliciting membership for it is liable to prosecution, and the offer itself is so preposterous that it should not deceive any one.

This statement is made with the hope that some people may take warning and protect themselves from loss.

JUDGE ROOT FOUND GUILTY

Of Gross Impropriety Unfitting Him for Supreme Bench.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 11.—The State Bar association committee appointed to investigate the conduct of Judge Milo A. Root, who resigned as a judge of the supreme court two months ago, made its report Saturday. Judge Root was recently elected for another term of six years. His resignation affected only the term to which he was elected two years ago. If he fails to qualify Monday, Jan. 11, the office will be declared vacant.

The committee finds that Judge Root has been guilty of gross impropriety which unfits him for the supreme court bench. The report makes the conclusions and recommendations:

"Judge Root had correspondence with M. J. Gordon, attorney for the Great Northern Railroad company, concerning money transactions. That Judge Root accepted from the Great Northern and other railroads free transportation and that Judge Root filed as the opinion of the supreme court an almost verbatim draft of the decision drafted by the attorney for the Great Northern in the case of Harris vs. the railroad.

"The committee is unable to obtain any facts to substantiate the rumors of the giving out of advance information concerning the decisions of the supreme court.

"The committee is unable to obtain any facts to substantiate rumors of bribery and corruption."

SOME PRAISE, SOME CONDEMN

Movement at Cleveland "To Live as Jesus Would."

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 11.—The movement began last Sunday by 1,800 young people of this city to live for two weeks as Jesus would, has assumed a scope far beyond the expectations of its promoetrs. It now is city-wide and is spreading to near-by towns. Fully 10,000 volunteers have unofficially joined the movement by attempting the test, and even the city officials are taking an interest. Many interesting experiences have been related by those who have completed the first week's test. Some claim they cannot carry the practice into business. Others say they can. The test also has brought out a host of critics, some praising, others condemning the idea. The scoffers sarcastically say the effort which is being made mostly by church members should be unnecessary, as it implies a past hypocrisy.

All sorts of arguments have resulted, and discussions are being carried on in homes, in the churches, clubs and the local newspapers as to what Jesus would do under all manner of circumstances.

Negro Lynched.

Poplarville, Miss., Jan. 11.—At 11 o'clock last night, a mob stormed the jail at this place and lynched Pink Williams, a negro, who Saturday evening at 7 o'clock attempted assault on the 14-year-old daughter of Sheriff Moody. The body was afterward shot full of holes by the mob of 100 men.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

CURLERS ALL ON HAND FOR THE BIG BONSPIEL

St. Paul the Mecca for Curlers of the Northwest.

More Than 300 Devotees of Sport Are Assembled.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 11.—The sixteenth annual bonspiel of the Northwestern Curling association opened this morning at 10 a. m.

This is the most important curling event in the United States, and is open to rinks from Canada and this country. Over 300 of the best men in the sport are here from various parts of the United States and its northern neighbor to take part in the bonspiel.

The committee of registration has registered fifty-five rinks, and says that many more, totaling perhaps seventy-five, will come later. Curlers are here from Winnipeg, Portage, Rainy River, Phillips, Mankato, Brandon, Duluth, Chicago, Superior and numerous other Northwestern points. In addition all the rinks from both Minneapolis and St. Paul are entered. One of the Winnipeg rinks is composed of Whyte, McDougall, Braden and Carson, and will prove a formidable group in the bonspiel. Each man is an expert at the great winter game, and they will give other contestants a hot contest for the leading places.

The curlers have twelve rinks at their disposal, for use at any time during the bonspiel. This assures all contestants of ample opportunity for play and practice, and will keep the play going at a steady gait. Four prizes are presented in the first event, which is the St. Paul jobbers' trophy. The members of the winning rink will each receive a gold watch, and for the second, third and fourth place winners the trophies are silver loving cups, silver coffee pots and German silver steins. In the second event the trophy is that of the Duluth Curling club. The prizes are as follows: First four Remington shotguns; second, four traveling bags; third, four safety razors; fourth, four steel fishing rods.

The Minneapolis Curling club has offered the prize for the third event, and Minneapolis firms have contributed to make the prizes among the best in the entire list. They are as follows: First, four gold watches, presented by the Minneapolis Curling club; second, four cut gluss dishes, presented by Donaldson's; third, four gold mounted pipes, presented by the Vendome hotel and cigar stand; fourth, four copper smoking sets, presented by White & McNaught.

The Canadian "Soo" trophy, which was to be open to rinks from this United States alone, has been thrown open to all contestants. The prizes are oak tankards, Thermos bottles, oak steins and gold fountain pens, four of each. In the fifth event, rinks will be permitted to enter only after having defeated in the first draws, including preliminaries in at least two of the first, second and third events. The prizes are: First, four gold watch fobs; second, four bronze inlaid mugs.

For the sixth event the international trophy is offered. The conditions require that Canadian rinks can enter against an equal number of American rinks, and that there must be at least four rinks on each side. The country winning in the first stage then has the field to itself playing down for the various prizes. If the American rinks win, the second stage is thrown open to all American rinks desiring to enter.

HOCKEY IS POPULAR

Great Winter Game Gaining Foothold in United States.

Canada Turns Out Most of the Star Players.

New York, Jan. 11.—Hockey is now rapidly taking the center of the stage. It is the one strenuous all-winter sport. And hockey is getting more strenuous every year. In this climate it is mostly confined to the indoor rinks. The good old-time winters are but a memory. Everything nowadays has to be made to order, and so they manufacture ice to skate on while you wait.

The college boys are the hockey heroes of today. Princeton came to town and defeated the champions of New York, and now Harvard is administering a like dose to most of the teams they meet.

Hockey is one of the most strenuous games in American sport. Incidentally, it is borrowed from our Canadian cousins. Most of the star players are Canadians. This is easily explained from the fact that, being in the ice-bound zone, they have unbroken ice all winter, and, therefore, endless play. Practice makes perfect in everything. "No molly-coddles wanted" is the slogan of all the team captains. It takes a sturdy youngster to stand the wear and tear. The games are always exciting. Some of the clashes at the St. Nicholas rink almost raise the roof, according to Sam Austin. And the hospital list is always interesting.

BIG TOURNEY FOR ISHPEMING

Riders From All Over Country Are Entered in Meet.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 11.—The annual ski jumping tournament at Ishpeming, Mich., has been set for Feb. 22.

It is expected that ski riders from all the three states and the Dominion of Canada will be on hand on Washington's birthday to set new figures for the long leap that attracts the admirers of this reckless form of sport.

Great preparations are being made to perfect the Ishpeming slide so that the daring knights of the spruce blades will have every opportunity to either equal or excel the record figures made by Lief Berg of Norway on a Switzerland course, two years ago. The long incline, which measures 800 feet, will be added to still more, and it is proposed to move the take-off thirty feet back. These improvements will give the men an opportunity to get up greater momentum, and the moving of the take-off will afford them a much safer landing place. A feature of the Ishpeming slide that is enjoyed by no other in this country is that the path is sixteen feet wide at the "bump," or take-off, thus enabling the men to take the jump in their own peculiar manner, and not to have to follow the beaten track of thenr predecessors, as is the case at all other frozen pathways.

One hundred and twenty-two feet was done at this course at the last meet of the skiers, and it is expected that with the improved conditions several feet will be added to this mark. There is every reason to believe that the slide will be lightning fast, provided that the weather man furnishes conditions favorable for fast sport.

Other contests of a similar kind are scheduled preparatory to the Ishpeming meeting, the dates being as follows: Chippewa Falls, Wis., Jan. 24; St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 31; Colfax, Wis., Feb. 4; Eau Claire, Wis., Feb. 6 and 7, this being the national tournament; Stillwater, Minn., Feb. 9; Duluth, Minn., Feb. 12; Superior, Wis., Feb. 14; Munising, Mich., Feb. 19.

WRESTLERS TO GET BUSY

Siegfried, German Champion, and Gotch Scheduled to Meet.

Interest Will Revive With Their Appearance in America.

New York, Jan. 11.—With Ernest Siegfried, "The German Oak," champion heavyweight wrestler of the fatherland, due to arrive here, and Frank Gotch, the world's champion, coming back from England to meet Yussiff Mahmout, the Terrible Turk, in Chicago, for a $10,000 purse, things in the grappling line are due for another big boom in the near future.

Siegfried is conceded to be the most powerful of all the mighty foreign mat artists and, under Graeco-Roman rules, is considered to be invincible and the peer of either George Hackenschmidt, the Russian lion, Sybsco, Padoubney or Peterson.

The all conquering Teuton was feted by his countrymen prior to his departure, as only Germans can fete, and when he gets here all the New York foam blowers have arranged to meet the young giant at the dock in Hoboken, where a parade, consisting of members of the various German societies and Turn Verin organizations, will start, preceded by a full brass band. Siegfried will be escorted to an open baroche, which will be drawn by four sturdy horses, and a gala day is in store for him.

His first appearance on the mat in this country will be at Madison Square Garden on Thursday, Jan. 28, against two of the best heavyweight wrestlers, whom he will agree to throw within thirty minutes' actual wrestling time or forfeit $500. The inducement should attract the attention of John Pienling, "Joe" Rogers, "Fred" Beell, Hjalmar Lundin and Raoul de Rouen. The appearance of the big foreigner will arouse an unusual amount of interest in the wrestling game, particularly as Prof. William Muldoon will appear in the capacity of referee.

In the meantime word comes from London that Frank Gotch, tired of trying to force Hackenschmidt into a match, is coming back to America to wrestle Yussiff Mahmout for the world's heavyweight championship and the contest will take place in Chicago during March. The Empire Athletic club program, of which Joe Coffey is matchmaker, proposes a purse of $10,000 for Gotch and Mahmout, and both will accept for March.

HAL CHASE WILL BE ON THE JOB

First Baseman Will Again Play With New York Club.

New York, Jan. 11.—Although there has been no definite announcement made from headquarters, from reports that are carefully allowed to leak out of the New York American league club office from time to time, it is now pretty generally understood that Hal Chase will be back on first base on the hilltop when the whistle blows next summer.

Just what correspondence has passed between the stubborn child from beyond the Sierras and Frank Farrel, owner of the club, is not made public, but from the aforesaid rumors that are sent out unofficially, some agreement has been reached which hinges now solely upon what action the national commission will take on the Chase case.

With Chase in line, and a good manager like Stallings in charge, there is no reason why there should not be a high-class, fighting first division team disporting on upper Broadway when the warm weather rolls around again. The individual material is there and always has been, but it takes one master mind to mold the whole into a fast-playing unit. Given the necessary amount of baseball brains on the part of the players, and it's all up to Stallings to whip them into a lightning-like machine, of which herculean task all his friends think him fully capable.

From those close to the inside it is also learned that Elberfeld will not be in the lineup of the Highlanders agin. This is not so much due to the fact that he is not the class, as to the fact that no ball park in the country is large enough to hold both Elberfeld and Chase on the same team.

DULUTH TEAM IN MINNEAPOLIS

Zeniths Will Meet the Fast Lake Shore Aggregation.

Tonight in Minneapolis the newly organized Zenith hockey team will line up against the fast Lake Shore hockey team of that city.

It will be the first game of the year for the local boys, but despite that fact, coupled with the knowledge that the Minneapolis team has been playing since lice could be made early in the fall, they expect to bring home the bacon.

If arrangements can be made, the Lake Shores will be brought to Duluth for a return game within the next two weeks.

The rink recently built on Third street and Tenth avenue west, is being put in shape for hockey. New lights are being installed, bank boards are being put in, and provision for spectators are being made. It was at this rink that the Zenith team practised in preparation for the Minneapolis contest, and it is probable that they will hold forth at this rink the rest of the winter, playing all the games there.

BRANCH CLUB IS VERY POPULAR

Many Parties Enjoy Sunday Excursion to Spirit Lake.

Extremely popular is the Spirit Lake branch of the Duluth boat club as a favorite, winter, "over Sunday", good time resort, and the merry parties that have spent Sunday there, are enthusiastic.

For those who like to stay indoors there is the fireplace and plenty of reading matter. In the evening dancing is in order.

For those who like to roam over the hills with a gun on their shoulder, there is good sport, for the place abounds with rabbits.

A place on the ice is kept clean for those who like to skate, there are several natural ski hills where the enthusiasts slide down on to the ice; and there is plenty of room for snowshoeing.

Then, there is all the fun of getting the meals. The officers of the club have found that the winter parties enjoy preparing their own meals, and while a caretaker is in attendance, no regular chef is kept.

There are a number of ways of reaching this popular haunt, but the most popular way seems to be to snowshoe or ski up from the end of the car-line. Many parties hire a sleigh and ride up in that manner, but most people seem to enjoy the snowshoe route.

CLOQUET DEFEATED.

Grand Rapids Wins Exciting Basketball Game on Home Floor.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 11—(Special to The Herald.)—The local high school basketball team was defeated by the Grand Rapids high school team at Grand Rapids Saturday evening by a score of 28 to 18. The contest was hard fought from start to finish.

The Cloquet boys were handicapped by having to play on the low ceillnged gymnasium floor, which impeded their basket throwing considerably. Next Saturday the Grand Rapids boys will play at Cloquet.

Willie vs. Kerry Kid.

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 11.—John Willie of Chicago will meet the "Kerry Kid" of Superior here late this month, in a twenty-round fight. The match will be pulled off under the auspices of the Calumet Athletic club.

Ban Johnson Says Murphy May Give Chicago Team a Bonus.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Referring to the offer made by President Murphy of the Chicago National club, to distribute a bonus of $10,000 among the world's championship team on the day that the league pennant is raised at the West side grounds, providing that the rules of the national baseball commission would allow of it, Ban Johnson, of the national commission, said yesterday:

"Murphy ought to be given the pleasure he seeks. Some way ought to be found for it. I have no doubt that the commission will not enter any violent objection. I don't think there will be any contempt of court proceedings if the bonus is given.

NOT AIMED AT SECRET SERVICE

Tawney Tells Object of Resolution Introduced in House.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Representative Tawney of Minnesota said yesterday that the resolution introduced in the house yesterday providing for the appointment of a special committee of five to investigate the inspection methods of the government, does not contemplate, as has been stated, an inquiry concerning the operations of the secret service.

His desire is to arrive at the facts concerning the appointment of special agents and inspectors, aside from the secret service bureau and he has been engaged in this inquiry for several years. He points out the fact that while in 1896 only 166 of such employes were carried on the roll at a cost of $1,300,000, by 1907 the number had grown to 3,000 and the expense to the government to $9,000,000.

"Indeed," said Mr. Tawney, "there are so many inspectors and special agents abroad in the land that we are rapidly developing a system of espionage into even the domestic affairs of the people of the country, and I think it time the facts should be known."

PAID TO STAY ON WATER WAGON

Andrew Doline Got $6 a Day Instead of $4.

Though Andrew Doline fell from the water wagon after an agreement with the McAlpine Drilling company that he was to receive $4 a day if he drank and $6 a day if he didn't drink, Judge Dibell has decided that Andrew is entitled to the $284 for which he sued. The court finds that though Doline climbed down from the high seat several times, the company disregarded the agreement and paid the $6 a day and the payment of but $39 between Sept. 1 and Nov. 5, 1907, when the company's patience became exhausted, was not justified. Doline was given judgment for $284.

ROBBED BY SOLDIERS.

Night Watchman in New York is Robbed of $53.

New York, Jan. 11.—Tied to a chair, with his outcries stifled by a cloth stuffed down his throat with the muzzle of a pistol, Harry Rawlinson, night watchman for a contracting company in its establishment on West Fifteenth street, was robbed by three soldiers from Fort Hancock, early yesterday. Two of the soldiers were captured and the police say they have confessed to the crime. The prisoners assert, however, that the third man, who escaped, really planned the holdup, went through the victim's pockets and took $53 in cash from the watchman.

The two soldiers gave their names as Charles Hanley of the Ninety-fifth coast artillery and Emil Pflug of the Forty-eighth coast artillery.

Great Benefit Audience.

New York, Jan. 11.—One of the largest audiences in the history of the Metropolitan opera house attended the benefit performances for the benefit of the earthquake sufferers last night. About $25,000 was added to the fund. All of the principal artists of the Metropolitan company took part in the performance.

VISITORS NUMEROUS

New York Filled With Out-of-Town Vacationists.

Bad Blood Between the Bench and Police Department.

New York, Jan. 11.—With the departure of a hundred thousand visiting students, parents, shoppers and members of family reunion parties, Gotham is today closing one of the liveliest holiday seasons in its whole history. Every niche in the hotels, shops, cars, theaters, cabs and restaurants all over the island have been crammed for the last few week with this out of town horde of vacationists. The regular street life of New Yorkers has been practically submerged in the whirl of the visitors about the entire shopping and amusement districts. No less than 10,000 college boys and girls from the homes of the metropolis, it is estimated, have today left town, while almost an equal number from the far sections of the continent have broken up holiday visitation with their parents in this common meeting ground. It has been many a long year since this city has seen such a cheerful stir from abroad as has opened for it the promising year of 1909.

War of Words.

Bad blood between the bench and the police department has always existed in this town; but today the rising clamor of Magistrate Finn and Police Commissioner Bingham is threatening to develop a deadly feud among the men who administer and enforce the law. While "Battery Dan" Finn is volleying stinging sentences over his police court bar at every bluecoat in sight, Bingham is inspiring his force with sullen defiance of the whole judicial tribe by a return fire of pertinent suggestions as to the past of the beligerent Tammany magistrate Wherever court official meets police officer a war of words is rife in every one of the local temples of justice. Neither the former White House major domo nor the former Tammany boss of the battery is considered the man to back down in a matter of this sort, and it is predicted that their spirited squabble will continue to embroil the courts through most of the new year. The law's delays are serious enough in this town without the added impediment of constant personal altercation, and everyone is hoping that some stop may speedily be put to this useless word war.

Succoring the Sick.

That the poor and friendless owe more than 1,500,000 days of free treatment with the best medical and surgical attention to the last ten years' work of one of this city's largest hospitals has been shown here today. In presenting the living monument most fitting to be perpetuated by the American people in the name of Abraham Lincoln, this remarkable record of service to black and white alike has been obtained by leaders in the national movement to endow this Lincoln hospital and home for all time. Over the door of this institution, where almost 500 unfortunates of both races are being cared for and restored to life and health each day, it is proposed to raise the name of the great emancipator with a permanent fund of $500,000, which are already beginning to be received for this Lincoln memorial fund at 475 Fifth avenue. New Yorkers have long known of the great good which this work was spreading all over the country, where 100 colored nurses have been trained and sent to extend its scope, and these figures are only serving to confirm their idea of the magnitude of its usefulness at home.

Household Helps.

With 400,000 consumers jostling one another in their eagerness to scramble for the $9,000,000 which Uncle Sam's highest court has ordered to be rebated among them, the crumpled and worn gas receipt has today become almost common currency all over this town. Fully 500,000 holders of these frayed slips of paper will present them for redemption just as soon as any proivsion for the novel financial transaction can be arranged for by the authorities. For the pure joy of recovering a few dollars from the local gas companies many a man is paying premiums to secure the rebate certificates. Many another is regretting the careless loss of apparently worthless bits of paper, which now might be turned into a pile of pennies. It is safe to say that Gotham has never known a housecleaning more general or thorough than that which is being made today in search of this household treasure town.

Irish Idea.

Half a dozen dejected mules are for the first time threading their way through downtown traffic this week with delivery wagons rolling leisurely in their wake. Imported from their native heath in Ireland, these Irish-Spanish draught animals are an experiment toward making the foreign mule take up the truck horse's burden in the metropolis. While warm Irish hearts are opening to the idea of receiving these products of the old sod, it seems evident that there is more sentiment than speed in the plan. The plucky New York truck team can pick up and whirl any load to its destination in half the time that it is taking these Hibernian beasts to think over the problem of starting. The new imports are proving more of a success as exhibitions than as aids to traffic.

A Horrible Hold-Up.

"About ten years ago my brother was 'held up' in his work, health and happiness by what was believed to be hopeless consumption," writes W. R. Lipscomb of Washington, N. C. "He took all kinds of remedies and treatment from several doctors, but found no help till he used Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles. He is a well man today." It's quick to relieve and the surest cure for weak or sore lungs, Hemorrhages, Coughs, and Colds, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Asthma and all Bronchial affections. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by all druggists.

KAPLAN BLAMES THE LOW WAGES

Force Many Women to Lead a Life of Shame.

Morris Kaplan, local Socialistic leader, in an address in the Kalamazoo hall last evening on "Extermination of the Red Light District and the Economic Causes of the Social Evil," said fallen women were brought to their method of life through the present defective economic system, which withholds from girl workers in industries and commerce, the remuneration due them, and necessary for their maintenance.

In speaking of present conditions in Duluth, he made the statement that he had not heard one minister, or anyone else who has shown himself an antagonist of the red light district, say: "Let us give these girls an opportunity to earn an honest living,' and volunteer-assistance in their behalf. Mr. Kaplan says the good people of the city are content with running the girls out of town and giving them no offer of assistance in the way of a better life.

S.S.S. REMOVES THE CAUSE OF CATARRH

No remedy that does not entirely remove the cause of Catarrh from the blood will ever make a permanent cure of the trouble. Just as long as the circulation remains contaminated with the impurities and catarrhal matters which produce the trouble, the mucous membranes or inner linings of the body will be kept in a state of irritation and disease. Sprays, lotions and other local applications will sometimes temporarily relieve the tight, full feeling in the head, buzzing noises in the ears, uncomfortable, stuffy feeling of the nostrils, and help to loosen the mucus in the throat; but Catarrh is a constitutional blood disorder and until it has been entirely driven from the system there can be no permanent cure. S. S. S. cures Catarrh by removing the cause from the blood. It attacks the disease at its head and by thoroughly purifying and cleansing the circulation, and ridding it of every particle of impurity, and at the same time enriching the blood, allows the inflamed and irritated membranes to heal, improves the general health, and stops every disagreeable symptom. S. S. S. reaches down to the very bottom and leaves no trace of the disease in the system. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free to all who write.

Laughter, Digestion and Health

An eminent Russian physician has stated his opinion that laughter is one of the best means known to science for the correction of Dyspepsia, stomach and nervous diseases.

Laughter, however, in a dyspeptic is like the memory of running brooks and shady glens to the famishing and dying man lost in the desert.

If one could but know all the causes, reasons and origins of Dyspepsia, one would not wonder at a half-heartedness of a dyspeptic's gaiety.

There is a ceaseless call for appetite, food and enjoyment to a dyspeptic, coupled with a morose, morbid belief and knowledge that such a call is mockery and if indulged in will bring discomfort, pain and regret.

Perhaps if it were understood that the digestive system, including mouth, throat and alimentary canal, embracing as it does the stomach, is composed of membranous tissue filled with millions of small nerves, which control added millions of little mouths or suckers. Perhaps if this were known men could more comprehensively understand that to disarrange such a system would mean indeed intense physical pain.

Now suppose that this alimentary canal is a mass of worn-out debilitated nerves and mouths, each suffering excruciating physical pain and discomfort, and suppose such a canal filled with the fumes and foul odors and decayed food from the last meal, and one has a slight idea as to the lack of laughter of a dyspeptic.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets composed of the highest digestive ingredients—one grain of a single ingredient being capable of digesting 3,000 grains of food—relieves the alimentary canal of its onerous duties, assists it along its entire length (30 feet) to perform its routine, imparts strength and buoyancy to the stomach and gives back to the blood a strong, healthy nourishment.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are natural adjunets to digestion. They do not falsely stimulate an already weakened machine, but build up where building is needed and remove where removal is necessary.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have nothing to conceal. Here is what they are made of: Hydrastis, golden seal, lactose and asceptic pepsin. Forty thousand physicians in America and Canada use and prescribe them. They should be used after every hearty meal whether one is a dyspeptic or not.

Every druggist carries them; price 50c. Send us your name and address and we will send you a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

ONE FATALLY INJURED.

Party Driving on Track is Struck by Train.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 11.—A Great Northern engine crashed into a party driving on a railway track from Clyde to Munich. A. A. Newgard, a merchant of Munich and Mandan, was fatally injured, and George Barnes, a liveryman of Munich, was severely bruised. Both horses were killed. J. T. Connolly, a Fargo traveling man, jumped just in time and escaped injury. Newgard was carried for nearly half a mile and Barnes was carried several rods. Newgard was taken to Devils Lake.

NERVY YOUTH CAPTURES ROBBER AT GUN POINT.

Marinette, Wis., Jan. 11.—A bold attempt to rob the ticket office of the St. Paul road was frustrated and the would-be burglar captured, owing to the courage and presence of mind of Operator Frank Noonan, a young man only 18 years old. Noonan was in the office with the lights turned down low. A man entered the waiting room and then began to pry open the ticket office window. Noonan rushed out after him and the would-be robber fled. Noonan, with a revolver, continued the chase for him for over a block. He fired a shot, the man stopped and then at the point of the revolver Noonan marched the man back to the station and notified the police. The prisoner gives his name as Edgar Dodge and says his home is at Winneconne.

Horse Bites Off Ear.

Manitowoc, Wis., Jan. 11.—Herman Roth, a livery stable employe, had his ear taken off by a vicious horse when he entered the stable to feed the animal and both narrowly escaped with his life. Roth was struck by the horse's forefeet and was severely bruised, but was able to crawl from the stable and summon assistance.

Studying for Nurse: Dies.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—A funeral of unusual sadness was conducted here yesterday afternoon from the Baptist church, when Miss May Honeyford, who died Saturday at her home here of typhoid fever, was laid to rest. The young woman was only 18, popular and highly regarded by her friends, and was studying to become a nurse at a local hospital, when she contracted the dread disease.

Attacked by Vengeful Neighbor.

St. Ignace, Mich., Jan. 11.—Attacked by a vengeful neighbor Christmas afternoon and stabbed again and again, James MacFarland, a settler in a little hamlet, twelve miles from here, lies hovering between life and death. The accused assailant, one Hilderbrand, is in the county jail, awaiting the outcome.

The whole surrounding country is now aroused. For some time Hildebrand has been feared. He had often threatened MacFarland, it is charged.

Big Verdict For Eye.

Foley, Minn., Jan. 11.—The jury in the case of J. V. Shaver against the J. Neils Lumber company, tried here, brought in a verdict for $5,000 for the plaintiff. This was an action brought for $6,140 because of the loss of an eye while he was in the employ of the company. He charged negligence.

Rejected Maid Takes Life.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 11.—Despondent over a broken engagement, Miss Cecil Johnson, a pretty restaurant maid, aged 26, drank enough carbolic acid to kill two horses, and died in agony.

COMMENTS ON CATARRH

Giving Excellent Recipe for Its Quick Relief and Cure.

The only logical treatment for catarrh is through the blood. A prescription, which has recently proved so wonderfully effective in hospital work is the following. It is an exceedingly simple mixture, but one that will bring quick results and put the system in a normal condition:

"One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint first-class whiskey." These to be mixed by shaking well in a bottle, and used in tablespoon doses before each meal and at bedtime.

The ingredients can be gotten from any well stock drug store, and easily mixed at home. A bottle of this mixture should be in every family medicine chest on account of the manifold ills that it will cure, being a perfect tonic and system builder, the good results are felt after the first few doses.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

POSTMASTER UNDER CLOUD

Stampseller at Bigfork Said to Be Short in Accounts.

Drink and Carelessness Are Blamed for Anton Lindems' Trouble.

Deer River, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Anton O. Lindems, postmaster of the fourth class at Bigfork, north of here, in Itasca county, is said to be about $600 short in his accounts, part of which has been made up by one of his bondsmen. Lindems, who is about 30 and married, runs a general store at Bigfork and has been postmaster for about three years. A year ago he added a money order service, and the department not receiving a report for the past two months, and no remittances of cash surplus being made to the Duluth depositary, an investigation resulted.

Inspector W. Monro went up to Bigfork last week and inspected the office. It is said he found the office in very poor condition generally.

Drinking to Excess.

It is reported that Lindems has been drinking to excess of late and paid little attention to the office, leaving it and his store business almost wholly to his clerks; that the money order and postal funds and the store money was all kept together, and the using in business of this money is what made the account short with the government, though the postmaster claims he thought there was plenty of money on hand and his help never informed him of any danger of a shortage.

The whole shortage is reported to be a little over $600, and all but $250 of the amount was raised by making collections due the store, and this balance was paid to the inspector in Deer River by Pete Peterson, one of Mr. Lindems' bondsmen.

The amount of the defalcation is very large for a fourth-class office, and as it was made good, Lindems may get off with merely being removed from the office.

LA FOLLETTE'S NEW MAGAZINE

Publication Issued by Wisconsin Senator Makes Its Appearance.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first copy of La Follette's Weekly Magazine, the publication that the senior senator from this state expects to become a sort of a Bryan's Commoner, made its initial bow Saturday.

The motto of the paper is a Biblical quotation, "Ye Shall Know the Truth and the Truth Shall Make You Free." The opening editorial is by Senator La Follette under the head "Claiming Our Privilege to Serve." He says the paper "is founded on the belief that it can aid in making our government represent with more fidelity the will of the people," that great progress has been made, but the battle is yet young. "It will be," he continues, "the longest and hardest ever fought for democracy. In other lands the people have lost. Here we shall win."

Among the contributors to the paper is Lincoln Steffens, who writes on "The Mind of a State," in which he lays down the proposition that "cities and states are jellyfish now. They have life of their own, but no mind."

Senator Jonathan Bourne, Jr., writes on "Honor on Trial in Oregon," in which he discusses the situation in that state.

BIG CHECK RECEIVED.

Calumet & Hecla Pays Fortune in Way of Taxes.

Calumet, Mich. Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Township Treasurer William White received a check for $223,189.18 Saturday from the Calumet & Hecla Mining company as its taxes, and during the week he received $31,191.83 from the Wolverine Mining company. When the treasurer closed his books Saturday night, the last day before the 4 per cent penalty becomes effective, he had received nearly all of the $347,000 taxes to be collected in the village. Today the 4 per cent penalty becomes effective against those who have not paid.

VILLAGE ABOUT DESTROYED.

Town of Randall is Practically Wiped Out.

Little Falls, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Meager reports have been received here of the almost total destruction of the town of Randall by fire a few nights ago. Particulars are not obtainable, as the telephones in the town have been put out of commission.

A train crew passing through the city Friday stated that the village was practically wiped out. They stated that the business section seems to have suffered from the fire to a greater extent than did the residence portion. A few houses are left standing, but the business section is a mass of debris.

POLITICS BEHIND FAILURE.

Suspension of Rugby, N. D., Bank May Develop Scandal.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 11.—The failure of the Andy Jones bank at Rugby is causing some interesting comment here. According to currnet rumors here it has been known at the capitol for months that the bank was in bad shape, and one well defined rumor has it that as an incident to a political debt, in return for the undertaking of the boss at Rugby to line up Pierce county with the marching forces, state funds far in excess of the amount allowed by law were deposited in Jones' bank to keep it going. State Treasurer Bickford, it is reported, objected to assuming charge of the state cash box with things in this shape. The state is protected by a surety bond to the extent of $22,000, but that wasn't good for $50,000 worth of state deposits, and the amount has been gradually reduced, so that the state is probably protected by surety bonds. Other creditors, according to people who claim to be posted, are not likely to fare so well.

TELEPHONE, TOO, TO BE OPERATED

Thief River Falls to Embark Further in Municipal Ownership.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—This city will in all probability continue its policy of municipal ownership of its public utilities by taking steps to secure immediate possession of the local telephone system now owned and operated by one of the largest telephone companies in the Northwest.

It is found that this concern cannot give the long distance connections that the wholesale, banking, milling and other growing business interests demand. To avoid contentions and to aid the city council in settling the vexed question of service by two competing concerns, a public meeting of citizens Saturday evening voted unanimously in favor of the public ownership of the local exchange.

Thief River Falls now owns and operates all the public utilities usually found in an up-to-date city, and the experience in this direction, which extends over a period of from six to eight years, has proven so successful financially and in point of service that this last step has the support of every citizen. The electric lighting plant, which is one of the most modern and well equipped that money can secure, nets the city something like $6,000 annually over and above the cost of extensions, improvements and maintenance. That this same success will attend the acquisition and operation of the local telephone system by the city is the opinion of all.

PORTAGE LAKE CHARACTER.

John Griff, Notoriously Known, Dead in Copper Country.

Hancock, Mich., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The funeral held here Saturday of John Griff closed the chapter in the life of a notorious character for years in this section.

Born in Brazil in 1827, Mr. Griff came to Portage Lake in midde life—reports being that he left his native land because of certain legal complications arising. He never returned or referred to Brazil.

He conducted the old Griff sawmill on the Osceola sands for a number of years, making considerable money at one venture and another and being more or less connected with unsavory episodes and scrapes which annoyed the public generally and for which he served prison sentences at Marquette.

He owned the first steam launch on Portage Lake and his trips up and down the lake were well remembered by the fact that very often following them, the loss of valuables from property along the shores were noted. Whether or not Griff was responsible for the failings charged to him, certain it is that old timers here can relate stories about him and his career which would fill a book.

His career was a decidedly checkered one and few remain to mourn his passing. Nothing is known of his relatives, if he had any, and the funeral services were brief and simple. He left a property estimated at about $3,000, he having not long ago transferred a house and lot to other parties.

MUNICIPAL PLANT PAYS.

Marquette Furnishes Splendid Example of the Principle's Virtue.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—With 1,560 consumers listed on its books, an increase of 165 the past year, Marquette's municipal electric lighting plant is earning more money at the present time than at any previous period in its history.

The net profit for the year is estimated at $32,000, an increase of $2,000 over the record for the preceding twelve months. This showing is in face of the fact that the rates charged for the service are the lowest in the state. However, the plant is operated by water power, and it is managed by a non-partisan board of five business men who serve without pay. With outstanding bonds redeemed, the plant is expected to prove a veritable bonanza for the city.

MANY FROM ESCANABA.

Delta County Metropolis Furnishes Many Students at University.

Escanaba, Mich., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the people of Escanaba are believers in higher education is indicated by the fact that the Delta county metropolis boasts a materially larger enrollment at the University of Michigan than any other city in the upper peninsula. Aside from the Ann Arbor institution, many Escanaba young folks are attending other colleges in various parts of the country. All told, it is estimated, the city has sent to the higher schools this year no less than 125 students. As the population is in the neighborhood of only 12,000, it is believed that the record is not equalled by any other city in the state.

Weak Little Boys

may become fine strong men. Some of the strong men of to-day were sickly boys years ago. Many of them received at their mother's knee. This had a power in it that changed them from weak, delicate boys into strong, robust boys.

It has the same power to-day. Boys and girls who are pale and weak get food and energy out of Scott's Emulsion. It makes children grow.

ARE MARRYING FAMILY.

Cass County Farmer's Three Children Are Wedded.

Walker, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three weddings occurred in the family of F. M. Jenkins, a Southern Cass county farmer, during the past two weeks. A few days ago occurred the marriage of Elmer Jenkins to Miss Helen Hanson. Sunday occurred the marriage of Miss Neille Jenkins to Oliver L. Morrow and Earl Jenkins to Miss Marie Lucivjansky. All the Jenkins boys own good farms in this county, as does also Mr. Morrow.

Daniel Driscoll, who has been at the state sanatorium near Walker, for several months past, left for his home in Minneapolis last wek, completely cured in health.

Herman, the 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Anderson, died Thursday. This is the second child these people have lost in the past few weeks.

It is reported that a good vein of iron ore has been discovered in Southern Cass county, and that County Commissioner Jones is the owner of most of the land.

George Pippen, the local capitalist, is quite ill with diphtheria.

LARGE FARM DEAL.

Over 2,000 Acres Near Fargo Have Changed Hands.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—National Committeeman James Kennedy of Fargo, and his nephew, M. J. O'Conner, formerly of Fargo and now of Salt Lake, are the new owners of the big Leech farm in this county. The big land deal has been closed, being pending for several days. There were three prospective purchasers, and the Leech Bros. had given the new owners an option which was taken.

The amount involved in the transaction is $85,000. There are three sections—or 2,240 acres in the tract.

BIG WISCONSIN SCHEME.

Plan to Save All the Power to the State.

Milwaukee, Jan. 11.—One of the matters of greatest importance to be considered by the legislature this winter is a proposed amendment to the state constitution to permit the commonwealth to issue bonds fo rthe international waterway improvements, and for the conservation of energy for the improvement of the state. The amendment has already been drawn and will be among the first things to be submitted to the legislature.

The intent of the amendment is to enable the development of the waterpowers of the state and the conservation of its forests. While nothing is said of the real purpose of the amendment, it is generally understood that it will mean the ownership of all waterpowers by the commonwealth and their development for the benefit of the public. Under the constitutional limitation the state can incur an indebtedness of only $100,000. The plan implies the expenditure of millions and the making of Wisconsin one of the most important industrial states in the United States.

That quick action is necessary is demonstrated by the fact that private interests are fast acquiring the important waterpowers and are arranging to develop them for private benefit. It is understood that a large number of legislators have already been sounded on this amendment and have promised their support. The right of the state to bond itself will also be pressed. Nothing is known of the forests and the erection of new forests with in the boundaries. It will be claimed that $5,000,000 can be advantageously used for this purpose alone.

WOULD FINE BOSS BARBERS HIRING UNLICENSED MEN.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Proposing that a fine be imposed upon the proprietor of any barber shop giving work to an unlicensed journeyman, the enactment of an amendment to that end will be asked by the state board of barbers' examiners at the present session of the legislature. Under the statute, as it stands at present, while unlicensed barbers are subject to fines, no penalty is provided for employers. It is the estimate of the board that upwards of 4,500 barbers are at work in Michigan, of which number approximately 1,200 are employed in the city of Detroit. Some 250 licenses were issued the past year.

JAIL DELIVERY NIPPED.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 11.—A desperate attempt at jail delivery was perpetrated upon Sheriff Klienstelber Friday evening, but the new sheriff was wide-wide-awake for the prisoners and discovered the work before the plans were all completed, but not any too soon at that. Two bars on a window in the west side of the jail had been sawed completely in two, and it only wanted darkness for the breakers to bend the bars out and make their escape.

PENINSULA BRIEFS

Ishpeming—Mrs. John Anderson died of stomach trouble New Years night at the family residence on Third street. She had resided in this city about forty years. Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons and thre daughters.

Ontonagon—Rockland lodge, No. 108, F. & A. M., will observe the fiftieth anniversary of its installation next Wednesday evening. The occasion will be fittingly and enjoyably celebrated and participated in by a large number of Masons and their families and friends.

Crystal Falls—Charles G. Campbell and Mary Campbell, his wife, have filed a claim for damages with the city council, claiming that the backing up of the water from the power dam has caused their land to be flooded and fifteen acres of valuable land rendered useless thereby. They ask for $2,000.

Ontonagon—After years' of suffering, William Anglim, a well known resident of Ontonagon, died at his home in this village Thursday. Mr. Anglim had been confined to the bed for the past five or six weeks and the immediate cause of his death was due to stomach trouble.

MILITIA TAKE POSSESSION

Of Office of Adjutant General of North Dakota.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Refusal of Adj. Gen. Poole of the North Dakota national guard to recognize the order retiring him from that position and placing Col. Peake of Valley City in charge of the militia, as acting adjutant general, resulted in a detail of four men, under Capt. Henry Murphy of Company A of Bismarck, taking charge of the adjutant general's office, in the capitol this morning. Poole claims that the law under which the order retiring him was issued is unconstitutional and for that reason he refused to turn over the office. A detail from the company secured possession of the office without much stir. Gen. Poole not being there at the time the seizure of the office was ordered by Governor Burke.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The Women's Page has received a communication signed "A Happily Married Girl," the writer, having been impelled to express her views after reading in sorrow the seemingly endless troubles of married folk brought to public view by the recent divirce calendar. There may be two opinions on the advisability of presenting such views as the following in a place where man can freely read, for every single masculine reader will be going around so "chesty" that there will be no living with him. The writer is evidently no follower of Ibsen with his individualistic tendencies for woman, but believes whole heartedly, sincerely, and entirely that woman's sphere is the home, and that the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.

But to the communication of "the Happily Married Girl:"

"To My Married Sisters:

"You have been on my mind for some time, and I have finally decided to write a few lines that may be of benefit to those who believe their married life to be a failure.

"Allowing that there are a few men on terra firma who are too ill-bred to know what love and kindness mean, it is true that we wives have the moulding and control of our families' happiness in our own hands. We can make our home a little paradise of love, peace and contentment, or we can make it the most undesirable place in the world.

"Men are not the scum of the earth, as many women evidently believe. They are noble and kind at heart, and are human the same as we. Therefore, it is our golden opportunity to draw out the good that is in them, and cover the dross with our love, as they know so well how to do for us, if we but give them half a chance.

"If you were a good old chum with your husband, he would delight in treating you to his company. If you did not scold, fret, worry and nag at him, ever-complaining and showing discontent, he would not find his club and the buffet more inviting places for evening visits than the home he has worked so hard to give to you; and where your pride should predominate in making it the coziest, most congenial place in the world for him.

"Be an artist in your house—work. Learn his wishes in regard to the home, and try to form your will to his instead of always demanding his silence while you rule. Remember, it is his home as much as yours.

"Do not let the home duties make of you a drudge. He does not want you to be his slave. So do not blame him if you are not capable of managing your home duties so they will be a pleasure instead of a care. He married you for a joy and refining influence in his home. If you would fulfill his desire, and bring back to your hearthstone the honeymoon days of yore, make your home and husband a daily study. There is no other investment that will pay you such big dividends. In doing this, you will have no time for idle gossip, and parading the streets for the admiration of other men. Keep yourself invitingly clean and neat, and he will think you are the sweetest thing he ever saw. Let him be proud to entertain his company at home, because his wife is so hospitable.

"Learn the value of the dollars and think of the tough knocks he endures to give you these comforts when you are tempted to buy needless things.

"Do not think that anything is good enough for your table and meals, then when company comes, make a great spread. Even it up and make each meal as inviting as though you were enteraining the king. Your husband ought to be of far greater interest and pleasure to you than a dozen kings. He will love you for this. Let him know by little deeds of love that he is always welcome at home and educate yourself to be lonely without him when he is away.

"If he wants to go to a social affair and you cannot go, choose a nice girl friend for his company. Learn to look at these things with a broadminded view, and do not harbor jealousy. By so doing you are only endearing yourself to him. Urge him to occasionally spend an evening with his men friends.

"He may remain away longer than he should, and if so, greet him with a loving embrace, and in your sweetest language tell him how lonely you were for him. Do not scold. His remorse will be punishment enough, and he will try and not neglect you again, because you were so patient and sweet the last time. This is heaping coals of fire.

"Be his counselor in business and pleasure. Send him your sympathy, and bear his burdens, instead of filling his leisure with petty things and society gossip which every man hates. You are the recipient of the fruits of his labors, and should be the magnet at home, dealing out courage and good cheer to his troubled heart, for he married you for a congenial companion.

"Perhaps he has been indifferent toward you in the little tender caresses and may be the romance of sweetheart days has fled. But, perhaps, you were harsh, impatient and thoughtless of him. You did not mean to be, but little worries came, and you let them vex you, instead of bearing them with patience and fortitude. Now can you guess why you are both unhappy, and who is at fault?

"Study to win him back by tactful, patient endeavor. Study how to say sweet things to him. Use your drawing-room manners for your private life with him. Treat him with due consideration. Eliminate everything from your vocabulary but the pleasant, cheery words.

"No matter what the provocation may be, you have no right to scold and be cross. If you do, you will lose the battle every time; but try love and charity, and see how fast you will win.

"Like begets like, and your influence in the right direction will bring back the lover of long ago.

"By exercising good judgment in doing these little things for your home and husband, he will crown your days with love and tenderness. Oh, do it girls, and cheat the divorce courts.

"A HAPPY MARRIED GIRL."

WOMEN WORKERS.

Mrs. Starkweather to Speak of Their Needs.

Mrs. Perry Starkweather, who was one of the honored guests at the Civic banquet which was held Saturday evening, returned yesterday to her home at St Paul. Mrs. Starkweather who is deeply interested in securing the best possible advantages for the women wage earners of Minnesota is desirous of returning to Duluth to speak to the club women and tell them in detail of the work that is being done in Minnesota, what remains to be accomplished and the legislation which is to be brought about in order to best help this large part of Minnesota's population.

Mrs. Starkweather had a ten-minute toast at the banquet and made a deep impression on her hearers with the bright, witty, although deeply serious and keenly pointed talk, which she presented. She wishes, however, to reach more of the women of the city and the local club women will arrange a meeting within the next two or three weeks at which Mrs. Starkweather will be invited to present this subject fully

OBJECTS TO SMOKING.

Anti-Cigarette League Protests to Show Managers.

Frank V. Bruner, who is in Duluth in the interests of Rose Stahl, who comes to the Lyceum Jan. 15 and 16 in "The Chorus Lady," has received many communications from representatives of the Anti-Cigarette league, asking him if the cigarette smoking in the second act of the play cannot be eliminated. The "business" objected to takes place in the second act of "The Chorus Lady," which reveals the dressing room of a New York theater, where half a dozen girls are "making up" for the evening performance of a musical comedy. The young woman who smokes the cigarettes is Miss Marguerite Wheeler, who portrays a blase, cynical type of chorus girl, who sits down near the footlights during the entire act and smokes cigarette after cigarette.

MISS MARGARET WHEELER,

Mr. Bruner, when questioned as to whether or not he would accede to the request, stated that he did not think the fact that a chorus girl smoking cigarettes in a play could work any great harm, and would not therefore take any action in the matter. "Miss Wheeler," he said, "dislikes cigarettes personally, and only takes a few puffs during the act, the remainder of the time simply holding the cigarette in her hand and simulating smoking."

So Miss Wheeler continues to smoke cigarettes during the performances of "The Chorus Lady."

LAST RESPECTS TO FORMER MAYOR

City Hall Will be Closed During Funeral Hour.

The remains of Marcus J. Davis, former mayor of Duluth, who died at Joplin, Mo., last week, will arrive in Duluth Tuesday morning, and funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Masonic temple. They will be in charge of the Masonic order, of which the deceased was a member.

Out of respect to the memory of the departed, Mayor Haven has issued an order to the effect that all offices in the city hall shall be closed tomorrow between the hours of 1:30 and 3:30 o'clock, and it is expected that practically all city officials will attend the funeral. A platoon of police will escort the body to the grave.

Interment will be at Forest Hill cemetery.

DEAN HOWARD'S DEATH.

Coroner Making Rigid Investigation of the Strange Case.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 11.—Coroner Newlen has presented a demand upon President Bell of Drake university to deliver to the jury certain letters found among Dean Howard's effects after his sudden death Thanksgiving day. The letters, the coroner learns, will have an important bearing on the man's demise.

Mrs. Warren Jackson, colored, a servant in the home of Dean Howard, who predicted his death to a number of persons, will be asked to testify as to the presence of certain alleged drugs and medicines in his home. Immediately after Dean Howard's death became known, the woman told stories which, the coroner believes, may lead to clues in his search for the direct cause of the death. A will, also in the possession of President Bell, will be introduced in evidence. Dr. Bice will try to refute the testimony of Dr. Brooks, charging him with administering morphine to his patient in large quantities.

The "Big Sale" Continues All of This Week

For another whole week The BAYHA Store will be the center of attraction to bargain seekers in Furniture, Stoves, Rugs, Carpets and Housefurnishings.

Never before have such GENUINELY LOW PRICES been made in Duluth on such a Mammoth Stock of STRICTLY HIGH-GRADE GOODS.

Because of the abusive and unscrupulous use of superlatives in these days, it is impossible for us to use words that will adequately impress upon you the magnitude and character of this "Record-Breaking" Sale.

A visit to our store and a careful comparison of values and prices will convince you that Bayha's is THE ONE GREAT BARGAIN CENTER at this time.

Rugs and Carpets 1/2, 1/3 and 1/4 Off

ON BUYING TRIP.

C. E. Bassett and E. C. Brown Visit Furniture Markets.

C. E. Bassett and E. C. Brown of French & Bassett's, left yesterday for Grand Rapids, Mich., Chicago and other prominent Eastern furniture manufacturing points on an extended buying tour.

Before leaving Mr. Bassett stated that the French & Bassett store enjoyed the greatest trade in its history during the year 1908, a fact that speaks much for the prosperity of Duluth as well as the prosperity of the store, which has been established here for the past twenty-one years. Mr. Bassett expressed confidence that the coming year will witness excellent trade conditions and, with that in view, the firm will make extnesive purchases along all lines of housefurnishing goods.

MYSTERIOUS MURDER.

Body of Woman Found in Burning Barn in Indiana.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 11.—A mysterious murder was uncovered here yesterday, when the charred body of Mrs. Rosa Ricks, aged 23, the wife of a timber buyer for a local factory, was discovered in the hayloft of a barn in the rear of the residence of Thomas Wilson. The city firemen found the remains after a fire, which practically destroyed the structure, had been extinguished. Indications are that the woman was done away with and the murderer expected to cover up his crime by burning her body. The scene of the fire is but two blocks from the murdered woman's home.

The husband of the woman, who separated from her a week ago, and Levi Sutton, who is charged by Ricks with alienating his wife's affections, have been placed under arrest. A cab driver was found who states he drove Mrs. Ricks and a strange man to the barn at 11 o'clock Saturday night.

PUTS CLOTHES IN THE FIRE

John Hagadore Will Probably be Returned to Fergus Falls.

John Hagadore, an old soldier 76 years old, living at Colbyville, will probably be returned to the state insane asylum at Fergus Falls. He was sent there about two months ago, but was parole dand returned to his home. Now his insanity has assumed alarming aspects again and his wife appealed to he probate court his morning.

The old man has been in asylums more or less for the past two or three years. He was struck on the head by a tree some years ago and that is supposed to be the cause of his insanity. He was sent to the state hospital at Mendota, Wis., about two years ago, and when he returned home, he had improved, but had not entirely recovered. This fall, he showed alarming symptoms again and was sent to Fergus Falls on a commitment from the probate court.

On his return home a short time ago, he again showed improvement, but his ailment returned and now he is in about the same condition as when sent to Ferrus Falls, his wife says. He tears up his clothes and puts them in the fire, is suspicious of visitors and will not allow them in the house, throws sticks of wood and other articles around at random, and complains that he is in danger from members of his family.

Suffragists Indorsed.

New York, Jan. 11.—At a meeting yesterday of the Central Federated Union, a deputation of woman suffragists, headed by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, was heard. The union, after listening attentively to the cause as propounded by Mrs. Catt and others, voted unanimously to give the women their indorsement and they were supplied with credentials, with which to obtain the 200,000 signatures of members of organized labor in this city.

Will Install Officers.

Duluth council, No. 443, Knights of Columbus, will have an installation of the new officers for the coming year tomorrow evening. Leo Ball, district deputy, will be the installing officer. A smoker will follow the business of the evening. The officers to be installed are: Dr. E. W. Fahey, grand knight, re-elected; F. J. O'Donnell, deputy grand knight, re-elected; F. J. Dacey, chancellor, re-elected; J. T. Dunphy, financial secretary; J. E. Mannheim, recorder; J. D. Mahon, treasurer; John H. McCall, lecturer; T. E. Witte, warden; B. J. Daugherty, inside guard; James S. Lynn, outside guard; M. J. Luby, advocate; trustees, C. L. Twohy, T. J. Monahan and A. V. Holahan.

HADLEY TO FOLLOW IN FOLK'S FOOTSTEPS.

Jefferson City, Mo., Jan. 11.—Governor Herbert Hadley, Republican, was inaugurated today and in his inaugural address served notice on the liquor interests of Missouri that the Sunday lid would be kept down.

WIDESPREAD REFORM FOR NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Sweeping reforms of more or less national interest affecting the criminal classes in the District of Columbia are recommended in a report transmited to congress by President Roosevelt today by the commission appointed under the act of congress of May 26 last to investigate the subject of the commission, which is unsparing in its condemnation of the conditions in the federal jail, the district workhouse and other penal and correctional institutions in this city. The overcrowding of the jail and the workhouse, the commission declared to be a stench in the nostrils of everyone acquainted with the situation. In one institution 1,000 out of 1,600 inmates are maintained in absolute idleness and with no opportunity to exercise and it is stated that in most cases two or three are confined to a single cell not large enough for one, and their meals are passed through the bars in a tin can.

Jeweled Novelties at Half.

J. M. Glidding & Co. have placed on sale all jeweled novelties, fans and fancy leather goods at half price. Staple leather goods and neckwear at one-third off, and very great reductions on Perrin's first quality kid gloves.

What Retail Markets Offer.

Macaroni, Minnesota grown, 10 cents a pound.

Macaroni, imported from Italy, 15 cents a pound.

Cheese, 17 to 23 cents a pound.

Tomatoes, 10 to 15 cents a can.

Bacon, about 30 cents a pound.

Liver, 10 cents a pound.

Macaroni and cheese is almost an ideal food. Of course, if you ask us, it's easy enough to tell of lots of other things we like better, but for the hard worked individual who tries to present palatable things that are nutritious and that don't cost more than one can afford, and which the collected family will not turn down collectively, nor yet too often individually, a thing that will supply the needs of the human machine and at the same time not be so wholesome that it's objectionable—wholesome things as a rule are so very unpleasant and blatantly virtuous—anyhow macaroni is it. There is none finer any place in the world than that made out of Minnesota grown wheat. Italians may concoct a more subtle dish with their bay leaves and paprika and so on, but the Minnesota brand is the best that can be bought anywhere.

WHEAT HAS WEAK TONE

Long Lines Are Dumped on Market During Last Hour.

Flax Is a Point Higher at the Close in Duluth Market.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 11.—Long lines of wheat were dumped on the market during the last hour today and the closing prices on this side of the Atlantic were weak.

The selling was so general that it was impossible for the market to absorb all the offerings and prices quickly fell off. Armour and Logan were reported to be dumping much wheat in the Chicago market and the rest of the traders there and in other markets quickly fell in line.

The visible supply of wheat decreased 1,280,000 bus, and is now 50,479,000 bushels against 40,699,000 bushel ss. year ago.

Liverpool closed ½d lower. Budapest ⅛c higher. Berlin ⅛c higher.

The May option closed 1c lower in Duluth, ⅞c lower in Chicago, ⅞@1c lower in Minneapolis and St. Louis, 1@1⅛c lower in New York, ⅞c lower in Kansas City and ½c lower in Winnipeg. Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: "Wheat—There was a quiet undertone to the speculative wheat at the opening, although values were ¼d to ¾d lower. During the morning, offerings became larger and values lost an additional 1¼d, with the market very dull. Pressure resulted from the weaker American cables on Saturday, cheaper La Plata offerings and a bearish official Russian report. The world's shipments for the week were larger than expected, and this also helped to depress values. At mid-day, the market was dull and ¼d to ⅝d lower than Saturday.

"Corn opened ¼d lower and lost an additional 1⅛d during the morning. The weaker American cables, decline in wheat and the very hearty shipments to Liverpool caused the pressure."

Car receipts at Duluth were 36 against 81 last year, and at Minneapolis 247 against 234 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 283 against 615 last year. Chicago received 14 against 28 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 507,000 bus, last year 360,000 bus. Shipments 125,000 bus, last year 96,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 650,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 572,000 bus, last year 1,190,000 bus. Shipments 379,000 bus, last year 458,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 248,000 bus.

In Duluth, May wheat opened, unchanged at $1.09⅜, declined to $1.09, rallied to $1.09⅛@⅜, went off to $1.08⅛ and closed there, a loss of 1c from Saturday. July wheat was inactive and closed 1c lower than Saturday at $1.08 bid.

Durum wheat closed ¼c lower, and cash spring wheat was selling at the May price for No 1 northern.

Flax was up a point at the close here. May flax opened ¼c higher at $1.55, advanced to $1.56, declined to $1.55⅝, rallied to $1.56 and closed at $1.55⅞, a gain of 1c over Saturday. The price, $1.56, makes a new high mark for this crop.

Oats closed ⅛c lower and barley ½c off.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Array of Bearish News Greets the Wheat Traders.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 11.—An array of bearish news greeted the traders in the wheat market here today, and, in consequence, an easy tone was manifested at the start, prices at the opening being unchanged to ¼c lower compared with the previous close. World's shipments for the week were larger than has been generally expected, scattered rains being reported in Indi, and a preliminary estimate on the wheat crop of Russia indicated a considerable increase over that of last year. Prices, however, held steady early in the day owing to a good demand for the cash grain here. May opened at $1.06⅝@⅞ to $1.06⅞, sold up to $1.07@⅛ and then reacted to $1.06⅞. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 297 cars, against 358 cars last week and 50- cars a year ago.

Additional weakness developed late in the day and selling was general. Prices dropped more than 1c from the high point of the day, May declining to $1.05⅞. The close was weak at almost the bottom, May being ⅞c off at $1.06.

Reports of extremely light acceptances of corn in the country had a bullish effect on the market for that grain, but the volume of trade was not large. Prices at the start were a shade to ⅛c higher, May opening at 61⅝ to 61⅝@¾c. Local receipts were 203 cars, with two of contract grade.

The corn market was fairly steady the remainder of the day. The low point for May was reached at 61½c. The close was easy with May a shade lower at 61c.

Cash interests were fairly active bidders for oats, causing moderate firmness early in the day. Offerings were light. May opened a shade higher at 51⅜@⅞c and sold at 51⅞@52c. Local receipts were 13 cears.

Provisions were easy on a decline in live hogs. Prices at the opening were unchanged to 5c lower.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.06; July, 97½c; September, 92⅜c. Corn—January, 57½c; May, 61½c; May, 61⅝@¾c; September, 61⅞c. Oats—January, 50¼c. May, 51¾c; July, 46¼@⅜c; September, 39¾c. Pork—January $16.30 bld; May, $16.60. Lard—January, $9.40; May, $9.60; July, $9.72½@$9.75. Ribs—January, $8.47½; May $8.71½; July, $8.85@8.87½; rye, cash, 76@¾c; May, 77½c bld. Barley cash, 61½@65c. Timothy, March, $4.10. Clover, March, $9.60. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Cold Weather and Light Receipts Furnish the Features.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 11.—Cold weather and light receipts of grain were features in the wheat as the week opened. Winnipeg got only 71 cars against 240 a year ago, Duluth 36 against 81 and Minneapolis 247 compared with 534. Despite this small movement, Minneapolis stock continued to increase and for two days there was an uncertain mood and in rather narrow range. Near the close there was heavy selling and a sharp decline. May opened at $1.08⅛@1.08¾; high, $1.08¾; low, $1.07⅞; close, $1.07⅞. July opened at $1.08⅝; high, $1.08⅞@1.09; low, $1.07¾@1.07¾; close, $1.07¾@1.07⅞. Cash demand was good at 1c over May for No. 1 northern and 1c under for No. 2, and as trading progressed it grew stronger, with sales at 1¼c over for No. 1 both spot and to arrive. Millers were better buyers and one company bought about 200,000 bus in all positions, some to arrive. Close: No. 1 northern spot and to arrive, $1.08⅝; No. 2 spot, $1.06⅜@1.06⅝; to arrive, $1.06⅜. No. 3 wheat, $1.03⅞@1.04¾; No. 3 yellow corn, 55½@55¾c. No. 3 white oats, 48⅝@49⅜c. No. 2 rye, 67¾@71¾c.

Barley receipts 64 cars against 177. Shipments 44. The market was easy to start and most of the sales were at prices ½c under the values of Saturday. Close 57½@60½c.

Flax receipts 17 cars against 71. Shipments two. One cent over Duluth May was the price and demand was good. Close $1.56¼.

Millstuff shipments 1,797 tons. Millers quote bran in bulk at $18.75@$19.00.

Flour receipts, although quoted unchanged, are not strong and a decline, in line with the weakness in wheat, seems probable. On the other hand, business seems to be getting better, sales are increasing somewhat and shipments are larger. Shipments, 46,146. First patents, $5.45@5.65; second patents, $5.30@5.50; first clears, $4.00@4.10; second clears, $2.95@3.10.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR

"Inventor of Durum Wheat" Visits the Duluth Board.

Flax the Highest It Has Been Since 1901.

M. E. Carleton, cerealist for the department of agriculture and known as "the inventor of durum wheat," spent the morning on the floor. He is on his way back to Washington after a visit to the government's experimental flour mill at Fargo, N. D.

"I have been taking a look at the work which is being done at the small, experimental flouring mill operated at Fargo by the department of agriculture," said Mr. Carleton. "The mill is a small one, but some interesting experiments are being carried on there, ascertaining the qualities of the different grades of wheat and making this or that investigation, which might be of interest to the department and the farmers."

Speaking of the growing of durum, or macaroni wheat, in this country, Mr. Carleton said that Nebraska, Western Kansas and Colorado were raising more durum this year than ever before. He places the annual crop of durum in the United States at 50,000,000 bus.

Mr. Fitch, formerly of Duluth, but now in charge of the government experimental mill at Fargo, is also here. He said that tests of the "Alaska wheat"—of which there has been considerable talk this year—had recently been made at the mill and that the quality of the flour made from it was inferior to that made from wheat grown in the Western states, and much inferior to that made from the spring wheat grown in this part of the country. Mr. Fitch seemed not at all favorably impressed with Alaska wheat.

May flax sold at $1.56 in the Duluth market today. This price is the highest flax has sold at here since 1901, when it reached the neighborhood of $1.60 in the local market. In 1900, flax reached $1.88 in the Duluth market.

The visible supply of corn increased 159,000 bus., and is now 7,324,000 bus., against 4,694,00 bus. a year ago.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

At Close, Early Liquidation Taking Out All the Snap.

Rumor of Harriman's Serious Illness Had a Bearish Effect.

New York, Jan. 11.—Sharp declines in quotations for Erie Railroad and several other stocks were caused today by rumors that E. H. Harriman is seriously ill. At Mr. Harriman's office it was said that the rumors were without foundation and it was expected he would be at his desk tomorrow.

New York, Jan. 11.—The stock market showed an easy tone in the opening dealings today, only a small sprinkling of gains contrasting with the prevailing declining tendency. Chesapeake & Ohio and Interborough-Metropolitan preferred fell 1, Union Pacific, St. Paul, New York Central, Erie first preferred and Brooklyn Transit large fractions.

Buying orders at the decline started a brisk advance. There was some pressure against the leading stocks when they got back to Saturday's closing prics, despite the strength shown by Southern Pacific and American Smelting.

Distrust of the conditions of the market left it unstable and vulnerable to attack the bears had quick success in forcing a break in prices. The Erie shares were demoralized, the common falling 2¾ points the first preferred 6¾ an dthe second preferred 4. New York Central lost 2½. Union Pacific 2, Illinois Central and Bethlehem Steel 1¾, and St. Paul, Reading and Missouri Pacific 1½. The active list generally was down in the neighborhood of a point. There was some rebound but the demand died down quickly as prices rose again. Bonds were irregular.

Price fluctuations were mostly unimportant during the latter part of the day. The earlier liquidation had taken all of the snap out of the market and speculation was carried on in a desultory manner. Erie first preferred rallied 4 points from the lowest.

The market closed rather heavy and dull. Losses were pretty well made up in the covering movement by shorts in the latter part of the day. Stocks which had been strong early also rose again to their best prices. The demand became dull toward the end of the session and allowed prices to droop again.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street. Closing prices are bid.

NOW THE ONE BEST PURCHASE ON THE ENTIRE AMERICAN SECURITIES LIST.

Listed on the New York Curb, Boston Curb, and San Francisco Stock Exchange, and Still Selling at Only a Fraction of Its Real Vaiue. It Promises to Earn Enormous Stock Market Profits and Dividends for Investors.

Never in the history of mining shares speculation, East or West, has the American investment public been afforded an opportunity to buy into a great gold mining enterprise an assured profit making basis as that now offered in Rawhide Coalition at 67c to 70c per share—it's present market quotation. The chances of rolling up enormous profits in Rawhide Coalition in a short period now appear to be overwhelmingly greater than by an investment in any other security, railroad, industrial or mining of the entire American securities list, and I urgently advise immediate purchase at anything near at prevailing quotations for the biggest stock market and dividend profit ever made by investors in their career.

HAS NO PEER IN THE WEST

Born in February, 1908, the Rawhide Coalition Mines company has beaten every Nevada gold mine record for quick development. Not in Goldfield nor Tonopah nor Ely nor any other Nevada mining camp could any one company boast of the following: In the first 11 months of Rawhide Coalition's career $100,000 has been spent for mining machinery with which to open the property. Twenty-one machine hoists of an average of 20-horse power each have been installed and are in operation. Approximately more than $500,000 has been spent in exploring and developing the ore bodies. Two miles of underground work has been done. More money is being spent to develop the property this month. More miners are at work, and more underground work is being done than in any other month of the company's career. So great is the ore showing on a single leaser ground of only about 600 feet square, in a total company acreage of nearly two-thirds of a mile square, that this leaser has ordered a mill of 75 tons per day capacity to treat its ore alone.

Of a capitalization of 3,000,000 shares the company has still a reserve of 700,000 shares intact unissued and unsold with which to provide itself with development funds, mills, etc., when the leasers shall have discontinued next year, and it has money in its treasury now. The company has practically been on a self-sustaining basis from its inception, the royalties received from leasers being at all times sufficient to defray current expenses during the exploratory and development period. Ninety-five per cent of the money spent in development and proving up the ore bodies has come out of the pockets of the leasers. High grade ore has already been shipped to the smelters from nine separate and distinct workings on the property, and ore of commercial value has been disclosed in not less than 15 workings. It is the opinion of President E. W. King, the famed Montana gold mine magnate, that there is already in sight on company ground, without any scientific endeavor having been made as yet to block out ores for purpose of measurement, sufficient ore to keep a 225-ton per day mill busy for years. On ore already in sight the net earning capacity of the company at the age of 11 months is estimated at $700,000 per year when proper milling facilities shall have been installed. Of an issued capitalization of 2,800,000

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—

WHEREAS Default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, bearing date the 29th day of May, 1908, made, executed and delivered by Albert G. Habhegger, as mortgagor, to Thomas A. Gall, as mortgagee, given to secure the payment of the sum of Thirty-eight Hundred Eighty Dollars ($3,880.00) and interest (being a part of the purchase price of the premises therein described) according to the conditions of eight (8) certain promissory notes bearing even date with said mortgage made by the said Albert G. Habhegger to the order of the said Thomas A. Gall, each of said notes bearing interest at the rate of six (6) per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the first day of each December and June thereafter, which said mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 2nd day of June, 1908, at 2 o'clock, 45 minutes, P. M., in Book 236 of Mortgages, on page 26; and

WHEREAS The default hereinbefore mentioned consists in the failure to pay the interest on said notes falling due December 1, 1908, amounting to the sum of One Hundred Seventeen Dollars and Seventy Cents ($117.70) and the mortgagee has elected, by reason of said default and as authorized by the terms of said mortgage, to declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due; and

WHEREAS There is claimed to be due and is due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of Four Thousand Dollars and Thirty Cents ($4,000.30) principal and interest, and also the sum of Seventy-five Dollars ($75.00) attorney's fee provided for in said mortgage, and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof;

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statutes in such cases made and provided said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale by the Sheriff of said St. Louis County of the premises described in said mortgage and situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, to-wit: Blocks twenty-five (25), twenty-six (26), twenty-seven (27), twenty-eight (28), thirty-seven (37), thirty-eight (38), thirty-nine (39), forty (40), forty-one (41), forty-two (42), forty-three (43), forty-four (44), Gray's Addition to Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, together with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining to the highest bidder for cash at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the City of Duluth, in said County of St. Louis, on Wednesday, the 20th day of January, 1909, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage with interest, costs, expenses of sale and said attorney's fee.

Dated December 5, 1908.

"ETHICALLY MARRIED."

Two Workers in Social Settlement Make Simple Declaration.

New York, Jan. 11.—According to announcement made here last night, Dr. James H. Hamilton, head worker in an East side university settlement, and a well-known writer on economic and sociological themes, was "ethically mrarried" yesterday to Miss Etta Brodski, one of the associate workers in the settlement and a teacher in a Brooklyn public school. The ceremony was performed by John Elliott, head worker in another settlement. The ceremony is stated to have been a simple declaration of the pair to accept each other as husband and wife, each promising to love and honor the other. Dr. Elliott then pronounced the pair man and wife. A marriage license was obtained at the city hall earlier in the day.

WORK VERY IMPORTANT

Revaluation of City Buildings Brings Out Gross Injustices.

Council Will be Asked for Additional $4,000 Appropriation.

City Assessor Rakowsky has now made a good start on the work of revaluing buildings of the city, and it is expected that with the $1,000 appropriated for the purpose by the council, he will be able to demonstrate the need of a further appropriation, so that the whole city may be covered.

Mr. Rakowsky asked for $5,000, but only one-fifth of that amount was granted. Of course, this is not sufficient to carry on a revaluation of structures all over the city, but the assessor hopes that such good results will be shown by this first expenditure, that no further difficulty will be met in securing the remainder of the desired appropriation.

Mayor Haven and some of the aldermen are heartily in sympathy with the move. Already men in the employ of the department have proven that in some cases the assessed valuations are far too high, and in others far too low. The plan is to equalize the valuation, so that all will be assessed a just and proportionate share.

One case in point is where a building assessed at $265 is really valued at $1,750. Even on a 33 1-3 per cent basis, this valuation is far too small. It is claimed that there are some buildings which have not been assessed at all.

One man is going over all the building permits, to get a line on the new buildings, another is filing the valuations, and another is copying the assessment books and putting them in shape. It will require some little time before even the work provided for in the $1,000 appropriation is completed.

FIRE CAUSES DURING YEAR

Twenty - Three Blazes Started by Sparks From Locomotives.

In the exhaustive annual report of Fire Chief Black, it is interesting to note the causes of fires during the year 1908. Unknown causes led the list, with ninety-seven. Chimney fires came next, with 39, and overheadted chimneys, exclusive of the regulation chimney fires, third, with twenty-seven.

Blazes started in twenty-four piles of rubbish, each case making a run of the department necessary, and in some instances inflicting considerable damage in and about buildings of the city. Twenty false alarms were responded to. There were eighteen grass fires needing the attention of the department, and twenty-three brush fires calling for a run of the firemen.

The old combination of boys and matches started four fires. Sparks from locomotives started twenty-three fires, showing the necessity of some protection against sparks over locomotive smokestacks. Factory smokestacks started two fires.

Other causes of fires were: Overheated stoves, seven; overheated stove pipes, eight; overheated chimneys, two; overheated grease, two; lamps upset, three; lamps exploded, two; hot cinders, two; heat from ranges, two; defects in chimneys, four.

NEWBERRY'S NEW SCHOOL.

Fifty Thousand Dollar Structure in Michigan Town in Use.

Newberry, Mich., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Newberry's new school building was opened this morning, when the pupils and teachers assembled to resume their studies after the Christmas vacation.

A crew of men have been hard at work for the past two weeks, putting in double time, so as to finish and install the furniture during vacation. The building is of brick and cost $40,000, and when other equipment is put in and the assembly hall finished, it will reach $50,000. The contract was filled by the Foster construction company of Milwaukee. H. G. Warne is superintendent of schools and the school has grown and prospered during his five year's terms.

The upper peninsula hospital for the insane has just completed a handsome administration building, which is now being occupied by Supt. Campbell and physicians in charge. The building and one cottage were erected by the Foster Construction company at an expense of $80,000. The hospital has over 700 patients.

FREE CONCERT.

Welsh Music the Feature of a Delightful Program.

The eleventh free concert was given at the Masonic temple yesterday afternoon. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather some chairs were needed to accommodate the patrons, who enjoyed a delightful program, in which, following out the general plan of giving the folk music of the different countries a place, that of Wales was the particular feature, and four Welsh songs were sung by Miss Florence Hyland, who took Miss Sjoselius' place at a day's notice.

Welsh music is generally slow in movement, touching and harmonious, and the selections, "The Ash Grove," the beautiful "All Through the Night," the "Bells of Aberdovey" and "Stars in Heaven," were sympathetically sung and were typical of the music of that peculiar people. Owing to the indisposition of Miss Sjoselius the songs to be sung in the Welsh language were omitted.

The program of organ music was especially strong. The "Siegfried" selection was not as well adapted to illustrate the music of that portion of the trilogy as some others, but other arrangements could not be made in time, but the other numbers were of a high grade and were well brought out by the organ. In addition to the organ number containing the Welsh music, the "Grande Offertoire de St. Cecile," one of the finest of Batiste's many fine organ pieces; Verdi's "Rex Tremendae," a portion of his "Requiem Mass," a brilliant arrangement of selections from "Faust;" and Auber's masterpiece, "Masaniello," were played.

Arrangements have been made whereby, in the near future, Norwegian music will be given the prominent place with the Normanna Singing society furnishing the vocal portion of the program.

It is probable that Hungarian music will take the center of the stage next Sunday, with some folk music and Listz' Hungarian rhapsody, No. 2. Selections from Wagner's "Gotterdammerung" will end the "Ring" series.

AN OLD BILL

Reaches Board of Public Works After Nine Years.

At the meeting of the board of public works today, a bill for work performed in January, 1900, covering an item of $39.06, was presented by the board of water and light commissioners. It was for repairing a break in the water main inside the curb line at the city hall.

The water board contended that the board of public works should pay this bill, and wrote rather a sharp letter in saying so. The board got busy over the telephone, and soon convinced Manager Case that it was up to his department to foot the bill, and he asked for its return. The thing has been hanging fire now for nine years.

DULUTH CURLERS ON HAND AT ST. PAUL.

DIES IN LA CROSSE.

Former Duluth Priest Passes Away in Wisconsin City.

Father Stroka, a former Duluth Polish priest, died Sunday in La Crosse, Wis.

Father Stroka was well and favorably known in this city and the news of his death will be read with sincere regret by his former parishioners.

In 1886, when Bishop McGolrick first came to Duluth, Father Stroka was already here and a warm friendship sprang up between the two men.

The bishop was greatly grieved this morning when he was informed over the telephone of the death of the former Duluth priest, and spoke of him in the highest terms. "He was a good and capable worker and was popular with the parishioners in Duluth," said the bishop.

He continued his work here from 1886 until 1891, going directly from here to La Crosse.

DEVICE FOR UNLOADING LOGS IS AGAIN TESTED

AFTER THE SPILL.

THE LOADED CARS.

Saturday afternoon Frank Shillin made another "spill" of a carload of logs at the yards of Scott-Graff Lumber company. Representatives of the Duluth, Minnesota & Northern railway, and its master mechanics, the president of the National Iron Works, Z. D. Scott of the Scott-Graff Lumber company, a party of lumbermen from West Superior, J. C. Mullery and representatives of many local and outside manufacturing companies, were present and saw a tier of logs cleared from the car in three minutes and the whole car cleared in nine minutes by the watch. The "spill" was an entire success. As one of the experts said: "That is as good as any one could ask for," which seemed to express the general opinion of all present.

The first view above is a snap shot taken of the logs on the cars, and the second, a view of the car cleared, with the stakes replaced and all parts of the device in place as when the car is loaded. Mr. Shillin intends to continue to test the invention until the public become thoroughly informed as to its method of working, and its value as a time and money saver, and safeguard against accidents.

The load of wood sent last week, and that the family can get along comfortably on the money he is able to earn, without any assistance from the outside. The man was out of work for a time, and all the sickness was a severe strain upon his resources, but he says it is not by any means a case of destitution, and that he is able to support his family himself and wants no assistance.

The Age of Progress.

We live in an age of progress. "Former things" have literally "passed away," and instead of meekly submitting to calamities as messengers sent from above to chasten us, we have learned to look about for a reasonable cause of the trouble, and will take the center of the stage next Sunday, with some folk music and Listz' Hungarian rhapsody, No. 2. Selections from Wagner's "Gotterdammerung" will end the "Ring" series. If your nearest dealer or be supplied by Duluth branch, Minneapolis Brewing company.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND THANKED BY THE POPE.

Rome, Jan. 11.—Pope Pius yesterday received Archbishop Ireland in private farewell audience. His holiness expressed to the archbishop his admiration of and gratitude to the American people for the prominent part they are taking in giving aid to the earthquake sufferers, saying: "America always is first." The pointiff authorized Archbishop Ireland to convey the apostolic benediction to the American people.

AMERICANS WHO ARE NOW SAFE AT PALERMO.

Rome, Jan. 11.—United States Consul Bishop at Palermo has telegraphed the American embassy here giving the following list of Americans as being safe there:

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Frazer, Miss Grant, Winfield Robbins, Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox and Dr. Wilcox, Samuel Estoques and wife, Mrs. Dughton and children, Mrs. Higgins and F. E. Higgins and son, Mrs. Cameron and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Goodwin, Mrs. Nimisk and son, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henderson, Mr. and Miss De Guerine, Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Clinton, I. N. Himingway, R. W. Jordan, the Misses Eppes, Mrs. Hunt and daughters, and Miss Breek.

Experiments on Prisons.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 11.—Prominent criminologists and alienists throughout the country are interested in the experimental work of Dr. Henry Upson of this city, who believes that the criminal instincts as well as many nervous disorders and even insanity are caused in numerous instances by defective teeth. Dr. Upson will, during this week, begin experiments upon prisoners at the workhouse. The series of experiments will extend over six months and the results will be embodied by Dr. Upson in a monograph addressed to the medical profession.

Entertained by Chile.

Talcahuan, Chile, Jan. 11.—The officers of the United States Pacific fleet are still being royally entertained here at private receptions and tennis parties, and with banquets aboard the Chilean war vessels. The Americans are reciprocating by giving dinners on their ships. A picnic was given the visitors on Quiriquina island yesterday, under the auspices of the Chilean naval officers. Numerous ladies attended the function.

Fight Over Prohibition.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 11.—Over four carloads of anti-Prohibitionists, bearing a petition to the legislature protesting against the proposed statewide Prohibition law, left here last night for Nashville. The petition is signed by over 9,000 people, including every banker and practically all the larger manufacturers of the city. Nearly two carloads of temperance people also left on the same train, and will present their side of the question.

Matos May Be Arbiter.

Willemstad, Jan. 11.—Rumors are in circulation here to the effect that the Venezuelan government has cabled to Gen. Manuel A. Matos, who is now in Paris, to stay there, and that it is the government's intention to charge Gen. Matos with the task of settling the controversies between Venezuela and France and Holland, in case those governments will not accept Former Foreign Minister Jose De J. Paul as the arbiter.

WEST END

ANNUAL INSTALLATION.

Beta Council of Modern Samaritans to Make Merry.

Beta council No. 2, Modern Samaritans, which now has a membership of over 600, will make merry in Columbia hall this evening, when the annual installation of officers will be held.

The installation and business session will be followed by dancing, and members of the ladies' auxiliary will serve refreshments.

The officers who will be installed are: C. E. Dice, good samaritan; John Hegland, vice good samaritan; Reuben Johnson, financial scribe; Joe Miller, scribe; Mrs. A. Farrington, lady good samaritan, and Mrs. J. B. Brunscon, lady vice good samaritan.

Will Play Basketball.

Encouraged by the success with which their indoor baseball team has met, the members of the Young Men's Sodality of St. Clement's Catholic church are going to organize a fast basketball team. Two teams will be formed among the members, and they will play a number of practice games together and the victor in the series will be sent out to meet other teams.

The Sodality, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon, also decided to go in four amateur theatricals, and will probably give a play on St. Patrick's day.

West End Shortrails.

The Bema club will hold its regular meeting tomorrow evening in Dr. Oredson's office. The subject of the debate will be: "Resolved, That Capital Punishment Should Be Abolished."

Miss Hilda Miller will entertain the Tabitha society of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church tomorrow evening.

The Epworth league of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church will give a literary program in the church parlors tomorrow evening.

The Ladies' Aid society of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. John Sorenson of Piedmont avenue.

Gust Carlson has returned to his home at Kelsey, Minn., after a visit in the West end with Alfred Boman.

BOGUS BANK PAPER.

Suspended Brainerd Concern Said to Have Been Stung.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The closing of the Security State bank of this place last week is said to have been caused by the closing of the Barton, N. D., state bank and the First National bank of Rugby, N. D. Andy Jones, the cashier of the Rugby National bank and president of the Barton institution is missing and such alleged bogus paper has been found.

Bank Examiner Divine, who is in charge of the Security State bank pending the arrival of Public Examiner S. S. Schafer today admitted that the Security State bank has $20,000 of the paper of these banks and that its value is largely a matter of doubt. Public Examiner Schafer is expected here this afternoon and it is thought that he will be able to make a statement for the public tonight.

TRIBESMEN IN PERSIA START A REVOLUTION.

Berlin, Jan 11.—A dispatch received here from Teheran says that leaders of the Bakhtari tribesmen have occupied Ishahan and issued a proclamation calling upon the people to elect representatives to an independent legislature within three days.

Prince Firman Firma, in command of the government troops, will be sent against Ishahan. The secession of Ishahan is considered as final and the political status there is similar to that at Tabriz.

Credit Men to Meet.

The Jobbers' Credit association of Duluth will hold its annual meeting at the Commercial club Tuesday evening. The meeting will be preceded by a banquet, which will begin at 6:15.

Fred R. Salisbury, credit man for the Salisbury-Satterlee company of Minneapolis, will address the meeting, as will also Frank P. Nixon of the Paine & Nixon company, and Alderman A. G. McKnight.

The Duluth Credit Men's association was established four years ago. There are ninety-two members in the association, and it is expected that most of them will be present at Tuesday evening's meeting.

The Condemned Night Riders.

Jackson, Tenn., Jan 11.—The six night riders, sentenced to death at Union City Saturday, and two others sentenced to twenty years in the state penitentiary, have been placed in jail here and will be held in close confinement to await the action of the state supreme court, which will meet in this city next April.

Shot by Burglars.

Macon, Ga., Jan. 11.—In a fight with burglars early yesterday, Marshal J. B. Rickey of Clarence, a town seat of Macon, was shot and killed and his son, Sam, was shot in the side of the face. Posses are searching for the burglars.

Boy Robbed a Bank.

Joplin, Mo., Jan. 11.—Charged with looting the Noel State bank of Noel, forty miles south of here, Oliver P. Billings, aged 10 years, was arrested here yesterday by Sheriff Carnell, culminating a five weeks' chase. The aid entered the bank through a rear window while Cashier Kissler was at his noon-day lunch, and looted the cash drawer of it sentire contents, $92. The boy, in his confession, bragged of taking the money.

One Killed, Eight Injured.

Panama, Jan. 11.—A premature explosion occurred yesterday at Cucaracha, on the line of the Panama canal. One man was killed instantly and eight men were badly hurt.

Died at 108.

Deer Isle, Me., Jan. 11.—Mrs. Salome Sellers, 108 years old, a real Daughter of the Revolution, and said to be the oldest person in New England, is dead at her home in this town. Mrs. Sellers was born in this place and lived here all her life.

Catholic Priest Dead.

New York, Jan. 11.—The Rev. William Devereaux Hughes of the Roman Catholic church of St. Paul, the Apostle, died yesterday at the rectory of the Paulist fathers in this city. Father Hughes was born in New York in 1856. He was well known throughout the United States as a missionary and for many years was manager of the Catholic World.

Tribute to Proctor.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Tributes of love and respect were paid by the house of representatives yesterday to the memory of the late Senator Proctor of Vermont, who died during the first session of the present congress. In strong contrast to the stirring scenes of the past week, the historic chamber was transformed into a place of mourning, where the life and character of the deceased statesman were extolled. The galleries were well occupied by friends and relatives of the late senator. By special designation, Mr. Foster of Vermont, acted as speaker pro tem and lauded his former colleague.

CERTIFICATE OF INCORPORATION OF VERMILLION STEEL AND IRON COMPANY.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS, That we, the undersigned, all being persons of full age, have agreed to and do hereby associate ourselves together, under the Constitution and General Laws of the State of Minnesota, and more particularly under the provisions of Chapter 58 of the Revised Laws of said State, for the year 1905, as a Corporation, and to that end do hereby adopt the following:

ARTICLES OF INCORPORATION.

ARTICLE I.

The name of this Corporation shall be VERMILLION STEEL AND IRON COMPANY.

ARTICLE II.

The general nature of the business of this Corporation shall be: To acquire by purchase, lease, option or otherwise, lands in any part of the world, for the purpose of exploring and prospecting for iron, coal, copper and other ores.

To acquire by lease, option, purchase, gift, devise, grant, conveyance, agreement or otherwise, and to own, hold, possess, enjoy, develop and work, and to sell, lease, convey, or otherwise dispose of real estate, mines, mineral rights and mineral lands in any part of the world, and especially lands containing or believed to contain deposits of iron, coal, copper or other minerals, and any right, title or interest therein; and to develop, operate and work mines, upon, in, or under such lands, for the purpose of mining and producing iron, copper and other ores and minerals; to mine, smelt, prepare for market, manufacture, buy, sell, exchange, and deal in iron ores, copper ores, and in all kinds of ores, and in iron, coal, steel, copper and in all kinds of metals, and minerals, in the products and by-products thereof, of every kind and description. Also to receive, ship or transport ores, minerals and supplies to and from any mines or workings upon the Company's property, or for the accomplishment of any other purpose for which the Company is formed. Also to construct, purchase, lease, or otherwise acquire buildings, machinery, power houses, pumping plants, pump machinery, private railways, private tramways, private roads, easements, franchises and licenses. Any and all of said business to be carried on in the State of Minnesota or elsewhere, and the principal place of transacting the business of said Corporation shall be in the City of Duluth, in the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, with such branch offices at such other points or places as may from time to time be determined by the Board of Directors of said corporation.

ARTICLE III.

The time of the commencement of this Corporation shall be the 12th day of January, 1909, and the period of its existence shall be thirty (30) years.

ARTICLE IV.

The amount of the capital stock of this Corporation shall be Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000.00), and the same shall be sold only at par, either for cash or for property and things of value deemed by the Board of Directors to be equivalent thereto, such determination by the Board of Directors to be deemed final and binding upon all parties in interest.

Stock of this Corporation shall be paid for as called for by the Board of Directors, and no stock which has not been subscribed for and upon which the payments have not been made, as required by the Board of Directors, shall be entitled to vote or representation in any of the proceedings of this Company.

ARTICLE V.

The highest amount of indebtedness to which this Corporation at any time shall be subject is the sum of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00).

ARTICLE VI.

The names and places of residence of the persons forming this Corporation are as follows: S. STEPHENSON, JOSEPH ROY and M. S. WALSH, all of Duluth, Minnesota.

ARTICLE VII.

The government of this Corporation and the conduct and management of its affairs is hereby vested in a Board of three (3) Directors, who shall all be stockholders, and, except as herein provided, shall be elected by the stockholders at their annual meeting on the second Tuesday in January of each year, and who shall within ten (10) days thereafter elect from their own number the following officers, to-wit: President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.

The first annual meeting of the Corporation shall be held on the 14th day of January, 1909, and until such time as such directors have been elected and qualified, the following persons shall be and constitute the Board of Directors of this Corporation: S. Stephenson, Joseph Roy and M. S. Walsh; and until such annual meeting is held and the directors thereat chosen shall elect officers as hereinbefore provided, and until such officers shall have been duly elected and qualified, the general officers of this Corporation shall be as follows:

President, S. Stephenson; Vice President, Joseph Roy; Secretary and Treasurer, M. S. Walsh, all of Duluth, Minnesota.

The office of Treasurer may be held by any other officer of this Corporation. The officers and directors of this Company, except those herein designated to act as such in the first instance, shall hold office for the period of one (1) year, or until their successors are elected and qualified, and in case any vacancy occurs in any of the offices or in the membership of the Board of Directors of this Corporation the same shall be filled by the Board of Directors until the next annual meeting and until such vacancy shall be filled by election held in accordance with these Articles, and such By-Laws as may be adopted providing for elections.

ARTICLE VIII.

The capital stock of this Corporation is divided into two hundred thousand (200,000) shares of the par value of One Dollar ($1.00) each.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, the parties hereto have hereunto set their hands and seals this 8th day of January, 1909.

S. STEPHENSON, (Seal.)
JOSEPH ROY, (Seal.)
M. S. WALSH, (Seal.)

FORAKER CHARGES THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS DIVERTED FUNDS

Retiring Ohio Senator Delivers Bitter Broadside Against President.

Declares That Private Detectives Have Been Illegally Paid.

Fifteen Thousand Dollars Used In Brownsville Probe, He Says.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Illegal diversion of public funds by the president and by William H. Taft, while he was secretary of war, to pay for the investigation by private detectives into the Brownsville affair, was charged by Senator Joseph Benson Foraker, of Ohio, in the senate today, in a speech in replying to statements of Herbert J. Browne, of this city, and William G. Baldwin, of Roanoke, Va., who were employed by the secretary of war to secure evidence of the guilt of negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry, United States army, in "shooting up" Brownsville, the night of August 13-14, 1906. The government use of the private detectives was characterized by Mr. Foraker as "atrocious, shocking and revolting."

This charge of illegally diverting $15,000 from the war fund of $3,000,000, appropriated by the deficiency act of March 3, 1909, was made by Mr. Foraker in concluding his remarks, which

POWERS RESENT CHINA'S ACTION

Diplomatic Corps Objects to Yielding Control of Telegraph.

Pekin, Jan. 12.—The diplomatic corps has made a strong representation to the Chinese government concerning the board of communications having usurped control of the Pekin telegraph office, which China, in 1901, agreed should be under foreign superintendence.

FINNISH SENATE TO AID HEBREWS

They Will Not be Accorded Full Equality, However.

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 12.—A committee of the senate is making preparations to reform the conditions under which Hebrews live in Finland. Two laws are under consideration, one to permit Hebrews to acuire citizenship, and the other to give them the right of residence under certain restrictions. Full equality for Hebrews is not contemplated.

SWISS BALLOON IS DECLARED WINNER.

COMMITTEE MAY NOT TAKE TILLMAN CASE

SENATOR GALLINGER, The Chairman.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Much interest was manifested by senators today in the procedure that will be adopted to dispose of the charges made by the president against Senator Tillman, in relation to his attempted purchase of timber lands in Oregon. Mr. Tillman insists that he shall be convicted or cleared of the president's charge of wrongdoing. The special secret service investigating committee, consisting of Senators Gallinger, Hemenway and Clay, has not agreed to enter upon the additional task of passing judgment upon Senator Tillman, and it may prove desirable to have a special committee for that purpose.

Defendant's Lawyer Alleges Conspiracy of Yacht Club Members.

Killing of Annis Held to be Lunacy Act.

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 12.—John F. McIntyre summed up the case for the defense today in the trial of Thornton Jenkins Hains, accused, with his brother, Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., of the murder of William E. Annis at the Bayside Yacht club Aug. 15, 1908. The prosecution will sum up tomorrow, and Thursday the case will be given to the jury. The court room was crowded today when Mr. McIntyre began his address.

He charged that there was a conspir-

STREET CARS ARE BURNED BY MOB

Rio Janeiro Management Will Now Readjust Its Fares.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 12.—Twelve tramcars of the American-Canadian company, operating the city street railway system, were burned by a mob yesterday because the company's new fares and routes are unsatisfactory.

The police were unable to cope with the rioters.

The company, through the press, then signified its willingness to submit to any reform the mayor might deem necessary, and quiet was restored today.

WILSON CLOSE TO RECORD, FOR TERM LENGTH.

Washington, Jan. 12.—A further investigation of the question of service of Secretary Wilson as a cabinet officer discloses the fact that it will be necessary for him to serve until Nov. 29, 1909 in order to have equalled the record of Albert Gallatin of Pennsylvania, who was secretary of the treasury in President Jefferson's first administration. According to the state department records, Mr. Gallatin served in that office for 12 years, 8 months and 20 days. Secretary Wilson was appointed at the head of the agricultural department by President McKinley on March 4, 1897 and on March 4 next, he will have served continuously for twelve years. If he should serve longer than the 29th of next November, Mr. Wilson will have made a record for length of service in the cabinet.

OVER FIFTY MINERS ARE KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Blue Field, W. Va., Jan. 12.—As a result of another explosion at the Lick Branch mine, at Switchback, about twenty miles from here, between fifty and 100 miners were killed at 8:30 this morning. The number may be largely increased, as from 280 to 300 miners were at work at the time, and it had not been ascertained, shortly before noon, how many survived. On Dec. 28 last, an explosion occurred at this mine, which, up to that time, had been regarded as a model mine. On that occasion the cause was not ascertained and the death list reached fifty. The last body in connection with that explosion was brought to the surface only last Friday, after which the state mine inspector declared that the mine was again safe and that work could be resumed. The majority of the miners who were engaged to resume work at the mine were Americans, with a few foreigners and some colored workers as laborers. It was stated that the mine was examined early today before the new shift went to work and that it was reported to be perfectly safe.

In spite of this, however, soon after work was begun, the explosion occurred, with a death list that will probably far exceed that of the December explosion. The mine is the property of the Pocohontas Consolidated Collieries company and is situated in the Tug river district, a territory, that until the December explosion, had been unusually free from gas.

Alaskan Communication Stopped by the Latest Upheaval.

Mount Baker Volcano, Supposedly Extinct, Bursts Forth Again.

RELIEF SHIP FINDS CATANIA IS FULL OF AMERICAN REFUGEES.

Catania, Jan. 12.—The American relief ship Bayern, which has arrived here, has a wide field for its charities. The town is crowded with American refugees and the hospitals and municipal relief committees are eagerly and gratefully accepting all the supplies offered. Bayard Cutting, Jr., American vice consul, has gone to Syracuse to investigate conditions there. He will return Wednesday. The American relief committee here is communicating with Rome through the wireless apparatus on the Bayern and the supply ship Culgoe.

Port Townsend, Wash., Jan. 12.—An earthquake caused considerable damage here at 3:50 p. m. yesterday, lasting from ten to fifteen seconds. The trembler took the form of a vibratory convulsion, swaying buildings nd breaking many windows and roofs.

Reports from adjoining localities available, by telephone state that the force of the shock extended over fifty miles, and in several districts two distinct shocks separated by more than a minute were felt.

In many places here where water pipes had been frozen, the earthquake broke the mains and flooded houses. The signal corps officers report the parting of the Alaska cable several hours previous to the shock here.

HENEY STARTS CASE AGAINST CALHOUN

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 12.—Patrick Calhoun of New York and San Francisco, president of the United railroads and director of several large corporations, appeared in Judge William P. Lawler's department of the superior court today for the opening session of his trial on an indictment charging him with offering a bribe to Fred Nicolas, a former member of the board of supervisors of San Francisco. The charge is an outcome or the municipal scandal of 1906, when sixteen supervisors confessed to wholesale acceptance of bribes for the award of privileges to public service corporations and the mayor of the city, Eugene E. Schmitz, was removed from office and imprisoned with bonds fixed at over $1,000,000. Calhoun, together with three other officials of the United railroads, was accused of having authorized and assisted in the payment of $200,000 to the supervisors in return for which, it is alleged, the board granted to the corporation a permanent permit for an overhead trolley on several of the roads formerly operated by a cable system. The Calhoun trial will be held in Caprenters' hall, where Francis J. Heney was shot and seriously wounded during the trial of Abraham Ruef and where Ruef was sentenced to fourteen years in the pen. Heney and John O'Gara appeared for the prosecution today.

CARMICHAEL HAD MOTIVE

Michigan Officials Ridicule Theory of Hypnotic Influence.

Efforts Now Directed to Learning Why Pastor Killed Carpenter.

Carthage, Ill., Jan. 12.—When police officials attracted to this place by the suicide of Rev. John H. Carmichael, self-confessed slayer of Gideon Browning at Rattle Run, Mich., have fully satisfied themselves as to the circumstances attending the last act in the tragedy, it is expected that inquiry will turn to the motive for the initial crime.

It is a curious fact that dispatches from Michigan reveal an unwillingness on the part of officials and others to accept the theory of Carmichael's insanity as evolved from his strange confession. One of the first to voice this skepticism was Prosecutor Brown of Adair, Mich., who rejected the idea that Browning had used hypnotic influence.

"I shall always believe," said Brown,

WORST STORM IN QUARTER CENTURY

Small Ohio Towns Cut Off From Outside World.

Piqua, Ohio, Jan. 12.—Business was practically suspended here today on account of a snowstorm, which is said to be the heaviest in Western Ohio in twenty-five years.

Some of the small towns have no connection with the outside world, telegraph and telephone wires being down and the snow so badly drifted that it is impossible to drive from one town to another.

Austin Is Only St. Louis County Member to Land Chairmanship.

Graham Has More Committees Than Any Other Duluth Member.

Speaker is Conceded to Have Acted With Great Fairness.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Speaker Rockne announced his committee appointments at this morning's session of the house, and that body is now ready to go ahead. Lieutenant Governor Eberhart announced his list of committees also, with no changes other than those already announced.

While the Duluth members do not figure largely in the list of important committee chairmanships, which was partly because most of them are new members and partly because they were not exorbitant in their demands, they can make no complaint of their treatment by Speaker Rockne, who has scattered them throughout practically all of the more important committees, as well as many minor ones. Their assignments are as follows:

Congdon—Education, judiciary, municipal legislation, public health, railroads, taxes and tax laws.

Buck—Banks and banking, grain and warehouse, insurance, labor, public ac-

McEWEN IS CONFIRMED

Senate Approves the Recent Appointments by Governor Johnson.

St. Louis County Members Fare Well on Senate Committees.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn. Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The flood of new bills was resumed in both houses this morning. The senate adopted its new rules, involving few changes in the old ones except such a strengthening of the rules against lobbyists as the house has already adopted.

Lieutenant Governor Eberhart made his committee announcements, and as stated there are few changes except such as were made necessary by the deposition of Senator Peterson from the head of the finance committee. St. Louis county members have practically the same committees as two years ago, Laybourn being chairman of insurance, Vail of labor and Pugh of mines and minerals.

Senator Sageng offered a new rule requiring committees to report bills back within twenty days and it was referred to the rules committee.

Senator Mooman (Democrat) offered a bill extending the primary election law to cover state officers and United States senators and compelling registration of party affiliations at primary elections, in order to keep parties separate.

Ohio Man, It Is Believed, Will Die From Shot.

Oxford, Ohio, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Millie Donnelly was murdered in her home here last night, having been shot through the head. On a table in the room where the body lay was found a note, signed by Frank Donnelly, the woman's husband, in which he wished all goodbye, and asked that his body be sent to his sister at Shelbyville, Ind.

Husband Shoots Self.

Hamilton, Ohio, Jan. 12.—Frank Donnelly walked into the office of J. D. Marshall today with his throat slashed and his wrists bleeding, and with three pistol wounds in his head. The man could scarcely whisper his name, and he was at once taken to a hospital, where it is said that he cannot live.

ILLINOIS DIRECT PRIMARY LAW UPHELD.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 12.—The validity of the Illinois direct primary law was upheld in superior court today by Judge Ball, who also ruled that Frank J. Loesch's appointment as special state's attorney to prosecute fraud cases is legal.

The decision was rendered in denying the petition of Caesar dal Pnio, a saloon keeper and politician for an injunction preventing the payment of Loesch's salary and other expenses of the investigation.

Two other judges having already given similar decisions, the dal Pino case will be appealed.

RAILROADS

NOT SO BAD FOR DAKOTA

Farmers Are Going to California for the Winter.

Old "Hard Times" Days Are Now Almost Forgotten.

L. P. Gellerman, Northwestern district traveling passenger agent for the Northern Pacific railroad, says the farmers of the two Dakotas do not know anything about the talk of dull business that is going the rounds among their brethren of the cities.

Mr. Gellerman has just returned from a business trip of the two states. He says the farmers up there are some of the best customers the railroads have at the present time. They are going to the Pacific slope to escape the rigors of the winter that has the Northwest by the throat.

In the olden days the farmers up Dakota way worried through the long winters as best they could. Very often they had a scarcity of the necessities of life in the family larder. Prosperity very often took a roundabout way and entirely skipped the two Dakotas.

But though the past season was not one of the most prosperous in the history of the two states, as far as the wheat crop went. Mr. Gellerman says that they raised all kinds of coarse grains upon the Dakota farms, with the result that they profited very well from the past season. Not only that, but the farmers up there, according to the railroad man, are becoming stockmen and general farmers, and no longer depend upon a bonanza wheat crop for all their profits.

Mr. Gellerman says one farmer is taking his entire family to California for the winter. And he is one of the Roosevelt farmers too; one of the kind that believes in large families. He has seven children. They are all going to the sunny state for the winter, leaving the hired men to look after the farm in their absence.

This is not an isolated case by any means, according to the statement of the railroad man. He says that the number of Dakota farmers who are going to the Pacific coast for the winter is remarkable. They have worked hard and have saved money, and they are now going to see some of the pleasures of life. One of the pleasures will be the necessity of not having to spend a winter in North Dakota when the thermometer is hovering around the 30 below zero mark.

According to Mr. Gellerman, North and South Dakota are very fruitful fields for the passenger agent just at the present time.

HILL INVADES CANADA.

Report Says Great Northern Interests Will Build Coast Extension.

It was stated in local railroad circles today that the Great Northern railroad would begin the construction of a line from the Manitoba boundary, near Emerson, to Winnipeg, and also from Portage La Prairie to Elk Horn, upon the boundary of the Saskatchewan province. This is believed to be a move to have the road controlled by the Hill interests between Winnipeg and the Pacific coast as the Vistoria & Eastern railroad, a line controlled by the Great Northern interests, is building from the Pacific coast eastward.

It would also mean that the Great Northern and Northern Pacific would have a line from Winnipeg to St. Paul. This prediction comes as a fulfillment of the threat of James J. Hill to become a serious competitor of the Canadian roads in their own territory.

INSTITUTE OF BANKING MEETS

Local Chapter Has Pleasant Gathering at Commercial Club.

Last evening a meeting of the Head of the Lakes Chapter of the American Institute of Banking was held at the Commercial club. George E. Allen, educational director of the institute, was present and delivered an address on chapter work.

David Williams, vice president of the First National bank, spoke on "The Bank Clerk, From the Country Banker's Standpoint," and W. I. Prince of the City National bank delivered an address. Mr. Wentzel of the United States National Bank of Superior also delivered a bright address.

A musical program was also provided. Joe Lonegran and Mr. Dufva were two of those taking part in the musical program, Mr. Lonegran singing and Mr. Dufva playing the piano.

THE NEGLECT OF PRIVATE DISEASES

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE.

Many men have been made miserable by the unfortunate contracting of some poisonous special disease, which, through neglect or improper treatment, has completely undermined and shattered the physical strength and mental faculties. No greater mistake can be made than to consider lightly the first evidence of the introduction of any private disease into your system, or to neglect the first symptoms of Nervous Debility, caused by improper and unnatural habits, excesses, dissipation, etc.

Such indifference and neglect of the first symptoms are responsible for thousands of human wrecks, failures in life and business. Men! why take such desperate chances? The manifestations of the first symptoms of any disease or weakness should be a warning for you to take prompt steps to safeguard your future life and happiness. You should carefully avoid all uncertain, experimental, dangerous or half-way treatment, for upon the first treatment depends whether you will be promptly restored to health again, with all taint of the poisonous disease removed from your system, or whether your disease will be allowed to become chronic and subject you to future recurrences of the disease, with the various resulting complications, etc.

One consultation with us may change your whole life. Delays are dangerous.

If we could but see and treat all men when the first symptoms show themselves, there would soon be little need for specialists in chronic diseases, and there would be few men seeking a rejuvenating of their physical, mental and sexual powers, and there would be none marked with the indelible stamp of constitutional Syphilis, and the sufferers from Prostatitis, Varicocele, Gleet, Kidney and Bladder Diseases, would be reduced to a minimum.

The Progressive Medical Association offers every afflicted man the care and attention of a skillful specialist in men's diseases, and a sure cure. Consultation free and confidential. Office hours, 8 a. m. to 8 p. m., Sundays, 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. If you cannot call, write Dept. A.,

SENTIMENT FAVORABLE

Monument Association Gets Hearty Reception From Business Men.

Duluth Will Doubtless Secure the Statue by Rodin.

By the time the next session of the Greysolon Du Lhut Monument association is called by President F. E. House in the near future, it is expected that definite arrangements will have been made that will enable the society to come to a decision as to what action it will take in the matter of securing the Rodin statue for this city.

While no official action has been taken by the association since the last meeting, the members have been quietly sounding the sentiment of the business men of the city, and have found that there is a very decided sentiment favoring the securing of the work of the noted French sculiptor.

At the last meeting of the association, President House explained the prestige that would come to Duluth through the securing of the last great work of the noted sculptor. Previous to that meeting but little interest had been taken in the matter, and but little was known of the statue. As a matter of fact, more interest was exhibited in other cities over the bringing of the statue to this city, than was shown in Duluth.

However, the situation is very different at the present time. The business men of the city favor the securing of the work of art for Duluth, and with the sentiment of the business men behind the movement, there is little doubt that the statue will be brought here. It is in line with the plan suggested by Ambassador James Bryce, in his speech at the Duluth Commercial club, when he urged the beautifying of the city that nature had done so much for.

At the next meeting of the association the members will be in a position to present some facts regarding the securing of the monument, and then the matter of securing the funds necessary for the bringing of the statue to Duluth can be taken up. A quiet campaign has been going on, and though little has been said of the activity of those interested in the securing of the famous statue, it is announced that the prospect of bringing the work of Rodin to this city is very encouraging. The members of the association are very enthusiastic over the response that has met their efforts in creating a sentiment in favor of the securing of the monument.

A TRAGEDY

One "dead soldier" and then there were two.

"It was a shame to waste the money," said the first lumberjack. The second man of the woods emphasized this remark with the addition of two adjectives that requires exclamation marks—remarks that Ben Tillman expurged from his denunciation speech upon the floor of the United States senate.

The second lumberjack said it was "a—shame" that they had wasted their last four bits.

The pathetic little incident occurred this morning, midway between Fifth and Sixth avenues west on Superior street. The hour was early and the wind was chill and bitter. From their ambling gait, it was evident that the workers from the woods had been imbibing from the bowl that temporarily pries sorrows from their abiding place.

They emerged from a Superior street place where liquid goods are kept for the benefit of those who believe that Carrie Nation is a misguided woman.

Each of the men held firmly in his hand a quart bottle of liquid beverage.

The bottles were uncorked, and from the mouths there escaped a gentle steam as the chill air came in contact with the contents of the bottles. However, the careening woodsmen paid little heed to the biting chill of the weather.

"It's always fair wuther," sang out the raucous, thick-tongued voice of one of the amblers. They trailed their course down the street, the steam from the bottles disappearing after the first few steps they took in the biting cold.

Then they suddenly thought of the contents of the bottles. Surely they had been negligent in this matter. Each, as if guided by a common instinct, placed his bottle to his lips. There was a painful silence—then a groan of wrath; the bottles, or rather their contents, were frozen solid.

The first lumberjack dashed his bottle angrily to the solidness of the street. It crashed and splintered. The other was more frugal—he kept it and probably thawed it out by the stove of some groggery.

SUPERIOR NEWS

New System Begun.

The authorities of the Superior postoffice yesterday put into effect a new system to accurately determine the efficiency of each employe. It is a system of demerit and merit marks. The work of each employe will be watched and the report at the end of the year will be sent to Washington.

Property Owners' Meeting.

To decide on the matter of paving Eigth street between Ogden and Hammond aevnues, and Fourteenth street between Oaks and Ogden avenues a meeting of the property owners has been called for Friday. It was decided to call this meeting yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the street committee of the city council with Mayor Crumpton and City Engineer Banks.

Five Riders Chosen.

Elling Diesen, August Nordby, Victor Skogstad, Christ Gundhus and Christian Jonason were chosen yesterday by the Superior Ski club to represent Superior at the national ski tournament to be held at Eau Claire. Christian Jonason may ont be able to go, and in taht case another rider will be elected to take his place. Sunday, for the first time since the club's slide at Billings Park has been enlarged, the riders practiced jumping.

Theatrical Managers Organize.

The theatrical managers at the Head of the Lakes are planning to organize for their protection. They have already held one meeting and will hold another next week, when it is hoped that the organization will be perfected and that officers will be elected. The movement was started in Superior, and it is proposed to take in the management of every theater in Superior and Duluth, including moving picture shows. The object of the association is to protect the management of local houses from contract jumping by performers.

Will Issue Stock.

Word was received in Superior today from Madison that the Soo line had paid $21,000, in accordance with the Wisconsin law, for the privilege of issuing $21,000,000 worth of stock. It is understood that the railroad company is doing this for the purpose of raising funds for handling the extension to the Head of the Lakes.

IOWA PIGEON CENTER.

Kansas City Times: "There's one thing that puts Marshalltown, Iowa, in a class by itself," said R. G. Elston, an Iowa farmer.

"Marshalltown is a great place for pigeon raising. There are thousands of birds hatched and reared every year there. They are raised to be shot. Iowa has a great many gun clubs and every year there are live pigeon shoots. The Marshalltown farmers have found the business very profitable."

ON ALERT FOR GRAFT

"Secret Six" Democratic Legislators Lay Traps at Indianapolis.

Kokomo Man Says He Has Already Been Approached.

Indianapolis Ind., Jan. 12.—Persistent rumors that money is being used in the United States senatorial campaign and that six Democratic legislators who organized themselves into a secret body of spies two weeks ago are laying plans to trap anyone who may offer "inducements" for senatorship votes caused a stir among candidates and politicians today.

The story of the organization of the mysterious six was told today by a man who is in close touch with the senatorship situation. As the story goes these men, with other legislators, heard two weeks ago that money was to be used in the senatorship campaign. Several of the legislators held a meeting and finally six men were chosen to act as spies. These men are under instructions to accept money that may be offered to them for their votes, but they are to make the conditions such that when the money is presented they will have sufficient evidence to send to the penitentiary the men who offer it. The identity of the men is being carefully guarded.

The first charge of undue influence which was at all definite came when the assertion was made that Representative Harrison H. Stewart of Kokomo had been approached with a proposal to give his support to one of the candidates for senator. The man who approached Stewart is said to have asked him what inducements would be necessary to engage his services in lining up Representative Davis of Kokomo, a Democrat. Mr. Stewart is a Republican, and the stranger told him he had at first mistaken him for Representative Davis.

"The man approached me in the Dennison lobby yesterday," said Representative Stewart today. "Evidently some one had told him that I was the representative from Howard county, and he thought I was the Democratic representative. He soon found out his mistake. I told him that Mr. Davis was the Democratic representative. He then asked me about Representative Davis. He also asked me what would be necessary to get my services in lining up Davis. I walked away and went over to the hotel clerk and told him I wanted to see John W. Kern. I wanted Mr. Kern to know about what was going on, but I am sorry that it became public."

WOMAN BEAR HUNTER.

Kalispell Bee: Flathead county contains the distinction of having one of the champion feminine bear hunters of the West.

While watching for deer in a meadow on her homestead, twenty miles northwest of Kalispell, last Saturday, Frances Jurgens-Kleinschmidt was surprised by a brown bear which appeared in the brush at the edge of the meadow. She immediately laid the bear low with a shot through the body.

A moment later two other bears appeared, one of which the lady succeeded in wounding, but having taken only six cartridges with her, was obliged to return to her house for ammunition.

Returning to the scene of action accompanied by Miss H. Whiteside, the first bear wounded was found in the heavy undergrowth and at once showed fight, but was killed by a shot which broke its neck. The ladies then took the trail of the other wounded animal, but were unable to overtake it, though the trail was well marked with blood. They then returned and skinned the dead bear, which weighed about 200 pounds.

WHERE SHERRY CAME FROM.

About the busiest tourist bar in Spain, some travellers say, is that in the railroad station of Jerez de la Froutera, on the road from Cadiz to Seville. It is from Jerez that the name of sherry comes, and the town of Jerez de la Frontera is the genuine sherry wine place, says the New York Sun.

Most tourists know that and when the slow moving railroad train rumbles reluctantly into the town the foreigners who are aboard generally get off to look at the place.

Naturally every one wants to have a drink of sherry in the town where it comes from, much as one would drink port in Oporto, and for that reason the little bar does a big business. It would do more, of course, if Jerez was on the main travelled line, but as it is the revenue is surprising.

Sixty languages are in everyday use in Freetown, Sierra Leone.

The Cost of Advertising

The unawake merchant often wonders how some rival "can afford to spend so much money for advertising." He is sure that he could not—that it would bankrupt him in short order to "plunge" into publicity on the scale that the other fellow does.

"The other fellow is not worrying about the cost," of his advertising, for the simple reason that he doesn't have to pay it. The competitor who cannot "afford" to advertise, really, in effect, pays the bills of the man who can "afford" it.

He pays them in the loss of business caused by his failure to advertise. The business he ought to have—his "share" of the trade in his line—goes in large part to the competitor who seeks it, who can afford to advertise for it. The profits on the trade drawn away from the timid advertiser by the aggressive one pays the latter's advertising bills—and leaves a comfortable surplus.

This is a fact which progressive merchants are proving all the time—so it ought to have some personal significance to the over-cautious business men who are waiting to get rich before "risking" adequate advertising campaigns.—"Brains."

The Steinway Piano

Bridges the Chasm Between Obscurity and Fame

Josef Lhevinne ably demonstrated the "Steinway" piano before a fashionable and highly appreciative audience in the auditorium of the Pilgrim Congregational church last Saturday night.

His carnival by Schumann was pronouncedly a musical feast. In it was displayed the great versatility of the "Steinway" piano which he played. The great instrument responded to every whim. He petted, cajoled, made a play-fellow of it. Then urged, lashed and slashed it, until every timber and fabric of the building and that great audience vibrated with his emotions. Those present forgot their presence; they were filled with the overpowering soul of music of "Lhevinne," of "Steinway." They called the great "Russian" again and again, but he did not forget his wonderful piano; each time he returned he laid his hand upon it tenderly, as a thing of animation, and with that calm assurance that it would do his bidding. He had wakened the soul of "Steinway" into life and had aroused that audience to nobler thoughts which only the great can inspire.

A "Steinway," like the classics of music, is constantly revealing some new delight, leading to some new thought; affording some new interpretation, holding up some new standard. No pianist can exhaust its possibilities. It is a mine of music.

We have had the honor to represent the Steinway Piano company for nearly a third of a century exclusively, and invite the lovers of the real artistique to see our "Steinway display." Who ever has heard the tremendous volume of the "Steinway Vertegrand;" who ever has fallen under the witchery of the steady, pure, fluent, singing tone, realizes that there is only one piano that is superior to it—the Steinway grand.

A strict quarantine against Guatemala has been established by the ports of Belize and Puerto Cortez, Spanish Honduras.

CALLS FOR PRIMARY LAW LIKE WISCONSIN'S.

Denver, Jan 12.—Governor Shafroth, in his inaugural address today, recommended the enactment of a direct primary law, fashioned after that in Wisconsin; urged that some provision be made whereby legislative candidates could pledge themselves to abide by the result of a popular vote for United States senator; and declared that individuals as well as corporations, should be prohibited from contributing to campaigns, maintaining that the necessary expenses should be met by the candidates themselves and by a state tax. The new governor condemned the national forest reserve policy, claiming that large tracts are unnecessarily set aside in this state.

Lads to Receive Military Training at St. Luke's Church.

All West End Youngsters Eligible for Membership in Corps.

Even if shooting will not be a part of the instruction at first, the young idea of St. Luke's Episcopal church is to be drilled in other military maneuvers, the organization of a cadet corps there to take place tomorrow evening.

Preliminary arrangements have already been made for the formation of the cadet corps at St. Luke's, and the work will be formally begun in the vestry rooms of the church at 7:45 tomorrow night, when the commander of the new brigade, C. H. Glover, will put the lads through their paces.

The boys will be under the strictest military discipline, and every feature of the life of the soldier, his bearing, his carriage and appearance, will be impressed upon the boys. Regular drills will be held and all the army regulations lived up to. Mr. Glover is said to be well qualified to act as instructor.

Membership in the cadet corps will not be restricted to boys whose parents are of the Episcopal faith. Boys of all denominations will be welcomed into the organization, but they must attend the Sunday school.

As soon as the organization is well under way the matter of uniforms and such things will be taken up.

A literary program will be given this evening in the parlors of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church by the Epworth league.

The Ladies' Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal church will meet Friday afternoon at 2:30 in the vestry rooms of the church.

The Scandinavian bakery, in Twentieth avenue west, was broken into the other evening and a quantity of pies and cakes taken. The thefts are thought to have been committed by boys.

STILL RESCUE QUAKE VICTIMS

Several Thousand Soldiers Detailed to Work in Ruins.

Rome, Jan. 12.—The fact that living persons are still being rescued from the ruins of Messina and Reggio has decided the authorities to continue excavations of the wreckage, and several thousand soldiers are today employed in this work who otherwise would be detailed to help in the distribution of the necessities of life for the survivors.

In most cases those now being brought out allve were imprisened in rooms and cellars not completely demolished and their situation was such that they could get a little nourishment.

ROOSEVELT TO GO ON HORSEBACK EXPEDITION.

Washington, Jan. 12. — President Roosevelt will spend tomorrow in the country. He expects to enjoy himself horseback riding in the vicinity of the country home of Rear Admiral Rixey, surgeon general of the navy, whose farm is just across the Potomac from Washington.

LEAGUE IDEA FROWNED ON

Plans Now Being Made for Independent Ball Team.

Doubtful If League Ball Can be Made to Pay.

An independent baseball team for Duluth.

That's the talk in Duluth just now, and the majority of the fans seem to think it would be a good move.

Men posted in baseball affairs of the city favor the idea.

Nothing can be done until after the meeting to be held about the end of the month, by the Northern league magnates in Winnipeg. After this meeting, if it is seen that Manager Kuehnow can hold his franchise in Duluth without playing league ball, an effort will be made to get him interested in the independent variety.

Everybody is afraid of the league proposition as it has been a losing idea from start to finish, but if Mr. Kuehnow will lend his efforts to building up a fast independent team, there are a number of men who will back their pet idea with money.

Among those greatly interested in the independent ball team is Charles D. Jacobs, manager of the Fitwell aggregation. He is the man who discovered Thorsen, Schaefer and a number of other local players who have made good in fast company. He was for a number of years closely identified with the Columbus, Ohio, baseball team and knows most of the great players of the country by their first name. His long experience and general acquaintance with the ball managers and players of the country, would enable him to sign up some of the fastest in the business, and he is being boosted by his friends for manager.

He believes in bringing out the local ball players and giving them a chance, instead of sending for players.

Mr. Jacobs believes that there are in Duluth, among the younger players, many who could make good in any company, and he does not hesitate to say so.

He has successfully managed the Fitwell team for the past two years, and succeeded in defeating the regular Duluth team with his bunch of amateurs.

Some of the fastest independent professional teams in the country will be brought to the Head of the Lakes, and when a tour was arranged for the team, more advertising would result from one trip, than the city would get out of a whole season of organized ball, it is claimed.

"It's coming now to a point where we have to do something and do it soon," said an enthusiast this morning, "and the sooner this league notion is pummeled out of our heads the better for us. Independent ball has got to come. We have tried the leagues thoroughly and they are no go. We have got to get back to where we were some years ago and the sooner the better."

SENATE AGAIN ASKS ROOSEVELT

This Time It Is About Charges of Foraker.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Without debate and without reference to committee the senate today passed a resolution presented by Senator Foraker calling on the secretary of the treasury for an itemized statement of the expenditure of $3,000,000 appropriated by the act of March 2, 1899 to be expended at the direction of the president as an emergency fund.

This is the fund out of which the detectives, Browne and Baldwin, were paid for their services in investigating the Brownsville affair and for which expenditure Foraker today sharply criticised the president and Mr. Taft.

MEETINGS OF NATIONAL BANKS

No Changes Are to be Made in Directors or Officers.

Voting of the stockholders of the City National and the First National banks of Duluth is being held today. The voting began this morning at 10 o'clock and will continue until this afternoon at 4. After the close of the voting the count will be made.

It was announced today at both of the banks, that there would be no change either in the board of directors or the officers of either of the two national banks. Neither will there be any increase in the dividends of the two banks.

W. I. Prince, cashier of the City National bank, announced this morning that the present year had been the most prosperous in the history of the bank. While no figures will be given out at this time, Mr. Prince stated that the business of the bank had been very good and that all conditions were more than satisfactory to the directors of the institution.

Vice President David Williams of the First National bank, announced that the business of the bank had been very good during the past year, and, considering the general dullness of business conditions, it had been an unusually good year for the First National bank.

The annual meeting of the Duluth Savings bank will be held upon the third Tuesday in January, a week from today.

ILLINOIS SOLONS STILL AT WAR

House Adjourns, Leaving Senate to Deal With Resolution.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 12.—With the adoption of another joint resolution, fixing the hour of 11 tomorrow as the time for canvassing the vote for state officers, the lower house of the general assembly adjourned today until 10 a. m. tomorrow, leaving the senate to fight out the question of adopting the resolution in the form in which it was sent over from the house, or amend it.

The house resolution provides for a joint session to canvass the votes. Suspicious of everything that comes from the house, the senate refused to hastily concur in the joint resolution, and after getting into a squabble, took a recess.

Prior to the convening of the houses, emissaries of the house and senate conferred relative to the working out of the joint resolution, but were unable to reach an agreement.

THEY ASKED FOR A BRIBE

Attorney McMahon Brings This Charge in the Caron Case.

Says the Witnesses Tried to Hold Up Saloon Man.

"Despicable pup" and "yellow cur of the lowest type" were two of many choice descriptive phrases applied to Alfred Johnson by Attorney McMahon in municipal court this morning, in his argument to the jury in the case of the state against Archie Caron, charged with keeping the Burns saloon, 1103 West Michigan street, open for business on Sunday, Dec. 20.

The jury left the court room at noon, and no verdict had been returned early this afternoon. Attorney McMahon claimed Mr. Johnson, a young fellow about 22 years old, had endeavored to secure evidence against Caron, so he could get a $100 bribe under promise that he would not swear out a complaint. The attorney claims the demand was rejected, and that Johnson followed up his threat by getting out the complaint, and bringing about Caron's arrest.

"The plan was conceived in iniquity and born in sin," said Mr. McMahon. He told how Johnson was only a recent arrival in this country, and how he had not taken out citizenship papers. He characterized him as a spy of the meanest and lowest type, and for fifteen minutes poured out scorching words of disgust and condemnation. He said Johnson was commercializing perjury, and that it was time he was being taught a lesson, before he got too far into the game.

Other witnesses for the state were Henry Peterson and John Kapell, who claims to have accompanied Johnson when he visited the Burns saloon. The defense tried to make out that the only purpose the three had was to try to secure evidence against Caron, and then hold him up for whatever amount he would give to keep the case out of court. It was shown that the men had gone back to the place two or three times, and the defense claimed this was to threaten Caron with arrest unless the money was produced.

Caron claims Johnson wanted $100 as a bribe to keep him from swearing out the complaint, and says the other two men were satisfied to get $60. He said all three promised to get out of town if given the money.

The police had nothing to do with the case until it was brought to their attention by Mr. Johnson. H. F. Parfett, Louis Tobaire and Archie Caron were witnesses for the defense. All claimed the saloon was not open for business the day in question.

Lincoln Stamp Is Proposed.

A Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches in two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is often two or three months before he is fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, as by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, as directed, a cure may, as a rule, be effected in less than one week's time, and in many cases within three days. Sold by all druggists.

A Valuable Food.

"Sealshipt" Oysters are particularly rich in food values—nutritious but light and easily digested. One can eat heartily of them without discomfort. They can be prepared in scores of different ways, all equally tempting. They are acceptable as a single course or as an entire meal. Eaten for lunch, dinner or supper, they are always appetizing and delicious.

To appreciate the real flavor and piquancy of the oyster it must be fresh. That is one reason for "Sealshipt" superiority. "Sealshipt" Oysters must be fresh because they are packed in sealed, airtight containers with ice around the containers. No water touches the oysters. You get the natural oyster, whole and perfect.

We sell "Sealshipt" Oysters—you will find them displayed in a white porcelain case bearing the blue "Sealshipt" trade mark.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

Prof. Maria Sanford, Mrs. Franklin Squires Potter and Prof. Andrist, all of the faculty of the Minnesota state university, will be the special ecturers to appear before the Twentieth Century club this year. Miss Sanford is no stranger to Duluth audiences and her lectures are always largely attended, not only by the club women, but by the former university students in the city, who are delighted to again meet the teacher under whom they made acquaintance with the great men and women of literature. Prof. Sanford will appear in Duluth under the auspices of the Twentieth Century club the latter part of January, and will lecture on some one of the Shakesperean plays.

Mrs. Potter, who is the author of "The Ballingtons," a novel of present day life, which was well received a few seasons ago, returned last autumn from a two years' European trip. During gthat time she has written magazine articles which have appeared in the Critic and other publications. She is assistant in the English department at the university.

The subject of Mrs Potter's Duluth lecture will probably be Israel Zangwill's newest play "The Melting Pot," which has attracted much attention in the theatrical world this season. The play deals with conditions in America as the melting pot for the nations of the world coming to a new land, and in the strife and conflict bringing forth a new people. The date for Mrs. Potter's lecture will probably be Feb. 13, although this has not been definitely decided.

Prof. Andrist appeared before the club last year in a travel lecture and was much enjoyed. The date for his appearance here and the subject to be presented, have not been decided upon.

These lecturers were chosen yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the executive board of the club, which preceded the regular January social. During the afternoon Mrs. H. N. MacHarg read "Monsieur Beaucaire," and this delicate romance was read charmingly. Following Mrs. MacHarg's reading an informal social hour followed. Mrs. C. H. Merritt and Mrs. M. H. Kelley were the hostesses for the afternoon. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. G. A. St. Clair and Mrs. J. H. McLean, and assisting were Miss Rachael St. Clair and Miss Sybilla Hartman. Red roses were the decorations on the brightly appointed table.

Mrs. J F. Killorin will be hostess at the February social at her home on East Second street, and the speaker for the afternoon will be Mrs. Robert Morris Seymour, who has conducted classes at Minneapolis during the fall and winter. This will be her first appearance before a Duluth audience during the year.

ELDERLY MAIDENS.

After Fifty—No Husband—Then What?

"What is going to become of all of the unmarried business women when they are too old to work?" was the rather startling question propounded at a meeting of a woman's club, says an exchange.

"A business man, member of a leading publishing house, said to me: 'Have you ever noticed what a lot of nice old maids there are in our employ? What will finally become of them?

"These women are 'nice.' They are usually in receipt of a good salary, but they haven't saved anything. Improvidents? No, not necessarily.

"They live in accordance with the American standard of living, and they can afford to live in that way with the money they earn, besides it is required of a woman in a good position to dress well. If they were saving, 'provident' you would call it, how could they save, at the best, enough to secure them from want for the rest of their natural lives? Their business usefulness ends at 50 years of age, say. Some firms generously pension women worn out in their employ, but these are few. Something will have to be done to meet this emergency. Proud, independent, superior as they are and so many of them!'

"There should be a day for thinking about marriage," suggested a member of the club. "Just as there are Labor day and Memorial day and others. Men in the cities are too busy, their lives are too strenuous to think about marriage. If there was a day set apart for thinking about it and a parade of all the nice men and women, who would in that way see each other in the light of candidates for matrimony, something might come of it, and this growling celibacy be put a stop to, which threatens to depopulate the world, and these fine women would not then be left to a lonely dependent old age."

"This question is not one to be treated with levity," remarked the first speaker with a frown. "It has not obtruded itself upon the students of social economy as it will do. Spinsterhood was never so general before as it is becoming. Just run your mind over the women of this class whom you know.

"Mark my words, this question is bound to become the foremost social and economic question of the next ten years."

MORAL COURAGE.

American Woman Braves Royal Wrath for Belief.

In the year 1836 President Andrew Jackson appointed Andrew Stevenson, a distinguished Virginian, as American minister to England, and this post he occupied until 1841. Mr. Stevenson had been speaker of the house of delegates of Virginia, member of congress from that state, and for several terms speaker of the United States house of representatives. He married for his second wife Miss Sallie Coles of Green Mountain, Albemarle county, Va., who was a member of one of the oldest and most prominent Virginia families, says a writer in the Century, in an introduction to a series of Mrs. Stevenson's letters.

The position and personal attractions of the minister and his wife soon gained them admission to the most exclusive English society in town and country, and Mrs. Stevenson's letters present an interesting and attractive picture of English homes and the inner life of the aristocracy. She was deeply religious, and a tone of devout piety runs through her letters. The following, taken from one of them written in October, 1839, from the country house of Lord Durham, describes a Sunday evening:

"A large party to dinner. After the gentlemen joined us, when the duke of Sussex, Lady Durham and myself were sitting together, and forming a social trio, Lord Durham came in with his imperial air and said: 'I do not know whether your royal highness objects to cards on Sunday evening; for myself I think there is no greater harm in playing on that night than any other.' 'Nor I,' said the duke. 'If it wrong to play on Sunday, it is equally wrong to play on Monday or any other night.' I felt distressed. Thinks I to myself, 'What shall I do?' At that moment the duke appealed to Lady Durham, who gave a faint assent, to what he had said. I, of course, was silent, when his royal highness, suddenly leaning forward from the immense arm-chair in which he was half buried, addressed me: 'I think, my dear madam, it is considered a sin to play any game on Sunday in your country.' I replied instantly in a calm, earnest and emphatic manner, so that, although a little deaf, he did not lose a word: 'Your royal highness is right. We think it a violation of that commandment which bids us to keep holy the Sabbath day, and we also think it is setting a bad example to our dependents, who cannot so well discern between right and wrong.' The old gentleman drew himself back in his chair and remained silent for several minutes. A solemn pause ensued, and I felt almost frightened at what I had done. Still, I did not regret it. In the meantime the servants had set out the tables, but no one approached them, nor was the slightest allusion made to the subject again. The duke did not retire until the usual hour, and continued in pleasant conversation all the evening, every now and then speaking with his usual kindness to me, and when he rose to retire he called out for me, saying, 'Where is Mrs. Stevenson?' and when I advanced from a table where I had been looking at some drawings of Lady Mary's, he shook my hand with even more than usual cordiality as he uttered his 'goodnight.' I was glad not to have offended him, for he has been very kind to us; still, I felt very grateful that I had moral courage given me at the moment to do and say what I ought, despite the fear of man."

It required moral courage as well as piety to play Mrs. Stevenson's part in this scene, for the duke of Sussex was the queen's uncle, and we all know what deference is paid to such rank in England, and Lord Durham was a commanding figure at that time in England.

Calling Etiquette.

There are many women who are puzzled as to the length of time that should elapse between calls.

A first call should be returned within two weeks, but after that formality there is no specified time.

Within two or three months, at one's convenience, is correct, but if calls are not exchanged at least once a year the acquaintance is said to be dropped.

The older residents of a neighborhood are expected to call on those latelymoved into it, as the newcomer cannot and does not know even the names of her new neighbors.

She should return such calls within two weeks, leaving a card of hers and her husband's for each of the men of the family.

Then, if the acquaintance is not found agreeable, neither side calls again.

Two-Toned Stockings.

The two-toned stockings in iridescent effects are a novelty. As a rule the background will be black, shot with a color.

All the dainty shades, such as pink, blue, mauve, red and lemon color, pale green, old rose and burnt orange, are represented.

THE EVENING STORY

THE CALL OF THE CITY

By Francis A. Corey.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

Reuben Drake glanced at his pretty wife apprehensively. She had left the breakfast dishes unwashed, and was gazing with sullen eyes at the picture the kitchen doorway framed—a gray outbuilding, an old orchard and broad meadows stretching to blue, encircling hills. The flush of excitement he had learned to dread was on her face.

"I hate it!" she broke out, passionately. "Just trees and grass and hills and clouds! Or, maybe, an ox-cart goes rumbling past. An ox-cart, when your eyes are aching for something worth looking at! Think of it!" She laughed hysterically and the storm of sobs broke. "Oh, I'm deathly sick of it all!"

Reuben put an arm about the heaving shoulders. There was great gentleness in the big clumsy fellow's touch.

"Lisette, are you sorry you married me?"

"No, no, no!" drawing herself petulantly away. "But the country is so dreary—so dull. No theaters, no little suppers, no pleasures — nothing! Drudge, drudge, drudge in this stuffy kitchen, and never see a soul! Oh, why did I come here? I was the best dancer in the ballet—even the boxes applauded. I'd have become a star. It was all so exciting. Fool, fool, to give it up—for this!"

Pallid streaks were settling about Reuben's heavy mouth.

"I'm sorry, Lisette," he said, in a very weak voice.

"You say that! If you truly cared you'd take me back to New York."

"What could I do in your big New York? It takes money to live in the city. I know how to grub—and nothing else. There's a mortgage on the farm; we'd lose all I've paid in. You see I couldn't go."

"Then stay!" she cried, angrily. "Stay with your cows and horses and pigs, and your everlasting hills! I'll go alone."

Of course she did not mean it; but he was cruelly hurt.

"I know it was a great sacrifice, Lisette, for you to come out here to live," he said soberly. "You've fretted and pined—and no wonder. But I hoped you'd feel different in time. Listen, dear. You shall go back to New York. For two weeks—a month. Here is money—buy what you need. Some day next week—"

He choked. How was he to live without her, even for one little month?

Lisette had flung both hands over her face. She did not take the roll of bills he held out, and he laid it on the table.

"I need a second horse for the farm work," he said. "I was going to Roxboro this morning to buy one. I'll take you for a drive instead."

Lisette tossed back her head disdainfully.

"I won't stir a step! It would be up one dusty road and down another. Not a thing to see! I know all your cowpaths by heart. I've had enough of them. Go along by yourself. Go!"

He looked at her uncertainly for a moment, then turned in silence. Lisette had often laughed at the childlike submissiveness of this big, strong man. She did not laugh now. She stood watching him in the half-opened door when presently he drove away.

It was sunset when Reuben returned. After caring for his team he hurried to the house.

Doors and windows were tight shut. His heart gave a quick leap of fear. Could Lisette be ill? He burst into the kitchen. The still room echoed to his tread. The fire had been out for hours. He was striding toward the little bedroom when he caught sight of a folded note, and devoured it with burning eyes.

"Good-by, Reuben," it said. "A letter came from my old manager shortly after you left. He wants me back. I've got to go. It's the only life worth living. It is calling me—I can't shut my ears to the call. Good-by, and God bless you!"

The roll of bills lay beside the note. Mechanically he counted the money. Lisette had taken sufficient to pay her fare on the cars—not a dollar more.

The slow weeks passed. Reuben worked early and late in the fields, a great, patient beast, feeling his hurt less keenly under the pitying sky. It was on returning at night to his fireless hearth and echoing rooms that endurance failed.

So it went on until a month had elapsed. By this time the pain and longing had become unbearable. One day he took a sudden resolve. Of course Lizette would be at the theater where he had first seen and fallen in love with her. He would go there, satisfy himself that she was well and happy, and come quietly away again.

It was not yet noon when he stepped down from his train. Long, weary hours of waiting were before him—the only recourse to tramp the streets until time for the performance to begin.

He had intended getting a seat far back, where he could see without being seen; but found himself, somehow in his old place in the orchestra chairs.

He sat quite rigid until the music took a quicker swing; then his heart seemed to leap into his throat. The ballet flashed forth from the wings, and his eye instantly singled out Lisette. She was all in flaming yellow, and shot toward the footlights like a streak of sunlight. A burst of applause thundered in the house, but she never even smiled. To all appearance adulation did not quicken her pulse by a single beat.

Reuben leaned forward, gripping the seat in front with trembling hands. She was thinner—her face looked haggard and pinched. Had she failed to find happiness and peace in the life of her choice?

There was a breathless moment; then, slowly, her eyes turned in his direction, and looked straight into his own. A quick heave of the bosom, a slight swaying of the graceful figure, was the only sign she gave. The dance was finished without a break.

As Reuben stared at her white face his heart quickened to the rush of tumultuous thoughts. At the slightest sign he would have leapt on the stage before them all, dragged her out of that maddening whirl. But she danced on—how she did dance that night!—and never looked at him again.

When the performance was over he went round to the stage door, without giving himself a moment for consideration what he meant to do. The passageway swarmed with girls, all talking at the same time. After a swift glance around he spoke to a dashing brunette, not really knowing what he said.

"Lisette? Where—where is she?"

The girl looked him slowly over, and broke into a mocking laugh.

"Where? Gone with a handsomer man, you fool!"

He dropped shudderingly into a chair, as if stabbed to the heart. The thought that his wife was false to him had never entered his head.

"Good God! you don't mean—that?" he choked.

Another of the girls pushed her way up to him, touched by the misery in his face.

"Lisette left as soon as her dance was over, without even stopping for her cloak. I've been keeping it for her. But I doubt if she is coming back. You are ill, sir. I'll get you a glass of water."

Reuben drank, scarcely conscious of what he was doing. Something seemed wrong in his head. Rising at length he made his way into the street and stayed himself by the wall, too weak and sick to proceed. The glare of the electric light was on his uplifted face.

Suddenly, from out the crowd pouring from the main entrance, darted a fairy-like creature in spangles and flattering yellow frills. There was a shrill little cry, and strong young arms encircled his neck, holding him tight.

"Rube! Oh, Rube! I was afraid I'd lost you in the crowd. I was knocked down and trampled upon, but I didn't mind. I'd surely have died if you'd gone back to the farm and left me behind. I've wanted you so, Reuben. I've been a silly fool. I didn't know my own mind. But I do now!"

He stood so silent, so unresponsive, a thrill of fear went through the woman's heart.

"Oh, Rube! Aren't you going to forgive me? Aren't you going to take me back?"

"Forgive you?" Take you back? Oh, Lisette!"

And, clasped in each other's arms, husband and wife swayed and sobbed together.

BLOCK SIGNAL MEN LACKING IN TRAINING.

Washington, Jan. 12.—An elaborate report has been submitted to congress by the block signal and train control board of the interstate commerce commission.

During the last year the board examined the specifications of 371 devices; 248 of these being block signals, cab signals or automatic train stopping devices. Only twelve of the devices were considered to possess sufficient merit to warrant the board in authorizing the inventors to establish a working installation, with a view to conducting tests at the government's expense.

In its investigation of the telegraph system, the board finds that many block signal men in the United States are lacking in training and in experience. In some cases there was evidence of the excessive use of intoxicants.

CASS LAKE AFTER NORMAL.

Believes It is Proper Location for New State School.

Cass Lake, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative P. H. McGarry of this district, has introduced a bill into the legislature providing for the establishment of a sixth normal school, to be located here. A similar bill was introduced at the last session, but shortly after other towns decided they also wanted it, and as a result, no new normal school was established. Other bills are likely to be introduced by other representatives, providing for the establishment of the school in some town in their district.

It is generally conceded that another normal school is a necessity. The fact that the five state normal schools are excessively overcrowded seems sufficient reason why another should be erected, and from a geographical standpoint it seems that the logical location would be midway between the counties of Cass, of Beltrami, Itasca and Hubbard. From a hygenic standpoint it would appear that the normal should be located amongst the pines. Here the students would inhale the purest, the freshest and the most wholesome air possible. It would aid materially in strengthening the constitution of the weak, and in all ways improve the physical condition of the student.

FORMER ST. PAUL DOCTOR AIDS EARTHQUAKE VICTIMS

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Thomas J. Maloney, son of Alderman J. F. Maloney of St. Paul, and an attache of the American embassy at Vienna, Austria, has gone to Sicily in answer to the call issued by the King of Italy for surgeons to treat the earthquake sufferers.

Dr. Maloney was released from his diplomatic duties that he might help in the relief work. Mrs. Maloney accompanied her husband on the trip.

LEAGUE IS AFTER 50,000 MEMBERS IN DULUTH

Fight Against Tuberculosis Will be Waged With Vigor.

Plan to Raise Funds to Erect a Sanitarium.

Upon the suggestion of W. D. Underhill the anti-tuberculosis league has taken for its slogan "50,000 members in the city of Duluth."

Work will be begun at once, committees appointed and a general campaign carried on in the city with this object in view. Each new member will be charged $1 for a membership card, and the money will be used to erect a sanarium for the carrying on of the work which the committee believes to be well under way.

This was the most interesting and important of the suggestions made at the meeting of the committee of fifty, held this noon at the Commercial club. The members met for lunch and to talk over the progress made and plan for the future.

The idea made an instantaneous hit with those present as a way out of the present difficulty, which is lack of funds.

Nearly every member of the committee was present and the meeting was an enthusiastic one.

Dr. Bagley told about the crowded tenement houses that had come to his notice, and how in many cases children contracted the disease because they had to daily come in contact with consumptives. He said the most imperative need of the association was a place where these unfortunate people, who could not afford a Western trip, could be treated. He advocated the airy summer house plan and said that this was one of the most important of the problems the committee had to face.

Dr. Jackola told of the conditions in Finland, Germany and England. He said that for the past twenty years they have been putting into practice what the Americans are advocating from one end of the country to the other at this time.

The doctor told of the figures which were recently presented to the American people, and which showed that the yearly death list from this terrible disease was more than 150,000. He compared this total with the number of lives lost during the Civil war, when in the course of three years of fighting only 75,000 lost their lives. "And yet," said he, "every year we lose twice that number from tuberculosis."

Rabbi Lefkovits said in the course of his remarks, that there were just as many suffering from consumption among the wealthy classes as there was among the pooper people. He said that he had traveled all over the West, visiting many noted consumptive hospitals throughout the country, and that he found as many among the wealthy as among the poor. He pointed with pride to the fact that the Jewish people were the first to see the need of a sanitarium, and that they as far back as twelve years ago erected in the city of Denver a hospital for these unfortunates, and that unlike some of the other institutions, no class was kept from entering it. The hospital is maintained by the Jewish people and no money is accepted for treatment.

B. P. Neff spoke briefly. He congratulated the committee on the work already accomplished and wished them success in the future.

"It's not a club that can afford to carry honorary members, because all our members must be workers," he said. "There are three words we must use more or less for our motto, and they are 'co-operation, enthusiasm and work.' To be successful we must have enthusiasm, we must help one another in order to keep that enthusiasm alive, and we know that we cannot succeed unless we all work for that success."

Dr. Robinson spoke very briefly on the great climate of Duluth and its effect on the disease.

The committee today elected officers as follows: W. A. McGonagle, president; Dr. E. L. Twohy, vice president; C. L. Jaskowsky, secretary, and Edward Silberstein, treasurer.

Mr. Silberstein reported that the total sale of the Christmas stamps was 28,000.

WOODSMEN AND SETTLERS SUFFER FROM BITTER COLD

To have passengers with frozen ears, noses, cheeks, feet, or hands, board the trains from the range at out of the way stations, is a common occurrence these days.

Hardly a day has passed since the extremely cold weather started in, that one or more people have not left the trains at the union depot, whose swollen and red features tell all too plainly of the work of "Jack Frost."

Settlers from distant homesteads, and woodsmen who have to walk miles to the railroads, and then stand unsheltered or in unheated station houses, while they wait for the train to bear them to the city, have suffered greatly from the cold.

Patrolman Ek, who yesterday made an arrest near Iron Junction, said this morning that he noticed several people on the train when he brought his captive back, who were suffering from frozen features. One man attracted his attention in particular. One of his cheeks was drawn and wrinkled, and looked brown and hard as if he had been seared by fire. The man's face had evidently been frozen several days ago and was just beginning to heal.

Even squirrel skin caps and sheepskin lined coats afford small protection against 34 degs. below zero on a long walk through the woods, where there is no place within miles where warm shelter can be found. Men working in the woods complain about going to work, and grumble when they have to turn out in the dark cold mornings.

HEARST MEN ARE GUILTY OF LIBEL

The Charge Was Preferred by John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

New York, Jan. 12.—Bradford Merrill, S. S. Carvalho and Edward S. Clark, officers of the Star company, which publishes William R. Hearst's newspaper, the American, were today found guilty of criminal libel on a charge preferred by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and technically committed to the Tombs prison. Magistrate Moss permitted them to remain in the private reception room of the prison while the counsel, Clarence J. Shearn, went before Justice Davis in the supreme court to make application for a writ of habeas corpus.

Mr. Rockefeller charged that the defendants had published a newspaper article accusing him of having caused a system of peonage to be established by a manufacturer of breakfast food in Illinois.

GOLD FROM SAND.

London Daily Mail: To the mouth of the River Colne, off Brightlingsea, an extraordinary machine was towed and anchored yesterday. It is to be used in a final attempt to recover the £500,000 treasure of gold, in coins and bars, which is said to have gone down in H. M. S. Lutine in 1797 near the island of Terschelling, off the coast of Holland.

A portion of the treasure has been recovered, but all ordinary dredging plants are now useless, as the vessel has sunk into the sand. The new device is a great steel tube nearly 100 feet in length and wide enough to allow a man to walk erect down its center. At one end is a metal chamber provided with windows and doors, and at the other a medley of giant hooks and other tackle.

The apparatus has just been completed after years of work by a firm of shipbuilders. "One end of the tube," explained a member of the firm yesterday, "will be clamped to the side of a steamship or barge. The other end, by means of water ballast tanks, will be sunk until it touches the bottom. Then, by means of compressed air, all the water will be forced from the tube and also from the chamber at the bottom of it, flush upon the bed of the sea.

"Divers will walk down a stairway in the center of the tube until they reached the submerged chamber. Here they will don their diving costumes, and opening a series of watertight doors will step straight out into the water. Engineers will be stationed in the chamber, and following the instructions of the divers, who will communicate with them by means of portable telephones, they will operate the mechanism of two powerful suction pumps or dredgers which are fitted to the sides of the tube. These dredgers, it is hoped, will suck away the sand around the sides of the heavy chamber until it gradually sinks by its own weight right down to the deck of the wrecked ship. Then the divers making their way from the chamber to the deck of the ship and thence to the hold, will be able to transfer the treasure from the ship to the chamber by easy stages."

THE MALACCA WIDLCATS.

London Standard: In the forests of Malacca and other islands in the Indian ocean may still be found the animal known as a wildcat. The upper parts of it are generally of a clear yellow color, with black spots; the lower parts are white with black spots also. On the back the spots lengthen almost into lines or rings, black on yellow.

The average length of the animal, excluding the tail, is almost two feet; the tail averages nine inches. Its height when standing erect is about twelve inches at the shoulder and fifteen inches at the hindquarters. Its temper is mild and gentle; it plays almost like a domestic cat, or rather kitten, chasing its tail and amusing itself with anything that it can roll with its paws.

Don't sit and look on while some other man gets all the business in your line. By advertising in this paper you can enjoy the sensation of seeing things move with a rush.

COPPER STOCKS HAVE WEAK TONE

Market is Sold Off and Closing Prices Show a Loss.

Listed copper stocks were weak again today. They were about unchanged at the opening, but a weaker tone developed during the first hour and the market failed to show any strength after that. North Butte opened at $82, advanced to $82.25, declined to $81.12½ and closed at $81 bid and $81.75 asked. Amalgamated opened at $81.87½, went off to $81, rallied to $81.75, declined to $81.25 and closed at $81.50 bid and $81.75 asked.

Greene-Cananea opened at $12, declined to $11.50 and closed at $11.62½ bid and $11.75 asked. Butte Coalition opened at $26.25, went to $26.37½, declined to $26.12½ and closed at $26 bid and $26.25 asked. Calumet & Arizona opened at $115, advanced to $117, declined to $115 and closed at $115 bid and $116 asked. Anaconda opened at $47.75 and closed at $47.75 bid.

It was reported during the session that the Cole-Ryan crowd had secured control of Giroux. The stock sold off from $10.25 to $8.87½ and closed at $9 bid and $9.12 asked.

Superior & Pittsburg sold at $16.87½ and $16.75 and closed at $16.50 bid and $16.75 asked. Calumet & Sonora was a big feature of the curb market. It was bid up to $17.50 without a sale, and closed at $17.50 bid and $18.12½ asked. Butte-Ballaklava sold at $15 and closed at $14.87½ bid and $15 asked.

Red Warrior sold at $2.62½ and closed at $2.75 bid and $3 asked; Globe at $7 and closed at $7 bid and $7.25 asked; National at 65 cents, went off to 64 cents, rallied to 68 cents and closed at 64 cents bid; Cactus at 95 cents and closed at 93 cents bid and 95 cents asked and Superior & Boston at $16.50 and $16.37½ and closed at $16.50 bid and $16.75 asked.

Denn-Arizona was inactive and closed at $3.75 bid and $4 asked, Mowitza at $1.75 bid and $2 asked, Butte & Superior at 83 cents bid and 88 cents asked, Carman at $2.25 bid and $2.50 asked, Savanna at $3 bid and $3.25 asked, Cliff at $1.87½ bid and $2 asked, Copper Queen at $1.50 bid and $1.75 asked.

Black Mountain closed at $3 bid and $3.25 asked.

The Women's Progressive association of New South Wales has won what it considers a great victory. Three hundred thousand dollars had been voted to increase the salaries of the teachers of the public schools. The men teachers, if reports are true, tried to gobble it all up, but the association, whose members are all voters, thought the women teachers were entitled to a share. They fought the point and won.

BIG GAME IN ZAMBESI.

Sportsman's Paradise, Says One Who Crossed the Country.

Cape Argus: "I consider Central Africa to be the sportsman's paradise," said J. J. Reynard of the Cape to Cairo telegraph construction staff. Mr. Reynard, who had come down to Cape Town for a short visit, has been for ten years in the various British portions of Central Africa south and north of the Zambesi.

"Game is so plentiful," he said, "that in passing viei lands I have seen eland, zebra, hartebeeste, reedbuck and rhino grazing together, while hippo are plentiful in almost all rivers. I have myself shot six of these in one hunt, all the meat being saved for the camp by the natives, who dry what they do not eat.

"Lions are as common as jackals, and their roaring at night around the hunter's camp is constant, but they are not frequently seen and it is far safer to travel through the veld than by river, where lurk the dreaded crocodile. I have known forty natives taken in one year by crocodile. If the sportsman takes the train in the dry season to Broken Hill, the present terminus of the line, he will find all the sport he requires."

Mr. Reynard, himself a striking advertisement of the salubrity of the climate, is strongly of opinion that the elevated portions of the vast inland territory will carry Europeans.

"European children in the country," he said, "are very healthy, and though there are not many European women those who are there appear to thrive. You must understand, however, that communication is not easy, that the stations are 100 miles apart, and that all traveling is done with the help of native porters. The travelers' loads are carried on the heads of the porters and the travelers on the porters' shoulders in the machilla." A machilla, it may be explained, is a kind of litter. A lad- traveler who recently published a book on her journeyings between the Cape and Cairo was so carried nearly all the way.

Note that Mr. Reynard referred to the "elevated" parts of the country, not the river valleys, in his remark upon the salubrity of the climate.

"The natives," he says, "are exceedingly loyal people, more especially in the British portions of Central Africa known as Northeastern Rhodesia and Nyassaland Protectorate. During many years residence in the country, during which I have traveled many thousands of miles, I have never met with an insolent chief. The European traveler on approaching a kraal is met at the village by the chief and is pointed out the best site for his camp, while water and fuel are provided by the chief's wives.

"Invariably the traveler is presented with food, in some parts with a young ox, in others with sheep, goats, fowls or pigeons. Labor is cheap and adults will work away from the civilized centers such as Blantyre for the official standard wage of three shillings per month, together with one yard of calico per week used in exchange for food. Again the native porter will carry a fifty-six pound load a distance of 200 miles for five shillings, together with four yards of calico."

The people are fonder of work than those in the south, but owing to the high mortality among those who went to the Rand mines, the imperial government stopped recruiting.

RETIRED LITERARY MAN.

On Walking as an Aid to Mental Activity.

New York Sun: "Some writers," said the retired literary man, "are as full of ideas and their ideas are so constantly ready to flow that if they were ambidextrous they could write two stories at once, and these stories would be of equal quality.

"But not all of us are so gifted, or, I might perhaps more accurately say, endowed. With some of us there are times when our ideas, if we have any, cease to flow, when they seem to be coagulated or when, so to speak, our mental pigeot seems to be choked up and we can't get anything through it.

"In such cases, young gentlemen (the speaker was addressing his class of young literary aspirants) it is well to take a walk. When your head becomes thus clogged then lay aside the pen and put a heavy paperweight on your manuscript and take a walk. Walking is the greatest brain clearer yet invented.

"Walk around the block, walk around several blocks. And as you walk you will find your ideas almost before you know coming to life again joyously and smiling at you and you will smile back in return out of pure freshness of spirit. And you go back and take up your pen and begin again to write. And now peasant is writing now, with fancies full fledged coming to you faster than you can write them—if you had the ideas in your mind, the call to write, originally. And here, young gentlemen, we come to the critical point.

"Many of us who think we are called to write would really do better as farmers or blacksmiths, and it would be well far each of us individually to ponder this seriously before settling upon the literary as a life pursuit. We might do better coopering barrels or motoring a trolley car.

"We are so apt to mistake pleasant fancies for fruitful ideas, so apt to think that if we can conjure up pleasant images in the brain we can transmit them to paper. Many persons have deceived themselves in this manner only to find when it was too late, to learn a trade that they had sadly mistaken their calling.

"There may be such among you, young gentlemen, here today; young men ambitious of success and distinction in literary pursuits, but whom no amount of walking would do any good; young men who mistake sterility of ideas for moods or a temporary clogging of the fountain who might walk around the globe without result in mental productivity.

"Search your minds, young gentlemen, and if any among you have doubts, forbear; take up some other pursuit before it is too late, for so far as returns are concerned, unless a man is charged with real ideas and blessed with the power to express them, he might better drive a grocery wagon than labor in the literary vineyard.

MARY'S LETTER.

Chicago News: "It's a letter from Mary," said the man's wife, looking up at her husband. "I'll let you see it in a minute."

"Don't hurry," said the man, taking another bite of toast. "I don't think I'd have time to read it, anyway. Nothing exciting, is there?"

"I don't know what you would call exciting," said his wife. "She say's the baby's beginning to talk already."

"That's important, if true," observed the man. "Just think of that."

"It certainly is remarkable," said the man's wife. "She's not more than a year old. You always sneer at Mary's letters."

"I don't mean to," said the man. "I think you imagine it. I wonder when she'll learn to stop talking. I don't refer to Mary, but the kid. Mary won't be able to teach her, though. 'The mother tongue!' What a particularly apt phrase that is! You never quite realize it until you think how absurd it would be to say 'father tongue.'"

"Or 'father wit,'" suggested the man's wife. "My dear I notice that you can talk now and then."

"Whenever I get a chance," admitted the man. "What else has Mary got to say?"

"I'd rather not tell you," said the man's wife. "I guess I won't let you see the letter, either, come to think of it."

"You won't disappoint me in that way, would you?" pleaded the man. "You know how sad that would make me. Of course, I won't urge it if you are determined not to, but I must say it isn't like your usual wifely confidence. I'll apologize for what I said, if that's it."

"Oh, I don't mind what you say," declared the man's wife. "I'm used to it. I didn't want to hurt your feelings, that's all. They've moved into their new house and they like it very much."

"Being a new house and having just moved into it, they naturally would like it," said the mal. "That doesn't give me any sharp stabs of anquish I'm glad they like it and I shall be sorry and sympathetic when they don't. I haven't any feeling of animosity toward Mary, or her husband, either. You're just a little too considerate of me, dearest."

"That wasn't what I was thinking of when I said I wouldn't let you see the letter. It was something very different. I don't really think Mary meant it as a reflection on you. If I had been in her place I don't think I would have said anything about it. She lacks tact."

"Don't let it prey on your mind at all," said the man. "I feel confident that she didn't mean anything; if she had she wouldn't have said it. What was she knocking me about, anyway?"

"I tell you I don't think she meant to reflect on you," said the man's wife. "As a matter of fact, she didn't mention your name. It was just a little piece of news that she thought she'd give me."

The man looked uneasy. "Mary doesn't know anything about me that I wouldn't be perfectly willing to tell you myself," he said. "Let me see her letter."

"No, sir," said the man's wife, quickly withdrawing the criss-crossed pages from his reach

"Feil me then."

"It wasn't anything."

"If it wasn't anything, why don't you tell me or let me see the letter?"

"It was only that Robert had bought her a beautiful new set of furs—Russian sable. That was all, really. You can read the letter if you want to."

The man stared. "What on earth made you think that would hurt my feelings?"

The man's wife hesitated. "Weil," she said, "I supposed that when you thought of my shabby old set you might feel a little bad because you can't afford—"

"Wait till Christmas and we'll see what happens," said the man hastily. "Mary's always getting me into trouble."

LITTLE GIRLS AS JURORS.

Kansas City Journal: Judge Van B. Prather of the probate court of Wyandotte county is a busy man, but he took five minutes off yesterday afternoon to speak ot a bevy of little girls from Toad-a-Loup, a suburb of Armourdale, who had come to the juvenile court as witnesses in the case of Ezra Moulton, charged with incorrigibility.

While the lawyers were arguing the case before Probation Officer W. W. Lavey, Judge Prather invited the witnesses into his private office. "Now, little girls," said the judge gravely, when the youthful visitors were all seated in an expectant circle, "most of you came here in behalf of the defendant, little Ezra Moulton. I have written my decision on a slip of paper. You will each take one of these slips and write on it your opinion as to what the punishment of Ezra Moulton should be—a good whipping by his mother here in the court room or several long years in the house of correction."

When Judge Prather returned to the office after leaving the jury to meditate a few minutes he found them all in favor of the whipping.

"That was what I had written," said the judge triumphantly. "The jury is dismissed."

Mrs. Moulton, however, refused to whip her child in the court room and so was allowed by the court to take him to the back porch, where in a few minutes the judicial decree was fully carried out."

Mrs. Louise Waterman Carpenter of Brookline, Mass., has just passed her 102nd birthday. She was born at Warwick, R. I., and is a direct descendant of Roger Williams. She is in good health and active enough to get about unassisted, and until three years ago, felt no need for glasses.

SOO GETS FRANCHISE

Given Right to Construct Approaches to Interstate Bridge.

Protest is Filed by Duluth Terminal Railroad Company.

By unanimous vote, the council last night adopted an ordinance granting a franchise to the Duluth & Thunder Bay Railroad company, otherwise the Soo, to build a double-track railroad approach to the interstate bridge, the structure to be completed next July.

Before the matter was put to vote, a communication was read from the Duluth Terminal Railway company, claiming that an early ordinance granting them the right to operate in Duluth, gave them the exclusive right to build an approach to the bridge, and a protest was entered against adopting the Soo ordinance.

City Attorney Wilson, when asked in regard to the matter later, said the Terminal company's franchise does not give it exclusive rights. It is said the matter will be taken into the courts. The ordinance covering the Soo franchise was drawn up by City Attorney Wilson and the council committee on ordinances and resolutions, and is entirely satisfactory to the city. The Soo granted everything asked, including tax assessment and telephone clauses. Under the terms of the franchise, the Soo will grant any railroad the right to use the approach to the interstate bridge, and every road using said approach will be subject to the same terms at the hands of the city as the Soo itself.

The Terminal company submitted quite a lengthy communication, claiming its rights under an ordinance passed April 20, 1888. The company was organized the preceding year, and since then has built a network of tracks in Duluth. Under its franchise, it now demands the use of the interstate bridge, because the old Northern Pacific bridge is inadequate to meet the needs of the service.

The communication expressed it as being the intention of the company to speedily build an elevated extension to connect with other roads of the city, and that it will serve the other roads and public and not discriminate against any road in its local operations.

The Duluth Terminal company is subsidiary to the Great Northern, whose application for a franchise to the interstate bridge was turned down by the council because the road refused to accede to what the council thought were reasonable demands made by the city.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS.
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

THE HOUSE COMMITTEES ANNOUNCED BY SPEAKER

counts and expenditures, reapportionment, printing.

Graham—Education, insurance, judiciary, public health, public parks, railroads, soldiers' home, state normal schools.

Grant—Express and telegraph, judiciary, mines and minerals, military affairs, municipal legislation.

Austin — Corporations other than municipal, judiciary, mines and mining, reapportionment, rules, and chairman of state and other libraries.

Borgen—Agriculture, drainage, grain and warehouse, taxes and tax laws, state training school, agricutural schools.

By committees, the assignments are as follows:

Judiciary—Grant, Austin, Congdon and Graham. Representative Graham is a physician, but the judiciary committee was found to be one larger than the number of lawyers in the house, and he was complimented by this assignment. Curiously enough, the same thing happened six years ago, when Dr. Graham was first a member of the house. He was assigned to the judiciary committee, and upon the organization of that body was placed upon the sub-committee of "curative legislation," out of consideration for his medical proclivities.

Railroads—Congdon, Graham.

Taxes and tax laws—Congdon, Borgen.

Mines and minerals—Grant, Austin.

Express and telegraph—Grant.

Military affairs—Grant.

Municipal legislation—Grant, Congdon

Banks and banking—Buck.

Grain and warehouse—Buck, Borgen.

Insurance—Buck, Graham.

Labor—Buck.

Public accounts and expenditures—Buck.

Reapportionment—Buck, Austin.

Printing—Buck.

Education—Congdon, Graham.

Public health—Congdon, Graham.

Corporations other than municipal—Austin.

State and other libraries—Austin, chairman.

Rules—Austin.

Public parks—Graham.

Soldiers' home—Graham.

State normal schools—Graham.

Agriculture—Borgen.

Drainage—Borgen

State training school—Borgen.

State agricultural schools—Borgen.

University and university lands—Avenue, and their home and its contents were destroyed by the big fire which visited that part of the city in the summer of 1898. The home, which was destroyed yesterday, was bought by subscription money raised among sympathetic Duluthians.

The homeless family is at present staying with Mrs. T. J. Davis of Sixteenth avenue east and London road. There was no insurance on the house.

Last night's session was brief in both houses. In the senate there was no quorum, and an adjournment was taken to 11 this morning. Immediately after adjournment another senate came in, enough to make the quorum, but it was too late. In the house there was a quorum, and all the Duluth members were in their seats, but nothing was done except to make a slight change in the order of the rules of the house so as to make the rule governing the order of business easier to find. The house then adjourned until 10 this morning.

State Labor Commissioner Williams, who has been displaced by W. E. McEwen of Duluth, is trying to interest the senate in his fight to retain his place. He had placed upon the desks of the senators last night copies of a "supplementary report" in which he attempted to advance reasons why there should be no change. It is not likely that the senate will interest itself in his complaints, and it is expected that Mr. McEwen's indorsement by the senate will go through without much if any debate.

Committee chairmanships are substantially as reported last week in The Herald. Representative Austin is the only St. Louis county member to land a chairmanship, and Dr. Graham has more committees than any other Duluth member. C. A. Congdon is ranking member of the judiciary committee, next to the chairman.

The announcement of the committees has been awaited with intense interest, and while, of course, there must always be some disappointed ones, it is generally agreed that the speaker has handled this delicate task with great tact and sound judgment, and that he has dealt with the members in a spirit of great fairness to all parties concerned.

Representative Thomas J. Brady of St. Paul, one of the Democratic minority, but one of the livest and liveliest members of the house, is to be the author of a bill requiring a physician's certificate of good health as an essential to the securing of a marriage license. The object, of course, is to prevent the marriage of persons having diseases likely to be communicated to their offspring.

CITY'S REVENUE FROM LICENSES

Nearly $200,000 From This Source During the Year.

One hundred and eighty-two licenses, netting the city $182,000, were issued during 1908, according to the annual report of City Clerk Cheadle, submitted to the council last night. Other licenses issued, and the money resulting from such issuance, were as follows: 132 hacks and drays, $503.62; 30 pool and billiard rooms, $60.30; 31 plumbers, $159.62; one exhibition, $20; three circuses, $456; two shooting galleries, $150; 14 auctioneers, $971.50; 18 employment offices for men, $1,671.06; three employment offices for women, $25; six pawn brokers, $680.55; 1,600 dogs, $1,820; 282 peddlers and hawkers, $784; 26 wagon peddlers, $1,850; four meat peddlers, $40; 10 theaters, $485; 10 fortune tellers, $600; five house movers, $50; 136 fireworks, $34; total licenses received, $182,914.65; clerk's fees for issuing, which goes to the city, $1,587.20.

TWO DEALS IN BUSINESS SITES

Valuable Superior Street Property Changes Hands.

Two deals in Superior street real estate, which were mentioned in the resume of last week's real estate developments in The Herald Saturday evening, were completed through the office of C. P. Craig yesterday.

The three-story Wieland block at the northeast corner of Second avenue west and Superior street was sold by the Davis Real Estate company to S. S. Altschul of Duluth for $52,500. The property fronts twenty-five feet on Superior street and extends 140 feet on the alley. The building was constructed fifteen years ago, has a brownstone front, and the walls are of brick.

The Davis Real Estate company also sold to Eastern parties a lot 25x140 feet at 14 West Superior street, the consideration being $38,000. The property is occupied by an old frame building, but the site is right in the heart of the business district of the city and is a valuable one. The trustee of an estate is said to be the purchaser, but his name is withheld.

LITTLE HOME IS DESTROYED

Misfortune Seems to Pursue Family of Mrs. August Kruger.

The little home of Mrs. August Kruger Eighteenth avenue east and Water street, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon, while she was working at the home of an East end family, and her three children were away at school. It is believed the blaze originated in a defective stovepipe.

Misfortune seems to pursue Mrs. Kruger. Her husband, who was a tugman, died six or seven years ago. The family at that time lived on Lake

FIRE DAMAGES GROCERY STORE

Smoke and Water Destroy $3,000 Worth of Groceries.

Stock in the basement of the Folz grocery store, in the Oppel block, 115-117 East Superior street, was damaged to the extent of $3,000 by a fire which started at 7:45 o'clock last evening. The stock of groceries was covered by $9,000 insurance. The building itself was only slightly damaged.

A dense volume of smoke was pouring from the building when the department arrived, making it difficult to locate the flames, and it was necessary to literally flood the basement before the blaze was extinguished. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The department arrived on the scene just as the theater crowds were on their way to the Lyceum, and as the cars were stalled until the hose crossover could be brought, most of the theatergoers from the East end were compelled to walk from Second avenue east to the Lyceum.

Stove Prices Tumble
On Universals Too!

When we advertised that practically everything in the house would be subject to discount during this—the greatest January Clearance and Half-Price Sale that Duluth has ever seen in Furniture and Housefurnishings, we meant just what we said, and UNIVERSALS are not excepted.

Yes, we know—selling Universals at regular prices is almost like swapping dollars; and it is only natural to suppose that we would not include Universals in our January Clearance Sale.

But all this week our Great Clearance Sale will continue in all lines and the celebrated "Universals" as well as our other lines of stoves can be bought at a LIBERAL DISCOUNT.

IMPERIAL UNIVERSAL

The Saving on Universals

In considering the Universal Stoves, please bear in mind that they are in a class by themselves, embodying special features and advantages never before put into any stove. The Universal Hard Coal Heater is guarantced by the makers to have more direct radiating surface than any other base burner made, which means less fuel for the same amount of heat obtained. They are beautifully nickel trimmed—no more handsome stove made.

Come in and let us explain in detail why UNIVERSALS ARE BETTER.

Universals save fuel, dirt, annoyance. You save when you buy a Universal, no matter what you pay, but this week the PRICE SAVING will be as follows:

$37.50 Sparkling Universal—Small size Sale price $30.00
$42.50 Sparkling Universal — Medium size, sale price $34.00

consisted of a very careful consideration of certain legal phases of the Brownsville affair, and the reading of a number of affidavits by soldiers, whose testimony and "confessions" Mr. Browne alleged he had secured to unravel the mystery of the identity of the men who did the shooting, and these affidavits denied with great particularity nearly every statement of importance made by the detectives.

The senator received close attention from his colleagues. Among the visitors in the gallery was a large number of negro men and women, many of whom have been present on every occasion when Foraker has defended the negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth regiment. Foraker had prepared his speech very carefully, but his reading of the manuscript had all of the interest of an extemporaneous address.

Speaking of the $3,000,000 war fund of 1899, appropriated as an emergency fund "to meet unforeseen contingencies constantly arising to be expended at the discretion of the president," Mr. Foraker said:

Surprising Information.

"It will probably be surprising information to the appropriations committee, as it will be to most senators, that this appropriation, made ten years ago at the close of the Spanish-American war, to enable the president to meet emergency army contingencies such as were then arising in connection with our military establishment, should have been construed to be a permanent appropriation, and that there is still a large unexpended balance out of which payments of the character now under consideration are being made."

Foraker declared that section 193 of the revised statutes enacted in 1842 and still in force directs the head of each department to make an annual report to congress giving a detailed statement of the manner in which the contingent fund of his department has been expended, giving the names of every person to whom any portion of such fund has been paid.

"This appropriation," he said, "being for the war department, the report should have been made by the secretary of war, and he is not relieved of that duty by the fact that the money can be expended only with the approval of the president. The secretary of war evidently has entertained this view, but so far as I can ascertain no detailed or itemized reports to congress of expenditures from this fund have been made, but only general reports showing the aggregate sums expended for each year."

A Remote Contingency.

The "contingency" under which this use of the war fund of 1899 was used, Mr. Foraker declared, was "the remote one that men should be required to prove their innocence of a crime before a judge who had already pronounced them guilty "under a bill then pending in the senate."

"And all this," insisted Foraker, "in the presence of the fact that there was bitter and determined opposition to the measure and that there was another measure pending which provided that all might be re-enlisted who cared to re-enlist, but that the right to further prosecute before civil or military tribunals should be reserved as to all against whom any evidence might be secured in any manner at any time after such enactment.

Speaking of the use of private detectives in investigating the Brownsville affair Mr. Foraker declared:

"It is impossible to find language with which to fittingly characterize such a procedure as this detective business has been from its incipiency down to the monstrous stages it has reached. It is atrocious, revolting, shocking to every sense of fairness, justice and even common decency."

SAYS HAINS IS MADMAN

acy of Bayside Yacht club members to convict the defendant. The killing of Annis, declared Mr. McIntyre, was done by a madman—"a man whose mind was dismantled and dethroned by the conduct of a libertine." He denied that it was prompted by the defendant.

Throughout their evidence, counsel said, Andrews, Birchfield, Storms and other witnesses for the prosecution were influenced by motives of revenge.

"The prosecution will say," continued McIntyre, "that Thornton Hains approved the killing of Annis. His approval forms no basis. Assuming for the purposes of this case that he merely mentally acquiesced in the killing of Annis, for that he is not guilty, even though he simply approved of the killing of Annis. He is not guilty even though Thornton Hains believed in the law which regulated duty and calls the invasion of the privity of the home a sin."

Mr. McIntyre reviewed the points of evidence carefully and embellished the recital of his address with rhetorical skill, and held the jury's close attention throughout the day. Thornton Hains made frequent notes upon a tablet and scrutinized the jury. Gen. Hains and his son, Maj. Hains, sat within the enclosure. The old general sat with his bowed head resting upon his hand, and not infrequently a tear coursed down his cheek as counsel summed up the evidence to prove that "Thornton Hains only tried to protect his brother from an infuriated crowd."

Freezing Weather Extends to Texas; 21 Below in Duluth.

It was 21 degs. below zero in Duluth at 7 o'clock this morning.

At 10 o'clock it was 15 below, with the mercury rapidly rising.

Today, tonight and Wednesday it will be anywhere from 5 to 15 degs. below the nothing point.

The cold is still general all over the Northwest. Zero weather extends east into Michigan, south to Missouri and Kansas and west to British Columbia and Eastern Washington.

Freezing weather extended south to the Ohio river, Tennessee, Western Louisiana and Texas. At Abilene, Tex., it was 8 above; at San Antonio, 20 above, and Galveston, 30. This is very unusual weather for these points.

Many little lives have been saved by Foley Honey and Tar, for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Firemen Have Two Runs.

The fire deupartment was given two runs this morning. Neither was of much consequence. One was to a woodyard shack on the alley at Second avenue west, between First and Second streets. The blaze started from an overheated stove, and was quickly extinguished.

The other was to a small dwelling at the fair grounds, Fortieth avenue west and Grand. The fire caught from a defective chimney. The damage amounted to about $100.

BLAME JONES FOR FAILURE

Missing North Dakota Banker Responsible for Brainerd Bank Trouble.

Security State Bank Will Reopen, Opinion of Public Examiner.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—That the Security State bank of Brainerd, which closed last week, will reopen its doors for business in the near future is the prediction of A. E. Schaefer, public examiner, who made a statement to that effect before leaving for St. Paul this morning. The closing of the bank, he stated, cast no reflection on the honor or integrity of the officers or stockholders; they were simply the dupe of a rascal. Along with some of the best business men of Grand Forks and Fargo and business men in other Minnesota and Dakota towns, they appear to have been deceived by Andy Jones, the absconding president of the Rugby, N. D., First National bank. Tempted by the 10 per cent which North Dakota paper bears, the officers of the Brainerd bank had invested heavily in the securities offered for sale by the Rugby bank. Whether or not these securities have any value is a question. Mr. Schaefer, upon his arrival in this city Monday, at once charged them all off the books as worthless, and levied an assessment of 100 cents on the dollar of the capital stock of the bank.

Assessment Will be Paid.

This he states he has assurance will be paid. George Storck the father of A. E. Storck, the cashier, would, Mr. Schaefer was given to understand, take care of any stock which the owner di dnot care to, or was not able to pay the dividend upon. This he said would put the bank on its feet again and when this assessment is paid he will authorize the bank to commence business again. The stockholders have sixty days, under the law, in which to pay their assessments, but it is believed that it will take less time than that by far to get the assessment paid in and the bank in running order. The bank would then, he said, be perfectly sound and with the conservative management which he felt sure would follow the present experience, he believes the bank will hold the confidence of the people and grow and prosper.

There would not be one dollar loss to the depositors Mr. Schaefer believed, whether the bank reopened or not. There was, he said, much more than enough stock in the hands of men able and willing to pay to meet every claim against the institution. The affair had been, he said, very unfortunate, but reflected blame or dishonor upon no one here.

OLD PAIR LEAVE THEIR FAMILIES

Father of Sixteen Children and Mother of Ten Have Disappeared.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Knute O. Sjoll, whose home was about four miles east of this city, disappeared here on teh afternoon of Dec. 12, and nothing has since been heard from her. Mr. and Mrs. Sjoll came into this city on that date, and the latter went to visit at the home of some friends. She agreed to meet her husband at a store here late in the afternoon to return home with him. He went to the store as agreed, and remained until evening, when he went to the place where she had been visiting, and was informed that she had left an hour or more before.

While nothing definite is known, Mr. Sjoll is of the opinion that his wife has left the country in company with another resident of this vicinity, who disappeared about the same time, and who leaves sixteen children. He is 60 years of age. Mrs. Sjoll is the mother of twelve children, of whom ten are living. She is 55 years of age. The case is naturally arousing a great deal of interest here. Mrs. Sjoll cooked for J. F. Johnson during the threshing season.

PROCTOR MAN MARRIES.

Negaunee, Mich., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Scanlon of Proctor, Minn., and Miss Anna Reidy of this city were married this morning at St. Paul's church. The bridegroom formerly resided here and both he and the bride are well known in this locality. The wedding was witnessed by a number of invited guests. After a wedding journey the couple will reside in the Minnesota town.

MURDER WAS MYSTERY.

Killing of Soldier by Soldier at Fort Brady, Puzzling.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Coporal John E. Gibson, who shot and killed Private John McManus at Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie, last Wednesday, is to be handed over to the federal authorities for prosecution, as the crime was committed on a government reservation, and it is likely that the case will be tried in the United States district court, which will sit in Marquette next May.

The murder is shrouded in mystery, as Gibson has steadfastly refused to talk, and no motive for the shooting has been discovered. The story is being told by those who knew the murdered man that he was enlisted under an assumed name, which fact may have a bearing on the case. McManus had been transferred to Fort McKinley at Portland, Me., and was to have left the Soo the day after he was shot. He had recently been reduced in rank from a corporal to a private.

Photograph of Homesteader and Nine Children in Records.

Aitkin, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Stepanek of the town of Balsam has made proof on his homestead before Clerk of the Court Seavey.

To the papers in the case Clerk Seavey will attach a photograph showing the house and improvements, and the family group, consisting of Stepanek, wife and nine children.

LOVE TURNS TO HATE.

Wife of Condemned Man is Divoreed and Remarried.

Minot, N. D., Jan. 12.—The wife of D. M. Noah, the murderer, was united in marraige about two weeks ago to a young man from Douglas, N. D., where the woman has been making her home with her parents since her husband's arrest for the murder of old man Johnson, the Kenmare farmer.

The woman secured a divorce from her brutal husband a short time after his conviction, and soon after began accepting the attentions of a young man from Douglas and it has been arranged between the couple to have the marriage pulled off about the time of the execution of Noah. It was agreed to have the marriage performed the same day, but their plans were interfered with when Attorney Leighton secured a stay of execution for Noah, pending an appeal to the supreme court, asking that the sentence of death be commuted on account of the insanity of Noah at the time that he committed the foul murder. Mrs. Noah and her little babe were present at the trial when her husband was found guilty and at the time evidenced much sorrow over the mess that her husband had wantonly gotten himself into. Her love turned to hatred, when she realized the enormity of the crime that the man had committed, and she lost no time in supplanting her sorrows with the happiness of another marriage.

LITTLE ONES BURNED.

Fire's Awful Work in Home of North Dakotan.

Dickinson, N. D., Jan. 12.—A shocking tragedy occurred at a farm house ten miles from this city a few days ago. Mrs. Joseph Kohl, wife of a Hungarian homesteader, went to a neighbor's house for a visit, leaving her husband to care for the four young children.

While the father was working about the yard the house took fire, and before he could get to the children an 8-year old girl burned to death, and the clothing of the three younger girls was on fire. It was a bitter cold day, and the 4-year old daughter of the frantic man died in his arms before he could reach the neighbor's. Another still younger child will die, and a fourth has terrible burns and frosted feet. Kohl also lost his horses in the same fire. The family came from Hungary a year ago.

WANTS FLAX TARIFF OFF.

Eau Claire Capitalist Says New Industries Will Result.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 12.—O. H. Ingram has forwarded a communication to Congressmen Esch and Jenkins petitioning that the tariff on flax be taken off. He declared that if this is done he felt like building a linen mill ten times larger than the one now located here.

"There used to be," said Mr. Ingram, "a good many linen mills in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, and some on the West coast and I understand nearly every one but the one here has made a failure of it and shut down. The mill here went into the hands of a receiver a few years ago and I then purchased it."

Some flax is raised in this vicinity and there is a flax mill west of the city, but not enough is produced to fill the demand. In Europe, declares Mr. Ingram, much of the yarn is prepared for market by hand which work can be done cheaper than in America.

JOHN DIETZ'S PARTNER GETS WRIT OF ERROR.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Jan. 12.—Valentine Welsenbach, associate of John Dietz, the Cameron dam defender, has been successful in his appeal to the supreme court in securing a writ of error, and the case will be heard before the court Jan. 26. Welsenbach was tried four years ago on the charge of assault with intent to kill, was found guilty, and sentenced to serve a term of twelve years in the penitentiary. He was associated with Dietz in the defense of Cameron dam and when the Mississippi River Logging company sent a crew of men to move logs above the Cameron dam, Welsenbach is alleged to have fired upon them.

Marquette County Convictions.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the last half of 1908, in the county of Marquette, there have been 276 prosecutions for crimes and misdemeanors, according to the semi-annual report of Prosecuting Attorney Frank A. Bell. Out of this number, 263 were convicted; five were acquitted, two were dismissed on poyment of costs and six were nol prossed. Of the total number of offenders, 211 were charged with disorderly conduct, which in most cases, was the result of drunkenness.

Green Bay Is Frozen.

Memominee, Mich., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Green bay is a sheet of ice as far as the eye can reach. The harbors of Menominee and Marinette are frozen and it is thought that the Ann Arbor ferries, which have been running regularly up to the time of the present cold snap, must discontinue their trips for the winter season.

STOLEN MONEY USELESS.

Youthful Thief Hangs Onto Train and is Frozen.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—With over $20 in cash, a fine ladies' gold watch and other valuables in his pocket, George Boyd, aged 19, negro from Chicago, rode all the way from Elroy to Eau Claire, a distance of over 100 miles, in the cold wintry blasts early Sunday morning hanging onto the back end of a tender on an Omaha passenger train. So cold was the ride that the young fellow's feet were quite badly frozen when he arrived here.

The reason for taking such an uncomfortable and dangerous ride at that time of the night, when he had money enough to pay for "riding the cushions," where it was warm and comfortable, lies in the fact that the money aforesaid in his possession was stolen, and he therefore risked life and limb in an effort to escape detection. But in this he failed, for shortly after he arrived here he came under the eagle eye of the police and was promptly placed in the city jail.

The Elroy authorities were notified of the capture and the sheriff and the constable came after Boyd and took him back Sunday night.

McVEY IS SELECTED.

Chairman of Minnesota Tax Commission Made College President.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The board of regents of the University of North Dakota last evening elected Franklin McVey, chairman of the Minnesota tax commission, and formerly professor of economics at the University of Minnesota, president of the North Dakota institution succeeding President Merrifield.

President Merrifield will retire from the university next June, after twenty-five years' successful work.

NEW MINOT BRIDGE.

Minot, N. D., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Plans for the new Belyea avenue bridge, which will be constructed in the city of Minot at a cost of approximately $6,000, have been adopted by the Ward county commissioners, and bids were advertised for to be received Feb. 1.

County Surveyor Thomas submitted three plans, one calling for a steel structure and two for reinforced concrete. The steel bridge will cost from $5,00 0to $6,000 and the reinforced concrete bridge about $1,000 more.

Whichever plan is adopted, the bridge will be one of the finest in Ward county and will supply a much needed want.

MUNICIPAL PLANT MAKES NICE PROFIT IN MARQUETTE

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report of Supt. Retallic for the month of November, presented at the meeting of the light and power commission yesterday, shows a net profit for the month of $4,270.17, as compared with $3,533.15 for November a year ago. The earnings from business lights for the month were about $370 less than a year ago, while the increase in earnings from residence lights was about $300. The report shows a total of 1,580 installations, an increase of 171 within the year. The cash balance on hand is $16,378.87.

LEFT MANY CHILDREN.

Marinette, Wis., Jan. 12.—One of the most pathetic ceremonies ever solemnized in Marinette was the funeral of Mrs. Nowakowski, 38 years of age, who died leaving nine children.

Joseph La Fontaine, an old and respected citizen of Marinette, dropped dead, just after returning from a walk.

Mankato Poultry Show a Success.

Mankato, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The poultry exhibit in the Mankato building is regarded by experts as the finest ever seen in Mankato. The building is filled to its capacity, and there would have been from 250 to 300 more birds had it not been for the extreme cold just before the birds were to be shipped.

The number of birds scoring above ninety is very large. The coops are arranged in very neat and tasty order, and the room is prettily decorated. All hopes of the management have been surpassed.

Duluthians Called to Stillwater.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Peterson, of Duluth, have been in the city a few days, called here by the death of Mrs. Peter C. Peterson.

Local Convict At Pen.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Mark has been received at the prison from St. Louis county, under a sentence of three years, for grand larceny.

N. D. Supreme Court Adjourns.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 12.—The supreme court of North Dakota adjourned yesterday afternoon, after hearing arguments in the Martin Walsh will case from Grand Forks and Cass county, the case involving the validity of the law requiring payments by counties for the care of the insane.

DAKOTA BRIEFS

Bismarck, N. D.—Dr and Mrs. LaRose of Mandan are receiving the congratulations of their many friends on the arrival of a little daughter Tuesday, Jan. 5. Mrs. LaRose is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. McHugh of this city.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Judge L. K. Hassell has ordered a hearing on Feb. 16 in the matter of the will of Miss Mary Larson deceased. Ingeborg Larsdatter Torgersrudele, Rangdi Olson and Mari Sorli are the helrs. The first named is a sister of the deceased and is 55 years old.

Bismarck, N. D.—The North Dakota Retail Hardware Dealers' association will hold its annual convention this year in Bismarck, Jan. 26 to 29, inclusive, and a good program has been arranged for the occasion.

Devils Lake, N. D.—John E. Hjortland, a switchman in the local yards, was taken to the general hospital with both feet badly frozen during the severe weather. He had been moving about in th early part of the day and later on when work became slack, stood for a considerable time in the cold, with the result that the toes and a front half of each foot were badly frozen.

Grand Forks, N. D.—The new Columbia hotel one of the most elegantly equipped hostelries in this state, was opened to the public Sunday during the hours of 11 a. m. and 3:10 p. m. Hall's full orchestra furnished music for the occasion.

Bismarck, N. D.—A bill will be introduced into the legislature to amend the law regarding fees of the sheriff so as to make it possible for police officers to secure their fees in cities. A law passed at the last session of the legislature acted in favor of the sheriffs.

Tower City, N. D.—An old-time Methodist revival has just closed here, where Rev. J. W. Danford is pastor. Scores of people were converted and twenty-five of the leading people of th town joined the church at one service. Rev. Craig was the evangelist.

WISCONSIN BRIEFS

Sheboygan—Four days after leaving the office, Former Sheriff Henry Kiefer is being sought by the police on a warrant sworn out by W. M. Root who alleges that the former official floored him when he asked him for the return of a cash loan of $60.

Chippewa Falls—After several weeks' search, Ignatz Klops has finally been located on a farm near Bruce. His brother in New York, has for several years been trying to find him, and recently asked the police of the chief cities of the Northwest to assist.

Madison—Graduates of the University of Wisconsin dairy school have just organized the Wisconsin Dairy School Alumni association, and are about to incorporate the new organization. The objects of the association are to bring about a closer union between former, present and future students of the dairy school.

Chippewa Falls—The Dells Paper & Pulp company is planning to harness the Chippewa river at Jim Falls, ten miles from this city. This is one of the best water powers of the river and the company will utilize it in operating a paper and pulp mill. The location of the plant has not been decided. It may either be built at Jim Falls or at Eau Claire.

Marinette—The mill of the Lieber Manufacturing company started again after remaining shut down for several weeks. The plant will not operate continuously the whole of the winter.

Wausau—Articles of incorporation of the Great Northern Life Insurance company have been forwarded to the secretary of state, and the company will organize within a few days.

Neenah—An important discovery in the glass industry has been made by O. C. Little, president of the Onward Manufacturing company, which will tend to revolutionize the art of grinding glass. The grinder which he has discovered is made from one-half best Portland cement and one-half silicia sand.

Madison—The Wisconsin Anti-Saloon league has lined up its forces for one big fight in the coming legislature, a struggles to secure the enactment of a county option law. The league will be represented at the legislature by paid lobbyists adopting in this respect the effective methods of the saloon and brewery interests.

Chippewa Falls—The members of the board of health of Arland have been fined $25 for violating regulations prescribed by the state board of health. The complaint was made by A. F. Hansen.

MINNESOTA BRIEFS

International Falls—Dan Maguer and Mr. Lawrence of Hannah, N. D., were the guests of Cashier John Mooney of the International State bank last week. They are considering the matter of establishing themselves here in the jewelry business and will probably decide to do so.

Mizpah—Mizpah is to have electric lights, the council having granted a franchise to Mr. Potter of this place, who agrees to have the plant in operation by May 1. The council agrees to take six lights at $10 a month each in aid of the project.

Aitkin—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church will give a 25-cent supper at the parsonage next Thursday night beginning at 5 o'clock and continuing until all are served.

St. Hilaire—Miss Margaret McAndrews has left for Duluth, where she has entered the Sisters' hospital with the intention of being a professional nurse. The term of service is three years and her many friends here wish her success in her new calling.

Shevlin—Peter Gordon of Duluth has been here for a short visit with his father and brothers before going to Spokane, Wash. Mr. Gordon is employed by the Marshall-Wells company of Duluth, and he, with about twenty-five of the company's other men, is being transferred to their establishment in Spokane.

Akeley—The Akeley fire department has received its new hook and ladder truck. Capt. Hensvold will give his company considerable practice with the rig, even though the weather is a little frigid.

Roseau—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Citizens' State bank the old officers and directors were re-elected. The surplus of the bank was increased to $5,000, making the capital and surplus $20,000.

Barnesville—John Baker's oldest son William returned home from Canada a short time ago to spend the holidays with his parents here. He has taken a fine homestead up there and likes the country very much. He is located not far from George Granger, William Hill and the Starr family.

Mankato—The Elks' home will be built. Practically enough funds have been secured to assure its erection within a short time.

Moorhead—The Tri-State Telephone company is to install an up-to-date exchange in this city, with switchboard, operators, linemen, etc. The company has secured the rooms formerly occupied by Nye & Dosland in the Moorhead National Bank building.

La Porte—George Crandall, who has served as chief of police here during the past year, has tendered his resignation and will leave for the Twin Cities to resume his work on plans for airial navigation.

Stillwater—Stillwater aerie, No. 94, Fraternal Order of Eagles, installed officers as follows: Robert McLeer, W. P.; Thomas Valley, V. P.; Charles Schulz, W. C.; A. V. Dietzen, W. S.; Fritz Ziegler, W. F.; Ernest Weiss, I. G.; David Barker, O. G.; George F. Edwards, Albert A. Frazer, Fred C. Gosse, trustees; Dr. E. O'B. Freligh, physician.

TAKING THOUGHT TO IT.

Since the first proposal of the "wide open" tax amendment to the constitution the people of the state have been taking thought to what may be the ultimate effect of the various indirect means of raising taxes proposed under the law. That their thinking has not been altogether favorable to the new theories of taxation is evidenced by the fact that although the tax amendment carried on the face of the returns at the first election it was beaten by a large majority at its second submission two years later.

The wide open tax amendment allows the legislature to levy such taxes as it pleases in such manners as it pleases so long as taxes are equal on the same classes of matter. Its purpose pure and simple is to substitute the indirect method of taxation for the direct method. The amendment was proposed with the definite purpose of eventually doing away with the direct tax upon the property of all the people of the state and of raising the necessary funds for state expenses instead by taxing various particular classes of property such as gross earnings, corporations, etc.

At first sight this scheme of taxation appears very attractive. The small property owner, the clerk, the laborer thinks that by it he will escape taxation, so far as the state is concerned, altogether. But will he? Will all the taxes be paid by the rich and by great business concerns? The laborer's name may not appear upon the state's tax roll but he will pay the tax just the same, just as his name does not now appear upon the tax rolls of the United States, although it is he, and not the manufacturer, that pays the tariff tax on steel rails, lumber, cotton cloth and every other article that he buys, directly or indirectly.

Yet it seems easier and therein lies the danger of it. The Herald's St. Paul correspondent calls attention to this fact when he points to the experience of Pennsylvania, where all state taxes are raised by the indirect method. The state treasury is bursting with coin. There is always plenty of money with which to meet all kinds of expenses. The state never needs to hesitate on the score of economy. All this is very pleasant and comfortable. But it does not conduce to care and honesty in the spending of the public funds. Where there is lack of care there is always waste, and where there is indifference there is certain to be dishonesty. There is Pennsylvania's $13,000,000 state capitol, which is worth $4,000,000, for instance.

This feature of indirect taxation is bad but it is not the worst of the evils which flow from it. When the state raises its expense money by indirect means the average citizen is not only more or less indifferent as to how the state spends it, but he grows indifferent to public affairs generally. Indirect taxation is a canker worm that eats into the very heart of civic life. When the state no longer sends him a notice of taxes due, the citizen feels that he is not paying the state any taxes and his interest in the administration of the state grows more remote. We are all the time striving to rouse the masses of our people to greater interest in the affairs of government but by as much as we abandon direct taxation and substitute for it indirect taxation we are encouraging and making still more certain a more general lack of interest in public affairs.

This strikes directly at the principle of free government. A people who refuse to govern themselves are no longer free; their rights and privileges, their property and their liberty are absorbed by others.

Minnesota will do well to take serious thought to the matter before it commits itself unreservedly to the principle of indirect taxation.

WANT A CHANGE OF POLICY.

The proposal that the state appropriate $100,000 to advertise its resources in other states and other countries is meeting with some opposition from an unexpected quarter. The farmers of the Red River valley, while enthusiastic for an advertisement of the state's resources that will bring more settlers to Minnesota are still more enthusiastic for a policy of encouraging a more intelligent tilling of the state's farming lands to the end that the productivity of each acre may be increased.

James J. Hill has preached the truth that the Minnesota farmers are not getting the returns they should from the soil, he has gone up and down the state making speeches and submitting to interviews and this has been the constant burden of his talk—you are only scratching the surface; dig deeper and get a larger yield for your labors. The state has been industriously teaching the same lesson in its experimental schools. Senator A. D. Stephens of Crookston has just offered cash prizes amounting to $1,000 to the farmers of Polk county who will produce the largest crop of various kinds per acre.

So rich and so fruitful is the soil of Minnesota that bonanza farming has been the thing which has attracted. All that was needed was to scatter the seed, and the drouth and the rust and the boll weevil and the hail and the grasshopper not being too burdensome, to take off a fortune. Farmers flocked to the Red River valley and took up land and then more land still. A quarter section did not content them. They bought the adjoining quarter; then they mortgaged themselves to get title to the whole section. Some with a few hundred dollars equity attempted to cultivate several sections. They raised wheat and nothing else. Farm? They didn't farm at all. They just planted and reaped wheat—when a dozen dangers that each year beset the wheat crop left them anything to reap.

The farmers of Minnesota are awakening to the fact that this sort of farming does not pay and they are organizing to educate themselves to a better method. Such an organization was recently effected in Polk county, the largest, with one exception, of the purely agricultural counties of the state. Some seventy-five farmers met and organized, discussing Senator Stephens' offer of cash prizes for larger yields and resolved to try for them. They also adopted resolutions to the effect that the state should not appropriate at this time $100,000 for advertising its resources but that it should at least divide this amount and appropriate a half of it to just such attempts as that made by Senator Stephens to secure a diversified crop and more bushels of it to the acre.

Nobody can have any quarrel with the policy of advertising the state's resources. The advertising, and the settlers it will bring, are needed. Mr. Hill, Senator Stephens and the farmers of Polk county are also right in their effort to make farming more profitable, and the state has even more, perhaps, to gain in this respect than in the other.

THE EXPERIMENT OF REGULATION.

The Southern states are particularly prolific of experiments touching the liquor traffic. South Carolina first tried the dispensary system, county option has been making rapid progress in Kentucky and some other of the Southern states, Georgia began the trial of prohibition a year ago and Alabama on Jan. 1 of this year, while Louisiana is just beginning an experiment with an unusually rigid regulation law.

The Louisiana law applies the principle of regulation to the liquor traffic as a private business more completely and thoroughly than has ever been attempted heretofore. Many of the regulations of the new law, it is believed, will be drastic in their effect. The dispensary law of South Carolina applies the principle of regulation to the traffic by making the state the saloon keeper, but Louisiana leaves the keeping of the saloon and the actual selling of liquor to the private individual but attends very minutely to the way in which he does it.

Among the interesting regulations of the new Louisiana law are the provisions that no licenses may be issued to foreigners, no license may be issued to a female, a combined saloon and grocery must be conducted without a partition between, and no officer or stockholder of a brewery or distillery can be granted a license. South Carolina aims to abolish the evils of whisky drinking by entirely removing the social features of the saloon and therefor sells liquor for cash only between sunrise and sunset in sealed packages and does not allow the drinking of the liquor on the premises. Louisiana also aims at the social attractions of the saloon by forbidding the use of pianos and other musical instruments in barrooms.

As rigid as are the provisions of the Louisiana law it would seem as though the South Carolina dispensary plan will prove to be a much better regulative measure. It also seems certain that if regulation is to succeed, the state must not stop short with cutting off the social attractions of the saloon but must provide social diversions to take its place. It does no good to cast out a devil from the chambers of your heart if you do not install an angel in his place. The empty chamber is a fine place for other devils to enter and take up their abode.

The liquor traffic maintains its hold upon the country, not because men must have liquor, for the appetite for strong drink is an artificial, not a natural one, but by reason of the social attractions of the saloon. The saloon is the poor man's club, it is said, and with truth. Any attempt to abate the evils of the liquor traffic by regulation must take this fact into account; failure to take it into account means the certain failure of the attempt.

TIMELY ACTION.

The Commercial club of Duluth is doing a most commendable work for the encouragement of agriculture in this section of the state.

At a meeting of the agricultural committee of the club yesterday a resolution was sent to the public affairs committee of the club favoring the locating in St. Louis county of a branch of the Minnesota State Agricultural college. The recommendation is timely for the subject is one which will receive considerable attention from the legislature this winter.

The Minnesota State School of Agriculture now has one branch, the Crookston Agricultural school, located in Crookston by the legislature in 1905. The school has been a pronounced success, has attracted farmer boys and girls so generally that many have been turned away, and has proved so useful that the agitation for similar schools in other parts of the state took on considerable force at the last session of the legislature. At that session two plans for agricultural schools in Minnesota were proposed, county agricultural schools and the location of a branch of the Minnesota State Agricultural school in each of the nine congressional districts of the state. The relative advantages of these two plans were warmly discussed at the recent meeting of the state educational association at St. Paul. Both plans will be presented to the legislature this winter in the form of bills.

That Minnesota will eventually adopt one of these systems seems certain, but it is quite probable that other schools, similar to the Crookston school, will be established before a final, definite plan for the whole state is decided upon. For this reason the Duluth Commercial club has done well to move early in the matter.

How is your good will to men holding out?

A badly cracked resolution is better than none at all.

The senate, too, it seems, can be a foolish house upon occasion.

Senator Tillman is desperately determined that the president shall not be as sensational as himself.

Please take notice that William Howard Taft was yesterday elected president of the United States.

If there is anything bad in Roosevelt be sure that the New York World and Benjamin Tillman will find it out.

The legislature is consuming some ten days in passing around the jobs. But then, isn't that the most important part of the session?

Franklin McVey, recently reappointed by Governor Johnson as a member of the state tax commission, and the chairman of that body, has been chosen president of the University of North Dakota. Whether Dr. McVey accepts or rejects the offer his sphere of usefulness in the Northwest will be a wide one.

A Chicago Daily News cartoon pictures the controversy between the president and the congress most graphically. Roosevelt is at the door of the White House receiving the congress which is below in a wheeled chair swathed in bandages holding out a card upon which is written in brave letters: "Resolved, That you never touched me!"

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The weather has been bitterly cold at Ashawa, and at those other newly-built towns along the line of the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg railroad, according to the statement of Eben Olsen at the McKay yesterday, yet some of the settlers up that way have not let the cold stand in the way of clearing their land, even during the most inclement weather.

Mr. Olsen's story is of the progress of the settlers in that part of the state, which is one of the latest sections of this part of Minnesota to feel the cultivating touch of the farmer. A trip through that country last spring disclosed the fact that many of the settlers had succeeded in doing but little clearing. Since that time according to the statement of Mr. Olsen, there has been steady progress made in the way of clearing the timber and stumpage from the land of many of the settlers.

According to the statement of officials of the Rainy Lake railroad, this country is very fertile, but inclined to be moist. However there is a fact that confronts the farmers in that part of the state and which should be considered deeply by any who contemplate drainage work, be they either public or private individuals. This is simply, that the fact should be borne in mind, that while, at the present time, the ground is in many places inclined to be swampy, this can be accounted for in most cases by the heavy timber. When this timber is cut, it will probably be found that the land will be dry enough.

Olsen, who is a type of the homesteader who has gone into the new country, believes that the settlers in the towns along the Rainy Lake road, between Virginia and the International line, are in a fertile section of the state. What few crops have been attempted in the vicinity of Ashawa, have proved entirely successful, and it has been proved that vegetables and small garden truck grow well in this section. In the opinion of Olsen, it is only a question of a few years until there will be a thriving agricultural producing community along the line of the railroad, and that much of the produce raised there, will find a market in Duluth.

Wheat and good wheat for the northern part of the state, is a possibility, if the prediction of the homesteader from the vicinity of Ashawa is correct.

Mr. "Butter" Reed of Penn Yan, N. Y., which like the ground state of Ohio can say, "I am proud of my sons" —for Penn Yan, be it known, has produced more stage celebrities than any little place in the country—believes that something serious is going to drop in the theatrical business. It is the railroads that will eventually cause this snapping of some vital cord in the theatrical fabric, believes Mr. Reed, which will cause a readjustment of conditions.

Mr. Reed, business manager of one of the big companies that has been playing the Western country recently, was explaining the conditions as they now exist, at the Lenox yesterday.

"You see," said he, "the railroads have made it very difficult for big productions to cover wide territory. They have practically shut off all privileges. The coming of the 2-cent fare shut off theatrical rates and has made the arranging of long tours, requiring many jumps, a thing of great trouble and heavy expense to the company.

"It is getting so bad, in fact, that many companies are required to travel as light as they possibly can. I know one company that went out of Duluth with about as much excess baggage as is carried in a racing shell. The members of the company were requested to send home or leave behind all their baggage that they could possibly do without. The scenery was cut down to the smallest possible shape, by using silk facings, and you would have thought that the company was a bunch of school teachers off for a two weeks' course at the summer school, instead of a number of theatrical people who had a very hard road journey before them.

"What will be the result of this very unliberal policy upon the part of the railroads? In my opinion it will result in the cutting off of the road companies, especially some of the big productions, from the smaller and more out of the way cities. I say frankly that it is a rather awkward jump to this city, when you do not play certain other territory that some of the other companies do, and I am of the opinion that some of the companies will find that it is impossible to bring big shows to Duluth or many other towns, if there is not some improvement in the railroad conditions.

"The railroads refuse to allow excess baggage. There must be twenty-five people in the company, or you you must purchase twenty-five tickets, or you cannot secure a car. There are no party rates; there is practically no reduction for scenery, no reduction on excess baggage, so that with the poor business that has been the rule the past year, there seems to be imminent a revolution in the theatrical business."

THE WEATHER.

Last night was not exactly a midsummer's eve, as the cold weather continued, and is also stopping "in our midst" today, although the weather forecaster promises more moderate temperatures for tonight and tomorrow. However, there will still be lots of chill in the air, as he predicts the lowest temperatures for tonight at 5 to 15 degs. below zero.

The minimum temperature in Duluth during the last twenty-four hours was 22 degs. below zero. The coldest places last night were Havre, Mont., and Minnedosa, where the minimum temperature was 30 degs. below zero.

The twelfth day of January a year ago, was marked by snow flurries. The sun rose this morning at 7:52 and is scheduled to sink in the West at 4:42.

Of weather conditions, Mr. Richardson has this to say:

"The severe cold has moderated quite generally as regards the Northwest, but zero weather extends this morning southward to and including Kansas and Missouri, eastward into Michigan, and northward to British Columbia and Eastern Washington, the coldest temperature reported being 32 degs. below zero, at Port Arthur. Freezing temperatures prevail southward to the Ohio river, Tennessee, Western Louisiana, all of Texas, New Mexico, Utah and Nevada. During the past twenty-four hours rain or snow fell throughout the Lake Region, New England states, the Ohio and lower Mississippi valleys and the southwest to and including California, due to barometric depressions, central off the California coast and over the Carolinas. The barometer is high over the central valleys and plateau region. A low pressure area has developed over Alberta and Saskatchewan. This disturbance will cause the temperature at the Head of the Lakes to moderate somewhat during tonight and Wednesday."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Minn., Jan. 12: Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermilion iron ranges—Fair weather and not so cold tonight and Wednesday; lowest temperature tonight 5 degs. to 15 degs. below zero; fresh southwest winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours, ending at 7 p. m. Wednesday: Upper Michigan—Snow flurries tonight and Wednesday, with rising temperature.

Wisconsin and Minnesota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; rising temperature tonight.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer in east portion tonight; colder Wednesday.

But Bad Enough.

The old year goes
Upon its way,
It brought some woes,
Yet we can say
It brought a lot
Of real cheer,
And it was not
A bad old year.

Although some days
It brought were blue,
A word of praise
It but its due.
We owe it much,
'Tis very clear
It wasn't such
A bad old year.

Strict Construction.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: There are considerations of humanity that transcend mere legal or constitutional considerations, and the man who in a great emergency demands that every act of kindness be made to conform to a strict construction of the state's organic law must expect to be generally criticised for his squamishness. Such a man is Senator Bailey of Texas. The act appropriating $800,000 for the relief of the earthquake sufferers in Southern Italy was passed by the house without a dissenting voice and in the senate the only vote against it was that of the Texas man. "I was one of those," he said, "who do not believe that the Federal government has power to apply the people's money in this way."

Watching the people's money is a worthy mission for a legislator to assume; some money now spent might be saved by watching and some congressmen could improve the quality of their public service if they would watch it more faithfully. But there are times when the watchdog role is a thankless one. It might tax a lawyer to find definite constitutional authority for the Italian relief appropriation; it may, in fact, be contrary to this legal instrument of the fathers. It is profitless to pursue the question, however, for on the rare occasions when a grave emergency demands instant measures of relief the people are in no mood to gauge their charity by so fine a rule. Congress gave money to relieve suffering in Cuba ten years ago, and more recently authorized a similar expenditure for the people of the French West Indies. The Constitution is given many a twist and strain in these latter days, and if this Italian relief measure gives it still another wrench, it will have been done in a good cause and no one outside the circle of a few strict constructionists here and there will challenge the proceeding.

The Legislators.

The legislators now are seen,
All looking fierce and wise;
And some are fat and some are lean,
And some are average size.

Theirs is a load of ponderous weight—
A terror to endure—
Some think themselves exceeding great,
And some are not so sure.

But every session here the boys
Display much pomp and pride,
And superfluity of noise,
And not much else beside.

THE GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

The Irish Standard: The message of Governor Johnson will well repay a perusal, notwithstanding its extreme length. It contains a lot of valuable information about Minnesota, and the recommendations to the legislature are entitled to the careful consideration of the members thereof. What the governor says in the closing paragraph of his message merits the approval of all who have the welfare of this great commonwealth at heart.

Wheelock's Weekly: Governor Johnson's third inaugural not only has the ring of truth and earnestness about it, but it covers practically every subject of public concern in Minnesota, and is a state paper of importance and permanent value.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: The message of Governor Johnson to the legislature is an excellent advertising document for the state of Minnesota, and the greatness and prosperity of the commonwealth are painted in bright colors. It will give patriotic Minnesotans that delightful chesty feeling.

Crookston Times: It (the message) certainly does hold up the state to the attention of the world, and no one can peruse it without feeling that he does indeed live in a commonwealth that is one of the first of the nation.

Norman County Index: Governor Johnson took a strong stand in his message in favor of advertising and developing our state resources. He also favors a state bureau of lands.

Madison Independent Press: The governor's message to the legislature contains many timely and valuable suggestions or recommendations, and if that body is wise it will put aside all partisan feeling in the consideration of his suggestions, to the end that what is best for the state as a state may be carried out rather than that which may give any political party an advantage. We do not intend to say that we indorse the message as a whole; we might after a more careful reading; but we do urge that his recommendations be considered in a spirit of fairness by those to whom it was delivered, i. e., the legislature.

Little Falls Herald: Governor Johnson's message should be read by every citizen. It is full of information and valuable suggestions. The governor is certainly a good peace-maker for the legislature.

Cass Lake Times: Governor Johnson's message to the legislature is one of the able papers of the country, and goes long to reduce our legislators and scheming politicians that the country is better provided for by electing a man at the head of affairs who is able to write such a message. Governor Johnson has a few enemies in the state who can see no good in any of his acts, but as the head of the executive of a great commonwealth he keeps wonderfully steady at his "wood sawing" and meets all the requirements of a faithful servant. Nowadays an officer is weighed in the scale of justice. If he loves his political party better than duty, he is a fine fellow; if he loves and does his duty, some will curse him.

President as a Sovereign.

Providence Journal: President Roosevelt's frank admission to the senate that he has instructed the attorney general not to respond to that portion of the Culberson resolution which calls for Mr. Bonaparte's reasons for failing to prosecute the Steel trust, has elicited from the author of the resolution a scathing denunciation. Another arbitrary and lawless act, he told the senate, has been traced to the chief magistrate—a proceeding "characteristic of the distinguished occupant of the White House," and logically deduced from "the main dogma that he is absolved from any legal restraint whatever." If this appears to be unusual language to employ concerning the executive branch of the government, it will do no harm to recall that shortly after the election of 1904, when Mr. Roosevelt had received a striking personal indorsement from the country, a member of the New York bar declared, "My ideal of the president coincides with the ideal of the people—a majestic, constitutional figure, uncontrolled by congress, unrestrained by the courts, vested with plenary constitutional power and absolute constitutional discretion—a sovereign over 80,000,000 people and the servant of 80,000,000 sovereigns." This is, perhaps, an extreme view. Yet Prof. Harry Thurston Peck of Coumbia university, in his "Twenty Years of the Republic," says: "One may • • • reasonably hold that in the twenty years intervening between 1885 and 1905 the president of the United States did become in essence a sovereign, upon whose acts there existed no effectual restraint, save that which lay in the right of congress to impeach him and depose him."

If this be accepted as a fair statement of the case, it may be added that practically there was no restraint upon the chief magistrate during the period mentioned for the impeachment instrument, though occasionally threatened, had already come to be regarded as too cumbersome and uncertain for actual use.

TO CUT OUT ALL LIQUOR

Administration Will Go on Water Wagon After March 4.

Funny Little Tangle in Navy Department Over Cider.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The fact that the administration, after March 4 next, will officially be on the water wagon, has as yet had no marked effect on the liquor business at the national capital. What may happen as a result of Mr. Taft's example in cutting out all alcoholic beverages during his term of office is another question, however. Temperance people are inclined to exult, and predict that Mr. Taft's action will result in a marked decrease in the per capita consumption of "malt and spirituous liquor, wines, etc.," in the District of Columbia within the next four years.

It may be said, without fear of successful contradiction, that the district can stand a reduction of this sort without serious harm resulting. Under existing conditions there is little need for any one with the necessary coin of the realm to go dry in Washington, and, as a matter of fact, a very small percentage do permit the growth of abnormal thirst.

Germane to the subject of drink is rather a funny little tangle in the navy department, which it took the paymaster general of the navy and the comptroller of the treasury to straighten out.

The case may be thus summed up: Passed Assistant Paymaster Dobson of the supply ship Glacier, bought twenty gallons of sweet cider for the forecastle mess, paying therefor $6. When his accounts were turned in, the auditor of the navy disallowed the item, on the ground that cider had no place in the navy rations. It looked as though Mr. Dobson would have to stand treat, so far as the cider was concerned. He did not object to this per se, but as a matter of principle and for the establishment of a precedent, he appealed the case to the paymaster general, on the ground that "sweet cider is clearly food, since it is a mixture of the juice of apples and sugar. Had the apples and sugar been purchased separately and made into cider and served to the general mess, it would have been perfectly legitimate and would never have been questioned. The cider was composed of apples and sugar, both of which are components of the navy ration, and which have been combined before delivery to the ship."

The paymaster general, after gravely considering the question, decided he was for Dobson.

"The bureau," he said, "is of the opinion that Passed Assistant Paymaster Dobson was justified in making purchase of the cider (sweet) herein referred to."

The comptroller of the treasury then wrestled with the problem, and straddled the proposition by giving Dobson his $6, and saying that he wasn't so sure about the cider (sweet), after all.

As the matter stands officially, cider might be sugar and apples, and it mightn't. If it is isn't, there is no authority in law for giving the man behind the gun the questionable compound. If it is, he may have (sweet) cider as part of his rations. Here is a chance for Dr. Wiley.

The old guard, whether in our out of congress, is standing solid behind Uncle Joe Cannon, in his fight for the speakership. Here comes Grosvenor, of Ohio, long one of the big figures in congress, now in retirement. He says:

"Mr. Cannon has served a third of a century congress, and there has never been a charge that he is corrupt or has used his official position to make a dollar of money. In all the scandals and rumors of scandals that have permeated the atmosphere of American politics, there has never been a hint that 'Joe' Cannon was for sale or could be influenced by any consideration of personal gain or advantage.

"He has saved the country thousands of dollars by his far-sightedness as the uncompromising foe of every species of extravagance."

To those who have never been in Colorado, it is a matter of wonder that every man who has breathed the mile-high atmosphere of Denver and has had a chance to see the wonders of the Rockies, as exemplified in that golden commonwealth, is a confirmed Colorado boomer for the rest of his life. J. M. Woodward, formerly a staid New Yorker, now a Denverite, is an example. During a recent visit to Washington, Mr. Woodward declared enthusiastically that there is no state in the union that can compare with Colorado so far as its opportunities and its open-hearted people are concerned.

"Everybody is prosperous in Colorado," said Mr. Woodward, "and the hard times about which so much was said in the papers about a year ago, did not touch us at all. The mining interests are making money, and the farmers are growing wealthy. New ore deposits are discovered almost every day, and silver, lead and even copper are found in more than paying quantities.

"Farm land which five years ago could have been bought for $50 an acre brings ten times as much today, and more than that."

Colorado certainly can and does put the "somethier" on all those who enter the charmed circle of her influence.

Kansas does not intend to surrender her premiership in the matter of freak legislation even to Oklahoma without a struggle, according to Ralph G. Fletcher of Kansas City, during his recent visit to the nation's capital.

"Having regulated freight and passenger rates," declared Mr. Fletcher, "the reformers now propose to regulate the rates for meals in dining cars. State Auditor Nation has fixed 75 cents as the maximum price the state will pay for a meal for its officials while traveling. He says a farmer will set up a better meal than one can get on a dining car and only charge 25 cents for it. Then why should the state pay more than 75 cents for meals?

"Another bill to be brought in is for the establishment of a state dormitory for the benefit of members of the legislature. This institution is to be built at state expense. Every member is to be given a separate sleeping room, but all must eat together in a mess hall. The salary of the legislator is only $150 a session, and Kansas only holds a session every two years. It costs more than that amount to be elected to the legislature. It is argued that the "state hotel," supplying board and rooms free, would partially recompense the members for their work.

"Frat societies, both in colleges and high schools, are to be driven out of existence, according to the bill of another new member. It is claimed that frat societies are building up an aristocracy in the state, which threatens trouble in the future."

Judge John Allison of Nashville, Tenn., is of the opinion that unless some adequate system of forest reservation is devised, the South is in danger not only of a lumber famine, but of dire calamities as well. He declares:

"The lumber supply of the South, and especially in Tennessee, is steadily decreasing. The timber of my state is disappearing, and the water supply is also going to waste. For a century or more the water supply of the state has not been utilized to advantage. Springs and natural reservoirs on the mountain sides have been destroyed, or used as 'chute-the-chutes' for conveying logs down the mountains. Twenty years ago the mountains were dotted with such springs, and when I strolled over the hills some time ago, I was surprised to see how few remained.

"I appeared before a committee of congress when I was here attending the governors' conference, and explained the water and lumber situation, and I am confident that, if action were taken, great results would be derived, not only by Tennessee, but by all the Southern states."

EXPOSITION PROGRESSING

Seattle Man Says It Will be Complete for Opening.

Seattle is in a flurry over the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition which will open there this spring," said William E. McClinock, representative of the American Wire Cable company at the Spalding today.

"This exposition means much to Seattle and to the Western country in general. It means more to Seattle than the World's Fair did to St. Louis, or the Omaha Exposition did for Omaha, for the simple reason that the Pacific Coast country is really in the infancy of its development.

"Business men of Seattle felt very nervous with such a big contract upon their hands, but the $800,000 of the capital stock of the exposition company has been fully paid in, and besides, congress has appropriated an additional $600,000, which fully insures that the grounds and buildings will be completed by the time the exposition is scheduled to open.

"The resources exhibited at the Alaska-Yukon Exposition go a long way in assisting in the development of Alaska. It is aimed to show just what Alaska has to offer to the settler, aside from the miner and prospector, while the state of Washington, which is ranking as one of the thriving agricultural states of the West, will be greatly boomed by the number of people who will go to the exposition. The business men of Seattle expect that the largest number of tourists that ever visited the Pacific coast in one season, will come to Seattle during the present year.

FRESH FROM THE PEN; JUST FROM THE PRESS.

It is doubtful if any book of useful information has ever been printed in the English language that stands so high in the estimation of students, lawyers, merchants, historians, professors and business men at large as does The World Almanac and Encyclopedia. Just from the press, the 1909 edition of this greatest of all ready reference books is now being distributed to its regular subscribers and to newsdealers in all parts of the United States. Every one of the 15,000 facts and figures it presents, whether about politics, commerce, weights, measures, secret societies, populations of cities, states, countries, sporting events, etc., is handily indexed so it may be turned to at a moment's notice. SETTLERS WIN ANOTHER ROUND

Order of Secretary in N. P. Land Cases Is Rescinded.

Entries on thousands of acres of public lands in the Duluth district made by the Northern Pacific railroad, as substituted selections for lands within the second indemity limits of the grant to the Northern Pacific Railroad company, under the act of July 2, 1864, have been vacated by the secretary of the interior.

The Northern Pacific land cases have been before the land office officials and the courts for years. The Northern Pacific fought its case through all the courts, and was finally beaten in the United States supreme court. After this decision the secretary of the interior allowed the railroad to go ahead and make new selections in lieu of those which it had lost. Some of the land selected had been filed on, and applications made for patent. In fact scores of settlers in Northern Minnesota were affected by the decision.

Judge H. H. Hoyt, who has fought the railroad company for many years, promptly filed a strenuous objection with the secretary of the interior, and in an order recently received the first order of the secretary is rescinded, and the railroad is not allowed to make these substitute selections. The order directs that the land office officials proceed to give the settlers their receipts and in due course the land will be patented to them.

WILL MISS COCKRAN FROM THE HEARINGS.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Most of the humor that would normally be incident to consideration of a tariff bill next session will be lost to the world because Bourke Cockran and Charles F. Murphy quarreled and Mr. Cockran was thrown out of congress.

Mr. Cockran is one of the best cross examiners on the ways and means committee, and has been a regular attendant at sessions. He became a terror to witnesses.

One particularly glib witness displayed a marvelous fund of information about everything calculated to help his contention, but was remarkably dull and taciturn when effort was made to force from him an admission to his disadvantage. Mr. Cockran pressed him for an answer to one of his inquiries, but could get nothing.

"I note," finally said the New Yorker in disgust, "that you came here to swell the chorus rather than to sing the solo."

Another witness wanted his tariff raised. "We're getting on fairly well now," he explained, "but you see things may change. Raw materials may go up in price, or freight rates. Why a drop in ocean freight rates from abroad would be most unfortunate for us. We would like a safeguard against such menaces."

"Assuredly, assuredly," noted Mr. Cockran. "You want a tariff on apprehensions, as it were?"

SIOUX WOULD HONOR CHIEF SITTING BULL.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The Sioux Indians are planning a national monument to their last famous fighting chief, Sitting Bull. They have had the idea in mind for some years and are making definite plans to bring the body of the great warrior to a national Indian cemetery on the lands of the Standing Rock reservation, in North-western South Dakota, and there erect a monument worthy of the old fighter and of the great Western nation of Indians.

Senator Gamble of South Dakota, on behalf of the Indians, introduced a bill to set off the land for the cemetery, and it has been favorably reported by the public lands committee and will doubtless pass.

PHOTOGRAPHER OF DEAD RESIGNS HIS POSITION.

New York, Jan. 12.—After forty years of service, Oscar G. Mason has resigned his position as the photographer of the dead at Bellevue hospital. Many well known surgeons and physicians in this city, who have witnessed the practical benefits resulting from Mason's life work, received the news with regret that his place is now to be filled by a younger man. Mason is 70 years old, having taken up his duties at Bellevue in the early sixties.

It was at that time that he became impressed with the idea that photography could be made of invaluable assistance to the medical and surgical profession. He gave up a position that paid him $3,000 a year and opened up a studio in the top of the hospital building. One of his principal duties was to make photographs of the bodies of unfortunate persons who are each year buried in pauper's graves. In the last forty years he has made pictures of about 4,000 faces in the morgue, and has furnished the records, which have proven of great assistance in establishing the identification of persons who otherwise would have been buried without ever having been learned concerning them.

WISCONSIN CHURCH FIRE NEARLY DESTROYS TOWN.

Footville, Wis., Jan. 12.—Fire Sunday afternoon destroyed the Christian church of this village and for a time threatened the entire village, brands from the burning structure being sent whirling by the strong northwest gale in every direction. Several houses in different parts of the town caught, but by the quick work of the villagers who formed into bucket brigades, the fire was practically confined to its seat of origin. The loss will be upward of $4,000, covered by insurance of about $1,000.

Simple, Harmless Recipe for Home Made Kidney Cure.

Makes Kidneys Act and Overcome Rheumatism and Bladder Trouble.

To make up enough of the "Dandelion treatment," which is claimed to be relieving nearly every sufferer who uses it for backache, kidney complaint, sore weak bladder and rheumatism; get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon and three ounces Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

Those who have tried it claim that it acts gently but thoroughly on the kidneys, relieving backache and bladder trouble and urinary difficulties before you realize it. Many cases of rheumatism are known to have been relieved within a few days, the pain and swelling diminishing with each dose.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after awhile.

POOLE SECURES AN INJUNCTION

Against Peake Acting as North Dakota's Adjutant General.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—An injunctional order issued by the district court against Col. Peake restrains him from assuming the duties of the office of adjutant general, and on next Saturday he must show the court why the order, which was secured by Gen. Poole, should not continue.

The fight hangs around the constitutionality of the statute fixing the term of office of adjutant general. It is probable that the militia will be ordered out to take charge of the office this afternoon, Gen. Poole having assumed control again this morning.

TRAPPER IS ARRESTED

Police Find Frank Kuskey After Long Search in Woods.

Brought Back to Face Charge on Non-Support.

The relentless search of the police for Frank Kuskey, wanted for wife desertion and non-support, ended yesterday, when Detective Frank Schulte and Patrolman Ek of the West Duluth force found and arrested him in the woods, sixty-three miles north of Duluth, where he and his brother, John Kuskey were hunting and trapping.

The police first learned of the sad case just before Christmas, when a letter was received by the West Duluth police from Mrs. Kuskey, 5911 Grand avenue, telling of the cruel hunger and want that she and her six children were suffering, while her husband was in the northern woods, never giving them a cent from the sales of his furs. The letter stated that the youngest of her children was fifteen months old, and only one was over 8 years, a girl of 17, whose work at the match factory brought only 94 cents a day. On this meager sum, the poverty stricken family had struggled along until the pangs of hunger drove them to call upon the police for assistance. The care of her babies prevented the mother from doing much outside work, and it was hard for her to get a place on account of her deafness.

Even with all their suffering, the police probably would not have heard a complaint from them had it not been for the alleged inhumanity of the father. According to the letter, he arrived home one night with a friend, after a long sojourn in the woods. There was not a scrap of food in the house. This angered him, and he sent one of his children to a nearby store to buy meat and bread. In the morning he gathered together every morsel of food left from the evening meal, his wife claims, and took it away with him on another long trip to the woods. The deafness of his wife made him impatient when he tried to make her hear his commands, and he is alleged to have hurled a plate at her, crashing it against the wall. On leaving the house, so the letter reads, his parting words were: "I am going away to leave you all to starve, and when I come back you will all probably be dead."

The next day, to provide food for the oldest girl's lunch, the mother with her last nickel bought a few cookies and some bread. From this the child saved enough so that the rest of the family might have a bite that night when she returned from work.

On investigation the police claim to have found things as the woman represented them in her letter. There was not even enough flour in the house to make a biscuit, and of other food there was absolutely none. There were some large pieces of wood back of the house with which to keep the fire going, but the oldest boy was too weak from hunger to chop it. With the assistance of the Salvation Army and donations from charitable people, the police managed to supply the needs of the family.

Since then the police have been tireless in their efforts to locate the father. Two officers were set upon his trail. Last Saturday Kuskey left Saginaw and went to Iron Junction by train. The police learned this, and yesterday afternoon, while he and his brother were packing supplies to the cabin on a small lake, they ambushed them on the forest trail.

Kuskey at first denied his name, claiming that it was Smith, and pretended that he could see no reason why he should be sought by the law. Detective Schulte's persistent questioning, however, prevailed, and the man confessed his identity. He was brought to Duluth yesterday, and will be tried on the charge of desertion and non-support at 10 o'clock Saturday morning in the municipal court.

Installation of Officers.

The following officers were installed last night by West Duluth Tent No. 2, K. O. T. M.: Sir Knight past commander, O. Buell; Sir Knight lieutenant commander, J. D. Laurive; Sir Knight commander, C. CASES OF INTEREST

RIGHT TO DESTROY FENCE ON ONE'S OWN LAND.—Appellant in the case of Edgar vs. state, 47 Southern Reporter, 295, was convicted of destroying an inclosure of another. Notwithstanding a notice by him, one who occupied adjoining land erected a fence on appellant's property. Thereafter appellant applied a torch to it. The supreme court of Alabama held that if prosecutor erected the fence in ignorance of the true line it was at his peril, and that as the statute was meant to provide against trespassing there could be a conviction if the fence was erected on the land of accused.

DIVISION OF COLLATERAL INHERITANCE TAX.—A non-resident testator appointed representatives in New York, his residence, and in Pennsylvania. All his real estate, except specific devises, was ordered sold. The balance from the New York property was to be turned over to the Pennsylvania executors. After the payment of numerous legacies, without objection by the pecuniary legatees, a collateral inheritance tax was paid the state of Pennsylvania. The supreme court of Pennsylvania in Re Shoenberger's estate, 70 Atlantic Reporter, 579, held that the final distributees should have protected themselves at the proper time, while the other legacies provided for were being paid, and that, as they had permitted the tax to be paid the commonwealth, they cannot ask that half of it instead of its just proportion be deducted from appellant's legacy, which was the only one remaining unpaid.

RIGHT TO ENJOIN USE OF ASSOCIATION'S NAME.—There is in New York a statutory provision that "no proposed corporation shall be filed or recorded, having the same name as an existing domestic corporation, or a name so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive." In Benevolent & Protective Order of Elks vs. Improved Benevolent & Protective Order of Elks of the World et al., 111 New York Supplement, 1067, the plaintiff incorporated society sought to enjoin defendant from using its name and a similar card and seal. It appeared that defendant was composed largely of colored persons and that it had appropriated nearly everything used by the plaintiff in conducting corporate affairs, and that its members had approached plaintiff's members and tried to give the secret sign. The supreme court of New York held that plaintiff had the prior right in the premises, and granted injunctive relief.

INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.—In Ex parte Wagner, 95 Pacific Reporter, 435, the relator was convicted on Dec. 20, 1907, of violating an ordinance which was passed and officially published on Dec. 12; but on Dec. 18 a petition was presented to the mayor demanding a referendum vote on the ordinance, and requesting that it be held in abeyance until the election could be held. The legislation making effective the provisions of the Constitution were self-executing. The supreme court of Oklahoma concludes that they were not, and until they were made effective by legislation a petition for a referendum filed with the mayor was of no effect.

CONFLICTING JURISDICTION OF BANKRUPTCY COURTS.—A sharp conflict as to claim to jurisdiction as between Judge Jones and Hundley of the United States district court in Alabama, is disclosed in the two opinions of Judge Hundley in Re Steele, 156 Federal Reporter, 553, and 161 Federal Reporter, 886, and that of Judge Jones under same title, 162 Federal Reporter, 693. It appeared that while Judge Hundley was holding court in the northern district of Alabama he appointed Steele as referee in bankruptcy without consulting Judge Jones. A few days later Judge Jones came from his home in the middle district of Alabama into the northern district, and had an order entered removing petitioner from office, claiming that he was a judge from the northern district, having equal authority with Judge Hundley; that where there is more than one district judge in a district the majority constitute the court; and that, in matters of appointment of permanent officers one judge cannot act without the consent of the other. Judge Hundley issued an order vacating the order of Judge Jones, and holding that he alone had authority to make the appointment. Later on an order was made by Judge Jones, now within the middle district, appointing one Girch as referee, and directing a division of the cases between him and Steele. A couple of days later Judge Jones came into the northern district, and there issued an order ratifying the former one, without consultation with Judge Hundley. These orders are all discussed in the opinions of both judges. The real trouble seems to arise from a divergence of opinion in regard to the meaning of the act of congress under which Judge Hundley was appointed, and as to the power of a single judge in a district for which there is more than one judge.

LOCKER CLUBS FOR PROCURING LIQUOR—In the Charge to the Grand Jury by Judge Speer of the United States district court for the Southern District of Georgia, published in 162 Federal Reporter, 726, under the title In re Charge to Grand Jury, it appeared that so-called "locker-clubs" were conducted in Savannah, Ga., by permission of the municipal authorities, under the theory that a tax on them by the state justified the granting of a license. The statute forbids the selling or bartering for valuable consideration, either directly or indirectly, any alcoholic, spiritous, malt, or intoxicating liquors, but provides also for imposition of a tax on clubs keeping liquors. The court held that a municipal corporation could not lawfully license or charter a club which sells or furnishes liquors to its members, and that an illegal charter is no protection to its support or maintenance being a retail liquor dealer within the internal revenue law, and subject to a tax as such.

MALPRACTICE BY OSTEOPATHS.—In an action for malpractice by osteopaths, the supreme court of Vermont in Wilkins vs. Brock, 70 Atlantic Reporter, 572, after giving the jury the rule as to the care defendants were bound to exercise, if they treated the case as osteopaths, instructed them as to the rule applicable to the medical profession generally, if they found defendants did not treat the case as osteopaths, and, osteopathy being a distinct school of practice, the treatment was to be tested by the principles and practice of that school, and not by the principles and practice of any other school, nor of the profession generally.

MANDAMUS TO COMPEL SUPPLY OF GAS.—Relator, in the case of State ex rel. Latshaw vs. board of water and light commissioners of city of Duluth et al, 117 Northwestern Reporter, 827, failing to be allured by the generosity of the board in offering a deduction of 15 cents per thousand feet on all gas bills paid before a certain date, was charged 90 cents per 1,000, the gross rate. Upon his refusal to pay, gas ceased to emanate from the reservoirs to him. The bill was calculated at 75 cents per thousand feet, and the amount tendered the board. Moreover, he offered to deposit $15 and come in as a new customer. Both offers being refused unless he would pay arrearages at 90 cents per 1,000 feet and charges for turning on and shutting off the gas, mandamus was invoked. The supreme court of Minnesota held that a 15 cent penalty and the expense of connecting as parts of the arrearage do not entitle relator to mandamus, as they were reasonably incident to the right to collect arrearages, and the fact that they were not charged against those who paid their bills did not render the regulation void for lack of uniformity.

EFFECT OF ESCHEAT ON RIGHT TO DOWER.—The case of Smith vs. Doe, 111 New York Supplement, 29, illustrates the occasional hardship of general laws, and leaves plaintiff with no apparent means of redress, had not the legislature passed a special act giving her relief. Plaintiff's husband died leaving one brother and herself surviving. Decedent's realty passed at once to the brother, subject to plaintiff's right of dower. Subsequently the brother died, and the property then escheated to the state subject to the dower right. The widow, being desirous of having her dower admeasured and paid in bulk, instituted proceedings for that purpose, making the state a party, and service of summons was acknowledged by the attorney general. Plaintiff recovered judgment, and the premises were sold. The purchasers declined to complete their agreement on the ground that the state was not bound by the proceedings, and that therefore the sale did not pass a clear title. The New York supreme court upheld this contention, and denied plaintiff's motion to compel acceptance of title, saying that there was no authority for making the state a party in proceedings of admeasurement of dower; that the appearance by the attorney general was not binding and created no estoppel against bringing action to recover the property which had escheated to the state. A short time after this decision was rendered, the legislature passed an act ratifying the appearance by the attorney general and confirming the sale.

WHAT CONSTITUTES A "CONVICTION" UNDER LIQUOR LICENSE LAW.—The decision of the New York court in H. Koehler & Co., vs. Clement, 111 New York Supplement, 151, serves to show that the disposition of a case sometimes depends on the meaning of a single word. The liquor tax law of New York provides for payment of rebates on surrender of licenses by persons "authorized to sell liquors under the provisions of the act." The right to traffic in liquors is forbidden to any person "convicted for a violation of this act, until three years from the date of such conviction." Relators' claim to a rebate as assignees of a certificate issued to one Levy was resisted on the ground that Levy had been so "convicted" within three years preceding the date of issuance of his license and was consequently not "authorized" to sell liquors. It appeared that he had been tried on such a charge and found guilty, but sentence had been suspended, and the time within which it might be imposed had expired. The court, following by analogy the case of People vs. Fabian, 111 New York Supplement, 140, invoking the right to vote, decided that the conviction was complete so as to vitiate the certificate in the hands of Levy, and, as he was not thereby authorized to engage in the liquor business, he would have no right to a rebate. The assignees' rights were held to be no greater than those of the original holder, and recovery was denied.

RESTRAINING TAKING OF GAS FROM MINERAL SPRING.—There is, in New York, a statute forbidding pumping or accelerating the natural flow of carbonic gas contained in mineral waters when such acts impede the flow or diminish the quality of carbonic gas of other springs. An expensive mechanical apliance was operated by a corporation in the vicinity of Saratoga Springs for the purpose of extracting, condensing and vending the gas. The water itself was wasted. In Hathorn vs. Natural Carbonic Gas company, 112 New York Supplement, 374, it was sought to restrain defendant from pursuing this business. The defendant urged that the statute was unconstitutional, as it would deprive it of its property without due process of law, and that, as the water was being used for profit, naturally it was used in the manner most profitable to it. The supreme court of New York granted the injunction, holding that it was within the police power of the state to forbid the disintegration and destruction of mineral waters to the prejudice of others, when the value taken is very small when compared with the part destroyed.

FUNERAL OF M. J. DAVIS

Many Friends Follow Body of Former Mayor to Grave.

Scores of prominent citizens of Duluth, this afternoon paid their respects to the memory of Marcus J. Davis, former mayor of Duluth, by attending his funeral services, which were held at 2 o'clock from the Masonic temple, in charge of the Masons, of which the deceased was a member.

The remains arrived in the city this morning from Joplin, Mo., where Mr. Davis died, and were taken in charge by Undertaker Stewart. Mr. Davis was very well known in Duluth, and the funeral was largely attended by all classes of citizens.

Mayor Haven, the aldermen, and the other city officials, were present, and prominent among the many beautiful floral offerings was a wearth with the words "City Hall" worked in it, which was sent by order of the council.

The city hall remained closed from 1:30 o'clock this afternoon until 3:30 o'clock, out of respect to the memory of the deceased. The council last night, upon the suggestion of Mayor Haven, ordered that the large framed portrait of Mr. Davis in the council chamber be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days.

Fargo City Hall Settling.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is some concern among the occupants of the new city hall over the discovery that the structure is settling. The site was years ago an old slough, and the subsoil is thought to be too soft to bear the weight. The discovery was first made through the continued troubles with doors and windows and was later verified by tests.

ON THE IRON RANGES

A. P. SILLIMAN NEW PRESIDENT

Hibbing Commercial Club Holds Annual Election of Officers.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cold weather did not keep many members away from the annual meeting of the Commercial club last night when officers were elected and many matters benefitting this section was considered.

William West announced that his business would prevent his giving to the duties of president the time the position demanded and he declined a re-election. His services were appreciated in the shape of a vote of thanks. Officers were elected as follows: A. P. Silliman, president; R. L. Griffin, first vice president; David Graham, second vice president; A. E. Pfremmer, secretary; C. M. Atkinson, treasurer; T. F. Grady, F. A. Klaff, H. R. Welrick, J. P. Ryan, K. C. Barrett, directors.

The question of securing a district judge for the range was discussed and it was decided to name a committee consisting of City Attorney Robert Stratten, who brought up the subject, John Cox, Fred Klaff, W. H. Day and Victor Powers to meet with the Virginia Commercial club tomorrow to discuss the judgship matter. The committee will also discuss with the other Commercial club the question of the appointment of a county road commissioner. The farmers of Stewart, a settlement fifteen miles east of here, were represented before the club by V. B. Reed and F. S. Beebe, who asked for a better road to the settlement. The club will give assistance in the matter. Prof. A. J. McGuire was invited to deliver an address before the club on milk supply.

Frank Ainsley and John O'Connor were named on a committee to confer with the state argicultural society relative to matters of importance to this section.

VIRGINIANS MAY HAVE TO VACATE

Ore Drilling in Second Ward May Result in Mining.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Albert B. Coates, one of the well known mining men of this section, who has just returned from an important business trip to Duluth, is interested in several mines in the vicinity of Virginia and is at the present time the leader of a deal which may revolutionize mining in this city. The operations of his company may in the early spring cause an exodus of the people of the Second ward of this city, as well as to cause them to move their homes and business places in that portion of the town. Drilling operations have been resumed in the Second ward and the company interested in the deal hope to strike something very soon that will make the city of Virginia one of the greatest mining communities in the iron section of the state.

ON EXTENSIVE TRIP.

Virginia Doctor to Make Tour of the Southwest.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. W. T. Bailey leaves next week for an extended visit in the Southwest. He will visit Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico. During his absence he will look over timber lands and if the outlook is satisfactory will purchase lands in these sections for his company.

J. H. Harrigan, traveling representative for the Miller Brewing company in this section, has been spending the past few days looking after the company's interests along the range towns.

Mrs. Melville Ramstad left yesterday for Washburn, Wis., for an extended visit with her parents. Mr. Ramsted accompanied her as far as Duluth, returning the same evening.

Eugene McCarthy, who has been connected with the Orpheum theater in this city as musical director, will go to Hibbing this week to act in a like capacity for Smith & Dees, who will soon open a vaudeville theater in that city.

J. E. Hansen, paymaster of the Virginia Timber company, was in the city yesterday.

CONFIRM ASSESSMENT.

Difference About Two Harbors Sewer Probably Disposed of.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The city council last night probably effectually disposed of the Second avenue sewer assessment squabble, which has been hanging fire for weeks, by confirming the assessment.

A delegation of Odd Fellows requested that the city council provide a septic tank for a three-story building to be erected by the Odd Fellows, on Cedar street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues, there being no sewer at that point.

ELY FIREMEN ELECT.

Louis Eisenach is Chosen Chief of Department.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Louis Eisenach has been elected chief of the local fire department. Other officers chosen were: I. G. Cox, assistant chief; W. DesJardins, second assistant chief; Ed Powers, first captain; Jack Seraphine, second captain; B. Strachan, hook and ladder captain; Harry A. Chinn, secretary; L. J. White, treasurer.

The fire department relief association elected the following officers. M. E. Gleason, president; George Holmes, vice president; H. A. Chinn, secretary; L. J. White, treasurer; Jack Seraphine, John Hablan and B. Strachan, trustees.

COOL HEAD STOPS PANIC.

Fire in Basement of Ely Church Causes Excitement.

Ely, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Cool heads prevented a disastrous panic during the services in the M. E. church Sunday night, when an overheated furnace in the basement set fire to the woodwork and the church auditorium rapidly filled with smoke, flames shooting up through the rear and cutting off escape by the regular exit. Marshalled by the pastor, Rev. J. D. Manley, women in the congregation was led through a side door to safety, while the men carried in snow and kept the fire in hand until the department arrived and put it out. The damage was not very heavy.

AHRENS IN VIRGINIA.

Former Head Sawyer of Lumber Company Back From South.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred Ahrens, formerly head sawyer for the W. T. Bailey Lumber company of this city, is spending a few days in the city. Since leaving here, last fall, he spent several months in Missouri, Tennessee, Alabama and Florida. Mr. Ahrens will leave again some time this week for the South, but will return in the spring to resume his old position with the Bailey Lumber company.

AFTER MUCH LUMBER.

Representative of St. Louis Concern Visits Virginia.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. M. McKee, traveling representative for a St. Louis lumber concern, spent yesterday in the city, negotiating with the Virginia Lumber company for the purchase of several hundred thousand feet of lumber. Mr. McKee reports that the lumber trade in the South will develop to its largest proportions during the coming year, and that his company is making preparations for a large output in the early spring. Mr. McKee left this morning for Duluth to confer with Mr. Cussions, general manager of the Virginia Lumber company, in regard to a large deal in lumber, which his company wishes to negotiate.

GILBERT WILL DECIDE.

Question of Annexing Sparta Addition Vexed One.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the next meeting of Gilbert village council, a committee will report on annexing Sparta addition to Gilbert. At the last meeting representatives from Sparta were present and presented their arguments for admission. They a re bringing $25,000 which will be used for the town's equipment, and also a well equipped fire department. As Gilbert includes some mines, the town is undecided about allowing the addition to come in.

The work on the First National bank building at Gilbert is progressing steadily, and the building structure will no doubt be occupied some time this month.

Streets lights have been put in, and the streets are well lit up during the evening. The system is an automatic lighting gas street system, and has proven satisfactory. Seven lights are in service, but more can be added when necessary.

GILBERT SOCIAL EVENTS.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Next week a party is to be given by the Gilbert club. The Eagles of that town will have a masquerade ball on the 27th. The lodge is only a few months old, but has a membership of sixty-five. Dr. Barrett, Bruce Mills, John Oman and Fred Hedman were initiated at the last meeting, and the committees were then appointed to arrange for the ball.

Sleighing parties are also a popular form of amusement, and trips to Eveleth and Virginia are often made by large parties.

SLANDER SUIT BRINGS JUDGE PRINCE TO CITY.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Prince and Attorney James Boyle are in Duluth, called by a case in which Judge Prince is a principal. It is of long standing, dating back about two years, when Judge Prince and Mr. and Mrs. Greenberg were alleged to have taken some money from a local storekeeper. Judge Prince is suing for slander.

After finishing his business in Duluth, Judge Prince will go to Brainerd to assist in the installation of officers of the Pocahantas tribe of Redmen of that town. He expects to be back Saturday.

FAREWELL BANQUET TO RETIRING ASSISTANT CHIEF.

Eveleth Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The fire department will give a farewell banquet tonight in the city hall to Assistant Chief Charles MacDonough, who will move to Hibbing to engage in business with Will Coss, also a former resident of Eveleth. The committee having charge of the affair is Chief William Neilon and J. J. Thibaut and S. A. Meade of the volunteers.

Cartoonist "Draws" Well.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—In spite of the extremely cold weather, Ross Crane, the noted cartoonist, had a large audience at the Roosevelt auditorium last evening. His chalk talk and caricatures were about the best ever seen in the city.

To Play Hibbing Saturday.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Manager John Shoemaker of the high school basketball team has arranged a game at Hibbing Saturday with the Hibbing high school team.

THE BEST LAXATIVE FOR YOUNG OR OLD

The need of a safe laxative is felt in every household. Beecham's Pills for fifty years have filled every requirement of a reliable family medicine. They are thorough in their action, yet never gripe nor shock the system. The violent character of many preparations sold under names, should lead the people to choose a standard preparation.

Beecham's Pills are safe for young and old, and their good effect on the general health is very marked. They aid digestion, strengthen the stomach, give the liver gentle exercise, purify the blood and clear the complexion. Do not fail to keep a box in the house. 10 cents and 25 cents, at all druggists.

NORTHEAST EXPERIMENT FARM

Results of the Year Are Summarized by Superintendent McGuire.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Jan. 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. J. McGuire, superintendent of the Northeast experiment farm, has issued the following bulletin on the results of the year:

With the conclusion of 1908 we may look back over the results of the year, and from its experience shape more wisely the work of the coming year.

The state farm, as it is called by the neighbors, has prospered, and it is hoped that every farmer in Northeastern Minnesota has gained some good in the way of a better farm, a more comfortable home, and a greater knowledge and respect for his employment.

While Northeastern Minnesota has not had as great an increase in settlement the past year as its needs demand, there have been developments that are most encouraging for the farmer. The extension of railroads, the numerous new mining towns all calling for farm produce, and most of all the interest in the development of agriculture that is being shown by every one, from the homesteader to even the mining engineer. "More farmers and better farming for Northeastern Minnesota" has come to be the watchword. Pass it along till this section of our fair state is contributing its rich share to agriculture. Till there is a farmer on every eighty acres of land. Till every swamp is drained and every needed road is built. Till every farmer realizes that farming is a business, and requires system, and study and co-operation with his fellow farmers, for success, even more than the business of the man who lives in town.

The work of the experiment farm during the past year has been along the same line as described in a former bulletin. A system of practical farming with dairying as the foundation. The alternation of clover with grain and cultivated crops. Selling only finished products: butter, meat, eggs, potatoes, vegetables and small fruits. The grain, hay, fodder, corn and roots are fed on the farm, and the fertility which they contain is largely returned to the soil in manure. Four hundred loads of stable manure was hauled out during the year and applied to the field. Through this and the growing of clover the soil of the farm is becoming a richer sod each year. Not only on the experimental farm but throughout Northeastern Minnesota the farmer each field every three or four years in rotation—growing clover alternately on all the fields of the farm, and manuring is the dairy farmer who is now prosare securing equally good results.

That dairying is to be the system of farming for Northeastern Minnesota is coming to be generally accepted. It is th edairy farmer who is now prospering most. The farmer who grows clover and feeds it on the farm, and who feeds it to the most productive of all animals, the dairy cow.

To increase the number of cows in Northeastern Minnesota, and to increase the acreage and cultivation so that feed may be grown for them is the most important agricultural subject we have to consider.

Fifty farmers in any community with ten cows each, can afford a creamery. With a production of 200 pounds of butter to the cow per year at 25c per pound, would mean an income to that community of $25,000 a year. This for butter alone.

The ways and means of this industry is worthy of consideration. It is only through consideration and study that it may be brought about.

Buildings Shaken.

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 12.—At 3:44 yesterday afternoon a shock of earthquake was felt in Vancouver and at other places along the coast. A telegram from Victoria says that buildings were shaken there. The shock lasted from ten to twenty seconds.

CARMICHAEL HAD MOTIVE

"that there was a deep motive behind the crime."

Similarly, Under Sheriff Petit of Port Huron asserts his belief that Carmichael's last letter was not intended for a deathbed confession, but was written with the idea that he would be brought back to stand trial. Internal evidence also, it is said, points to the suspicion that the preacher deliberately made false statements. As an example, it is indicated that he must have known, while writing of a wedding ceremony for Browning, that the latter had a wife, a fact well known in the community. A failure to verify other points in the confession also deepens the prevailing suspicion.

Sheriff Wegenseil, who started for Carthage as soon as the fact of the suicide became known, and is today taking the lead in the investigation, was convinced that there was a woman in the case, and expressed regret that Carmichael could not have been taken home alive.

Mental Irresponsibility.

In the face of these doubts, however, the general tendency seems to be to accept the theory of mental irresponsibility until tangible development tend to overthrow it.

Carmichael's death was almost as horrible as that of his victim. When he arrived at the Hughes' boarding house, he gave the name of John Elder, and as he said he was a wood-worker, and had come there to start a factory, no suspicion was attached to his presence. Once he went to a Catholic priest and, declaring himself a Catholic, asked the influence of the members of the church in helping him in business. Going about the town and in and out of the boarding house, he gave no indications of brooding over the murder. Although so far as he knew, he was still beyond the reach of detectives, the crisis came yesterday morning, when, about 7:30 o'clock, he informed Miss Hughes that as no satisfactory site for his factory could be found here, he intended to go to Bowen, Ill.

"I think it will be a better site there," he said. "I'll take the 9 o'clock train." Saying this he went out into the back yard. As he delayed coming back, and had not returned at train time to get his suit case, the landlady instituted a search. A passing teamster was hailed and he, with others, joined the searchers. But Carmichael already, by his own hand, so far as he was able, had expiated his crime. In an old wooden shed back of the house he had cut his throat from ear to ear. The cutting had been done with a pocket knife, which lay by his side. The dying man was carried into the house, but he never recovered consciousness. Every effort was made to revive him, but he died at 1 p. m.

In Port Huron, Mich., that portion of the confession saying that the minister expected to perform a wedding ceremony for Browning is particularly ridiculed. It was well known in the village of Adair that Browning was a married man, who was separated from his wife.

Mrs. Browning Talks.

Auburn, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Sarah T. Browning, wife of Gideon Browning, talked of her life and of her dead husband to a representative of the Associated Press here. She said:

"I married Gideon Browning in West Bloomfield, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1894. After our marriage we lived there for a year and then moved to Adair, Mich. We stayed there but a short time, when we moved back to West Bloomfield. We had a son, Willie. We stayed at West Bloomfield until three years ago, when Gideon began to drink and abuse me. He would not work, and compelled me to go out washing. Then we moved to Canandaigua, where it was the same old story. I stood his treatment as long as I could, until Sept. 4, 1907, when I left him and came here to Auburn to live with my aunt.

"Gideon came here Feb. 10, a year ago, and asked me to come back with him. I said, 'no, I won't go back.' Then he tried to scare me and swore he would kill me if I did not come back. Soon after, he said he was going to sell out."

SEVEN DROWN WHEN DUTCH STEAMER SINKS.

Singapore, Jan. 12.—The French liner Polynesian, from Marseilles, Dec. 20, for Yokohama, ran down and sank the Dutch steamer Djamdi, at the wharf here today. Seven natives were drowned. The Polynesian proceeded on her way.

DULUTH MAN TO SPEAK AT MINNEAPOLIS MEETING.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. E. McEwen of Duluth, state labor commissioner, is to be a speaker at the meeting of the Men's union of Westminster church this evening. His topic is "Some Things in the Philosophy of Trades Unionism." Rev. L. J. Davies of North China will give a brief talk on conditions there. Dinner is to be served in the church at 6:30 p. m., and the addresses will follow.

"POLLY OF THE CIRCUS."

Miss Edith Taliaferro Scores Triumph in Thompson Production.

Unfortunately, it is not often that Duluth gets a theatrical attraction like "Polly of the Circus" or a star like winsome little Edith Taliaferro.

In spite of the below zero temperature, and the counter attraction of a dance at the Spalding, the Lyceum was almost filled last evening with a large and fashionable audience, and on but occasions has the theater seen a more enthusiastic gathering. The little star was given four curtain calls after the last act, when on ordinary occasions the spectators are scurrying for the cars.

There is something in the atmosphere of the play that seems to hold the sympathies of the audience from the start. The play was written from ideas furnished by Frederick Thompson, the spectacular young financier who built Luna park at Coney Island. The play was written by Margaret Mayo, and Mr. Thompson furnished the circus "atmosphere." How well they both did their work was evidenced by the unbounded enthusiasm displayed by last night's audience. Always a devotee of the tan bark ring, Mr. Thompson has caught the circus atmosphere in a way that few managers could do. The story of the play is that of Polly, a little circus rider and a "daughter of the circus," who is injured in the ring, and is carried to the home of a young minister, where she stays until she recovers her strength.

The scenes between the minister and Polly are the most delightful in the show. The slang of Polly is the polyglot talk of the circus, and unlike most stage slang, does not seem forced. There is a subtle poetry and an undercurrent of pathos underlying the humor of the conversation between the minister and the naive, delicate little miss who was left in his charge. The spectators find themselves gulping down a little tightening of the throat between the laughs.

The girl leaves when she finds that her presence is causing trouble for the minister, but they are finally reunited, and the beautiful tableau in the last act shows the circus caravans winding away in the distance, with Polly and the pastor watching them disappear.

It would be a very grouchy inspector indeed who would not grow enthusiastic over the work of Miss Edith Taliaferro—which, by the way, is properly pronounced "Tolliver," although members of the company pronounce it as it is spelt. The young woman has just celebrated her seventeenth birthday, and is probably the youngest star on the American stage. With youth, vivacity, artistic ability and all the charming mannerisms of the South, she seems destined for the top rounds of the ladder of her profession, and, in fact, is already within sight of them. She seems to throw herself into the part with all her youthful enthusiasm. Her faults are those of inexperience, and another year or two of study should make her one of America's most charming and talented actresses. She has the temperament, and is richly endowed with the physical requirements of beauty, daintiness and personal magnetism.

Earl Ryder, who has the role of the minister, is most satisfactory. He is an athletic-looking young man, with a good voice and a natural manner. He easily falls into the good graces of the audience, and makes a splendid foil for the bright naiveto of Miss Taliaferro.

Charles Lamb makes the part of Big Jim, the boss canvasman, stand out prominently, and two other very clever bits are contributed by Thomas Holer as Deacon Elverson and Kate Jepson as Mandy Jones, the colored housekeeper. Stuart Johnson as "Hasty" Jones and Harry J. Lane as Uncle Toby are also all that could be asked.

The stage settings are a revelation in the art of show-producing. No expense has been spared in catching the circus "atmosphere." An entire troupe of circus performers is carried to appear for just three minutes in the second scene of the last act, and the scene outside the big tent is made very realistic by the dogs, mules and ponies.

Entirely free from suggestiveness or vulgarity of any kind, novel in its theme, true to life, and wholly entertaining, "Polly of the Circus" is one of the most refreshing attractions seen in Duluth this season.

AT THE BIJOU.

Two Clever Sketches and Some Attractive Vaudeville Novelties.

A heavy bill, which includes some clever novelties of the vaudeville stage, furnishes good amusement at the Bijou this week. The usual large Monday evening crowds saw the performance last night and their appreciation indicates that the bill is one that will please the clientele of the little playhouse.

Two sketches make up the bulk of the bill. Eugene Ellsworth and company have a wholesome little comedy sketch, entitled, "His Day Off." "The Hunter an dthe Maid," is a comedy singing, dancing and whistling act by Flora Brownlee, "The Girl with the Diamond Heels," and Keller the whistler Both are cleverly done and amusing.

Joseph K. Watson has a comic Hebrew character act from which much of the horse-play common to stage caricatures of Hebrews is eliminated, and "Lightning Hopper," the cartoonist, spreads crayon on paper with the speed, from which he gains his name. The Australian Tree Fellers have a novel act that has never been seen in Duluth before.

Isador Silver sings "When You Love a Summer Girl," and the usual moving pictures close the bill.

Rode Real Mustang.

An unusually interesting story is told about Frank Conway, who plays the leading part of "Freshwater Jack" in the great American play "Texas," at the Lyceum, tomorrow night and Thursday. Recently, while the show was playing a three-night engagement at Dallas, a large number of cowboys and bronco-busters attended the performance, and between the acts, while they were standing in the lobby, they began arguing the ability of "Freshwater Jack" to ride a mustang. In fact, they doubted if he could ride anything but a train. Finally, the argument led to a wager, and one of the boys bet quite heavily that he couldn't stick on a bronco. They posted their money, and then sought Charles McClintock, the manager of the attraction, who took them back on the stage and introduced them to Conway. They told them their wager, and asked him out to the "Big Horn" ranch, which invitation he accepted. He was there on time, and after making a wager that he could ride anything they had on the ranch, they brought in one of the worst bucking broncos they had, and Conway mounted him, rode for an hour, dismounted, took his winnings and asked them if they had any real wild animals on the ranch, but the boys were satisfied.

"The Chorus Lady."

While it is a well-known fact that the stage leads in fashions, it is not often that the costumes are designed by the star of the attraction. Rose Stahl, now appearing in "The Chorus Lady," is perhaps, the only American woman star to originate both design and color scheme for all of the gowns by herself and the members of her company, and the gowns shown here are good samples of Miss Stahl's modiste artistry.

Henry B. Harris, under whose direction "The Chorus Lady" is being presented, was, when it came to the costuming of the play, in somewhat of a quandary as to who he would get to do it. Then, one day when Miss Stahl was in the office the matter came up, and Miss Stahl suggested that he turn the whole matter of the designing over to her. This he gladly did. That she has been decidedly successful is clearly evident by the fact that the big department stores in New York, have used as their models, many of the gowns worn by members of "The Chorus Lady."

Big Attractions Coming.

Duluth seems to be the Mecca for advance agents this week. There are no less than four advance managers for big productions in the city today. They are Howard Gale, representing "The Three Twins;" F. Cruickshank, representing "Little Johnny Jones;" Lee Riley, ahead of "The Land of Nod," and Wallace Munro, with Louis James are all in the city. The "Three Twins" and "The Land of Nod" come next week, followed by "Little Johnny Jones" and Louis James the week following, rounding out a notable month at the Lyceum.

STUBBS URGES PUBLIC UTILITIES MEASURE.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 12.—Governor Walter R. Stubbs today delivered his first message to the Kansas legislature and recommended a public utilities law, urging the legislature to utilize "whatever may be used to advantage of the present railroad law as a basis and adding the best features of the New York and Wisconsin public utilities laws, which have had a severe practical test."

Isthmus Plans For Taft.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 12.—Elaborate preparations for the reception and entertainment of President-elect Taft, on the occasion of his visit to the Isthmus of Panama, early next month, are being made by the canal zone officials, according to passengers arriving here from Colon.

DORANDO'S HEART IN BAD SHAPE AFTER RACE, SAYS DOCTOR

By Dr. Jos. Creamer.

"I examined Dorando immediately after he was carried from the track. His heart was in bad shape and he was in a state of total collapse. In my opinion, the condition of his heart was due partly to overstimulation. His handlers gave him stuff from a bottle which they said was coffee. Even coffee taken in such quantities would be likely to affect his stomach and cause his collapse. There wasn't a bruise on him to show that the fall did any damage."

It has been a part of our mission to explain to people that the drug, caffeine in coffee seriously affects the stomach, heart and nerves of some people (a good many).

If you want health and the power to do things and win in the race for any kind of supremacy, you better trim off the handicaps—and coffee is one.

It is joy of the keenest sort to be entirely well.

PRACTICAL JOKERS IN WARFARE THAT IS FOUGHT HALFWAY ACROSS CONTINENT

A practical jokers' war, which has been fought half way across the continent, terminated in Duluth Saturday and yesterday. Perhaps "terminated" is not the proper road, for there may be many more chapters to it. But a chapter closed here.

The war is between three theatrical press agents, Frank V. Bruner of "The Chorus Lady" company on one side, and Wallace Munro representing Louis James, and Lee Riley, representing "The Land of Nod" company, on the other side. So far the honors have all been with the duo. They began the war, and they have won most of the skirmishes to date.

The war started as a result of the attachment of Mr. Bruner for a member of "The Land of Nod" company, which is expected to terminate at the altar when the season closes. From Seattle, where all three men happened to be, "The Chorus Lady" jumped direct to Vancouver, while "The Land of Nod" company took a roundabout route. Bruner took the roundabout route, and he was followed by a series of fake telegrams purporting to be from his employer, asking him why he took so long to reach Vancouver. Then newspaper reporters had a habit of meeting him in all the towns en route and asking him if were true that he had eloped with a member of "The Land of Nod" company, and if his wife and three children were looking for him. These little incidents, of course, served to keep him from suffering from ennui.

Coming back from the coast, the story followed him, and in Duluth Mr. Bruner determined to get even. Saturday evening, an innocent little want ad appeared in The Herald. It read as follows:

"Wanted—Twenty good looking young women, Swedish preferred, to join Peer Gynt company. Experience unnecessary. Apply to Wallace Munro, manager, at Spalding hotel, Monday, Jan. 11, at 9 a. m."

After paying for the advertisement, Mr. Bruner left the city, for Minneapolis, content in the thought of good deeds done.

They applied, all right. Apparently every good looking girl of Swedish descent in Duluth called to see Mr. Munro, and many who never got closer to Sweden than Cork, Ireland, were also in the list. But strange to say the joke wasn't on Mr. Munro, after all. In fact it was a Godsend, and saved him twenty-five cents and some little trouble. He did require a few supers for "Peer Gynt," and had been planning to advertise for them himself as soon as he was ready to do so. When the applicants began pouring in on him, he received them with open arms, metaphorically speaking, and picking the ones he wanted, engaged them.

But today the Minneapolis papers are probing a scandal (?) in the private life of Frank V. Bruner, that concerns a member of "The Land of Nod" company, and Mr. Munro is hoping that the angry Bruner will continue to advertise for good looking Swedish girls to join the "Peer Gynt" company. It saves him money and trouble, to have the applicants all waiting for him when he arrives in a city.

Mr. Riley plays the role of advisor in this little campaign, and aids and abets his friend Mr. Munro, stirring him to renewed vigor when interest seems to lag in the affair. Before they reach New York, it is predicted that one of them will be derailing railroad trains for the fun of seeing the other crawl out of the wreck.

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"On October 18th, last, my little three-year-old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day October 23rd, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. I recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unreservedly as I have found it the surest, safest and quickest cure for colds, both for children and adults, of any I have ever used.' ORDINANCE IS ADOPTED

Deadlock on City Liquor Law is Finally Broken.

All Hotels With Fifty Rooms Will Get Licenses.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID.

Adopted new liquor ordinance, covering the same ground as the old ordinance, and so framed as to be constitutional.

Adopted ordinance covering the granting of a franchise to the Soo road for the building of a railroad approach to the interstate bridge.

Received communication from the Duluth Terminal Railway company, a subsidiary of the Great Northern, protesting against granting the Soo a franchise.

Recommended that the state legislators work to amend anti-pass ordinance, so as to allow employes of city, police, fire and health departments to ride on street cars free of charge, while in the performance of their duty.

Voted for withdrawal of the amendment to building ordinance, providing for doors swinging outward in down town buildings, so that some changes might be made in the measure.

Received communication from city engineer recommending that Aerial bridge be repainted and that $430 be spent in buying parts to replace badly worn parts of the structure.

By a vote of fourteen to two, the council last night adopted a redraft of Alderman McKnight's liquor ordinance. In all essential details it is the same measure that has been before the council for the last month. Aldermen Ribenack and Foubister voter no.

The new ordinance differs only in a few points from the old, which was declared unconstitutional. Last night's measure is made constitutional by providing the maximum penalty for violation of the liquor law eighty-five days in jail, instead of ninety, as formerly, and striking out the words, "or both such fine and imprisonment."

Jury trials are done away with by the measure. The sale of liquor in any quantity under five gallons without a license, is prohibited, except that druggists may fill a doctor's prescription calling for intoxicants, but it is provided that the same prescription shall not be filled more than once.

A new feauture of the last ordinance is a provision that any hotel building with fifty or more sleeping rooms, shall be entitled to a saloon license, regardless of the total number of saloon licenses that have been issued by the city. The limit placed on the number of saloon licenses that shall be issued has no bearing on the hotel bar licenses.

The ordinance makes it optional with the court whether the punishment shall be fine or imprisonment, but does not make it possible to inflict both fine and imprisonment, as did the old. The provisions which made the old ordinance invalid have been avoided, and there is said to be no question that the new ordinance is constitutional.

There was quite a discussion on the matter, principally on the point of whether final action in regard to it should be taken last night, or whether it should be postponed a week, to allow every one a chance to carefully study the provisions of the measure. Alderman Foubister and Ribenack argued in favor of putting it over for a week, saying they had not had a chance to get acquaintd with its provisions. Alderman Foubister said he was opposed to the adoption of any ordinance covering points that already were covered by the state law. Alderman Ribenack said he thought probably the measure was all right and said he would doubtless vot for it afte he had a chance to look it over, but objected to such hasty action being taken.

Aldermen Shartel and McKnight explained wherein the new measure differs from the old, and said there was no need for delay. Alderman Tessman said it was immaterial to him, whether action was taken last night or a week hence, and remarked that the request for a week's postponement was entirely reasonable.

"It's tonight or never with me," said Alderman McKnight. "I will not stand for having the ordinance laid over for another week. I am willing to see the measure turned down, but it has got to be tonight, and no other time, if I have anything to say about it."

The motion to lay over for one week was lost by a vote of seven to nine.

After some more discussion in regard to the different provisions of the ordinance, it was put to vote, and was carried, fourteen to two.

There was also a sharp discussion as to whether or not Martin Smith, said to be an officer in the People's Brewing company, should be granted a hotel liquor ordinance at 521 West Michigan street. He has a hotel building there with seventy-two rooms. Alderman McKnight objected to granting the license on the ground that Mr. Smith already had five licenses, and further contended that Mr. Smith was not as competent to run even one saloon as some other saloon men of the city. He argued that granting six licenses to one man, especially when that man is connected with a brewing company, looks too much like going back to the old system of granting breweries licenses, and allowing them to hire men to operate their places. Alderman Tessman said Mr. Smith was better able to run six saloons, giving all a part of his time, that some of the local saloonkeepers were to operate one place. The license was granted, the final vote standing ten to six.

Alderman Moore asked for a reconsideration of a resolution adopted last week, concerning the disposition of the old Woodland fire hall. A vote to reconsider carried the motion. It was then voted that the city clerk be instructed to advertise for bids on the building alone, the bids to include the removal of the building from the site with a time limit of sixty days after the acceptance of the bid. The motion also provided for the sale of the lot upon which the hall is located.

According to a statement submitted by City Engineer McGilvray, prepared under instructions from the council, the cost of street intersection improvements in Duluth for the past two years has been, in 1907, $30,208.24, and in 1908, $10,193.30. The percentages are about the same each year, in proportion to the amount of street work done.

Mr. McGilvray also reported on the aerial bridge, recommending that it be repainted by day labor, and that $430 be expended for the purchase of new parts to replace parts which have become badly worn. He says the structure is in good condition, except that in some places the three years constant service is showing a natural wear. He says ordering new parts now to replace the old will do away with future delays. The whole matter was referred to the proper committee. The city engineer made a further recommendation that a combined workshop, storage house and waiting room be built by the city at the end of the bridge at a cost of $1,500. He said the city is now paying $180 a year rental for a waiting room.

Action in regard to the saloon license renewal of Anton Carlson, 515 West Michigan street, was postponed one week to allow the committee time for investigation. Chief of Police Troyer objected to renewing the license.

The special legislative committee reported favorably upon the proposed amendment to the anti-pass bill, so as to provide for free street car fares for city firemen, policemen and health officers in the performances of their duties. The council, by unanimous vote, recommended to the state legislators that the amendment be adopted.

It was announced that officials of the street railway company would meet everybody interested in the West Fourth street street car service the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 o'clock, in the council chambers, for a discussion of the subject. Residents in the district interested have asked for more cars on the line.

A petition was received asking for the improvement of Sixth avenue east, from First street to Fourth street. The petition was referred to the board of public works.

Mayor Haven recommended to the council that all city officials attend the funeral today of ex-Mayor Marcus J. Davis, and that the city hall be closed from 1:30 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. today. By unanimous vote the recommendation relative to the city hall was carried out. Palestine lodge, No. 79, A. F. & A. M., in a letter to the council, invited the city fathers to attend the Davis funeral.

Alderman McKnight offered a resolution that the street railway company be required to stop its cars going west on Superior street on the west side of Forty-seventh avenue east, instead of upon the east side, as has been the custom in the past. The matter was laid over for one week, to allow interested parties a chance to be heard before the council.

St. Croix Pioneer Dies.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 12.—Thomas Frawley, a pioneer of the St. Croix valley, did at his home Sunday, in the town of St. Joe, in St. Croix county, Wisconsin. He is survived by eleven children, one of whom is William Frawley, assistant superintendent of the Northwest Thresher company of this city.

FEARED TOTAL LOSS OF HAIR

Scalp had been Scaly for Some Time —After an Attack of Typhoid Fever his Hair Began to Fall Out by the Handful—Now It is

THICKER THAN EVER THANKS TO CUTICURA

"About two years ago I was troubled with my head being scaly, like dandruff but heavier—although I wash my head once a week always. It never gave me any trouble such as itching or smarting and I never noticed any falling of the hair. But shortly after that I had an attack of typhoid fever and I was out of the hospital possibly two months when I first noticed the loss of hair, my scalp being still scaly. I started to use a dandruff cure to no effect whatever. And I used a quinine preparation quite freely which did no good either. Whether it was the effect of the fever or some scalp disease I don't know, but I had actually lost hope of saving any hair at all. I could brush it off my coat by the handful. It got so bad that I didn't need to comb it any more—in fact I was afraid to. My brother, who had used the Cuticura Remedies with satisfaction, advised me to try them. After using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and nearly a box of Cuticura Ointment, the change was surprising. My scalp is now clear and healthy as could be and my hair thicker than ever, whereas six months ago I had my mind made up to be bald in a short time. I will have a photograph taken later and send you one. William F. Steese, 5312 Broad St., Pittsburg, Penn., May 7 and 21, '08."

Warm baths with Cuticura Soap and gentle anointings with Cuticura Ointment, assisted when necessary by Cuticura Resolvent (liquid or pills), afford instant relief in the most distressing forms of itching, burning, scaly, crusted humors, eczemas, rashes, inflammations, irritations and chafings of infancy and childhood, permit rest and sleep and point to a speedy and permanent cure, in the majority of cases, when all other remedies fail.

WOMEN'S WOES

Duluth Woemn Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in site of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. W. F. Humerichous, 109 Twenty-seventh Ave., Duluth, Minn., says: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and the medicines I used did not help me. My back often ached severely and when I stooped dizzy spells seized me. When I had taken the contents of one box of Doan's Kidney Pills, I felt so much better that I procured a further supply. I am now free from backache and feel better in every way. I do not hesitate to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills in return for the good they did for me."

CARMICHAEL CONFESSION ALLEGES HYPNOTISM; EYES OF VICTIM LIKE SERPENT

Carthage, Ill., Jan. 12.—Following is the confession written by Rev. John H Carmichael, who killed himself here after having killed Gideon Browning, a carpenter, near Adair, Mich. and stuffed his dismembered body into a stove in the Methodist church there:

"Carthage, Ill., Jan. 9, 1909.

"To Mr Wagensell,

"Port Huron, Mich.

"Honored Sir: I write this letter to explain some things in connection with the Columbus church tragedy. I am guilty only because I am a coward. The man had such a hypnotic influence over me that I felt greatly ashamed that a man said to be shortminded should be able to compel me to yield to his will, but I said nothing about it. At first, he said, 'It's right, elder, don't be afraid,' then he began to talk about how we two could get rich. Three times he came to my barn and talked to me, twice he was at the river when I went to water my stock, and each time I felt that he was doing something that he was proud of once. When I was going out to Columbus, he was on the pike near the schoolhouse and when I overtook him he asked me to ride with him, which I could not refuse. He asked me if ever I had driven up the pike to Port Huron, to which I answered 'No.' Then he said: "Come, let's drive up,' to which I dissented but he kept on until he persuaded me to go. He got out and stood at the corner while I went to the barn with the rig. Then after we had been at the restaurant, for which he paid, also for the horse, he gave me half a dollar and said he wanted me to go across there and buy a small hatchet for his boy to play with.

"It began to tell him to go and do his own shopping when he set his eyes on me in the queerest sort of a look, like the look in a snake's eyes. Then I felt his influence tightening his grip on my mind, so I went, intending to go in the store and out the back and get the horse and go home. When I closed the door he stood looking through the window at me and I just bought the hatchet and came out again but by that time he had disappeared so I went to the barn, got my rig and went home. As I made the turn at Military street he was at the corner to get in. He rode as far as South Park, where he got out to take the car. He took the hatchet with him and said nothing, nor did I think anything at the time about the change.

"Once at the depot at Adair, he came out of the house in his shirt sleeves and exercised me by compelling me to walk the rails; all the while I felt as small as a banam chicken. When he arranged with me about the wedding he said he would go to Port Huron and meet me on the road between that place and the church. I thought he really meant to get married when he engaged my services, but when we met on the road and he was alone, I began to feel uneasy, but he said it was all right and that the others would come in a carriage. When we went into the church I wanted to light a lamp, to which he dissented, saying, 'No, elder, no light unless they should come,' but presently he said, 'maybe you'd better have a little fire,' so I went out and passed wood for him through the window.

In at the Window.

"When I had put in what I thought would be enough, he said 'Now, elder, the moon is shining right on the front door and if you go around there to come in, some one may see you, just put up some wood here and come in at this window.' I brought a few sticks, laid them across each other from the top of which he helped me into the building. He let the window nearly down again and we kept looking out through the opening to see the others come down the road.

"Presently he took a big hearty laugh and said: 'There ain't no use looking for there ain't going to be no wedding.' He was sitting where the gelams of light shone on his face and his eyes were so brilliant that I was thrilled through and through with the queerest sort of feeling. I asked him why then he had made the pretenses, when he said: 'Well, elder, I just wanted to have a little fun. You consider yourself an educated man, and look down on a poor ignorant fellow like me. And I just thought I would show him what I could do. I knowed if I could handle you I could handle other men, too, and make a big thing out of it.' Then he said, 'Now if I say raise up your hand up she goes; see, that's no dream,' and I felt my hand raise without no effort whatever on my part. Then he said, 'If I say let down your hand, down it goes,' and I felt it going down in a singuiar manner.

"By this time I was so alarmed that I was in a cold sweat. I then leaned over to see if any one might be on the road when he began to laugh again and I saw that he was holding a weapon of some sort up his sleeve. Instantly I made a grab for it and got the hatchet from him and asked what he meant to do with that. He said, 'I'll show you,' and from his overcoat pocket drew out a knife in each hand. He came at me striking with both hands while I backed across the church, down the side aisle and across the front, but I did not dare to turn about to open the front door. Then I threw the hatchet and struck him and he fell. I then turned to open the door when he grabbed me by the leg and threw me down where my hands came upon the hatchet.

"Used the Hatchet."

"There was a desperate struggle in which I used the hatchet until he laid quiet and still. I cannot tell all that happened after that, I was wild to dispose of the body. I was in horrible terror so I began putting off his garments so that I might drag the body away somewhere and hide it. Then when my eyes fell upon one of those knives I flew into a rage and began to cut it when he woke up and grabbed me again. Then for a while I used the hatchet until I was sure he was dead.

"Then I saw that the fire was hot enough to make the stove pipe red nearly to the elbow, so I grabbed him by the feet and dragged him down there and cut him to pieces, putting in each part as I dismembered it, and then I began putting the garments into the front stove when I remembered that it had a poor draught and then I saw that my clothing was torn and bloody while some of his were yet whole and I exchanged and then took all but a few of mine and piled them in along with the body. I then went up nearly to the tunnel station, where I turned my rig about and started it on the back trip. My big coat hid my torn and bloody garments until I got to Chicago, where I purchased others.

"I am tired of trying to hide, though I have succeeded in eluding the detectives so far. If you get this while I am yet alive, come and get me. I shall not be far from Carthage, Ill.

BRIBERY RUMOR IN TOGA FIGHT

Indiana Prosecutor Is to Investigate—Legislators Approached?

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 12.—Rumors of attempted bribery in connection with the contest for the United States senatorship, are under investigation by Elliot R. Hooten, prosecuting attorney of Marion county.

It is reported by Mr. Hooton that legislators have been approached by a representative of one of the senatorial candidates.

FIVE ACTING GOVERNORS IN TWO YEARS

Little Rock, Ark., Jan. 12.—For the fifth time in two years, an acting governor for this state was sworn in to serve until the inauguration of Governor-elect Donaghey, which will occur within a few days. Since the inauguration of Governor Little, two years ago, he has, because of ill health, been unable to serve, and the president of the senate has acted in his stead. With the convening of the legislature yesterday, Jesse M. Martin of Pope county, was chosen as president of the senate and by right of office, will act as governor pending the inauguration of the governor-elect.

State Fire Warden Advocates Protective Measures Against Fires.

A report covering the fire losses in the northern part of the state, and ascribing the causes, thereof, has been prepared by Gen. C. C. Andrews, forestry commissioner of the state forestry board.

The report shows that $503,633 was lost by forest fires during the past year, exclusive of the Chisholm fire. Including the loss here, the total will be increased to $2,003,633. The loss to the property owners of Chisholm is figured at $1,500,000. About 405,748 acres of land were burned over in the fires that raged in the northern part of the state.

The causes of the fires are as follows: Burning brush, 15; burning meadows, 9; campers, 11; clearing land, 47; fishermen and hunters, 16; railroad locomotives, 29; other causes, 6; unknown causes, 180.

The heaviest loss to standing timber occurred upon the Pigeon River Indian reservation, in the eastern portion of Cook county. It is claimed that $5,000 a year is insufficient to pay forest fire fighters. This fund was exhausted early in Octobar and there is $12,000 now outstanding in claims against the forestry board, with no funds to pay the amounts.

The report asks that the annual appropriation to the board be increased to $30,000, with a forest preservation fund of $10,000 annually.

It is further recommended that every one who fells timber be compelled by law to burn the slashings.

A recommendation is made to compel rangers to visit localities where fires are likely to occur in the dry season and compel the proper precautions, and to increase the pay of fire fighters to 20 cents an hour.

That every act of precaution against forest fires would be a good financial move upon the part of the state, is shown by the fact that the state owns 3,000,000 acres of school and swamp lands, containing standing timber to the value of $15,000,000, which if not injured by forest fires increases to the amount of $300,000 in value each year.

WOULD APPEAL FOR LABOR CASH

Gompers Considers Raising Money for Contempt Case Defense.

Washington, Jan. 12.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor is in favor of either making an appeal to labor and its friends for the necessary funds to be used in prosecuting an appeal from the decision of Judge Wright in the contempt case, or of abandoning it altogether.

"In view of the industrial depression and the large number of men unemployed, it is most improper for us to levy assessments," said Mr. Gompers today. "We should either make an appeal to all labor and our friends for such voluntary financial contributions as they can make to the enormous expense of the legal defense of our cause, or we should authorize the abandonment of any attempt at defense and appeal. Whichever course you may determine is the wisest or most practical or inevitable is entirely agreeable to me, and I shall willingly abide by it."

NEW PIANO COMPANY

Retains Korby Name---Local Stockholders Retired.

MR. JOHN KORBY

Elected General Manager of the Big Manufacturer's Duluth Distributing Establishment.

Old Masonic Temple Warerooms —201 East Superior Street— Will be Held by New Company, Where This Store Has Made Its Own Neighboroood.

"OUT OF THE HIGH RENT DISTRICT"

Nearly a Hundred Fine Pianos Were Sold to Many of Duluth's Prominent Citizens During the Reorganization Sale.

"Direct from Factory to Home," will hereafter be the motto at the warerooms of the newly reorganized Korby Piano company, as settlements have been made with the local stockholders of the company, and in the future this store will be the only Factory Distributing House for the largest producers of high grade pianos, player pianos, pipe and reed organs, in the world.

W. W. Kimball company need no introduction or especial reference respecting their business or financial character, being a house of fifty-three years' standing and operating with a $6,600,000 capital.

They are at the head of their industry today as producers of the finest piano manufactured, their instruments being used exclusively in many of the largest colleges and conservatories of the country and likewise by a host of great artists and concert pianists appearing throughout the country at the present time.

The ability of this concern to give piano buyers the most real piano value for their money has for years been unquestioned which accounts for the 35,000 instruments made and sold yearly by this great company.

The beautiful pianos and the extremely low prices for which they were sold and delivered to nearly a hundred of Duluth's most fashionable homes, during the "Reorganization Sales" last month gives sufficient proof that this store will hereafter be the center for economical piano purchasers as it will be the home of the "World's Standard Piano," where buyers from now on will be able to save the agent's and canvasser's commission.

MR. JOHN KORBY.

The above picture is Mr. Korby, who has been elected general manager of the new Piano Factory Distributing House for Duluth, of W. W. Kimball company, Chicago. Mr. Korby is an old Duluth boy and has always been an incessant worker, meeting with marked success even during his early business career—throughout the Copper and Iron range country—and has acquired considerable property although he suffered heavy losses during the big Virginia fire in 1893, where he was then interested in a number of profitable enterprises. Since the Virginia fire he has devoted his time principally to the piano business, first becoming a salesman, then feeling the necessity of a more thorough knowledge of the industry, he spent a period in one of the prominent Eastern piano factories, after which he returned and opened several branch houses on the Iron range, before establishing his headquarters at Duluth.

By experience and constant application Mr. Korby has at last reached the goal he has worked for.

Mr. Korby is a thorough believer in the value of good organization and has for years been a promoter of methods by which the public may best be served.

In talking with Mr. Korby about his new company and the basis upon which the concern would operate, he said:

"The direct marketing of pianos, pianos that are standard made and of a quality unquestioned, simply means an actual saving to the public of at least $75.00 per piano, and this kind of a saving is in real money—not the kind that is talked of after a piano has first been priced and then reduced. As no price is necessarily named on any particular piano in order to convince the buying public they can purchase not only a more reliable piano, but the true saving of agents' profits and canvassers' commissions, amounting to at least $75 or more as the case may be—applies to every piano in our entire establishment. The "Direct from Factory to Home" policy is gradually coming to stay, and careful buyers are already firmly realizing the folly of paying numerous commissions, supporting luxurious stores and sharing in expensive rents when they desire to buy their piano."

Mr. Korby will continue to close out the balance of the Sale Stock which has been inventoried and turned over to the newly re-orgfianized company, and prospective purchasers will find some rare bargains in a number of celebrated makes of pianos providing they arrange to call during the early part of this month and before all are taken.

Surprising, What Kodol Will Do

For you, when you need it. But the longer you neglect Indigestion, the more you will suffer before Kodol can restore Good Digestion.

And, of course, indigestion if neglected long enough, brings on serious diseases in which Kodol cannot benefit you. Some of these there is no help for at all.

There are, in fact, very few ailments which cannot be traced directly to impure blood. And impure blood is always due to a disordered stomach.

Use Kodol and prevent Nervous Dyspepsia.

Kodol will effectually assist Nature to secure a complete restoration of good digestion. It does this by at once digesting all food in the stomach and keeping it digested, until the stomach is rested and can resume its own work. Kodol removes the cause—and the effect quickly removes itself.

When it is recalled that Apoplexy, Heart Disease, Cancer—and even Consumption—are due to poor digestion and poisons thus transmitted to the blood, and throughout the system—the importance of maintaining good digestion is at once realized.

We knew what Kodol would do before ever the first bottle was sold. If we did not know just what it will do, we would not guarantee it the way we do.

It is easy for you to prove Kodol—the next (or the first) time you have an attack of indigestion. And you will certainly be surprised at the results. It is perfectly harmless.

There can be no harm in trying something that may do you a great deal of good—when it costs you nothing if it doesn't.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle. Then after you have used the entire contents of the bottle if you can honestly say, that it has not done you any good, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money without question or delay. We will then pay the druggist for the bottle. Don't hesitate, all druggists know that our guarantee is good. This offer applies to the large bottle only and to but one in a family. The large bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

Kodol is prepared at the laboratories of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

DULUTH RINKS DROP THE FIRST

Annual Spiel Open at St. Paul With 300 Curlers in Attendance.

St. Paul, Jan. 12.—The annual bonspiel of the Northwestern Curling association began here yesterday afternoon and games were played until late in the evening. There are fifty-five rinks and nearly 300 curlers attending the "spiel" which is, perhaps, the most pretentious affair of its kind ever held in the United States. Rinks are attending from Winnipeg, Fort William, Port Arthur, Duluth, Chicago and other places throughout the Northwest.

Bob Dunbar of St. Paul, the famous curler, kept up his reputation by defeating Neil of Duluth, 13 to 4, in the St. Paul Jobbers' event, and in the Duluth Curling Club trophy event he won from Russell of Superior, 11 to 8.

Evan Rees, also of St. Paul, came out a winner in the match with M. Arthur of Winnipeg by a score of 16 to 6 and in the Duluth Curling Club trophy he won a forfeited game from Ellis of Mapleton.

Rochon and Carson, two of the strongest Winnipeg curlers, won their matches in the St. Paul Jobbers' trophy, the former defeating Corning of St. Paul, 11 to 6, and the latter winning out only by a margin of one point from Bradley of Duluth. Score, 13 to 12.

The play this morning started the Duluth Jobbers' competition, and at 1 o'clock the second round of the St. Paul Jobbers' trophy began.

CHICAGO CUBS WILL GET MONEY

President Murphy Will Be Allowed to Distribute $10,000.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Those world's champion Cubs will receive a bonus of $10,000 from President Charles W. Murphy in behalf of the club as a reward for winning their third National league pennant last fall.

This extra award, forbidden by the present rules of the national commission, was made possible yesterday by the joint plans of President Ban Johnson of the American league and the Cub boss.

Mr. Johnson stated that as a member of the national commission he would vote to waive the rule against extra rewards or bonuses in favor of Mr. Murphy, if the latter so requested, because of circumstances connected with the Chicago sale of tickets to the world's series by which the players were deprived of what he considered their just financial benefits. Mr. Johnson further stated that he would use his influence to induce President Harry Pulliam of the National league and Chairman Garry Herrmann, the other two members of the commission, also to vote in favor of waiving the rule in this specific instance.

When this information was communicated to Mr. Murphy in his home at Oak Park last night, he stated that he would at once address a formal communication to the national commission asking for the necessary permission, and that if it was granted he would give the sum of $10,000 in gold, to be divided among the players. He further stated that he would appoint a committee of seven Cubs, with Manager Frank L. Chance as chairman, to appear in person before the commission at its meeting in Chicago Feb. 16 to second this request.

James J. Jeffries is wavering. Somebody must have been telling him that $50,000 is a whole lot of money. At any rate, the latest from the coast is to the effect that Jeffries is about to close with an amusement company in San Francisco, to appear for one week in three-round exhibitions, for which he is to receive $3,000. Now, the natural dope is that, when Jeffries realizes how easy it is to pick up $3,000 a week, he will permit himself to be booked for other engagements, and in this way gradually drift back into the game.

People who are very close to the big fellow say that the only thing that is holding back a definite announcement of his return is a question as to whether Jeffries can stand severe training without undermining his health. Jeffries weighs about 260 pounds, and he would have to train down to about 225 pounds before he would be in condition to fight. Still, such a notable trainer as Billy Delaney says that Jeffries, by a careful course of training, could reduce his weight at least forty pounds if given six months' time. And if Jeffries does return to the ring, Billy Delaney will be the man who will handle him.

Looking at the proposed bout between Jeffries and Johnson from the sensible side, it is only natural to predict that there will not be a meeting between this pair for a year at least. Johnson could not be induced to jump into the ring with Jeffries within a few months. The negro knows how good Jeffries is, and wants to pick up some easy money first, just as Burns and others have done, and we can't blame him.

Johnson is going to England soon, and he will get plenty of work and this means money enough to keep him comfortable for the rest of his life. Yes, it may be more than a year before Johnson will be willing to risk his title in a battle with Jeffries.

WILL QUIT INDIANA BERTH.

James M. Sheldon Will Hereafter Practice Law in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—James M. Sheldon, athletic director and coach of the football team at the University of Indiana, definitely has decided to sever his connections with the Hoosier institution at the end of the present scholastic year, despite rumors to the contrary, according to friends. Sheldon took charge of the athletic department at Indiana in the fall of 1905 and did much to put athletics on a basis which compared favorably with any institution in the West.

He will practice law in Chicago. Several Chicago men are slated for Sheldon's position, but a final disposition of the position will not be made until later in the year.

ZENITH HOCKEY TEAM WINS ITS FIRST GAME

FENTON, GOAL.

STEINBACK, FORWARD.

Minneapolis, Jan. 12.—By a score of 2 to 1, the Zenith hockey team of Duluth last night, in the M. A. H. A. rink, defeated an aggregation of stars picked from among the ranks of the Twin City Hockey league, in one of the fastest contests ever seen on the local ice, before a large and enthusiastic crowd.

Capt. Ray Fenton, who played goal, was easily the star of the game. Time and again, the Minneapolis boys would shoot the puck straight for the goal, but Fenton was always on the watch, and it seemed to be impossible to get the puck beyond him.

Both teams played brilliantly at times. The work of neither side was of th best at different stages of the game, although the flushes of tip top work every now and then brought the spectators to their feet.

Johnson shot the first goal for Duluth in the first half, and "Red" Hodge followed for Minneapolis, with a neatly executed long shot. Immediately after Minneapolis scored, Earl Cummings shot the second goal for Duluth and ended the scoring.

All the scores were made in the first half.

Referee Palmer of St. Paul was criticised for his decision when he put Fenton out of the game two minutes, for falling. The fall was purely accidental.

Grenner was put out of the game for off-side play, as was "Red" Hodge, of the Minneapolis club. Tim Hodge, of the Twin City team, was put out five minutes for striking Cummings.

Although it was his first game at point, Helmer played a star game for the Zeniths, always getting his man. Olson was in the game all the time and was there when it came to breaking up the team work of th Minneapolis seven. Grenner and Johnson played well on the forward line and give promise of becoming great players. Steinbach and Cummings played their usual steady, consistent game at their respective positions.

The lineup follows:

Minneapolis.	Position.	Duluth.
Red Hodge	center	Steinbach
Tim Hodge	rover	Grenner
Benlwitz	right wing	Cummings
Russell	left wing	Johnson
Anderson and Baird	point	Helmer
Baird	point	Olson
Toozer	goal	Fenton

THE NOISE WILL BE A FEATURE

Farmers' Band is Organized for U. C. T.—All Star Game.

There will be noise in plenty when the indoor baseball teams of the All-Stars and the U. C. T. get together at the armory Jan. 23.

The men who carry sample cases from one town to another, have organized a rooters' club and they promise to make things lively around the armory on the night of the big game.

Not to be outdone, the All-Stars have organized a farmers' band. They will appear in costume, and it will be their special work to drown out the rooting of the other side every time it gets too strong.

The team will line up as follows:

U. C. T.—		All-Stars—
Stubler	c.	Bennett
Simpson	p.	Krick
C. Hoar	1b.	Randall
V. Culbertson	2b.	Menelee
Wilson	3b.	Summers
Olson	lf.	Irvine
Fenton	rf.	Si Bennett
B. Culbertson	lf.	Maitland
Desmond	rf.	Lee

Pardello is Defeated.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 12.—Jess Reimer of Des Moines defeated Leo Pardello of Chicago in two straight falls here last night. The first fall came in 29 minutes, 40 seconds, and the second fall in 17 minutes, 11 seconds. The winner immediately accepted the challenge of Mahmout, the Turk, and the two will meet here next Friday.

Dorando Wins in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Jan. 12.—Dorando Pietre won the Marathon race last night, contesting with Percy Smallwood of Philadelphia, who quit the race after covering twelve miles and eight laps, because of his left leg hurting him. Dorando made the 26 miles and 385 yards in 2:44:32, ten seconds slower than the world's indoor record. He finished strong.

JEFFRIES GOES ON THE STAGE

California Fight Fans Now Think He Will Tackle Johnson.

New York, Jan. 12.—Jeffries is oiling up. Not for Johnson exactly, but in anticipation of a theatrical engagement in San Francisco at a salary bigger than himself. Jeffries is to take a sparring partner with him, and Sam Berger is the man Jeff wants most of all.

Sam is nearly as big as Jeffries and a smart, showy boxer. Jeff wired Sam an offer of $100 a week if he would act as buffer for the retired king's punches. If Sam can't forsake his haberdashery, Jeff will probably get Al Kaufman to paste.

Now that the big one has decided to leave Los Angeles and appear in public again, it is almost a certainty that he will fight Jack Johnson.

Jeff will need every bit of his former powers to beat Johnson. Let him get into the ring lacking anything he showed the night he made the boxing fool of Jim Corbett in the last fight at San Francisco, and Johnson will win just as sure as the sky is blue.

Jeffries has the power, the strength and the courage to flog the negro. What he needs absolutely is his speed.

WILL HOLD FIRST SKI TOURNAMENT

Duluth Ski Club May Haul Snow for First Contest.

Even though they have to cart snow to their new scaffold on Chester hill, the Duluth Ski club will hold a tournament Sunday afternoon. This was decided at a meeting of the directors held Monday afternoon.

There will be two classes as usual, the amateur class and the professional. About $150 will be hung up for prizes, and even though snow does not fall before Sunday, it is expected that the tournament will be a great success.

It has got to a point now where the riders will either have to get busy, or run a chance of going without their favorite pastime all winter. The riders are anxious to get to work, so that they may condition themselves for the great national tournament, to be held in Eau Claire early in February.

Those who wish to enter the tournament Sunday are invited to leave their names with H. H. Borgan of the Northwestern Paint company.

AFTER CAPRON.

McGraw Will Fight for Services of Former University Player.

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 12.—What promises to be a lively fight for services of Outfielder Capron, the former Minnesota football star, was started Saturday when Mobile officials were informed by Secretary Farrell, National association, that their draft was valid. The New York Nationals claim to have purchased Capron, who played with the Meridian Cotton States league club last summer under the name of Robb.

WILL BE ON THE JOB.

Mike Donlin Denies Reports That He Will Quit Baseball.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—"Mike Donlin, baseball player and actor, will forsake the footlights for the diamond when the New York Giants open their first series at home. The favorite of the New York fans reached Chicago today, accompanied by his wife, Mabel Hite.

Donlin's speech was to deny the reports that he would not play with the Giants this summer, or that his theatrical contracts had been irrevocably extended to cover the playing season.

PAPKE VS. BARRY.

Interesting Boxing Match is Now Being Arranged.

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 12.—Bill Papke, the Kewanee fighter who had the middleweight champion wreath torn from him by Stanley Ketchel, arrived here yesterday. Papke says that he came to the springs for a rest, but that within three weeks he will be ready to enter the roped arena.

Negotiations are being made to match Papke with Jimmy Barry of Chicago. Marvin Hart of Louisville already has been matched with Barry for a ten-round battle, before the Whittington Athletic club.

With the Curlers.

Ed Deetz' rink, skipped by Harry Dinham, last night defeated the Frank Libby rink, by a score of 17 to 5. McManus defeated Richardson, 11 to 7. The Deetz-Libby contest was in the Bagley event.

Came Near Choking to Death.

A little boy, the son of Chris D. Peterson, a well known resident of the village of Jacksonville, Iowa, had a sudden and violent attack of croup. Much thick stringy phlegm came up after giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mr. Peterson says: "I think he would have choked to death had we not given him this remedy." For sale by all druggists.

WATERWAYS PACT IS IN EFFECT

Bryce and Root Sign Treaty Affecting Great Lakes.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Secretary of State Root and Ambassador James Bryce of Great Britain have signed the treaty for the settlement of difficulties between the United States and Canada. This is the agreement popularly alluded to as the waterways treaty, but its scope is broader than that designation implies, as it contemplates a disposition of everything in the nature of difference between the two countries, and machinery for questions that may arise along certain lines in the future. Provision is made for a joint high commission to be permanent.

Dependent upon the final ratification of the treaty by the United States and Great Britain rests the settlement of numerous complex questions connected with the water boundaries along the northern border, which have been the source of more or less annoyance at different times. Included in these are the regulations of the use of the waters of the Great Lakes, with the secondary but important questions of the diversion of the water of these boundaries, including Niagara falls, which involves that of the amount of water to be taken out for power purposes, the navigation of the St. John river between Maine and New Brunswick, and the use of the Milk river in the Northwest.

WHEAT HAS BIG SLUMP

The Market Is Heavily Sold and Support Is Lacking.

Flax Reaches New High Price During Session in Duluth.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 12.—The people who were selling wheat yesterday certainly started something, for "sell, sell, sell," was the war cry in today's market, and its effect is reflected in the closing prices, which in Duluth disclose a loss of more than a point and a half from yesterday.

During the latter part of the session today, tardy longs feverishly dumped wheat in every direction, and prices followed suit. There was considerable short selling, too. There was very slight support to the market at any time.

Cables were weak, in sympathy with the American markets.

Bradstreet's reported a decrease of 3,412,000 bus in the world's visible supply. This was somewhat larger than anticipated, but the market was too bearish to take note of it.

Liverpool closed ½d to ⅝d lower, Budapest 1c lower and Berlin unchanged.

The May option closed 1⅝c lower in Duluth and Winnipeg, 1⅜c lower in Minneapolis and Chicago, 1¼c lower in Kansas City, ⅝@⅞ lower in New York and 1¼@1⅜c lower in St. Louis. The May option closed 1⅝c lower in Duluth, ⅝@⅞c lower in Chicago and St. Louis, 1⅛c lower in Minneapolis, ⅝c lower in New York, ⅜c lower in Kansas City and 1½c lower in Winnipeg.

May corn closed a shade lower in Duluth and ⅛d to ¼d lower in Liverpool. May corn closed ⅛@¼c lower in Chicago.

Broomhall cables from Liverpool:

"Wheat—There was an easy tone to the speculative market at the opening and values were ¼d lower. This pressure was attributed to the disappointing American cables yesterday and cheaper La Plata offerings, which caused longs to sell. During the morning a slight rally occurred, owing to the light receipts during the past few days, and an expected liberal decrease in the European visible, and more bidding for white cargoes. At midday the market was steady, but still ⅜d to ½d lower than yesterday.

"Corn opened quiet and ½d lower, and during the morning the nearby month further declined ¼d, due to a poor demand for spot, due to the lack of support. The distant month eased ⅛d in sympathy."

Car receipts at Duluth were 48 against 136 last year, and at Minneapolis 154 against 285 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 202 against 221 last year. Chicago received 10 against 26 last year. Winnipeg received 123 against 195 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 324,000 bus, last year 621,000 bus. Shipments 109,000 bus, last year 228,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 835,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 607,000 bus, last year 108,000 bus. Shipments 596,000 bus, last year 620,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 246,000 bus.

Wheat was active in the Duluth market. May wheat opened ¼c lower at $1.08, declined to $1.07⅞, rallied to $1.08, sold off to $1.07¾, reacted to $1.07⅞, declined to $1.06¾ and closed $1.07⅞, a loss of 1⅝c from yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed 1¼c lower than yesterday at $1.06½ nominal.

Durum wheat closed 1⅜c lower and cash spring wheat was selling at the May price for No. 1 northern.

May flax reached a new high price for this crop, during an active session here today. It opened ⅛c higher at $1.56, vaulted to $1.58½, went off to $1.55¾, reacted to $1.58½ and closed at that price, the highest of the crop, and showing a gain of 2⅜c over yesterday.

Oats closed ¼c lower, barley ½c lower and rye unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on track, $1.07½. To arrive: No. 1 Northern, $1.06⅜; No. 2 Northern, $1.04½. On track: No. 1 Northern, $1.06½; No. 2 Northern, $1.04½; May, $1.06½; July $1.06⅝. Durum on track No. 1, 90¼c; No. 2, 88½c; May durum, 91c. Flax—To arrive $1.58; on track, $1.58; May, $1.58½. Oats—To arrive, 48½c; on track, 48½c. Rye, 67@70c. Barley, 55½@59½c.

Cars inspected: Wheat 48, last year 136; oats 9; barley, 6; rye, 1; flax 6, last year 31.

Receipts: Wheat, 15,114; corn, 17,326; oats, 1,244; barley, 22,810; rye, 911; flax, 3,434.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Favorable Wheat Crop Conditions Have a Weakening Effect.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 12.—Favorable conditions for the fall sown crop of wheat in this country had a weakening effect on the wheat market today. Official advices stated that the snow line extends as far South as Texas thus furnishing protection to the winter wheat crop. Initial quotations were ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, May opening at $1.05⅞ to $1.06¼. After selling off to $1.05⅝ the price advanced to $1.06¼ on buyings by leading commission houses. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 212 cars against 183 cars last week and 447 cars a year ago.

Prices slumped sharply late in the day on general selling. May declining to $1.04½. The market lacked support and closed weak at almost the bottom, with May off 1⅝c at $1.04⅜.

Increased receipts and a lessened demand for the cosh grain created considerable bearish sentiment in the corn pit but prices held about steady. May opened unchanged to a shade higher at 61⅜@61⅝, and sold at 61½c. Local receipts were 442 cars with 20 of contract grade.

The market held steady despite the break in wheat, and closed almost at yesterday's level, with May a shade lower at 61¾@½c.

Trade in oats was quiet and the market was steady. May opened a shade higher at 51⅜c and sold at 51⅞c. Local receipts were 211 cars.

Provisions were firm on smaller receipts of live hogs here and other Western packing centers. Prices at the opening were 5c to 17c higgher.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.04⅜; July, 96½@⅝c; September, 93¼c. Corn—January, 57⅜c; May, 61⅜@½c; July, 61⅞c; September, 61⅞c. Oats—July, 46⅝c; September 39½c. Pork—January, $16.50; May, $16.77½. Corn—No. 2, 62⅝c, No. 3 white, 61@¼c; No. 2 yellow 62⅝@59c; No. 4, 57½@58½c. Oats—No. 3 white, 49½@51c; No. 4, 49@50c; standard, 51½@52c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Easy Tone Prevails and Deline in Prices Follows.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 1.—Liverpool followed the weakness here of yesterday by an opening ½d lower and a close ½@⅝d off. This was partly due to freer offerings of La Platta wheat cargoes. Locally there was an easy tone and price declines followed, new low points being made. Local stocks increased 100,000 bus for three days. Minneapolis receipts were 154 cars against 285, Duluth 48 against 136, Winnipeg 113 and 195. Near the close the market had a severe decline and closed weak and lower. May opened at $1.07⅜; high, $1.07¾; low, $1.06⅜; close, $1.06⅜. July opened at $1.07⅜; high, $1.08; low, $1.06⅝; close, $1.06⅝@1.06¾. Good demand ruled for cash wheat, country millers buying enough to stimulate it. No. 1 northern sold at 1¼c over May and at 1½c over for some. No. 2 was ⅜@1c under May. Close: No. 1 northern spot, $1.07⅜; to arrive, $1.07⅜; No. 2 northern spot, $1.05⅛@1.05⅜; to arrive, $1.05⅜; No. 3 wheat, $1.03¼@1.04⅜. No. 3 yellow corn, 55½@55⅝c. No. 3 white oats, 48⅝@49⅝c. No. 2 rye, 47¾@51¾c. Barley—Receipts, 38 cars against 86; shipments, 41. Not so quiet; firm; quotable unchanged to ½c lower. Close, 57½@60½c.

Flax receipts, 11 cars; against 50, shipments, 3 cars. Only a car or two offered; most of the receipts being delivered on sale. Close: $1.59¼.

Millstuffs: Shipments, 768 tons; such slight shipments reflect a smaller output, but demand is good, and at $19@19.50 for bulk bran, the market is stronger and higher.

Flour demand was reported better by the country mills, the local mills finding it about the same as yesterday. Lighter shipments today show the irregularity of the outward loading. Better business is expected by both locals and country millers. Patents are quoted 10c lower. Shipments, 24,051 barrels. First patents, $5.35@5.55; second patents, $5.20@5.40; first clears, $4@4.10; second clears, $2.95@3.10.

Heard on the Floor.

The world's visible supply of wheat decreased 3,412,000 bus last week. In the United States and Canada there was a decrease of 1,312,000 bus, and afloat and in Europe, a decrease of 2,112,000 bus.

The world's visible supply of corn increased 511,000 bus, and the supply of oats, 114,000 bus.

The cash business in the Duluth market has been very light during the past week, on account of small receipts. Only three cars of cash wheat were sold here during the session today.

Reports from Hungary are to the effect that the crop outlook in that country is very good.

* * *

The local barley market declined half a point today. Receipts are light, but the demand is very slack.

EGG MARKET GOES UP AGAIN

Cold Weather Has a Bullish Effect--Receipts Are Light.

While the mercury has been going down, the egg market has been going up.

Fresh eggs are quoted on Michigan street today at 37@40c a dozen, while the storage variety is very strong—in tone, not necessarily flavor—at 30c a dozen.

Before this cold snap came the egg market declined somewhat from the pinnacle it had achieved, but this zero weather has brought prices back to the high level. Receipts have become very light. The hens are chary about laying these cold days and nights.

The rest of the produce market remains unchanged. The following quotations were furnished by the secretary of the produce exchange.

COVERING BY SHORTS

Made Best Prices of Stocks in the Final Hour.

Sudden Relapse Took Place and the Close Was Weak.

New York, Jan. 12.—Opening prices of stocks today were shaded for the most part from those prevailing at the close last night. There was a mixture of gains, but they were in the less important stocks and were all small. Interborough-Metropolitan declined 1 and the preferred, Wabash preferred, and Tennessee Copper ¾.

Liquidation was resumed with a further break in the Erie and New York public utilities stocks, particularly Consolidated Gas. Selling was brisk for a while, but when the market showed steadiness, purchases fell off. Erie first preferred dropped 3½, Consolidated Gas 2¾, Lake Erie & Western 2½, Tennessee Copper 3½, Union Pacific and Erie 1⅜, Reading, Wabash preferred, Atchison & Northwest 1¼¼, and Rock Island preferred and Great Northern preferred 1.

An upward movement practically made up the losses and Brooklyn Transit and Wisconsin Central preferred were carried 2 points over last night, American, American Agricultural 1¼, Atlantic Coast Line and Southern Pacific and General Electric receded 1, American Linseed 2, and Westinghouse Electric 4. Prices showed a yielding tendency at noon. Bonds were irregular.

Trivial fluctuations marked the hour's business after midday, the market becoming almost stagnant at a slight recovery. Westinghouse Electric went off 5 points before it steadied and General Electric lost 2. Pullman advanced 2 points.

Apart from the buying of Wisconsin Central stocks, there was nothing of interest to the speculation in the middle of the afternoon. Wisconsin Central was marked up 3½, Chicago & Alton lost a point when the dividend was announced.

The market closed weak. Further covering by shorts made the best prices of the day in the final hour. Brooklyn Rapid Transit was carried 2⅝ over last night; Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred, 2; Chicago & Alton, 1⅜; Third Avenue, 1¼, and St. Paul, Delaware & Hudson and Denver & Rio Grande, 1. The high level was not firmly held and there was a sudden relapse at the last. Chicago Great Western preferred "A" fell 1½, the preferred "B" and Missouri Pacific, 1.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 12.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Market fairly active with a good attendance of lookers. Country dealers are hardly ready to fill their orders, and most of them will wait until the auction season opens, Jan. 20. Several consignments of farm mares and horses arrived during the day. Dealers are preparing for the heaviest country demand for horses this market has ever seen, and will have the horses on hand to meet every requirement. Values continue at the recent low level.

Gold For Europe.

New York, Jan. 12.—Goldman, Sachs & Co. today engaged $1,000,000 gold for shipment to Paris, making the total so far engaged for shipment this week, $3,500,000.

The Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 12.The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 4@7 points, all months, except January, making new high records on covering of shorts, a broadening demand through commission houses and continued support from spot people, which was influenced by talk of strength in the Manchester and New England. Realizing was heavy enough to check the advance and the recessions were slight and the market steady at a net gain of about 3 or 4 points during the middle of the morning.

Futures closed barely steady; closing bids: January, 9.15; February, and March, 9.15; April, 9.11; May, 9.14; June and July, 9.07; August, 8.97; September, 8.87; October, 8.83; November, 8.81; December, 8.81. Spot market closed quiet; middling uplands, 9.50; middling gulf, 9.75; sales none.

New York Money.

New York, Jan. 12.—Money on call, easy, 1¾@2 per cent; ruling rate, 2; closing bid, 1¾; offered at 2; time loans, firmer; sixty and ninety days, 2¾@3 per cent; six months, 3¼@1½ per cent; prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4 per cent. Sterling exchange, firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.85@4.85.10 for sixty-day bills and at $4.87.50 for demand. Commercial bills, $4.84¾@⅞. Bar silver, 52½c. Mexican dollars, 45c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, irregular.

St. Paul Livestock.

St. Paul, Jan. 12.—Cattle—Receipts, 1,300; market steady and unchanged. Hogs—Receipts, 7,500; market steady to strong; range, $5.50@5.90; bulk, $5.70@5.75. Sheep—Receipts, 1,000; market 10c lower; sheep, $2.00@4.75; lambs, $3.00@7.50.

Treasury Balances.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve shows: Available cash balance, $158,289,158; gold coin and bullion, $29,297,308; gold certificates, $34,676,640.

TRADING FOR A WIFE.

Army Officer's Experience With an Indian at Western Fort.

Army and Navy Life: "He says he would like to trade with you for your wife!"—it came out at last. It was a startling proposition indeed. For a moment we were both too breathless to comment. Finally my husband yielded to his impulse for amusement and smiling at me, he replied:

"Ask him what he will give for her."

"He says six ponies, lieutenant."

"Oh, tell him she is worth lots more than that."

"He will give you twelve ponies for her."

My husband again replied that he would not trade for anything like that; so the Indian kept raising his bid. He offered twenty ponies; then twenty ponies and a squaw; and finally twenty ponies, a squaw and a papoose. At length, wearying of the nonsense, my husband nodded his dismissal of the subject. But the Indian seemed to think that the apparent holding out for a higher price constituted a trade when the final offer was not rejected. He appeared satisfied, but soon signified he wished to finish the bargain. Of course my husband immediately objected. My savage admirer continued unaccountably insistent, and amicably to rid himself of the Indian's importunity my husband told him I was not fit for more travel; that I needed to go to rest at once. Accordingly I entered our tent.

The Indian was not content, and continued, with some of his companions, to hang around the camp until one of the men told them they must now return to their camp, as we were all going to retire. When they had reluctantly departed my husband laughingly told the lieutenant, who had not been present during the parleying, of the incident. The latter looked grave, and expressed a fear that the Indian, in the belief that he had made a trade, might cause trouble when the bargain was not kept. My husband assured him there was no agreement, and that the buck had no basis for such a claim. The lieutenant explained that the failure to reject the last bid and the presence of witnesses to the price haggling was all that the Indian considered necessary to make a binding affair of heart and honor.

Of course, terms had to be reached, and my husband, for the only time in his experience with the red men, or as far as I know with any man, agreed to compromise. He bought them off, and appeased their disappointment by a gift of good, hard money and a lot of tobacco.

SURGEON'S CHANCES FOR PAY.

Youth's Companion: When the surgeon who happened to be spending a night at Bushby Inn had set the broken leg of the weatherbeaten stranger who was the chief victim of an automobile accident the patient looked up at him anxiously. "See here, doc," he said in a husky voice ,"I haven't got much if any money; would you take your fee out in trade?"

"Yes, I guess so," said the surgeon, cheerfully. "What is your trade?"

"Well, I've got a number of things I can as soon as I'm on my feet again," said the patient. "I can hang window blinds, or I can put on lightning rods, or I can play the cornet; and I do 'em all first rate, if I'm the one to say it, doc."

During the vacation days in New York city the poor children of the lower east side of Manhattan island received 26,043 luncheons through the home delivery system of the Children's Relief society.

Many of you who should know the possibilities of the Calumet & Sonora mine are standing around and watching the stock simply climb to higher levels. Can you not see that this stock will easily sell at $50.00 a share when the stock is so tightly held and when the mine is worth several millions of dollars and only about 47,000 shares on the market. Take this from me fair and square it is the best buy in the country. Buy Calumet & Sonora for the biggest money you ever made on a safe copper stock. I believe it will in time sell as high as Calumet & Arizona. Figure is out for yourself, only about 47,000 shares issued. Do not overlook this fact for one minute. Calumet & Sonora closed $18.25 bid. This is the absolute market on Calumet & Sonora.

Butte-Montana always good. It has got to come along very soon for the mine is worth five times what the stock is bringing today.. It closed 50 cents to 52 cents.

Calumet & Corbin sold at $1.87½. Buy it. Also buy Zenith Lead & Zinc at $1.75 for this one has got to come along big after a while.

Superior & Globe closed $1.37½ bid. This stock should easily advance to $2.00; strong crowd back of this issue.

Copper Queen very strong at $1.62½ bid. We can use big blocks of this issue.

My customers are simply piling up big money. Look at Ballaklava, one of the best stocks in the United States. I stand on this one where I always did.

ARTICLE IV.
The amount of the capital stock of this Corporation shall be Two Hundred Thousand Dollars ($200,000.00), and the same shall be sold only at par, either for cash or for property and things of value deemed by the Board of Directors to be equivalent thereto, such determination by the Board of Directors to be deemed final and binding upon all parties in interest.
Stock of this Corporation shall be paid for as called for by the Board of Directors, and no stock which has not been subscribed for and upon which the payments have not been made, as required by the Board of Directors, shall be entitled to vote or representation in any of the proceedings of this Company.
ARTICLE V.
The highest amount of indebtedness to which this Corporation at any time shall be subject is the sum of One Hundred Thousand Dollars ($100,000.00).
ARTICLE VI.
The names and places of residence of the persons forming this Corporation are as follows: S. STEPHENSON, JOSEPH ROY and M. S. WALSH, all of Duluth, Minnesota.
ARTICLE VII.
The government of this Corporation and the conduct and management of its affairs is hereby vested in a Board of three (3) Directors, who shall all be stockholders, and, except as herein provided, shall be elected by the stockholders at their annual meeting on the second Tuesday in January of each year, and who shall within ten (10) days thereafter elect from their own number the following officers, to-wit: President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.
The first annual meeting of the Corporation shall be held on the 14th day of January, 1909, and until such time as such directors have been elected and qualified, the following persons shall be and constitute the Board of Directors of this Corporation: Stephenson, Joseph Roy and M. S. Walsh; and until such annual meeting is held and the Directors thereat chosen shall elect officers as herein-before provided, and until such officers shall have been duly elected and qualified, the general officers of this Corporation shall be as follows:
President, S. Stephenson; Vice President, Joseph Roy; Secretary and Treasurer, M. S. Walsh, all of Duluth, Minnesota.
The office of Treasurer may be held by any other officer of this Corporation. The officers and directors of this Company, except those herein designated to act as such in the first instance, shall hold office for the period of one (1) year, or until their successors are elected and qualified, and in case any vacancy occurs in any of the offices or in the membership of the Board of Directors of this Corporation, the same shall be filled by the Board of Directors until the next annual meeting and until such vacancy shall be filled by election held in accordance with these Articles and such By-Laws as may be adopted providing for elections.
ARTICLE VIII.
The capital stock of this Corporation is divided into two hundred thousand (200,000) shares of the par value of One Dollar ($1.00) each.
IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, the parties hereto have hereunto set their hands and seals this 8th day of January, 1909.

RANGE FEUD IN COURT

Judge Prince Sues Sparta Merchant for $5,000 for Slander.

Eveleth Judge Implicated in War Between Two Factions.

A range feud is being aired in district court today, through a suit brought by Judge Vivian Prince of the Eveleth municipal court against Morris Stein of Sparta.

Judge Prince's friendship for Mr. and Mrs. Max Greenburg resulted in him becoming implicated in the trouble, and he charges Stein with slandering him. He wants $5,000 for the injury he claims was done his feelings and reputation.

The case dates back to Sept. 14, 1907, when Stein claimed that Max Greenburg, who was a business rival at Sparta, as well as running a store at Eveleth, called at Stein's store in company with his wife and Judge Prince. The plaintiff claims that Stein said Mr. Greenburg had hit him with a knife. Judge Prince had held his hands, and Mrs. Greenburg had taken a money sack containing $275 from the till.

George ... Perham, editor of the Eveleth News, testified to Stein telling him of the alleged robbery over the telephone, and subsequently in a personal interview. Other witnesses also testified to Stein having made somewhat similar statements to them.

The plaintiff was engaged in putting in testimony during all of the morning session and Attorney Arnold, for the defense, put each one under a severe cross-examination. The defense denies that there was any malicious slander on the part of Stein and also claims that everything he said about Judge Prince was true. T. J. McKeon and J. P. Boyle, of Boyle & Dacey, are appearing for Judge Prince.

The case of Cora G. Leland vs. The Modern Samaritans, went to the jury at noon today. Mrs. Leland sues for $2,000, the amount of a benefit certificate held by Mr. Leland in the order. The Samaritans claim that Mr. Leland had allowed his payments to lapse and his widow is not entitled to recover. The case was tried at the November term of court and the jury disagreed.

OFFICE DONE AWAY WITH

There Will No Longer be a City Veterinarian.

With the resignation of Dr. John McKay as city veterinarian, whose duty it was to pass upon all horses purchased for the fire department the office has been abolished.

Dr. McKay resigned at a meeting of the board of fire commissioners, held last Friday, as a result of the agitation started against him by Duluth horse dealers, who felt that he had discriminated against their horses, in selling animals of his own to the city, contrary to certain charter provisions.

The board of fire commissioners is meeting this afternoon at the city hall, and is taking up the matter of a new fire hall at the corner of Seventh avenue east and Fourth street, and additional fire protection for Park Point.

Veterinarians hereafter will be paid so much per call by the city and no special man will be designated to do the work regularly.

URGES REGULATING LIQUOR TRAFFIC

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 12.—In his message to the legislature today, Governor Garst urges more effective regulation of the liquor traffic. "There is no doubt," he says, "that the trend of the times is in the direction of the thorough control and reasonable restriction of the traffic in intoxicating liquors.

"I would recommend that you memoralize congress for a change in the revised statutes so that it would be definitely provided that the initiative for issuing for a federal license for the sale of intoxicating liquors would be with the local community directly interested. The federal government should not legalize, so far as it can do so, the liquor traffic in places where the people do not want it to be legalized or tolerated.

"With the thought that the saloons may be reduced in number and be under better control and surveillance, I recommend that the law be amended so as to require the payment of an annual license fee of $1,200, divided so that one-third goes to the municipality, one-third to the county and one-third to the state."

Expansion of the power of the railroad commission, the reorganization of the state highway commission are urged. The latter, Governor Garst said, should be empowered to deal more broadly with highway construction, waterways, forestry and the conservation of all natural resources.

RINEHART ON STAND IN HIS OWN DEFENSE.

Pittsburg, Jan. 12.—When the trial of J. B. F. Rhinehart, former vice president and cashier of the defunct Farmers & Drovers' National bank of Waynesburg, Pa., was resumed in United States district court today, Rinehart, having overruled the objections of his counsel, took the stand in his own defense. He gave little evidence of nervousness as he told his story of the events leading up to the failure of the institution.

HE DENIES ANY VETO INTENTION

Roosevelt Has Not Yet Considered Sundry Civil Bill.

Washington, Jan. 12.—It is emphatically denied at the White House today that the president contemplates a veto of the sundry civil appropriation bill if it fails to contain provisions suitable to him in regard to the secret service. The president has given no consideration to the subject and will not do so until the sundry civil bill is up for passage or before him for signature.

ANNUAL BALL OF POLICEMEN

Bluecoats Will Give Their Yearly Dance at Armory.

The twentieth annual ball of the Duluth Police association will be held at the Armory, Monday evening, Feb. 1.

This is always Duluth's biggest and most generally popular dance of the year. It is more largely attended than any other, and everybody always seems to have a good time.

Flaaten's full orchestra will furnish music for the occasion. Chartered cars will accommodate those who desire to remain and dance after the regular cars have stopped running. A special car will run from Second avenue east to Twenty-fourth avenue east, starting at 2 a. m., and one will run to West Duluth at 2:30 a. m., starting at Second avenue east.

A committee of hustlers has the dance in charge, and the preliminaries are running along in fine shape. It is expected the coming dance will be bigger and better than any of the past big successes.

New Jersey Solons Meet.
Trenton, N. J., Jan. 12.—The New Jersey legislature convened today. Senator Samuel K. Robbins was chosen president of the senate and Prof. John D. Prince speaker of the house. Governor Fort's message was read.

Joan of Arc Beatification.
Rome, Jan. 12.—Last proceedings in the beatification of Joan of Arc, the ceremony called in Latin "tuto," took place this morning in the presence of the pope and the congress of rights of the Vatican.

LOBBYISTS TO BE BARRED FROM ALL THE CORRIDORS OF STATE LEGISLATURE

Members of "People's Lobby" Think They Are Being Attacked.

Sundberg Has Bill Aimed at Grain and Livestock Exchanges.

Elmer Adams Would Repeal the "State Jag Farm" Law.

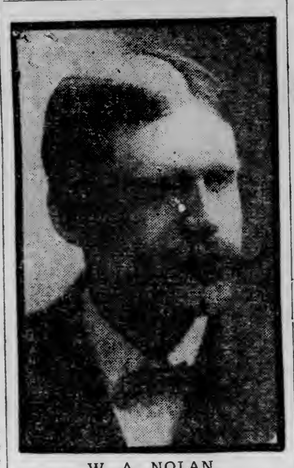

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The pathway of the lobbyist is not to be made easy by the Minnesota legislature. With the adoption of the senate rules by that body yesterday, the bars were put up about both branches of the legislature, even to the extent of shutting the busy lobbyist out of the corridors surrounding both chambers. Just how far the term "corridors" may be construed to extend is yet in doubt. Presumably it means the retiring rooms and the corridors immediately adjacent to the chambers, but there are those who profess to believe that it includes all parts of the capitol building, even to the outer doors.

However, no such construction will be enforced, but it seems altogether probable that as to the chambers themselves, and the corridors and retiring rooms close by, there will be strict construction on the part of the officers of the legislature.

As a matter of fact, such rules as these have been made necessary in

CARRIED IN TO VOTE, THEN DIES

Illinois Legislator Zaabel Expires After Being Taken Home.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 13.—Paul Zaabel, one of the state representatives from the Second senatorial district, died at his home here today.

He was taken ill at Springfield, and at the time of the fight over the speakership, he was carried into the capitol, in order that he might vote for Speaker Shurtleff.

ROOT WILL GET GOOD COMMITTEE PLACES.

Washington, Jan. 13.—At informal conferences of Republican leaders of the senate on the subject of assignment of senators to committees it has been agreed that when Secretary Root comes to the senate as successor of Senator Platt of New York he will be given places on the foreign relations and military affairs committees, made vacant in both cases by the retirement of Foraker.

THOUSANDS MINUS FUEL

Cold Breaks Gas Main and Three Towns Suffer.

A Blinding Snowstorm Causes Train Collision in Illinois.

Muskogee, Okla., Jan. 13.—Thirty thousand people of Muskogee, Wagoner, Inola, Okla., are without fuel today as the result of the breaking of a gas main, due to the cold, at a point between Inola and Claremont.

The three towns depend in a great measure on natural gas for heating as well as lighting purposes, and there is much suffering.

Passengers Are Bruised.

Edwardsville, Ill., Jan. 13.—A blinding snowstorm caused a collision between a passenger train and a freight train on the Wabash railroad near here today. Elmer Adams, engineer of the passenger, was severely injured and all the passengers were shaken or bruised.

REPORT ON PROGRESS

Of Duluth Steel Plant Sought by House Resolution.

Bill to Create Bureau of Lands, Forestry and Minerals.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Rodanburg of St. Paul this morning introduced in the house a resolution calling for the appointment of a committee of five to investigate and report upon the progress made by the United States Steel corporation upon the Duluth steel plant. It recites the message from Senator Hawkins given to the house two years ago, stating that the Steel corporation had decided to build at Duluth a plant that would include, in starting, at least the following: Blast furnace, blooming mill, steel rail mill, shape mill, two bar mills, by-product coke ovens, coal docks, shops, cement plants and six open-hearth furnaces. Following this, the resolution states that, as no official information has come into the possession of the house as to the progress made, it is resolved that a committee of five be appointed by the speaker to inspect and report upon the work which has been done

LOWELL WILL HEAD HARVARD

Professor of Science of Government is Eliot's Successor.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 13.—Harvard University corporation today elected Prof. Abbott Lawrence Lowell to succeed President Eliot.

Prof. Lowell is now professor of the science of government at Harvard university.

Prof. Lowell was born in Boston and celebrated his fifty-second anniversary on Dec. 13 last. He is the author of several books, among them, "Essays on Government," "Government and Parties in Continental Europe" and "The Influence of Party on Legislation in England and America."

INDIANS ARE IN DANGER OF STARVATION.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 13.—Fred C. Morgan, superintendent of the Flathead Indian reservation, recommends that the government take immediate action to save the tribe from starvation until the Indians can be moved to some reservation or are allowed land. Mr. Morgan has asked for orders authorizing Col. Mann of Fort Harrison to furnish forage for the ponies.

HOUSE MEMBERS FOOLED; CHIPPED IN FOR CUP ALREADY PURCHASED

Washington, Jan. 13.—The members of the house of representatives are having a good deal of fun poked at them these days. For some time past there has been going the rounds of the chamber a subscription list pledging contributions for the purchase of a loving cup for Representative James S. Sherman, the vice president-elect. Each member willingly parted with $10 as his share of the fund and looked forward to a pleasant ceremony in connection with the presentation. It now turns out that the cup was given to Mr. Sherman at the time of his notification last summer, a self-constituted committee having purchased and presented the testimonial, counting upon being reimbursed by their colleagues.

MINE DEAD TAKEN OUT

Twenty-Six Bodies Out of One Hundred, Recovered.

Foreman Crawls to Safety Amid Fire and Gases.

Bluefield, W. Va., Jan. 13.—Rescue crews worked incessantly all night at Lick Branch coal mine, the scene of yesterday's explosion, and at 9 o'clock today twenty-six bodies had been recovered.

There is no change in the estimate of dead, the number being 100.

Identifications proceeded slowly through the night, as but few were present at the morgue on account of the cold. It is not likely any more bodies will be brought to the surface until tonight, although the rescue crews will work all day, relaying every few hours, with fresh forces of men, who have volunteered from all over the coal fields. The company has ordered eighty caskets and burial robes.

James W. Paul of Pittsburg, Pa., representing the United States geological survey, is expected here late today with a number of assistants. A number of West Virginia mine inspectors are here making an investigation as to the cause of the disaster.

One of the remarkable features of the accident is the miraculous escape of Cleveland Bowers, a mine foreman, who crawled on his hands and knees from the mine, while fire, smoke and gases belched forth over him. Bowers is the only man who reached the surface alive, and although he lies in a hospital with two broken ribs and other injuries, it is asserted today he will recover.

BURTON WARNS OF LOBBYISTS

Newly-Elected Senator Thanks Members of Ohio Legislature.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 13.—Theodore Burton of Cleveland, on his election today by the Ohio legislature to succeed J. B. Foraker as United States senator, in tendering his thanks for the honor, declared that he wants party peace, and is ready to do his share in bringing it about.

The more recent tendency, he continued, has been toward an increase of power and prestige in the executive and judicial departments. This tendency can continue only in case the chosen agents of the people in the legislature or congress fail short of meeting their responsibilities, and thus fail to maintain that balance of authority which is essential to well-ordered popular government.

Burton pointed out the dangers of centralization, and warned the legislature against lobbyists advocating personal and private interests.

HEAD OF STATE'S TAX COMMISSION

FRANKLIN L. McVEY.

Dr. McVey, chairman of the Minnesota tax commission and for eleven years a member of the University of Minnesota faculty, has been elected president of the University of North Dakota. He has the offer under consideration, and it is believed he will accept. Governor Johnson recently announced that he would reappoint him for a six-year term on the tax commission.

HAINS NEAR BREAKDOWN

Borders on Nervous Collapse as Trial Nears End.

Attorney McIntyre Concludes His Speech for the Defense.

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 13.—The closing address of the defense to the jury in the trial of Thaddeus Hains was resumed today by John F. McIntyre, who, after speaking all day yesterday, was given until noon today in which to conclude. The throngs that yesterday filled the court room were early in their places today.

That Hains is verging on a nervous breakdown as his trial nears its end is apparent to all. His lawyers say he passes sleepless nights in his cell, and once or twice he has had spells of sickness in court.

Today his face was tense and haggard as he listened gloomily to the proceedings.

The opening of the trial was delayed for a time today, and it was thought the case might have to be postponed because of an accident to Thomas Walsh, a juryman, who was

BODY SENT BACK HOME

Remains of Minister Carmichael Pass Through Chicago.

Early Horror of Hypnotism Is Regarded by Relatives.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 13.—The body of Rev. John H. Carmichael, who committed suicide at Carthage, Ill., after confessing to the murder of Gideon Browning, at Rattle Run, Mich., arrived when today in charge of Sheriff William Wagensell and Deputy Sheriff Moore of St. Clair county, Mich. The body was sent on to Port Huron, Mich.

Wrote to Brother.

Carmichael, shortly before committing suicide, wrote to his brother, M. C. Carmichael, in Wellsburg, W. Va., as follows:

"Dear Brother: No doubt you have heard of the horrible tragedy of which I have been guilty. I can't tell you how I am suffering now on account of it. I know that I did the deed, but I hardly know how or why, only that Browning had such a hypnotic power over me that it gave me the horrors. I have now shipped you a little package containing some things which may be of importance to my family, but should I send them home they would be seized and held by the authorities until all legal process had been exhausted. If any of these can be published so that the family may get the good of them, it might help a little in their living. The stamps and rare coins are valued because of special occasion (Columbia exhibit) and old dates. Please confer with the family, after things quiet down a bit, about publication or disposition of them.

"I shall soon deliver myself to the state authorities or to the Judge Eternal. I can't stand this being hunted down. I am now in a quiet place, where they may not find me in a long

COMMITTEES IN NORTH DAKOTA

Chairmen of the Leading Committees of Legislature Are Named.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Upon the reconvening of the legislature this afternoon, Speaker Burdick of the house and President Lewis of the senate announced the chairmanships of the leading committees as follows:

House—Rules, Baker of Cass; judiciary, Skulason of Grand Forks; ways and means, Sorlie of Trail; railroads, White of Trail; appropriations, Putnam of Eddy; education, Ployhar of Barnes; elections, Johnson of Bottineau; apportionment, Plath of Cass; military affairs, Fraine of Walsh; temperance, Garden of Bottineau; state affairs, Price of Cass; banking, Wolbert of Burleigh; game, Hale of Grand Forks.

House—Appropriations, Lamoure of Pembina; state affairs, Crane of Griggs; education, Talcott of Cass; judiciary, Sharpe of Lamoure.

EARTHQUAKE AT VENICE FAILS TO DESTROY CITY; DUE TO PILE BUILDING

Three Districts in Italy Thrown Into Panic by Tremors.

New Messina Is Rising From Mass of Debris.

Ship Goes to Repair the Broken Alaskan Cable.

Venice, Jan. 13.—Two earth shocks were experienced here this morning. The people rushed from their houses and gathered in the open square. There was much excited comment and questioning, but calm in general was maintained.

No damage was done and this is thought to be due to the fact that the houses of Venice are built on piles. The people congratulated themselves on this system of construction.

Telegraph Reassures.

Rome, Jan. 13.—A slight earthquake was experienced early today throughout Lombardy, Venetia and Tuscany. No damage was done, and no one was injured, but owing to the general uneasiness resulting from the recent visitations in Calabria and Sicily, the people for a moment weer thrown into a condition bordering on panic.

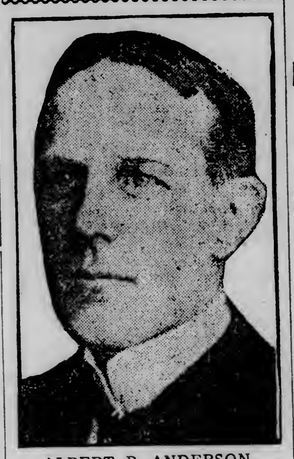

According to the records of the observatories, and especially the establishment maintained at Florence by the Jesuit fathers, the center of the disturbance was near Leinbach, Saxony.

The quake was strong in Italy, at Treviso, sixteen miles north of Venice. Riesi, the birthplace of the present pope, is located in this territory.

The first reports that came into Rome were alarming, and people feared a repitition of the catasthrope of Dec. 28, but prompt use of the telegraph soon brought out the fact that the

WILL RETRY CASE OF STANDARD OIL

ALBERT B. ANDERSON.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 13.—Judge Albert B. Anderson of Indianapolis will preside at the retrial of the case against the Standard Oil company, in which Judge K. M. Landis imposed a fine of $29,240,000. This was definitely fixed when Judge Landis, to whom the case was remanded by the circuit court of appeals, received a letter from Judge Anderson accepting the assignment of the case. Anderson said he will be in Chicago next Monday, on which day he will convene court to set the case for trial.

NO INQUIRY, THEY SAY

Tillman's Friends Urge Him Not to Press Request.

Senator Declares He Will Speak Against Roosevelt Again.

Washington Jan 13.—Senators who have given consideration to the demand made by Senator Tillman for an investigation by the senate of the charges made by President Roosevelt in connection with the senator's attempt to procure Oregon lands, incline to the opinion that there is no question before the senate for an inquiry except as to whether Mr. Tillman was frank with his colleagues in discussing the case.

The opinion is held generally that even if the charges made by the president were true, the act of Mr. Tillman was not a violation of law. No member of the committee on privileges and elections is inclined to present a resolution calling for one, and if one is introduced, it is likely that Senator Tillman himself will be the author. His friends, however, are determined to advise him against insistence upon his request for an inquiry.

"Many persons are sending me material in regard to Roosevelt's dark and crooked ways, and I am preparing a speech in which I will try and redeem my promise," says Tillman

He adds that he does not know how soon he will be able to deliver his speech, but he will make it before the president retires from office.

FOREST FIRE FIGHTING IS THEME FOR DISCUSSION.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Scores of men, whose life work has been devoted to study of problems of forestry and conservation, are attending the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the American Forestry association. Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture, retiring president of the association, welcomed the delegates.

The opening session was given over to a consideration of means for fighting forest fires, and recommendations for legislation in various regions were submitted by a commision of state foresters appointed at the last annual meeting.

PERISHES IN THE FLAMES

Mother of General Manager Samuel Higgins Is Killed.

New Haven Road Official and His Family Hurt.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 13.—In a fire that demolished the home of Samuel Higgins, general manager of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad here, early today, his mother, Mrs. Higgins lost her life, his mother-in-law, Mrs. W. E. Corbin, was probably fatally hurt, and his wife, daughter and son, and Mr. Higgins himself barely escaped death by jumping from a second story window. It was the result of this jump that Mrs. Corbin was hurt.

Mrs. and Miss Higgins suffered broken legs and Mr. Higgins was badly bruised. The young son, Harold, escaped without injury. A negro cook jumped from a third-story window and probably escaped serious injury by reason of two police officers interposing their bodies and breaking the fall.

The cause of the fire, it is said, was an overheated furnace. Mr. Higgins was awakened by what sounded to him like a stream of running water. In a moment, he says, he smelled smoke and then realized that the house was on fire. He rushed from his room to that of his mother and endeavored to rouse her by pounding on the door, but owing to her deafness he thinks, she did not hear.

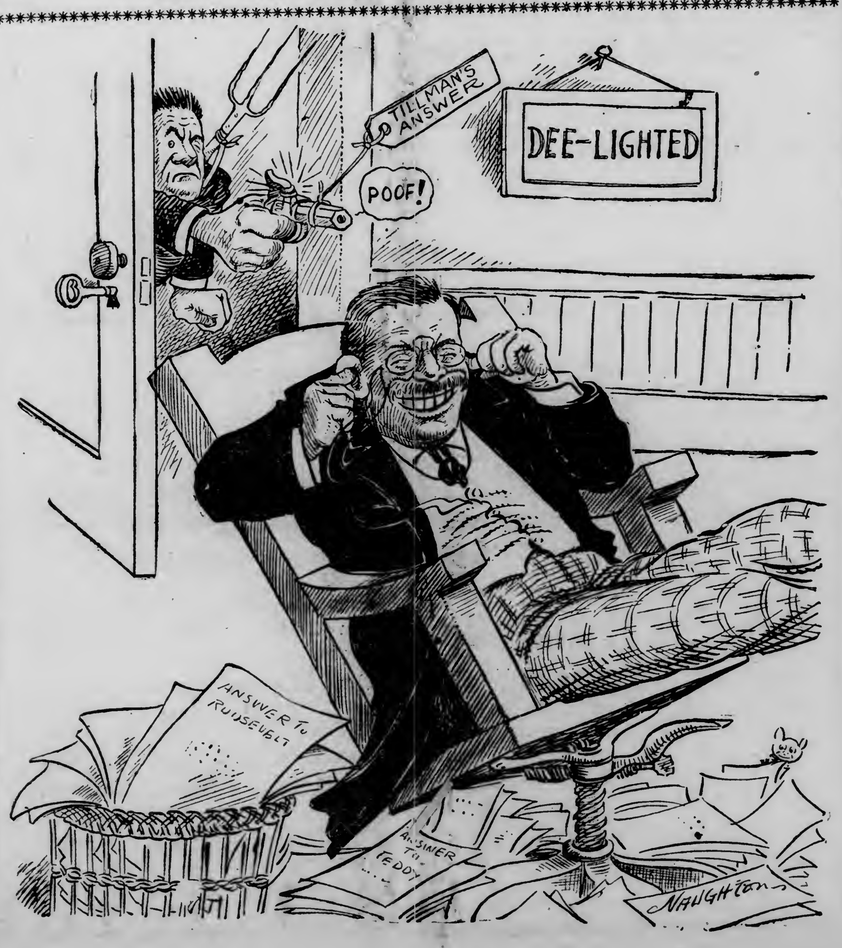

Mr. Higgins, groping through the smoke and flames, rushed to each room, arousing all the members of the family. He had hoped that his mother was up. He turned to get back to her room, but the fire cut off his way. It was then that the rest of the family gathered at the window and jumped for their lives.

The house occupied by Benjamin Campbell, a vice president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, took fire and the flames were extinguished with some difficulty.

The loss is estimated at $75,000.

AN ORATORICAL ASSASSINATION.

Senator Tillman: "My honor, as a Southern gentleman, is vindicated.

FIRST BALLOT WILL SHOW KERN IN LEAD FOR INDIANA SENATOR

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 13.—The Democratic members of the Indiana legislature will meet in caucus tonight to choose a United States senator and unless there are changes in the situation during the day, the names of the six aspirants for the toga will be presented. Of all the candidates it is admitted that John W. Kern will have the most votes on the first ballot, but he will not likely have enough votes to win. B. F. Shively and L. Ert Slack are both claiming second place. Slack issued a statement today that he had no doubts about his election on the third ballot. John E. Lamb, Edward G. Hoffman and Maj. G. V. Menzies believe the fight among the other three candidates has become so bitter that none of the leaders will be elected and that they will be profited if a break comes.

WEATHER—Probably snow flurries tonight and Thursday; lowest temperatures tonight from zero to 10 above; colder Thursday afternoon or night.

ESCAPE WAS NARROW ONE

Family of Peter Marano Left Destitute by Fire.

The Shack Was Built by Marano From Driftwood.

Peter Marano and his wife and two children narrowly escaped with their lives from a fire which completely destroyed their little home on the hillside at Ninth avenue west, between Superior and First streets, last night. Marano has no money, is too sick to work, and consequently the family is in destitute circumstances, and today was compelled to appeal to the city for aid.

The family is living in a tiny basement near the scene of the fire, huddled up in the dark and unwholesome quarters. It was the only shelter left open to them. The house burned was not worth much. It was a mere shack, built by Marano's own hands, most of the material used in construction being driftwood collected from the bay, and old boards collected around town.

Morano has been too ill to work for the last year or two, and the family has been barely able to eke out an existence, with small change earned by Mrs. Marano, and pennies secured through the sale of papers by the children, neither of whom is more than 12 years old. Morano had no money with which to pay rent, and so, a little more than a year ago, he built his little shack, where the family has lived ever since. He does not own the land upon which the shack was erected, but it was allowed to remain there through the kindness of the owner of the property.

The fire started at 2 o'clock this morning from an overheated chimney. Catching in the roof, next the chimney, it spread rapidly, and the whole roof was in flames before any of the family awakened. The heat and smoke and glare of the flames greeted Marano when he opened his eyes, and he had barely time to leap from bed, grab the children, call to his wife and make for the open air before the whole shack was a seething furnace.

What few clothes the family had were burned in the flames, except for a few garments seized in the hasty flight from the burning building. The occupants of the structure made their escape in such haste that they did not even have time to get the children's shoes. The children are unable to leave the dark basement today for the lack of shoes and clothes to properly cover their bodies.

They were given shelter for the night in the home of a neighbor, which already was too small for the family living there.

CAMERON NOT ALLOWED BAIL

Lawyers File Motion for New Trial in Bribery Case.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 13.—Judges Brown, Ford and Van Swearingen, sitting today in quarter session court unanimously refused to permit Charles S. Cameron, president of the Tube City Railway, convicted yesterday of offering a bribe to Councilman William A. Martin to give bail.

Following conviction Cameron's bail was increased from $10,000 to $20,000 and counsel for the prosecution pointed out today that Cameron had once before forfeited $12,000 bail by going to Canada. The maximum penalty in this case is five years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000.

Counsel for Cameron today filed a motion for a new trial and arrest of judgment.

BANKS HOLD ELECTIONS

No Change in Directors of Either of National Banks.

There was no change made in the directors or officers of the City National or the First National banks, at the annual meetings of the two institutions, which were held yesterday.

The City National pay a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent, which was not affected by the meeting of yesterday. The First National pays a yearly dividend of 10 per cent, which was also not affected by the meeting of the directors yesterday.

The annual meeting of the American Exchange bank will be held this evening. There will probably be no change in the personnel of the directors or the officers of the bank. The capital and surplus of the American Exchange bank is $1,350,000 at the present time. It is said that the surplus will be increased at the meeting this evening.

The past year has been a good average year in the business of the bank, cacording to the statement of an official today, despite the fact that business has been at low ebb a greater part of the year.

INJURED JUROR HALTS THE CASE

Hains Trial Pauses Due to Condition of Walsh.

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 13.—A juror, Thomas Walsh, in the murder trial of Thornton J. Haines, sat half fainting in the jury box today suffering from injuries received by falling from a street car in Manhattan last night. His battered face presented a pitiable spectacle Walsh insisted that his injuries would not prevent him from acting today and Justice Crane permitted Mr. McIntyre to go on with his closing argument.

Nearing noon time, Juror Walsh showed signs of distress and Justice Crane promptly halted the trial for recess and turned his chamber over to the injured juror, where he might rest on a sofa. Mr. Walsh informed the court at recess that he thought he could continue without asking for a delay.

NOTES OF THE BOYS' DEPARTMENT

The outing committee of the boys' department met for dinner at the boys' department last evening. The following members were present: Caldwell Harris, Charles Anderson, Ely Salyards, Ralph Dunning, Nat McConaughy, Arthur Roecker, Herbert Roecker, Roy Forbes, J. R. Batchelor and Secretary McLeod.

PREMIUM LIST NOW PUBLISHED

The February Poultry Show Will be a Big Event.

The premium list of the thirteenth annual exhibition of the Duluth Poultry association, to be held Feb. 8 to 13, has been issued. It is attractively prepared, covers fifteen pages and announces a large number of valuable premiums.

James A. Tucker will act as judge at the exhibition. Almost all prizes offered are in cash and while the entry fee is small, the cash prizes in every case are very liberal. Entry blanks and all information regarding the show can be had of the secretary, J. B. Greenfield, 306 Burrows building.

Entries for competition will close Feb. 6, and all stock must be in the show room by noon of Feb 8. Coops will be furnished free by the association.

The Quartet cup, offered by Theodore Hollister, for the best exhibition of four fowl, one cock, one hen, one cockerel and one pullet will be eagerly sought for. It is made of sterling silver, and is valued at 25.

Another prize for which there will be sharp competition, consists of two sets of heavy, sterling silver teaspoons, offered by T. J. Davis for the best trio of buff birds, to include one cockerel and two pullets.

A large entry list is expected from the outside as well as from local fanciers, and there is every indication that the coming show will be the best in the history of the organization.

The Columbia 1909 Suit Sales start tomorrow.

WHISKEY FOR RHEUMATISM

The increased use of whiskey for rheumatism is causing considerable discussion among the medical fraternity. It is an almost infallible cure when mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly. The following is the formula:

"To one half pint of good whiskey add one ounce of Toris compound and one ounce of syrup Sarsaparilla compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and before retiring."

This is said to produce almost immediate results.

BOY INHERITS $20,000,000.

Death of Duchess Brings Wealth to New York Youth.

London, Jan. 13.—By the death of the dowager duchess of Malborough, a New York boy, who, heretofore has lived a quiet, unasuming life, will have the income of a $20,000,000 estate.

The boy is Louis Gordon Hammersley, a son of James Hooker Hammersley, a cousin of the duchess' first husband.

The boy has been brought up in entire ignorance of his coming station in life, and it is said today he will not learn that he is worth $20,000,000 until he reaches his majority.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

The first of the Bethel women's meetings since before the holidays will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Lake Avenue Bethel. These meetings were arranged for the fall months by Mrs. Porter of the Bethel workers, and they have met a need in the lives of the women on lower Lake avenue. Each Thursday afternoon a large number of the women have been in attendance, and an interesting cooking lesson by a practical teacher of domestic science or a talk by a doctor along practical and helpful lines have been listened to with much interest.

Mrs. Porter is planning the work to be continued along slightly different lines, and tomorrow's meeting will be a business session. There will be a committee from among the women themselves to see to the simple refreshments which are served during the social hour which follows the regular meeting, and another committee to look after the sending of good reading into the homes. An effort will be made to have each woman do some part toward the weekly meetings.

At the Thursday afternoon sessions there are often as many as twelve babies and little children present, brought by the mothers who are unable to leave them at home, and who are hungry for the bit of social life and new interest which the meeting provides. They are urged to bring the children, but Mrs. Porter, who is in charge of the meetings, is very anxious to have a nursery established for the children in order that the mothers may be relieved of their care for the hour or two of pleasure, and that the children may be amused. There is no one at the Bethel who can be spared from the regular duties to be placed in charge of the nursery, and it is greatly hoped that some volunteer workers may come to the rescue. Anyone who has a little experience in kindergarten work, or in amusing and entertaining children, will be welcomed at the rooms, either for every Thursday afternoon during the month, or for one or two afternoons. There are any number of young women in the city who have much spare time at their disposal, and this opportunity to amuse a few children one afternoon each week, and thereby help in the rest and pleasure of over-worked and weary mothers, might well be welcomed by a group of three or four, or more. Anyone who will volunteer service in this work is requested to communicate with Mrs. Porter at the Lake Avenue Bethel.

WEDDING AT CHICAGO.

J. F. McCarthy and Miss Wertin to Be Married.

The wedding of J. F. McCarthy of this city and Miss Mary E. Wertin, daughter of Mrs. Amelia Washburn of Hancock, will take place tomorrow morning at Chicago. Mr. McCarthy left yesterday for Chicago. The wedding will take place at St. Mary's church on Wabash avenue, and the services will be read by Rev. Father Rezek of Houghton. The bride will be given away by her brother, J. J. Wertin. The bridesmaid will be Miss Mary Gaul of Calumet, and the groomsman will be Dr. M. A. Thometz of Calumet. Other guests from the Copper country who will be at the ceremony, will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles McIntyre of Lake Linden, Miss Helen Dymock of Calumet and George H. Nichols of Hancock. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast will be served at the Auditorium Annex. Mr. McCarthy and his bride will leave for a several months' wedding trip through Europe.

Mr. McCarthy is vice president of the McCarthy Bros. Grain company and is widely known in Duluth, where he will be at home with his bride on their return from Europe.

SECRETARY AT FARGO.

Miss Russell, Y. W. C. A. Assistant, to Go to Fargo.

Miss Carrie B. Russell, who has been assistant secretary of the local Young Women's Christian association, has been elected general secretary of the association at Fargo, N. D. Miss Russell has been assistant at the local association for two years, and her resignation has been accepted with regret by the board members. The new work will bring her into a wider field, however, and is an advance. Miss Russel will assume her new duties Feb. 15.

MID-WINTER BREAKFAST

Club Women to Meet at Minneapolis.

The annual reception and midwinter breakfast of the Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs will be held at Minneapolis, Feb. 12, of this year. The breakfast will be served at Dayton's tea rooms at 12:30 o'clock, and will be followed by the program at 2:30. Invitations for the affair have been received by local club women through the president of the federated clubs. The program has not yet been announced.

Wed at Synagogue.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Simon of 406 East Fifth street have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Sarah Simon, to Harold B. Weinstein of Coleraine. The wedding will take place Tuesday, Jan. 26, at the synagogue on East Third street. Following the ceremony a reception will be held at the ballroom of the old Masonic Temple. Mr. Weinstein and his bride will be at home at Coleraine.

POPULAR GIRLS

Must Be Tactful, Cheerful, Sympathetic and Feminine.

First among the qualities which a girl must cultivate in order to attain popularity is tact. Tact is common sense exquisitely refined. The girl who is tactful never pieces the feelings of others with poisoned shafts of wit nor bruss their hearts with stupid blunders. She says the right thing in the right place, and she knows which things are better done and which are better left undone, says an exchange.

Cheerfulness is a good second in the list. Not the senseless gaiety based on an absence of gray matter, but the gladness of heart which has for its foundation a strong, sane optimism. Men flee from the gloomy, complaining creature as from a plague. It's a part of womanhood to make the sun seem to shine even when it doesn't. Few "missions" have a bigger crowd.

Then the popular girl won't talk much about herself, 'Cause why? There are always others who want to talk about themselves—especially men. And if she has learned to listen well and to draw them on to talk of their interests and plans, she has shown a winning card in the game of making them like her.

Sympathy is a quality which comes lagely by experience. But, after all, it has its root in unselfishness and so may be cultivated even by the girl whose life has run along the level plain of happiness. And be very sure, girls, that both men and women like sympathy. They like to be condoned with instead of scolded. It goes to their heart to be told, "Yes, I know." In a sweet understanding voice, and to be made to feel that you do know. Occasionally it goes to their head, too, but you must be well balanced enough to prevent that catastrophe—unless you are aiming to inspire something more than popularity.

Finally, be feminine. Whether it is because the masculine mind is jealous of its prerogative, or because it is too sincere to favor a sham (this is a nice supposition, so let's believe it) it looks with contemptuous scorn upon the girl who makes frantic efforts to be mannish. The most rational male creature likes a feminine woman best. Femininity doe snot mean kittenishness. Ie means womanliness. And no girl needs to have explained to her the qualities that go to make up that charm.

NEW TOQUES.

Small Hats in Favor for Street Wear.

Despite the seeming popularity of large hats small toques are growing in favor and have so far supplanted the huge models that for business and street wear well dressed women affect the latter almost exclusively says an exchange.

The chic hat made of feather tips with an aigrette placed upright in a stiff position at one side will be equally effective worn by a middle aged or young woman, provided it is in a suitable color.

Quite as stylish if not so dressy, is a small sailor with a slightly bent brim and a moderately high round crown. It, too, is decorated with quills put in a severely straight position. These feathers are held in place by a wide ribbon tied in a flat bow without ends.

Elaborate enough for afternoon use, though intended for morning wear, is the toque made of dark velvet placed in folds over a round wire frame, plain, with the exception of the ermine ornament at one side.

This fur trimming, arranged to fall over the hair at the side or back will be especially becoming to brunettes, although pronounced blonde types can wear this kind of hat and will create favorable impression if they have sufficient color in their cheeks.

To Save Tear.

At the present time broadcloth is very much the thing.

Best dresses and plain dresses are all made of this delightful material, and it has become a very popular dress goods for the dress winter.

It has one great drawback—it tears very easily, and the placket particularly often comes to grief.

A good seamstress suggests that a hook and eye should be placed at the very edge of the placket, and that the hook should be fastened in the eye and bent down firmly, so that it will not come undone.

If these are tightly sewn to the material they will not tear away, and milady will have to pull and tug with all her might to tear the skirt.

The same idea may be used for petticoats or little boys' trousers.

A PIECE OF LUCK

Abbie F. Ransom.

(Copyrighted. All rights reserved.)

"Will," she said, suddenly breaking a long silence, "we are to be married in six weeks."

"A happy fact which has occupied my mind to its fullest capacity," he answered. "I sometimes wonder that Barnes & Co. don't fire me for lack of attentio to business."

"Of attention to business."

"Of attention to business." danger, isn't there?" Then, after a pause: "How much money have you in the bank, will you tell me?"

"Got hold of another fellow and want to size up our respective pocketbooks? Mine doesn't hold very much; I told you that some time ago."

She arranged the last violet to suit her taste, examined the completed bouquet critically, brushed the rejected leaves from her lap and then held the flowers under her nose. "There! that's your answer to that question, Mr. Green Eye. You don't mind telling me, do you? Then you may know why I asked.

He shifted his position, the better to see her face. "Well," he said, his tone woebegone as a tenant staving off a landlord with a hard luck story of no work and trust prices, "if we don't drink too much ice cream and swallow too much soda at the picnic next week, I 'calate' to make my deposit an even $600 by next Saturday noon. Does that strike your mercenary highness as too mean to be considered?"

"Oh, Will! have you got all that?"

"All that? Just wait until you try to make it include everything, from a gas range to a parlor set; then you'll cry, instead: "That all?"

"You never asked me if I had a bank account," she said in reply.

"What in the world—" He stopped and looked at her curiously, then he reached out his hand and turned her face toward him.

"What kind of a cur do you think I am?" he asked. "What business is it of mine whether you have one or not? Maybe you have a rich uncle or a bachelor grandfather who will die and leave us a family Bible or a worm eaten copy of Shakespeare worth its weight in copper cents."

She ignored his banter. "I have nearly as much as you," she said, "and do you know what I want?"

"Man wants but little here below, nor wants that little long; but woman wants it all, you know, and wants it mighty strong," he solemnly responded.

"You don't deserve anything," she cried, "after such a parody, but if you'll be good I'll tell you."

He folded his arms, seated himself more comfortably on the hillside and heaved a sigh. My goodness it is like Abraham Mastovichs' profits when he says: 'I buys for one dollar and I sells for two, and that gifs me shust 1 per cent,' and that is also the size of my want-to-know.'

"It's the want-to-get that will floor you. Do you know that I just abominate living in a flat?"

His face lost its gay, bantering expression. For a few moments he was silent, then he said very gently:

"But, Margaret, you know I told you I was not rich. I have only my salary and that isn't very large. To take a house will cost far more than we will be able to afford, and—" he stopped.

"Listen, Will," she responded. "Why can't we buy a place of our own?"

He shook his head. "I wish we might but it will take all the cash to furnish that yet-to-be-discovered and abominated flat."

She fished down into the purse suspended from her belt. "Just read that," was her command, producing a newspaper clipping.

He obeyed. It was an advertisement.

"Reads well, doesn't it?" he said, returning it. "But what I can't understand is this—when a person has such an Eden as that (pointing to the clipping), why don't they hang on to it for themselves?"

"I've been looking," she said, rubbing her chin thoughtfully with her forefinger, "for two months. I could not find anything that suited until I struck this one. I've been to see it, and it's nice. Will you go and look at it with me?"

He sprang up. "Come on, it's only ten miles from here. If it suits, I can take the train back and forth."

"This is the dearest house right among the pines, away back from the road. I can have chickens—I just love chickens—and there's a grape vine and a strawberry bed. No flat in mine, if you please. But," she added, ruefully, "it will take every cent I have saved up, and I'll have nothing left for anything else."

"A sad state of affairs, truly. Suppose I lend you some at Abraham Mastovichs' 1 per cent."

"I'll have my home, anyway, and Grandmother Greyson's parlor set. That's been in the family over a hundred years," she explained, "and it belongs to me now."

"I didn't know I was marrying a fortune," he said, as they went down the road together. "Where am I coming in on this deal?"

"Oh, you'll hear the 'That all?' before you get through, see if you don't."

Nearly an hour later they were walking down a country road bordered on either side by maple trees, whose branches met above their heads in a grand triumphal arch. Suddenly at a bend in the roadway they came upon a cottage nestling in a group of magnificent pines. As Margaret turned in at the gate her companion gave a little start, but he followed without a word. She rang the bell and a moment later it was answered by a cheery "Where did you spring from?" on the far end of the wide veranda. She turned swiftly as Will sang out:

"Hallo, Moll, came out to take dinner with you. Got anything to devour? I'm starving."

The owner of the voice came forward and the irrepressible Will ran on:

"Miss Greyson, this is the best looking and best mannered cousin I've got, and she answers to the name of Mrs. Molly Logan. Moll, this is Miss Greyson."

The ladies laughed. "I've met Miss Greyson when you weren't around to introduce her," came Mrs. Logan's welcome. "She and I are interested in real estate matters."

"That's what brought us out here today," Will responded. "Don't get egotistical and think we came to see you for yourself alone."

"I won't; I'll believe it was nothing but real estate—and dinner."

Margaret turned appealingly toward Will. "Why didn't you tell me?" she said. "I believe you knew all the time."

"Didn't know a thing; how was I to know it was Moll who is selling out?"

Mrs. Logan looked from one to the other. "Will Manning," she cried, "I've caught you now! What do you two want to buy a home for?"

"What do you want to sell for?" he demanded. "Own up, what's wrong with this place? It is that you and Logan are candidates for South Dakota or the lunatic asylum?"

"Going to Porto Rico to take charge of that end of Brown's banana business. We want to sell everything, furniture and all. What are you buying for?"

They capitulated. "We didn't propose that anyone should know until afterward," said Margaret, with a laugh.

"We want to go in six weeks, you'll be married right here, and we'll take your wedding trip for you," was Mrs. Logan's decision, in which they heartily agreed.

When they parted for the night, Will said happily:

"Some men are born with luck grinning by their elbows, some chase it all their lives, just to find that they've been running away from it, and some have luck thrust upon them when they find the right girl. I guess I'm classed with the thrusting list."

NOT SO EASY AS HE LOOKED

"The most picturesque character in the theatrical business today," said Howard Gale, advance agent for "The Three Twins," is Jake Tannenbaum, the manager of the Mobile theater, in Mobile. "He is a German, and he likes to make people think he is a fat old fool. Nothing pleases him more than to have people mistake him for a wooden head, and there is nobody farther from being one than he is.

"They tell a story of a broker of rather shady reputation who came in to see Jake one day and wanted to get Jake to indorse his check, so he could get $500 at the bank. He tried to do the rush act on Jake, and hurried in, laying the check down in front of Jake and handing him a pen.

"'Sign this, will you Jake, so I can get $500 until tomorrow?' said the broker.

"'Four per cent,' said the broker.

"'And the president of the bank said if I would sign this you could have the money?'

"'Yes.'

"'Vell, I tell you what you do. You get the president of the bank to sign it, and I will give you the money. I will show you that I will do just as much for my friends as the president of the bank."

WEST END

RECTOR TO TAKE BRIDE.

Rev. W. E. Harmann Will Marry Aitkin Girl This Month.

Invitations have been issued to the wedding of Miss Anna Hokanson of Aitkin, Minn., and Rev. William Eugene Harmann of Duluth, which will take place at the home of the bride's parents in Aitkin, Wednesday morning, an. 27, at 10:30.

Rev. Mr. Harmann is rector of St. Peter's Swedish Episcopal church, Twenty-eighth avenue west and First street, and has hosts of friends in the city.

New W. C. T. U. Branch.

A branch of the Women's Christian Temperance union was organized in the West end yesterday, at the home of Mrs. Morterud, Twenty-sixth avenue west and Fifth street. The lodge was organized by Mrs. Ida Merrit, state organizer. Thirty members were enrolled and Mrs. E. O. Reppe was elected president.

Fast Hockey Team.

Members of the Adams School Alumni association are working hard for the organization of a hockey league among the amateur teams of the city. If one is formed the Adams alumni will be represented by a fast organization. There are two teams among the alumni and the league team would be composed of the best players of both organizations.

Officers Installed.

The I. S. W. A. and S. W. A. lodges held their annual installation of officers last evening. A social program was given and the following officials were seated: Eric Thorson, president; Charles Gustafson, vice president; Thomas Olson, instructor; Oscar Johnson, secretary; Thorvall Olson, financial secretary; Frank Peterson, treasurer; Herman Thorson, marshal; Alex Gustafson, inside watch; D. Landquist, outside watch; John Anderson, trustee. Mrs. Lena Anderson, president; Mrs. Rose Peterson, vice president; Christina Grenner, instructor; Amelia Olson, secretary; Clara Landberg, financial secretary; Sarah Hanson, treasurer; Anna Anderson, marshal; Mrs. Inga Brunson, inside watch; Josephine Rosen, outside watch; Anna Ruden, trustee.

West End Shortrails.

The Young People Society of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will entertain at a sleigh ride this evening. The party will go to New Duluth and back.

The young ladies of the First Swedish Baptist church will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. C. Predin of Eleventh avenue west.

Hugh Bassett of Buffalo is visiting friends in the West end. He played with the Rochester team of the Eastern league last season, and will join that organization again next summer.

A number of West enders are planning on building their own homes this spring. West First, Second and Third streets, between Twenty-first and Twenty-eighth avenues west, will see the erection of several of them.

Members of the Bema club held an interesting debate last evening, on "Resolved, That Capital Punishment Should Be Abolished." The members took either side of the question they chose, and the talks were spirited. Next Tuesday e vening five-minute addresses on various subjects will be given by the members.

The Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Clement's Catholic church will give a card party in the parish hall tomorrow evening.

The cadet corps of St. Luke's Episcopal church will be formally organized and drilled this evening by C. H. Glover. The meeting will be held in the vestry room of the church.

The West End Republican club is planning to hold a rousing meeting tomorrow evening in the West End Advertiser office. Speeches will be made by the aldermanic candidates.

WOMAN FREED IN ROBBERY CASE

Pittsburg Jeweler Fails to Identify Mrs. Lillian McDowell.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 13.—Mrs. Lillian McDowell, who was arrested in Chicago several weeks ago as an accessory to the robbery of $10,000 worth of diamonds from a Pittsburg jewelry store and brought to this city, was found not guilty today.

It was alleged that Mrs. McDowell was the wife of Edward Jones, who was captured a few minutes after he had smashed the jewelry window. He is serving ten years in the pen.

After Mrs. McDowell's arrest in Chicago, she made two attempts at suicide, one in Chicago and one in Pittsburg. The jeweler failed to identify her as the woman who was in his store when the robbery took place.

NUGGET OF GOLD FOUND IN IOWA CHICKEN'S CROP

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 13.—Smith's Villa, a peaceful suburb on the West side, may blossom out as a second Goldfield with the breakup in the spring. C. E. Downey found a $3 gold nugget in the craw of one of his chickens. The fowl had never been away from home and so the suburbanites are taking the find seriously.

While hunting rabbits near Silver lake, Clifford Gamel of South Sioux City received a charge from his brother's shotgun, which had been intended for a cottontail, and is in a critical condition.

Now that the weather has passed away, so that you no longer sound when you wish to converse, like the bass gentleman in "The Messiah," who sings "W-h-h-eye d-d-d-d-o the na-a-aashuns r-r-r-rage," etc, you may stop eating hot soup and heavy roasts and hot heavy puddings long enough to indulge in a salad of crisp coolness, bathed in a dressing of exquisitely blended oil and sharpness. The head lettuce is crisp and nice, the garlic comes in nice, long, copious bunches, and if you have not yet so fallen away from all self respect as to eat garlic, why, then, you can get a bunch of shallots or chives that will do for a mild substitute.

There are other mild and pleasant things in the market. For instance, very nice apricots, which make delicious sauce. Also prunes.

ASK PERMISSION TO RAISE FARES

Receivers Show Deficits in Cleveland Street Railway Receipts.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 13.—Cleveland's street car lines, which still are operated upon a 3-cent fare basis, were run at an estimated loss of $125,000 during October, November and December. A report filed in the United States circuit court by the receivers of the lines shows a deficit of $37,912 for November.

The receivers will ask the council for permission to raise the rate of fare.

VERDICT FOR THE SAMARITANS

Widow Cannot Recover on Her Husband's Insurance Policy.

Because, when Charles F. Leland died, April 14, 1908, his assessment for March had not been paid to the Modern Samaritans, Cora G. Leland, his widow, cannot collect the $2,000 which would be due under his death benefit certificate had he not been in arrears. Late yesterday afternoon a jury in district court returned a verdict in favor of the defendant in the case brought by Mrs. Leland against the Samaritans.

The case hinged upon the question of whether the Samaritans had waived the payment of monthly dues and assessments by the treasurer accepting Mr. Leland's payments for three months at a time, in the second month of the period. Mr. Alford for the plaintiff claimed that the continued acceptance of dues and assessments in that manner had amounted to a waiver, and Mr. Leland relied upon it, and did not consider himself suspended at any time if he did not pay within the thirty days given.

A. E. McManus for the defense claimed that there was no waiver on the part of the society. He said the arrangement was one between Thomas A. Gall, the treasurer, and Mr. Leland, and the society had no knowledge of it. He said the subordinate council had no power to change the by-laws, as adopted by the imperial council, and Mr. Leland had full cognizance of the by-laws and the effect of a failure to live up to them.

The trial was the second of the case, a jury having disagreed at the November term of court.

THE CARON JURY CANNOT AGREE

So Reports After Being Out for Over Eight Hours.

After being out over eight hours, the jury in the case of the state against Archie Caron, charged with keeping the Burns saloon, 1103 West Michigan street, open for business on Sunday, Dec. 20, reported that it was unable to agree, and was discharged.

The jurymen left the municipal courtroom, where the case was tried before Judge Cutting, shortly before 12 o'clock yesterday, and made its report that it could not agree shortly after 8 o'clock last night. It was out about eight and one-half hours.

GALLINGER-BRANDEGEE SUCCEED THEMSELVES.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 13.—United States Senator Frank B. Brandegee of New London, will succeed himself as the junior senator from Connecticut for the full term of six years.

Caucus in Concord.

Concord, N. H., Jan. 13.—Little opposition to the return of United States Senator Jacob H. Gallinger of Concord, for a fourth consecutive term developed at the caucus of the Republican members o fthe legislature. Of the 296 votes cast, Senator Gallinger had 25.

Menasha Tailor Sentenced.

Oshkosh, Wis., Jan. 13.—Ten years in the state prison was the sentence imposed upon Louis Anklam of Menasha, a tailor, who was charged with assault with intent to kill his wife, Mary Anklam, and his son, Louis Anklam, Jr. At the opening of the January term of the circuit court.

Tailor Strangles Himself.

Rochester, Minn., Jan. 13.—Adam Skorupinski, a merchant tailor of this city, aged about 50, committed suicide Monday night by strangling himself with a cord. His family consisted of his wife and seven children. His eldest son is a teacher at Wilmot, S. D.

Loses Duluth Present.

Anoka, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Katherine King, a teacher in the Duluth public schools, while attending a house party here recently, lost a fine gold-handled umbrella, the gift of her pupils in the Zenith city, and a gold chain given to her by her father. A busy burglar is blamed for the thefts.

NEURASTHENIA

Also Known as "Nerve Tire" and "Nervous Exhaustion"

has, during the present generation, come to be known as the "National Disease" of America. So prevalent has it become, that it is almost an exception to find a person without it. It is usually found associated with nervous dyspepsia, which is often the most prominent symptom. In this age of hurry, worry, hustle and the strenuous life in business, many people overwork their nervous systems and put too much strain upon them, which eventually causes a partial or total breakdown. Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey through its tonic and rebuilding constituents will cure these troublesome nervous complaints by supplying the system with those vital elements which it needs to bring about a complete restoration to health.

The process of tearing down and building up are constantly being carried on in the body, and if nothing interferes with these important processes health results; but when something occurs to check them disease is sure to follow. Duffy's Malt Whiskey overcomes the disease by stimulating the heart and nerves, which quickens the circulation of blood, enabling the system to properly assimilate the food from the alimentary tract, also to adequately eliminate from the system, through the lungs, pores, kidneys and intestines, those waste products, such as uric acid, toxins, etc., which results from the disintegration of the old tissues of the body, and the decomposition af alimentum in the alimentary canal.

It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system; it is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old young and keeps the young strong.

If you wish to keep young, strong and vigorous and have on your cheeks the glow of perfect health, take Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey regularly, according to directions. It tones and strengthens the heart action and purifies the entire system. It is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Price $1.00. Write Consulting Physician, Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for a free illustrated medical booklet and free advice.

BURGLARS FAIL TO BREAK SAFE

Break Into Fifeld Shoe Store But Get No Cash.

Burglars entered the Fifield Shoe store at 115 West Superior street last night, but failed to secure any plunder.

The men gained access to the store by the skylight, sliding down a wire cable. They must have entered between 11 and 12 o'clock. At 1 o'clock Patrolman Barber found the back door open. Entering, he discovered that the safe had been tampered with. The men had evidently tried to open it and failed. They apparently were not in need of shoes, for the stock had not been disturbed.

by anxiety and dread, rushed to the mine mouth and implored those there to allow them to aid in the effort to save some of their loved ones who might still be alive within.

A rescue party, organized on the moment, rushed into the jaws of the smoking mine and tried to rescue him. They were driven back by the deadly fumes of the after gases and were compelled to leave him to his fate.

The explosion was in a different part of the mine from that of two weeks ago. Since that the mine has been inspected by government officials and by the most experienced mining men in the region, and all expressed the opinion that it was safe.

Deadly Gases.

One rescue party came in sight of six bodies but was forced back. A late estimate of the number of men entombed is more than 100. That all of them are dead there can be no doubt. The fire in the mine and the deadly gases, to say nothing of the awful force of the explosion, precludes any chance of rescuing any of the men alive.

EARTHQUAKE AT VENICE FAILS TO DESTROY CITY

shocks had not been severe, and that no damage or loss of life resulted.

Florence Is Shaken.

Florence, Jan. 13.—Several earth shocks were recorded this morning at intervals of two seconds. The people rushed from their houses in trepidation, fearing a repetition of the Messina and Calabria disasters. No damage was done, and as the trembling soon ceased calm was restored and the work of the day resumed.

Alarm in Milan.

Milan, Jan. 13.—An earth shock was felt here this morning, causing considerable alarm. People rushed from their homes and congregated in Cathedral square. There was no repetition of the quake and calm was restored. No damage was done.

New Messina Appears.

Messina, Jan. 13.—While thousands still are buried under the ruins, many signs of the revival of the city are greeted with enthusiasm by the survivors, who are determined that Messina shall rise again. A fruit merchant, who was the first to re-ship 100 cases of oranges, lemons and other fruit for the Far East, was saluted like a hero, while the appearance of two cabs on the streets was considered a historic event.

In the meantime, amid the ruins of the city, villages of huts are springing up. One of these villages includes not less than 3,000 huts, extending for a distance of two miles. The water pipes have been re-established and at night the principal streets and squares are illuminated. Slight, but frequent earthquake shocks continue.

Buried Sixteen Days; Lives.

Reggio, Jan. 13.—An extraordinary disinterment took place here yesterday, a 3-year-old girl being taken from the ruins alive and uninjured, after sixteen days' burial. The possibility of the girl's having had nourishment is excluded, and it is believed that part of the time she was in a cataleptic state.

Recorded in Maryland.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Three earthquakes have been recorded by the seismograph at the coast and geological survey observatory at Cheltenham, Md., during the past thirty-six hours.

Goes to Repair Cable.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 13.—The United States cable steamer Burnside left here today to repair the Alaska cable, which is supposed to have been broken by yesterday's tarthquake, about 175 miles from here, or off the coast of Vancouver Island.

knocked off a street car last night. Walsh was taken to a hospital, where twelve stitches were taken in a scalp wound. The juror suffered abrashions on the face and his left eye was hurt. Before court opened, Mr. Walsh went to the hospital, where his injuries were again dressed.

When court opened Justice Crane announced that Juror Walsh had assured him that he would be able to sit through the session.

McIntyre, in his summing up, declared much of the testimony of Mrs. Annis to be false. The evidence, he said, showed that Mrs. Annis was not on the float during the shooting and not one of the state's witnesses had corroborated her testimony that she was there.

Horror of Hypnotism.

It is stated that as a boy the dead man was often easily mesmerized, and that he had a horror of hypnotism.

Detectives who made careful examination of the body discovered on one of the legs a number of hypodermic syringe wounds and later found the syringe. This suggested to some that Carmichael was a victim of drugs. In the dead man's pocket was discovered the watch of Browning. It was also ascertained that the pocket knife with which Carmichael committed suicide was the property of Browning.

Ignorant as to Drugs.

Port Huron, Mich., Jan. 13.—"If my father used drugs he managed to keep the fact a secret from the family. I am sure my mother never knew of such a thing."

This is the declaration of Porter Carmichael today, when he heard that officers had found in his father's effects at Carthage, Ill., where Rev. John H. Carmichael committee suicide last Monday, a hypodermic syringe and on the body scars, seemingly made by use of the implement.

by Attorney General Bonaparte, Tillman made reply thereto declaring the difference between his explanation of the interview of the attorney general and himself in regard to the Oregon land grants, and the explanation given by Mr. Bonaparte is one of memory, not of veracity. Tillman asserted that he is willing to place his oath alongside that of the attorney general as to what he said at that time Bonaparte's statement is contradictory of some of the statements which Tillman made in his speech.

GAG, ASSAULT, ROB, EAT, VANISH

Six Masked Men Perpetrate Crimes on Old People.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 13.—Binding, gagging and assaulting Solomon Laughner 85 years old, and his two sisters, both of whom are between 70 and 80 years old, six masked robbers last night ransacked the house, secured about $1,500 in cash, ate their supper and then disappeared.

The Loughners live on an isolated farm midway between Jeanette and Harrison City.

Mr Loughner and his sisters were seated at the table eating their supper last night when the men suddenly broke into the house. Owing to their advanced age, the three of them were powerless to protect themselves. They screamed and were given hard blows in the face. Then they were bound and gagged The men said they knew a large sum of money was in the house and they wanted it. The aged victims refused to divulge the hiding place, however, and the men instituted a search, unsuccessful in finding the money, they drew revolvers and pointed the weapons at Loughner and his sisters threatening death. Then one of the highwaymen said: "I'll tell you, let's burn the house and cremate them!"

Mr. Loughner then led the men to a small safe and opened it. After taking the contents, $1,500, the robbers disappeared.

The Columbia 1909 Suit Sales start tomorrow.

pure self-defense. Last session the rules were relaxed to a considerable degree, and there was more lobbying done on the floor of both houses than there was in the halls without. At times there were so many lobbyists about, buzzing at the members in the rear of the chambers or at their seats, that at times it was difficult to keep track of what was going on.

Of course, the term "lobbyist" covers a pretty wide latitude. Commonly it is supposed to apply only to the corruptionists of the corporations, who are pictured in the popular imagination as hovering about the pathway of lawmakers seeking who they may devour.

In fact, however, that is about the last place that that class of lobbyist likes to find himself. That kind of work is done in the quiet of hotel rooms, and almost never on the floor of a legislative body, or even in the publicity of the corridors or retiring rooms. The real, simon-pure lobbyist working to get things for railroads or other corporations is a more modest creature than the popular imagination pictures him to be.

But, nevertheless, the very chamber floors themselves would be alive with lobbyists if the rules or the construction of rules permitted it. For instance, a couple of sessions ago, there was an anti-vaccination bill before the legislature. That produced the busiest swarm of lobbyists the state capitol ever saw. There were a few lobbying against the bill, but more were lobbying for it, and no member of either house could safely meet a stranger anywhere about the capitol and permit a conversation to begin, for the chances were at least seven out of ten that the stranger—who was more likely to be a woman than a man—would enter an interminable tale about the horrors of vaccination and the terrible state of barbarism into which a commonwealth that would permit it had fallen.

Then two years ago there was a proposition to separte the girls from the boys in the state training school at Red Wing. They were separated already, but many deemed it desirable to separate them still further by putting the girls in another town. A large number of the most estimable ladies and gentlemen—mostly the former—took a deep interest in the matter, and became lobbyists of the most ardent type.

Broadly speaking, anybody who comes around the legislature seeking to induce that body to do or not to do anything, is a lobbyist. If a public-spirited man were to become convinced that the legislature is not paying itself enough, and came around the capitol to urge the adoption of a bill increasing legislative salaries, he would be a lobbyist just as much as the man who came there to ask the legislature to give a certain railroad valuable privileges for nothing.

Of course, the proper thing to do is to enact a law regulating this business of lobbying. Such bills are regularly proposed and, in spite of the legislature's objection to unregulated lobbying, they are as regularly defeated. Maybe it will be different this time; certainly the legislature has made its rules more strict, and it manifests every evidence of enforcing those rules.

Some of those associated with the so-called "people's lobby" have become convinced that these rules are leveled against them.

That does not, however, seem to be the intention of the legislature. These are not lobbyists, in the strict sense of the word. They are not pushing for or against any measure—at least they say they are not—and, therefore, they are not lobbyists. However, the people's lobby professes to believe that this is a legislative move against its operations, and it has instructed its agents to push themselves into the corridors, and to insist upon being thrown out if the rule is enforced against them.

It is utterly improbable that anything of the sort will be done. On the face of it at least, these men are here merely to watch the legislature, and to let the people know what it is doing. That makes them a kind of reporter, and reporters are not lobbyists.

The people's lobby, by the way, is an outgrowth of the Minnesota Shippers' and Receivers' association, of which George Loftus was the moving spirit. He is one of the leaders of the people's lobby, and Lynn Haines, who reported proceedings for the old association, tells a string of country papers about things for the people's lobby. He is here to get "hot stuff," and he will do his best, no doubt, to comply with the requirements of his contract.

Senator Sundberg of Kennedy yesterday introduced in the senate a bill aimed at grain and live stock exchanges, the terms of which are as follows: It is to be unlawful for any member of any chamber of commerce or any board of trade or live stock exchange, formed under the laws of this state either as a corporation or voluntary association, when selling any live stock, grain or other property on the trading floor of such chamber, board of exchange, for any shipper or consignor on commission, to sell such grain, stock or property to any firm or corporation in which such member has any direct or indirect financial interest, whether such buyer be a member of such board ,chamber or exchange or not.

It is also to be unlawful for any board of trade, chamber of commerce or live stock exchange to adopt or maintain any rule or by-law which in any manner limits or regulates the price on sales made therein between members thereof or between members and non-members, of any property bought, sold or dealt in therein, or which shall in any manner prohibit members of any such board of trade, chamber of commerce or exchange from paying the same price for any article to a non-member as to a member, or that shall require any member to exact a uniform rate of commission in trades, either with members or non-members, on property consigned to him for sale.

It is provided that any exchange violating this provision may be enjoined by the state from continuing in business. Individuals or firms violating the provisions of the bill are to be fined not less than $500 or more than $5,000, or be imprisoned for not less than one year or more than two years.

Elmer Adams of Fergus Falls yesterday introduced a bill repealing the "state jag farm" law passed two years ago, by which 2 per cent on liquor license fees was to be collected for the purpose of providing the farm. This yields about $60,000 a year, and a site for the farm has been selected—but not yet bought—at Willmar. Mr. Adams does not believe that the present law provides enough restriction upon the conduct of inmates, and fears it may turn out that the farm will be merely a pleasant resort for hoboes. His idea is that the law should have provided for some place in Northern Minnesota, where the drunks could be put at work pulling stumps and developing the state, thus accomplishing something while working the whisky out of them.

Senator Calhoun's bill, introduced by him yesterday "by request," prohibiting marriages between whites and blacks, is very severe. It defines a negro as anybody having one-eighth negro blood, and it not only provides for sending the parties to such a marriage to jail or making them pay a fine of $100 to $1,000, but it also provides that the minister or official performing the ceremony shall be fined $100 to $1,000.

Senator Peterson's bill, briefly described yesterday, for the collection by the state of twice the amount of excess charged by railroads above the legal passenger rate of 2 cents per mile, is intended to replace the penalty clause of the 2-cent fare bill of two years ago. The penalty clause of that measure comes under the same category as the penalty clause in the commodity freight rate bill, which has been declared unconstitutional by the federal courts on the ground that the penalty is excessive.

Senator Cashman made another move yesterday in his attempt to straighten out this tangle in the commodity freight rate law. A few days ago he offered a bill re-enacting the law but leaving out the penal clause. Yesterday he introduced another measure specifically repealing the penalty clause. Later he will introduce a bill along the same lines as that of Senator Peterson's on the 2-cent fare law, providing that shippers charged more than the lawful rate can collect the excess with 10 per cent interest.

An interesting measure is that proposed yesterday by Representative W. A. Nolan of Grand Meadow, making the state public examiner elective instead of appointive. At present that official is appointed by and therefore largely responsible to the governor. Mr. Nolan believes that the people ought to pick the man to fill this important office, and while his bill will arouse controversy, he will find many believers in the "back to the people" movement who will join in with his plan.

Representative Nimocks of Minneapolis yesterday afternoon introduced a bill proposing radical changes in the provisions governing certain city officials now appointive in cities of over 50,000 inhabitants. While it is intended to apply to Minneapolis, there appears to be no provision that would exempt Duluth from its operation. It not only makes these offices elective, but increases the salaries to the following figures: City clerk, $3,600; city attorney, $5,500; city engineer, $5,500; city asesor, $4,500; health commissioner, $3,000; gas inspector, $2,500; building inspector, $4,200; sealer of weights and measures, $2,600; city weigher, $2,300.

The first move against the difficult problem of taxing mortgages without making the borrower stand the burden, was made yesterday by Representative Stuart of Windom, who would cut the Gordian knot by exempting mortgages and bonds from taxation. This is permissible under the new constitutional provisions regarding taxation, and to the mind of many students of taxation, it is the only solution of the vexed problem of taxing credits.

The bill introduced in the house yesterday by Representative Holten of Polk county providing new machinery for county division, is substantially the same bill that was introduced two years ago by Otter Tail county representatives. It seeks to make county division easier by eliminating the complication of county seat selection, and to that end it provides for having an election first to determine whether the division shall be made, leaving the selection of a county seat to the new county at a later election.

Representative Bicknell's bill, introduced yesterday, providing that copies of the senate and house journals and of printed bills shall be sent to all newspapers applying for them, is the outcome of a demand on the part of some of the country newspapers for such a measure. It is provided that newspapers receiving this service shall keep the journals and bills on file for public inspection. The cost would be considerable, and it is rather doubtful whether the legislature will see fit to incur it.

Representative Bendixen's bill providing that the state canvassing board shall meet on the third Tuesday of November instead of the second Tuesday in December is a timely and proper measure which will no doubt go through. The wait between the election and the announcement of the official count is now entirely too long, and most unnecessarily so. Last year the canvassing board met Dec. 15, five weeks after election. It is true that there was no doubt about state results, but there is much public interest in knowing the exact results, not to speak of the election bets hinging upon them, and two or three weeks ought to be ample time in which to gather in the state returns.

The bill by Representative Kneeland of Minneapolis, making employers liable for injuries to employes caused by defective machinery, provides that contributary negligence shall not be a bar to recovery, but that where the contributary negligence is slight and the negligence of the employer is gross in comparison, the jury shall take these matters into consideration, and the damage shall be dismissed in proportion to the amount of negligence at tributable to the employe.

The fight on the Northern Minnesota normal school proposition is now on. Both Cass Lake and Bemidji have bills introduced locating the new school, and probably there will be some form of co-operation in the endeavor to convince the legislature that the new school is needed, though the rivalry between the two towns is strong.

• • •

The St. Louis county senators have the following committee places:

Layhourn—Chairman of insurance, and places on finance, taxes, elections, rules, municipal corporations, temperance, forestry, reapportionment.

Fugh—Chairman of mines and minerals, and places on railroads, general legislation, normal schools, grain and warehouse, military affairs, public accounts, state training school, forestry.

Vall—Chairman of labor, and places on railroads, towns and counties, mines and minerals, Indian affairs, libraries, engrossment and school for deaf, dumb and blind.

The proposition to have a convention for the revision of the constitution makes its appearance regularly. This year Senator Sageng of Otter Tail county introduced it in the senate. The proposition, if the legislature adopts it, is that the people shall vote in November, 1910, upon the question of holding the convention. The measure must pass both houses by a two-thirds majority, which is not an easy vote to get.

OLD HERMIT PASSES AWAY

Lived a Bachelor in Woods for Over Thirty Years.

Little Known Concerning Life's History; Death Came Suddenly.

Little is known of the lonely life history of E. Evald, age 74, whom death visited suddenly yesterday afternoon in the forlorn little cabin near Midway, where he and his bachelor partner, Sam Samuelson, had lived for the past six months.

The old man was puttering about the place late yesterday afternoon when he was suddenly stricken. Blood rushed to his mouth and the end came. Even Samuelson can give little information concerning the life of his partner, whose silent ways prohibited intrusion into the secrets of his past.

Samuelson says that the old man came to the Head of the Lakes from somewhere in Canada over thirty years ago, and since then has lived alone in shanties built by himself in the woods near Duluth. From the produce of a little truck garden, he managed to eke out his existence. Six months ago he came to live with Samuelson for his own little shanty had been burned to the ground, and old age prevented him from rebuilding it.

He was a strange, uncommunicative character. For days hardly a word would pass between the cabin-mates. Aside from one brother whom he happened to mention once, he is thought to have no other relatives. Where this brother may live, there is no possible way of finding out. He left no word, and who he really is or where he came from, will probably never be known.

The body was brought this morning to M. J. Fiintrauut's undertaking rooms, where an autopsy will be held. It is thought, however, death resulted from a hemorrhage of the lungs. No funeral arrangements have been made.

FAMILY AWAY.

Flames Partially Destroy the Home of Joseph White.

While all of the family except a little girl, were away, flames started in the roof of Joseph White's home, 222 South Fifty-ninth avenue west, yesterday afternoon at about 1:40 o'clock.

The fire probably started from a defective chimney. From the roof, it ate its way into the attic and on down into the second story, and when the fire department arrived, it had gained such headway that the h ouse was practically destroyed before the flames were placed under control.

Had it not been for he assistance of the neighbors the greater part of the furniture would have been ruined. As it was nearly every article of any value was saved and piled in the street in front of the burning residence.

Previous to the fire Mr. White and his daughters had been living in the house alone, Mrs. White and her son being in Nebraska, for the child's health. One of the daughters was at home when the fire was noticed. An alarm was telephoned in, and the neighbors formed an impromptu salvage company, not waiting for the arrival of the fire company.

College President to Speak.

John P. D. John, formerly president of Du Pauw, Ind., college, will deliver a lecture Sunday night at the Asbury M. E. church, on the subject, "Did Man Make night until Thursday evening, and to God, or Did God Make Man?" It will be a union meeting, the congregation of the Congregational and Presbyterian churches uniting for the service, which will be held at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. John will lecture at a meeting for men at the Y. M. C. A., Sunday afternoon. The meeting Sunday night at the Asbury church will be open to all.

To Promote Invention.

Ike Deatherage left last night on a long trip. He intends to visit all the principal cities east of the Mississippi, endeavoring to introduce his and Charles Sliger's patent cigar binder. While in the East he will visit Washington to obtain patents for a new fire escape that he has recently invented.

Installation of Officers.

Tomorrow evening, at Gilley's hall, a joint installation of the officers of Sancta Maria Court, W. C. O. F., and St. James Court, No. 614, C. O. F., will take place. At a special meeting of the latter court held Sunday afternoon, it was decided to postpone the installation of the officers of the court last night until Thursday evenin, and to join with the women's court as in previous years. After the ceremonies a social session will be held in which the members of the order and their friends will participate.

James Cochran Re-Elected.

James Cochran was re-elected president of the Western State bank yesterday at a directors' meeting. The other officers elected were: L. A. Barnes, vice president, and L. R. Clark, cashier A set of resolutions expressing their regret over the death of their fellow director, O. S. Olson, will be drawn up by a committee appointed yesterday.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all those friends who so kindly expressed their sympathy and aid in our bereavement, and for the magnificent floral tributes to our departed husband and father.

MRS. ANNA OLSON.
EDWIN S. OLSON.

Skater Breaks Wrist.

Frank Johnson of 34 North Forty-seventh avenue west, is suffering from a broken wrist and a number of bruises received while skating yesterday on the bay at the foot of Forty-seventh avenue west. He was using a skater's sail and was flying along before the wind, turning to stop, he struck a pile and was thrown to the ice. His broken wrist made it impossible for him to remove his skates, so he was forced to walk to his home with them on.

Curling Scores.

The following games were played in the Commercial club trophy series last night at the Western Curling club rink:

Pond,	Sulcove,

TILLMAN PHONES TO BONAPARTE

Attorney General Does Not Tell Whether Suit is Started.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Just before going into the senate chamber today Senator Tillman called Attorney General Bonaparte on the telephone and asked him whether he had brought suit against the Southern Oregon company, which holds land grants for military roads from Roseburg to Coos Bay.

This is the land comprising over 2,000,000 acres of which Senator Tillman at one time contemplated purchasing, at $2.50 per acre, about 1,400 acres for himself, members of his family and others.

The attorney general was not able to answer offhand whether suit had been brought and Tillman asked him if he could not at once call some clerk and find out.

After some delay with Tillman holding the receiver the attorney general replied he would send Tillman a note on the subject.

Tillman insisted that he would like to have an answer at the earliest possible moment.

MEYER TELLS NATION'S NEED OF POSTAL BANKS

Gives Reasons for Immediate Action on Postal Savings Measure.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 13.—Postmaster-General Meyer has added a new factor to the postal savings debate in the senate by making public at last extensive facts and figures gathered by the postoffice department hsowing the results of the postal savings bank system abroad and probable results in this country. In an article written for the Woman's World of Chicago, he makes clear the attitude of the administration toward the bills now before congress and makes a vigorous defence of a system which he claims will bring into circulation fully half a billion dollars not today placed in any bank, owing to lack of confidence or facilities. The article is the strongest summing up of the arguments for governmental banking yet made and contains many new facts for the first time disclosed.

"As an evidence of the demand for postal savings banks," says Mr. Meyer, "we have reports from postmasters that they have been compelled to refuse to accept deposits offered by foreigners for safe keeping, and also that our own people have bought postal money orders during the last year payable to themselves to the extent of $8,104,447, on which amount fees of $25,000 were paid. These money orders were bought to the greatest extent in the state of Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, Oklahoma, Ohio, Oregon, Texas and Washington.

"A postoffice inspector has reported that one family residing near a small postoffice in the state of Washington has $11,000 on deposit in the postal banks of British Columbia.

"Under the bill now before the senate with a favorable report from the committee on postoffices and postroads, the money would be widely distributed, as it would be placed in the national banks in the districts where the deposits were first brought to the postoffices. The government would not go into the banking business. The national banks are to pay not less than 2½ per cent, retaining one-fourth of 1 per cent in order that the system may be self-sustaining. No interest would be paid by the government on deposits over $500.

"The deposits would be guaranteed by the government, as it would make itself responsible by receiving them.

"In some parts of the United States the need of postal savings banks is not as urgently felt as in others. In New England the average distance of the savings bank from the postoffice is about fifteen miles; in the Middle and Western states it is about twenty-five miles; in the Southern states thirty-three miles, and in the Pacific Slope states fifty-five miles. The postal savings bank would reach every community.

$300,000,000 In Hiding Now.

"While the money in savings banks amounts to $3,660,553,345 only 1.6 per cent, or $70,308,543, is in thirty-two states. The fourteen other states are fortunate in possessing saving bank deposits to the amount of $3,590,245,402, or 98.4 per cent. This is of great advantage to the latter states, as it increases their financial resources and thus aids in their development.

"In the thirty-two states referred to there are many localities where there are no savings banks and in some cases no banks of any kind. It is there that considerable money is held in hiding, which is neither absolutely safe nor in circulation for the benefit of the community. It has been estimated that altogether fully half a billion dollars not today placed in any bank, due to want of opportunity or lack of confidence, might be brought back into circulation through the agency of postal savings banks.

"The additional opportunities for saving that can be afforded the people by postal savings banks in this country are made apparent by the fact that there are 60,624 postoffices, 40,000 of which are money-order postoffices.

"The foreigner should be encouraged to deposit his earnings, because after he has accumulated a few hundred dollars he will not be content to receive a 2 per cent interest, but will seek to purchase a home; and the moment he acquires real property in this country he becomes a better citizen, is more actively interested in the affairs of the nation, and at the same time places himself and his dependents beyond a likelihood of becoming public charges.

"The rate of interest which the department has recommended, 2 per cent per annum, is evidence that it is not the intention to go into the banking business or to compete with existing savings institutions which pay, in a great many instances, 4 per cent per annum. On the contrary, it is proposed to redeposit the money which is brought to the postoffices in national banks in the locality where it is first received, thus making it immediately available for the financial and business transactions of the community to which it properly belongs.

Expense of Postal Banking.

"The expense to the government in connection with the operation of postal savings banks would not be great. In Canada, where $465,000,000 have been received and returned to depositors in the last thirty-nine years, and where at present $50,000,000 are on deposit, the total expense to the central establishment at Toronto is given as $60,000 annually. Outside of that city the work incident to the system is included in the duties of regular postal employes. In the United States the work could be performed in money-order offices by the clerks handling such orders, and it is not believed that additional employes would be needed.

"The system proposed contemplates the daily reporting of deposits to the postmaster general, who would acknowledge receipt directly to the patrons. The maximum amount which would be received from any individual is placed at $500. Postal savings deposits would not be liable to demand, seizure or detention under legal processes against the depositor.

"As the postoffice department (government) is a preferred creditor, it would not demand collateral from the banks in the way of bonds. There would be the safeguard of the comptroller of the currency reporting regularly on the standing of the banks that are used as depositories, and the double liability of the stockholders of the national banks would be an additional assurance of the security of the deposits."

GEN. BOOTH RECOVERING SIGHT AFTER OPERATION.

London, Jan. 13.—Gen. Booth, the venerable head of the Salvation Army, is gradually recovering his sight after undergoing a painful operation for the removal of a lenticular cataract of the right eye.

In some varieties of this disease the cataract can be scraped from the eye, leaving the lens intact, but in Gen. Booth's case the cataract was in the lens itself which, therefore, had to be cut out. As the general's advanced age rendered the use of chloroform imprudent, cocaine was empoyed as a local anaesthetic.

Happily the loss of the natural lens of the eye does not mean the loss of sight, but only of focusing power. This can be made good by the use of suitable glasses where an artificial lens supplies more or less perfectly the place of the natural one which has been removed.

OBJECT TO NEW JAIL

Citizens Living Near New Courthouse Do Not Want It.

Problem of Caring for Prisoners Rapidly Becoming Pressing One.

While people are admiring the exterior beauty of the new St. Louis county courthouse, and the county officials are awaiting anxiously for the time when they will be able to occupy adequate and comfortable quarters, a few people are giving consideration to the new jail project.

The resolution of the county board, passed at its last meeting, by which a committee was named to investigate conditions and report on the necessity for additional quarters for housing prisoners, and the advisability of enlarging the present jail, or erecting a new building, means that something will be done to relieve the congestion, which has prevailed for some time past in the penal quarters of St. Louis county.

The people most interested believe that the something can only be the erection of a new jail adjacent to the courthouse. They say the drive is too far to the present jail site; the waits would be too inconvenient; the caring for prisoners attended with great difficulties, and the only solution of the problem is a new and modern jail, near the courthouse and connected with the main building by an underground passageway, which would obviate any possibility of escapes, enable prisoners to be taken to court more speedily, and shield the wrongdoers from the curious gaze of the public.

Others have a say, however. The people living in the vicinity of the new courthouse don't like the idea of having the jail located there. They don't mind the courthouse. The beautiful building, the uses to which it will be put, and the greater business which will consequently be directed to the streets and avenues leading to it, will enhance the value of property in that vicinity. But the jail is a different proposition. They don't want prisoners housed in the sight of their homes. They don't want murderers, thieves and other parasites of society paraded before their eyes and those of their children. They want the courthouse, but they certainly do not want the jail.

To all of which the county commissioners will be asked to turn a deaf ear. The sheriff and his deputies say the present jail is too small, and enlarging it would only postpone what must surely come in time. The courthouse commission has steered clear of the entire problem. No plans have been prepared for a jail, but the site is available, and it is up to the county commissioners to go ahead and do the directing. The people in the vicinity of the courthouse will have their say when the time comes, and their plaint will be a loud and doleful one. If it comes to a showdown, those in on the know say the protests of the people in the vicinity of the courthouse will be disregarded. If the county commissioners find that the erection of a jail on the courthouse site is necessary and advisable, they will build it.

The Castor Oil Treatment.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will The Herald kindly publish this article for the protection of innocent humanity and the benefit of parents who do not seem to know and cannot trust their own good judgment in caring for their offspring?

Is it not a fact that every physician prescribing castor oil for new-born babes, born in perfect health, in doses of from two to four teaspoonfuls daily, for months, and until every spark of natural vitality is purged from the system of the little innocents and sooner or later they become victims of tuberculosis or some other malady that is likely to end their existence, and for this we ask, is it not a fact that every doctor who will insist on such treatment should be put to the test and compelled to explain his reason? Every person possessed of two grains of common sense, rightly exercised, must know that such treatment is contrary to the building up of the human system and therefore cannot be beneficial when so constantly used. Does it not stand to reason that even an adult in good physical health, would soon break down under such treatment, especially if only a very small portion of nourishing food was allowed, as is sometimes the case with infants. One doctor, who is classed with those of the castor oil treatment, has said that all babes are born in perfect health, and the same physician begins the castor oil treatment before the babe is thirty-six hours in existance or has taken a morsel of nourishment, and is seemingly in perfect health. Does not the Good Book say: "He that is well needeth not a physician?" Then listen, ye doctors and parents, who do purge the existance of human innocents by your ignorance, for no other reason than to swell your worldly possessions for "God knoweth all things, and He it is who will reward you for your deeds."

A QUEER ARGUMENT.

The Todd County Argus is a Northern Minnesota paper which is opposing reapportionment. The Argus bases its opposition upon the ground that Todd, Wadena and Hubbard counties, composing the Fifty-third legislative district, now have one senator and two representatives, or one representative in the legislature for each county; that this representation is ample; that reapportionment would simply make more jobs for more legislators and so involve the state in a greater expense.

The Argus seems to entirely overlook the fact that the purpose of reapportionment is to give every citizen, so far as possible, an equal voice in the making of the laws of the state. Surely the editor of the Argus cannot desire that the vote of its editor and the vote of the Argus' banker and the vote of the postmaster of Long Prairie shall all three be of less force and influence in the making of the laws of Minnesota than the vote of one man in Dodge county. Yet such is the actual fact under present conditions, for while Dodge county has one senator for 2,259 voters Todd, Wadena and Hubbard counties have one senator for 8,095 voters. What does this mean? It means that when it comes to the election of a United States senator from Minnesota every man in Todd county has just one-third of the influence of every man in Dodge county; it means that if a new state institution is to be located Dodge Center has three votes to Long Prairie's one; it means that the development of Todd county and of the other counties of Northern Minnesota, whose resources have been so strikingly depicted by Governor Johnson in his message to the legislature, have been held back and are now being held back, because it takes three progressives in Todd county to offset the influence of one reactionary in Dodge county.

The Herald does not understand that there is any tendency on the part of the legislature to materially increase the membership of the legislature. The legislature is large enough as it is, and any plan of reapportionment based upon a considerable increase in the membership of the two houses would meet with the most active opposition of the people of the state. A number of plans for reapportionment have been proposed, but The Herald does not remember to have seen any which have proposed a radical change in the number of members of the legislature.

The so-called White bill for reapportionment, introduced at the last session, has been the basis for most of the discussion concerning reapportionment. This bill left the membership of the senate unchanged in number but provided for an increase of ten house members. Todd county is in the Sixth congressional district, which district has at present seven senators and twelve representatives. No plan thus far proposed increases the Sixth district's number of senators and the highest number of house members proposed by any of the different plans is fifteen. So that the Argus need not to fear that it will have too many legislators thrust upon it. The equalization of representation will come in cutting down the number of members elected from a small territory in Southern Minnesota and distributing these members over a large territory in the central and northern portions of the state.

The Argus certainly cannot fail to see that under the present apportionment rank injustice is done to certain sections of the state. Whatever may be the status of Todd county it certainly is not right that Dodge county should have one senator for its 12,757 people, and that Beltrami, Clearwater, Red Lake and Norman counties should also have but one senator with a population of 54,682. These are the population figures of 1905, while in 1909 Dodge county has possibly lost in population and Beltrami, Clearwater, Red Lake and Norman have gained greatly. The fundamental idea of our government is equality, but the present apportionment is glaringly unequal.

A LAGGARD IN THIS.

The Minnesota legislature has resolved to keep its third house at a distance which will not interfere so much with expedition in law-making as it has in the past. Probably it is right as to this, although the legislature is simply the agent of the people in the making of laws and, whatever may be the abuses that spring from the practice, the people must not be denied the opportunity of conferring with their representatives and of informing them of their wishes.

A matter of far greater importance is the establishment of a legislative lobby, a reference department of the legislature, in charge of a fully informed officer and equipped with every facility for the supply of all the information extant with regard to all the varied matters which may come up for legislative action. Minnesota, usually a pioneer, is a laggard in this. There are excellent models for the establishment of such a department and the legislature should lose no time in equiping itself with the so-called "people's lobby."

There is no one single thing which will compare with this to ward off and to counteract the misleading suggestions of the special interest lobby, no one thing which will so expedite legislation, no one thing which will so cut down the mass of useless laws which are placed upon the statute books each session along with the work of the legislature which is really worth while.

LA FOLLETTE'S MAGAZINE.

The initial number of La Follette's Magazine has been issued by Senator Robert M. La Follette. The magazine is a weekly publication, under the immediate editorship of Senator La Follette. It contains no advertisements except its own.

La Follette's Magazine is, we judge, to be an organ of advanced reform, just as William Jennings Bryan's Commoner is an organ of advanced reform. By this we mean that it will advocate those policies generally set forth by the most liberal of the conservative wing of present day reformers. It might be better to say, that the Commoner and La Follette's Magazine are the ultra progressives of the reform party, for such organs as the Appeal to Reason, the Chicago Daily Socialist, etc., are not reformers at all, but overturners. It is revolution, not evolution, that the latter want.

"Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free" is the motto of the Wisconsin senator's new publication, and a quill in hand from whose pen point flows the words, "The Truth," forms the design of the cover. More significant still is the small front page advertisement of the leading article of the issue "The Mind of a State" by Lincoln Steffins, who says, "Cities and states are jelly-fish now. They have a life of their own but no mind. Nothing but instinct guides them. This is the beginning, then, of the brain of the state." The announcement follows that William Allen White will contribute "The Kansas Fight" next week. The whole page is big with significance of what La Follette intends to aim at with his journalistic venture.

The Herald gives Senator La Follette credit for singleness of purpose in the publication of this magazine. La Follette's editorial declaration, "We shall hit as hard as we can, giving and taking blows for the cause with joy in our hearts," might equally as well have been said by the Commoner. There will be those, have been already, who will question the purpose of such publications. There will be those who can see in them nothing but a means to further political ambitions, but while we grant to Bryan and to La Follette high political ambitions, we cannot believe that such men are moved primarily by anything but a consideration of the good they may be able to do the cause.

As to the influence of La Follette's Magazine, we cannot doubt that it will be great. The Commoner has been read, and is read, by thousands whom it is teaching to think deeply concerning the great problems of modern industrial and political life. The Commoner probably did much to bring about the nomination of Bryan for the presidency, but it did it all indirectly, and in the same indirect way it did much to accomplish the nomination of Taft and even to elect him against the editor of the Commoner. In other words, it aroused men to a demand for what they believed to be the safest and yet most progressive government. La Follette's magazine will influence the same class of readers as does the Commoner except that the one will have a largely Republican clientele and the other a largely Democratic patronage. Both will make mightily for the solution of those great questions which are so profoundly agitating our country at the present time.

COMMITTEE APPOINTMENTS.

St. Louis county has no reason to complain of the recognition it has received in the matter of committee assignments in the present session of the legislature. The county retains the same important committee posts in the senate as in the last session, while Speaker Rockne has fully recognized St. Louis county by giving it an influence in committee proportionate to its importance as one of the greatest counties in the state.

While no imporant chairmanships have fallen to the St. Louis county members, they have been assigned to committees whose work is of the highest importance to this section of the state. Representatives Congdon and Borgen are two of the twenty-five members of the committee on taxes and tax laws; the committee on mines and minerals has eleven members and Austin and Grant have places on it; Buck and Austin are members of the reapportionment committee; Graham is especially honored with a place on the judiciary committee and is the only layman on the committee; Buck is on banks and banking and on labor; Borgen is on agriculture, drainage and agricultural schools; Graham is placed on state normal schools. The St. Louis county delegation has other important assignments, but those named are the ones of greatest local importance, and the assignments make it certain that the county will be influential in the determination of matters which are of the greatest local importance.

The senate may have "maintained its dignity" but it looked a trifle red under the collar and it may have preserved its ancient courtesy, as some say, but it acted, to us, like it was mad.

Ozone is the greatest tonic known and Northern Minnesota has the finest brand on the market. Have you noticed what a spirited pedestrianism it has inspired in the past few days?

The range sorely needs the district court sessions that it asks for, and it will get them if it can present to the legislature a satisfactory solution of a problem which represents some very unusual and puzzling features.

Minnesota added 12,113 foreigners to its population last year. The state has wonderful assimilative powers, and with the exception of a few localities, is making good American flesh and bone of its recruits from other lands. With a proper advertisement of the state's resources and the consequent gain of American stock from other states the process of assimilation will go on still more rapidly and the resulting composite citizenship will be still more satisfactory.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

You don't have to go far from Duluth to find weather that is so cold that you can freeze some feature of your countenance while going to business or the postoffice in the morning.

E. J. Anderson of Tower was at the McKay last evening. He was nursing a nose from which the skin was already beginning to peel. "It was an appealing case," remarked some one, but he was promptly squelched, and then Anderson began to tell how cold it was up at Tower.

"It was 38 below zero in Tower this morning," said Mr. Anderson. "Then there was a cold wind that would cut your face like a lash of a whip. I walked from my house to my store, a distance of not over two blocks, and when I reached the store I found that I had frozen my nose. Some of the traveling men who have been making that country of late, have returned to town after drives across the country with frozen noses, ears and hands. It has been so cold up there that most men have let their horses stay in the barn when they could possibly avoid taking them out.

"The thermometer has dropped lower than the 38-below zero mark. The coldest days we had, the thermometer registered over 44 below. I have resided on the range for some time, but this was the coldest weather that I have ever seen. However, trying to keep warm, keeps the mind of man from the ills that beset him."

According to E. H. Hutchinson of Spokane, proprietor of the Northwest Mining News, who was at the McKay hotel yesterday, operations in the Western mines are very quiet at the present time. This, Mr. Hutchinson believes, is due to the quietness in all kinds of business, which has had its effect upon the business of mining.

"They are waiting for developments in the general business of the country before beginning any heavy operations of the mines, according to the belief of Mr. Hutchinson. However, he is of the opinion that the mines of the West will have a good year during the present twelve calendar months, and believes that within the course of the next year there will be heavy operations in the new mines that have been opened up in Nevada and Utah.

United States Marshal William Grimshaw of Minneapolis was a distinguished looking guest at the St. Louis yesterday. The first thing the marshal did, after registering, was to ask the clerk if he had a checker-board in the house. Upon receiving a negative reply, the marshal informed the clerk that he could send out and get one some place, even if he had to buy one, for he was in the need of a little quiet study upon the moves of the game.

Whenever Marshal Grimshaw comes to Duluth, it is the signal for a revival in the game of checkers. He generally does his playing at the board of trade. It is the secret hope and ambition of every checker player at the board to be able to defeat the veteran player from Minneapolis. But few, very few, of the checker fiends at the board can claim the distinction of having outplayed the marshal.

"Mercy! an earthquake!"

A little woman, seated in the dining room of the Lenox hotel uttered these words at luncheon time yesterday. She gave a scream and started for the door of the dining room. She really thought that something dreadful was about to happen.

The hotel was shaken by the blast from the drilling and excavating that is being done by the Wisconsin Central, across the way from the hotel. The blast was an unusually loud one and shook the hotel and rattled the windows in the casements. It had a crashing, ear-splitting sound, sufficient to frighten any woman. But to no one but the little woman, who had probably been reading of the horrors connected with the earthquake in Italy, did the loud report of the blast suggest that the earth was about to open and swallow countless numbers of victims.

People from the country are invariably cautious.

Last evening at the McKay a man came excitedly to the desk clerk. He was a big, ungainly man and he was from the country.

"I can't sleep in that room," he informed the clerk.

"What's the matter with the room?" asked the clerk.

"Room may be all right, but I wouldn't sleep in an inside room if you should give me the whole darn place," said the countryman. "Suppose there be a fire. How could I get out of that room. Probably wouldn't get out; they would just read my name among the missing. I want on outside room, where I ken hang from the eaves or window sill and drop. I've got the rope that we used to tether our pet colt with in my valise, and if there is any fire, I will tie that to the bed post and shin down it. I aint takin' no chances with fires, young feller."

THE WEATHER.

The severe cold weather has gone and milder temperatures are expected to prevail until tomorrow night, when another fall of the mercury is predicted. Some snow fell last night and today, and the flurries brought with them a rise of the mercury. The coldest place on the weather map was Minnedosa, where last night the minimum temperature was 26 degs. below zero.

A year ago today in Duluth, the weather was clear and fine. Sunrise time this morning was 7:51, and it is scheduled to set this afternoon at 4:43.

Mr. Richardson says of weather conditions:

"A barometric depression that has moved from the California coast during the past twenty-four hours, has caused warmer weather in nearly all states west of the eighty-fifth meridian, and also rain or snow from the Rocky mountains westward to the Pacific coast and throughout the central valleys, Southern states, the Lake Region and New England. The barometer is abnormally high over the latter district, attended by colder weather in the Atlantic states generally. Zero weather prevails in the Adirondacks, practically all of Canada, the Dakotas and Montana. The easterly movement of the Nevada disturbance favors snow flurries at the Head of the Lakes this afternoon, tonight and possibly Thursday, folowed by colder weather Thursday night."

Following were last night's lowest temperatures:

Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Jan. 13.—Forecast for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p .m. Thursday: Duluth, Superior and vicinity, including the Mesaba and Vermillion iron ranges—Probably snow flurries tonight and Thursday; lowest temperatures tonight will vary from zero to about 10 degs. above; colder Thursday afternoon or night; fresh westerly to northerly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecaster.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Forecasts for twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Thursday:

The Most Exact Newspaper.

New York Times: China, with all its vast population, boasts not quite two dozen daily papers, but among them are the two oldest papers in the world. The Kin-Pan used to be considered by Europeans the oldest paper, but it has been issued a mere thousand years. The Tsing-Pao, or Peking News, was first published 50 years before the Norman conquest, and has been issued without intermission for nearly 1,400 years. The Tsing-Pao has the appearance of a yellow backed magazine of twenty-four octavo pages, each page containing seven columns, consisting of seven "characters."

Two editions are published—an edition de luxe for the court and the upper classes at a cost of 24 cents a month, and an edition inferior in paper and printing, costing 16 cents a month. It has a circulation of about 10,000, and is really the Times of China, chronicling the movements of the emperor and of the court, and printing the ministerial reports. It is probably the most exact newspaper in the world; the punishment for an error in printing was, until recently at least, instant death!

A Thousand Rabbits.

Kansas City Star: One thousand rabbits from Western Kansas were distributed in Kansas City by the Salvation Army yesterday. One thousand rabbits sounds like a big substraction from the source of supply in Kansas. But will it be attended by any visible effect? Possibly—but certainly not the effect of depletion. While this may sound paradoxical, experience has shown that the more rabbits you take away the more there will be left. This strange result is, of course, quite singular to rabbits. They are believed to be the only animals in all the wide, wide world that multiply through extermination. This makes rabbits a very comfortable article of diet, since you know that when you help to devour one of these animals the loss will be made up with an increase. Nature's law is, under all circumstances that two rabbits shall grow where one grew before—and in Kansas, even three or four.

Extend Primary Law.

Sioux City Tribune: Governor Johnson, himself the beneficiary in three gubernatorial terms of the refusal of a Republican legislature to make the primary include all state offices, urges the legislature in his message to extend the method to include all offices. Among a certain class of Republican politicians in that state, supported by some newspapers, there is a movement to repeal the primary law and substitute a convention system composed of delegates chosen at primaries. Governor Johnson, during the campaign, very plainly said that he would veto any law changing the principle of the primary method.

The Washington Muddle.

Chicago Daily Journal: The situation at Washington is aggravating to the people of the United States and amusing to other nations. By a vote of 212 to 35 the house of representatives lays the president's message on the table, and by 47 to 14 the senate decides to investigate the president's connection with the purchase of Tennessee Coal & Iron by the Steel trust.

Various gentlemen in both houses apply strong terms of condemnation to the president, and the president hands out a few letters which will need considerable explaining on the part of Mr. Tillman.

Public business is at a standstill, while our chief executive and our lawmakers air their personal grievances and devise new indignities to heap on each other. There is very much of the opera bouffe in the whole business, and the people are mighty tired of it.

The sooner congress gets down to work the better everybody outside of Washington will be satisfied. The United States is not Nicaragua or Venezuela, and its citizens dislike their government to be a perpetual laughing stock in the eyes of Europe.

Certainly!

Pittsburg Dispatch: Noting that a Michigan man has been sent to jail for stealing a 2-cent stamp, the Chicago Record-Herald says: "How that man must be despised in Pittsburg!" Certainly! Our councilmen who, according to the allegations of the detectives, were fixed with street car tickets will despise him for being caught at it.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1884.

•••The following marriage licenses have been issued by the clerk of the court during the past week: George P. Anderson and Louisa Berquist; G. W. Davis and Florence A. Irvin; Ole Johansen and Amelia O. Christensen; Peter Arimond and Louisa Watzel; Martin Esp and Elizabeth Winberg; John A. Erickson and Sophia Mall; Joseph Shelly and Ellen Broughton; John E. Dahl and Pauline Peterson.

•••Indications are that Agate Bay will be one of the most important points on the north shore within a few years. On the completion of the Duluth & Iron Range road to Vermilion it will become a very busy shipping point for iron ore. Smelting works will be erected and other enterprises inaugurated. Duluth merchants are already appreciating the fact. H. F. Williamson already has a branch clothing store there, and N. Youngblood & Co. will open a grocery and provision store in the spring.

•••Miss Jennie Staples has been appointed a teacher in the public schools, taking the place of Miss Daniels, who resigned prior to the vacation.

•••John Bradley, who has been in partnership with Jeffrey in the butcher business, has purchased the latter's interest and will run the business alone.

•••Prof. J. B. Carpenter has succeeded in organizing a musical class, the first session of which was held today in the Methodist church.

•••Large quantities of wood is being brought into town from Fond du Lac and is selling rapidly at $5 per cord. It can be purchased there at $2.50 per cord.

•••Fred Ingles and Sam Grierson are fishing at Lester river. Yesterday they caught with hooks over seventy pounds of trout.

•••Hart and Orrin B. Loomis, who have been connected with the Times, left last night for Preston, Minn., where their father has purchased a newspaper for them.

•••Murd Matheson's saloon at Rice's Point has been closed by his creditors.

•••Some time ago Col. Eaton, the special agent of the United States land department, reported to the government that there was not an acre of arable land in all the counties of St. Louis, Carlton, Cook, Lake and Itasca. At the time it created a good deal of just indignation, and the farmers living in those counties are still sore over the matter. A farmer from Hermantown, who was in Duluth yesterday, said he had as fine a piece of land for raising any kind of crop as could be found in the whole Northwest, and his neighbors were just as well situated as he was. He roundly scored Eaton's slanderous report.

GOVERNOR AND LEGISLATURE.

Madison Independent Press: The legislature of Minnesota is in session and the capital of this state will be the camping ground of the lobbyist and grafter for the next ninety days.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: John A. Johnson was inaugurated governor of Minnesota for the third time at noon Wednesday. Minnesota is one of the bigger states of the Union and it has a governor that is making the state bigger all the time.

Bemidji Sentinel: This cold weather should soon let up, with that hot wave due from St. Paul, where the solons are congregated. They say things are warming up down there.

Ortonville Herald-Star: The legislature and the governor quarreled a little about the doorkeepers and spittoon cleaners to start with, but the governor won out, as he should. To the victors belong the spoils, spittoons and all.

Brainerd Daily Dispatch: A short session of the legislature is predicted. If an adjournment is taken as soon as the real work of the session is done and that work is taken up at once, sixty days will suffice to complete it.

Mankato Daily Free Press: The passless legislator is now in full bloom in St. Paul.

Litchfield Independent: The coming session of the legislature will have a "people's lobby" to keep tab on the members and see that they stay true to their oaths and campaign pledges. Now let there be a delegation selected to watch the people's lobby and see that they attend to their knitting, and the legislative woodchucks will be headed off—some of them.

Lake Crystal Union: Governor Johnson in his address, "The Majesty of the Law," delivered in New Jersey, said that he did not believe that the infliction of the death penalty for a capital crime acted as a deterrment to law breakers. Nor anybody else that believes in humanity. The taking of a life does not restore the one taken, but adds another to the list of the number dead. The best, the most human way, is to confine the one who takes the life of a human being, to send the murderer to prison for life.

Walker Pilot: The state legislators started in Tuesday to work out their ninety days of "hard labor," which they were sentenced by popular vote early last November.

Thief River Press: The legislature held its opening session on Tuesday. The chances for reapportionment look rather poor. Too many aspiring statesmen from small counties would lose their present jobs to make the idea appeal strongly to the aforesaid statesmen.

For Free Trade With Canada.

Prof. William G. Sumner in the New York Herald: Whenever a revision is attempted it can rationally begin by admitting Canada into complete equality with ourselves in the same market. The line across North America is more absolutely senseless than any other. The "pauper labor" and other arguments here all fail. The two populations run together, are closely alike and work under similar conditions. The New Yorker trades to the south absolutely without restraint; to the north he is restricted by the great "system." The men of 1776 tried hard to force Canada to join in the revolt. Imagine the calamity if they had succeeded and had brought Canada inside of our constitutional prohibition of import duties between members of the confederation. The fact that the Dominion is still in some sense subject to Great Britain is only an historical accident. Why should the two states try to keep apart by taxation and imagine that they can prosper in that way better than they could by coalescing economically?

There are in the Dominion great stores of coal, lumber and metals which we need and could use. They are shut away from us by taxes which are a derision of common sense. If we ever take up the tariff determined to serve our own interests rationally, we shall brush away all these hindrances and leave individuals to produce and trade as they see fit.

The same arguments applies equally to all other parts of America. Nearly all of it is inferior to ourselves in economic development and industrial power. It is a grand market which we have renounced in our attempts to get our "system" complete against Europe. We went to war with Spain in 1898, and were drawn on to dream of Oriental trade. We are spending millions to try to get it, and to build a navy with which to defend it. There is more and better trade to be had with Canada, without expense, by repealing taxes.

The Governor's Message.

Hibbing Mesaba Ore: Governor Johnson's message to the state legislature was exhaustive.

Exhaustive, because Minnesota is an exhaustive state, and its needs are many.

But the governor was not tiring in his review.

It was one of the most able state documents ever issued by a state governor, and was read with absorbing interest by every person who is interested in what we firmly believe to be the greatest stat in the Union.

Gratifying sections of the governor's message were those that referred to the rich and growing "Northern" Minnesota, and the urgency with which the governor pressed the needs of the growing and rapidly-developing part of the state.

The message shows that the governor is the ruler of the people of his state, and that he wants all parts of the state to get everything that is due.

And he realizes that attention, long overdue, must be given to the northern part of the state.

If the legislature carries out the governor's recommendations, Minnesota will have gained a great deal, and as no unreasonable demand is made, it is likely the legislature will follow the way pointed out by the governor.

MEANT TO BE FUNNY.

New York Herald: Dashaway—How much money has Miss Spitter got?

Cleverton—I don't know. I've never been enough in love with her to find out.

Life: A 5-year-old boy on hearing grace asked for the first time at breakfast, gravely remarked: "I only say my prayers at night. That is the dangerous time."

Philadelphia Inquirer: "Professor," said a senior, trying to be pathetic at parting, "I am indebted to you for all I know."

"Pray don't mention such a trifle!" was the reply.

Boston Transcript: Bridegroom (in church)—Good heavens I've forgotten the minister's fee.

Best Man—That's all right. We'll send the ushers around with the collection boxes.

Wall Street News: Young Parks (grumpily)—I never met a man yet who was on the dead level.

Old Marks—My boy, the man on the dead level is only to be found in the cemetery.

Cleveland Leader: "What a masculine creature she is!"

"I hadn't noticed it. What has she done?"

"I saw her give the soda clerk a nickel when she had five pennies in her purse."

New York Sun: The judge decided not to pop the question to Maud Muller. "I am lacking in the social philosophy of the twentieth century," he explained. Wotting little of such things Whittier fixed up a different version.

Illustrated Bits: Miss Oldmaid (cultivated pianist)—Yes, I always play classic music—Mozart, Beethoven and Hadyn, you know.

Little Girl—You're just like my mamma. She don't play anything but the pieces that was new when she was young.

Philadelphia Record: Nell—Mrs. Buggins says she hates to have her husband out of her sight.

Belle—He must be a very good husband or a very bad one.

Puck: Mulligan—The byes say ye licked poor Casey. Shure, ye niver hurt iny man's feelin's.

Harrigan—He's a snake in the grass The blackguard referred to me as his contimperary, and I'll be the contimperary to no man livin'.

Life: The Mother—My little boy was rude, I know. I am afraid he is awfully spoiled.

The Stranger—Don't mention it madam! It is better that he should be spoiled than his young life be embittered by the thought that he is different from all other American children.

Philadelphia Press: "I see," said Mrs. Starvem, "that a certain scientist claims we'll soon get a palatable food from wood—"

"Well," growled the cranky boarder, "it seems impossible to get it out of board."

Ally Sloper's: Jack—In the Oriental world a girl never sees her intended husband until she is married to him.

Flossy—How odd! In this part of the world she seldom sees him afterwards.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Bad to Worse.

He told himself,
"I think I'll go
And see a moving Picture show;"
He went and found
That he had sat
Right in behind a Great big hat;
"Lady, will you Remove your lid?"
He asked, and lo!
The lady did!
"What!" said he, "are Things what they seem,
Or is this whole thing
Just a dream!"
He looked again,
Then had a fit—
Stuck on her head
With hoops on it
A Psyche knot
Stood up so tall
He could not see
The stage at all.

BRIBER C. S. CAMERON IS CONVICTED IN PITTSBURG; HONOR CHEAP AT $70,000

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 13.—Charles S. Cameron, president of the Tube City Railroad company, who has been on trial several days charged with conspiracy and misdemeanor, in attempting to bribe Former City Councilman William A. Martin in connection with the passage of an ordinance granting a franchise to the Tube City railroad, was yesterday afternoon found guilty as indicted. The jury was out fifteen minutes.

Attorneys for Cameron gave notice of an appeal and the accused was held in $20,000 bail, an increase of $10,000 in which he was originally held.

Former Councilman W. A. Martin, is serving in the Western penitentiary for accepting a bribe, and C. R. Richardson, a broker, who is awaiting sentence for his part in the Tube City railway scandal, were the principal witnesses at the trial yesterday.

A declaration by Martin that he was honest in selling his honor to Cameron and that he considered it very cheap at $70,000, was the statement with which Martin concluded his testimony. When asked if he would not have had to distribute the money among some of his brother councilmen, Martin naively said that perhaps he could have fooled them as Cameron fooled him.

EX-GOVERNOR FOLK'S BROTHER IS ASSAILED; PROHIBITION WINS

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 13.—At 5:02 yesterday afternoon senate bill No. 1, providing for the prohibition of the sale of liquor within four miles of any school house in Tennessee, passed third and final reading in the senate. The vote was 20 to 13. The house passed the bill today.

The debate preceding the passage of the measure was replete with sensational incidents, one of which was ex-Governor John I. Cox' speech in defense of his record and his present attitude toward temperance legislation. Another was changes made by Senator Dancy Fort of Montgomery county, of the Anti-Saloon league.

Fort charged that Folk had threatened to ruin him religiously as well as politically, if he voted against Prohibition and further charged that Folk was attempting to carry out his threat by publishing in his paper an insinuation to the effect that Fort was an infidel. Folk is brother of ex-Governor Folk of Missouri.

INJURED IN CLASH IN FACTORY STRIKE.

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 13.—There was another clash between the strikers the strikebreakers at the Thomas H. Kelly factory yesterday, which resulted in injuries on both sides and the removal to the hospital of Charles Batto, a strikebreaker, who was reported to be suffering from a broken skull.

Another victim was Dominick Pikisich a striker, who received a stab in the side and later pointed out George Peter, a strikebreaker, as his assailant. Peter was arrested and held in $2,000 bail.

COMMITTEE SENDS MONEY

Funds for Relief of Earthquake Victims Are Forwarded to New York.

The sum of $891 has been collected for the earthquake sufferers of Italy by the Duluth Italian relief committee. Yesterday ahe money was remitted to the Italian Relief Society of New York.

It is believed that more money will be subscribed by the citizens of Duluth, but the imperative need of funds by the stricken people of the Italian cities prompted the members of the committee to forward the money at once to New York.

Rev. J. Zarill, pastor of St. Peter's church, and Capt. A. G. Fiskett of the police department, who have had the handling of the money, sent a draft for the amount.

The following letter has been prepared by the Duluth Italian relief committee, expressing its appreciation for the prompt aid offered by the citizens of Duluth:

"To our friends of Duluth: We wish to express our very sincere thanks to all the people of Duluth in general and to the contributors to our relief fund in particular, for the sympathy shown to us and the interest manifested in the terrible calamity which has befallen several of the beautiful cities, towns and provinces of our native country, and which has made a large part of what has been called the garden of Europe no more than a pitiful heap of ruins and desolation. Besides the people of our own nationality, we went to see just a few friends among the American people, and all answered to our appeal willingly and generously. We could surely collect several hundred dollars more if we had called upon all the business men and others of the city. We did not expect such an amount as we have sent when we first started to collect. We only wanted to give a liberal sum, as we felt it our duty to contribute to the funds of our brother sufferers. We wanted to do what would be regarded as our full share.

"We wish, on this occasion, in the name of the committee and of all the Italians in Duluth, to most emphatically state that we have been indeed deeply touched by the grand work of humanity accomplished by the great president of this nation, by the noble generosity of congress and by the general and unanimous sympathy of all the American people.

"We, the sons of Italy, the country of Columbus and America, the two great Italians so much related to America, feel on this occasion to be more proud to be naturalized citizens of this, the greatest and most generous of all countries, and to be able to unite our work and our efforts to the work and the efforts of the other people for the higher greatness and welfare of all.

"Again we wish to say, from the depths of our hearts, to our friends of Duluth, 'thank you.'

"Signed for the Italian relief committee of Duluth by: Rev. J. Zarilli, A. G. Fiskett, P. Mainella, P. Summers, Eugene Fiskett, V. P. Mainella, E. Biella, Ralph Fisket."

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

WILL PLAY IN DULUTH

Artie O'Dea Will Manage 1909 Zenith Club, It Is Said.

Favors the Independent Idea; Negotiations on for Players.

"Artie" O'Dea may captain the Duluth baseball team of 1909.

"Artie" was down some three weeks ago from his farm near Beaver Bay, and while he wouldn't talk baseball, it has since leaked out that his presence in the city was the result of a letter asking him to appear before the local manager and show cause why he should not manage the Zenith City club.

It is said all that stood in the way of closing the deal at the time of his visit, was the salary. Artie is a good man for the job; he knows it, and he wants all that is coming to him when the end of each month comes around. It is stated that this difficulty has been overcome, and that he will be down when the snow leaves, to help out with the local arrangements.

O'Dea has made good in a number of places, showing that his success in Duluth some years ago, was not accidental.

Popular with players and fans alike, with a faculty of getting close to the men and getting the best there is in them, not a slow player by any means himself, a man who knows baseball from the ground up, one of the best pinch hitters in the business, he would again, no doubt, give Duluth a first-class article of ball, and the announcement that he will likely be seen on the Duluth diamond again this year, will be good news to the fans.

DATES SET FOR CIRCUIT RACES

W. W. Collier of Detroit Driving Club Elected Chairman of Stewards.

New York, Jan. 13.—After a lengthy session here yesterday, the stewards and representatives of Grand Circuit Tracks selected places and assigned dates for the important harness meetings of the coming season.

The circuit and dates follows: Detroit, July 26-30; Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 2-6; North Randall, Ohio, (Cleveland), Aug. 9-13; Buffalo, (Port Erie), Aug. 16-20; Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Aug. 23-27; Long Branch, N. J., Aug. 30 to Sept. 3; Hartford, Conn., Sept. 6-10; Syracuse, (New York State Fair), Sept. 13-17; Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 20 to Oct. 1.

A notable change in the big line was the outgoing of the famous Readville Track near Boston, which had been in the circuit for a quarter of a century. The track has been withdrawn from racing.

John M. Johnson, president of the Readville track, was president of the circuit stewards and his retirement caused the election of new officers. W. W. Collier, head of the Detroit Driving club, was chosen chairman of the stewards, and Harry D. Sheppard of Columbus was elected secretary to replace A. H. Moore of Providence.

Several matters pretaining to the affairs of the Grand Circuit were left to be discussed and settled at an adjourned meeting to be held in Buffalo about the middle of next month.

SALARY LIMIT IN THREE I LEAGUE

Clubs Will Not be Allowed to Spend More Than $1,600.

Davenport, Iowa, Jan. 13.—Directors of the Three I League Baseball clubs yesterday fixed the salaries of individual players at $150, and of clubs at $1,600. The only protest to this limitation came from the Springfield, Ill., club.

It was decided yesterday to rescind the action taken recently in Chicago, looking to a schedule of 126 games for the coming season, and a schedule for 140 games was ordered prepared. The season is to open on May 6 and close on Sept. 16.

The next annual meeting of the league was set for Chicago, on the second Tuesday in October.

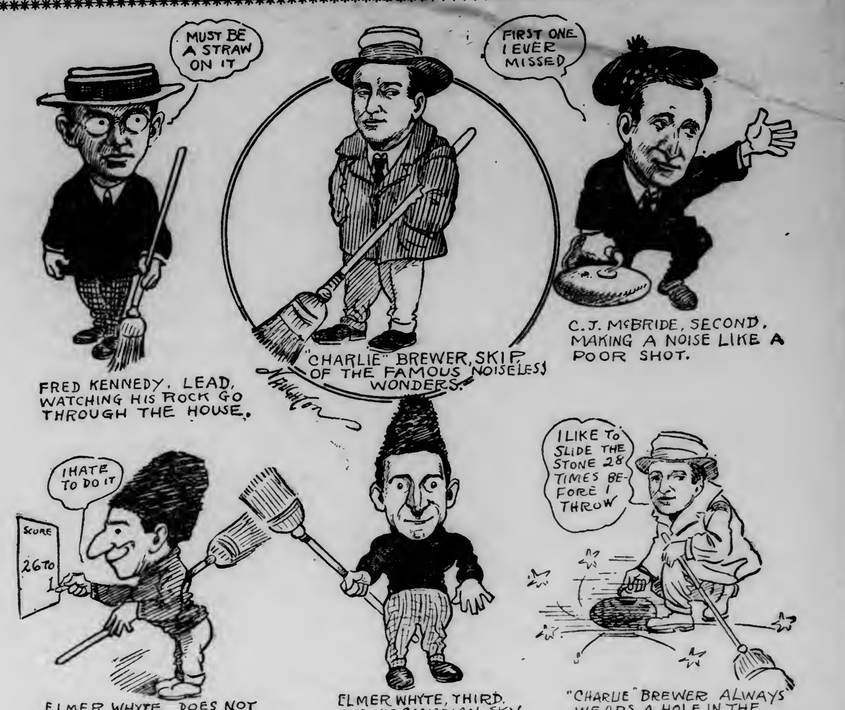

President M. H. Sexton of the league announced, before adjournment, that he would insist on a strict observance of the salary limit rule, and on all other regulations of the league.

WILMOT TO COACH GOPHERS AGAIN

Old Minneapolis Star Is Wanted by University Baseball Team.

Minneapolis, Jan. 13.—Walter Wilmot will be re-engaged as baseball coach at the University of Minnesota within the next two weeks, provided that he and the athletic board can make satisfactory financial arrangements. Negotiations have been quietly carried on for several weeks, and at this afternoon's meeting of the university board the situation was scheduled for a lengthy discussion. It is the intention of the board to have the matter settled this month, previous to the annual election, so that the coach and candidates will be able to make an early start.

The board is perfectly willing to secure the services of the veteran Minneapolis baseball player for the season of 1909, and Wilmot is perfectly willing to take advantage of the board's offer. The two cannot agree on the salary that is to be attached to the office, as Wilmot is standing out for twice his last year's salary. The varsity board is unwilling to agree to such an arrangement, and has also entered into negotiations with Lew Drill, formerly of Hamline, and now a prospective club manager and owner.

Those close to the situation at the university, however, are of the opinion that Wilmot will finally land the place, and that both parties will compromise on the financial end of the venture. Wilmot coached the varsity last year, and put out a winning team that swept the boards from one end of the season to the other. The students, both players and rooters, took a great liking to their new coach, and the latter was greatly pleased with his men and the treatment accorded him. The friendliness developed last year makes it probable that both sides will be willing to get together on the proposition in order to continue last year's pleasant relations.

With a good coach Minnesota can easily take the championship this year. All of last year's team will be back except four men—Capt. Boyle, Dretchko, the southpaw who will go south with the Minneapolis team this spring, Caldwell and Borrowman. To take the place of these men the varsity has a large list of strong players who were last year ineligible. Among these are McGovern, Johnston and Pettijohn. "Shorty" Ernst will captain the 1909 squad.

SENIORS DEFEAT THE FRESHMEN

Upper Classmen Win Basketball Game by Score of 32 to 24.

By a score of 32 to 24, the High School Seniors defeated the Freshmen, in the first game of basketball to be played this year in the interclass league.

The game was well played and was witnessed by quite a crowd of interested classmen. The freshmen were unable to do much in the first half, but in the second took a brace and played the upper classmen off their feet.

The lineup follows:

McGinnity Drops Out.

New York, Jan. 13.—Joe McGinnity, the "Iron Man," will not be on the Giants' pitching staff next season, Manager McGraw having asked all league clubs for waivers on McGinnity's services. If all clubs waive claims to the pitcher, he must go to some minor league team. McGinnity last season won eleven games of the eighteen he pitched.

HOCKEY LEAGUE FALLS THROUGH

Lack of Interest Prevents Amateurs From Furnishing Good Sport.

It now looks as though the hockey league idea, which looked so promising a week or so ago, would fall through.

Representatives of only two teams showed up at the meeting scheduled to take place at the store of the Northern Hardware company last night, and the schedule that was to have been arranged, is still unformed.

Lack of interest seems to be the main reason for the failure of the league. There was a handful of enthusiasts and they tried to put the idea through, but the proper interest could not be aroused and the object has been all but given up.

TOURNAMENT IS POSTPONED

Duluth Riders Will Enter the Superior Event Sunday.

The ski tournament that had been arranged for Chester hill, Sunday afternoon, has been postponed by the officials of the Duluth Ski club until Jan. 24, because the Superior riders had already made plans for a tournament Sunday, and in order to make it a success they wished the Duluth riders to enter there.

There will be a tournament at Chippewa Falls Jan. 24, but as the Duluth riders have visited the place once this year, it is not likely that any of them will attend.

Great plans are being made for the big national tournament to be held in Eau Claire. Practically every ski rider of note in the city will attend, and it is an almost sure bet that at least a few of the prizes will be brought back to the Zenith City.

Chester hill has been put in fair shape by hauling snow, and the riders are out daily practising for the big Eau Claire event.

ONE MAN IN CONTROL.

Elected President, Secretary, Treasurer of Ohio and Pennsy Leagues.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 13.—President Charles Morton, of the Ohio & Pennsylvania baseball league, was deposed at a meeting of team presidents here, yesterday. Sam Wright, formerly manager of the Youngstown team, was chosen president, secretary and treasurer of the league. This action, which places Wright in almost supreme control, is expected to restore harmony in the league.

DULUTH RINKS SHOWING UP WELL

A. H. Smith's Quartet Has Yet to Meet Defeat.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 13.—The first three events in the Northwestern bonspiel are now well on their way the competition in the St. Paul Jobbers' trophy having reached the third draw, where the survivors have dwindled down to eight rinks.

The Duluth competition has reached the second draw and the Minneapolis Curling Club trophy event has gone through the preliminary and the first draw.

In the St Paul Jobbers' competition, three local rinks, those of Dunbar, Cameron and Ordway, have reached the jewelry class and are assured of a prize.

Carson and Rochon of Winnipeg, A. H. Smith of Duluth and Bob Dunbar and Evan Rees of St. Paul, are the only rinks which have yet to meet defeat.

Today's play will probably bring together some of the strongest rinks and the results of the games will have great bearing upon the final outcome of the matches.

Whalen of Fort William was the first to break into the jewelry class, having gained that honor in the St. Paul Jobbers' event.

The scores of yesterday's games follows:

S.S.S. NATURE'S CURE FOR BLOOD POISON

S. S. S. is known as Nature's Cure for Contagious Blood Poison because it is prepared entirely from the blood purifying and healing extracts of roots, herbs and barks taken directly from the natural forests of the land. It does not contain the least particle of strong mineral ingredients, and is so prepared as to aid in the upbuilding of every portion of the system, while driving Contagious Blood Poison from the blood. No unpleasant effects ever follow the use of S. S. S., such as stomach troubles, dyspepsia, mercurial rheumatism, etc., as is so often the case where other medicines are used. S. S. S. goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and gently but surely, drives out every trace of the disease, cleanses and purifies the circulation, and by its fine vegetable tonic effects, assists the system to rapidly overcome the ravages of the disease, and regain its natural healthful condition. S. S. S. does not cover up or hide the symptoms for awhile, to break out later, but so thoroughly does it remove the cause that no signs of the trouble ever return. S. S. S., Nature's cure, is the surest and safest remedy for Contagious Blood Poison. Home Treatment Book with valuable suggestions and information. and any medical advice free to all who write.

SOUR FOOD THE CAUSE

All Stomach Trouble Is Due to Fermentation of Food.

Rid Yourself Forever of Misery From a Weak Stomach.

If your meals don't tempt you, or you feel bloated after eating and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something for a sour stomach and Indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body, you must rid your Stomach of poisons, excessive acid and stomach gas which sours your entire meal—interferes with digestion and causes so many sufferers of Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Nauseous breath, and stomach trouble of all kind: Putrefying the intetines and digestive canal, causing such misery as biliousness, Contipation, Griping, etc. Your case is no different—you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name; your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any Pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking one Triangule that Fermentation and Sour Stomach is causing the misery of Indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble Catarrh of the Stomach, Nervousness or Gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at your Pharmacist any time you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will purify the sourest and most acid Stomach within five minutes, and digest promptly, without any fuss or discomfort all of any kind of food you could eat.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

IS SLASHED BY ACCUSED

John Coleman, Nymore, Minn. Saloonkeeper, Cut by Peter Palmer.

Injured Man Accused Assailant of Being Intimate With Wife.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the result of a quarrel in a Nymore saloon late Monday night, John Coleman, a saloon keeper is at the St. Anthony's hospital, with a gash in his throat, and Peter Palmer, his assailant, is lodged in the county jail awaiting a hearing on the charge of assault with dangerous weapons.

Accounts differ as to how the affair took place, but it is asserted that Coleman and Palmer had an altercation, in Coleman's saloon, Coleman accusing Palmer of being too intimate with his wife. Just as to who was the aggressor in the mixup is not plain, but during the melee Coleman's throat was badly cut with a knife.

Palmer was taken into custody by Marshal Glidden of Nymore and brought to Bemidji and locked up in the city jail, being taken to the county jail later.

Palmer is a millwright in the employ of the Bemidji Lumber company.

Coleman's physicians state that while the wound is a very painful one, it is not necessarily dangerous.

TAKES REVENGE ON HORSE.

Disgruntled Employe of Horse's Owner is Suspected.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the horses, owned by Mike Liston, a gardener, who lives on the Minnesota Point, was found dead in the barn a few nights ago, and investigation showed that the death was due to poisoning.

Immediately Mr. Liston suspected that the poisoning was the result of design and not accident and took measures to see whether his suspicions were correct or not. It was found that one Joseph Kalcik had purchased some paris green at the drug store the day before, and it was also found that he had been seen near Liston's some time before the horse was poisoned. Kalcik worked for Liston last spring and when he resigned his place, claimed that Liston did not pay him all he had coming. Suit was instituted in court and a judgment was found in favor of Kalcik.

Mr. Liston thinking that bitterness had been caused in the trying of the suit, was an incentive for such a deed, coupled together with the evidence he had secured against Kalcik, deemed he had sufficient cause and swore out a warrant for his former employe's arrest, but Kalcik left suddenly and was seen taking the eastbound train shortly after the horse was found dead. The police are hot after him and it is thought that he will be located.

TO FIGHT POWDER TRUST.

Pluto Dynamite Factory Near Ishpeming Soon to Start.

Ishpeming, Mich., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—After having been in course of construction for the past several months, the mills of the Pulto Lumber company, near here, are about to begin the manufacture of dynamite. The plant comprises some twenty-five buildings, and is equipped with the latest improved machinery and appliances, some of which ave been imported from Europe.

The Pulto company is a Pennsylvania corporation and is a competitor of the so-called DuPont trust. It has a number of mills in the East. For the most part the product of the Ishpeming plant will be used in the mines in the Lake Superior region and districts further west.

DEPOT OF WOOD.

Cloquet Fears Its Hopes Are to be Blasted.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan .13.—Special to The Herald.)—There is keen disappointment here over the undenied report that the long-expected new union depot to be erected by the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads is to be of wood instead of brick or stone, as had been expected. Many see in the announcement of a wooden structure a desire on the part of the railroads to comply with the orders of the railway commission in as cheap a manner as possible, and there is more or less "kicking" around town already.

DOLLAR BAY WOODMEN INSTALL NEW OFFICERS.

Dollar Bay, Mich., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Woodside camp No. 2751, Modern Woodmen of America, at a special meeting last night, installed the following officers: V. C., George H. Kitto; W. A., Thomas Donlon; banker, Paul R. Pearce; clerk, Henry Warmington; escort, Joseph Treglown; watchman, Joseph Fillion; physician, Dr. E. T. Abrams; managers, William Oppenheimer, John C. Schulte and Ray Eldred.

DIES ON PLEASURE TRIP.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Bachellor received a telegram from W. P. Locke dated at Spokane, Wash., bringing the sad news of Mrs. Locke's death at that place on Saturday. The telegram stated that the time of his arrival in Brainerd with the remains was uncertain, and the message gave no particulars as to the cause of death. Mr. and Mrs. Locke left Brainerd a few weeks ago on a pleasure trip through Colorado, Washington and other Western points.

DAVIS RESIDENCE RAZED.

Former Home of Minnesota Senator is Torn Down.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cushman K. Davis house, Laurel avenue and Farrington avenue one of the pioneer residences on St. Anthony hill, and the home of the late Minnesota senator, has been torn down by its new owner, W. C. Riley. There was practically nothing but a shell of a building left, the building having been badly damaged by fire twice in the past year. Mr. Riley bought the home for $12,000 from Mrs. Hunter Doll, the wife of Senator Davis, shortly before her death.

ARREST EXPRESS CLERK.

Alleged to Have Made Away With Money Package.

Dickinson, N. D., Jan. 13.—Fred Kosteleckey, clerk in the local express office of the Northern Pacific at this place, has been arrested for the theft of $2,000, taken from an express messenger last week. The money was being shipped from the Merchants' State bank at Richmardton to the First National bonk of Dickinson, and in the absence of Agent George Kilmer, who was at dinner, Kosteleckey receipted for and took the money. Two days later he went to Glendive, Mont., and about this time it developed that the package of money had not reached its destination. Kosteleckey's arrest followed, and finally he admitted taking the package and going to Glendive with it, where he claimed to have been robbed. J. H. Bierbower, a Northern Pacific inspector, took Kosteleckey back to Glendive, and at last reports only part of the money had been found.

FOUR IN ONE GRAVE.

Tot Victims of Fire Near Rice Lake Buried Together.

Rice Lake, Wis., Jan. 13.—Four little victims of the fire tragedy at the home of Christ Lee, near Rice Lake, Wednesday, were buried together.

Of the survivors, one little girl is totally blind and so severely burned that pieces of her flesh come away with surgical dressings and the other is dying of pneumonia contracted in the long march through snow and cold against a strong wind to shelter.

Lee is without a cent, has no relatievs here, and purses are being made up for him.

LEGISLATOR EARNS MILEAGE.

Walks Seventy-Seven Miles to the State Capital.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 13.—H. E. Roethe, the assemblyman who achieved some notoriety two years ago by walking from his home in Fennimore to Madison, has duplicated his achievement. In fact, he rather prides himself on beating his own record. Mr. Roethe started from home before daylight Sunday morning and waked to Edmonds, twenty miles, before breakfast. Then he renewed his hike and reeled off fifty miles in all before he stopped for the night at Blue Mound. Tuesday, with mercury hovering around zero, he walked twenty-seven miles, reaching Madison in the afternoon.

LUCKY OSHKOSH MAN.

Florian Lambert Will Take Electoral Vote to Washington.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 13.—The thirteen presidential electors chosen at the general election in Wisconsin last November met in the governor's office Monday and formally cast their vote for Judge W. H. Taft for president and James S. Sherman for vice president.

Florian Lampert of Oshkosh, one of the electors, was chosen to carry a certified copy of the election to the president of the United States senate at Washington. A second copy will be mailed to the same official, and a third will be sent to Judge A. Sanborn of Madison, United States judge of this judical district.

CREAMERY IS DESTROYED.

Butter Factory in Wright County Goes Up in Smoke.

Clearwater, Minn., Jan. 13.—The Crescent creamery here is in ruins as the result of a fire a few nights ago. The flames were discovered late in the night. Before help could be secured the fire was beyond control and the building burned to the ground. For a time it was feared that other buildings adjoining the creamery would be burned, but they were saved by a favorable wind.

The origin of the fire is unknown. It is believed, however, that the blaze was started from a defective chimney.

McKENZIE STILL SICK.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Alex McKenzie is still seriously ill at the Merchant's hotel in St. Paul, where he has been under the care of a trained nurse for several weeks. His condition is reported considerably improved, although he is still inaccesable to visitors. Mr. McKenzie's trouble is a serious affection of the throat which will take a long time to cure.

ST. PAUL BANKS MAKE FEW OFFICIAL CHANGES.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The stockholders of the local national banks held their annual mettings yesterday. Few changes were made in the lists of officers and directors. All the banks reported the payment, Jan 1 of generous and unreduced dividends.

Last in Big Blizzard.

Minot, N. D., Jan. 13.—J. White, who resides on a claim in Ward county, was caught in a blizzard and lost his way. He turned his horses lose, lay down in the snow and coveverd himself with blankets. For two days he had nothing to eat or drink. When the storm subsided he made his way to a house.

His feet were badly frozen.

MOREY IS DEGENERATE.

So Declares Former Teacher of Accused Brainerd Youth.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ralph Morey, the 10-year-old boy on trial in the district court on the charge of manslaughter in having killed John Bushway, another boy, Nov. 7, last, is a degenerate, according to the testimony of Miss Gallagher, his former teacher. The woman testified to various peculiarities in the youth, going to substantiate the tehory of the defense that young Morey did not realize the enormity of his crime because of his warped mental faculties. She contended on cross-examination that the boy was mentally inferior in many ways for one of his age. The case will probably be given to the jury late today or tomorow.

FAMILY WELL REPRESENTED.

Husband and Wife Again Installed as Heads of Organization.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The R. H. Carr post, No. 174, G. A. R., and the Maj. Wilkinson circle, No. 51, Ladies of the G. A. R., have held a joint installation of officers.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Phillippi were respectively the installing officers of the post and the circle. After the ceremony an excellent musical program was rendered and a social session held. The newly installed officers of R. H. Carr post are: H. W. Bailey, commander; T. H. Pendergast, S. V. C.; H. P. Martin, J. V. P.; J. M. Fuller, adjutant; J. M. Martin, quartermaster; T. J. Martin, chaplain; E. N. Henderson, O. D.; R. Eastwood, O. G.

The following eleven members of the Maj. Wilkinson circle were installed as officers: Mrs. H. W. Bailey, president; Mrs. J. M. Martin, S. V. P.; Mrs. T. J. Martin, J. V. P.; Mrs. S. C. Bailey, treasurer; Mrs. A. A. Carter, secretary; Mrs. E. E. Ellis, chaplain; Mrs. William Carlisle, conductor; Mrs. Bertha Hantosh, assistant conductor; Mrs. G. P. Irish, guard; Mrs. E. A. Parker, assistant guard; Mrs. I. Peart, organist.

Mr. Bailey is now entering upon his eighth term as commander of the local post and Mrs. Bailey was re-elected for the tenth time as head of the Ladies' circle.

EXPOSURE IS FATAL.

Anoka, Minn., Jan. 13.—Otto Wicklund died from exposure recently near his home north of Bethel. He had been in Bethel during the day and on the way to his home, which is in Isanti county, got off the road, and when his body was found the next day was dead from cold. The funeral was held from his home.

Sues For "Dan Patch" Commission.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Robert B. Graham is suing M. W. Savage and the Minneapolis, St. Paul, Rochester & Dubuque Traction company, the "Dan Patch line," in the district court of Hennepin county, to collect commissions he alleges are due him for the sale of the traction company's stock.

To Raise Potatoes Wholesale.

Escanaba, Mich., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A novel project here and one that may be taken up elsewhere in Upper Michigan, is the scheme of raising potatoes on a wholesale scale. It is proposed to organize a stock company with a capital of not less than $15,000 and to begin operations early in the spring. It is planned to acquire a tract of 300 acres and devote all of it to the cultivation of the tubers.

Come Here to Visit.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nels Flodin has gone to Duluth and the Mesaba range for a ten days' stay.

Miss Jean Primeau has gone to Duluth, to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Siefert.

GRAND JURY SILENT ON MORAL QUESTIONS

Makes No Recommendations in Its Final Report.

The Last Batch of Indictments is Returned.

With significant silence as to the matters, on which grand juries usually report recommendations, commendations or condemnations, the January grand jury made its final report to Judge Ensign at noon today and was discharged.

A number of indictments were returned, four reports of failure to find true bills against people in custody or out on bonds, but nary a word in the way of findings not included in indictments. It was expected in some quarters that the grand jury would have something to say on the "red light district," or the saloon question or gambling, but if the grand jury touched upon these matters, they didn't report their conclusions.

The grand jury finished its work last evening and adjourned until 11 o'clock today. They then paid a visit to the jail and inspected it, evidently finding conditions satisfactory. The final lot of indictments were then returned to the court and the jury was discharged.

Victor Lahti was indicted on a charge of assault in the second degree. He is charged with assaulting Herman Koste with a knife in the city of Duluth, Dec. 29, 1908.

John Myllikoski was indicted an a charge of assault in the first degree. He is charged with assaulting John Lilpakka with a razor at Eveleth Nov. 12, 1908, with the intention of causing Lilpakka's death.

Frank Wisocki, Joseph Zadowniak and Thomas Bardiak were indicted on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. They are charged with stealing rings and diamonds from E. E. Esterly's jewelry store Jan. 4 of this year. The property was estimated to be worth $312.

Martin Thompson was indicted on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree. He is charged with stealing an overcoat worth $30 from Spencer Rust, 731 West First street, Jan. 4 of this year.

Two indictments are returned against Peter Bacha and George Colonich, both charging burglary in the third degree. They are alleged to have entered the dry house at the Mariska mine near Gilbert Dec. 1 and Dec. 7, with the intent to steal. An indictment is returned for each offense.

William Raisky was indicted on a charge of forgery in the second degree. On Nov. 14, 1908, it is alleged he passed on C. P. Meyers a forged time check on E. Engle, a contractor, made out to and indorsed with the name of Jack Honka. The check was for $22.

Several other indictments were returned against people not yet in custody.

TO ASK FOR REHEARING

Tax Amendment Will Again be Taken Before Supreme Court.

A rehearing of the tax amendment case will be asked of the state supreme court.

H. H. Phelps, who has represented the real estate exchange in the case since its inception, stated today that he expected to ask the supreme court for a rehearing. Copies of the decision have been received and have been thoroughly reviewed by the attorneys.

Mr. Phelps said that he did not care to state the grounds on which he would base his petition until the petition had been filed.

Ida C. Nelson Dies.
Mrs. Ida C. Nelson, 815 East Fourth street, 16 years of age, died at St. Luke's hospital, Tuesday, Jan. 12, from a complication of diseases. Death followed after an unsuccessful operation. The deceased is survived by a husband and four children. Her father, two brothers and one sister, all residents of Duluth, also survive her. Funeral services will be held from the First Swedish Lutheran church, corner Sixth avenue east and Third street, at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Rev. Carl Solomonson officiating.

Credit Men Meet.
The Credit Men's Association of Duluth met last night in the rooms of the Commercial club. About seventy of the members of the association were present. Fred R. Salisbury of Minneapolis, a director of the National Association of Credit Men, was the principal speaker of the evening. Frank J. Nixon and Alderman A. G. McKnight were the other speakers.

Balance on Hand.
According to the annual report of the Duluth Firemen's Relief association, there was a balance on hand in the general fund Jan. 1 of $89,182. The balance in the special fund on the same date was $45,423.33, and the total fund on hand the first of the year was $134,605.86. Of this amount there is $3,107.86 cash in the band, $6,087.50 in United States bonds, and $125,416.56 in mortgage loans.

Engels' Half-Price Sale.
The half-price sale at Engels' Art store, 9 East Superior street, affords greatest opportunity of the year to buy exclusive pictures, oil and water color, etchings, statuary and bronzes, brasses and other art goods at prices you will not get again this year. New goods are being added daily, and the selection is as good now as on the opening day.

Judgment for Plaintiffs.
In accordance with stipulations filed by the attorneys, Judge Ensign in district court, this morning entered judgment for $700 in favor of the plaintiffs in the case of Alfred Johnson and Minnie Johnson, his wife, vs. the Oliver Iron Mining company, William Carmichael and J. C. Ames. The case grows out of an alleged seizure of household goods, and the plaintiffs are given judgment for $700 and also title to the goods involved.

Verdict Directed.
Judge Dibell directed a verdict for $3,366.65 in favor of the plaintiff in the case of John Burnett vs. H. E. Elden, in district court, yesterday afternoon. The suit was brought to recover on three promissory notes given by Elden to Lee W. Farmer, and assigned to Burnett. Elden claimed that the account between him and Farmer was squared by a stock deal, out of which Farmer had received sufficient to cover the notes. The court directed the jury to return a verdict for the plaintiff for the full amount demanded.

Decision Is Printed.
Copies of the opinion of Justice Elliott of the supreme court on the tax amendment case have been printed in pamphlet form, and are being distributed by the firm of Hellwell, Keyes & Carroll of Minneapolis. The pamphlet does not contain the dissenting opinion of Justice Brown. The reason for this distribution is not made known.

Sleighing Party.
The annual sleigh ride of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church will be held tonight, the party leaving the church at 7:15 for Lakewood.

MAYOR WILL SIGN LEASE

Municipal Court Will Have Rooms in New Building.

Mayor Haven yesterday signed the preliminary agreement towards securing a lease for the city on the second floor of the D. B. McDonald building, now in course of construction next to the police station at Second avenue east and Superior street. The entire floor will be used for municipal court purposes, which will include offices for the clerks, court officers, jury rooms, etc.

It is expected the building will be ready for occupancy by April 1, and the municipal court and offices connected with it will be moved as soon as the building is ready. The lease runs for ten years, with the provision that it may be terminated any time upon six months' notice. The rental for the floor will be $175 a month for the first five years and $200 a month for the second five years.

Will Celebrate Centennial.

A meeting of the citizens' and G. A. R. committees was held today at the Commercial club. The committees are planning for the celebration of Lincoln's birthday. It is planned to have the citizens and the members of the G. A. R. work together upon the celebration and have the day thoroughly observed. The plan of the celebration was outlined at the meeting today.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON TREATIES IS LIKELY.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Secretary of State Root appeared before the senate committe on foreign relations today, and explained the treaty negotiations with Great Britain, affecting the question of boundary waters between the United States and Canada, and also the three treaties relating to the Panama question.

The terms of all of these treaties already have been made public and from the attitude of members of the foreign relations committee in questioning Root, it appears likely the treaties will be reported favorably.

Laughter, Digestion and Health

An eminent Russian physician has stated his opinion that laughter is one of the best means known to science for the correction of Dyspepsia, stomach and nervous diseases.

Laughter, however, in a dyspeptic is like the memory of running brooks and shady glens to the famishing and dying man lost in the desert.

If one could but know all the causes, reasons and origins of Dyspepsia, one would not wonder at a half-heartedness of a dyspeptic's gaiety.

There is a ceaseless call for appetite, food and enjoyment to a dyspeptic, coupled with a morose, moody belief and knowledge that such a call is mockery and if indulged in will bring discomfort, pain and regret.

Perhaps if it were understood that the digestive system, including mouth, throat and alimentary canal, embracing as it does the stomach, is composed of membraneous tissue filled with millions of small nerves, which control added millions of little mouths or suckers. Perhaps if this were known men could more comprehensively understand that to disarrange such a system would mean indeed intense physical pain.

Now suppose that this alimentary canal is a mass of worn-out debilitated nerves and mouths, each suffering excruciating physical pain and discomfort, and suppose such a canal filled with the fumes and foul odors and decayed food from the last meal, and one has a slight idea as to the lack of laughter of a dyspeptic.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets composed of the highest digestive ingredients—one grain of a single ingredient being capable of digesting 3,000 grains of food—relieves the alimentary canal of its onerous duties, assists it along its entire length (30 feet) to perform its routine, imparts strength and buoyancy to the stomach and gives back to the blood a strong, healthy nourishment.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are natural adjuncts to digestion. They do not falsely stimulate an already weakened machine, but build up where building is needed and remove where removal is necessary.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have nothing to conceal. Here is what they are made of: Hydrastis, golden seal, lactose and asceptic pepsin. Forty thousand physicians in America and Canada use and prescribe them. They should be used after every hearty meal whether one is a dyspeptic or not.

Every druggist carries them; price 50c. Send us your name and address and we will send you a sample package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

ANOTHER COLD SNAP IS DUE

The Present Mild Weather Will Not Last Long.

Don't make the mistake of packing away the fur-lined overcoat just yet.

If H. W. Richardson's word is good, Duluth people will need all their winter clothing again by Thursday night.

It is very cold this morning up in Alberta, and Thursday afternoon another cold snap is due to arrive.

The best Jack Frost could do last night was 1 deg. below zero. At 7 o'clock this morning he gave up trying, and the temperature came up to 11 degs. above zero.

There will be snow flurries today, tonight, and maybe the first part of Thursday.

LOCATES LOST BROTHER.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Jan. 13.—Frank Swenson has received a letter which reveals the identity of a brother of whom he has heard nothing for nearly thirty years. Mr. Swenson is one of a family of five children. The father died when the children were small, and one of them was placed in an orphan asylum in St. Paul in 1879, and was adopted shortly afterwards. Another brother, who is a physician in Sheboygan, Wis., has been making in investigation, and has finally located the missing member of the family. It appears that he was adopted by a family named Keeley, and has always gone under the name of J. J. Keeley. It is probable a family reunion will be arranged in a short time.

EVELETH SHOWS MUCH INTEREST

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The anti-tuberculosis exhibit began yesterday afternoon in Urania hall, when stereoptican views and a lecture were given by Christopher Easton, director of the exhibit. Many people attended the evening and afternoon sessions, the hall being jammed in the evening.

J. H. Hearding was chairman of the meeting last night, and in his opening address compared the spread of tuberculosis to the ancient plagues that ravaged Europe. Mayor W. J. Smith delivered an address of welcome. Dr. E. L. Tuohy spoke on "The Nature and Purpose of the Exhibit," touching upon many facts which were very interesting and instructive. He said that while many plans are now in use for saving life from other causes, no concerted effort has been made to save people from tuberculosis. He told how to ward off the disease, and spoke of the conditions in which the disease grows.

A mass meeting will be held Sunday afternoon, and if the present hall cannot hold the audience, a larger hall will be secured. This afternoon is children's afternoon, and Christoper Easton, Supt. B. O. Greening and Health Commissioner Paul F. Brown will speak. This evening will be ladies' night, and most of the addresses will be made by women, though Dr. Harwood of the Fabiola hospital will read a paper.

Thursday afternoon, following the afternoon session, representatives from the range towns will meet at Uranla hall to perfect plans for organizing an Iron Range Anti-tuberculosis association, to act in co-operation with the state board of health and the other organizations which are trying to stamp out tuberculosis.

AFTER JUDGESHIP FOR RANGE TOWNS

Commercial Clubs Will Start Ball at Virginia Wednesday Evening.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—There will be an important meeting of representatives of the commercial clubs of the range in this city this evening, as reported by Attorney Louis M. Osborn at the council meeting last evening. He was the spokesman of the committee appointed by the Commercial club at its last meeting to appear before the council to urge that body to take some action in regard to assisting in the proposed legislation for establishing a district court for the ranges. Mr. Osborn stated that the object of this evening's meeting was to have the range towns get together on this matter and all appoint committees to go before the legislature and work for a bill to establish a separate court for the ranges. The council expressed its willingness to aid the club in every way possible.

Otto A. Poirier was reappointed as a member of the park board to succeed himself, being elected for the term of three years.

The Virginia Improvement company gave notice that options on certain lots in block 43, which the city contemplated acquiring for park purposes, would expire on Feb. 1, and that if the council did not take some action by that time, these options in regard to prices of property would be cancelled. The park board committee asked that the council give them until Feb. 1 to make a deal with the company for its lots in question.

The clerk of the municipal court reported fines collected for the week ending Jan. 9, in the sum of $104.45.

A petition asking for the extension of the patrol limits so that it will take in the Virginia Brewing company's plant, was read by the clerk. The company was recently refused a license to retail liquors on the ground that its place was outside the patrol limits, and this petition was circulated and signed by about 75 per cent of the property owners in that vicinity. The petition was referred to the city attorney for his opinion, and he will make his report at the next meeting.

The Missabe Railway company had been asked for the privilege of building a crossing over its tracks for the new wagon road to Gilbert, and the company is desirous of building an overhead bridge at this particular point, stating that it was a dangerous point of the road, because a great deal of switching was being done by the company at that particular point, and they thought it advisable to build a bridge instead of a grade crossing. As the road has been constructed only as a temporary winter highway, and could not be used in summer, the council thought it best to ask the company for permission to build a low-grade crossing, and the clerk was instructed to so notify the company.

The committee which had in charge the matter of remodeling the old fire hall, adjoining the city hall, into jail quarters, reported having in contemplation plans to make the second story over into quarters which will accommodate the proposed new district court rooms and offices, and asked permission to bring an architect here to look over the building and draw plans for its remodeling.

The letting of the contract for the city printing was brought up. During the past year the Virginia Enterprise has been the official publication for the city, and the Virginian had the contract to do the job printing, but it was suggested that positions be reversed and that the Virginian be named the official paper. City Attorney Shea informed the council that the ordinance now in force called for bids for all printing, and that if the council was to go at it in a legal manner the clerk must be instructed to advertise for bids for the same. The matter was laid over for another week.

Alderman Michael Boylan urged that the city take immediate action to appoint a meat inspector, and also one to look after the inspection of all milch cows within the city limits. He said that the board of health had reported the condition of affairs deplorable, and that for the general welfare of the people of Virginia the council should see to it that these conditions were remedied. He moved that an ordinance be drawn up to be presented at the next meeting of the council, covering these affairs, and his motion was carried by a unanimous vote.

CHISHOLM BANK ELECTS.

A. M. Chisholm of Duluth Re-Elected President of First National.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the First National Bank of Chisholm was held here yesterday. A. M. Chisholm of Duluth, who came to attend the meeting, made the trip to the range on a special train with some Great Northern officials. Whether the coming of the railroad officials had anything to do with the construction of the Great Northern extension from Nashwauk, could not be learned.

The following directors were elected: A. M. Chisholm, J. F. Kilorin, Duluth; Martin Hughes, Thomas York, P. H. Nelson, Hibbing; J. H. McNiven, G. L. Train, G. L. Fram, Matt Matzel, Julius Gresso, Chisholm. A. M. Chisholm of Duluth was re-elected president, P. H. Nelson of Hibbing, vice president; G. L. Train of Chisholm, cashier, and P. W. Hurt of Chisholm, assistant cashier. The affairs of the bank were shown to be i na flourishing condition.

OLIVER CLUB HAS FIRST ELECTION

Supt. W. J. West of Hibbing District is Elected President.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Oliver club, an organization composed of officers of the Oliver Iron Mining company, members of the office staff and others holding responsible positions with the mining company here, which has just moved into its handsome new quarters, held its first election last night.

Supt. W. J. West, of the Hibbing district, was elected president, and during the evening made a few remarks, in which he told something of the mission of the club, which was made possible through the generosity of the big mining company, by which the members of the club are employed. He bespoke a brilliant future for the club and modestly referred to the part he played in bringing about the construction of the handsome clubhouse, one of the finest in this section of Minnesota.

Other officers elected were: William Silderquiest, vice president; W. Trevnery, treasurer; J. F. Kain, secretary; L. C. Mucher, Roy Reed, A. B. Dugan, J. McDowell, Thomas Weekly, directors.

FIND FAMILY DESTITUTE.

Without Food and Suffering From Extreme Cold.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A family by the name of Kennedy, consisting of a mother and three little children, the oldest being only 4, were found in very destitute circumstances, living in a solitary shack in the Pillsbury location, about three miles northeast of here. Not only were they suffering for lack of food, but were shivering with cold, having no fuel and being poorly clad, while the icy blasts of the extremely cold weather swept through cracks in their wretched home. When their sad case was discovered, none had tasted food for two days, and the mother had taken the children to bed to keep warm until the weather changed and relief could be secured. The head of the unfortunate family is serving a ninety-day sentence in the county jail for non-support.

As soon as the case was reported to the relief committee, succor was furnished, food, wood and clothing being supplied with funds left over by the Hibbing and Chisholm relief committees.

BIG STRIPPING CONTRACT.

Work Begins at Chisholm on Five Years' Job.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—A big stripping contract that will require five years to execute has been closed between the Oliver Iron Mining company and the Winston Dear Stripping company, which recently finished a three-years' contract at the Monroe pit. The contractors are beginning work on the new contract, which is to remove the over-burden on the south side of the Monroe pit.

AURORA K. P. BANQUET.

To Celebrate Successful Contest After New Members.

Aurora, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—In celebration of the conclusion of the successful campaign that has been carried on for new members of the Knights of Pythias, which resulted in twenty-five new members, the lodge members last night enjoyed a banquet in the Commercial club rooms after the new officers had been installed as follows: N. A. Young, C. C.; Fredolph Anderson, V. C.; Andrew Erickson, K. of R. and S.; Carl Erickson, M. at A.; A. W. Corwin, M. of W.; W. H. Guinn, prelate; Hans Nicholson, M. of F.; George E. Webb, M. of E.; R. B. Loring, I. G.; Roy Crawford, O. G. The banquet was served by the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church.

EVELETHANS AT BANQUET.

Mayor Smith Toastmaster and the Future of Ranges Discussed.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The banquet given last night in the city hall by the fire department in honor of Assistant Chief Charles McDonough, who has resigned, was a great success. Mayor Smith, aldermen, city officials and volunteer firemen were present. Mayor Smith was toastmaster and called upon City Treasurer W. J. Davey, State Senator P. Vall of Virginia, P. E. Dowling and others for remarks. Messrs. Vall and Dowling spoke on questions of interest to the county. Senator Vall on the tonnage tax and P. E. Dowling about the district court that the range towns are after. John Panton of Duluth; Mr. Burkey of Ironwood and Mr. Cassidy of Virginia were also present.

HARD ON FISHERMEN.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The cold snap has been tough on the north shore fishermen, several cases of suffering being reported. One member of the fishing colony was brought here yesterday to receive treatment at a local hospital for a frozen foot.

Shipping Stock Here.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The affairs of the Alex McDonald company department store of the Eveleth Driving club. The men have met before, but the bout was called a draw.

High School Team Wins.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The basketball game to have been played last night between the high school and militia teams failed to materialize, the militia boys not appearing. The high school team played a pick-up team and easily defeated them. More practices will be held this week to prepare for the Hibbing game on Saturday.

GRAIN FIRM RESUMES AND WILL PAY ALL CLAIMS

Heaviest Creditors of Firm Come to an Understanding.

Failure Was a Great Surprise to Board Members.

"A consultation between the heaviest creditors of Spencer, Moore & Co., was held this morning and arrangements have been made for the resumption of business and the payment of all claims in full. Creditors and other business connections and associates in the grain business have shown a great, generous spirit. Transactions, while very large have been handled in such a way as to prevent any bad effects in the market or out of it. Our situation has cleared perceptibly since last night."

—Statement made this afternoon by Watson S. Moore, of Spencer, Moore & Co., to a reporter for The Herald.

Spencer, Moore & Co., one of the oldest and most reputable grain firms on the Duluth board of trade, have failed, assignment for the benefit of the creditors having been made to E. A. Forsyth, manager of the concern, at a late hour yesterday afternoon.

After the close of the session of the Duluth board of trade yesterday, it became apparent to those in charge of the firm's affairs that they had become so involved as to make a continuation of business impractical and unfair to the creditors, so it was decided to turn the company's affairs into the hands of an assignee, who will look after the interests of the creditors.

Details of the failure and its cause are lacking. Watson S. Moore, the only member of the firm who is now in the city, said this morning that it would be several days before things could be sufficiently untangled and figured out, to permit of a detailed account of the difficulties which his concern had met.

That other members of the Duluth board will not be affected by the failure is certain. This comes in a statement from Mr. Moore and others on the local board and the manager of the Duluth clearing house, Franklin Paine. Other firms on the board came to the rescue, to prevent this market from suffering from the collapse.

The exact extent of the failure will not be known until the firm's affairs are gone into farther. That will take several days. A great deal of gossip and conjecture about the cause of the failure and its extent, were floating around the local trading room this morning, and in the Minneapolis and Chicago markets, but nothing authentic could be learned.

A Chicago house was out with some gossip from the Chicago Inter-Ocean, saying that the Spencer-Moore collapse was due to the fact that the firm was long on wheat and short on flax. In reply to this, the following statement was issued from Spencer, Moore & Co.'s offices:

"We notice in the gossip this morning from the Chicago Inter-Ocean that our firm was short on flax. Will you kindly say on your wires that our firm had no trades in flax for its own account for a year."

Another bit of gossip from Chicago stated that A. D. Thomson & Co. of Duluth "would take over Spencer, Moore & Co.'s business." This was emphatically denied this morning by Mr. Thomson, who stated that his firm had merely taken over the defunct firm's clearing house trades.

That the embarrassment of Spencer, Moore & company had rather a sudden climax, is shown by the fact that the senior member of the firm, George Spencer, left with his wife but a few days ago, to spend the winter in California. He was recalled and at once turned about and caught a train for Duluth, arriving this morning. He went into a conference with his partner and others interested at once.

Mr. Moore's Statement.

Concerning the failure, the following statement was issued last night by Watson S. Moore, junior member of the firm:

"The firm of Spencer, Moore & Co., was today unable to protect its contracts in outside markets and was, therefore, compelled to make an assignment for the benefit of all its creditors, to E. A. Forsyth.

"All trades for future delivery on the Duluth board of trade in Duluth grain have been entirely settled, due to the consideration and generosity of local men, and there will be nothing to come on the Duluth market from this cause.

"George Spencer, the senior partner, was unaware of the condition of the firm until within twenty-four hours of the assignment, his time being fully taken up with the affairs of the Consolidated Elevator company. The elevator company, however, has no connection with the firm of Spencer, Moore & Co. Neither has any obligations or trades open with the other at present."

It is further learned that all obligations to local banks are protected by quick grain collateral with ample margins.

The firm of Spencer, Moore & Co. is composed of George Spencer and Watson S. Moore, and has been in existence for the past nineteen years. For years, the members have been prominent in business circles of the city, as well as socially. Their firm prospered and there was never the slightest hint that the company was seriously involved in business entanglements until the news of the failure came.

GETS DIVORCE AND ALIMONY

Mrs. Mary Derrig Allowed $4,000 by District Court.

An absolute divorce and $4,000 alimony were granted Mrs. Mary Derrig yesterday afternoon by Judge Dibell.

Mrs. Derrig was the wife of John Derrig, formerly of this city, but now a resident of California. They were married at Superior Feb. 19, 1896, and she claims that he deserted her five years ago, and went to California. She was given the divorce she asked for, $4,000 alimony, and $125 for attorney's fees.

REPORT ON PROGRESS

and which is now under process of construction, and also to obtain from the proper officials information as to how rapid will be the progress of the work, and what is proposed to be accomplished during the present year.

Representative Adams said that copies of The Duluth Evening Herald had been furnished the members explaining the progress that has been made and stating that the plant will be completed by the time the reviving market is ready to absorb its product, and he did not think the proposed committee necessary.

Representative Lennon of Minneapolis deferred action on the resolution until tomorrow by giving notice of debate.

Senator Works of Mankato offered a joint resolution of interest to Northern Minnesota in the senate. It provides for a joint committee of three from the house to prepare a bill carrying into effect the recommendations of Governor Johnson and State Auditor Iverson that a bureau of public lands, forestry and minerals be created to conserve the state's remaining natural wealth. Senator Works said that few people in this state realize the extent of the wealth owned by the state in Northern Minnesota and that much of this wealth is getting away because there is no proper provision for caring for it. This is an immensely important matter, worthy of the best thought of the house, so he hoped that the resolution would be adopted.

Senator Laybourn of Duluth put it over to tomorrow by giving a notice of debate. Being a concurrent resolution, it will be necessary to secure the indorsement of the resolution by the house if the senate adopts it.

The senate passed Senator Elwell's resolution, accepting the Carnegie pension fund for the professors at the Minnesota university.

Following were among the bills introduced: Senator Sundberg, re-submitting the constitutional amendment providing for state hail insurance, which was defeated at the last election; Senator Peterson, requiring railroads to equip freight trains with full crews under penalty of $50 a day; Senator Works, providing for the state supervision of investment companies not now under statutory regulation; Senator Robinson, punishing the adulteration of seeds and animal foods and the transportation of cleanings containing seeds of noxious weeds; Senator V. L. Johnson, county license fees of $5 to $12 for automobiles to go into the state highway fund; Senator Paully, making void assignments of wages to be earned in the future unless the employers accept the assignment and the employe's wife joins in making it; Senator Seward, providing a state board of accountancy; Representative Bendixen, prohibiting grain dealers from discriminating against sections by paying more or less to one section than to another, except as the freight rates may make a difference, penalty being voidance of contracts, expulsion from the business and $5,000 fine or a year's imprisonment, or both; Representative Ferguson, providing a new judge for the Fifteenth judicial district; Representative Nagel prohibiting the making, sale or giving away of cigarettes or their makings after July 1; Representative Murphy, providing a 5-cent state bounty on crows; Representative Campbell, prohibiting publication of indecent medical advertisements; Representative Gates, closing the season on prairie chickens for the next two years.

ALDERMEN MEET WITH THE BOARD

Will Hereafter Attend Gatherings of the Fire Commissioners.

The meeting of the board of fire commissioners, held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the city hall, was attended by Mayor Haven, the fire department commitee of the city council and two or three other aldermen, who were on hand by invitation extended by the board.

In order to keep the council and the fire board in close touch, the mayor and some of the aldermen will attend all meetings in future, and in this manner it is expected they will be better qualified to speak and vote intelligently on the needs of the department.

Park Point, Hunter's Park and New Duluth all have applications before the board asking for more adequate fire protection, and all these requests are receiving consideration, although no action was taken yesterday towards providing for further expenditures for protection in the parts of the city named.

At present the city maintains a fire car, which is an open street car, equipped with fire apparatus, on Park Point. Point residents are asking that two paid firemen be given them to be on hand in cases of emergency. There were twelve fires on the point last year, and the people down there, who are at present entirely dependent upon a volunteer department, think htey are entitled to better protection, provided by the city. A delegation of Point residents appeared before the board yesterday and pressed their demands. After the hearing they were assured that their request would be given careful consideration.

PATTON TO URGE PLANS

The Health Commissioner Wants Municipal Collection of Garbage

Annual Report Will Recommend Medical Inspection of Schools.

The institution of a system of municipal collection of garbage and medical inspection in the public schools, will be two important recommendations in Health Commissioner Patton's annual report this month.

Dr. Patton is heartily in favor of the municipal collection of garbage. He says it is the only really satisfactory method, and thinks it should be started in Duluth early in the spring. If allowed to go ahead, he will use only one wagon to start with, and others will be purchased from time to time, until the municipal collection covers the entire city. The system will be under the direct supervision of the health department. Wagons especially adapted to the purpose will be used.

The health commissioner is also enthusiastically in favor of medical inspection of school children, and his report will contain a strong recommendation to this effect. It will be up to the board of education to act favorably upon the recommendation, or to turn it down. This matter has come in for a good deal of discussion in Duluth recently, and it is rather expected that an inspection of this sort will be provided for before the end of the present yar.

Another recommendation will be an amendment to the building ordinance, to the effect that it shall be against the law to build any sleeping rooms underground.

In Chicago there is being instituted a system of pasteurizing milk, and Commissioner Patton was asked this morning if he would say anything in his report about starting a similar system in Duluth.

"I should say not," said the doctor. "The system is a pernicious one, and should not be allowed in any city. It's whole idea is to make rotten milk marketable. It destroys the bacteria of lactic acid, an essential element in good milk, and leaves behind a lot of bad pathogenic organisms. The system also destroys those germs which have the power to kill bad germs in milk, besides destroying the value of milk as a food product. While pasteurized milk may not give babies intestinal diseases, its general effect is a poor bone formation, and general anemic condition."

There is a lot of detail work in connection with getting out the annual report, and it will not be ready for several days yet.

RAILROADS

SURVEY OF NEW ROUTE

Engineers Working on New Line Between Duluth and Virginia.

Believed That Construction Work Will Begin in Spring.

A surveying party in the employ of the Canadian Northern railroad, is engaged at the present time in making a survey of the road that the company intends to build between this city and Virginia, to complete the Winnipeg-Duluth line.

It was definitely learned today that the surveyors had been engaged in going over the old route that was laid out some time ago by the men in control of the Rainy Lake railroad. The fact that surveyors are at work upon the new route and possibly upon terminals in this city, does away with the idea that the Canadian Northern railroad will not build to Duluth, but will use the Missabe road to reach this city.

While no information as to the time of the building of the new road between Virginia and Duluth can be learned from the officials of the Rainy Lake road, who are in the city at the present time, it is stated today by men who are very much interested in the route taken by the new road, that the construction of the road will begin early this spring.

W. H. Cook, president of the Rainy Lake road, which has been acquired by the Canadian Northern, is in Toronto at the present time, in conference with the Canadian Northern officials. It is said that this conference has to do with the construction of the new extension.

STRAWBERRIES COMING.

Refrigerator Special is Bringing Fruit From Georgia Patches.

A special train of strawberries is on its way to Duluth from Sunny Georgia. They are coming by fast freight, which means that they will about equal the passenger time between that Southern state and St. Paul. From St. Paul and Minneapolis, part of the consignment will be sent to this city.

Florida berries have been upon the market for some time. For those whose pocketbooks were equal to the strain, pocketbooks were equal to the strain, the strawberries could be obtained at one or two of the Duluth restaurants for some time past. The coming of the Georgia berry will reduce the price of the Florida berry and will enable those whose tastes are on a par with their incomes, to enjoy the novelty of eating strawberries when the thermometer is hovering far belo whe zero point.

The berries are being brought to Minnesota in a refrigerator train.

Reach Seattle in May.

According to R. D. Rovig, Northwestern passenger agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, the rails of the coast extension of that line will reach Seattle by next May. This means, if the engineers succeed in pushing the work that rapidly, that the Pacific coast service of the Milwaukee will be placed in operation some time during the months of May.

It is further stated here today, that the Milwaukee will build an extension to Spokane. It is said that the contract for this extension is in the hands o fthe contractors at the present time.

The completion of the coast extension of the Milwaukee will mean that Duluth will have another through line to the coast, for at the present time, through leased rail service, the Milwaukee ooperates direct from Duluth.

Running Time Changed.

It was announced today at the office fo the Great Northern railroad that beginning next Sunday, the time of the Gopher State Express, which leaves Duluth at 3:35 p. m. each afternoon, will be changed to 3:25 p. m. At the present time the train reaches Minneapolis at 8 p. m. and St. Paul at 8:30 p. m. Under the new change in time the train will reach Minneapolis at 7:45 p. m. and St. Paul at 8:15 p. m. The Gopher State Express is known upon the time cards as train No. 19.

Agents Here.

Frank Lally, traveling passenger agent of the Burlington, is in Duluth today.

COMEDY IN COURT ROOM

Prince-Greenburg-Stein Controversy Has a Serio-Comic Side.

Jury Will Get Tangled Range Web for Unraveling.

Hot shots passed out to attorneys and witnesses, vigorous denials and vehement contradictions have characterized the testimony in the trial of the $5,000 slander suit of Vivian Prince vs. Morris Stein, before Judge Ensign, in district court.

To the disinterested spectator, the case has its funny side. To those directly interested, it is serious. Judge Prince believes Stein has injured his reputation by false statements, and he wants to recover his money. Stein believes he is the victim of a gross conspiracy to injure him and his business, and he is backing up his statements. The trend of the testimony is at times distinctly humorous, and several laughs were sent around the room this morning.

The bitterness of the feeling between the two factions is evident in almost every line of testimony. Judge Prince and Mr. and Mrs. Max Greenburg claim that when Morris Stein told people that Judge Prince held his hands while Greenburg cut him with a knife, and Mrs. Greenburg robbed his till, he lied. Stein says his statements are true, that Judge Prince was drunk when Stein and Greenburg had a fight in Stein's store at Sparta, the night of Sept. 14, 1907, and Judge Prince had a bad reputation, anyway.

The whole affair is badly mixed, and the jury will seek to untangle it this afternoon. Judge Prince was on the stand yesterday afternoon and this morning, and he denied emphatically ever going near Stein on the night Greenburg and Stein were fighting. He said he stood just inside the door of Greenburg's store and watched them do the prize ring stunt. He said Greenburg didn't have a knife. He denied having been drunk, although he admitted he was a drinking man. Incidentally he took a verbal shot at Attorney M. P. Arnold, for the defense, at every opportunity, displaying a none too cordial feeling toward the attorney.

Character witnesses were called this morning. Neil McInnis, chairman of the county board, reluctantly admitted on the stand that Mr. Prince's reputation at Eveleth wasn't of the best. Register of Deeds M. C. Palmer, Sheriff W. J. Bates and Capt. R. R. Trezona said that Mr. Prince's reputation was good, as far as they knew.

The arguments were made after the opening of court this afternoon, and the case went to the jury.

DAMAGES FOR SON'S DEATH

Superior Man Claims Street Railway Company Was Negligent.

Claiming that the negligence of the Duluth Street Railway company was responsible for the accident which caused the death of his 11-year old son, James McDonald, as administrator of the estate of James W. McDonald, is bringing suit in district court to recover $5,000 he claims as damages. The case was called for trial before Judge Dibell in district court this morning and the taking of testimony will begin this afternoon, a jury having been secured.

The accident, which resulted in the death of the boy, occurred Dec. 17, 1907, on Tower avenue, near Eighth street, in Superior. The car struck the boy, he going under it. When the car was lifted and the body taken out, the boy was dead.

The plaintiff claims there was negligence on the part of the company's employes in charge of the car. The company denies any negligence. Samuel A. Anderson of St. Paul and Warner E. Whipple of Duluth appear for Mr. McDonald and Thomas Wood and Frank Ross for the Street Railway company.

Receipt That Cures Weak Men—Free

Send Name and Address Today—You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man, who wishes to regain his manly power and virility, quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So, I have determined to send a copy of the prescription, free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of men, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of deficient manhood and vigor-failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow man to send them a copy in confidence, so that any man, anywhere who is weak and discouroged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what, I believe, is the quickets-acting, restorative, upbuilding, SPOT-TOUCHING remedy ever devised, and so, cure himself at home quietly and quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Mr. A. E. Robinson, 4671 Luck Bldg., Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid receipt, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope, free of charge.

ADVERTISE FOR A SITE

First Step Towards Providing New Hillside Fire Hall.

Fireman for Park Point —Big Shortage in Fire Fund.

As a result of the meeting of the board of fire commissioners, held yesterday at the city hall, an order has been issued instructing the clerk of the board to advertise for a site for the proposed hillside fire hall.

The advertisement reads that bids will be accepted covering a 50-foot lot in the district lying between Sixth and Eighth street and Fourth and Eighth avenues east. A site for the building will be selected somewhere in this district.

As a further result of the meeting, it has been ordered that one fireman be permanently stationed on Park Point, at the street car barns, as a precaution against fires on the Point. It will be his duty to accompany the fire car to any fire in the district in question, and do what he can, with the assistance of the operator of the car and volunteer fire department, to extinguish any fire from which a call comes.

While the site for the hillside fire hall will be purchased this year, there is said to be absolutely no chance that the building will be erected this year, and there is a further possibility that there will be no money to stand the cost of its erection next year. The site will be procured now, however, and as soon as the city's funds will permit the hall will be built.

The fire department will be greatly handicapped for want of money this year, and very few improvements can be made on this account. The purchase of the site for the hillside building was provided for last year, as was the addition to hall No. 3, corner of Second avenue east and Third street, which will be built this year. There is such a shortage in the fund that the No. 3 hall improvement will be the only one of any consquence to be made this year, from present indications, although several of the halls throughout the city are sadly in need of improvemnts, and much additional fire-fighting apparatus, to say nothing of more firemen, is needed.

The charter limitation of $320,000 for all but four items in the city budget, will seriously handicap improvement work in practically all the departments, for under this limitation it became necessary to appropriate much smaller sums than were needed to carry on the necessary work. The construction of the city hospital, the addition to No. 3 fire hall, and the purchase of a site for the hillside fire hall, will be about the only steps the city will be able to make this year in this line of improvements. A great many other improvements of this nature were recommended by the conference committee and city council, but there is no money with which to make them.

NEW COLD SNAP HEADED EASTWARD

More Medicine Hat Weather Due Latter Part of Week.

Forecaster Richardson of the local weather bureau today received a message from Chief Moore of Washington saying that there is an extensive and pronounced elementary disturbance covering the entire country from the Rocky mountains westward.

This disturbance will move eastward, attended by widespread snows over the northern districts and rains over the southern districts, that probably will reach into the North Atlantic states by Thursday or Thursday night.

It is predicted that the temperature will rise generally over the Middle West for two days, and over the Eastern states until about Saturday. In the absence of reports from Alaska, the degree of cold to follow the disturbance cannot be determined, but it is considered probable that it will be colder Thursday in the middle plateau and Thursday night and Friday in the plains' states, and Saturday in the central valleys and upper lake region.

It will be colder Sunday and Sunday night in the lower lake regions, and in the Middle Atlantic and New England states. Rain and snow will probably continue Friday and Saturday over the Eastern states.

Charm the Fat Away.

To reduce by means of exercise or dieting is nothing but torture to the flesh and mortification to the spirit. It is so much simpler to "charm" it away. Of course, I don't mean by "spells" or "incantations" but through the occasional use of this home recipt, viz: ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ounces Peppermint Water, which any one can obtain at any drug store for a small sum and mix at home. Take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. It literally charms the fat away. Takes it off just where you need it off and does it quickly but harmlessly. Many persons lose as much as a pound a day.

Isn't that "charming" off the fat—eat what you please and still lose a pound a day—without strain, injury or effort?

WHEAT HAS GOOD BULGE

Bearish Tide in American Markets Has Been Turned.

May Flax is Unchanged in Duluth at the Close.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 13.—The tide of the wheat market, which has been so bearish for the past two days, was turned today, and closing prices in most of the American markets were more than a point higher than yesterday's.

Wheat was nervous at the opening, but after the first hour advanced steadily and closed at nearly the high price of the day. The buying was better than it has been for several days, and it sent many shorts scurrying to cover.

Cables were soft. Liverpool closed ½d to ½d lower, Budapest 1⅜c lower and Berlin ⅞c lower.

The May option closed 1⅜c higher in Duluth, Chicago and Minneapolis, ½c higher in New York, 1¼c higher in St. Louis and 1⅝c higher in Kansas City and Winnipeg. The July option closed 1⅜c higher in Duluth, ⅝@¾c higher in Chicago, 1⅛@⅝c higher in Minneapolis, ¾c up in New York, ¾c higher in St. Louis and Winnipeg and ⅝c higher in Kansas City.

May corn closed ¼c higher in Duluth and ½d higher in Liverpool. May oats closed a shade higher in Duluth.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—As a result of the weakness in the American markets yesterday, and increased pressure to sell, La Plata cargoes, which were about 3c lower, the market here was easy at the start and ¾d lower. Following the opening and during the morning, the market was supported and part of the decline was recovered. Shorts covered on the improved continental demand and lighter offerings. At mid-day the market was steady and from ¼@½d lower than yesterday.

"Corn was steady at the opening in sympathy with American cables. Following the opening prices, just held on a very poor demand for spot, and on a very poor demand and uneasiness in sympathy with the uneasiness in wheat."

Car receipts at Duluth were 19, against 38 last year, and at Minneapolis 129, against 306 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 148, against 401 last year. Chicago received 9, against 26 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 224,000 bus last year, 728,000 bus. Shipments, 220,000 bus, last year, 240,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour bus. aggregated 225,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 378,000 bus, last year, 1,017,000 bus. Shipments 422,000 bus, last year, 503,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 158,272 bus.

Wheat was active in the Duluth market. The failure of Spencer, Moore & Co., caused some nervousness here during the first hour, but it was soon dispelled and the market steadily advanced. The embarrassed concerns affairs did not affect unfavorably any of the other traders here.

May wheat opened ⅝c higher at $1.06⅞, went off to $1.06½, rallied to $1.08, declined to $1.07¾, and closed at $1.07⅞, a gain of 1⅜c over yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed 1⅜c higher than yesterday at $1.07⅜.

Durum wheat closed ½c higher and cash spring wheat at the May price for No. 1 northern.

Flax was erratic and even panicky at times during the session here. It went off 2½ points during the first half hour, but by the close all the loss had been recovered. May flax opened unchanged at $1.58½, declined to $1.56, rallied to $1.57, went off to $1.56, reacted to $1.58½ and sold between that and $1.57¾ during the rest of the session, closing at $1.58½, unchanged from yesterday.

Oats closed ⅛c higher and other coarse grains unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard on track, $1.07⅞. To arrive: No. 1 northern, $1.07⅞; No. 2 northern, $1.05⅞. On track: No. 1 northern, $1.07⅞; No. 2 northern, $1.05⅞; May, $1.07⅞; July, $1.07. Durum on track: No. 1, 91c; No. 2, 89c; May durum, 91¼c. Flax to arrive, $1.58. flax on track, $1.58; May, $1.58½. Oats to arrive, 45⅝c; oats on track, 48⅝c; rye, 67@76c; barley, 55½@55½c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Leading Bulls Support Wheat and Cause Moderate Rally.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 13.—Leading bulls supported the wheat market here today, causing a moderate rally after a weak opening There was quite general selling at the start and intial quotations were ¼c higher to ⅝@c lower. Within the first fifteen minutes, however, all of the opening loss had been regained and for a time, the market held firm. A steadily improving demand for the cash grain and the small receipts were bullish factors, but these were offset by weak cables. May opened at $1.04 @1.04⅞, and sold at $1.05⅛. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 157 cars, against 129 cars last week and 430 cars a year ago.

The market rallied sharply during the last half of the day, prices advancing from 1c to 2c above the low point of the day. The upturn was due to the buying of a large line of wheat by a leading commission house, which induced liberal covering by shorts. The top for May was reached at $1.06. The close was strong with prices at almost the top, final quotations on May being up 1⅜c at $1.06.

A moderate advance was scored in corn, owing to a brisk demand by a leading elevator interest, which was based chiefly on a light movement. Offerings in the pit was small. May opened a shade to ¼@⅜c higher at 61⅛@61⅜c and sold at 61⅞c. Local receipts were 129 cars, with three of contract grade.

The early buoyancy was lost during the final hour, owing to profit taking by leading holders. The close was steady with May ⅛c higher at 61½@⅝c.

Trade in oats was active early in the day and the market was firm owing to light receipts. Prices at the start were unchanged to ¼c higher, May opening at 51½@51¾c. Later May sold at 51¾@⅞c. Local receipts were 102 cars.

Provisions were firm because of fairly active demand by commission house inspired by a 10c advance in live hogs. Prices at the opening were a shade to 5c higher.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.06; July, 97¼c; September, 94c. Corn—January, 57¾c; May, 61½@⅝c; July, 61¾@⅞c; September, 62c. Oats—May, 51½@⅝c; July, 46⅝c; September, 39¾c. Rye—Cash, 76¼c; May, 77½c. Barley—Cash, 61@67c. Timothy—March, $4.05. Clover—March, $9.40. Pork—January, $16.50; May, $15.75. Lard—January, $9.50; May, $9.70; July, $9.82½. Ribs—January, $8.60; May, $8.82½; July, $8.95¾ 8.97½. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.04@1.05⅞; No. 3 red, $1.03@1.04½; No. 2 hard, $1.01@1.03½; No. 3 hard, $1.00@1.02½; No. 1 northern, $1.07@1.08½; No. 2 northern, $1.06@1.08; No. 3 spring, $1.01@1.07. Corn—No. 3, 58¾c; No. 3 white, 61¼c; No. 3 yellow, 59c; No. 4, 58@½c. Oats—No. 3 white, 49½@51½c; No. 4 white, 48½@50c; standard, 51½c.

THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Wheat Opened Weak, But Recovered Sharply on Export Sales.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 13.—Opening weak and coming ⅜@½d lower on second advices, Liverpool followed the local decline of yesterday and May wheat sold down quickly to $1.06. It then rallied quickly and gained 1⅝c from the low point. The weakness was on selling of wheat supposed to be for Spencer, Moore & Co., of Duluth, the firm reported in trouble. The sharp recovery was on export sales at Duluth and New York amounting to 300,000 or 400,000 bushels. Near the close the market was strong and higher.

May opened $1.06@1.06⅛; high, $1.08; low, $1.06; close, $1.07¾. July opened $1.06½; high, $1.08⅜; low, $1.06½; close, $1.08¼. Country millers were buyers of wheat below the No. 2 northern grade and this demand firmed up the offgrade stuff. No. 1 northern was 1 11/4c over and 1½c over for choice. No. 2 was about 1c under May. Close: No. 1 northern, spot, $1.08¾; to arrive $1.08¾; No. 2 northern spot, $1.06⅛@⅜; to arrive, $1.06¾; No. 3 wheat, $1.03½@1.05; No. 3 yellow corn, 56¼c; No. 3 white oats, 48⅞@49⅜c; No. 2 rye, 67¾@71¼c.

Barley—Receipts, 42 cars against 101 cars; shipments, 70 cars. The market opened weak, was lower in bids, but at advices of improvement in Milwaukee put the local market back firm with yesterday. Close, 57@60c.

Flax—Receipts, 8 cars against 73 cars; shipments, none. There was a firm market at a cent over Duluth May. Close, $1.59¼.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 1,578 tons. Millers quote bran in bulk $19.50@19.75.

Flour—Demand locally was quiet, but the country millers reported it better. There is a distinctly better tone to the trade, although business has not increased much. Shipments, 30,267 barrels. First patents, $5.10@5.60; second patents, $5.25@5.45; first clears, $4@4.10; second clears, $2.85@3.05.

HEARD ON THE FLOOR.

Gossip of the Trading Room and the Pit.

The failure of Spencer, Moore & Co. was the all-absorbing topic of discussion among the traders on the floor today.

There was much conjecture as to the extent of the firm's embarrassment and how it would turn out. There was general satisfaction, however, when the secretary posted in the pit a statement signed by George Spencer and Watson S. Moore, partners in the firm of Spencer, Moore & Co., to the effect that they would resume business and pay all claims.

The statement was ubstantially the same as that given to The Herald by Mr. Moore, and published in another part of this paper.

It is understood that the promptness with which other big operators in the local pit came to the aid of the involved concern had much to do with the straightening out of its affairs and enabled the members to say they would resume business and satisfy all claims. By the close of the session today, the outlook of the firm was comparatively bright.

While no authentic statements as to the causes of the firm's embarrassment were made, it was currently reported about the floor that the firm was long on May wheat, which took serious tumbles yesterday and the day before. The report, published in some Chicago papers, that their troubles were due to the fact that they were short on flax, was emphatically denied.

STOCKS ARE IRREGULAR

Started With Little Change and Broke Sharply on Offerings.

Brisk Rally Near Close But Advances Not Fully Held.

New York, Jan. 13.—Most of the standard railroad stocks were little changed today from last night's prices in the opening dealings, but there were wide movements in some of the minor stocks. Wisconsin Central preferred advanced 2¾, National Biscuit 2, and Toledo, St. Louis & Western 1½. A decline of 3¾ in St. Paul was the largest change shown in the mixed results in the general list.

Stocks began to be offered more freely than the market could absorb and there was a rather sharp break, in which Union Pacific, Erie and the New York public utilities stocks were prominent. There was some sign of support after a number of stocks had yielded materially, but this was withdrawn later an dthe decline was renewed, Erie first preferred declined 1⅝, the second preferred 1, Colorado Fuel 1⅜, Amalgamated Copper, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse Electric 1¼ and St. Paul, Union Pacific, Southern Railway and Pressed Steel Car preferred 1. Chicago Great Western preferred "A" sold at 25, a loss of 5½. National Biscuit extended its rise to 4 and American Smelting gained 1.

Intermittent selling carried prices to successfully lower levels without much interruption. Stocks of fertilizer companies were the only exceptions to the weakness, American Agricultural Chemical, Virginia-Carolina Chemical and American Cotton Oil rising 1 to 1½. St. Paul was notably weak at a decline of 3. St. Louis Southwestern preferred lost 2¼. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie 2¼, Bethlehem Steel preferred 2, Iowa Central preferred and Amalgamated Copper 1¾ and a large number of others a point or more. Bonds were irregular.

A better tone prevailed during the noon hour, but the demand was languid and the recoveries were poorly held.

The market closed irregular. The action of the market became very irregular in the last hour. On a renewed decline, Wabash preferred sold 2 lower than last night, Western Union 1⅝ and People's Gas 1½. New York Central then rose rapidly 2¼ and Erie 1⅝ over last night, and the market rallied briskly. Toledo St. Louis & Western gained 3 in all. The advances were not fully held.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street.

Closing prices are bid.

Midway Horse Market.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 13.—Barrett & Zimmerman report: Trade active in tone, both logging horses and farm horses met with good call. Carload shipments were made to Northome, Minn., Lake Preston, S. D., and Rolette, N. D. Country buyers are getting into the market earlier than last year, which is a good indication that the spring demand will be heavy from that source.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 13, 1909.

Now then you are again wondering what Calumet & Sonora is going to do. Here is a stock now selling at $20.50 and it is worth $100.00 a share easy; 47,000 shares at $20.00 only represents a value of $940,000 and the Duluth-Sonora stock belonging to the Calumet & Sonora company is almost worth this alone. To my best friends I again say buy Calumet & Sonora with every dollar you can beg or borrow. We mean every word of this and the stock should be the biggest money-maker of anything put on in recent years. This office does not advise the purchase of dead ones.

Ballaklava should be bought for it should in time become one of the biggest producers in the Butte camp. It closed $15.00 bid.

Butte-Montana is without question one of the best buys on the board and will come along one of these days. Buy it at 50 cents for the stock is worth $2.50 in real value.

Calumet & Corbin strong at $1.75 bid. Arizona-Michigan strong at $1.62½ to $1.75.

Superior & Globe wanted in thousands at $1.31.

Copper Queen very strong at $1.62½. We can use 3,000 shares of this issue.

GAIN WOMAN ARRAIGNED

Charged in Federal Court With Harboring Alien Women.

In anticipation of something of a sensational nature being brought out in federal court, before Judge Morris, this afternoon, the court room was crowded when Madame Mary Gain was arraigned before Judge Morris.

She waived the reading of the complaint, which charged her with harboring alien women. She has until Tuesday of next week to enter her plea, and the time allowance was taken by her attorneys, McMahon & Rock.

The proceedings occupied less than two minutes and the court room was cleared as soon as they were over.

Clementine Dailley, the French woman arrested by Inspector in Charge of the Local Immigration Office William H. Dean, is being held as a witness, although the inspector has secured the order for her deportation.

• • •

The January term of federal court is now open. The grand jury was sworn in, and this morning began their work at once.

The criminal calendar is very light.

Memorials of respect to the late Roger S. Powell and Henry Mahon, attorneys of the court, were presented and ordered spread upon the records of the court.

The land cases Nos. 32 to 42 and 46 to 48 inclusive, were demurred to, and several minor matters were referred to referees.

This afternoon the case of Matti Simis vs. the Tower Lumber company was called. Simis was injured some time ago while at work for the lumber company, and he asks $5,000 as a result.

Dr. E. L. Twohy was on the stand testifying as to the extent of the injuries late this afternoon.

Will Represent Club.

Maj. H. V. Eva, secretary of the Duluth Commercial club, and B. P. Neff will represent the club at the meeting of the federated commercial clubs of the state, which opens at Minneapolis tomorrow. It is hoped to secure an appropriation from the state legislature to adequately advertise the resources of Minnesota.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of Two Thousand four hundred six and 25-100 dollars, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Freeman Keen and Annie Keen, his wife, Mortgagors, to Miah T. Hulett, Mortgagee, bearing date the 15th day of January, 1896, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of St. Louis and State of Minnesota, on the 6th day of September, 1906, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 194 of Mortgages, on page 425.

Which said Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was assigned by said Miah T. Hulett, Mortgagee, to Mrs. L. P. Hulett, by written assignment dated the 12th day of June, 1901, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds, on the 6th day of September, 1906, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 189 of mortgages, on page 233.

Which Mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was assigned by said Mrs. L. P. Hulett, the Assignee and Holder thereof, to E. F. Alford by written assignment dated the 21st day of April, 1904, and recorded on the 6th day of September, 1906, at 11 o'clock A. M., in Book 201 of Mortgages, page 149; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said Mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz:

Lots five (5) and six (6) in Block Twelve (12) and Lot six (6) in Block nineteen (19) in Hazelwood Addition to Oneota, in St. Louis County and State of Minnnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Duluth, in said County and State, on the 28th day of January, 1909, at 10 o'clock A. M., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt of $2,406.25, and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated December 15th, A. D. 1908.

CONTEST NOTICE.

Department of the Interior. United States Land Office.

Duluth, Minn., December, 12, 1908.

A sufficient contest affidavit having been filed in this office by Ella A. Cameron, contestant, against homestead entry No. 15353, made October 12, 1901, for NE¼ SW¼, S½ SW¼ SW¼ SE¼ Section 25, Township 63 N., Range 19 W., by Joseph Winderl, Contestee, in which it is alleged that said Joseph Winderl has wholly abandoned said land for at least two and one half years last past and during that time has failed to cultivate or improve the land; and that said alleged absence from said land was not due to his employment in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps of the United States during any war, said parties are notified to appear, respond and offer evidence touching said allegation at 9 o'clock a. m. on February 8, 1909 before the Register and Receiver at the United States Land Office in Duluth, Minn.

The said contestant having, in a proper affidavit, filed November 30, 1908, set forth facts which show that after due diligence personal service of this notice cannot be made, it is hereby ordered and directed that such notice be given by due and proper publication.

ASK RETURN OF THE CASH

City Has Brought Suit Against Dr. John McKay.

Demands $2,190 for the Illegal Sale of Fire Horses.

Papers will be filed in district court this afternoon in a suit brought by the city of Duluth against Dr. John McKay and his partners in the Duluth Horse company, Messrs. Elliott and Runquist, to compel the company to return to the municipality $2,190 secured through the sale of fire horses to the city by Dr. McKay, through the company, when he was acting as city veterinarian.

The action is the result of the investigation started by the board of fire commissioners, at the request of other local horse dealers, who charged Dr. McKay with discriminating against them in the sale of horses to the city. There is a provision in the city charter which plainly makes it unlawful for any man drawing a salary from the city, for any service whatever, selling anything to the city.

Dr. McKay admits that while acting in the capacity of veterinarian for the fire department he sold the department horses, through his company, in direct violation of the charter. Last week he resigned his position as veterinarian, and his resignation was accepted by the board of fire commissioners, and the office of city veterinarian was abolished altogether.

The complaint drawn up by City Attorney Wilson alleges that Dr. McKay received $2,190 from the city for the sale to it of five different horses. The charter provides that in a violation of this kind the money obtained by such sales shall be returned to the city.

FEAR MINISTER HAS PERISHED IN STORM.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 13.— Rev. V. T. Tracey, rector of an Episcopal church in Brooklyn, N. Y., is believed to have perished in a snowstorm which recently raged in the Guadaloupe mountains of New Mexico. Rev. Tracey had been visiting his son at Carlsbad, N. M. He was called to Queen, a little settlement sixty miles from the mountains to perform a marriage ceremony and in attempting to get from one ranch to another, became lost in a blinding snowstorm with the thermometer at zero. He has been missing twenty-four hours.

CLIMATE IS HARD ON THE DOCTORS

People Are in Such Good Health There Is No Work.

Duluth is no place for a new doctor to establish himself in the winter time. The climate is too healthful. The practicing physicians who have been established here for years, are most of them finding it hard to keep busy this winter.

"This cold weather appears to agree with the general public," said a leading medical man, yesterday. "There is scarcely any sickness at all, as compared to conditions existing in other cities. I understand there are quite a few cases of diphtheria in Duluth, just now, but no more than one will find in any city of this size, and all other kinds of diseases are so few here now that Duluth is in a class all by herself.

"There hasn't been a case of smallpox in the city since last August, and so far as I can see there is no danger of any developing. People can kick all they want to about cold weather, but health records will show that it is the best possible thing for them. And, while they are kicking, they have to admit that they are in health, with more life, energy and ambition than they ever possess at warmer seasons of the year. There isn't a more healthful city in the country than Duluth."

NELSON HAS TIMBER PLAN.

Bill to Change System of Disposing of Public Timber.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Senator Nelson has introduced an important bill for the disposal of timber on public lands.

It provides for the classification and segration of lands chiefly valuable for timber and stone. Ownership remains in the government. It directs the secretary of agriculture to make a classification and then to sell timber at public auction.

The proceeds are to be divided on a basis of one-fourth of the states in which the lands are located for roads and schools, and three-fourths to be applied to the construction of irrigation works in states where reclamation projects can be constructed.

Where these timber lands are located in states not subject to the federal reclamation act, the fund derived from the sale of timber is to be turned into the general fund of the treasury.

COOK KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

Cold Snap Responsible for Loss of Life at Great Falls.

Great Falls, Mont., Jan. 13.—As one of the results of the colds snap, Miss Anna Johnson, a kitchen maid employed in the Woodbury club, lost her life yesterday. A frozen water pipe, leading from the kitchen range, caused an explosion of the water back of the stove. The kitchen was wrecked, the doors and windows being blown out, and Miss Johnson, who was standing over the stove preparing breakfast, had both legs and arm and her body fearfully mangled.

POLICE FIRE, CATCH ALLEGED CAR THIEF.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 13.—Revolver shots were fired at three alleged freight thieves early today by policemen who had detected them stealing a large amount of merchandise from a freight car. Two of the men escaped, but the third was captured. He gave the name of Peter Donas, and said he recently came here from Milwaukee. The police believe that one of the thieves who escaped, was shot.

HAYWARD WILL HEAD NATIONAL COMMITTEE.

Augusta, Ga., Jan. 13.—Exact precedent is to be followed in the succession of Frank H. Hitchcock as chairman of the Republican national committee. This precedent will place William Hayward, secretary of the committee at its head until the committee elects a chairman at its meeting four years hence in December preceding the next national election.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK BILL IS ADVANCED.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The bill looking to the establishment of postal savings banks was further advanced in the senate today, by the consideration of additional amendments which were accepted for the time being, but will be subject to objection when the measure comes up for final consideration. Senator Rayner presented some constitutional objections to the plans embodied in the bill.

WORK FOR RIVER BILL

Bede and Others Bring Pressure on Senator Burton.

Ohioan Engrossed With Matters Pertaining to Senatorship.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, Jan. 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—There will be a meeting of the rivers and harbors committee of the house Saturday, to determine whether there shall be a river and harbor appropriation bill at this session.

It is understood Chairman Burton, senator-elect from Ohio, is so busy with matters pertaining to his coming senatorial duties, that he is inclined not to wish to be bothered with framing up a river and harbor bill.

The other members of the committee are inclined to be insistent that a bill be had. They are being pressed on every side by those interested in the improvement of the waterways.

Chairman Burton, it is said, is desirous of putting in only a small river and harbor bill, carrying only several millions to make a few surveys, and carrying out contracts now let.

Bede of Duluth, Davidson of Wisconsin, and Ransdell, president of the National River and Harbors' congress, are working to bring about the framing and reporting of a generous bill for waterway improvement. Other influences are also at work to force Burton to get out a generous bill.

"BUTTED IN" AND WAS BUTTED OUT

Andrew Johnson Wasn't Wanted in This Select Little Party.

Fred Hill, a young Finlander, drew a $40 fine, with an alternative of thirty days in jail, in municipal court this morning, before Judge Cutting, because he hit Andrew Johnson with a pair of brass knuckles, in Matlak's saloon, on lower Lake avenue, last night.

Johnson was fined $1 and costs for being drunk, with three days in jail as an alternative. Neither man had enough money to pay the fines this morning. Hill claims he was drinking with a party of friends, when Johnson butted in and tried to "bum" some drinks. He became so persistent that Hill finally silenced him with the brass knuckles, it is claimed.

USED HIS TEETH ON STOREKEEPER

George La Four Is Arrested for Biting F. Petrilla.

George La Four, of Garfield avenue, was arrested last night, because he used his teeth on the hands of F. Petrilla, proprietor of a store at 1611 West Superior street. He pleaded guilty to a drunk and disorderly charge in municipal court this morning, and the court withheld sentence until later in the day.

La Four says he remembers nothing of what occurred while he was intoxicated, and admitted that he might have bitten Petrilla's hands. According to the story told by the latter, La Four was helping himself to tobacco displayed on the show case, and when the store man tried to get him out of the store by politely pushing his open hand against LaFour's face, LaFour got Petrilla's right thumb between his teeth and bit it savagely, until the blood came.

The wounded man jerked his hand away, and shoved forward his left, and La Four repeated the operation, this time placing his teeth on a middle finger, and biting it until the blood came again. This method of fighting was too much for the enraged Petrilla, and a policeman was called. LaFour's face looked like a piece of raw sausage this morning. It was scratched so badly, but the storekeeper denies inflicting any facial damage. LaFour says he doesn't know where else he could have gotten the scratches.

STUDENT DROPS DEAD.

Glenwood, Minn., Jan. 13.—The 18-year old son of Thor Thorson, who resides about four miles north of Brooten, dropped dead in the postoffice here yesterday. He walked in with a companion and was apparently feeling as good as ever, when he fell backward, death being instantaneous. Heart disease was the cause of his death. He was a student at the academy here, and was popular among his classmates.

DEFENSE RESTS IN CASE OF RINEHART.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 13.—The defense rested in the case of J. B. F. Rinehart, former cashier and vice president of the Farmers' & Drovers' National Bank of Waynesburg, Pa., shortly after the trial was resumed today.

This action caused surprise, as it was expected Rinehart, who was on the stand yesterday, would again testify concerning the manner in which the bank failed two years ago for $2,000,000.

When the trial was resumed today, Walter A. Mason of Baltimore, president of the Commercial and Farmers' banks, was called. He said the Baltimore bank and the Waynesburg institution had extensive business relations at times.

FAST FIGHT CARD IS ARRANGED

Barrell Smith and Curley Ulrich Will Mix In Wisconsin Town.

When "Barrell" Smith and Curley Ulrich come together over in Wisconsin Friday, there will be a fast mix.

The men met some time ago on the range, but as neither was in the best of condition the result of the bout was very unsatisfactory to both of them. The fight was at that time declared a draw after fifteen rounds. This time they will keep going for twenty rounds and it is expected that the match will be a thoroughly good one, as both men have been training faithfully for the past six weeks in preparation.

They will weigh in at 142. There will be no decision and straight Marquis of Queensbury rules, one arm free, will govern the match.

In the semi-windup, Eddie Davis of Superior and "Scraps" Costello of Superior will meet in an eight-round sparring bout.

A number of fast preliminaries have been arranged

DEADLOCK IN ILLINOIS ENDS

Legislature Is Notified of Contest Started by Stevenson.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 13.—The deadlock in the Illinois legislature over the canvass of the vote of the state officers, which has tied up activities in Springfield since Thursday, was broken today when the senators crossed the corridor of the state house and took their places in the hall of the house of representatives to witness the canvassing of the returns. The senate took action on the understanding among themselves that their presence in the house was simply to witness the canvass of the returns and was not a joint session which could proceed with a recount. The breaking of the deadlock on the canvass of the vote does not entirely clear the situation as there remains points of difference between the contending forces which have caused turmoil in the legislature since the session opened last week Tuesday. The lines of cleavage between the Shurtleff Republicans and the administration Republicans who attended the Republican caucus are as sharply drawn as ever.

Following the announcement of the canvass of the returns declaring Governor Deneen and the other state officers elected, Representative Lee O'Neil Browne of Ottawa, Democratic leader, was given recognition by the speaker to serve notice of contest of the office of governor against Governor Deneen in behalf of Adlai Stevenson.

RIVALS FOR NEW NORMAL SCHOOL WILL JOIN HANDS FOR A FAVORABLE REPORT

Will Leave Question of Location to be Settled Later.

The Duluth Delegation Is Taking Well in the House.

Drastic Bill Against Manufacture or Sale of Cigarettes.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The chances for the new normal school for Northern Minnesota, which is needed so much, are better today than they ever have been before, and the reason for it is that the two chief rivals for the location of the school, Bemidji and Cass Lake, have agreed to join together in a fight to interest the state at large in the need of the new school, and to leave the vexed question of its location to be settled later.

Two years ago there was a fight for this new normal school, and it ended disastrously, because the rivalry between the several candidates for the site put the cart before the horse by fighting over the location of the school before the legislature had been convinced that a new school was needed. It is needed, and needed badly. The existing schools at Duluth, St. Cloud and Moorhead have about all they can handle, yet there is a large area between them which is utterly unable to

WASHBURN TO ACCEPT

Will Again Take Place on the State Normal Board.

Partisan Hostility to Creation of the Bureau of Lands.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

St. Paul, Minn., Jan 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Partisanship seems to have crept into the consideration of the Works resolution in the senate, providing for a joint committee of six to carry out the idea of Governor Johnson as to the creation of a state bureau of lands, mines and forestry. The Republican senators show hostility to it. Yesterday, when it was introduced, Senator Laybourn of Duluth gave notice of debate and today he moved to have it referred to the judiciary committee.

Senator Clague said he thought it unconstitutional to take away the present powers of the state auditor with reference to the state's resources and the judiciary committee is to pass on that point.

J. L. Washburn of Duluth has decided to accept a reappointment on the state normal board and Louis W. Hill will go upon the highway commission, in spite of the anti-pass law, which forbids their using passes on the railroads by which they are employed. Governor Johnson this morning reappointed Mrs. Robert Seymour of Duluth on the state art commission.

RAISES RATE OF DISCOUNT

Bank of England Puts It at Three Per Cent.

Action Is Due to the Small Gold Reserve.

London, Jan. 14.—The rate of discount of the Bank of England was raised today from 2½ to 3 per cent. This is the first change since May 28 of last year. The increase was generally anticipated and was due to the small gold reserve which last week stood below $100,000,000 being further depleted of nearly $5,000,000 by withdrawals during the past few days for shipment to South America.

Only small amounts of gold have been coming into the country from Egypt and for many months the bank has been unable to obtain the weekly supplies arriving from the mines, as France has been a persistent buyer of the metal presumably in preparation for the new Russian loan.

With the bank's reserve at such a low ebb, the high rate is necessary to attract gold imports as well as check continual demands.

NEW GOVERNOR OF IOWA INAUGURATED

B. F. CARROLL.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 14.—Governor B. F. Carroll was inaugurated today, succeeding Mr. Garst, who was lieutenant governor, and who stepped into the higher office when Cummins was elected senator. Following the inauguration the legislature adjourned until Tuesday.

ROBBER WHO SLEW, DYING

Snatches Diamond Necklace From Woman, Kills Omaha Policeman.

Another Woman Dangerously Shot, and Detective May Die.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 14.—Policeman L. A. Smith is dead, Detective W. G. Deveresse is probably fatally injured, Albert Clarke is fatally hurt and Betsy Smith is dangerously shot as the result of an attempt by Clarke to hold up Anna Wilson's place on Ninth street early today.

Clarke entered the Wilson place, and at the point of a revolver commanded the inmates to hold up their hands. He then snatched a diamond necklace from the neck of the Wilson woman and escaped to the street.

Betsy Smith followed him and Clarke fired a shot into her shoulder, inflicting a dangerous wound. Her screams brought Patrolman Smith to the scene, and Clarke began shooting at him, firing two bullets into his body.

Smith returned the fire and one bullet took effect in the leg, but Clarke escaped to the Douglas street bridge across the Missouri river.

The shooting, which occurred two blocks from the police stattion, brought a squad of police and the patrol to the scene. Smith was dead when they arrived.

An hour later the robber was located on the bridge by Detectives Deveresse and Heitfeldt. As the officers came up to the robber, he began firing, one bullet hitting Deveresse in the stomach. Heitfeldt shot the robber twice in the stomach.

The wounded officer and robber were hurried to the emergency hospital, where the robber gave his name as Albert Clarke, and said he came from Denver three days ago. Physicians say Deveresse may live, but there is no chance for Clarke's recovry.

BRAINERD BOY TURNED LOOSE

Jury Fails to Convict Youth of Killing Another Boy.

Brainerd, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—After being out from 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon until 9:30 this morning a jury in the district court found Ralph Morey, aged 10, not guilty of killing John Bushway, another boy.

The defense was that Morey was a degenerate and incapable of committing the crime. From the time of the shooting Morey has not evidenced the slightest remorse over his deed and played about the court room during the entire trial.

The verdict is severely criticised because it practically leaves the boy at large without restraint, as his parents have never exercised control over him. That the boy is not especially bright is certain, but that he is dangerous to be permitted to be at large is evident. There is still an indictment for larceny hanging over the boy, but it is not known what disposition will be made of it.

BRIDE'S PRESENT $100,000 CHECK

Beatrice Mills, Marrying Earl, Carries Prayer Book, Not Bouquet.

New York, Jan. 14.—The marriage this afternoon of the earl of Granard and Beatrice Mills, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills and niece of Ambassador Reid, was one of the season's social events of importance. The bride is grand daughter of D. O. Mills, the financier and philanthropist. The earl of Granard is master of horse to King Edward of Great Britain and the head of the royal equerries, which confers upon him the right to a seat in the king's carriage on state occasions.

A temporary altar was erected in the Louis XV room of the Mills residence in West Sixty-ninth street for the marriage ceremony, which was performed by Bishop Thomas J. Cusack of St. Stephen's Catholic church. The bride wore a white satin empire gown, with a veil fastened with orange blossoms and carried a prayer book instead of a bouquet. She was attended by Miss Alice Astor, daughter of Col. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor.

The gifts to the bride included a check from her father for $100,000. Her mother gave her a tiarra of pearls and diamonds with tips of pear shaped pearls and diamonds.

ANNAND IS ELECTED BY VETERINARIANS.

St. Paul, Minn. Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.) — The twelfth annual meeting of the Minnesota State Veterinary Medical association is being held in the Merchants hotel and about sixty members are present. Officers were elected as follows:

President, Dr. C. E. Cotton, Minneapolis; first vice president, Dr. J. P. Anderson, Rochester; second vice president, Dr. J. G. Annand, Duluth; secretary and treasurer, J. E. Leech, Winona.

A banquet was enjoyed last night. The July meet will be held in Stillwater.

INHERITANCE TAX AIDED

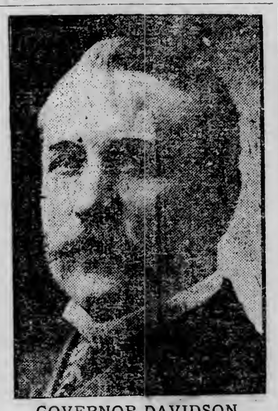

Governor Davidson Would Amend Law to Help Enforcement.

Advises Discretion in Dealing With Income Levy Law.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 14.—The law governing taxation, Governor Davidson said in his message today, should be amended so as to forbid additions being placed on the general property of the state based on the fact that personal property is not reached by the local assesors.

The subject of income tax is pointed to as a matter requiring no small measure of legislative wisdom in successfully dealing with it.

The inheritance tax law should be so amended, he says, so as to require the district attorneys of the several counties to assist the attorney general in enforcing the collection of the tax.

The public utilities statute should be amended the governor says, so as to permit all corporations organized before the act took effect and subject to its provisions, to surrender their franchises at any time, as a receive in lieu thereof, an indeterminate permit. He favors the placing of railroad crossings of all kinds under the jurisdiction of the railroad rate commission.

Some way should be devised, he says, by which expenditures by candidates for office may be limited.

The governor urges that Lincoln's birthday be made a legal holiday.

Greater discretionary power to the commissioner of banking is suggested with respect to excessive loans to officers and directors of banks, and to enterprises in which such officers are financially interested.

JAP CRUISERS MAY COME TO AMERICA.

Tokio, Jan. 14.—There has been no decision reached here concerning the visit of any Japanese naval vessels to America. In any event only two cruisers of the training squadron will go. If the trip is made it will be of a purely educational nature.

TOPEKA'S FAMOUS HOTEL BURNS, GUESTS LEAP FROM WINDOWS, MAN IS MISSING

Dozen or More Injured in Escaping From Flames.

Legislators and Other Politicians Caught in the Copeland.

Bed Clothes Used in Thrilling Flights From Building.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 14.—The Copeland hotel, a famous stopping place for legislators and politicians, and situated at Ninth and Kansas avenues, a block from the state capitol, was destroyed by a fire that started shortly after 4 this morning. Every room was occupied, the guests numbering about 100, among them many persons of prominence throughout the state. The flames burned with such remarkable rapidity that most of the occupants were forced to make their escape by way of the fire escapes. Many jumped to save their lives and received more or less serious injuries.

The loss is estimated at $100,000.

A dozen persons were injured, suffering broken limbs and bruises, and one person is missing.

The missing:

I. E. LAMBERT of Emporia, a prominent politician.

The Copeland hotel was of brick construction, four stories in height. It was one of the oldest hostelries in the state. It had a roomy lobby and wide hallways, and was plentifully supplied with fire escapes. The main stairway, however, was built around the elevator, and the flames, shooting up the shaft, soon shut off this means of escape. Every room was occupied, the guests

SHIVELY IS THE WINNER

Ex-Representative Will be Next Senator From Indiana.

Beats Kern in Democratic Caucus and Succeeds Hemenway.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 14.—B. F. Shively of South Bend was nominated for United States senator at 2 o'clock this morning by the Democratic caucus of the Indiana legislature. The balloting required five hours, Shively being named on the twentieth ballot. The hottest rival was John W. Kern, who received thirty-five votes on the final ballot. The four other candidates, E. G. Hoffman, Maj. G. V. Menzies, J. Ert Slack and John E. Lamb were before the caucus until the decision.

When it became apparent to the Kern forces that he could win, an attempt was made by them to adjourn, but it failed. The Kern supporters had previously lost the first battle of the caucus, when a proposition to have an open ballot was defeated.

Unusual secrecy was maintained at the caucus, members of the legislature being forbidden to leave the hall except under guard. Early in the caucus candidates were forbidden to send notes to their floor managers.

Mr. Shively is a lawyer of South

ARCHBISHOP AND THREE BISHOPS IN MARRIAGE RITE

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 14.—One of the most impressive wedding ceremonies ever witnessed by Chicago society took place today in Holy Name cathedral, when Archbishop Quigley united in marriage Miss Blanche Plamondon of Chicago, and J. Henry Smith of Newark, N. J. The bride is a daughter of Charles A. Plamondon, and Mr. Smith is associated with his father, Former United States Senator James B. Smith, in the publication of the Star, in Newark. Archbishop Quigley was assisted by Bishops Hennessy of Kansas, Muldoon of Illinois and O'Connor of New Jersey. Over thirty guests from Newark, New York and other Eastern cities were present.

BEDE FULL OF IRONY

Suggests Secret Service Men Watch Children at Play.

Tawney Introduces Bill for Improvement of Missouri River.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Minnesota congressmen figured somewhat extensively in the proceedings of the house yesterday.

During the discussion of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, the talk turned upon whether there should be supervision over the children when on the public playgrounds. Mr. Gaines of Tennessee was among those who led in opposing an appropriation for that purpose, arguing that children naturally took to out-door games and do not need a teacher to show them how to play leap-frog.

Adam Bede of Minnesota, in favoring the proposition, in a characteristic speech, declared that supervision was needed. He said that if there were any secret service men not otherwise engaged, they might be employed to look after the children. The amendment was adopted 65 to 62.

Representative Tawney introduced a bill to authorize an appropriation of $20,000,000 for permanent improvement of the Mississippi river between the mouth of the Missouri and St. Paul. The bill provides that $2,000,000 shall be appropriated annually for this purpose.

SHIPS ARE SENT ON TO MESSINA

Wireless Order Received for Illinois, Wisconsin and Kearsarge.

Malta, Jan. 14.—The American battleship Illinois while on the way from Suez to Malta with the battleships Wisconsin and Kearsarge received orders by wireless telegraph dated Naples from Rear Admiral Sperry, commander of the American fleet, to proceed forthwith to Messina, probably to assist in the work of relief.

Shocks in Tyrol.

Vienna, Jan. 14.—Slight earthquake shocks were felt yesterday in Southern Austria and Tyrol. The disturbances extended from Sarajove in Southeastern Bosnia to Meran in the Tyrol.

Among other places where the shocks were felt were Trieste, Pola and Trient.

King Receives Sperry.

Rome, Jan. 14.—King Victor Emmanuel received Rear Admiral Sperry in private audience at the Quirinal palace today. His majesty conversed in English for more than half an hour regarding the voyage of the fleet, which he regarded as a most remarkable achievement. He had followed its movements even to details.

The king expressed deep appreciation for what America has done for Italy in relief for those who suffered in the earthquake. The Italian people, he said, would never forget the manifestation. His majesty alluded to the energy and ability shown by Mr. Griscom, the American ambassador, in sending succor.

NEWGARD'S INJURIES RESULT IN HIS DEATH.

Devils Lake, N. D., Jan. 14.—A. A. Newgard of Munich, who was injured in an accident by being struck by a Great Northern engine while driving along the railroad track, died at the hospital as a result of his injuries. Newgard's skull was fractured. The deceased was a merchant at Munich, and formerly was in business at Minot.

HAINS JURY GETS CASE

Juror Injured in Accident Remains at His Post.

Counsel for Defendant Makes Eloquent End to Plea.

Flushing, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Within twenty-four hours Thornton Jenkins Hains, probably, will know whether he has been adjudged innocent or guilty of the charge of aiding his brother, Capt. Peter C. Hains in the killing of William E. Annis.

Justice Crane told Prosecutor Darrin this morning that he wanted to give the case to the jury some time today. The state's attorney said that he hoped to conclude his closing address early in the afternoon. Justice Crane's charge will take over an hour.

Juror Walsh, who was injured in a street car accident, was able to go on with the trial today. Hains expresses himself as confident in his acquittal, though his face shows he is struggling with torturing fear.

Closing his speech to the jury, in defense of Hains, Lawyer McIntyre said:

"I am now at the end. You're the judges of the fact. You are the

JOHNSON TO BE ELECTED

To United States Senate by North Dakota Legislature.

Primary Law on Senatorship Is Likely to be Changed.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—With the date for the election of a United States senator but a few days off, the subject is one that is not being given a great deal of consideration by the members of the legislature. The election of M. N. Johnson of Nelson county on the first ballot is a foregone conclusion, and there is a question now whether the Republicans will even go into caucus for the purpose of first considering the election.

M. N. Johnson has not appeared on the scene as yet, but it is understood that he will arrive here about Sunday. The election takes place on next Tuesday, at which time the house and senate ballot separately, meeting in joint session the following day for the purpose of comparing the vote and issuing the certificate of election. Johnson's will be the only name presented, with the exception of the Democratic nominee, J. L. Cashel of Walsh county.

Charges were filed against Brig. Gen. Poole, late adjutant general, this afternoon, by Judge Advocate Hildreth. They charge the defendant, who must appear before a court-martial on Jan. 25, with disobedience of orders and conduct unbecoming an officer in the removal of military records. The governor ordered the court-martial on Wednesday evening, also securing a writ of prohibition from the court restraining the district court from interfering by the issuance of an injunction.

The penitentiary investigation resolution, adopted by the senate Wednesday afternoon, will probably be amended in the house this afternoon to give the latter a majority on the committee. Charges of mismanagement by the former and present administrations have been made in the past few years, and the investigation resolution is the outcome.

The bill introduced in the house by Representative Skulason covering the primary election law proposition, provided for a radically different manner of selection of candidates for United States senator by establishing the first and second choice feature and doing away with the holding of a second primary election. The bill presented would fix the election of United States senator along the general plan as now in force with the exception that instead of voting for only one candidate, the voter would place his cross after his first and his second choice for the position. No vote would be counted unless the voter had indicated both first and second choices. In the counting of the votes, if any candidate had more than 40 per cent of the first choice votes, he would be declared nominated. If no candidate had 40 per cent of the votes cast, the second choice votes would be counted and added to the first choice votes and the man then having the highest number of votes would be declared the nominee. The pledge to support the party nominee for United States senator is made optional with a candidate for the legislature.

The election of the judges of the supreme court is also provided for in a much different manner, placing the bench upon a non-partisan basis. All candidates for the position of justice of the supreme court or judge of the district court would be placed on the primary ballots of all parties, being grouped irrespective of party affiliations.

Another important measure provides for an appropriation of $153,000 for the state university. Of this amount, $100,000 is asked for the construction of a teachers' college building, $50,000 for a boarding hall and $3,000 for repairs to the science hall. Senator J. G. Gunderson of Nelson county is the father of the measure.

Probably the first bill that will be passed this present session is a constitutional amendment referring to the method of investing school funds. Two years ago there was an amendment to the constitution, but the remedy adopted was not quite what was needed. In order that some $200,000 worth of bonds may be taken up immediately under its provisions, the new measure has been proposed. There is no question but what it will be passed as the people have already voted favorably upon it.

The amendment to the constitution by which supreme court judges would be elected to terms of ten years, instead of six years, as at present, provides that the change be made in 1912 and that the judges who are then on the bench shall draw lots for the purpose of determining the time which they shall remain in office.

Speaker Burdick has taken a strong stand with reference to house employes. It has been claimed in past years that legislative clerkships have been more positions of graft than anything else, and that the occupants seldom if ever, did any work. This year a great change has been made by Speaker Burdick, who seems to be determined that everyone shall do his or her share of the labors. The number of clerkships has been cut down considerably and the duties of many of the clerks have been doubled by the addition of new committee work.

In the senate the same condition exists in the matter of work. Secretary Foley having etsablished strict discipline which he proposes to maintain during the entire session.

When Clearance Time Comes 'Round Prices Don't Stand Much Show at Gidding's!

This is the store where women expect and demand that things shall be exactly "up-to-the-mark" in style. We meet that demand by making every season see the last of its own garments. With the heavy stocks we carry, this means that we must resort to excessive price-cutting. It's a costly plan, but the ultimate results justify the policy.

GRAND JURY PROBED THE GAMBLING EVIL

"Bob" Haire Charged With Conducting a Gambling Resort.

Other Indictments May be Made Public in Near Future.

Robert H. ("Bob") Haire, a retail cigar dealer at 15 Second avenue west, was arraigned before Judge Ensign in district court this morning on an indictment returned by the January grand jury charging him with allowing gambling devices to be used for gambling on his premises. The specific occasion named is Aug. 20, 1908. Haire's bonds were fixed at $500, and he was released on furnishing them. He will plead to the indictment tomorrow.

Though the January grand jury made no recommendations or suggestions in its final report returned yesterday, it took drastic action to stop the gaming, which is said to be going on in Duluth.

The grand jury, which just competed its sessions, is said to have made a thorough investigation of the subject. The extent of its findings is not known. Thus far, the indictment against Haire is the only one that has been made public. If there are others, the accused men have not yet been taken into custody.

Policemen, detectives and men who have visited gambling places were brought before the grand jury and examined. The revelations are said to have justified indictments. Gambling has been going on in Duluth on no inconsiderable scale, it is said, and the grand jurors decided to take action that would be a notice to the gamblers that they would not be tolerated.

"Bob" Haire is well known in Duluth. For several years he conducted a cigar store on the first floor of the Palladio building. Last year he moved to Second avenue west. The grand jury charges that in the rear of his cigar store poker tables were kept in operation, and his trial is expected to bring out some interesting developments.

Mayor Haven and Chief of Police Troyer have repeatedly said that they were doing all in their power to keep the gamblers in check. The difficulty of securing evidence has been the sticking point. Rumors have been persistent, but the police department has been unable to work on rumors. The gambling places said to be in existence are in back rooms, difficult of access by anybody, and entirely inaccessible to anybody connected with the police department. It is believed the action of the grand jury in investigating the matter and bringing indictments against alleged offenders will have the effect which the efforts of the police department have failed to bring about.

GANG OF BURGLARS IS OPERATING IN DULUTH

Three Buildings Broken Into in One Night.

Police Arrest One Man as He "Plants" Stolen Goods.

THE BURGLARIES.

Burns Lumber company's office, located at Seventeenth avenue east and London Road, $8.89.

John Carlson's saloon, 507 West Superior street, $20 cash, thirty-five bottles of whisky, three violins, and one accordion.

C. A. Gustafson's hardware store, 1829 West Michigan street, five rifles, two complete sets of table silverware, four dollar watches.

Burglars worked last night from Seventeenth avenue east to Eighteenth avenue west, getting away with about $20 in cash, a large amount of whisky, several boxes of cigars, a line of rifles, and same musical instruments.

It is believed a large band of burglars is working the city. Detectives Scoulte and Irvine caught what they believe to be one of the gang in the West end this morning. Just prior to his arrest, the detectives saw him "plant" some of the stolen articles. There seems to be no doubt that he is one of the gang, but he refuses steadfastly to make any admissions, and loudly protests his innocence. He gave his name as John Nelson. The same man served a term of sixty days in the county jail about three years ago for the theft of a lot of iron from the Clyde Iron works, where he was employed at the time of the theft.

With one of the gang in their grasp, the police expect to be able to round up the others, and are bending their every effort to accomplish this end. It is thought probable that James Baldwin, arrested yesterday, charged with the theft of jewelry from Esterly's store in the Spalding building, is one of the gang, and that his confederate, who made his escape before the arrival of the police, is another. It is believed the same gang is responsible for the attempted safe breaking in the Fifield-Shea shoe store Tuesday night.

Are Professionals.

It is believed by the police that the gang is composed, in part, at least, of professionals. While they use no explosives in breaking open safes, they seemed to know how to go at the work. The only reason they failed to break open the safe in the Fifield-Shea store Tuesday night is said to be that the affair is of ancient design, with a curious network of bolts attached to the combination, that is entirely different from that used on safes of today.

The robbers gained entrance to the office of the Burns Lumber company, Seventeenth avenue east and London road, by means of a small window. Evidently they used sledge hammers on the safe combination, for it was broken off, and the bolts broken in such a way that the safe opened. There was only $8.89 in it, however, and they made off with that.

The Saloon Burglary.

At the John Carlson saloon on the Bowery, 507 West Superior street, the burglars did not have to break open a safe, but secured about $20 cash from the till. They also went through the stock of whisky, selected thirty-five bottles of the choicest brands, together with a few bottles of wine, and three or four boxes of cigars. In addition to this loot, they encountered three violins and an accordian, used for the entertainment of patrons of the place, and took them along. All these articles were missing when the bartender opened up the place this morning. The men gained entrance through a back window.

The burglars got into the C. A. Gustafson hardware store, 1829 West Michigan street, through a back window. They took five rifles, two complete set of table silverware, and four $1 watches.

From the varied assortment of the articles stolen, it seems evident that the thieves must have a good-sized "plant" somewhere in the city.

The fact that Nelson, arrested this morning, indulged too freely in the stolen whisky, probably led to his downfall, for he came very bold, and sauntered forth into the daylight, carrying a bundle of clothes under his arm.

It so happened that Detectives Irvine and Schulte were in the West end, looking into the robbery of the hardware store. The eye of Detective Schulte caught sight of Nelson, as the latter was crossing Michigan street, and making in the direction of the Garfield avenue viaduct. The fact that the man carried the bundle, and disappeared under the shadowy viaduct with it, led the two detectives to believe that the case might be worth investigating.

They hurried forward and met Nelson, doubling back on his tracks, without the bundle. It was evident at a glance that he had hidden it under the viaduct and a search revealed its hiding place. It consisted of an overcoat, probably stolen, wrapped around the lost accordian, a box of cigars, and three bottles of whisky. In the pocket of the overcoat was between $19 and $20 in cash, which is believed to have been taken from the Carlson place.

In spite of the plain case against him, Nelson denies all knowledge of the thefts. The police say he could not have operated alone, because of the large amount of stuff taken from each place. Just how he got separated from his companions, can only be guessed at. He was not drunk when arrested, but it was evident that he was feeling the effects of the liquor he had swallowed.

When arrested, Nelson had in his pocket a corkscrew stolen from the Carlson saloon.

ROSY AND PLUMP.

Good Health From Right Food.

"It's not a new food to me," remarked a Va. man, in speaking of Grape-Nuts.

"About twelve months ago my wife was in very bad health, could not keep anything on her stomach. The Doctor recommended milk, half water, but it was not sufficiently nourishing.

"A friend of mine told me one day to try Grape-Nuts and cream. The result was really marvelous. My wife soon regained her usual strength and today is as rosy and plump as when a girl of sixteen.

"These are plain facts and nothing I could say in praise of Grape-Nuts would exaggerate in the least, the value of this great food."

VAN OVERTURNS; DRIVER IS HURT

As a result of the overturning of one of the West Duluth & Duluth Transfer company's vans this morning, in an alley between Third and Fourth streets, on Lake avenue, the driver William Duggan, who boards at 1222 East First street, lies at St. Mary's hospital with a badly sprained back.

The accident, which occured shortly before noon today, happened as Duggan was turning out from the alley on the avenue. The turn was made too quickly and the box, which it is said, was not fastened to the sleigh, tipped over. Duggan was buried beneath both the huge load of furniture and the sleigh.

Willing hands helped to uncover him, and when it was found that he was badly hurt, the ambulance was summoned and the injured man taken to St. Mary's hospital, where it is reported that his injuries, while painful, are not serious.

EXTRAVAGANCE IN MANAGEMENT CHARGED.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The question whether the Equitable Life Assurance society has been extravagantly managed, was under consideration yesterday in the supreme court of the United States in connection with the suit of J. Wilcox Brown, on behalf of himself and 560,000 other policy holders asking for a general accounting and appointment of a receiver.

It was contended on behalf of Brown that as the society is conducted on the mutual plan, he and all other policy holders are entitled to participate in the surplus profits, but he contended that it had not been so extensive as it should have been

RESORTS ARE STILL OPEN

The claim is made that there are only three disorderly houses in the St. Croix avenue district out of the sixteen, which operated there up to the first of the year, that are not at present in operation, despite the order of Mayor Haven, directing the closing for business of all such resorts.

No claim is made that there are as many girls in the district as there were before the mayor's order became effective, but in almost every house there are said to be from three to seven or eight.

GRAND ARMY CAMP FIRE.

Large Attendance at Old Soldiers Meeting at Pilgrim Church.

There was a large attendance at the camp fire of the Grand Army posts and auxiliaries of Duluth, held last night in the lecture room of the Pilgrim Congregational church. The meeting was in the nature of a reception for Department Commander Marcus W. Bates, during whose closing speech it was announced that Comrade Weaver had died suddenly in an adjoining room.

W. H. Smallwood was chairman of the meeting, and there were many rousing patriotic speeches. The invocation was pronounced by Rev. N. L. Upham, and the address of welcome was made by Rev. Alexander Milne.

"How We Were Lead at Toledo," was the subject on which Stanley W. Higgins spoke. William I. Prince spoke on "A Patriotic Citizen," Paul Gilbert sang "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," and a number of sketches were given by John Harrison, Dr. C. E. French talked on "Hospital Service in the Spanish-American War," and there was a patriotic address delivered by Orton S. Clark, assistant adjutant general of the Grand Army, who came from Minneapolis for the occasion.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. John Polski of 727 East Second street announce the engagement of their daughter, Agnes Polski, to Peter Volaszek of Grand Rapids, Mich. Miss Polski has been the organist at St. Peter and St. Paul's church for the past five years, and is well known here. The wedding will take place Tuesday, Jan. 26 at St. Mary's church, Fourth avenue east and Third street. Rev. S. A. Ieiek will perform the ceremony. Following the wedding there will be a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Police Court Grist.

John Esterlund and Fred Emerson, charged with the theft of $5 from Mike Johnson, the night of Jan. 9, on St. Croix avenue, were found guilty in municipal court this morning, before Judge Windom, and were sentenced to serve eighty-five days each in jail, with an alternative of a $75 fine in each case.

Minnie Esterlund, wife of John, was sentenced to serve forty days in jail. It was not claimed that she took any part in the robbery, but she had broken her promise to the police, made in October, that she would leave town for good, and never return, and so was sent to jail.

The testimony this morning showed that Esterlund and Emerson had taken the money from Johnson by force, throwing him down on the ground and going through his pockets. Esterlund is about 25 years old, and his wife is 45.

James Lahey and Frank Brackett, two vagrants, were given until 3 o'clock this afternoon to leave town. Lahey is an ex-convict, having been released from the Wisconsin state prison recently. If the men fail to leave the city, Lahey will have a fifteen-day jail sentence to serve, and Brackett will be placed behind the bars for ten days.

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. I.

Dr. Hartman is now offering Peruna to the public as a regular pharmaceutical product. It is just as ethical as any compound put up for the medical profession. No straining of medical ethics can find any fault with it. THE PRINCIPAL ACTIVE INGREDIENTS are prominently incorporated in the label on the bottle, that the people may know that the claims made for Peruna have a true justification.

The only departure we shall make from medical ethics in the conduct of Peruna affairs in the future, is the fact that we shall continue to advertise and sell our product TO THE PEOPLE.

If we would agree to sell to doctors only, to advertise for doctors only, then the medical fraternity would be obliged to recognize Peruna as being entirely within their approval.

BUT WE SHALL NOT DO THIS.

We shall continue to offer Peruna to the people. We shall continue to convey to the people our claims for Peruna as a household remedy. We shall continue to supply the people with free literature, teaching them how to use our medicine, teaching them how to avoid disease, teaching them many things of benefit to the home. We shall continue to do this, whether the medical profession like it or not.

We are proposing from this time on to take the public into our confidence. Notwithstanding that some imitators and substitutors will be attempting to put up something which they consider just as good as Peruna, we are going to draw aside the veil of secrecy and allow any one who chooses to know exactly OF WHAT PERUNA IS COMPOSED.

This ought to disarm all honest criticism. We expect, however, that criticism will continue. On some pretext or other those who are envious of the success of Peruna will continue to find fault. But we are determined to give such people no just complaint. PERUNA IS A GREAT MEDICINE. It has become a household word in millions of homes. Our faith in the remedy is stronger than ever. Every year we expect to cover new fields in foreign lands until the people of all the world are supplied with this valuable household remedy.

People Who Object to Liquid Medicines Can Now Secure Peruna Tablets.

WE CLAIM PERUNA TO BE A CATARRH REMEDY. Buy a bottle and try it. If it helps you, be honest and acknowledge that it has helped you.

If you want us to we will publish your statement exactly as you furnish it to us. We will add no words, take away no words. If you wish us to we will publish your portrait in connection with it. We will not do this without your written request, without your entire consent.

Peruna has benefited thousands of people afflicted with chronic catarrh, in many phases and locations. At least, that is what the people say to us, through unsolicited testimonials. Many thousand more will reap benefit from Peruna in spite of fabricated slanders to the contrary.

WE GUARANTEE EVERY BOTTLE OF PERUNA TO CONTAIN THE INGREDIENTS PRINTED ON THE LABEL.

We have taken great pains that every testimonial we use should be absolutely true, in the exact language of the testifier.

We have taken great pains that every photograph published should be the photograph of the person whose name it bears, that every word of every testimonial should be authorized by the hand that signed it.

We are determined to beat our opponents by being fairer than they are, by dealing squarer than they dare to. We are determined to meet falsehood with truth, duplicity with candor, insincerity with sincerity.

We know that the users of Peruna will appreciate our stand. We believe that the dealers in Peruna will applaud our course. We expect even our opponents will be obliged to acknowledge finally that Peruna is not only an honest and useful remedy, but one of the GREATEST HOUSEHOLD MEDICINES ON THE CONTINENT.

RICH ONE DEFENDANT.

Seward Webb of Palace Car Fame Must Answer in Court.

St. Paul, Minn. Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Seward Webb, one time president of the Wagner Palace Car company, and son-in-law of the famous New York railroad manager, W. H. Vanderbilt, is made one of the defendants in a suit about to be begun in the district court. The title of the case is William Humphrey against the Monida & Yellowstone Stage Coach company, of which Mr. Webb is the principal owner.

Other suits have been filed against this company one of which was recently tried in the district court. The present suit involves the ownership of $40,000 worth of stock, which Humphrey claims defendants hold, but to which he is entitled.

Judge Oscar Hallam was appealed to today by the defendant's attorneys, and upon their request has made Humphrey furnish a bond to cover the costs of the suit, should he be defeated.

DULUTH MUSIC CO.,

EDMUND G. CHAPMAN, Mgr. 222 W. FIRST STREET.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

At the special meeting of the Women's council which was held this morning at the club room of the library, it was decided to request Dr. Patton, health officer, to speak before the council and the members of the clubs represented in it, at a special mass meeting to be held at the library the first Friday in February. The council members desire advice and instruction along the many lines of civic health. For several years the council has desired to undertake the work of securing an abatement of the smoke nuisance, but the method of work has never been clear enough before them to warrant any very active measures. No effective legislation has been secured in any city unless the work originated from the office of the health department. The council wishes to learn more of this, of the medical inspecton of schools and of the conditions surrounding other women and children workers in the city. Efforts will be made by the council to have the meeting largely attended.

It was also decided at this morning's meeting that the resolutions passed at the civic banquet at the Spalding last Saturday be sent to the boards most actively interested in the work. The resolutions were relative to the establishment this year of vacation schools as a part of the public school system of Duluth; the medical inspection of schools, and the organization of an associated charities.

The report of the banquet committee was presented by Miss Jean Poirier. The banquet was a great success, and a vote of thanks was given Miss Poirier for her efforts in arranging the details. A slight deficit was announced, and this will be met as in former years by voluntary contributions from the clubs. Some little confusion has resulted from the fact that only 164 tickets are accounted for, and that 171 persons dined.

It was decided to have an historian for the council, and Mrs. Julia M. Barnes, corresponding secretary, was named for the remainder of this year.

The council decided to use its efforts with the state senators and representatives of this district to secure a large appropriation at this year's meeting of the legislature for the building and maintenance of the girls' training schol at Sauk Center. If the appropriation is not made at this session, it will be postponed until 1911, and the club women of of the state are working energetically to secure the large appropriation. A committee of the president, Mrs. W. S. Woodbridge, Mrs. W. H. Burris and Mrs. Z. D. Scott was named to communicate with the legislators, as representatives of the council, in regard to the matter, and George W. Buck was especially marked as being a member of the appropriation committee.

Getty - Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Worth, whose wedding took place Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, will leave tomorrow for Detroit, Mich., where they will be at home. The bride was formerly Miss Mary Theresa Getty and the wedding ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Getty of 511 East Fourth street. The attendants were Miss Ruth and William Getty. The wedding service was read by Rev. M. S. Rice of the First Methodist church.

Resume Study.

The January meeting of the Women's auxiliary of Trinity Pro-Cathedral was held yesterday afternoon with Mrs. S. L. Reichert of East Fourth street. Mrs. Beckwith gave a resume of domestic current events and Mrs. F. C. Berry spoke of foreign current events. The regular study of "Christus Redemption" was resumed with Miss Agnes Wells as leader. This society does serious and important study work during the year.

Postponed Meeting.

The meeting of the C. W. B. M. of the First Christian church, which was postponed from Friday of last week, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hon and Mrs. Cobb of the Munger homestead. Mrs. R. A. Risden is president of the organization.

In Honor of Bride.

Mrs. Joseph Cumming entertained yesterday afternoon at her home, 2732 West Second street, in honor of Mrs. Alvina Dahl, whose wedding to Swan Johnson will take place this evening. Twenty-five guests were entertained. Mr. Johnson and his bride will leave for a western trip and later will be at home on Park Point, where Mr. Johnson is superintendent of the Interstate Traction company.

Postpone Meeting.

The meeting of the Ibsen class of the Twentieth Century club, which was to have been held tomorrow morning at the clubroom of the library, has been postponed until further announcement.

LYCEUM—"Texas."

"TEXAS."

Western Drama Presented at Lyceum by Very Capable Company.

J. Mauldin Feigl, the author of "Texas," succeeded in catching some of the local atmosphere of the Lone Star State, but at the same time he infused some very theatrical lines and business that have rendered less effective and convincing the really pleasing play he has written.

For instance, if the author had made the girl Texas more modest about her love affair, he would have made the character more in keeping with Texas atmosphere.

In a way "Texas" reminds one of "Arizona," by Augustus Thomas—not that it is an imitation, but rather because most Western plays have something in common. The plot is wholly different from that of the Thomas play, but the color, and some of the characters remind one of the play that was one of the pioneers in the Western drama.

Manager McClintock has provided a good cast for his show. Both the production and the company are above the average.

To the part of "Texas West," the heroine of the play, if the play can be said to have a heroine, Miss Nora Shelby brings not only good looks and a native sweetness, but also ability to act. Indeed, in the hands of Miss Shelby the part is made most attractive, and one only regrets that the author has seen fit to make the character "look for a man." A girl as sweet as Miss Nora Shelby makes the character of "Texas" would not have to look long for a "steady."

As Jack Dallam, known as "Freshwater Jack," Frank Conway fills all of the requirements of the role. Mr. Conway brings the spirit of the big state into his work and gives a very creditable performance.

Harry Maitland, as the owner of the ranch, is good. The role does not require a heavy tax upon the actor's ability, but what Mr. Maitland has to do, he does well.

As Mrs. West, Winona Bridges takes the part of the big-hearted mother—such a mother as you would expect to see upon a Texas ranch—with a refreshing vigor that is good to see.

As Lord Angus Trevor, the near-villain of the play, Bernard Fairfax is adequate. The cowboys, the usual bad man and the other characters of the play are good. The scenery is also good, and the play is well worth seeing.

"The Chorus Lady."

At last, after two years of waiting, Patrician O'Brien, the exuberant personage so wonderfully characterized by Rose Stahl, in James Forbes' famous comedy, "The Chorus Lady," is to be seen in Duluth at the Lyceum on Friday and Saturday matinee and night.

Miss Stahl will bring with her practically the entire original cast, which presented the play in New York for a solid year, and last year was probably the greatest success on tour.

As is well known, the play is a comedy, dealing with life behind the footlights; that mystic realm into which everyone has had a strong desire at some time or other, to peer.

It's secrets are aptly revealed in "The Chorus Lady." Miss Stahl's supporting company will include Wilford Lucas, Giles Shine, Earl R. Williams, Alice Leigh, Amy Lee, Madeline Traverse, Jean French, Marguerite Wheeler, Amy Lesser, Alice Chase and Levinia Mason.

The honuse this morning passed the Bendixen resolution, providing for a committee of five to investigate the packing companies at South St. Paul, to see if they are violating the state anti-trust law, with an amendment requiring the committee to see how animals are being treated at the Union stock yards.

Senator Nelson this morning offered a bill providing a state tax of 10 per cent upon the income of fee owners of iron lands, based upon the amount of royalties received. Mining companies are required to report twice a year, with the royalties they pay.

The following measures were introduced: Senator Peterson, appropriating $5,500 for equipping the new model school at Moorhead normal school; Senator Peterson, increasing the pay of grand and petit jurors from $2 to $3 per day; Senator Wright, providing for the tuberculin test for live stock imported into this state; Senator Works, pensioning at $12 the citizens who took part in the Indian massacres of 1562 to 1565; Senator Wright, to the same effect, except that the bill is limited to those who took part in August, 1562; Senator Nelson, requiring the railroad and warehouse commission to appoint inspectors to look into the condition of railroad tracks, bridges and rolling stock, and make reports; Senator Witherstine, allowing county commissioners to appropriate money for relief when great calamities occur anywhere in the United States; Senator Paulily, providing for the non-partisan nomination and election of district and probate judges, by having a separate ticket for judges at the primaries and by leaving off party designations at the general election; Representative Saugstad, changing primary election to second Tuesday in June; L. H. Johnson, to encourage county agricultural schools by paying a part of their cost; Representative Lobeck, raising age of consent to 18 years; Representative Holmberg, appropriating $10,000 a year to teach state university students practical forestry; Representative Adams, requiring a $100 state license fee for selling liquor on trains; Representative Lobeck, providing that two-thirds of the mortgage registry tax shall go into the county road and bridge fund and one-third to the state; Representative Swendsen, repealing mortgage registry tax law; Representative Nimocks, requiring railroads to pay local assessments, in addition to the gross earnings tax; Representative Wallace, exempting state and local bonds from taxation; Representative Robertson, prohibiting publication of indecent advertisements; Representative Thayer, tax of 1 cent for each $100 involved in trades upon boards of trade or other exchanges, a measure similar to the one that was introduced and defeated two years ago; Representative Mork, prohibiting boys from entering bowling alleys.

The house passed the resolution letting state university professors in under the Carnegie pension fund, and later Dr. Dorsey had it reconsidered and put over. Some of the members feared it might result in making the state pay part of the cost, and they wished to be shown before voting on it.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

THE WEST IS PROSPEROUS

Charles A. Marshall Returns From Trip to the Coast.

Charles A. Marshall, manager of the Lyceum, returned today from the Pacific coast country, where, as president of the Northwestern Theater Managers' association, he has been in conference with John Cort, president of the Northwestern Theatrical association, on matters pertaining to the welfare of the theaters under the direction of the organizations. Also it was something of a pleasure trip for Mr. Marshall.

He was gone a month, and returns enthusiastic over the possibilities of the Western country, at the same time averring that if there are any cities out there better than Duluth, he did not see them.

"The West is building up very rapidly, and one of the best boosts it is getting is the Milwaukee road's extension, which is now as far west as Spokane, and which, it is promised, will reach Seattle by the opening of the Alaska-Pacific-Yukon exposition next summer," said Mr. Marshall this afternoon.

"New towns are springing up along the Milwaukee. The sheep herders are going out and the farmers are going in. Lands that were formerly worthless are being reclaimed by irrigation, and values are increasing every minute. There are lots of business opportunities everywhere.

"In Seattle they are preparing for the exposition, and there is every indication that as an industrial and agricultural exhibit it will be a big success. Nice buildings for the exposition are being erected on the university grounds. Some of them are permanent and after the fair will be used by the university.

"There is some doubt, though, about the success of the 'Pay Streak,' which is what they are going to call their 'Midway.' The people with the big expensive shows and illusions, which have been the features of the amusement sections of fairs in the past, are having a hard time interesting capital in their propositions. I understand that considerable money was lost on the amusements at the Portland fair, and that fact is holding the Seattle people back.

"Seattle is growing every minute. So are the other Pacific coast cities, but none as fast as Seattle. They are cutting away some of the hills there, and erecting ne wbuildings all the time. A handsome new theater, the Moore, has just been completed there. With the exception of the Moore, however, I do not think there is a theater in that part of the country that compares with our own Lyceum.

"I went over the circuit of the Northwestern Theatrical association with Mr. Cort, and we made plans for the securing of better first-class attractions, and went over details of railroad fares and other considerations, with the idea of trying to improve upon methods in vogue now.

"The Northwestern Theater Managers' association, and the Northwestern Theatrical association control a good many theaters between Chicago and the coast, and we are going to get the best attractions possible.

"Personally, I think we have fared very well this season in the matter of attractions. Some first-rate ones have been booked for the remainder of the season, so that the end of the good shows has not come yet. Right now, business in the coast country is a little quiet, the cheaper attractions suffering the most.

"Mr. Cort and I talked of next season, and we are going to bring some mighty good attractions, the best in the land, to this part of the country."

Mr. Marshall was asked if Duluth would have a burlesque theater in the Empire circuit next season. He replied that as far as he knew, arrangements for it had not been made yet.

Mr. Marshall said he did not stop off at Yellowstone Park to wrestle with the bears.

RAILROADS WIN FIGHT WITH STEEL MAKERS ON THE SOUND RAIL ISSUE

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 14.—A. H. Schand, chief engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad, has mdae public specifications for new steel rails, for which orders aggregating 135,00 tons have been accepted by the United States Steel corporation and several independent rail makers.

This is the first time the specifications demanded by the railroads have been made public since the hard fight between the railroad companies and the steel manufacturers began, about four yars ago.

One of the most important features in the new agreement regarding process of manufacture, is "that there shall be sheared from the end of the bloom, sufficient discard to insure sound rails."

In past years the discard amounted to only about 12 per cent and the Cassatt specifications, which started the controversy, called for a discard of about 25 per cent.

The fact that the new agreement calls for a sufficient discard to insure a sound rail, means that the railroads have won their fight on this point.

TWO MEN SLASHED IN BOARDING HOUSE FIGHT.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two men were slashed with knives in a fight in an Italian boarding house conducted by Carbon & Co. last night. Leon Dimitropt, a Sicilian, was cut about the face in a frightful manner, and James Granni was struck on the head with a club, and while he lay on the floor was trampled upon. He is suffering from a number of wounds. The men were arrested, with three others.

The fight began when Leon Dimitropt, the Sicilian, entered the boarding house intoxicated.

VETERAN IS STRICKEN

Charles S. Weaver Dies During Grand Army Campfire.

Sudden Death Is Great Shock to His Comrades.

Charles S. Weaver, 60 years of age, of 115 North Fifty-eighth avenue west, died very suddenly of heart failure last evening, while attending the G. A. R. campfire at the Pilgrim Congregational church parlors. Feeling ill, he stepped into an adjoining room, sat down on a chair, and died a few minutes later.

Mr. Weaver attended the campfire alone, and seemed to be enjoying himself immensely during the earlier part of the evening. He laughed as heartily as any of his comrades at the funny stories, and displayed a deep interest in proceedings. A peculiar thing about the affair was the fact that statistics were given shortly before his death, showing that Grand Army men were dying at the rate of sixty a day.

When it became known that the old veteran was feeling ill, two doctors who were in the audience, Dr. C. M. Wilson and Dr. E French, attended him, but could do nothing for him.

The deceased had been a resident of Duluth for twelve years, and had a great number of friends here. He came to this city from North Dakota. He was a carpenter and builder by trade, and for several years was a partner with R. S. Munker. They did a considerable amount of building along the line of the Northern Pacific railway. His last important work was superintending the construction of forty new houses erected at Proctor. In recent years his occupation has been that of superintendent of building.

Mr. Weaver is survived by a wife and two sons, Roger M. Weaver, who lives at 4721 West Sixth street, and Carl Weaver, a resident of Minneapolis. The deceased was a Mason, and was well advanced in the order.

The remains were taken to Stewart's undertaking rooms. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

Mr. Weaver served during the Civil war in Company C, Third Infantry, and Company B, Fourth Cavalry, both of Massachusetts.

Mr. Weaver's death occurred during the last number on the program, an address by Commander Bates. As soon as it was announced that Mr. Weaver was dead, the meeting came to a close, and the veterans returned sorrowfully to their homes.

RIVALS FOR NEW NORMAL SCHOOL WILL JOIN HANDS

equip its schools with trained teachers. The three schools named are not even able to supply their neighborhood with fully trained teachers. But under the circumstances, as they stood two years ago, there was little possibility of any action on the part of the legislature, which found itself confronted by a fight for the location of a new state institution before it had been convinced that the institution was needed.

This year it is going to be different, as a session of the house committee held yesterday afternoon disclosed. P. H. McGarry of Walker, the author of the Cass Lake bill, and J. J. Opsahl of Bemidji, the author of the Bemidji bill, got together at the meeting and agreed upon a course of action that was thoroughly satisfactory to the committee and to the contesting communities.

It was decided that the committee should first hear arguments as to the need of the new school. These will be presented at a public hearing held by the normal school committee of the house during next week, at a date to be fixed by the local superintendents of schools at Bemidji and Cass Lake. As a result of this hearing, the committee will decide whether or not the new school is needed, and as there exists a large quantity of figures and arguments in favor of the school, there is at least a reasonable hope that the committee will decide in the affirmative.

Then, the question of whether the state needs the school being out of the way, the contest for its location will be carried on later. The two chief rivals will present their arguments, and the committee will decide between them as best it may. Two years ago there were four candidates, Thief River Falls and Park Rapids getting into the game, but so far as present indications go, Cass Lake and Bemidji will have a fair field this time, and such favor as their arguments may draw to them. The question of whether the school is needed or not is comparatively simple, if the committee and the legislature see it that way; the question of location is by no means so simple, as both towns have good arguments. However, that is to be left until later.

As an evidence of how the Duluth delegation is taking in the house, the accompanying excerpt from the columns of the Fergus Falls Journal, edited by Representative Elmer E. Adams, may be submitted: "The present house is a very much stronger body than the last one and is regarded as one of the best that has assembled for years. Duluth has made a great improvement in its delegation, and the Eighth Congressional district has undoubtedly the ablest delegation in the house. The advantage of sending strong men is apparent at once. An experienced man wields much more influence than one who has no knowledge of business or political affairs." All of which is well said, all of which could be said in a Duluth paper of the Otter Tail county delegation with perfect good faith, and all of which is a significant reminder of The Herald's cry through several previous elections of the need of strong men from Northern Minnesota for the legislature.

For speaking of Northern Minnesota, if that part of the state would and could play the game in the legislature for its own good, its numerical minority would quickly be forgotten. It has not anywhere near the proper representation; it has members representing 70,000 people, whose votes are no stronger than those of members from Southern Minnesota, who represent 10,000 or 12,000 people; it has districts that could hold half a dozen southern districts, and that will soon contain a population equal to that of half a dozen southern districts; but its interests, in the long run are the same. It needs support for the development of latent resources, and if it would play the game it holds the balance of power. The settlement of idle acres is not less important than the development of manufacturing potentialities at Duluth. The possible manufacturing plants at Duluth would supply the needs of the possible new settlers on those idle acres, and the possible new settlers on those idle acres could and should feed the workers in the possible new manufacturing plants at Duluth. A little common sense would bring these common interests together, to the common good not only of Northern Minnesota, but of all the state. A little more common sense would bring all sections of Minnesota, north and south, east and west, together for the common good of all parts of a commonwealth already great but containing the potentialities of greatness yet undreamed.

The following committee changes were made yesterday by agreement between members: W. H. Putnam changed from the committee on insurance to the committee on agricultural schools, giving H. A. Putnam the chance to change from the committee on agricultural schools to the committee on insurance; Fitzpatrick changed from the committee on insurance to the committee on grain and warehouse, and Carley left the committee on grain and warehouse to join the committee on insurance, and W. H. Putnam succeeds Dr. Gates on the committee on game and fish.

The regular attack against the insidious cigarette was begun yesterday by Representative Nagel of Wright county, who introduced a drastic bill against the manufacture, sale or gift of cigarettes or the "makings" thereof. The terms of the bill practically make it a misdemeanor to "roll" a cigarette and if it goes through and is properly enforced, the day of the cigarette in Minnesota is done, unless interstate shipments of cigarettes or the "makings" saves the lives of the "fiends." Mr. Nagel, who is a seasoned member of the house, is one of those sensible fellows who likes a cigar, prefers a pipe and detests the scent of the cigarette. But above that, he is sensible of the evil influences of this stepping stone to the tobacco habit upon the physical, ethical and psychical beings of the youth of the land, and his enterprise is as much for the protection of the young as it is for the protection of the sensitive nostrils of the haters of cigarette fumes. It is true that a similar bill, two years ago, resulted in a "satisfactory substitute," which prohibited the sale or gift of tobacco in any form to the young people, but that law seems not to have worked as effectively as was hoped.

Among yesterday's appointments to house positions was Farley A. Dare of Walker, editor of one of the brightest country weeklies in the state, who secured a committee clerkship through the active interest of Representative P. H. McGarry of Walker.

The appointment of Ole K. Thundale of Fillmore as speaker's clerk was also announced. Mr. Thundale was a member of the last house, and he is a political power in the Republican party in his section of the state. He was active in the Rockne speakership campaign, and his appointment gives general satisfaction.

Another bill to kill the primary election law was introduced in the house yesterday, as briefly stated in The Herald last evening, by Representative Ole Peterson of Nicollet county. His remedy for the alleged evils that exist is to destroy the primary election system outright, and restore the old convention system. At the same time, while Mr. Peterson will probably push his measure with considerable earnestness, it is clearly to be seen by a conversation with him, that his objections to the primary system are based upon defects in the present Minnesota law, which can easily be cured by amendment, and that can only be exaggerated by a return to the old convention system. Practically the entire propaganda for the return to the convention system, except those who wish to let the bosses receive the power that was taken away from them by the primary election system, and Mr. Peterson is by no means in that class, seems to be based upon the idea that Minnesota has plumbed the depths of primary election possibilities. That is by no means the case. Other states that have adopted the system, several of them, in fact, have better primary election schemes than Minnesota. The object of the primary election system, logically, is to get away from the bosses and back to the people. Minnesota has been a bit timid about carrying this out logically. She has left some power to the bosses, and it is to the abuse of this power by the bosses that most of the evils charged against the primary election system are due. They could easily be cured by taking away the remaining power of the bosses, and placing the full power in the hands of the people.

About the only real loophole in the anti-pass bill of two years ago was that allowing the members of the railroad and warehouse commission to accept passes from the railroads. Representative Spooner's bill, introduced yesterday afternoon, takes this privilege away from the commissioners, and leaves the free transportation field practically closed, except to officials connected either with the federal government—which includes mail carriers—or with the railroads. This problem is not yet exhausted, however, as bills are yet to come covering the cases of state employes holding merely honorary positions, which do not conflict with their duties as railroad employes. A conspicuous case is that of Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern, who would like to be a member of the state highway commission, but who is in doubt whether he wants to hold that purely honorary place enough to pay railroad fare over his own road in order to keep it.

In that connection, it is said that since it was decided that notaries public come under the exclusions of the anti-pass law, the general offices of the various railroads have been hard pressed for notaries. In one big office the building was searched from top to bottom to find a suitable man to become a notary public, and finally one was discovered who had a reputation for never traveling anywhere, and who, therefore, did not care about passes. He was promptly impressed as a notary.

Automobile owners use country roads but do not help make them. Hence the bill introduced yesterday by Senator V. L. Johnson of Chisago county, providing a county tax of $5 to $12 upon autos, depending upon size and weight, to go into the state highway fund to help make better state roads. Motor cycles are included with a tax of $2 each.

The legislature will have another turn with the bill legalizing chiropractics as a school of healing in this state. Four years ago the bill was passed and Governor Johnson vetoed it. Two years ago it didn't pass. This year it will be tried again.

• • •

Complaints that the legislature is not attending to business because of the long adjournment last week-end and the short daily sessions this week are entirely unfounded. There is nothing to keep either branch busy through a long session until the committees begin to turn out measures. Of course the committees could turn out nothing before they were appointed, and they have hardly been appointed long enough to expect them to produce a large grist. First, the bills must be introduced—and it may be said of both branches that there has been no reluctance whatever about introducing a sufficiency of new measures. Then the committees must act, and if the measures receive favorable consideration from the committees, they go upon general orders, after a proper interval for printing, for consideration in committee of the whole. The next step is either indefinite postponement—which means defeat—or the calendar. When a bill reaches the calendar it is up for third reading and final passage—or defeat. Few very important bills are killed in committee of the whole, and most of them, except the ordinary run of miscellaneous legislation, go to the calendar for the consideration of the house. It is easy to see that a little time must elapse before general orders and the calendar furnish enough occupation for prolonged sessions, and until they are fairly full, no criticism can be made of week-end adjournments or short daily sessions. After that, of course, it is different.

NEW FURNITURE FOR POSTOFFICE

Inspector Visits Duluth Building to Learn Its Needs.

William M. Stevens, inspector of furniture for the postoffice department, was in Duluth yesterday looking after the needs of the local department in the way of furniture for the addition to the Federal building, which is now about completed. Mr. Stevens says much of the furniture of the Duluth office is antiquated, and he will make recommendations which will result in replacing a good deal of it. When the new part is occupied, the lobby will be arranged, so that there will be more lobby room and better window facilities.

Mr. Stevens has charge of the furniture in over 600 federal buildings, and he personally visits all of them, looking after their needs. He says the United States is constantly extending its holdings of federal buildings and one new building will be erected for every three days in 1909.

HEALTH

THE BEST BEAUTIFIER

The Surest Way of Improving the Complexion is to Keep the Internal Organs Clean and Active. A Few Hints Worth Remembering.

The one thing that makes woman attractive is a clear, healthy skin. Women naturally give a great deal of care to the complexion, and in their eagerness to have the face appear fresh and young, frequently use means that ruin the skin.

Cosmetics, face bleaches, washes, complexion powders do not make good complexions. They hide defects, but cannot remove them. A fresh, rosy complexion comes only with a sound digestion, active liver, regular habits and pure blood. Without these healthy skin is impossible.

Beecham's Pills have been long noted as complexion beautifiers. They act directly on the organs of secretion and excretion, and when these act properly, impurities do not come to the surface to find outlet, but pass out in a natural way. The skin then clears, and a supply of pure blood tingles its way to the cheeks, and gives them the fresh, rosy tint so much desired by all womankind. Beecham's Pills make women beautiful by keeping them in good health.

ANOTHER COLD SNAP

Mercury Will Again Do Its Great Disappearing Act.

Temperatures of From 10 to 20 Below Are Predicted.

Along about the middle of the afternoon the cold snap, predicted by H. W. Richardson yesterday, will arrive in Duluth.

He said this morning over the telephone that the temperature would fall to from 10 to 20 below before Friday morning, and that the cold would be accompanied by strong Northwest winds. The change will be a very sudden one, and in a very short time the Zenith City will again be in the clutches of the ice king.

In Edmonton and Prince Albert, Can., it was very cold this morning, the temperature at both places being 40 degs. below zero. While it is not expected to be that cold in Duluth, Mr. Richardson says that the wind will make it seem much colder than it really is.

The cold is general through the Northwest and extends well into Montana.

twelve selected to say whether the defendent's days on earth shall be shortened or not. No one can invade your province as triers of the fact. Do you believe that he aided and abetted his brother? Do you believe that he sought to protect a brother whose mind had been wrecked by his misfortunes? Do you believe that that sweet old woman on the stand bore forth in this world a son who became a murderer?

"Take his life and once more I must be in this midst to defend his brother. Take his life and what is to become of Baby Molly? Take the captain's life and three more children are made the waifs of the street. I have done my duty. I pray that you acquit this man and do justice in this case.

'I now hand this unfortunate man to you hoping and praying, a mother and a father praying, a little girl praying, that you will send this man back to them. I pray you will accord this man every reasonable doubt, and may God aid you in your deliberations."

McIntyre sank back into his seat from exhaustion and Justice Crane took a few minutes' recess before the prosecution summed up. The jurors showed no emotion during counsel's address.

Immediately after McIntyre had concluded Mrs. William Annis, accompanied by several friends, entered the courtroom and sat with other witnesses in the case. Prosecutor Darrin made the closing speech for the state.

Bend, having been graduated from the University of Michigan law school. He has served four terms in the lower house of congress, being elected each time from a Republican district. He will be the first Democratic senator from Indiana in twelve years.

Shively gets forty-two votes and Kern thirty-five. The defeat of Kern, who attained national prominence as the running mate of W. J. Bryan in 1908, brought keen disappointment to many Democrats.

Vote Transfer.

The nomination of Shively was brought about by the transfer of the votes of L. Ert Slack to Shively in spite of the fact that such a change had not been expected. Shively had the support of Crawford Fairbanks and other brewers and Slack was supposed to represent the temperance forces. Yet, when the time came to change their votes, Slack's supporters went to Shively.

There was a general understanding that John W. Kern and John F. Lamb had formed an offensive and defensive alliance for the purpose of nominating one or the other of them for senator. The combination showed itself several times, but it was not strong enough to overcome the activity of the interests that were backing Shively.

After the strength of Slack had faded in the balloting and he had only a few votes left, there was still a time when a combination among Kern, Lamb and Slack would have defeated Shively and elected one of the three candidates in the combination and effort was made by some of the supporters of the three men to bring it about but it failed.

Kern Was Willing.

Kern was willing to enter such a combination, it is said, and it was said that Lamb also would go in, but that Slack declined. The three candidates had forty-six votes among them at that time and only forty-two was necessary to nominate.

Kern's managers fearing his defeat made a desperate effort at 1 o'clock to force an adjournment of the caucus, but the attempt failed by one vote.

On the sixteenth ballot Shively received thirty-six votes and his supporters renewed their efforts and he continued to gain until he received the nomination.

ROOSEVELT HORSEBACK RIDES 98 MILES, 1 DAY, AS REBUKE TO CRITICS

Washington, Jan. 14.—President Roosevelt rode ninety-eight miles on horseback yesterday and when he dismounted last night at the White House door, more than seventeen hours after having departed, therefrom, he did not show any signs of weariness.

The object of his long day in the saddle, he explained, was to "prove to critics, who have found fault with the order that all army and navy officers take a physical test, that if a president, who is not in training, can ride ninety-eight miles in one day without being laid up, it should not be too much to ask the men who are supposed to be in the best of physical training all the time to ride ninety miles in three days."

COURT DECIDES MAN MAY CARRY LIQUOR TO HIS OWN HOUSE, FROM THE DEPOT.

Guthrie, Ok., Jan. 14.—Holding that a man has a right to carry from the depot to his own home, liquor intended for his own use, shipped in from outside the state, under the interstate commerce law, the supreme court has reversed a lower court decision in the case of William Schweder, convicted in Grant county district court of violating the prohibition law, which forbids the transportation of liquor within the state. He took from the depot to his home, liquor that had been shipped in from without the state.

MAIL CLERK AFTER COIN.

Fifty Thousand Dollar Damage Suit Against Great Northern.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edward Kenney, by his guardian, William Kenney, has begun suit in the district court, before Judge G. M. Orr against the Great Northern road for $50,000 damages.

The sum is asked for injuries which the plaintiff, a minor, alleges he suffered while acting as a mail clerk on the road. A defective crane, it is asserted, broke from its fastening as he was securing the mail bag and struck him on the head, causing a fracture of the skull, and otherwise injuring him

Are doctors good for anything?

Foolish question! Yet some people act as if a medicine could take the place of a doctor! The best medicine in the world cannot do this. Have a family doctor, consult him frequently. If we did not believe doctors endorsed Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for coughs and colds, we would not offer it to you.

INJUSTICE TO VOTERS

By Decision of Supreme Court on Tax Amendment Recount.

Walter L. Case Shows How Will of People Was Defeated.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In view of the position taken by the majority of our state supreme court in its decision recently rendered whereby the opinion of Judge Dibell of the district court of St. Louis county is reversed, and the tax amendment submitted to the voters in 1906 becomes a part of our state constitution, I feel constrained to more fully express my impressions of the injustice done to the voters of the state by the final termination of the recount, than I did upon the floor of the house during the 1907 session of the legislature, when I sought the aid of the state in a recount of the votes upon the two constitutional amendments in which errors were admittably found. The people of my district, the Fifty-second, were and are vitally interested in the two propositions, good roads and drainage, and when the returns showed few votes in Carlton county for the good roads amendment and a larger vote for the tax amendment, the latter of which we were not especially interested in, we immediately began to inquire into the cause of the seeming change of sentiment, and found the error in the transposition of the amendments on the tally sheets differing in number from those on the ballots, thus assuring us that the will of the voter had miscarried. This error was first detected by C. L. Goodell of Barnum, Minn., an ardent advocate of good roads, who immediately called my attention to it. On the same or succeeding day he called at the office of a Duluth newspaper and called the attention of the editor to the mistake, having in his possession a copy of the tally sheet and ballot to illustrate how it occurred. Following the newspaper report, further investigation was made and further evidence of the error secured. Following this, contests were simultaneously commenced by the Good Roads association of Carlton county, through its president, F. A. Watkins, and the Duluth Real Estate exchange.

I recite this history for a purpose which will appear later.

When twenty-five precincts in St. Louis county had been counted and we found the error had taken from the tax amendment 1,480 votes and given them to the good roads amendment, we believed that we had established the fact that an error had been made and that the state, through its representatives in the legislature, would assist in correcting the error. We prepared and introduced a bill, H. F. 113, asking, not that the state appropriate money for the contest, but that the clerk and judges of election be called upon to deliver the ballot boxes through the state to the various county auditors and in turn that the county commissioners of the various counties make a recount with the idea of correcting the error. This would have been an inexpensive mode of correcting the error. But how were we met in the committee room and on the floor of the house when we proposed and introduced such a bill? Members could not say there was no error, for we had the evidence and it was admitted. What did they say by intendment and openly? "We want the tax amendment adopted and we are not going to look for errors to overthrow it." They openly charged us, who found the error for the sake of saving the good roads amendment, with a design only to defeat the tax amendment so that a tonnage law could not be enacted.

The animus, which has actuated the opposition to a recount on the constitutional amendment, has been so open and flagrant as to cause a suspicion that sectional feeling still predominates. We hoped that the Northern and Southern interests in the state were united and would continue so in the interest of just and fair legislation. The open and avowed purpose of many representatives from the southern part of the state to have the tax amendment carried at all hazards, ignoring the vital principle of our government, that our laws shall be the embodiment of the will of the people freely expressed at the polls, seemed to be so devoid of that spirit of harmony between the northern and southern portions of the state as to create a feeling of distrust between the members of the legislature and other citizens of the state, looking for a square deal. The attorney general and those supporting him who have sought to maintain the correctness of the certification of the state canvassing board have inadvertently, I assume, let the bars down for criticism in this contest as to their bona fide intentions when they perfect an appeal to the supreme court on the tax amendment only and leave the other, the good roads amendment, to stand as a law, when the state canvassing board declared it lost. Why, under the evidence as produced before the court in St. Louis county, if the tax amendment is declared carried, would not the good roads amendment be declared lost? As the situation now stands, the tax amendment has been carried and also the good roads amendment. If the attorney general is anxious to see right prevail, why should he allow the decision of the district court, showing the good roads amendment carried, to stand and seek only to have the opinion reversed upon the tax amendment? If he is actuated by a desire simply to see the certificate of the returns on the two amendments stand correct, why does he leave the decision of the district judge as to his findings on the good roads amendment without taking an appeal? The reason is quite evident. There is scarcely any opposition throughout the state to the good roads amendment, but a feeling of antagonism has asserted itself upon the question of the tax amendment and the attorney general is evidently governed by this manifest feeling.

It is not my purpose, or should it be the purpose of any citizen to critize the decision of the supreme court and it must be presumed that, from the case as presented to it, it acted conscientiously and with no other desire than to correctly interpret the law. If the correct interpretation of the law is that nothing short of a recount of the whole state can change the certified result on a constitutional amendment, then the law should be changed, as the practical working of such law is to practically prohibit a contest, for the burden upon the contestant is so great that unless the state itself provides for a recount, no private individual or organization of individuals would ordinarily assume the same. It was quite closely calculated that a recount of the whole state wold involve an expenditure of some $10,000.

From my standpoint of reasoning the opinion of Judge Brown seems the most consistent and more in harmony with the spirit of the law governing contests. To my mind it has never been held in local contests for an office that the contestant was compelled, before making a prima facie case, to present a recount of the whole territory in which the vote was sought to be changed. It must be a matter of regret to every fair-minded citizen of the state that there should be put into the state constitution something which found its way there through an error, traceable directly to a state official in preparing the ballot and tally sheet, and what is still more regrettable that we should find in our great state citizens and statesmen whose desire for reform legislation is so great that it will allow them to vote and work to defeat the will of the people.

I trust that the attorneys for the contestants will be able to secure a reargument of the case in order that the supreme court may have further time to consider a question of so vital importance to the people of the state, yours respectfully,

WALTER L. CASE.

GOVERNOR OF WEST VIRGINIA, ANTI-LIQUOR.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 14.—Governor Dawson, in his biennial message to the legislature today, after devoting considerable space to the matter of revenue for the state, discussed conservation of natural resources, public health, pollution of rivers, and recommended resubmission of the constitutional amendments, making women eligible to appointive offices. The passage of a local option law, and the submission of an amendment prohibiting traffic in intoxicating liquors, are suggestions that meet with the governor's hearty indorsement.

December Lake Levels.

The United States Lake Survey reports the stages of the Great Lakes for the month of December, as follows:

Lakes.	Feet Above Tide Water New York.
Superior	602.01
Michigan-Huron	580.16
Erie	571.38
Ontario	245.49

Since last month, Lake Superior has fallen 2¾ inches; Lakes Michigan and Huron have fallen 2¼ inches; Lake Erie has fallen 3¾ inches, and Lake Ontario, 5¼ inches.

Lake Superior is 8½ inches lower than the average December stage of the past ten years, and about 6¼ inches lower than last year. It is 7½ inches higher than in December, 1891, but 5¼ inches lower than in 1906, and 13½ inches lower than in 1900.

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed, to give both the old and new addresses.

FIRST GET THE FACTS.

The Herald is chided by several Southern Minnesota newspapers because of the figures it has published showing the proportion of the state's taxes now paid by St. Louis county and by a range newspaper for the alleged claim that Duluth is paying the greater portion of the taxes paid by St. Louis county. The Southern Minnesota press is aggrieved that The Herald should claim an exemption from further taxation for St. Louis county because it already pays so heavy a tax and the range press is much put out that Duluth should be unduly glorified at the expense of the ranges.

Both are wide of the mark. We will readily agree that every man and every county should pay for the support of the state a tax proportionate to his or its wealth. The figures published by The Herald were not published for the purpose of showing that St. Louis county property is too heavily taxed, but for the purpose of giving to the rest of the state some exact information upon the subject of taxation. The Herald has every confidence in the ultimate justice of the people of other sections of the state in regard to the taxation of the mineral lands of Northern Minnesota. But the people of other sections of the state began their discussion of the matter of the taxation of iron ore upon the basis of the most meager knowledge of the facts and conditions in the iron country. Many of them had no knowledge of the subject whatever beyond the knowledge that iron ore existed in Northern Minnesota and that the Steel corporation was mining it. There has been a great change in sentiment throughout Minnesota in the past two years upon the subject of the taxation of the state's iron ore properties. The people of the state are learning what are the actual facts as to the amount of iron ore in Minnesota, as to who owns that ore, as to how much taxes it ought to pay, as to what effect the different methods of taxing iron ore will have. When the discussion is ended Minnesota will be pretty well acquainted with its iron mines, and the taxation of iron ore will be settled for all time and settled right. But until Minnesota is thoroughly informed concerning these conditions which are so very different from the conditions which prevail in other parts of the state, no intelligent or just action is possible.

Governor Johnson in his message to the legislature declared that it is not so much a question of the system of taxation of iron ore as it is that iron ore shall be made to bear its just share of the burden of taxation. In this opinion The Herald heartily concurs and we believe that there are few people in the state who do not approve of the principle laid down.

There have been proposed, however, some methods of taxing iron ore which involve loss both to the state and to the towns, villages and cities of the iron ore territory. Had some of the methods so ardently advocated throughout the state two years ago been adopted, the state would have been the loser, and the communities of the iron country would have been crippled—and possibly vitally injured. A study of the situation has modified nearly every one's opinion of the wisdom of these methods and they are no longer urged.

The first thing to do in undertaking so important a matter, affecting the welfare of the whole state and the very living of thousands of its citizens is to be sure of our facts. The Herald has been publishing these facts from time to time, not for the defense of any owner of iron ore, not for the glorification of Duluth, but that Minnesota may be able to solve intelligently and fairly the problem it has before it.

ON ITS MERITS.

No Twin City newspaper has yet cared or dared to discuss the tax amendment decision on its merits.

All of them have rejoiced and been exceedingly glad because of the decision, but it is doubtful, judging from the tenor of their remarks, if any one of them has so much as read the decision. Here is a bit of an editorial from the Minneapolis Journal in point: "The supreme court now declines to overthrow a result, entirely regular on its face, because of an assumed, but as yet unestablished, probability of error." This is all that the Journal has to say as to the merits of the decision, and this statement is absolutely incorrect in every particular. Th error was absolutely established in the recount, not in probability, but in fact. The votes actually counted added to those returned by the state canvassing board from the rest of the state showed an actual majority against the amendment.

There are only two ways to escape the facts. One way is to say that the state canvassing board erred in its declaration of returns from the rest of the state but if this be done the decision of the state canvassing board is completely overturned and the amendment is lost. The other way is to apply a method of legal reasoning which means in plain United States, "It does not make any difference anyhow; the amendment stands." This is exactly what was done.

OUR EXPENSIVE CARELESSNESS.

While we are enthusiastically making plans for the development of Minnesota's great natural resources we should also take time and thought for the preservation of the state's property that is already developed.

This suggestion has reference to the state's exceedingly valuable property in standing timber which Minnesota has always displayed a strange reluctance to care for. We have enacted some half hearted laws providing for the protection of the forests from fires but we have never yet provided funds enough to make even these laws, as poor as they are, effective.

If the state forestry board had had for the protection of the forests of the state, one-fourth of the money which the people of Minnesota poured out so freely last fall for the relief of the fire sufferers in the northeastern portion of the state, the fires would never have occurred and millions of dollars worth of property would have been saved to the state and to its individual citizens.

The fire which wiped out the village of Chisholm on Sept. 5 of last year, making homeless 5,000 people and destroying property valued at more than $2,000,000 has been discovered to be directly due to neglect of the forest to the northwest of Chisholm. This forest was a mass of dead and down timber and slashings of the most inflammable nature and so thickly did it cover the ground that a man might make his way through it only with the greatest difficulty. Here in some unknown way a fire started. At first it was, probably, only a small camp fire, maybe only the butt of a lighted cigar. But it quickly became a raging whirlwind of fire that licked up the forest within three hours from its first start and burst upon a city of 5,000 people almost without warning.

Other states are willing to spend money to preserve their forest properties. Maine has a standing annual appropriation of $20,000, New York has appropriated large amounts each year, the province of Ontario in 1907 expended $130,000 for the purpose of preventing and suppressing forest fires. Various western states have highly organized and efficient fire fighting forces. Two important bills are now proposed in Wisconsin on this subject, one to provide for the burning of slashings and one to relieve from taxation timber which is being grown for commercial purposes until it is cut for manufacture.

Minnesota now has a pitiable emergency appropriation of $6,000. If the recommendations of the forest commissioner are adopted by the legislature this will be raised to $30,000 yearly—less than one-third of the voluntary contributions of the people of the state last fall for relief of those suffering from forest fire losses of a single week.

The recommendations of the forest commissioner also provide for authority which will allow him to divide the state into districts and to appoint rangers, at a salary of $5 per day and expenses, who shall have power as fire wardens. The cost of the work up to $8,000 per year is to be borne by the state, one-half of the amounts paid out by the state to be repaid by the counties in which the expense is incurred.

The Hinckley fire of 1894 and the fires of 1908 ought to be lessons enough. The state does not need a third.

A MILLION DIVORCES.

The report of the bureau of the census upon "Marriage and Divorce" just issued shows an almost even million of divorces granted in this country within the past twenty years.

A million divorces! One divorce out of every thirteen marriages! We have been learning something about the divorce evil in the past few years and now here is the sum of it. We have been thinking and talking and writing a great deal about this matter of late but we confess that out of so many words we have not got much wisdom. The divorce problem is a long way from solution.

The most powerful single force that has thus far applied itself to the solution of the problem is the church, and out of the efforts of the church has grown up a certain sentiment for the social ostracism of the divorcee. This, of course, is a punitive, not a corrective measure, and as such falls far short of a solution of the matter. Now comes the Interior, a widely circulated and influential church paper, and declares that social ostracism of the divorcee is as the rule terribly unjust and seriously harmful. Ostracism, declares the Interior, "is more apt to betray the righteous into unchristian prides than to punish the sinner," and it approves of ostracism for but one class of patrons of the divorce courts: "Ostracise forever the man or woman who from the judge of divorces has sought legal freedom in order to marry one who courted or was courted during previous wedlock of either."

Here is evidence that the church is beginning to think very seriously and to some purpose concerning the divorce evil. We shall not end divorces by denying suffering men and women justice and by turning the cold shoulder to them because they have been unfortunate. "Before there's any real cure worked out," says the Interior, "there must be less hysterics," and it declares that there are larger things than dogmatizing over the scriptural standard and frantic crusading to obtain reform from legislatures, for instance, "duties of example and sympathy and influence still more incumbent upon Christian men and women."

We cannot doubt that a high standard of home life and conjugal living will prove in the end the most powerful deterrent. Thousands of hasty marriages end in the divorce court, when if the unfortunate couples knew better and had before them better and more examples of the right home life, they might learn to have patience and to invoke a love that would bless their lives and that of their children after them from generation unto generation.

The city of Washington is a very windy place.

The "criminal classes" probably think it is a jolly row.

If Roosevelt talks too much, what shall we say of Tillman and Foraker?

You can set it down for certain that the lobbyist is not a strict constructionist.

There can be no sadder, more terrible story than that of Minister Carmichael.

Elmer Adams wants the state jag farm law repealed because he fears that its principal crop will be hoboes.

The attorney general is elected to enforce the state constitution but lately he has spent some time evading it.

North Dakotans are growing so rich that they are going to California for their winter and to Minnesota for their learning.

If Roosevelt, instead of Root, had negotiated that Japanese "understanding" what a jolly row there would be about it now!

If the deadlock in the Illinois legislature was holding back the salaries of the members of the legislature instead of the pay of the state officials it probably would not last thirty minutes.

Governor Hughes' recommendation for a primary election law in New York state has set the New York papers industriously to digging for the weak points of the law as applied in Western states.

Duluth is not builded with blood nor established by iniquity; it has in fact its full share of sterling manhood and womanhood. Yet it is well to examine our hands and to see if they indeed be clean and to search our hearts and to think if we are doing our whole part in the great work of the city's uplift.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Neil McInnis, at the St. Louis yesterday, expressed the opinion that the county commissioners should do everything in their power to improve the condition of the county roads.

Mr. McInnis says some of the roads in St. Louis county are very poor, and are in need of the attention of the commissioners. He says, that though a great deal cannot be accomplished, each year, some work in this direction can be done, and a little work each year would have the desired effect.

David Cuppernull of the Virginian, was at the St. Louis yesterday. Mr. Cuppernull suggested that one of the most potent factors in the demand for better roads in St. Louis county, has been the enthusiastic automobilist. He suggested further, that the autoists of the county might get together and bring their influence to bear, in the matter of securing improvements in the rural highways.

Mr. Cuppernull stated that the action had been taken in other cities, and had met with excellent results. In fact, Mr. Cuppernull suggested that one of the good results accomplished by the automobilist was the improvements of the highways of the state.

They have an association in St. Paul, and through the medium of this body they have been able to shape state legislation not a little, toward the betterment of the roads, that were in many cases impassable, before the automobile association took up the work.

"The stores that have been built since the fire at Chisholm, are beginning to open for business," said A. W. Robinson of Chisholm last evening. "When you come to consider the property loss at the fire we had last fall, you would be willing to give the people of the village credit for the work they have done since last September.

"Most of the new stores are completed and many of them are open and are doing business. Many of the men who have started in business again, have done so after encountering many difficulties. Most of the stores were insured, it is true, but many of them were not insured to their full value. The new buildings that stand upon the ruins of the old, are much better structures and have been put up on a greatly increased cost. The people who have gone ahead and built the new town deserve all of the credit in the world.

"Chisholm is going right ahead this summer and we will try to forget that our existence was nearly ended by the fire of last fall. If business conditions are good upon the range this year, many of the people who lost heavily through the fire, will, in my opinion, reap some of the rewards that such pluck and enterprise deserve."

Charles Hemstead of Nashville, Tenn., at the Spalding, says the present cold spell is not confined to the northern territory by any means. For instance, in Missouri the other day, where Mr. Hemstead happened to be upon a business trip, the thermometer registered 8 degs. below zero. This sounds mild enough to Duluthians, who have been enduring as much as 34 degs. below the thermometer's dividing mark, but any one who has been down South and endured 8 degs. below will realize what the Southerners are up against. They suffer more down there, in that climate, at that stage of the thermometer than one does in Duluth at 40 degs. below.

Even in Nashville it has been cold, according to Mr. Hemstead. The citizens of Nashville have shivered in their houses, which have little protection from the cold, and have wished, like the citizens of this city, that the pranks of the weather man would cease.

"When it gets cold in the South, most of the people there have not the least idea of how to keep warm," said Mr. Hemstead. "The houses are drafty," many of them have practically no provision for a fire in the living rooms, and, so you see, we are up against it. In that way we are much worse off than you people."

An Old Story Retold.

Fort Worth Record: The fact that in Kansas City a much higher proportion of widows than girls married during last year, is but another proof that nothing succeeds like success.

THE WEATHER.

The weather man is carrying this cold snap joke a little too far. Temperatures of from 10 to 30 below zero are all right to make conversation for a day or two, but they lose their value, and all the cold weather jokes grow stale and meaningless after the first three or four days. The weather man cheerfully promises another cold wave tonight, and the mercury will do its great disappearing act once more. The mild weather of yesterday and today was just a "teaser."

A year ago today it was clear and fine.

The sun rose this morning at 7:50 and will set this afternoon at 4:44, making eight hours and fifty-four minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"Barometric disturbances central over Lake Superior and Northern Utah caused warmer weather in Eastern and Southern districts and rain or snow in Pacific states, the Rocky mountains, the Northwest, Central valleys, Atlantic and Gulf states during the past twenty-four hours. The barometer continues high over New England. A severe cold wave has developed over Western Canada in connection with a strong high pressure area central over Saskatchewan. Temperatures have fallen to 40 degs. below zero at Edmonton, Battleford and Prince Albert, and it is considerably colder from thence southward to and including Montana. This cold wave is expected to reach the Head of the Lakes tonight, with temperatures varying from 10 to 20 degs below zero in St. Louis and Douglas counties by Friday morning."

Wisconsin—Cold wave tonight with fair in west and snow flurries in east portion; Friday fair with colder in east portion.

Minnesota—Fair tonight and Friday with a cold wave tonight.

North Dakota—Fair tonight and Friday; colder in east portion; rising temperature Friday.

Labor as a Partner.

Philadelphia Record: Unquestionably the relations between employers and employes are improving. More employers are conscious of their responsibility for the conditions in which the men and women they hire live. More employers are conscious of the value of the good will of the work people. At various times the public has learned of manufacturing establishments where more attention than the law demands is paid to sanitary conditions. A linen factory in Connecticut provided its operatives with a night lunch in the middle of the forenoon. A corset factory in New Jersey gave its women a rest room, hot water for tea, and various other conveniences. Several manufacturers have built houses for their operatives, giving them better shelter than they could hire. Many of the large railroad companies have pension and relief systems supported partly by the work people, but in great measure by the companies. Within a few days one of the great Chicago packing establishments has started a liberal pension and relief fund. The distribution of $100,000 at the Christmas just past, in addition to hats, gloves, confectionery and watches, by the Stetson hat factory here was a form of profit-sharing.

Many manufacturers, including the Dodge Link Belt works, in Nicetown, have discovered that the working hours can be shortened without diminishing production. Several manufacturers have applied profit-sharing arrangements. The Steel corporation facilitates the acquisition of stock by the workmen under conditions that protect them from loss. The shoe manufacturers here and the stove makers have joint boards of conciliation which settle controversies between the employer and the employes. Mr. Carnegie's prediction of profit-sharing or industrial partnership, as the coming system for associating labor and capital is most interesting. It is, as he says, a natural evolution. The world had slave labor, then labor as a commodity, paid for in money wages, and the next step naturally would be labor as a partner, participating in the profits. But there are not always profits; sometimes there are losses. The difficulty of extending the system of profit-sharing thus far has been the adjustment of this end of the business. The difficulty is not insurmountable, and it is encouraging to find a man of such large experience as an employer as Mr. Carnegie, predicting labor partnership as the next stage of industrial evolution.

An Editor Scorned.

New York American: "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned"—except, of course, an editor scorned.

And for the verification of the amended adage one has only to note the ceaseless vilification with which the Pulitzer of the Roosevelt whiplash continues to assail the president of the United States. Day unto day uttereth speech and night unto night showeth knowledge of the festering wound which the White House castigation evidently left upon the epidermis of the editor. There is no idea nor suspicion of political gossip in which its voice is not heard, and it is a hot day in January or a cold day in August when the chief executive of our country is not abused by this exile who prospers under the flag.

A Mechanical Toy.

Mary had a little lamb
When Christmas came around.
It ran on wheels
At Mary's heels
When it was nicely wound.

But it was tinkered with too much
By Mary's clumsy dad.
And Mary's sire
Reduced to wire
The lamb that Mary had.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1884.

•••At a meeting of the Ladies' Library association, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. C. P. Bailey; vice president, Mrs. George Spencer; treasurer, Mrs. J. D. Ray; secretary, Mrs. William R. Stone; assistant secretary, Mrs. J. W. Norton. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Frank Fish for the valuable services she rendered during the past year.

•••Agate Bay has a police court, and some of the scenes enacted in it are said to be amusing. A few days ago a fellow, named Carroll, was up before the judge, charged with assaulting another man, named Carroll, "with a deadly weapon" (a beer glass), and after all the testimony was in the belligerent was fined $10. Carroll kicked and went for the judge, who finally got mad and told him if he did not take care he would fine him $100. Carroll then wanted to get out a warrant for the other fellow for breaking up his house, but the judge would not issue it.

•••The case of Osborn et al vs. the Knife Falls Boom company was called today but, on application of the defendants, was adjourned until tomorrow to get another judge, as they objected to Judge Stearns. The suit is brought by Osborn and other lumbermen in Duluth, to restrain the boom company from stopping the passage of logs at Knife Falls, on the St. Louis river. Judge Stearns telegraphed to Judge Collins of St. Paul to come and hear the case, which is satisfactory to both sides. The complainants are represented by W. W. Billson, Gordon E. Cole and J. M. Gilman, and the defendants by W. P. Warner.

•••W. P. Allen, for the past seven years superintendent of the Nelson Lumber company at Cloquet, has purchased an interest in the McDonald Lumber company of Kansas City, and will take charge of its logging interests at Wausau, Wis.

•••Articles of incorporation of the Grand Forks, Crookston & Lake Superior Railroad company have been filed with the secretary of state. The capital stock is fixed at $2,000,000. The incorporators are: J. R. Clements, E. M. Walsh, William Box, Paul C. Stetten and Lewis Berthiaume of Crookston; E. F. Masterson of East Grand Forks; George H. Welsh, W. T. Collins, W. H. Brown, J. S. Eshelman and John Zerfoss of Grand Forks. It is the intention to build from Grand Forks to Lake Superior, via Leech Lake, or else to a connection with the Northern Pacific.

THE PRIMARY LAW.

Worthington Advance-Herald: Without a doubt, the present primary election law is the cause of more corruption in politics than the old convention system ever was.

Madison Independent Press: War on the primary law seems to be on the wane.

North Branch Review: While there is little doubt that the primary election law as it stands at present has many faults, it is still a big improvement over the old system, according to our idea, and great care should be taken not to lose the ground already gained. The absolute repeal of the law must not be tolerated.

Panesville Press: Some enterprising law maker can gain everlasting fame by devising a primary election law that will suit the Republicans of Meeker county and at the same time leave no room for complaint on the part of the Democrats of Stearns county.

Stillwater Daily Gazette: There's considerable discussion of the primary election law, which is generally conceded as not all that fancy painted it, but that it is right in theory is generally admitted. If there was any way to hold the parties in line, thereby preventing the Republicans voting the Democratic ticket or the Democrats voting the Republican ticket, it would be nearer the thing for the people than anything yet discovered.

Norman County Index: As expected, Governor Johnson favors retaining the primary election law, which has proved so disastrous to the Republican party. He also favors extending the law to state offices, which is a good idea if the present law stands.

Willmar Gazette: It is generally agreed that the opposition to the primary law is a feint made in order to defeat the extension of the idea to the state offices. The legislature dare not attemyt to repeal the primary law.

Albert Lea Standard: The legislature will scarcely venture to attempt a repeal of the primary election law. This people will not stand for a return to a rule of political bosses—and whatever may be the defects of the existing law, they are unitedly and determinedly in favor of retaining the power of selecting candidates directly in their own hands.

Mapleton Enterprise: It will take a brave man to vote to do away with the primary election law and return to the old convention system where the politicians were the whole thing.

Mankato Free Press: There are a great many honest men who prefer that the politicians should control conventions rather than permit a law to remain on the statute books that will allow Democrats and mugwumps to manipulate the Republican primaries. That is one great reason why good, square Republicans are in favor of the repeal of the primary election law.

There is no good and sufficient reason why you should mind your own business if other people will pay you more for minding theirs.

What Women Are.

W. J. Lampton in Chicago Daily Journal: Men say women are angels; women say women are cats. Let us pause a moment and reason upon this thing.

If women are angels—however, that does not seem to be the proper starting point. Let us try again.

If angels are cats—but no, that is hardly reasonable, for angels have wings, and cats do not fly. We must begin again.

If women are cats—but that isn't possible, for cats do not talk, and how could a dumb animal express an opinion in words of a woman? Whatever cats may think, they never say a word about a woman, while women—well, women are not cats.

Now, let us return to the first proposition.

If women are angels, they wouldn't say women are cats. Angels don't talk that way.

Once upon a time a man married a woman. He said she was an angel; the women said she was a cat. Happy man, not to know the difference between an angel and a cat!

Men say women are angels, and by this token women say angels are cats. Therefore, angels being cats, cats must be angels, and, both being the same, women are women.

Which is precisely what they are.

Well Rounded.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Now they call her the tube woman. This would seem to be a distinct improvement on slat.

Everyday Types.

Theer's the man forever bragging
Of his younger, brightest child,
And his talk is so bromidic
That it nearly drives you wild.
There's the man who always tells you
Things that you must not repeat,
But who tells the same to ev'ry
Man he meets upon the street.

There's the man who's always boasting
That he's had a raise in pay,
But who always, when you ask him,
Hasn't got a cent today.
But the man who drives you crazy,
Whom you wish at birth had died,
Is the man who starts each joke, "When
I was on the other side."

Louisville Courier-Journal: "Literary returns are slow are they not?"

"No; I get my manuscript back fast enough."

Catholic Standard and Times: "Mrs. Skandell was telling me a story today about that odious Mrs. Galley," began Mrs. Jigley.

"See here!" interrupted her husband. "I thought you hated gossip."

"Why-er so I do, but, of course, I can't hate it thoroughly until I know just exactly what it is."

Chicago Record-Herald: "You and that little Wattles boy seem to play very nicely together," said Johnny's mother. "I am glad there is one boy in the neighborhood that you can get along with."

"Yes," replied Johnny, "I lick him every morning and then he's nice to me all day."

Boston Transcript: Hobo—No, madam, I am neither a Socialist nor an Anarchist. I am a passive altruist.

Housekeeper—And what in the name of common sense is that?

Hobo—I believe in being helped all I can.

Nashville American: "He met a couple of highwaymen on a lonely road."

"What did they do to him?"

"Only took his watch."

"Just passed the time of day, as it were."

Chicago Tribune: "Did you know that if all the salt in the ocean were gathered into one solid body it would make a cube measure 500 miles each way?"

"No, but I don't doubt it. Who has figured it out?"

"Nobody. I was trying to find out how big a lie you would swallow."

Philadelphia Record: Nell—So she married that foreign nobleman, eh? She used to say she wouldn't marry him for love or money.

Belle—She didn't. She married him for a title.

Argonaut: The burly prisoner stood unabashed before the judge. "Prisoner at the bar," asked the clerk of the arraigns, "do you wish to challenge any of the jury?"

The prisoner looked them over carefully. "Well," he replied. "I'm not exactly wot you'd call in training, but I wouldn't mind a round or two with that there fat old jaspar in the corner."

Discouraging to Promote.

Nebraska State Journal: On our desk is a courteous and kindly letter from Carrie Chapman Catt, requesting that we circulate a petition to congress, which reads, "We, the undersigned citizens of the United States, over 21 years of age, hereby petition your honorable body to submit to the legislatures of the several states for ratifiaction, an amendment to the national Constitution which shall enable women to vote," and obtain as many signatures thereto as possible. We accept the delicate commission and have signed the document in ink on the first line. If others desire that privilege let them come to the clerk's desk and avail themselves of it. There is room for forty-four names, and more paper to be had down stairs. Does Portia want the ballot?. We doubt it, but if she does, forbid that we should place the shadow of a stumbling block in the road. So much for our willingness to do the right thing, but what is the outlook for getting congress to do something? It is very discouraging. Neither house has any time to fool away over petitions touching the doing of something the members do not want to do. Suppose a petition as long as from here to Omaha, requesting congress to remove the tax from booze, were passed in over the transom and read by its title what would congress do? Refer it to the committee on rivers and harbors improvements, and never mention it again. The same thing will be done with this suffrage petition, and that's what makes it so discouraging a thing to promote.

Nobody Knows It.

MAKE FELONY OF DESERTION

The agitation for legislation making the punishment which may be meted out to deserters of families more severe was put in definite form at a meeting of the Duluth Humane society yesterday afternoon. A resolution was adopted petitioning the legislature to make desertion of families a felony instead of a misdemeanor, as at present. The Humane society also asks that some punishment be fixed for the abandonment of animals on either public or private property. At present a punishment is fixed for abandonment on public but not on private property. The Humane society would have the distinction removed.

The Duluth and St. Paul Humane societies are working together for the law making desertion of families a felony. The frequency with which wife deserters are brought into court and let off with small fines and short terms of imprisonment has aroused the people, and legislators in general are expected to give hearty support to a bill which will probably be introduced by the St. Paul delegation in the legislature.

Sixty-eight cases of destitute families have been investigated by Mrs. Forgy during the months of September October, November and December, and relief given where it was found justified. Animals have been little abused in Duluth, according to Harry Cleveland, special agent for the investigation of animal cruelties. The most common form of abuse is the failure to provide blankets for the horses in the cold weather, he says, and when drivers are remonstrated with they show almost uniform willingness to remedy the defect. T. E. Grae made a report yesterday on the work of the society for the month of December, as it came under his notice.

ON THE IRON RANGES

WANT JUDGE FOR RANGE

Commercial Clubs at Virginia Meeting Decide to Pull Together.

Committees Named to Draft Bills and Present to Lawmakers.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representatives from a number of the range towns Commercial clubs met at the city hall last evening to discuss important matters to be brought before the legislature. Hibbing, Eveleth, Chisholm, Biwabik and Aurora were represented. R. C. Pickering was chosen chairman and W. F. Shea secretary. Mr. Pickering outlined the object of the meeting, stating that the call had been made for the purpose of taking some action to introduce bills in the legislature which will be of vital interest to the range, the most important of which will be an endeavor to establish an independent superior court for the ranges. Talks along this line were made by Attorney Robert Stratton of Hibbing, who in an impassioned speech stated that if the ranges were to ask for anything in the line of legislation for the establishment of a court for the ranges, the representatives must go before the legislature and make a demand for their rights. He said that about 65,000 people lived about seventy-five miles from the sea of government, paid from $5 to 90 per cent of the taxes of St. Louis county, and not only that, but over one-half of the case tried in district court originated upon the range.

Have a Hard Fight.

He stated that he knew the ranges would be up against a hard proposition, inasmuch as they would have Duluth and the Steel corporation to fight against in this regard. He was not in favor of any compromise whereby the district court would come to the range and hold sessions of court, but that the range representatives should go before the legislature with all facts and data and show that it was entitled to what it asked for. In this he was unanimously supported by all present. He was followed by Attorneys N. B. Arnold of Eveleth, Otto A. Poirier and Louis M. Osborn of this city, Judge Edward Freeman of Chisholm, Attorney Don C. Anderson of Biwabik, S. W. Gilpin and others. After further discussion, a committee was appointed to draft a bill to meet the requirements of the question advocated, this committee to go before the legislature and urge its passage. The committee is composed of Robert Stratton of Hibbing, N. B. Arnold of Eveleth and Judge Osborn of Ely.

Another question of importance to the state at large was advocated by Judge Freeman of Chisholm, to change the law so that it will entitle the municipal court litigants to take a change of venue from one court to another, and he suggested that a bill be framed and presented regulating these matters.

The following committee was appointed to draft the bill. Otto A. Poirier, Virginia; Victor Power, Hibbing; Judge Edward Freeman, Chisholm; Don C. Anderson, Biwabik; Charles Murphy, Aurora. Judge Freeman was selected to carry the bill to St. Paul and work for its passage.

The question of changing the division of the county roads funds so as to give the northern end of the county more money with which to expend upon its roads was discussed to some length, together with the matter and re-apportionment of the districts so as to add another commissioner for the northern portion of the county. All these mattters are to be introduced at a meeting of the representatives of commercial clubs of the several towns of the county, which are to meet in Duluth on Jan. 22. Four members from each commercial club as well as representation of the Farmers' clubs, have been appointed to join this meeting and boost for the matters advocated at th emeeting held in this city last evening. At the close of the meeting the company adjourned to the European hotel, where luncheon was served.

FEW HIBBING FIRES.

Range Town Made Commendable Record Last Year.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—There were very few fires in Hibbing last year and the loss sustained was more than covered by insurance, according to the report of the fire chief. The loss sustained from fires in 1908 was $12,250, while the property damaged carried $69,270 insurance, so the owners suffered nothing.

There were sixty-nine alarms turned in during the year. Four of these were false alarms and eighteen were no more than chimney fires.

Three out of the forty-seven fires were caused by lighted cigar stubs, four came from letting children play with matches, two were known to be incendiary and four were thought to be so. Sparks from engines, which the forestry commissioners have made so much of in their reports on preventing forest fires, are reported to have caused but one of the forty-seven fires occurring in the year, while grass fires started eight of the blazes.

Other causes were various kinds of stoves with gasoline variety easily taking the lead, carelessness, burning rubbish, drying clothes.

During the year 17,700 feet of hose have been stretched. There are 3,800 feet of hose on hand, of which the better part, 3,200 feet, is good. Apparatus and equipment in the department is valued at $7,170.

SETTLERS WANT SCHOOL.

Many Itasca County Children Are Deprived of an Education.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Between thirty and forty children in families of homesteaders, living in Carpenter, a township west of here, in Itasca county are deprived of an education because of the lack of proper school facilities, according to reports interested persons have made to the authorities at Grand Rapids, which appear to have been unheeded.

The only school in the township is located about the center of the northeast quarter. In the southeast and northwest there are some thirty children. The school is from two to four miles away, so that during the winter months it is not possible for all the smaller children and many of the larger ones living at the furtherest distances to attend school.

In September the school remained unopened and after several complaints had been entered, the county superintendent authorized one of the local merchants to hire a teacher. The school, however, was not opened until October, so that several weeks of such weather that the children living furtherest away could have attended, was lost.

Homesteaders in the vicinity are much stirred up over the matter. Some claim that their children have not seen the inside of a schoolhouse for three years, and that since the township is entitled to four schoolhouses, some provision should be made for the thirty or forty children.

VIRGINIA OWES VERY SMALL SUM

Sixteen Years Old, Suffered Two Fires, is in Good Shape.

Virginia, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—City Clerk Albert E. Bickford submitted his annual report of receipts and expenditures for the fiscal year ending Dec. 1, 1908, to the council Tuesday evening. The amount of cash on hand Jan.1, 1908 was $3,307.48, and the total receipts from all sources during the year 1908, amounted to $95,949.97. The total expenditures for the year amounted to $100,920.95.

The condition of the different funds of the city were as follows: General fund, deficit, $9,545.35. Cash on hand in other funds: Sewer, $330.19; park, $1,372.35; library, $836.02; street paving,$2,354.55; bond sinking and interest fund, $447.11; total in all funds, $5,340.22. The sum of $2,949.66 were paid out for permanent improvements. The city is in a flourishing financial condition, its actual indebtedness being only $10,772.74. The city of Virginia is something like sixteen years of age, and since its birth has been visited twice by fires, at both times being practically wiped off the map. It has during this time expended enormous sums in buildings and improvements. Is one of the most substantially built cities for its size in the state, and that its total indebtedness amounts to the insignificant sum of $10,772.74. Its citizens may well feel proud of its management.

WOMEN HAD CHARGE.

Wednesday Night's Anti-Tuberculosis Meeting Well Attended.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Last evening's meeting of the anti-tuberculosis exhibit was in charge of the women, and a large audience attended. Miss Esther McFadden, the chairman, called upon Mrs. A. C. Osborne of Virginia for the first talk of the evening, who spoke about the various tuberculosis sanitariums, and dwelt on the mothers' duty toward the children in keeping them away from tuberculosis. Mrs. W. J. Smith spoke about the national congress that was held last year at Washington. Dr. Harwood read a lengthy paper on "Tuberculosis in General," telling of the causes of tuberculosis, how it is secured, the conditions in which the disease gains headway, and the cure for the disease.

Christopehr Easton closed with a short talk about ventilation, and the great need of it, not only in factories, but also in the homes.

In the afternoon the school children were present in a body, and they listened to talks by Supt. B. O. Greening, Health Commissioner P. F. Brown and Christopher Easton.

The Vail hall has been secured for the mass meeting that will be held Sunday afternoon. The Ursula hall has been found too small. The meeting will begin at 3 p. m., and will be addressed by well-known local and out of town speakers.

PAPER SHOULD SHINE.

Hibbing School Publication is Called The Orb.

Hibbing, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Orb, a monthly publication issued by the senior class of the high school, has made its appearance, the initial number declaring its mission being to print a publication "for literary purposes." The Orb is a quarto letter size, devoted to news notes and various matters of interest. The staff is announced as follows: F. W. Cobb, editor in chief; Fred Anderson, associate editor; Joseph Tancig, manager; R. Thiel and L. J. McBride, publishers; Sam Rides and A. W. Cole, advertising agents; C. A. Bardessono, Ethel Geary, William Schriner and Jennie Porter, reporters.

EVELETH NEWS NOTES.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—For the first time in two months a road show will appear here. Frederic Clarke and company will present "Monte Cristo" tomorrow night at Vail hall.

Maj. Eva of Duluth will be here next Thursday evening to inspect the militia company.

Dr. More has returned from St. Paul, where he attended the meeting of the state board of health. He was re-appointed to a three-year term.

George A. Perham of the Eveleth News, secretary of the Commercial club, and ex-Alderman Solomon Sax attended the meeting last night in Virginia of the range commercial club representatives.

WATCH THEFT CHARGED.

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dick Orvitch, employed in a lumber camp near Knife River, was arrested by Sheriff Nelson on the charge of stealing a watch from a traveling representative of a Duluth jewelry establishment, but when searched the watch could not be found. It was claimed while a sale of jewelry was being conducted at the lumber camp Orvitch laid his time piece on a tray of watches and picked up another.

WHY THE WATER SUPPLY FAILED

St. Mary's Lake Intake of Eveleth Plant Was Badly Clogged.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Wanless, a driver, who has been at work at the new intake at St. Mary's lake, has discovered that the old suction was stifled by the fouling of all but about 5 per cent of the holes in the wind bore. Out of 3,000 holes three-eighths of an inch in diameter only 200 were not clogged. The cause is supposed to be due to corrosion of the wrought iron of which the part is constructed. Aldermen Doyle and Hatch and City Clerk McIntyre inspected the part removed. The clogging of the holes was probably the reason that there was so little water on the day that the high school was burned.

EVELETH ELKS PLANNING TO INSTITUTE LODGE.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A lodge of Elks will probably be instituted here within the next month, as a petition has already been sent to the district deputy at Minneapolis, requesting that a charter for the organization of a lodge be granted. The local Elks are members of the Virginia lodge, but they desire to have a lodge of their own, and to this end much correspondence has been going on with the high officers of the order.

PUG EVENT POSTPONED.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The boxing match that was to have been put on last night at the Fuller & Shea hall has been postponed until some night next week. The Eveleth Driving club intends to start the racing season a week from Saturday.

SOON START BUILDING IN THE SPARTA ADDITION.

Eveleth, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Building in the Sparta addition to Gilbert will start as soon as weather permits. Many of the Sparta business men are planning on erecting buildings. Four large business blocks with the latest improvements will be erected. Saari, Campbell and Kraker will put up a two-story brick block, the first floor of which they will occupy with their grocery store, while the upstairs will be used as a public hall. Luten & Carlson will put up a one-story building, while Paddy Murphy and Rubenstein Bros., will put up good-sized buildings.

CHISHOLM CARPENTER IS FATALLY FROZEN.

Chisholm, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frozen to death on the outskirts of this village was the fate of Peter Miller, a carpenter, aged 55. He was last seen Tuesday afternoon by some friends. His body was found frozen stiff yesterday. His familly resides at Virginfa.

SWINDLED BY FRIEND

Foreigner Claimed to Have Been Victim of Sharp Play.

Got Only $1,100 Out of a $4,000 Jury Award.

Frank Skarp, a notary public and lawyer's clerk at Sparta, was arraigned before Judge Ensign in district court this morning on an indictment returned yesterday by the grand jury, charging him with grand larceny in the first degree, in getting away with $1,360, which rightfully belonged to John Westerinen. Skarp's bonds were fixed at $1,500 and he was given into the custody of the sheriff until he could furnish them. Up to noon, the bonds had not been put up.

The serious nature of the charge in the indictment, is aggravated by the story of the affair as told the grand jury. Skarp is alleged to have swindled an unfortunate man out of nearly all the money secured in a settlement from a Wisconsin railroad company of a suit for damages growing out of an accident, by which he lost his leg.

Westerinen is a Finn, ignorant of the ways of this country, and something over a year ago, in a railroad accident in Wisconsin, he had his leg burned off above the knee. He brought suit against the company. Skarp acting as his advisor and supposed friend, it is said. The affair out of which the indictment grows, came up about a year ago when a settlement was reached with the railroad company, through Skarp's efforts.

The settlement is said to have been for $4,000, out of which Skarp claimed $2,000 as his share, with the expenses of the case and Skarp's expenses also taken out of Westerinen's half of the amount received, it is said. After the expenses were paid, Westerinen is said to hav had $1,600 coming as his share.

The indictment alleges and the state intends to prove that after receiving the money from the railroad company, the two men went to Chicago, Jan. 7, 1908. The money was in drafts, two of which totaled $2,500. These Westerinen is said to have indorsed over to Skarp. Skarp giving him $300 in cash to carry him to his old home in Finland. It is alleged that Skarp told Westerinen that on his return to Duluth, he would cash the drafts and send the remaining $1,360 of Westerinen's share to Finland so that Westerinen would receive it when he arrived in the old country.

If is alleged that Skarp came to Duluth, cashed the drafts and appropriated the money to his own use, Westerinen finding that there was no money waiting for him when he arrived in Finland.

A civil suit to recover the $1,360 was brought by Westerinen against Skarp at the November term of district court, the jury returning a verdict for $1,422.04. A piece of land, owned by Skarp in section 34, 63-14 was attached and sold by the sheriff for $800, of which $771.30 was applied to the execution. That amount is all that Westerinen recovered, in addition to $300 received from Skarp at the time he indorsed the drafts.

PRINCE JURY STILL OUT

No Verdict Returned in the Eveleth Slander Suit.

Jurors Have Been Deliberating Nearly Twenty-Four Hours.

The jury in the case of Vivian Prince vs. Morris Stein was still wrestling with the case this afternoon after having been out for nearly twenty-four hours. They retired at 3:30 yesterday afternoon and had failed to reach an agreement by 1 o'clock this morning, when they retired. This morning, they were up early and at it again, but without results.

No additional instructions were asked of the court and the jurors are believed to be working hard to reach an agreement. They have to decide whether the statements attributed to Morris Stein by the plaintiff were made, whether they were true and whether they injured Judge Prince's reputation.

The flood gates of oratory were opened by the attorneys in the case yesterday afternoon. Both attorneys were severe in their arraignment of the opposing parties. Attorney Arnold for the defense said that Judge Prince had mixed in a "dirty mess," in which he had no right to be, and he should take the consequences of his being at Sparta and seeing the fight between Stein and Breenburg, when he should have been home in bed. He said the plaintiff was entitled to no consideration.

J. P. Boyle for Judge Prince was eloquent. He said the defendant had been treating the case as a joke, but it was a serious matter. He said Judge Prince had been the victim of persecution ever since he had been elected municipal judge of Eveleth. He said the persecution was evident in this case and was unwarranted. If the people of Eveleth did not believe in Judge Prince, he said, they would not have elected and re-elected him.

Mr. Boyle contended that the defense had consisted of an attack upon a woman and an attack upon Judge Prince because he had drunk more or less. Neither was a defense to the charge of slander, he said. He said Judge Prince had been maliciously maligned and was entitled to consideration, vindication and substantial damages.

LOST IN MINNESOTA FIRES

Was Family of Man Killed in Upper Peninsula.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tom J. Russell of Skandia was killed by a falling tree in West Branch township Monday. He was in the employ of Cy Robinson, a farmer, and was caught in the fall of a tree which had lodged in the branches of another. An inquest was held at Skandia Tuesday at which it was found that he had come to his death by accident. Russell was about 60 year old and claimed to have lost his wife and two children in the Minnesota forest fires of last summer.

CAR COMPANY LIBERAL.

Poor Children Carried Free During the Cold Spell.

Sheboygan, Wis., Jan. 14.—Because of many school children being compelled to walk long distance, suffering from the intense cold in going and coming from school, Manager E. G. Gonsenbach of the Sheboygan Light, Power, & Railway company has notified Supt. of Schools H. F. Leverenz that all children in his opinion unable to afford car fare can ride on any city car free of charge, providing a card or slip of paper bearing the child's name and issued by any principal of a city school is in the child's possession.

TOPEKA'S FAMOUS HOTEL BURNS

being made up principally of members of the legislature, their families and other prominent persons in the state here to attend the opening of the sixteenth biennial session. The fire started in the lower part of the building a few minutes after 4 o'clock from some cause as yet unknown. The flames shot up quickly, and before an alarm could be turned in, were fast making their way up the wide corridors and filling the open spaces with smoke. When the fire apparatus arrived on the scene it was apparent that the structure was doomed.

A dozen guests appeared at the upper windows prepared to jump when pressed too hard by the flames, while others made their way through the halls and down to the street through the dense smoke, or clambored down the fire escapes. The firemen were unable to make any headway in fighting the flames, and presently guests began jumping from the windows on all sides. Fortunately the ground was covered with snow and this partially broke their falls. Within an hour after the fire started, the hotel was a complete loss, only the walls remaining.

Henry Wills, the colored porter, was the first to learn of the fire. A moment later William Jenkins, the night watchman, and Wills began a systematic trip through the house, waking the guests. Men, women and children, scantily clad, were soon crowding the upper halls. About half of the 100 guests managed to get to the lower floor and out through the front and side doors before the side doorway was cut off. Half a dozen were forced to jump from windows, while the others were rescued by firemen from the windows of the hotel from tops of adjoining buildings, to which they had jumped, and from fire escape landings. But few of the guests had time to collect their personal belongings, and most of the guests got out of the building only in their night clothes. The ground was covered with snow, and the refugees tramped barefoot and scantily clad to the Y. M. C. A. building and nearby drug stores, where the injured were cared for.

Ladder of Bedclothes.

There were many thrilling escapes. The only one of the guests whose condition is regarded as serious is A. W. Smith of McPherson, former department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic for Kansas and once a candidate for governor on the Republican ticket. Smith and H. A. Rowland, also of McPherson, were sleeping in a room on the fourth floor, near the south side of the building. There was little chance for their receiving outside aid, so the two made a ladder of their bed clothes and suspended it from the window. Each in turn descended as far as possible on the rope ladder and dropped to the ground. Smith crashed into an areaway striking on a rail. He sustained a broken ankle and internal injuries. Rowland followed Smith down the ladder and also fell. He was picked up unconscious and both were taken to the hospital. There it was found that Smith's condition was serious. Rowland suffered three ribs broken. Webb McNall of Smith county, former state superintendent of insurance, likewise made a sensational escape. McNall was sleeping in a room on the third floor in the front part of the building in the room with him was a suit case containing $55,000 of Kansas municipal bonds, the property of a fraternal organization and just purchased for it by a committee of which McNall was a member.

McNall waited pattiently in the front window of his room while the firemen and spectators below were making frantic efforts to get a ladder up to the window. The first ladder was too short A fireman had in the meantime reached a fire escape ten feet from the window ledge. There he waited until another ladder was sent up to him. Holding this across the gap the fireman supported McNall while the latter climbed to the first ladder, and to safety. McNall first had thrown his treasure suit case to the ground. Mr. McNall said:

"I guess I was lucky, all right. I was one of the first ones out of the building, and I saved all the bonds I had in my grip. All I lost was a little clothing."

Suspended From Ledge.

Thomas Benton Murdock, the veteran editor of the Eldorado Republican, occupied a room on the south side of the fourth floor. As soon as he was awakened by the cries of fire, he opened the door to the hallway, but when a cloud of smoke poured into the room he closed the door quickly and climbed out of the window. Once outside, he pulled down the window to prevent being suffocated by the smoke, and hung suspended from the ledge. Soon his roommate handed a blanket out of the window. Down this improvised ladder Editor Murdock slid, finally dropping to the roof of an adjoining building. He was not hurt.

When seen shortly after the fire, Mr. Murdock was sitting in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, clothed only in a night shirt and trousers.

"I was only slightly injured," said he. "I jumped from the end of that blanket to the roof of a low building adjoining the hotel, and then climbed down to the ground, and came over here in my bare feet. I left everything, including my watch, pocketbook, and a diamond stud."

Ex-Governor G. W. Flick was carried down a ladder from the third floor, and escaped without injury.

Down Fire Escape.

Mayor A. M. Fuller, assistant postmaster of Topeka, escaped injury by climbing down a fire escape from the fourth floor. He was clad only in his night robe and was unable to save any of his belongings. Ex-State Senator Lamb of Hale's Center, had a miraculous escape. Senator Lamb was on the third floor: He tied two sheets together and let himself down past the second floor. From there he dropped. The fall broke his right wrist.

W. Y. Morgan, a member of the legislature, and editor of the Hutchinson News, and his wife, were among the injured. Both escaped with their lives, but Mrs. Morgan sustained a painful injury.

Mr. Morgan later said: "Mrs. Morgan and myself were in the southeast corner, on the fourth floor. When we awoke the rooms and the halls were filled with smoke and flames. It was impossible to escape through the hall and there was no fire escape at our windows. I secured a blanket and, as I held it out of the window, Mrs. Morgan slipped down it to the roof of an adjoining building, one floor below ours. I followed her, jumping. From the roof we reached the ground by means of a ladder. Mrs. Morgan's ankle was broken by the fall to the roof, but she is resting easily. I was uninjured. The hotel was crowded with guests and it is a miracle that many did not lose their lives."

Was District Attorney.

I. E. Lambert of Emporia, who is believed to have been burned to death, and whose body probably is in the ruins, was one of the best known men in the state. For eight years he was postmaster at Emporia, and for four years he was United States district attorney. The injured:

A. H. Smith of McPherson, broken ankle, internal injuries; H. A. Rowland, McPherson, three ribs broken; Mrs. B. L. Thompson, Herrington, back injured; Representative S. C. Westcott, Cherokee county, back and ankle wrenched; H. G. Bone, state board of control, Topeka, back sprained; G. W. Goodlander, Fort Scott, leg hurt; Paul Rich, Coolidge, back, side and arm injured; W. A. Elstun, Moline, sprains and bruises; B. C. Howman, Newton, ankle and back sprained; Ex-Senator G. H. Lamb, Yates Center, internal injuries: severely bruised; Fire Chief Wilmarth, Topeka, head cut; J. W. Davis, Greensburg, overcome by smoke.

Mrs. W. Y. Morgan, wife of the editor of the Hutchison News and formerly state printer, broken ankle.

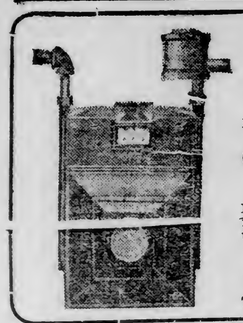

W. C. Murray, Kansas City, Kan., life insurance agent, broken ankle and bruises.

Bent Murdock, Eldorado, Kan., well-known editor, slight.

MINOT TO BUILD ITS WATERWORKS

Growing North Dakota City Believes in Owning Public Utilities.

Minot, N. D., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—After several years of discussion and the consideration of many schemes for furnishing this city with an adequate water system, the city council of Minot has taken a decisive stand in favor of municipal ownership, and Monday evening passed a resolution for the construction of a $160,000 plant. The resolution calls for advertising for bids for the relaying of mains and the construction of a pumping station and filtering plant.

This action was taken after a telegram had been received from the purchasers of the $30,000 waterworks bonds stating that the money was in the First National bank of Chicago. The resolution advertising for bids for the construction of the mains was presented by Alderman Vandenoever. Alderman Prescott moved its adoption and Alderman Vandenoever seconded it. The resolution advertising for bids for the pumping station and filter plant was presented by Alderman Prescott. Its adoption was moved by Alderman Vandenoever and seconded by Alderman Botz.

The intention of the council is to get an early start in this matter. The contract will be let this winter, so that the successful bidder can have plenty of time in which to purchase material. Work constructing the plant will be started early in the spring and should be completed by the latter part of the summer.

Ten Years For Rape.

Minot, N. D., Jan. 14.—David Crittenden, who was found guilty of rape in first degree, and whose case occupied a large part of last week, was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. This is the minimum sentence provided for such a crime, owing to the extenuating circumstances surrounding the case. The testimony brought out several startling disclosures that will be investigated later.

HEIRS BRING CONTEST.

Would Break Will Involving Red Lake County Land.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The contest of the relatives of the will of Fred Otis, a former resident of this city, was heard by Judge of Probate S. A. Swanson at the county seat Monday.

Otis died several weeks ago at the City hospital in this town, after a long illness. Destitute of any ready money during the time of his sickness, he willed to G. Halvorsen and Chief of Police Lang a forty-acre tract of timber land in Beltrami county, in consideration for which he was to be cared for during life and his funeral expenses paid when death, which was but a matter of a few months at best, occurred. The sick man had stated repeatedly that he had no relatives and he was very anxious to provide for needed expenses at the time. Now it has developed that he has relatives and they have come forward to contest the will. The outcome of the case will be watched with interest. The judge reserved decision.

COMING HERE TO LIVE.

Newly Married Couple to Make Duluth Their Home.

Long Prairie, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ellsworth Bundy and Miss Bushay were married Monday afternoon at Browerville by Rev. Father Billmeyr. The announcement of the marriage was a surprise to the many friends of the young couple as none knew of the event.

It is understood they are to reside in Duluth. They took the train here for Browerville, but made no mention of their intentions to their friends.

Miss Bushay is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Bushay of Reynolds and a very popular young lady among all who enjoy her acquaintance. She has resided in this community for many years. The groom is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bundy, who have long been residents of this town.

FARIBAULT MAN A SUICIDE.

Despondent Over Illness, He Takes Some Carbolic Acid.

Faribault, Minn., Jan. 14.—I. E. Burckman, one of Faribault's most promising young business men, was found dead at his home Tuesday afternoon by his mother. Coroner Bollenbach and a physician were summoned and held an autopsy, and agreed that death was caused by carbolic acid poisoning.

No motive can be found from suicide except that Burckman had been suffering from Bright's disease, from which he could not recover. He had been city recorder for eight years, and at the time of his death was secretary of the Commercial club. The annual meeting and election of officers of the club was to have been held last night, but was postponed on account of his death.

The case is involved in mystery that probably never will be solved. Mr. Burckman came to this city when 25 years old from Elysian, Minn., and had resided here since.

ODANAH MAN LOSES LEG.

Run Over by Logging Sleigh, Making Amputation Necessary.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 14.—James Moore of Odanah had his leg amputated Tuesday in a peculiar manner. While walking down a hill followed by a sleigh heavily loaded with logs, he slipped, and before he could recover, the sleigh passed over him. He managed to throw his body outside the track, but the runners passed over one leg, above the knee severing it as neatly as a locomotive could have done. He was brought to St. Joseph's hospital, where it was found that the lower part was hanging only by a small piece of the skin.

TO PUSH STREET RAILWAY.

Grand Forks People Going Ahead With the Enterprise.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first annual meeting of the stockholders of the Grand Forks Street Railway company was held Monday night at the Commercial club rooms and the election of a board of directors was effected. The following well known business men of the city were selected for members of the board: R. B. Griffith, A. I. Hunter, W. J. Murphy, James Dinnie, D. H. Beecher, W. H. Kelsey, C. F. Whitcomb, O. F. Hanson, E. J. Lander, O. A. Webster and J. D. Bacon. The board of directors subsequently met and effected an organization by the election of the following officers: R. B. Griffith, president; J. D. Bacon, vice president; O. A. Webster, secretary and D. H. Beecher, treasurer.

Plans were discussed at both the meeting of the stockholders and the directors looking to the vigorous prosecution of the work of completing and equipping the street car line so soon as conditions will permit in the spring. While the discussions were informal and no official action was taken on the matter, those in position to speak with reliability say that the people of Grand Forks will have a complete system of street cars in operation within a reasonable time.

Faithful P. O. Clerk Ill.

Aitkin, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—G. S. Westcott, the faithful old time railway postal clerk that has been on the day run on this division with J. W. Schenck has had to give up his duties for the winter at least, owing to ill health. Mr. Westcott was in two wrecks last summer and never recovered from the nervous shock and the injuries received.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST

MAKES GOOD EVERY YEAR

Record of Gentilly Cheese Factory Has Very Few Equals.

Polk County Concern Pays Large Amount Annually to Farmers.

Gentilly, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Polk county has an institution that makes good every year and gives promise of being one of the leading industries of the entire section.

The Gentilly Dairy association has just completed its report for the local cheese factory from May 1 to November 1, and it shows that the factory has had a wonderful development the past few years, which has had a great effect upon the development of Gentilly township and in turn upon the entire county.

The report shows that during these months the farmers received in cash from the factory for milk and butter fat, $11,850.46, while there were 103,267 pounds of cheese sold, aggregating $13,282.67. The factory has the proud record of paying the formers the highest price for butter fat that can be obtained, namely, 30½ cents per pound. This has given the factory an extended patronage and the farmers for quite a distance send their butter fat to the factory.

Notwithstanding the amount of business done, the total running expenses and cost of improvements during this period amounted to but $1,534.75. This showing, there is no doubt, cannot be excelled in the Northwest and the people of Gentilly take a just pride in the institution. Father Thellion is the treasurer and manager of the institution and no little credit is due him for the wonderful showing of the enterprise.

OPPORTUNITIES ARE TOLD WORLD

Ashland County and Northern Wisconsin Set Forth in Report.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Ashland county and the rest of Northern Wisconsin is given a splendid advertisement in the annual report of Secretary D. A. Campbell of the state immigration board, just filed, in the course of which he points out the value of the lands in this section and urges upon those who have the interests of the state at heart that the complete development of Northern Wisconsin will add immeasurably to the wealth and taxable valuations of the state.

"There probably are 10,000,000 acres of unoccupied agricultural land in the northern half of the state," says Mr. Campbell. "An increase in value of $30 an acre would add $300,000,000 to the state's valuation.

"A tax of one-half of 1 per cent on this increased valuation would amount to $1,500,000 and the above is but a fraction of the increased wealth that would come from development of the northern counties.

"The water powers which abound on every northern river will, if electric transmission to other states is excluded, result in building cities and towns in our own state and furnishing them with extensive manufactories and other sources of wealth. In fact, it is probable that the value of our other water powers, when fully developed, will prove an incalculable benefit to the state and be rapidly advanced by its early agricultural development.

"There prevails in both the older and undeveloped portions of the state vast deposits of building and ornamental stone, which will some day add wonderfully to the industrial wealth of the state. That there are deposits of material for the manufacture of Portland cement is also practically certain."

The report declares that an effort has been made to get people, who were about to leave Wisconsin to take up Western lands, to take up the unoccupied lands of Wisconsin.

Wisconsin is second to no state as a producer of ordinary farm crops. He declares that fruit and tobacco can be raised in Northern Wisconsin.

"The production of sugar beets has added aproximately $20,000,000 to the income of the Wisconsin farmer annually," says the report. "The increased demand for clover seed, caused by a more general appreciation of clover seeds as a green fertilizer, is attracting attention to the undeveloped grass lands of the state."

DESIRED TO DIE; WISH GRATIFIED

Killed by Cars at Cass Lake After Making Awful Wish.

Cass Lake, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Johnson, presumably a lumberjack, was rather mysteriously killed here last night. His body was found on the railroad track after the passenger train from the south had pulled out. One hand was cut off and there was a deep gash in the throat. No one witnessed any accident. The deceased told a fellow passenger shortly before that he wished he was dead. Johnson was a passenger on the train. He has no relatives so far as known. An inquest will be held today by Coroner Dumas.

COPPER COUNTRY PIONEER.

Capt. James Snell, Father of Hibbing Woman, is Buried.

Hancock, lMch., aJn. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—From the residence the funeral of Capt. Joseph Snell, for fifty-four years a resident of the Lake Superior region, was held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon and was largely attended. Interment was in Forest Hill cemetery.

Capt. Snell, who died Monday, was in his 80th year and a native of Cornwall, Eng. He came to this section in 1854, working first as a miner at the Cliff mine. After trying farming in Wisconsin he returned to the Copper country and for many years was connected with different properties in various responsible capacities, the last being superintendent of all outside works of the Tamarck and Osceola mills, until he retired and came to Hancock to live. He was twice married, his second wife surviving along with these children; Mrs. Joseph Curnow of Buffalo, N. Y.; William Snell of Superior, Ariz.; Mrs. Tom Prince of Hancock, Joseph Snell, Jr. of Point Mills, Mrs. Wallace Middlemiss of Lake Linden, Henry T. Snell of Globe, Ariz., and Mrs. Bruce Middlemiss of Hibbing, Minn.

DRUMMOND ISLAND FIRE.

Johnson's General Store and Postoffice Were Wiped Out Jan. 2.

Calumet, Mich., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Maggie Walz has received word that Johnson's general store on Drummond island was destroyed by fire on Jan. 2. The loss is estimated at about $10,000. Mr. Johnson carried a big stock of general merchandise, on which he had no insurance.

The postoffice, of which Miss Walz was postmistress, was located in the same building. All of her effects and the postoffice equipment were saved, while the Johnson property was an entire loss, with exception of the feed, which was stocked in a warehouse away from the main store. Mr. Johnson is a young man, aged 23, while his wife is just two years younger. They were married last summer.

MONEY FOR INDIANS.

Yankton Indian Agency, S. D., Jan. 14.—Uncle Sam evidently has concluded that the Sioux belonging to this agency need a little more cash to tide them over the remainder of the winter, and accordingly arrangements have been perfected for the distribution among these Indians by the government of about $14,000. This amount will be paid from a fund belonging to the Indians which is placed to their credit in the United States treasury.

ALL ROUND TOUGH, ONE MORRIS, IS BEING TRIED.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 14.—The trial of Sherman Morris, alias Frank Shercliffe, charged with robbery in the first degree, has begun in the district court. Morris, who served time in Iowa for a sensational diamond robbery, and who escaped from a train in Colorado while being taken to prison to serve a twenty-five year sentence for murder, is considered one of the most dangerous criminals in the country.

He is charged with holding up passengers on a Northern Pacific train in the Minneapolis city limits last spring. Owen Ball, now serving a prison sentence, made a confession in which he implicated Shercliffe.

JUNIORS LEAVE CLASS ROOM AT UNIVERSITY.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Objecting to the method of teaching employed by the instructor, thirty students of the University of Minnesota, members of the junior clas of the college, yesterday walked from the class room in a body.

William B. Newhall, as instructor in "stresses" in the engineering college and a graduate of the University of Minnesota, assumed charge of Prof. Kessner's classes in the institute only a few weeks ago, and "Newhall's kindergarten methods," as the students characterize things, was the cause of the strike.

HE FEARS NEW CAPITOL.

Timid Legislator is Afraid of Result of Dampness.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 14.—"I'm afraid of the new capitol," said Assemblyman Henry Laycock of Eau Claire.

Mr. Laycock is a contractor and builder.

"I'm afraid of the dampness," he continued, "afraid that if we go in those chambers now much sickness will ensue. A building not fully dried out is dangerous."

WANT TOWNSHIP NAMED AFTER PRESIDENT-ELECT.

Minot, N. D., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Wishing to be named after President-elect Taft, the residents of township 155, 89, asked the board of county commissioners for permission to use the name.

The residents of this township are enthusiastic admirers of the next president, and they have selected his name above all others. If there is no other township in North Dakota by this name, the request will be granted.

FALLING TREE KILLS.

Green Bay, Wis., Jan. 14.—George Wilson, aged 35, was killed in the woods near Crandon by a tree falling upon him. His back was broken and ribs crushed.

Hansbrough Better.

Grand Forks, N. D., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A letter from Senator H. C. Hansbrough states he is improving. He is at Asbury hospital, Minneapolis and hopes to be able to be out in about two weeks.

Dickinson, N. D.—The demand for additional school room has become so very urgent in Dickinson that the school board will probably take steps in the near future to provide for additional space.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Sheriff Hanson made his report of the deliquent personal property taxes to the county commissioners. The report shows an amount of $54,079.37 of uncollected taxes.

Minot, N D.—The work of installing a telephone system for dispatching trains on the Minot division of the Great Northern from Devile Lake to Williston, 239 miles, is nearly finished. It is to extend from Williston to Cutbank, Mont., ove rthe Montana division 537 miles and also along the Butte division, which covers 507 miles.

Platte, S. D.—The Platte Epitome, one of the weekly newspapers published here, has a new name and is now called the Platte Tribune.

Grand Forks, N. D.—Rev. G. O. Mona, of the Trinity Lutheran church, left Tuesday evening for Sacred Heart, Minn., having been granted a leave of absence by his congregation, to recuperate from throat affliction, which has been troubling him for some time.

Wahpeton, N. D.—Two veterans of the Civil war have answered the roll call in Richland county since the first of the year. They are George Demory and Charles Maeles.

Minot, N. D.—The firm of Gross & Hedges, publishing the Minot Democrat, has dissolved partnership and F. O. Gross becomes the sole proprietor. The change was brought about yesterday as a result of a conference between the two members of the firm.

Your Cold. Try It

The uniform success that has attended the use of this remedy in the cure of bad colds has made it one of the most popular medicines in use. It can always be depended upon to effect a quick cure and is pleasant to take.

It contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given as confidently to a child as to an adult. Price 25 cents. Large size 50 cents.

Rheumatics!

Prove It For Yourselves

We don't ask you to take our word for this. We want to prove it to you—prove it at our own expense.

If you will write to us today we will at once send you a liberal trial box of Hill's Rheumatic Pills, absolutely free.

We do this to prove to you that these Pills will cure you.

Many people suffering from mild cases of Uric Acid poisoning are cured by this trial box alone, but if your case is of long standing or has been aggravated through other diseases you could hardly expect so quick a cure.

In any event, this trial box of Pills is bound to prove so beneficial that we know you will want to continue the treatment until a cure is effected.

You will feel better after the first dose. The excruciating pain you have been suffering will become dull and dead, and as the remedy drives the acid out of the system will vanish altogether.

Hill's Rheumatic Pills are purely vegetable with the exception of a very small amount of common baking soda. They tone up the stomach, cleanse the bowels, restore the liver and kidneys to a state of vigorous health and fill the arteries with fresh, red blood.

This wonderful remedy has been in the market seventy-three years, and it is made today just as it was when first discovered in 1835. The formula was so perfect that modern medical science was unable to improve it.

Eighteen thousand people have written us that Hill's Rheumatic Pills cured them.

We know they will cure you and we want to prove it to you at our own expense.

If you suffer from Rheumatism or any other form of Uric Acid trouble, write to us today. This free trial box of Pills may cure you. Certainly it will relieve the pain you now suffer and make you feel like a new person.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

EVERYBODY IS KICKING

Weather Conditions Have Played Havoc With Winter Sports.

Duluth Club May Not Bid for 1910 Ski Tournament.

So far this season winter sports have been dead.

There has been very little hockey because there is no place to play. There is plenty of ice, but unless the players or management of a team would be willing to shoulder all the expense bringing visiting players here, there is no way of meeting outside teams.

The Northern team of last year tried an outdoor rink, but aside from the fact that it was a popular skating place the crowds would not turn out, brave the chill of the winds and the dampness under foot solely to support a hockey team.

There are this winter a number of good outdoor rinks, but the managers refuse to take a chance. There is nobody who blames them much and so Duluth has no hockey.

The Zeniths are the fastest aggregation in the field at the present time, and while they are figuring on making a number of trips to Minneapolis, St. Paul, and the Copper country, their manager refused to be drawn into a local proposition. There is a lot of expense in bringing teams here, and he is not willing to take the responsibility.

Skiing has also been dead so far. The weather man has been extremely unkind to the Norweglans, and for want of sufficient snow this sport has suffered.

A new hill has been built, is ready and waiting for an abundant fall of the beautiful. The club is watching the season slipping away, and the riders have been anxious for some time to get busy. A tournament was to be made possible for Sunday by hauling the much needed snow, but Superior had planned a tournament and the plans of the Duluth club were again given a setback. Had it not been that the Superior club had its advertising all out, the Duluth club would have gone along with its plans regardless of what the riders across the bay had arranged, but at a meeting held Tuesday evening, the directors of the Duluth club decided not to conflict with Superior's plans and the tournament was postponed a week.

On that date occurs the Chippewa Falls tournament, and the Duluth club Wednesday decided to send either Ole Fiering or John Evenson to represent the Zenith City. This will detract from the local tournament, but the officials decided it would be for the best, as when the Duluth tournament comes on Feb. 12, she wants representatives from all the Wisconsin towns. There are to be a number of tournaments coming soon, and Duluth will be represented at all of them.

The tournament to be held on Chester hill this year will be as big an event as the national, if the present plans of the directors are carried out. Invitations have been sent to every known ski club within reasonable distance, and for the most part they have been accepted. The best-known riders in the country will participate and the cash prizes will be large.

It is hardly probable that the Duluth club will make a very strong bid for the National tournament in 1910. The Duluth men feel that, while the public did all they could in the last tournament, and while the city does not get so much advertising out of a local event as it would out of the National affair, still, the same riders take part, and the sport is on exactly the same level as the event which is universally classed higher.

Thus far the ice boating, for which great plans were made by the members of the Duluth Yacht club, has fallen short on account of lack of wind. It isn't usual to be without wind in Duluth, but as the winter has generally been devoid of those things which go to make up a successful sport season, it is not unnatural that this sport should suffer from natural causes.

The best race track in years has been marked out at the foot of Twenty-first avenue west, but on the days that racing would be possible the weather has been too cold, and rather than expose the horses to the biting atmosphere, the races have been from time to time postponed.

A number of times matinees have been planned, but the weather has marred the sport. The horsemen are now anxious to get busy, however, as the season is getting along, and it is probable that within the next few weeks a number of fast races will be run off.

Never has there been such a year for curling. The Duluth Curling club has taken in more of the younger men than ever before. They are all showing marked ability at the game, too, and before the season is out they threaten to organize an all-star rink and clean up the old-timers. Six rinks went from the Duluth club to the big bonspiel in St. Paul, and from all accounts they are holding their own with the rinks of the Northwest.

The Y. M. C. A. has its regular devotees, and boxing, wrestling, fencing, handball, basketball, indoor baseball, gymnastum exercises and other athletic stunts are greatly in favor. An indoor ball league is to be formed from among the teams, and it is expected that this will prove interesting.

The basketball team has already shown its quality by defeating both Blaine and Nelson Dewey of Superior. They will soon branch out and meet the best teams in the state. Proctor is the next on the schedule, and while the team from up on the hill is always strong, the Central boys expect to defeat them by a decisive score.

Meanwhile skiing, show-shoeing, coasting and other winter sports are suffering for want of snow.

Minneapolis Gets Gill.

Minneapolis, Jan. 14.—It was announced here yesterday that the Minneapolis baseball club had purchased First Baseman Warren Gill, of the Pittsburg National league club. "Bill" Clarke, the former Baltimore and Toledo player, has been sold to the Omaha team of the Western league.

REAL PRIZE FIGHT.

New York Police Made No Attempt to Stop Affair.

New York, Jan. 14.—That a real prize fight may be held in New York without police interference, was indicated last night at the Sharkey A. C., when two lively rounds ended what was to have been a ten-round bout between Willie Mango and Battling Hurley. Hurley easily proved his superiority by knocking out Mango in the second round with a vicious left uppercut to the jaw. In the first round Hurley fed his ground, permitting his opponent to land several stinging jabs. With the call for the second round, Hurley came out of his corner like a mad bull and fought Mango literally off his feet.

ANDERSON ENTERS MILL CITY MEET

Holder of Western Title Will Defend Championship at Hippodrome.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—Western Champion Adolph C. G. Anderson, who carried off the honors of the Sleipner skating derby last Saturday, left the city today for Minneapolis, where he will defend his title on Friday and Saturday. Among the stars entered in the Minneapolis races are John Rankin, Al Roth and Harry Fischer of Milwaukee. After his engagements at Minneapolis, Anderson will go to St. Paul, to compete in an invitation event on Sunday afternoon.

JEFFRIES MAY SURPRISE FANS

Takes First Workout Before Few Spectators and Looks Fit.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—It was up to Jim Jeffries to provide his daily sensation yesterday, and as usual, the big fellow made good. Jeffries appeared in a public training stunt in the gymnasium of the Los Angeles Athletic club. It was 1:30 in the afternoon when Jim showed up on the floor. He had said nothing in advance concerning his plans, and as a result only a few of the favored ones were on hand.

Jeffries is in such condition that a conscientious siege of training would put him in shape to fight Jack Johnson or any other man in the world for that matter. His physical appearance when he had stripped was a distinct surprise to the critical visitors, who had expected to see Jeffries hog fat and all out of condition.

Jim's breast, abdomen and arms are fat and his wind is poor, but he stepped around as spry as a twenty-year-old youngster, and in less than five minutes the perspiration was flowing freely from his body.

He shadow boxed for several minutes, skipped the rope, worked the pulleys and played with the rowing apparatus, after which he allowed the photographers to take as many liberties as they desired.

Jeffries on his showing dissipated the idea that he cannot get into fighting trim.

SNAP LACKING TO THE DEMAND

Iron Age Says Railroads Are the Principal Laggards.

New York, Jan. 14.—The Iron Age says, today:

There is a feeeling of some disappointment, even among those who refused to join in the chorus of exuberant predictions of last November. There is no snap in the demand, and what requirements there are, come out in a hesitating way.

The railroads are the principal laggards, while apparently, the general trade is acting conservatively, in view of the coming tariff revision. The conviction seems to be gaining ground that a feature of the latter will be free raw materials, among them iron ore, coal, coke and possibly scrap, with corresponding reductions in semi-finished and finished iron and steel.

New business is light all along the line. There is the nearest approach to a normal demand in the wire products. There are some slight spots of weakness in the pig iron markets.

Pipe makers are still responsible for the larger inquiries in the market, and at least one large block is under negotiation, after having been practically closed. There is a disposition to buy among open hearth smelters in eastern and western Pennsylvania.

The rail trade continues quiet. Among the new inquiries which are up for consideration are 22,000 tons for the International & Great Northern, and 8,000 tons for the Great Northern.

Eastern Pennsylvania plate and structural mills are running at a better rate than they have been for a long time and there is the prospect of some good business in shipments for the Atlantic coast yards. None of the larger work which has been pending has been closed. It is expected that the new power house for the New York Edison company, which will call for 1,200 tons, will soon be figured on.

Old material is weaker in Chicago and the East.

The metal markets are quiet throughout and some sellers of copper admit their disappointment. There was a sharp drop in tin, amounting to about 1 cent per pound during the week, the metal touching 27.90 during the decline.

SILK TRAIN IS WRECKED; 3 DIE

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 14.—A freight wreck has occurred on the siding of the Canadian Pacific, seven miles west of Swift Current, resulting in fatal injuries to three. A silk train was on a siding, when it was run into by a freight train, the switch being open. Several cars were burned.

The engineer, brakeman and porter of the car, names not learned, were killed.

The silk, valued at $250,000 a car, arrived at Vancouver this week by steamer, from the Orient, for New York merchants.

CURED TO STAY CURED

How a Duluth Citizen Found Complete Freedom From Kidney Troubles.

If you suffer from backache—
From urinary disorders—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.

Duluth people testify.

Here's one case of it:

L. P. Schneider, 210 West Fourteenth street, Duluth, Minn., says: "Acute pains in the small of my back made it hard for me to stoop or lift and at night I was in such misery that I could not sleep. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and often contained a sediment. After other medicines and treatments had failed, Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and restored me to good health."

The above statement was given on October 20th, 1904, and was confirmed by Mr. Schneider on November, 1908. He said: "I willing reindorse Doan's Kidney Pills and reiterate all I have previously said about them. My cure has been a lasting one, proving that Doan's Kidney Pills are a remedy of great merit."

CANUCKS DEFEATED

Americans Win International Trophy in St. Paul Bonspiel.

The Duluth Rinks in at Finish in all Events.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 14.—The feature of the Northwestern Bonspiel yesterday was the play for the International trophy, contested for by seven American and seven Canadian rinks last evening, the Americans winning in the aggregate by 75 to 71. This gives the American rinks the right to play for the International trophy. As a result of the International contest, Dunbar of St. Paul is the only undefeated skip in the bonspiel, he having defeated Carson of Winnipeg 12 to 6.

Governor Johnson threw the first stone last night.

Following are the scores:

DULUTH RINKS IN AT FINISH

Local Curlers Still Represented in All Bonspiel Events.

St. Paul, Jan. 14.—The Duluth event is now down to the "sixteens," and the St. Paul Jobbers' event is down to the "eights."

There are only a few more games to be played in these events, and tonight, it is safe to say, they will be down to the semi-finals.

In the Duluth event, Bradley, McLeod and A. H. Smith are still up. McLeod is this morning playing Kelly of St. Paul, and A. H. Smith has been draw to play Dunbar the great St. Paul player, who is, up to this time, the only undefeated skip in the bonspiel.

In the St. Paul Jobbers' event A. H. Smith is the only Duluth rink left and he has been drawn to play Ordway of St Paul. Meldahl of West Duluth was put out of the running by Whalen, the latter entering the semi-finals.

In the Canadian Soo event, Jones and Ron Smith are still in the running, and in the Mineapolis event Jones and A. H. Smith are still up.

St. Paul Signs Hoey.

St. Paul, Jan. 14.—Manager Kelly of the St. Paul baseball club, announced yesterday that he had signed Outfielder John Hoey, formerly of the Boston Americans, and Catcher Ed Carlsch formerly of the Pittsburg team.

BLAMES LAWSON FOR DOWNFALL

King, Erstwhile Publisher, Sentenced for Larceny.

Boston, Jan. 14.—Cardenlo Flavius King, former financial agent and broker, who maintained palatial offices in Boston and New York, and who for a short time was publisher of a daily paper here, was sentenced by Judge Schofield in the superior court to serve a term of not less than ten nor more than fourteen years at hard labor.

On Dec. 29 King was convicted on twenty-seven counts of an indictment charging him with larceny and embezzlement, and with securing by false pretenses the sum of $22,000 from his customers.

The sentence followed a dramatic statement by King, during which he reviewed the story of his life, his flight from Boston and his travels in England, France and Ceylon. He declared that he was innocent of any wrong intent in any of his acts, and in closing his address he accused Thomas W. Lawson of secretly fighting him and bringing him to financial ruin.

Mrs. King and her two sons sat inside the rail close to the prisoner as sentence was pronounced. King was later taken to prison. He made an assignment on Feb. 21, 1908. His liabilities were placed at $297,881 and his assets at $13,668.

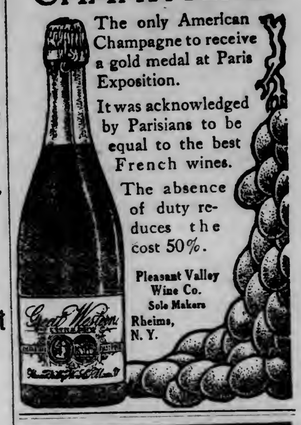

When to Bow and Shake Hands.

In one's house, for instance, it is correct to shake hands with every one, and from this rule there is no deviation. In other people's houses it is by no means necessary to shake hands on the occasion of a casual introduction; in fact, it would look ignorant to do more than bow. It is always considered good form to serve golden grain belt beer at mealtime. This mild, delicious beverage is as good for the health as it is to the taste and keen appetite comes with its use. How Much Coal Do You Throw Away?

One-fifth surely, maybe one-fourth, if you don't sift the ashes; some less if you use an ordinary sifter; absolutely none if you use the

Save-All Ash Sifter

It will sift one-third of a bushel of ashes in a minute or so without a particle of dust.

Use it in the kitchen or basement and carry out only the plain ashes.

Simplest, most durable and best made; will pay for itself in sifting the ashes from two tons of coal.

The price is $4.00; if your dealer can't supply you, send us his name and ask for free copy of book "There's Money in the Ash Pile" and we will tell you how you can get a SAVE-ALL Sifter.

COAL MOVEMENT VERY HEAVY

Railroads Taking 600 Cars a Day to the West.

More than 600 cars of coal a day going to the West from the Head of the Lakes.

For the first time since the car shortage of over a year ago, the wholesale dealers of this city are facing the position of being unable to fill the orders of coal. All winter the business has lagged and there has been nothing moving. The cold weather of the past two weeks has resulted in the exhaustion of the supply of coal in the West and the heavy rush orders have been pouring into this city at a rate that has kept the coal men on the jump.

The coal docks at Superior have been working double shift for the past three days and nights. So great is the demand for coal that at the present time there are orders that cannot be filled until the back orders are cleaned up.

There is more coal moving from Superior at the present time than there is from Duluth. An inquiry at the coal docks at both cities this morning, brought forth the statement that over 600 cars a day, a conservative estimate, are moving from the Head of the Lakes to the West.

Were there a lack of cars at the present time, it is probable that the West would suffer as it suffered two years ago from lack of fuel. However, there are more than enough cars at the present time, and the coal is being rushed westward just as fast as it can be loaded upon the cars at the docks.

ATTEMPTED BLACKMAIL OF ST. CLOUD MAN FAILS.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A case of attempted blackmail against a St. Cloud man has been discovered by the local authorities. Some days ago a St. Cloud girl made complaint to the county attorney against a man, charging paternity. She was willing to accept a cash consideration in payment. The accused man was "put on the carpet" and denied the allegation and was prepared to fight the case. A further investigation was made and it was found that the accused was not mixed up in the deal at all. It is understood that she will make complaint against another party.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

DEER HAVE EASY TIME

Lack of Snow Enables Them to Evade the Wolves.

Condition is Rather Hard on the Loggers, However.

"This is a great winter for the deer, and a bad one for the wolves," said E. N. Barrett of Kelliher, Minn., yesterday. Mr. Barrett, who operates extensively in ties, posts and poles in the district along the Minnesota & International railroad, and all through the region to the north of the line, is in the city for a couple of days, on his way home from Chicago.

"The fact that there is scarcely any snow in the woods makes it an easy matter for the deer to keep out of reach of the wolves, and people interested in hunting and the preservation of game are earnestly hoping that there will not be more than sufficient snow for logging purposes during what remains of the winter, and thus the animals will be able to take care of themselves until spring.

"A person who does not get around in the woods a lot does not realize what a large number of deer are killed by wolves, when conditions are right. I have run across as many as four or five carcasses in one day, and at that rate it doesn't take long to cut down the venison supply. The execution is greatest when the snow is deep, especially when there has been a heavy thaw, or a rain, so that a cold night will form a hard crust. This supports the wolves, while the deer break through, so they can travel only short distances, making it an easy matter for their pursuers, whose weight is borne by the crust, to overtake them.

"Wolves have increased in number during the last four or five years, and in certain parts of Northern Minnesota are very numerous, despite the fact that hunters and trappers are constantly trying to get them, so they can collect the bounty.

"As far as mankind is concerned, more snow is needed to make the logging situation satisfactory. There is scarcely enough on the ground to make good hauling. There is now a good foundation for snow, for the ground is frozen solid. Often in previous years the trouble has been that the snow spread like a heavy blanket over the land before the ground had time to freeze, and with this soft foundation, which couldn't freeze after the snow covered it, sleighing and road making was almost an impossibility. There is no danger from that source this year, however."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON: Jan. 17. Acts 2:22-47: The Beginning of the Christian Church.

By Rev. J. S. Kirtley, D. D.

THE CONNECTION.

The Spirit's power was greatly shown in the courage of the apostles, their new grasp of the whole mission of Christ, their self-mastery and the rare power of Peter in the sermon that he preached. Though an untrained man, he spoke with the wisdom of a logician, the fervor of a prophet and the power of an orator, as he showed that Jesus was the Messiah by His character and works, by His resurrection and by this outpouring of the Spirit, all of it conforming exactly to the teaching of the Jewish prophets. He closed his sermon by telling them that they had crucified their Messiah. The effect was marvelous.

THE LESSON.

I.

Exalting Jesus, 32-36.

'This Jesus did God raise up, whereof we all are witnesses. Being therefore by the right hand of God exalted and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit he hath poured forth this which ye see and hear. For David ascended not into the heavens; but he saith himself:

The Lord said unto my Lord,
Sit thou on my right hand,
Till I make thine enemies the footstool of thy feet.

Let all the house of Israel therefore know assuredly, that God hath made him both Lord and Christ, this Jesus whom ye crucified."

1. Peter exalts Jesus as the Messiah whom God raised from the dead after these people had slain him.

2. He shows that the ascended Jesus is the source of this extrordinary manifestation which they then saw.

3. He shows that their own Scriptures written by their beloved David foretold this. It was a great speech.

II.

Winning Converts, 37-41.

"Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles, Brethren, what shall we do? And Peter said unto them, Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For to you is the promise, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call unto Him. And with many other words he testified, and exhorted them, saying, Save yourselves from this crooked generation. They then that received his word were baptized; and there were added unto them in that day about three thousand souls."

1. Conviction.

The first effect was a stinging pain in their hearts. Conscience was clearly aroused. It was a conviction of sin. Their nation had murdered Jesus and they were a part of the nation, therefore guilty; some of them must have had a part in it, and therefore felt doubly guilty; all of them had rejected their Messiah and were in danger of the wrath of God; all of them felt in possession of a sinful nature that was itself hostile to their own Messiah. It was a conviction of being sinful as well as of doing sinful deeds.

2. Repentance.

Second effect was complete repentance or turning away from sin, to Christ the Savior.

The conerts were thoroughly made by instructing them in the way of salvation and in the duties of the Christian life. They expressed their agony in the question what they must do to escape the consequences of their sins and were dealt with honestly and lovingly. The first duty was to repent of their sins. That means to change their minds about sin and the Saviour. That change of mind involved sorrow for the past and a purpose for the future. They were in the midst of that sorrow; they must now be led to that purpose, and then repentance will be complete. That repentance would involve faith, and it is likely that Peter said something more to them about faith. Whether he did or not, they could not turn away from sin to a Saviour and be baptized in the name of that Saviour without having faith in Him. The apostles probably had a big inquiry meeting, and taught the inquirers all the truths about being saved and living the true life.

3. Profession and Proof Required.

Repentance always brings confession of sins, as we know. But there was to be an expression and proof of that repentance given in the act of baptism, as it had been from the beginning. When John the Baptist preached he told them it signified that they had repented and when they asked to be baptized without real repentance, he refused it to them and demanded that they repent. When they were baptized it showed that they had repented and had been forgiven.

These converts were numerous. Although the conditions were difficult, three thousand accepted Christ and were baptized. That morning early there were only 120 disciples; now there are 3,000 more. It was a marvelous triumph and was due to the power of the Holy Spirit working through aroused and consecrated testimony. They were not only added to the church, but to each other.

III.

Training the converts. 42-47.

"And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' teaching and fellowship, in the breaking of bread and the prayers.

And fear came upon every soul; and many wonders and signs were done through the apostles.

And all that believed were together, and had all things common.

And they sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all, according as any man had need.

And day by day, continuing steadfastly with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread at home, they took their food with gladness and singleness of heart.

Praising God and having favor with all the people. And the Lord added to them day by day those that were saved.

1. How they taught them.

That teaching must have been given day by day to them collectively and individually at regular times, and must have included all the history of Jesus and all the truths He had revealed to them. They were being trained to know, to enjoy and to bear witness. They trained them next by taking them into their "fellowship." The companionship of good men is an education. That fellowship was based upon their new brotherhood in Christ. It involved mutual love and confidence. They also trained the young converts by means of the "breaking of bread," by which the Lord's supper seems to be meant. Its nature and significance would be explained to them and that would open a new world of knowledge as well as lead to new experiences. Praying together was also a training. Their devotion to this training was marked, and is characterized by two words, "continued" and "steadfast." They were persistent and they were loyal. They accepted these new teachers and leaders in the place of the old rabbis, even although they were not technically trained to be teachers. They received the new ordinances without questioning, even although they might supersede the old Jewish ordinances.

The miracle wrought manifested the power and goodness of God in a way to train them in reverence.

2. Unity.

One of the striking features of their new life was the community of goods. The tie that bound them was very strong and the motive prompting them was mighty when they were led to surrender their property for the benefit of each other. For in doing so they had to overcome the natural human love of wealth. To the Jew material prosperity was a token of God's favor, and they surrendered much in giving up their property.

They did it not because it was a law of God, but because there were special reasons why it should be done at that particular time and place. The apostles might have encouraged it from their remembrance of the way Jesus and they used to do and the people yielded to a powerful fraternal impulse and obeyed. There was no command of God that they should not do. No one did wrong in not doing it, as we learn a little further from Peter's words to Ananias. It was not done by all at once, but by individuals, as the need arose. They did not give away at once what they had, but held it ready for use at any moment. The circumstances at Jerusalem were peculiar, as there were many strangers in the city from distant places, and when they were converted they would want to remain there awhile to learn the truth more fully from the apostles and they would need assistance. It was not intended that there should be an equal distribution of property among them, but simply a brotherly care for the needy. To them and to us there is a vital principle underlying all of this, namely, that as we are not our own so our property is not ours but held as a trust to be administered according to the will of God. There is no other instance of the community of goods in the Bible; there is no instruction on the subject in the Bible. It was an exceptional temporary expedient to express the deep principles of fraternity in peculiar conditions.

Their unity in Christ led them to worship and pray together, in unaffected fellowship in all their possessions, both spiritual and temporal.

3. Power.

They won the favor of the people. One who is true to God and to man may be hated and mistreated, but he will always have the love and confidence of God's true people and of all high-minded people generally. A church in such a spiritual frame of mind and habit of life will be winning converts and increasing its own members. This went on steadily, for it was day by day; it was thorough, for they were saved people who were added; it was powerful, for those who were added came in as fast as they were saved. Thus we see how the church started off on its mission of conquering men for Christ.

WHAT THE MASTERS SAY.

Some people seem to measure the fervor of their religion by the number of enemies they make. Now, one thing is certain, you can't please everybody. If you please the good you will displease the bad, and if you please the bad you will displease the good. Start out with the idea clear in your mind and then you won't be worried at the antagonisms you will certainly generate (unless you are a mere nobody). But I hold it to be a true and defensible proposition that if you live in a community of good people and don't gain their good will, you are no true disciple of Jesus. For the Divine life in a human soul wins love and devotion.—Goss.

The extreme simplicity of life in the East renders the picture of the early church as portrayed in the closing verses of Acts 2 easily intelligible to one familiar with society, as we find it today in Palestine. There are no conventional hours for making visits, and so if anyone has anything particular to communicate, he may come before the sun is up and he will stay as long as he is interested, or as it suits him. Time is no object to him. He is not afraid that the roast will be spoiled in the oven or that he will be rated for being late at meals, and so, his mind being at ease, he can talk and smoke, eat and drink at his neighbor's, or elsewhere, without any fear of creating a domestic disturbance.—Howie.

POINTS TO IMPRESS.

1. That when Jesus is truly preached, men know they need Him.

2. That salvation often depends on instruction after the awakening.

3. That the Spirit uses us as a means of convicting people of sin.

4. That the children of the pious and the wayward must be saved alike.

5. That to receive Christ's word is to do Christ's will.

6. That acceptance of Christ must lead to confession of Christ.

7. That knowledge of Christ requires still more knowledge.

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"On October 18th, last, my little three-year-old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day October 23rd, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. I recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unreservedly as I have found it the surest, safest and quickest cure for colds, both for children and adults, of any I have ever used.' SIERRA MADRE TO COLE-RYAN

Col. Greene's Land and Lumber Properties Change Hands.

Chihuahua, Mex., Jan. 14.—News has reached this place from a very reliable source that Thomas F. Cole and John D. Ryan, who control the great Greene-Cananea Copper company of Cananea, Sonora, have taken over the holdings of Col. W. C. Greene's Sierra Madre Land & Lumber company in this state and that the claims against that corporation will soon be settled.

While the above comes from a reliable source and it is known absolutely that such a deal has been under consideration, it is not the desire to hold out any false hopes and the same is given as news from a confidential and reliable source.

As is well known, such a deal is entirely within the range of reasonable probability as the Greene-Cananea Copper company has large claims against the Sierra Madre Land & Lumber company and naturally needs at Cananea immense amount of lumber, not to mention the demand for that necessity in the great mines about Bisbee, Ariz.

The above news of Messrs. Cole and Ryan's taking over the Sierra Madre Land & Lumber company's interests, which include, besides the mills at Madera, Chihuahua, nearly 3,000,000 acres of land in this state, with much of it heavily timbered, appears to be in keeping with the news published recently regarding the survey of a line for a railroad from Cananea to Douglas, Ariz., and thence to Guzman on the Rio Grande, Sierra Madre and Pacific railroad, all on Col. Greene's concessions. In this connection are the efforts of H. R. Nickerson, president of the Sierra Madre & Pacific Railroad company to build from Nueva Casas Grandes on the R. G., S. M. & P. railroad southward to a connection with the Chihuahua & Pacific railroad and thence by that road and the S. M. & P. to the saw mills at Madera.

From an equally reliable source it was learned that the prospects for new capital taking over the Greene Gold-Silver company or its holdings and paying the claims against that corporation are, if anything, brighter than for the Sierra Madre Land & Lumber company. It is reliably stated that Judge A. B. Fall, who has charge of the interests of those companies for Col. W. C. Greene, is very sanguine of success in reorganizing them with new capital. It is known here that C. C. Chase, manager of the Greene Gold-Silver company, when he passed through here a few days ago, took out some money and has been paying off labor claims at Concheno and Ocampo.

Came Near Choking to Death.

A little boy, the son of Chris D. Peterson, a well known resident of the village of Jacksonville, Iowa, had a sudden and violent attack of croup. Much thick stringy phlegm came up after giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mr. Peterson says: "I think he would have choked to death had we not given him this remedy." For sale by all druggists.

When It Is Dyspepsia, You'll Know It

That's different from Indigestion. You may experience the first symptoms of Indigestion without knowing what they really portend. Kodol, however, prevents Dyspepsia by providing for complete digestion.

Where there is complete and perfect digestion there is, of course, no room for dyspepsia. And it is, for various reasons, more satisfactory to prevent dyspepsia than to attempt to cure it. Fact is, you must depend upon Nature for a cure, and Kodol assists Nature.

Nature will cure a sick stomach quicker than any medicine in the world—if you give Nature a chance. But Nature cannot cure the stomach while the stomach is overworked. That is impossible.

In order to be cured the stomach must rest. That is the point. And that is what Kodol is for—to rest the stomach. It digests every particle of food for the stomach, so that the stomach has nothing to do but get well. Then it gets well.

You would be surprised if you knew how many persons have indigestion. And, of course, most of them have dyspepsia, ultimately—if they neglect the indigestion. Then Nature is in urgent need of assistance. And nervous dyspepsia is a terrible thing to those afflicted with it.

Kodol supplies this assistance just the same as in the early stages of indigestion. But more time and more rest are required for Nature to effect a cure. It is best not to wait until one gets dyspepsia.

Nearly all classes of people are subject to indigestion. Healthy appearance outwardly is no indication of a healthy stomach. Neither are sound muscles any safeguard against an unhealthy stomach.

The indications of digestive derangement are bloated feeling, gnawing pain in the pit of the stomach, sourness of stomach, belching of gas and nauseating fluid, heartburn (so-called), diarrhoetic condition, headaches, dullness and lassitude, etc. When you experience any of these, you need Kodol.

Kodol is a digester of unquestioned merit. Unquestioned, because one cannot question the merit of a thing that does all it is claimed to do, or was intended to do. Kodol does this. It completely digests all food. That is all that is required, because Nature does the rest.

Eat what you want, let Kodol digest it. You don't have to take Kodol all the time. You only take Kodol when you need it.

Our Guarantee

Go to your druggist today and get a dollar bottle, and if after using the entire bottle you can honestly say you have received no benefits from it, return the bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money to you without question or delay, and we will pay the druggist the price of the bottle purchased by you.

Don't hesitate, every druggist knows our guarantee is good.

This offer applies to the large bottle only and to one in a family. The dollar bottle contains 2½ times as much as the fifty cent bottle.

SUFFRAGETTE IS PUT OUT; SHOUTS

Insists on Arguing With Churchill at Birmingham Banquet.

Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 14.—The constantly varying tactics of the woman suffragists developed an extraordinary scene at a political banquet given here last night to Winston Spencer Churchill, president of the board of trade, and caused much embarrassment to a large company of men and women who attended the function.

During the dinner a woman in evening dress went to the table where Mr. Churchill was sitting and commenced to argue with him in favor of votes for women. The conversation was carried on for some time, the woman standing facing Mr. Churchill, who, with his wife, remained seated eating his dinner.

Finally the officials insisted that the woman leave the dining hall, and upon refusing to do so, she was taken by the shoulders and escorted to the door, meanwhile shouting suffragette battle cries.

Attorneys for Booth Creditors Ask Where They Are.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 14.—The disappearance of three check books which the attorneys for the creditors of the bankrupt fish firm of A. Booth & Co. claim would be of assistance in throwing light on the financial affairs of the concern, was brought to the attention of Master-in-Chancery Booth.

Attorney Jacob Newman, representing the creditors, was making an effort to learn what became of $692,000 paid by A. Booth & Co. to the law firm of Chancellor & Thornton, when it was announced that the check books had disappeared, and Attorney Justus Chancellor explained that the greater part of the money had been used in the purchase of fishing industries in Northwestern Canada, which was absorbed by the Booth concern.

FARGO MAN LUCKY.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—That J. T. Conley of this city is the luckiest man in North Dakota is the unanimous verdict of his friends. He was the only member of a party to escape with his life and uninjured from an accident near Munich, N. D. According to Conley, A. A. Newgard was carried about eighty rods on the pilot of the engine while G. W. Barnes was carried two miles. Although the latter will probably live, his face was badly cut up.

MAY USE OLD JAIL FOR A DETENTION HOME

The action of the county board at its last meeting in ordering the county auditor to advertise for bids on the property on which the present courthouse stands, has resulted in a renewal of the movement to have the present jail and at least a portion of the site of the old courthouse, held by the county for a detention home. People interested in the juvenile court and the work it is doing in caring for the wayward and incorrigible children, are behind the movement and an effort will be made by them to have the county board reject the bids when offered, and save at least a portion of the ground for the use of the juvenile court.

Ultimately, if not in the near future, it is practically certain a new jail will be constructed adjacent to the new courthouse. The resolution of the county board authorizes the sale of the old courthouse site, excepts the jail and a strip about twenty-five feet wide on the west side for a driveway. The people anxious to see the detention home established, believe the old jail should be converted into a detention home, and they wish to head off the sale of the old courthouse site, so that there will be plenty of ground available when the jail is converted.

Mingle With Criminals.

The care of wayward children in general and some in particular is a difficult problem at best. Under the present system, while children are awaiting the action of the juvenile court, it is necessary to place them in the city lockup, which is very unsatisfactory. Then, when the court has passed upon their cases, they must either be paroled with their parents, where they are removed from the eye of the court, or placed in the State Training school, which in some cases is considered too drastic a measure.

The juvenile court work of St. Louis county is constantly growing. The increased population of the county and the more metropolitan conditions in Duluth, have resulted in more cases being brought before the court, and the detention home has long been almost a necessity.

The building is admirably suited for the needs of the county in the way of a detention home and by adding the tract on the corner of Third street and Third avenue east to the property occupied by the jail building, sufficient grounds for the needs of the home for years to come, would be provided.

Judge Ensign, who presides over the juvenile court, is heartily in favor of the plan of converting the present jail building into a detention home.

The home would be designed to care for children while awaiting trial before the court and while under short term sentences. There are some children, who are subjected to danger by being paroled, and whose cases are not flagrant enough to warrant a commitment to the state training school.

'CRAZY' MAN WAS DYING

Because the police believed a combination of pneumonia delirium and delirium tremens to be insanity, William McDonnell, aged 35 years, an employe of the Duluth Iron & Metal company, was taken to the county jail last evening when he should have been taken to a hospital. The jail attendants knew nothing of his illness, and he died suddenly at about 7:30 this morning.

When McDonnell was taken into custody, he was clearly out of his head. He was taken to the jail in the patrol wagon and information of insanity filed in probate court. The jail officers say that nothing was said to them about the man being ill. He was apparently rational, and had the appearance of a man who was on a long spree. The officers say he talked incoherently all the way to the jail in the patrol wagon.

It as not thought necessary to call a physician and McDonnell was apparently all right, although evidently suffering from the effects of the whiskey he had drunk. He suddenly grew ill this morning and died before a physician could be summoned.

SUPERIOR NEWS

More Poor Charges.

According to the annual report of Poor Commissioner Ely, the average number of Douglas county charges, per month, requiring medical attention at Superior hospitals during 1908, was nearly double the number cared for during 1907. The number of patients receiving treatment from the county physician at the poor farm, also shows a slight increase.

Another Court Term.

Col. Hiram Hayes, president of the Douglas County Bar association, announced last night that a committee of the bar association may go to Madison to confer with Judge Sanburn of the federal court, concerning the bill introduced in congress by Congressman Jenkins, providing an additioal term of the United States court in Superior. These two terms would come in July and December. The bill also creates the offices of an additional deputy clerk and marshal. That a committee from the bar association should confer with Judge Sanborn was the request of Congressman Jenkins.

High School Plans Ready.

Architect E. W. Barber and his associates, German and Lignell, have announced that the complete plans and specifications for Superior's proposed new $300,000 high school building are now ready. The proposed location of the building is the block bounded by Belknap and Fourteenth streets, Grand and Weeks avenues. It is expected that this announcement will hurry the much postponed meeting of the school board committee and the finance committee, appointed to ascertain just what can be expected in the way of finances for building.

Buried at Sparta.

Word was received in Superior yesterday afternoon that the funeral of Mrs. H. D. Hall, who died Saturday at Mineral Wells, Tex., would take place this afternoon at Sparta, Wis.

Postoffice Report.

The annual report of Postmaster Anderson shows that the gross receipts of the Superior office during 1908 were $57,384.73, as compared with $57,011.14 in 1907, an increase of $373.59.

HARBOR ICE IS TREACHEROUS

There have recently been some narrow escapes from drowning in the lower harbor, where the river current has kept the ice from becoming thick enough to bear the weight of a man or even a boy.

A man whose name is not known, broke through the ice on the bay in front of the tug office at the foot of Seventh avenue west today. He managed to pull himself out of the water before the tugmen, who had witnessed the accident from the office, could come to his assistance.

Yesterday two small boys broke through in almost the same place, and for a time they were in great danger. The men in the tug office, after some difficulty, managed to drag them out.

LAWMAKERS FACE ANOTHER DEADLOCK.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 14.—In perfunctory sessions of both houses of the legislature, the Illinois general assembly today arranged to ballot separately Tuesday and jointly the day following, for United States senator. Without a party caucus, and it seems certain now that none will be held, there are indications that the general assembly will find itself in another deadlock. Gossips are mentioning Lorimer, Deneen, Shortleff, Congressman Frank O. Lowden, Former Governor Yates and Col. George T. Buckingham as candidates.

ALGER IS OPTIMISTIC

Head of Great Lumber Concern Says Money is Plentiful.

Easy to Secure Capital for Any Legitimate Enterprise.

Russell A. Alger of the Alger-Smith Lumber company, chairman of the Packard Motor Car company, and a director of the iron companies controlled by the Alger interests, is inclined to be potimistic in regard to the lumber outlook, as well as the prospects for other lines of business.

Mr. Alger, who is a son of the late Russell A. Alger, secretary of war under President McKinley, was at the Spalding today, and in the course of an interview stated that there was a very fair demand for lumber from all parts of the country, with the price of timber fairly high and holding well under present business conditions.

"There is more money in the banks right now than the banks know what to do with," said Mr. Alger. "By that I mean more capital than there is good opportunity for investment right at the present time. The other day, in Chicago, I was quoted commercial paper at 3½ per cent for six months. That is a very good rate of interest. Money is plentiful for sound and conservative investment right at the present time."

Mr. Alger adds that besides the improvement, he has found in the lumber business, and judging from heir own business in iron and iron castings, there is also an improvement in other lines of business. There is a good demand for manufactured iron products, castings, etc., according to Mr. Alger, which shows an expansion in the various lines of industrial activity.

Another sign that people are spending more money, which Mr. Alger thinks is a very good indication that they have money to spend, is the fact that his company has found a 70 per cent greater demand for motor cars.

When asked what effect, in his opinion, a reduction of the duty upon lumber would have, Mr. Alger replied that his belief was that it would make little difference to the lumber industry of this country.

"There is no reason why there shouldn't be an improvement in business," continued Mr. Alger. "There is election out of the way, and there is the fact that business everywhere is upon a sound and secure basis. People have money and there is plenty of money in the banks. Of course the demand for many manufactured products has been very light during the past year, but there is every indication to lead to the belief that the demand for every class of manufactured goods will increase. The country has passed from the state of indecision and there should be steady progress in business."

Mr. Alger stated that one of the marked differences between the business situation at the present time and that of a year ago, was the fact that now money both in the Eastern and Western money centers, was not difficult to secure for legitimate investment, while a year ago money was not only difficult to get, but there was little money in circulation even for the carrying on of business enterprises.

The Big Duluth
Gives you your choice of any suit or overcoat in the house for $15, and when we give these $15 sales we do exactly as we say—not a sale of one single make, but your choice of our entire stock, which is selected from the best clothesmakers in America. But now is the time for clearing our tables of all our winter suits and overcoats; for no matter how fine our stock may be, there's only one time to sell it—that's in the season for which it was bought. It is this good, old, fixed policy that has made the Big Duluth the best clothing store at the Head of the Lakes.

Court Takes Recess.
The United States circuit court, after opening this morning, adjourned until Friday morning.

Engels' Half-price Sale.
Engels' half-price sale of pictures, statuary, bronzes, bric-a-brac, in fact all kinds of exclusive art goods, offers a buying opportunity the people of Duluth have seldom had. The stock has been replenished daily and the selections are as good now as on the first day of the sale. Don't miss this opportunity. The sale closes Saturday night. 9 East Superior street.

The Wide Awake Club
Meets daily at Gray-Tallant's to share in Duluth's greatest white sale.

Quicker Service Friday.
Tomorrow will be a good day to shop at Duluth's greatest white sale. You know there are not usually as many shoppers out on Friday so the crowds will hardly be as great as one finds on all other days at Gray-Tallant's.

One More Trip For Moore.
Manager Coventry of the Booth line has announced that the steamer Moore would make at least one more trip to Grand Marais, and that if the weather permits she may be kept on the run indefinitely.

Alleged Perjurer Pleads.
The case of Charles Stark, charged with perjury, was taken up in the United States court yesterday. He pleaded not guilty, and his case was continued until the next term of court.

Matilda Carlson Dies.
Mrs. Matilda Carlson, 1631 London road, died this morning at her home, at the age of 35 years. Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence. Interment will be at Park Hill cemetery.

Adultery Charge.
Nels Navarre was arraigned before Judge Ensign in district court this morning on an indictment charging him with having committed adultery with one Estelle D. Peterson at Hibbing Oct. 28, 1908. The indictment was returned by the January grand jury on information furnished by Gust K. Peterson, husband of the woman.

For Relief of Marano.
The Herald today received a letter, signed as "One who wishes to help," enclosing $2, to be turned over to the family of Peter Marano, whose home was burned Tuesday night. The family is in destitute circumstances. What little its members had was burned in the fire, and they are now living in a basement. The $2 came to them as a Godsend.

Dies in Asylum.
John Hokevar, an aged Biwabik man, who was sent to Fergus Falls by a commitment from the probate court last week, died of pneumonia at that place. He was violently insane when committed.

Stole Axes.
John Anderson was brought to the county jail from Virginia today to serve sixty days for petit larceny. He was convicted of stealing three axes from Andrew Hawkinson and selling them.

Returned to Asylum.
John Hagadore, the Colbyville man who has given his relatives all kinds of trouble on account of insanity, will be returned to Fergus Falls again at the expense of his family. They bonded him out in order to get him to sign pension papers, and sought to have the probate court return him again. The county wouldn't assume the expense, he having been bonded out, so the relatives are going to take him back. Hagadore is 76 years old and a veteran of the Civil war.

Directors Re-elected.
At the meeting of the stockholders of the American Exchange bank, held last evening, all of the old directors of the bank were re-elected. Owing to the lack of a quorum, no action upon the election of officers was taken. Many of the directors of the bank are out of town at the present time.

Foresters' Installation.
The various courts of the Independent Order of Foresters will hold a joint installation of officers in Rowley hall, Friday night, to be followed by an entertainment, refreshments and dancing.

Nelson-Schober.
Miss Lillian Nelson and Charles Schober were married last evening by Rev. M. S. Rice at the First M. E. church parsonage. Following the ceremony, accompanied by a party of their friends, they went to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Rakowsky, 213 West Fifth street, where a reception was held in their honor. Mr. and Mrs. Schober will be at home to their friends after Feb. 1, at No. 17 Lake avenue north.

"The Sovereignty of Man."
"The Sovereignty of Man," will be the subject of the sermon by Rabbi Lefkovits at the Masonic Temple, Friday evening. Owing to the recent fire in the Temple Emanuel, it will be necessary to hold the meetings elsewhere until the damage has been repaired.

GIRLS WILL HAVE MANUAL TRAINING

For the first time senior girls at the Duluth Central high school will be allowed to take a course in manual training.

This course will be begun at the beginning of the next semester, Jan. 25. Only ten girls will be permitted to take the course, at this time, and these will be selected by drawing lots.

TWO LAWYERS AGAINST A WOMAN

An interested crowd was drawn to municipal court this morning by the case of Attorney William Marks against Mrs. Agnes S. Reed, in which Mr. Marks brought suit for $25 attorneys' fees, which he claimed was due him because of counsel given in the Reed vs. Clark case over some Butte-Superior mining stock.

The chief feature of interest was the fact that Mrs. Reed acted as her own attorney, while Mr. Marks was represented by James A. Wharton. Mrs. Reed put up a good fight, although her evident inclination to talk more than seemed necessary, afforded a good deal of amusement for the onlookers. Judge Cutting decided in favor of the plaintiff, although he said $25 was too high to charge for the service rendered, and directed that Mrs. Reed be asked to pay no more than $5, besides the costs of the action. He believed $5 a high enough charge, he said.

Mrs. Reed showed considerable cleverness in her cross-examination of witnesses this morning, but insisted on her woman's right to talk at any and all times, not even hesitating to interrupt and correct the judge when he was giving his opinion in regard to the suit.

MEETING OF BOYS' CABINET

The regular monthly meeting of the boys' department cabinet was held last evening, the cabinet taking dinner at the central department.

The following members were present: President William Eklund, Harvard Rockwell, Lawrence Jacques, Archie Glass, Rex St. Clair, William Nelson, Russell McLean, Charley McKinley, Caldwell Harris, Glen Merritt, J. R. Batchlor, N. D. McLeod.

The reports of the various committees showed that the work of 1908 had been the most successful since the club was organized five years ago. The membership had reached the 570-mark, and the interest by the committeemen had increased, with the result that all the activities have been pushed with more enthusiasm. The report for the boys' department publication, "Duluth Boys," showed that the paper had been well received by the members, and was filling a need. Archie Glass and Caldwell Harris were appointed business managers of the paper, to take the place of Wilbur McLean and Earl Bradley, who are out of the city. The date of the minstrel show was set for Thursday and Friday, Feb. 25 and 26. The proceeds of the entertainment will go to the camp fund to aid in the purchase of land and the building of a clubhouse for the summer camp.

Palmer Bevis, Caldwell Harris and Glen Merritt were appointed a committee to originate a yell and song to be used by club members. The cabinet has planned an entertainment for Lincoln's birthday evening, the proceeds to go to sending a delegate to the state convention at Red Wing. William Eklund, Harvard Rockwell and Palmer Bevis were appointed a committee to make the necessary arrangements. Plans for the summer camp were discussed, and the cabinet will aim this year to enroll 100 boys for Camp Miller. It is possible there will be two camps, one for boys under 15 years and one for boys over 15. If the committee decides to hold two camps, the time at Deerwood will be lengthened from two weeks to four, and possibly five weeks.

Mrs. Averill Dies.

Mrs. Hannah E. Averill, widow of Gen. J. T. Averill, and mother of Mrs. William H. H. Stowell, formerly of Duluth, died at her home in St. Paul Tuesday night. Mrs. Averill, as the wife of Gen. Averill, who founded the paper house of Averill, Carpenter & Co., was a conspicuous figure in the early life of the state.

Mrs. Averill is survived by two daughters, Mrs. E. A. Jaggard of St. Paul, wife of the justice of the supreme court, and Mrs. William H. H. Stowell, who formerly resided in Duluth. Mr. Stowell was at one time manager of the blast furnace in West Duluth.

Dammed the Creek.

The board of public works has issued notice that any boys caught damming up the Sixth avenue east creek, above Seventh street, or anywhere else along its course, will be arrested and prosecuted.

It appears that boys, in trying to make a skating rink, keep damming up the creek above Seventh street, and the back flow of water is damaging sewers, water pipes and other property.

Car Was Speeding.

That the 11-year-old son of James McDonald fell on the street car track, when the car was fully 100 feet away from him, and the car was going so fast it ran over him and forty feet beyond, is the statement made by witnesses in district court, in the damage suit brought by McDonald to recover $5,000 for the death of the boy.

The evidence in the case was all in this morning and the case will go to the jury some time this afternoon.

George I. Robinson Dies.

Black Mountain sold at $3.12½ and closed at $3.12½ bid and $3.25 asked.

MAY BE HEIRS OF ALBERT POSEY

Was North Albert Posey, whose name is borne by an addition to the city of Duluth on Garfield avenue, the "Alper Posey," for whose property inquiries are being made by relatives in Canada?

Did the old man, whose strange French will is on record in the register of deeds office of Douglas county, Wis., leave property in litigation in Duluth, which has never come before the probate court and of which no disposition was ever made?

Several inquiries have come to Judge Middlecoff of the probate court recently from a law firm at Lawrence, Muss., asking information relative to the estate of one Alper Posey for whom inquiries were being made by relatives in Canada. The letter states that the relatives are more or less illiterate and have had no trace of the man for years, but believe he died in Duluth, leaving considerable property in litigation.

There is no record in the probate court of any estate of a man of such name. Pioneers remember old North Albert Posey, who may be the man referred to. He was one of the pioneers of the Head of the Lakes and owned considerable property in Duluth.

GIRL ACCUSES; SLAYER ADMITS

York, Pa., Jan. 14.—Harry Keener, a York county farmer, confessed today that the story told by a girl of this city that he had killed a man on his farm last July is true. The identity of the victim is still unknown. The girl accused Keener while she was lying on what was believed to be her deathbed.

She is Miss Lorena Tawser, aged 18 years. Last summer she was employed on Keener's farm near Seven Valleys. Last week she attended the murder trial in this city of a one-armed negro, and was taken sick while listening to the testimony. After being taken home she was seized with spasms, and fearing she would die, gave a detailed account of Keener's alleged crime to her mother. Her reason for not telling of the killing sooner, she said, was that she had been sworn to secrecy by Keener.

The girl said that after Keener had killed the man he buried the body in the orchard and painted the places in the house where the blood had spilled. Investigation corroborated the girl's statements.

Keener said his victim was a stranger who came to his house in the night and, without any apparent provocation, threatened to kill him. He said he shot through the glass in the door of his home and killed him. Keener alleges the Tawser girl helped cut up the body and assisted in its burial.

TILLMAN SCORES MR. BONAPARTE

Washington, Jan. 14.—Addressing the senate for the second time in connection with Oregon land deal, Senator Tillman, today in reply to utterances of Attorney General Bonaparte and Postmaster General Meyer. He quoted the portion of Mr. Bonaparte's statement of last Monday in which the latter said that Tillman had not told him of his desire to obtain some of the lands in question and flatly contradicted the head of the department of justice.

He declared he had been frank with Bonaparte, and had explained to him his interest in those lands. He attributed the attorney general's attitude to a desire to "bolster up the president."

Postmaster General Meyer was brought into the discussion because of a statement made by him regarding the investigation of the Door case. Mr. Tillman said Meyer's effort to make it appear that the inquiry had been directed originally against Dorr was not based on the truth. He declared that from the first the inquiry had been directed against him (Tillman) and not against Dorr.

An indication of the temper of the house in regard to the secret service and special agents of the government was manifested yesterday when the house committee on the judiciary agreed to report to the house with recommendation that it pass the Clark resolution calling upon the attorney general for information in regard to the number of special agents in the employ of the department of justice.

NELSON SCORES FOR WARROAD HARBOR.

Washington, Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Nelson today secured the adoption of a concurrent resolution, directing the secretary of war to cause a survey and estimate of cost of deepening the channel and entrance of Warroad harbor, and protecting the channel and entrance of the same by means of a dike or otherwise.

FIFTEEN REPORTED INJURED IN WRECK.

Guelph, Ont., Jan. 14.—The Grand Trunk passenger train for Galt jumped the track near Gourock this afternoon. It is reported fifteen were injured.

ADMINISTRATION MOVES AGAINST NEWSPAPERS.

Washington, Jan. 14.—The department of justice has turned over to United States District Attorney Stimson of the Southern distruct of New York all the papers connected with the Panama canal purchase, which has been a target for criticism for the last six months. It is believed this transfer is made with the view of bringing criminal action in New York against publishers of newspapers who have been held responsible for the reflection on the transaction. Attorney Stimson, it is said, will turn the papers over to District Attorney Jerome for presentation to the grand jury.

ROBBERS PLACE BODY BEFORE FREIGHT TRAIN.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 14.—News reached here today that William A. Anderson, a conductor on the Chesapeake & Ohio branch, from Cattlettsburg to Pikeville, had been robbed and murdered. After Anderson was dead, the murderers carried his body to a high trestle and bound it to the rails, where it was struck by a freight train.

ISLANDERS' RIOT LED BY MAD MORO PRIEST.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 14.—According to news brought by the transport Sherman forty-five natives of the Isl- and of Baslin, district of Zamboanga, are in a turbulent state. The trouble has been fomented by the "Mad Priest," a Moro, recently released from Bilibid prison.

WHEAT HAS GOOD TONE

Steady Advance During the Session in American Markets.

May Flax Closes Here at a New High Price.

Duluth Board of Trade, Jan. 14.—Wheat was bullish again today, closing fractionally higher than yesterday. The tone of the market at the opening was steady and prices gradually advanced until the close. The buying demand was not phenominal, but it was steady.

Cables were stronger. Liverpool closed ⅛d to ¼d higher, Berlin ⅜c higher and Budapest ⅝c lower.

The May option closed ⅜c higher in Duluth, Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City, ⅝c higher in New York, ½@⅝c higher in St. Louis and ½c higher in Winnipeg. The May option closed ⅝c higher in Duluth, ½c higher in Chicago and Kansas City, ½@⅝c higher in Minneapolis, ⅜@½c higher in St. Louis, and ⅝c higher in Winnipeg.

May corn closed ⅛@¼c lower in Chicago, and unchanged in Liverpool. May oats closed unchanger in Chicago.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool:

"Wheat—Steadiness characterized the early trading in wheat, at which time values were ¼d higher, and during the early morning a further gain of ⅛d was made. Strength was the result of firmness in American cables yesterday, continued light American receipts and the fact that La Plata parcels were held 1-8d higher. During the morning the market was dull and part of this advance was lost. It was reported that La Plata importers were selling, and the continental demand was less active. At midday the market was dull and ¼d to ⅜d higher than yesterday.

"Corn was steady and unchanged. The market was entirely neglected."

Car receipts at Duluth were 40 against 57 last year, and at Minneapolis 123 against 282 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 163 against 339 last year. Chicago received 9 against 24 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 421,000 bus. last year 619,000 bus. Shipments 212,000 bus, last year 246,0000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 90,000 bus.

Primary receipts of corn were 426,000 bus, last year 938,000 bus. Shipments 186,000 bus, last year 502,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 245,000 bus.

In Duluth, May wheat opened ⅛c higher at $1.06, declined to $1.05⅞, rallied to $1.06⅜, and closed there, a gain of ⅜c over yesterday. July wheat was inactive and closed ⅜c higher than yesterday at $1.08⅝.

Durum wheat closed ⅜c higher and cash spring wheat was selling at the May price for No. 1 northern.

Flax was active and made a new high price for this crop during the session, reaching $1.09. May flax opened unchanged at $1.08½, advanced to $1.09, declined to $1.05¾, rallied to $1.09 and closed there, a gain of 1½c over yesterday.

Coarse grains were unchanged.

Following were the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Weather Conditions Furnish Mild Incentive to Pit Traders.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 14.—Weather conditions in this country and India furnished a mild incentive to pit traders to sell wheat at the opening of the market today and, as a result, sentiment in the pit was bearish early in the session. A Cincinnati trade journal in its weekly report stated that the snow covering was quite general in the winter wheat belt and a report from India claimed that recent rains had greatly benefited the crop in that country. Prices at the start were ¼c lower to ¼c higher compared with the previous close, May opening at $1.05¾ to $1.06. Later May sold at $1.05⅝. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 242 cars against 162 cars last week and 363 cars a year ago.

The market became strong late in the day on active general demand, May advancing to $1.06⅞@⅞. The close was strong with May up ⅜c at $1.06¾.

Profit-taking in the May delivery by local holders caused moderate weakness in the corn market. The easy tone of wheat brought out some sales. May opened unchanged to a shade higher, at 61⅛@61⅜c to 61⅝c and declined to 61⅛@61¾c. Local receipts were 159 cars with six of contract grade.

The low point for May was reached at 61¼c. Sentiment continued bearish the balance of the day, the market closing easy with May off ⅛@⅜c at 61⅜c.

Oats were quiet and steady. The bulk of trading was in the May delivery, which opened a shade higher at 51⅝c and sold at 51½c. Local receipts were 79 cars.

Trade in provisions was extremely quiet and the market was steady. Prices at the opening were unchanged to 2½c higher.

Close: Wheat—May, $1.06¾; July, 97¾c; September, 94½c. Corn—January, 57½c; May, 61⅝c; July, 61⅝@61¾c; September, 61⅜@61⅞c. Oats—May, 51½@51⅝c; July, 46¼@46¼c; September, 39@39¼c. Pork—January, $16.67½; May, $16.95; July, $17.05. Lard—January, $9.55@9.57½; May, $9.77½@9.80; July, $9.90. Ribs—January, $8.70@8.72½; May, $8.92½; July, $9.05. Rye—Cash, 76c; May, 77c. Barley—Cash, 62@67c. Timothy—March, $4.05. Clover—March, $9.45. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Week's Argentine Wheat Shipments Under Last Year's Mark.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 14.—Argentine shipments for the week were well under last year at the time corresponding, 1,200,000 bus against 2,160,000 bus, and this gave stability. Liverpool was a quarter higher. The market was further helped by the fact that since yesterday the local elevators lost 50,000 bushels and now show a smaller increase, and that receipts were light in general. Minneapolis received 193 cars against 282. Duluth 40 against 57, Winnipeg 66 against 95. The report late in the day that the elevators along the Soo line in North Dakota had sold a million bushels of wheat to country millers made the market advance sharply. May opened $1.07½, high $1.08½, low $1.07½, close $1.08½. July opened $1.08¼, high $1.08¾, low $1.08, close $1.08¾@⅞. Cash wheat demand was fair for No. 1 northern at 1@1¼c over May, but the No. 2 northern was draggy and although quoted ⅜c under May it was not so easy to sell it. Close: No. 1 northern spot, $1.09½; to arrive, $1.09½; No. 2 northern, spot, $1.08¼@½; to arrive, $1.07½; No. 3 wheat, $1.04¼@1.06¼; No. 3 yellow corn, 55⅜@56c; No. 3 white oats, 48⅜@49⅝c. No. 2 rye, 67⅜@71¾c.

Barley—Receipts, 55 cars against 83; shipments, 58. Dullness ruled and the market was ½c lower for some grades. Close, 57@59½c.

Flax—Receipts, 15 cars against 35; shipments, none. One cent over Duluth May and in good demand. Close, $1.60⅜.

Millstuffs—Shipments, 461 tons. The market made an advance on all grades and was strong at $21 and $21.25 for bran in bulk.

Flour—Trade picked up a little in the country and business on the whole was better, although the local mills found only a moderate improvement. Shipments, 33,875 barrels. First patents, $5.40@5.65; second patents, $5.20@5.40; first clears, $4.00@4.10; second clears, $2.95@3.10.

Liverpool Grain.

Liverpool, Jan. 14.—Close: Wheat—Spot easy; No. 2 red western winter, 7s 9½d; futures quiet; March, 7s 6½d; May, 7s 5¾d. Corn—Spot steady; American mixed new, via Galveston, 5s 2½d; futures dull; January, 5s 2⅞d; March, 5s 2⅝d; May, 5s 2⅝d.

Expelled From 'Change.

New York, Jan. 14.—The governors of the stock exchange announced today that Clarence M. Cohen of the firm of Cohen, Green & Co. has been expelled from membership. His expulsion is due to alleged misrepresentation at the time of his admission.

GRAIN RATES ARE CHANGED BY ROADS

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 14.—Western and Southeastern railroads have agreed to make grain rates through Chicago to the Southeast on a par with rates through other gateways. A complaint was made by Chicago interests that rates on grain from points north and west of Omaha to the Southeast had been lower by way of Peoria, Memphis, Louisville, and other gateways than by way of Chicago.

Cotton Market.

New York, Jan. 14.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 3 to 7 points, in response to higher Liverpool cables and fresh buying for long account. Profit-taking was heavy at the advance to 926 for March, a new high record for the season on that position, but there was no recession of consequence, and the market continued steady during the middle of the morning.

Spot closed quiet, 15 points advance; middling uplands, 9.60; middling gulf, 9.85. Sales, 485 bales. Futures closed steady. Closing bids: January, 9.31; February, 9.30; March, 9.32; April, 9.20; May, 9.23; June, 9.16; July, 9.16; August, 9.06; September, 9.01; October, 8.95; November, 8.92; December, 8.92.

'PHONE COMBINE AIMED AT BELL, KNOCKED OUT.

Hastings, Neb., Jan. 14.—Judge Corcoran of the district court decided that an agreement among the various independent telephone companies to refuse to exchange business with the Bell Telephone company is against public policy, and void.

The independent companies formed an alliance for the exchange of business, one provision of which prohibited connection with the Bell system.

Later the Kearney independent company decided to violate the agreement and an injunction was asked to prevent it from so doing.

WHITE SLAVE TRADE PROMOTERS PUNISHED.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 14.—Retribution has overtaken Alphonse and Eva Dufour, who, indicted in the first of the government's white slave cases, escaped punishment here by forfeiting $25,000 bail bonds.

They fled to their old home in France, but according to a report received by the immigration bureau today have just been sentenced to prison in France for harboring an American girl.

Dufour was sentenced to five years and his wife to two years.

MANKATO BANK DEFAULTER HAS SERVED HALF TIME.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The friends of Alfred A. Buck the Mankato bank defaulter, were making inquiries at the state prison this week relative to his release upon parole. At the meeting of the board or control last week he was an applicant for a pardon, but the board deferred action in the case. Buck was given a sentence of six years and four months and, with good time allowance has served a little more than half of it.

Rainy River, Ont., Election.

Spooner, Minn., Jan. 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual election of village officers was held at Rainy River, Ont., Tuesday evening. As only four nominees for councillors qualified for their respective offices an election will be held a week from Monday. The following officers were elected: Mayor Mr. Wheateroft; councillors, Dr. McCrimmon, C. T. Roberts, K. C. Grimshaw, and H. H. Morton.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Prices Rallied in Late Dealings and Close Was Irregular.

Market Ruled Dull During Greater Part of the Session.

New York, Jan. 14.—The most notable changes in the opening prices of stocks were in the minor issues, with the gains predominating. Erie first preferred advanced 1¾, Wisconsin Central preferred 1½, New York Central, Kansa City Southern preferred, American Smelting and National Biscuit 1, and Wisconsin Central and Brooklyn Transit large fractions. Erie declined a point.

The demand for stocks did not last long and prices declined, the reaction from the highest reaching about a point in New York Central and American Smelting. Signs of support for Erie and small purchases at other points caused a hardening, but the market did not show much stability on the recovery and gave way again to the lowest.

Wabash preferred was pushed down 1¼ and Toledo, St. Louis & Western 1. An upward swing carried St. Paul, Illinois Central and Union Pacific a point over last night. Wisconsin Central preferred got up 4. The market was narrower and professional. Bonds were irregular.

The prolonged dullness in the market was relieved by a good demand for the Harriman stocks, and several other recognized leaders, which lifted prices sharply. Union Pacific's rise reached 1⅞, and Southern Pacific 1. Canadian Pacific and National Lead also gained a point, and North American 1¼.

The market closed irregular and dull. After Northern Pacific and Pressed Steel Car preferred had advanced 1, and International Pump preferred 1¼, prices turned downward again, influenced by heavy selling of United States Steel, at a decline of 1. Prices rallied in the late dealings, when New York Central rose 2¼, Baltimore & Ohio 1½, and Norfolk & Western. 1.

New York stock quotations furnished by Fred H. Merritt, 328 West Superior street.
Closing prices are bid.

THURSDAY, JAN. 14, 1909.

Calumet & Sonora trading strong at $19.87 to $20.50. Big orders will soon take this one through the $20.00 mark and then Calumet & Sonora will be on its way to $30.00, and at $30.00 some stock may be met, but heavy buying will again carry it on through this price and then for $50.00 a share. You will see later on how correct I am on this proposition. The mine is worth millions and is selling at rate of $900,000.00. Remember the Calumet & Sonora is about 800 times as big as some of the new properties floated, and which are selling at rate of $1,000,000.00 for the mines. Calumet & Sonora closed $20.00 bid today.

Butte-Montana always good and think you had better begin loading up on this particular issue. It is selling too low and when it catches the upturn then it should sell at different prices up to $1.00 or better. The shares represent a value of at least $3.00 a share.

Carman is holding around $2.25 strong.

Hallaklava closed $15.37½ bid. Buy it for safe and big money.

Copper Queen wanted in big blocks at $1.62½ to $1.75.

Superior & Globe never looked better. It closed $1.25 bid. Calumet & Corbin closed $1.75 bid. This one looks very good.

Zenith Lead & Zinc is hard to buy and should sell much higher. It closed $1.87½ bid.

Give us your business, we will give you the right information on all mining properties. Buy Calumet & Sonora for it is the biggest cinch we know of at the present time.

With our own private wire connections with New York, Boston and the copper countries of Michigan, Montana, Nevada, Utah, Arizona and Mexico, we are the best equipped to give you quick executions on all the leading local stocks of any brokerage house in the city.

JEWELRY IS STOLEN

Superior Street Merchant Is Victim of Pearl Theft.

Two Witnesses Saw the Alleged Thief Take Package.

A man giving his name as James Baldwin, 29 years of age, was arrested yesterday afternoon, charged with the theft of jewelry from the store of E. E. Esterly, Spalding Hotel building. No jewelry was found upon him, but he is believed to have slipped it to a confederate before the police arrived.

Baldwin worked the old trick of examining a tray of diamonds. It is claimed two persons saw him take a package from the tray of loose stones.

The alleged theft was reported to the proprietor of the store, and he called up the police. Mr. Esterly then managed to detain his visitor, although he had to use force to do so.

Before the bluecoats' arrival, however, another man, who was a confederate of Baldwin, as he entered the store with him, quietly took his departure, and the police are morally certain that he took with him the stolen articles. A search of the prisoner failed to disclose anything belonging to the store.

Two men, a clerk in the store and a traveling man, who happened to be there at the time, declare positively that they saw Baldwin take the package from the tray, at a time when Mr. Esterly's back was turned. After that Baldwin and the man with him stood close together, conversing, and it is supposed Baldwin took advantage of the opportunity to slip the package to his confederate, who left the store without any attempt being made to detain him.

From other articles found in his clothes, it looks very much to the police as if Baldwin were a confidence man. A special police badge, fake greenbacks, checks in large figures, and hat badges, designed to entitle him to free transportation, were found on him.

The package taken contained pearls valued at about $60.

A Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches in two or three weeks after sprining his ankle, and it is often two or three months before he is fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, as by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, as directed, a cure may, as a rule, be effected in less than one week's time, and in many cases within three days. Sold by all druggists.

WEST END

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

West End Club Will Discuss Issues of Aldermanic Campaign.

Republican aldermanic candidates in the Sixth and Seventh wards will discuss the issue of the campaign at the big meeting of the West End Republican club, to be held this evening in George M. Jensen's office, Twenty-first avenue west and First street.

Besides Alex Kennedy and William Jeffry, who are carrying the aldermanic banners of the Republicans in the wards named, there will be speeches by a number of other prominent Republicans.

George M. Jensen will preside.

Ladies Will Install.

Progress lodge, No. 6, Degree of Honor, which is the women's auxiliary of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, will hold its annual installation of officers this evening in Columbia hall. The following officers will be installed: Past C. of H., Mrs. A. Farrington; C. of H., Mrs. H. McCoy; L. of H., Mrs. A. Olson; C. of C., Mrs. M. Forest; F., Mrs. G. Burnett; I. E., Mrs. B. Long; receiver, Mrs. A. Renner; usher, Mrs. T. Grotto; inside warden, Mrs. A. Thomas; outside warden, Mrs. E. Butchard; musician, Miss C. Thomas.

Woodmen's Installation.

Duluth lodge, No. 2431, Modern Woodmen of America, held its annual installation of officers last evening in Columbia hall. In addition to the installation ceremonies and routine business, a literary and musical program was given. Mayor Haven was present and delivered a short address.

The following officers took their seats; Past counsel, George Miller; counsel, George Peterson; advisor, Jack Thorson; banker, A. C. Anderson; clerk, Charles Shogren; reading clerk, Charles Dice; escort, B. A. Sloan; watchman, Martin Olson; sentry, A. B. Conning; managers, O. W. Olson, William Benard and George M. Johnson; physicians, Dr. O. A. Oredson, Dr. L. Q. Greeley and Dr. Pare.

The exercises weere followed by dancing.

Will Rejoin the Navy.

Henry McClure and Fred McClure left last night for the East, to resume their duties in the navy. Both of them have been on vacations and have spent the last month or so visiting their parents in the West end.

When they report for duty, they will go to one of the navy department's schools for gunners before they are assigned to ships. They are deeply interested in their work.
